CHAPTER IX.

"Sydney, while I see this person, will you write out the list for the library? The catalogue is on my dressing-table." And as her daughter disappeared by one door the stranger-servant entered at another.

If Mrs. Alwyn had calculated on the graceful picture exciting the admiration of her aristocratic friend's messenger she was not disappointed.

The woman, despite the stolidity of aspect good training is supposed to impart to her class, fairly stared open-mouthed at the dainty elegancies of the tiny room. Her gaze first falling on the piles of all but price-less finery, next on Mrs. Alwyn, next on Leonora, she uttered an all but audible "Oh!" before she so far remembered herself as to make the regulation greetings of respect.

This was delightful. Mrs. Alwyn well knew the influence of the back stairs, and felt assured such a report of her surroundings would return to Lady Avena as would satisfy her that her reverend brother would take a wife nurtured to delicacies equal to any his circle could afford if he chose Miss Villiers.

With most dignified condescension the young lady's mother stretched forth her hand for Lady Avena Massey's note, and prolonged its reading that the bearer might have more time to satisfy her evidently capacious curiosity.

"Peel so greatly indebted," murmured Mrs. Alwyn, scanning her missive half aloud for Leonora's benefit. "So ashamed to trespass on your kindness. Trust you will, on no consideration, rob yourself. Very best thanks. Remembrances of our united circle. Yours most truly, Avena Massey." Sweet name, Avena! Now, laying aside the note, and motioning the servant to the table, "if you have the pattern, I think we can match it here. Your mistress is afraid I should rob myself, but I do not think there is much risk of my doing so."

"I don't think there is, indeed, ma'am," said the maid, with emphasis.

is. Then she brought forth the torn fichu, and with some nervousness—for certainly her fingers trembled—began to compare it with piece after piece, scarcely able to stifle an exclamation when now and then something especially rare was shaken out.

Mrs. Alwyn was supremely gratified.

"You are a judge of these things, no doubt. Of course, your mistress has much superior to this, though?"

"Oh, no, ma'am. Nothing to compare with it. Her ladyship mostly dresses very plain."

"Exactly my own taste," agreed Mrs. Alwyn, better pleased than ever "Buried here in the country, I rarely use any of this," tossing a heap of Brussels carelessly aside, "they lie away useless and half forgotten; but perhaps," with a visibly suppressed smile and glance toward her daughter, "others may care for them. They may be wanted and worn again someday."

"If your young lady has to have a wedding-gown soon," said the woman, taking the hint instantly, "you can give her as good as a princess' without going far to fetch it, ma'am."

"She has certainly heard some gossip in the servants' hall," thought Mrs. Alwyn, elated "family affairs are always known there sooner than anywhere!" "Well, whenever it may be required," she said aloud, very graciously, "one important item of Miss Villiers' trousseau will be ready."

"And leave plenty for Miss Sydney too, ma'am," said the woman. A whose mention Mrs. Alwyn bethought herself of rather a clever stroke. Things looked so promising for the secondary scheme, she might advantageously send forth a hint of it then any incipient fancy of the Honorable and Reverend Edward's would be nipped in the bud. So—

"Miss Alwyn can easily be spared sufficient," she said; "and, indeed, significantly, "I don't know that I shall do amiss by selecting some to day, as it is likely to be wanted before very long."

The woman looked up from her search, interested, but Mrs. Alwyn was not going to commit herself to particulars, so she adroitly quitted the subject.

"Leonora, love, will you look at the Mechlin I laid out by you? Has no the longest strip a double thread around the edge, with little loops and sort of treflois in the scallop?"

"Yes," Leonora, dropping her book to examine, thought it had, and holding it languidly up, "would this length be sufficient?"

Her mother and Lady Avena's maid drew near, to pronounce the match on close inspection perfect, and the servant, despite an intimacy with the jewel-case of an earl's daughter, bestowed what Mrs. Alwyn took for keenly appreciative glances on the four splendid hoops—pearl, diamond sapphire, ruby—which adorned the young lady's white hands.

The quest ended, nothing remained but to fold up the parcel, but ever this last minute Mrs. Alwyn utilized to her own purpose.

"Lie down again, dear Leonora. My daughter felt the heat so much

NEARLY DIED OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

GIN PILLS SAVED HIM
 513 JAMES ST., HAMILTON, ONT.
 "Five years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in back and loins, and difficulty in urinating, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony. I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor.
 My wife read in the papers about GIN PILLS and sent for a box. From the very first, I felt that GIN PILLS were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once and the attacks were less frequent.
 In six weeks, the Stone in the Bladder came away. When I recall how I suffered and how now I am healthy and able to work, I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what GIN PILLS have done for me."
JOHN HERMAN, 178 GIN PILLS are sold at 50c a box—for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. Sample box free if you write us, mentioning this paper. Money back, if GIN PILLS do not give satisfaction. National Drug & Chem. Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

"Yesterday. You will tell Lady Avena we are all well with this exception." "Then some one must call to inquire for her," she meditated, rapidly; "Mr Duvesne, most likely." "Take some eau-de-Cologne, darling," pouring it freely on hands and handkerchiefs "on an immense gold-stoppered bottle. If Miss Villiers should depart with all these," sweeping up the fescoons of lace from the satin-backed chair, and referring, with motherly benignity, to the maid's former speech, "I must see that she goes where she will be well taken care of. Anything less than what she leaves would be quite impossible for her."

"I haven't a doubt of it, ma'am," was the reply, the speaker bending to tie her parcel.

"You are ready now? Assure Lady Avena I shall not even miss what I send her. And—oh! mind—mind—my Chelsea boy!" as an abrupt turn "I've sold a piece of eighteenth century ware—I couldn't replace it for fifty guineas! It's safe now. You will go down into the hall, please Phillips will show you out. Good morning."

Sydney was just coming from her own room as this early visitor quitted her boudoir. Not particularly wanting to meet the stranger, she drew back, and herself unseemly, was witness of a most inexplicable pantomime. For the stereotyped respectful aspect of the woman changed as she closed the door behind her. With fierce scowl of bitterest anger, she clinched her hand, and, her teeth hard set, seemed furiously to menace the room she had just left. Catching her breath, she seemed barely able to restrain vituperation or sob. One foot raised, as if she could have stamped for very passion, was only brought silently down by an effort that set her trembling from head to foot. But a sound in the hall below seemed to recall her senses. With one great quivering breath she steadied herself, swept the back of her gloved hand quickly over her eyes and, rapidly descending, left the house.

"I wonder, mamma," Leonora was saying, as her step-sister entered "how that servant knew Sydney's name. Did you notice it?"

"Picked it up from fellow-servants of course," was the quick rejoinder "Now, rest quietly, my dear, while I make haste to Hemynford; Leonora had best not be disturbed, Sydney, till I come back."

So Sydney was left with only her own counsel to consult over that curious interlude on the landing, and, since she could not possibly either fathom or amend the woman's singular excitement, she did her best to put it from her mind. It might have been illness, she thought. It could have nothing to do with any of them at the Dale.

But it had.

CHAPTER X.

Mr. Richard Drayton's two days at St. Clair's lengthened under hospitable pressure into a week, and in that time it naturally felt out that he saw something of what Mr. Vaughan designated his "lay-vicars."

"A multitude of small works mostly go to the women of such homes as mine, Drayton," said the gray-haired rector to his quondam pupil, the morning after the gathering at Oakleigh Place; and I give them over to those two you talked to yesterday. They can help a man of my years, you know, without being suspected of wanting to marry him! That Sydney

Alwyn's adaptability is most amazing; give her anything to do for any one she likes, and she draws to the task like a needle to a magnet. And the other is an invaluable girl—well, not girl exactly, for she is ten years Sydney's senior—

"And how old may she be?" interposed Mr. Drayton.

"Twenty or thereabouts. So I'm rarely fortunate to have such assistants." (The last thing to enter the rector's head would have been any explanation of how his own deeds had earned him these willing services. That Mr. Drayton might find out! "But mind you, every honest man hasn't such luck, and recollect when you map out your home, Drayton, you're not so fond of letter-lore as your old tutor, so furnish yourself with something that will brighten all your evening tides."

"Meaning a wife?"

"Right. And when you're determined to take one, come here—"

"To find her?" Mr. Drayton's brown face reddened.

"No!"—laughing—"but to hear the rest of a bachelor's homily on married life! Who's there?"—a soft tap sounding on the study door—"Come in. What, you!" as Sydney Alwyn, leaving a basket of strawberries outside, entered, her sun-shade in one hand, and a bunch of honeysuckle in the other. "Surely, now, you are not come up in this heat just to bring me home?"

"Not that alone," Sydney answered, setting down her freight to shake hands with Mr. Drayton, "for I promised Harry and Ben to come and help them with their Euclid. At least," blushing, "to do it with them. They expected to be at lessons again today."

"Instead of which I've stopped their industry," said Mr. Drayton—"a drone in the hive, I ought to be off."

"Nonsense!" cried the rector, "they are a pair of lazy little rascals. I set them their work hours ago. They ought to have stuck to it without me. But I suppose—to Sydney—"they haven't?"

In honesty she had to shake her head.

"Playing!" with a groan, "as if here were no examination coming on in September." Scholarships for these two orphan lads lay heavy on the rector's mind just then, and he looked vexed. Sydney as little liked to see him troubled as to see the lads get very good comrades of four years, in disgrace, so she hastened to bespeak their pardon with a lurking smile.

"Harry has been the soul of industry," she said, "in—drawing cats! He's sketched the tortoise-shell in fifty attitudes; Ben has written a poetical pendant to the picture, praising pussy's extraordinary mouse-catching powers!"

Hereat her hearers broke out laughing, and Sydney went bravely on.

"So they are to be forgiven, please. They are to make up for lost time next week. And as Mr. Drayton will be here, and of course you must be with him, may I come down and be with the boys each morning? They say they want me."

This is the number of new subscribers secured by the Maritime Telegraph & Telephone Company during the past year. This represents an increase of about 16 per cent., and the directors state that it would appear from present indications that this rate of increase will be maintained for some time to come. What this means to the holders of the Common Shares of the Company will be readily appreciated.

We have instructions to offer a small block of this Common Stock at an attractive price, to yield well over six and one half per cent.

 Fort Hope, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—
 When acknowledging receipt of the Company's cheque for my matured Endowment Policy No. 24977, I desire to avail myself of the opportunity to express my satisfaction with the outcome of my investment.

The policy was payable to me at age 60, with ten premiums of $2.00 each. The return under it is as follows:

Sum assured	$1,000.00
Dividends added	416.64
Total amount payable	$1,416.64
Reduced total premiums paid	200.00

That I should have insurance protection free for all these years and now have over twice the amount of my premiums returned to me in cash is a most satisfactory outcome and I heartily congratulate you on it.

Yours very truly,
 W. J. ROBERTSON.

"I am Sorry."

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I am sorry."
 That sounds like a very simple and easily spoken phrase, doesn't it? And yet I wonder if in all the English language there are any words that are harder to say than these three. I doubt it. Unless, perhaps, by chance, they be the three words "I was wrong."
 Mistakes are the commonest thing in the world. We all make them. To err is human, and even the most perfect folk err occasionally. While we ordinary mortals scarcely live through a day without one or more mistakes. And yet how seldom we hear anyone acknowledging a mistake—and thus at least half atoning for it—by saying frankly and fairly, "I am sorry" or "I was wrong, or words to that effect."
 "When my husband is unkind or unjust to me in any way he is usually sorry for it almost immediately," a woman said to me the other day in speaking of this matter. "And there is nothing he won't do for me the next few hours or days—the time depends on the size of the wrong, of course. He can't say and do enough kind things and the shows me in every way that he's sorry, but he never, never says it. Of course, I'm grateful for all the nice things he does, but somehow I'd give anything to have him acknowledge he was wrong and say he was sorry and didn't mean to hurt me."

I think we all know people who are like that, and I think we all feel in regard to them very much as the woman did. Kind words and deeds are healing salve for a hurt, but there is something about a frank acknowledgment of wrong that does the stinging and poising part of the wound as nothing else can.

Undoubtedly, there are people who think it shows strength never to acknowledge that they have erred. I know a man who frequently made just that boast. He considered it one of the strong points in his character; as a matter of fact, it was his greatest weakness. It antagonized his wife, it lost him friends right and left and it finally "got" him in his business career.

There is nothing that sounds more manly, or womanly, than to hear anyone say frankly, "I am sorry" or "I was wrong." Learn to say, "I was wrong," my boy. It will be just as valuable to you as a command of the negative.

Incidentally, don't forget to acknowledge a wrong when necessary to those to whom it is somehow hardest to say things like that, you nearest and dearest.

And one word more: If by any chance you are ever rebuffed, do not be discouraged in well doing. Remember that anyone who fails to receive your acknowledgement thereby transfers the burden of wrong from your shoulders to his.

Famous Rugby Kickers.

By E. H. D. Sewell, The Well-Known Football Expert.

I suppose all of us have, from our days in the School XV, down to the last match seen some kicks and kickers that stand out in the memory above and before all others. Everybody has his or her favourites in all branches of life from Rugby football down to politics, and I am going to write about mine in the matter of kicks and kicking.

For sheer dramatic interest I have never seen a kick of so much import as the kick for goal taken by D. F. T. Morkel in the second London v. South Africa match of the 1912-13 season. Let us consider the circumstances. No English team had beaten the South Africans; London was leading, with but half a minute more time to run its course, by ten points to eight, and now Douglas Morkel, one of the finest (he was certainly the longest) place-kicks the game ever knew, was seen carefully arranging the place for a "penalty" kick at goal at a point near the London twenty-five, rather nearer the touch-line than the centre of the field—precisely, in fact, at what is known as the awkward angle.

A Dramatic Moment.

Everybody knew the game ended with the kick. Everybody knew London was beaten if Morkel kicked successfully—and that an English side had beaten the almost invincible invader if he failed. It had been, besides, a most exciting match, and during the final quarter of an hour or more the Colonials had done everything but score; the London defence having very sound.

Here, if ever, was a case of a silence that could be felt, of one of those moments when one could distinctly hear a "hea sneeze." That was as Morkel stepped back for his short run. Three quick steps and—bump! as he met leather. "Goal!" roared the crowd as the ball started straight. "Ah!" gasped a quick-eyed section of the on-lookers, as it was seen to swerve. Then came the victorious "No goal!" from hundreds who felt sure and hundreds who could only guess. It was, indeed, a dramatic moment.

Another was when "All Black" Wallace dropped for goal at Swansea and saved his side from defeat in a match they would have lost otherwise by a try to nothing. Wallace's drop appeared to be going wide and, by some, he was held to be very lucky to score at all, as the ball caught the breeze and swung it in between the posts to give the New Zealanders a one-point victory as some slight but wholly inadequate compensation for the try disallowed a few days before in the memorable encounter with Wales at Cardiff. But Wallace was not lucky. He had not played football for years for nothing, and he gauged the wind accurately in this, as in many other cases, during that eventful tour.

Morkel, the Genial Giant.

During the last South African tour there occurred perhaps the longest drop-kick—that of L. Stokes at Rye-burn Place long ago not expected—ever seen in an international match. It was at Bordeaux, and again D. F. T. Morkel was the hero. Some distance on the South African side of the half-way line a free-kick had been given to the Colonials for some infidelity on the part of the Frenchman. The South African captain, "Boxer" Millar, tossed the ball mechanically to Morkel. "What shall I do, Billy?" said the giant, as folk do not, as a rule, try for goal from such distances when leading by twenty or thirty points to nil. "I don't know," said Millar, then, smiling, "Go on, have a drop!" Two steps back, and thud! went that foot once more. High and far the ball flew, a clean goal, dropped from about eight or ten yards beyond half-way of a full-sized field. "And then the ranks of Tussahy could scarce forbear to cheer." In fact, the French team cheered and cheered their hearts more loudly than any of the twenty thousand and more on-lookers present, their feet back, gazing right up the field from behind the goal to grasp Morkel's hand.

I have seen the same genial giant "place" a goal from beyond half-way on the Athletic Ground, Richmond, and I saw him just miss goal on the same ground from fully eight yards behind the half-way line and to one side of it with a ball that pitched twenty yards beyond the goal posts. That kick sent the ball about ninety yards, foot to pitch.

H. T. Gamlin and K. G. Macleod were two of the biggest punt-kickers of recent times, the Scotsman being, in addition, a very long drop-kicker. Probably for height and distance A. L. Stokes, a son of L. Stokes before referred to, and at present a full back for Blackheath is the best now playing, but his accuracy is not that of a W. J. Wallace or an R. A. Lloyd.

An All-round Kicker.

In the last named Ireland has an all-round kicker of a Rugby ball without rival to-day for sheer and invariable accuracy. Lloyd's display in the Irish match at Twickenham in February, 1912, was the best in point of punt and drop-kicking, I have ever seen: The accuracy with which he directs the ball is almost that of a machine. I wonder how many matches he has won by his accuracy, either by drop or place-kicking, alone? His kicking is a gift nobody can hope to attain unto such perfection by virtue of practice alone. It has been said, and quite rightly said and written, that by dint of sheer hard work in the nature of constant practice a player can become great at place-kicking. It was not practice that made W. J. Wallace, D. F. T. Morkel, P. Carmichael (of the Australian team of 1908), G. P. Morkel (of the last South African team and cousin of D. F. T.), K. C. Macleod, H. T. Gamlin, and R. A. Lloyd the great kickers they were, and are. Not practice but a natural gift, with which they practised in order to become memorable exponents of what is almost a lost art. Would our Rugby Clubs had more like them!

Chest Colds And Hoarsness Quickly Rubbed Away

"Nerviline" Gives Speedy Relief and Cures Over Night.

Got a cold?
 Is your voice raspy—is your chest congested or sore?
 If so, you are the very person that Nerviline will cure in a jiffy.

Nerviline is strong and penetrating. It sinks right into the tissues, takes out inflammation and soreness, destroys colds in a truly wonderful way. Rub Nerviline over the chest—rub on bits of it, and watch that tightness disappear. Nerviline won't blister, it sinks in too fast—don't simply stay on the surface like a thick, oily liniment would. If the throat is raw and sore, rub it well outside with Nerviline as a gargle diluted with warm water. Just one or two treatments like this and your voice and throat will be quite normal again.

Just think of it—for forty years the largest used family medicine in this country—Nerviline must be good, must quickly relieve and cure a hundred ills that befell every family. Try it for croup, toothache, coughs, colds, sore chest, hoarseness and muscular pains in every part of the body. Large family size bottle 50c.; trial size 25c. at all dealers.

Piles Cured in 6 to 14 Days.

Fort William, Ont., March 27.—Fire destroyed the Hudson Bay Co's store building here last night and caused a loss of $250,000 on building and stock. The store had just closed when the boiler furnace exploded.

While on the ladder leading to the third floor one of the firemen lost control of the hose and Dave Gero was thrown to the ground, about 25 feet below.

Later in the evening another fireman, David Martin, was knocked from a ladder by a piece of falling cornice and had several ribs broken.

A Mead Of Praise.

While Nature exacts a terrible penalty for mistakes; misfortunes, dangers and disasters after all brings out much that is of the best in human nature. On Saturday the common talk on board the Bellaventure was that Capt. Randall deserves a gold medal for the noble work he did in devoting his whole attention and that of his crew to the purpose of rescue. He spared neither himself, nor his officers, men or ship in getting through to those in dire need of assistance. A mead of praise has already been given to Capt. Parsons for his exertions. But there are many others who deserve honorable mention in this connection. There is Capt. James Newhook, the barrel-man, of St. John's, who first saw the men coming to the Bellaventure. There is Capt. George Fowlow, of Trinity, bridge master, and Capt. Charles Bailester, of Port Rexton, bridge master, John Bailey, master watch, who did great work in rescuing the stricken sealers and in looking after them, when they were brought aboard. No man was more assiduous in his attention to the sick than Philip Way, of this city, who did exceptionally good work in the case of the sick. Then, too, the master, watches and other officers gave up their quarters, bedding and clothing, to give a bed to the sick sealers and to provide them with a change of clothing. It is only right to mention the kindness the Newfoundlanders met with aboard the Bellaventure, for it is one of the bright aspects of a terrible black cloud which is hovering over Newfoundland.

Again, the Government, under the general direction of Hon. J. R. Bennett, acted efficiently and promptly in dealing adequately with the reception and attention to the living and dead sealers. We saw almost every member of the Government and of the House of Assembly doing their best to give the work. The Speaker, Mr. Goodison, came in from Carbonear to give his services. Mr. Stone with other helpers went out with the bodies the Reid Nfd. Co. thoughtfully attached a dining car to the train and provided meals for them on the four day free of cost. Dr. Campbell has general charge of the ambulance arrangements, which were well carried out by Dr. C. Macpherson and his staff of helpers from the ambulance corps, the brigades, the Calypso. Dr. Keegan, the superintendent, Dr. Knight and the staff of nurses had excellent arrangements made at the Hospital and Superintendent Jones did yeoman service at the Seamen's Institute.

The Newfoundland Disaster Enquiry Before Judge Knight Began This Morning.

The Attorney General, Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., and the Deputy Minister of Justice, Mr. Hutchings, K.C., appeared on behalf of the Crown to assist in the enquiry; Mr. Warren, K.C., on behalf of Bowring Bros. and Capt. Abraham Kean; Mr. Morine, K.C. and Mr. Lloyd also watched the case on behalf of the men.

The Attorney General said Mr. Hutchings would assist the Magistrate in conducting the enquiry.

Capt. Robert Randall, Master of the Bellaventure, swore he had been prosecuting seal fishery, returning last Saturday, 4th inst. On Tuesday, March 31st, the Bellaventure about forty miles R.S.E. of Spiller's Ridge, Bonavista, Newfoundland and Bonaventure in sight Newfoundland bore N.N.W. from us and about 5 miles away. Bonaventure about N 5/2 W, about 5 miles away. We sighted steamer we took to be the Etie about 10 a.m. bearing W. Newfoundland and Bonaventure not then in sight. Before that shifted our position about 15 miles south. Did not put crew out until 1 p.m. Weather conditions about 7 a.m. fine and clear, but sky was overcast. Very little indications of storm all the morning—not of severe storm. The barometer did not give any indication in the early morning. The barometer gradually fell towards noon and just slightly. It commenced to snow about noon. The wind at this time was about S. E. all morning—but there was scarcely any wind. Slightly increased up to noon. The wind and snow increased considerably in the afternoon. It became bad weather all at once between two and three p.m. At 4.30 p.m. it was a blizzard, could not see any distance. The wind about the same direction, S. E., it was a little frosty. There was not as much frost about 8 or 9 it became milder, the wind a little more easterly and increased. After that it turned in—about 10 p.m. I put my own men on the ice between 1 and 2 p.m. They remained out about an hour. I picked them up, because there were no more seals there, not on account of weather. I was also anxious to reach position where the Red Cross boats and Bonaventure were. The ships were N. by W., but not in sight. The ice was good where we were, but not loose. The men did not travel more than 3 mile from ship. I was up two or three times during the night and I could not see the length of ship owing to storm. The wind had changed mostly north, and it became quite frosty. That weather continued until 9 a.m. on Wednesday. Then it cleared at intervals. About noon we could see about two miles, between the squalls. It gradually became better during the afternoon. About 3 p.m. the sky was quite clear but there was quite a ground drift on ice. We saw the Stephano about 1 p.m. about E.N.E. three miles away. We saw no sign of any ships in the ice. After 3 p.m. there was a drift, not so much, which prevented us from seeing any distance. Our men went out at 2.30 and remained out till dark. Some going two miles and perhaps a little more. Wind was N.N.W. at night and part of next day, gradually dying out. The drift gradually decreasing until dusk there was scarcely any. Wednesday night continued fine, but very frosty.

On Thursday we got under way about dawn. The ice was very tight and heavy. We steamed S.W. a little distance, about a quarter of a mile, and we turned S.E. As soon as it was daylight a barrel-man named Newhook reported he saw some men on ice, about 2 miles S.E. He said two men were coming towards us. I took the glass and saw them myself. I saw six or seven men; two seemed to be coming towards us, and the others I lost sight of. By this time the barrel-man reported the men appeared to be staggering, as if something was wrong. We concluded the men had been out all night. We gradually drew near to one man because we were hitting and he was walking towards us. When he got near to the ship, I could see he was a bad shape. I sent two or three men to help him on board. He reported 60 men out from the Newfoundland since Tuesday morning. He also said here were 50 men dead. We knew some of them must be in bad shape by that time. The ice being so tight the ship could not get to them. I sent out three or four men to help the second man, who was then nearing the ship. I think one of the two was Jesse Collins, but I am not quite clear. The second hand suggested we turn out all our men to search. We immediately did this, and gave the relieving party spirits and blankets. The second-hand, Abraham Parsons, went in charge. We continued working the ship towards the place where we had seen the men during the early morning. Not long after, some of our men began returning, helping the other men along. The ship continued on until 3 p.m., picking up the live men. They were coming in twos and threes.

At that time, squads of our men helping them. At 3 p.m. they were all on board, 34 of them. Several were brought on stretchers, as they could not walk. Most of them were in a bad condition. The second-hand had the bodies put on pans together so that here would be no trouble in picking them up. These were picked up between 3 and 4 p.m. We had on board 18 bodies. The Newfoundland was in sight when we finished picking up the bodies, about six miles to the East. She was in sight all the evening before, as soon as the weather cleared. The Stephano, Florizel and Bonaventure were in sight all Thursday. We then tried to work towards the Newfoundland. I think she was jammed all the time. We were trying to rescue her all that night. The ice was very tight and we could only make slow progress. We stopped a few hours during the night and reached the Newfoundland about 11 a.m. the following day, Friday. The Stephano was alongside the Newfoundland when we reached her, and Captain Abraham Kean came on board us with the Newfoundland's articles. Previous to that he had been on board the Newfoundland and got the articles. He ticked off the names of those aboard the Newfoundland. I gave him a list of the live men we had on board the Bellaventure. These men were distributed over the ship. We ticked those off and saw who were dead. Then we took the sick men from the Newfoundland on board the Bellaventure, about 13, and 2 from the Stephano, and also two dead men from the Stephano. Then we started for the Florizel. She had in the meantime picked up nine dead bodies. We took them about 4 p.m. We then had on board 69 dead men, and 43 sick. After we had ticked off the sick men and counted the bodies we had, there were 5 men dead and missing. After the first member of the Newfoundland's crew came on board, we got in touch with the Stephano by wireless. After I received a message from A. Harvey & Co. I reported. We arrived in St. John's about 5 p.m. on Saturday afternoon, hauled into Harvey & Co's wharf, where the sick men and bodies were taken charge of by the authorities.

eight years at the ice. The seals were much scattered. We had to steam considerably more than usual this year. Seals were scarce, picking up small quantities for several days before the Tuesday. We were killing and we picked them up at once. The Newfoundland's direction and the men's direction about 45 degrees. The men were not straight between us and the Newfoundland. We saw the Newfoundland between 3 and 4 on Wednesday. Nine of the thirteen sick men had been out in the storm with the second hand and got back to Newfoundland. I cannot speak of the other four.

To Mr. Lloyd.—The nine men had been out about 48 hours. We had no wireless connection with the Stephano on Wednesday. Some of our men reported on Friday after we had discovered the Newfoundland's men that they had seen men of another ship to the eastward on Wednesday evening. They did not report this to me on Wednesday. I heard from the second hand, the direction from which the Newfoundland's men were subsequently picked up. It is not customary to make barometrical records at the sealery. Public weather messages are not sent to us at the sealery. On Tuesday the barometer did not sink rapidly at any moment to my knowledge.

Advance Showing of New Gowns.

We beg to announce for this week our display of latest Evening Gowns, and Bridge and Afternoon Frocks. These are copies of French Model Gowns, in lovely shades and designs; no two alike. We give below a description of one Gown, but they must be seen for their elegance to be fully appreciated. This model is of rich, heavy Ivory Crepe-de-Chine. Waist has folded Chiffon vest caught with tiny cut crystals; sleeves are of Chiffon draped entirely with exquisite lace, waist is veiled with lace, has wide crusted girdle and is finished at corsage with a cluster of shaded Mauve roses and a long rope of pearl and crystal beads. The skirt is in straight clinging lines, and has a double pleum of lace, held in place at back by drape and flat bow of Crepe-de-Chine. This Gown is a very beautiful one in its perfect lines and drapings.

Wesley Church.

At Wesley Church, Sunday night the service was most solemn and impressive. After the opening hymn "Eternal Father Strong to Save," fervent prayer was offered for the bereaved in so many of our outport homes and well as several in the city. The choir then sang that beautiful hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace," and after the lesson was read another hymn "Deem not that they are blest alone," in which all joined. The preacher, Rev. F. R. Matthews, B.A., announced his text, Jeremiah 31:15 verse: "In Ramah there was a voice heard, lamentation and bitterness: Rachel weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted." After referring to the appalling disaster, the utility of wireless telegraphy, the sympathy of the King and other by cables, the stirring efforts of members of the Government, the order and precision with which the arrangements for the removal of the suffering and deceased were carried out on the arrival of the steamer, the manifest value and convenience of the Grenfell Institute in such an emergency which justified its erection and support, the preacher went on to pay a high tribute to the brave seamen who too often dare the elements in order to secure a living for themselves and those depending on them. With much pathos he referred to some incidents told him by survivors, some encouraging each other with Christian consolation, giving messages to dear ones at home they would never greet again, the terrible sufferings from cold, one man had told him he had been in the water five times. The lessons were then applied, of contentment with our calling which is immensely easier than the hardships many are called upon to endure, and show more regard for our toilers upon the sea, and others who work amongst machinery. After the hymn, "A few more years shall roll," the organist, Mr. Pratt, played the Dead March in Saul.

Nose Colds Run Into Catarrh

Doesn't Matter Where the Cold is Catarrhoxone Will Cure It. Don't snuffle and sneeze with a nasty cold—you can kill it in a jiffy by breathing in the healing vapor of Catarrhoxone. It's the quickest, surest thing for colds ever known—simply knocks them right out. No medicine to take when you use Catarrhoxone—you just inhale the richest of healing essences through a specially designed inhaler.—this medicated vapor is death to the germs of cold or catarrh. It kills and soothes the inflamed air passages, clears out phlegm, stops discharge, enables you to breathe freely.

Catarrhoxone braces up the throat—gives it strength—stops the hacking cough, gives the lungs a chance. In ten minutes you have wonderful relief. In an hour you feel like a new being. Colds or coughs simply can't exist if Catarrhoxone is used. No treatment so direct.—Catarrhoxone goes right to the spot—acts quickly, and thoroughly cures coughs and colds, bronchitis, catarrh and irritable throat. No failure, succeeds every time. Complete outfit $1.00; medium size 50c.; small (trial size only) 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Harbour Grace Notes.

Nothing talked of here but the recent terrible disaster, when so many of our brave sealers were hurried into eternity. May God pity and protect the widows and orphans, as well as the broken-hearted mothers and sisters in their grief. We tender our sympathy to every one of them.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church at a meeting last night, decided to postpone their sale advertised for next week and hold it in the Fall instead. This mostly on account of the terrible loss the country has just suffered.

Up to the time of writing (2 p.m. Saturday) there is no news of the Southern Cross, and very much anxiety is felt for the safety of her crew. We are hoping to hear good news before Monday.

The flag of the K. E. Brigade is floating at half mast to-day in mourning for the death of Mr. George Lee-Whiting, who held the position of Color-Sergeant and Instructor of Signals in the Brigade. George was married about a year and leaves a young widow, Mrs. Miss Fanny Thomey and one child, besides a mother and father to mourn his sad death.

John W. Brazil, brother of the victim is a native of this town and leaves one sister here Mrs. Kenneth Alcock, and a brother and sister in Montreal.

Our town is wrapped in grief and no business can be done.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Dr. F. Stafford & Son, Dear Sirs— I strongly recommend your Prescription "A" to all sufferers with Indigestion and Dyspepsia. I used all kinds of medicine and consulted various specialists without cure. I saw your Prescription "A" advertised in the papers and tried a few bottles and it made a perfect cure of me.

MRS. HALL, Hayward Ave., St. John's.

To Dr. F. Stafford & Son, Dear Sirs— I am sending you 60 cents in stamps. Please send me one 50 cent bottle of Prescription "A," the 10 cent balance will pay for postage. You sent me a trial bottle a short while ago and it almost cured my wife and I think another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicines but I don't believe that there is any medicine that can cure a bad stomach like Stafford's Prescription "A." I am more than thankful that you advertised this medicine. Please forward as quick as possible.

The Internally-Cooled Engine.

A serious loss in the gas engine is the passing into the metal of about 20 per cent of the heating value of the fuel. The heat is usually carried away by a water-jacket, but the cooling in large engines is imperfect, so that interference with running is a loss added to that of waste heat. Prof. Bertram Hopkinson, of the University of Cambridge, now claims that his improvement of the old plan of introducing water into the inside of the cylinder has been made to give effective cooling. Cold water is injected through a number of 1-32 inch holes, giving fairly coarse jets against the piston face and into every part of the combustion chamber, and by keeping the whole engine above 212° F., the water is converted into steam before reaching the walls, avoiding any accumulation of liquid to form corrosive sulphuric acid with the sulphur dioxide of the gas. The water required is about 24 pounds per brake after removing the jacket, the internal cooling gave continuous running without overheating, and the engine reached fifty brake horsepower, an increase of 25 per cent with the same fuel. Not least of the advantages of the unjacketed engine is the greatly lessened weight.

Lecture To-Night

To-night at the B. I. S. Club Rooms Mr. J. L. Slattery will lecture on "Home Rule and Why." The entire receipts will be devoted to the Newfoundland Disaster Fund. Already the sale of tickets is large and, no doubt, considering the objects and subject of the lecture there will be a thronged attendance.

Missionary Services.

As previously arranged for the Cochrane Street congregation now worshipping in the Methodist College Hall, held their annual Missionary services on Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Guy, M.A., came to the city from Grand Falls on a special invitation, and was the preacher at the morning service, taking as the basis of his remarks the words, "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." The preacher said in part Jesus Christ considered Christian missions to be the supreme business of the Christian Church. Every member of the Christian Church must pass on the gospel to others, the responsibility does not rest upon the missionary but upon every man that makes the name of Jesus Christ. One of the obstacles we are face to face with was the legalized liquor traffic. The reverend gentleman in strong and forcible language denounced this traffic as having a damnable effect on a number of the missions in this our island home.

A very large gathering assembled at the evening service. After the opening exercises conducted by the Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, M.A., reference was made to the terrible disaster which overtook so many of our fellow countrymen. The prayers and sympathy of the congregation were asked for. Mr. Alex. Robertson was introduced as Chairman; he was quite happy in his remarks. His reference to the great Presbyterian convention of which he was a member, held at Toronto last summer, were much appreciated. The first speaker was Mr. H. E. Cowan, who gave a short and practical address on the work of the Congregational Church missions in various parts of the world, reference was also made in choice language to the work being done by the Methodists' the world over. After the singing of a well-known hymn, Rev. N. Guy delivered perhaps one of the most enthusiastic addresses we have ever listened to, as he portrayed the great changes coming over the church—the interest in Christian missions—the lands of the East—the mighty revolutions in every department of life, he was given the closest attention by a large congregation of sympathetic listeners. Newfoundland Methodism raised $18,000 for missions last year, and the ideal for the present conference year is $20,000. The solo by Miss Herder, as also the solos in the anthem, "Hark! Hark my soul, by Miss Vincent and Mr. Alex. Mews were pleasingly rendered. After singing of "Nearer my God, to Thee," and the "Benediction" by the Rev. Dr. Fenwick, the Dead March in Saul was played by Organist Mews, while the large gathering remained reverently standing with bowed heads.

Appreciation Possibilities

Although it has only recently entered the revenue-producing period, the Sherbrooke Railway & Power Company is already earning more than sufficient to take care of its bond interest. In addition to this showing three new power contracts, lately closed with Sherbrooke industrial concerns, will bring in $22,000 more NET revenue annually. These contracts are with the Canadian Brakeshoe Company, the Canadian Connecticut Cotton Mills and the Panther Rubber Company amounting to 1250 H. P. altogether.

When the Company has disposed of all its power the net earnings should be in the neighborhood of 2 1/2 times the bond interest. But long before then the Bond will have yielded considerably above their present low figure of 7 1/2 p.c. and interest, which returns the handsome yield of 8 1/2 p.c.

The Birthstone for the Birthday.

THE DIAMOND—emblem of innocence—is the birthstone for April, and the wording of the old lines—
She who from April dates her years,
Diamonds should wear, lest bitter tears
For vain repentance flow; this stone, Emblem of innocence is known—quaintly expresses the popular belief in the happiness and good luck that follow the wearing of this birthstone.
Set in a Ring—alone or in combination with other gems—the diamond lends itself with charming effect to dainty designs in distinctly personal Jewellery. For bride, mother, sister, friend, or as a token of regard upon the one day in the year that is all her own—the diamond is pre-eminently appropriate in April.

REID NFD. COMPANY.
St. John's, N.F., April 6, '14.
Hon. J. R. Bennett,
Acting Premier, City.
Dear Sir,—
I wish you to understand that the Reid Nfd. Company are giving the services of the s.s. Kyle, now searching for the Southern Cross, special trains taking the bodies of the Newfoundland's crew home, and other little things we have done in connection with this calamity, free, to show the sympathetic feeling of the Company to the sorrowing relatives of those who have lost their lives, as well as to the people of the Colony generally.
Very truly yours,
(Sgd.) H. D. REID,
Vice-President.

REPLY.

METHODIST MINISTERS OF ST. JOHN'S.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—At the regular session of the St. John's Methodist Ministers' meeting, held this morning, it was unanimously resolved that we place on record our profound sense of the magnitude of the disaster which has befallen our brave fellow-countrymen, who in the midst of toil for the bread of life, found a swift death on the Northern icefloes. We extend our deepest sympathy to those whose lives are crushed beneath the weight of this strange Providence, and humbly pray that Divine love and tenderness may sustain them in this dark and awful hour.

In due course the various Methodist congregations of the city will be appealed to re the "Marine Disasters" Fund, and the amount will be gladly forwarded to the proper authorities.
On behalf of the Ministers' Meeting,
C. A. WHITEMARSH,
Secretary.
St. John's, April 6, 1914.

PREMIER MURRAY, OF NOVA SCOTIA.
Halifax, N.S., April 5th, '14.

The Meeting This Evening.

The meeting which has been called for to-night in the Court House to take steps to centralize and augment the subscription which people are showing themselves willing to contribute will be under the presidency of His Excellency, the Administrator,
Sir William H. Wood. The speakers will be His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Roche, V.G., Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, Hon.
J. R. Bennett, Acting Premier, J. M.
Kent, Esq., K.C., John S. Munn, President of the Legislative Council, and Deputy Mayor Martin, all of them occupying representative positions.

The One to Own if You Can Own But One.

That is what a critical user of a "Globe-Wernicke" cabinet says of his equipment. Another says "It leaves nothing to be desired." Another says
"So complete yet so concise." Another says "Perfection as a filing arrangement."
Another "It is really indispensable."
Another "A surprising advance in handling records." Another
"A welcome improvement in office conditions"—and so on. The extensive sale of "Globe" filing cabinets in St. John's is by no means as remarkable as the abundant evidence that it is on merit alone that these devices have earned such generous appreciation.
For certain when you become a user you will be well contented with your adaptable and reliable outfit. Mr. Percie Johnson has your catalogue ready for the asking as well as other necessary details.

Willing Workers.

There are many Willing Workers
down among the unemployed, and their lives are spent in trouble
and in hardship unallayed. And they cry, "It is a rank injustice that we men of willing hands must be classed with bums and hobos, with the non-productive bands. Here we stand and ask for work and be in vain, and there's surely something rotten with the nation's heart of brain.
We are little
Willing Workers
and no labour
would we shirk,
but you make us
down-and-outers,
and you will not give us work."
I have here-some Willing Workers, able-bodied, men and strong, and they surely worked like blazes
—but they always
did things wrong.
Oh, no odds what
job they tackled,
whether they were wintering chickens
or just spading
the soil; whether they were fixing fences or repairing buggies, they were willing with their muscles, but they never used their heads. And I always had to follow saddy in their track, doing
all their labours
over with a green
pat in my back.
This is why the Willing Workers
find this world
so sad a joint; this is why the stern employers say to them, "Skidoo!
Avant!"

At The Queen.

The performance given at the Queen Theatre last night in aid of the Marine Disaster was well attended despite the disagreeable weather.
It only goes to show that the people of St. John's are always ready to help the needy. "Mr. Sydney Hart" who kindly offered to sing, for this worthy cause, was loudly applauded when he appeared and sang "Anchored," in a masterly manner. The programme will be repeated to-night and we hope all who could not attend last night will make an effort to do so to-night.

The Tragedy at the Floe.

It is now when the aftermath is settling in that this never-to-be-forgotten catastrophe is being more adequately realized. Yesterday business in the city was practically suspended and the grief and sympathy expressed on all sides looked as if the terrible affair had just commenced. In every home yesterday there was widespread sorrow for the afflicted widows and orphans who lost their breadwinners on the wing-swept icefloe.
Last night at every club room and hall in the city the one and only subject of conversation was the disaster while in every church on Sunday large congregations were present, and offered up prayer for those hardy seafarers of the Newfoundland who succumbed in that awful blizzard.

THE SURVIVORS.

Many other survivors were interviewed but all virtually corroborated the stories told by previous survivors as published in this paper. They told how men fought with each other before death, pinched and bit the dying to keep them alive and other similar pathetic and awe-inspiring incidents that words fail to depict properly.
The bodies that were embalmed Sunday night and placed in the mortuary will be sent home to-morrow night on the S. S. Beothic. The body of Fred Hackett, of Cat Harbour will be interred here. The bodies to be sent to their respective homes in the outports are:—

- D. Abbott, Dofing Cove.
- Adolphus Howell, Newtown.
- Robt. Brown, Fair Island.
- Alpheus Dowden, Newtown.
- Percy Kean, Valleyfield.
- Eli Kean, Pound Cove.

No Tidings of Southern Cross.

Her Absence Causing Grave Anxiety—
Cruiser Fiona Joins in Search.
Much anxiety and grave concern is being felt for the Southern Cross. Her non-arrival is causing universal alarm but there is no reason why hope should be abandoned.

Exactly a week ago this forenoon
Capt. T. Connors, of the Coastal S. S.
"Fiona," passed the Southern Cross finishes W. S. W. of Cape Pine. That same afternoon the fatal blizzard came and it is believed the Southern Cross was driven off to sea a couple of hundred miles and since then has not been able to reach the land.
Ever since she was reported by Captain Connors relatives and friends of those on board have been besieging the telegraph offices in the city and out-ports and the eager information of
"Have you any news of the Southern Cross?" is sought for, but, unfortunately,
the reply is always in the negative.

FIONA MAKES SEARCH.

Yesterday afternoon the absence of the Southern Cross was discussed by the Executive Government and it was decided to send the revenue cruiser
"Fiona" to assist the Kyle and U. S.
Scout ship Seneca in searching for the overdue vessel. The unanimous hope is that the "Cross" will turn up all right.

Since we went to press yesterday the following wireless messages were received from the S. S. Kyle:— Colonial Secretary,
Hon. J. R. Bennett,
"Ship's position at 6.15 p.m. 52
miles S. W. by S. off Virgin Rocks, now lying to; ship's head S. E. half East, blowing a gale from S. S. E. with glitter. Saw no sail or any steamer to-day."
At 8.30 p.m. to the Reid Nfld. Co.:—
"Ran 67 miles S. W. half south from Virgins; changed course east 28 miles; 2.30 p.m. changed course N.
W. and ran 41 miles. At 6.15 p.m.
Cape Race N.N.W. 85 miles, N.E. gale with thick sleet; ship laying to."

Newfoundland Coming Home.

The S. S. Newfoundland is returning from here lateful trip to the ice-fields and will likely arrive here this evening. Mr. Gerald Harvey did not order the ship home as he could not communicate with her, the ship not having wireless, but he assumes that in view of the Florida coming home
as ordered last evening by Bowring Prom. that in all probability the Newfoundland is accompanying her.

AT THE MORGUE.

Crowds of people were assembled around the morgue yesterday and scores of relatives of the deceased seafarers were admitted and the covers were raised from the coffins to all the relatives to view the remains.

TOUCHING SCENE.

While the morgue was receiving many visitors yesterday many sad and touching scenes occurred. Mr. Pearce of Thornburn Road, when shown the corpse of his son, William, collapsed and when he came to became inconsolable. The old man's son was of splendid physique and a fine promising young man. Later the body was removed to the late home of the deceased and will be buried to-day.

SURVIVORS RECOVERED.

The survivors show wonderful improvement daily. There are only four cases looked upon as serious. No operations will be performed before Friday or Saturday next. The am-putations necessary will be considerably less than at first apprehended.
Those at the Seamen's Institute, suffering slightly from frostbitten faces and hands, are being well cared for by the nurses in charge. The patients are getting well rapidly and it is only a matter of a few days when they will be discharged.

Songs Of The Little Villages

"Not many years ago, a French poet wrote a poem—if it may be called a poem—consisting entirely of feminine names, arranged in accordance with rhythm and rhyme. The effect was musical and not unpleas-ing. But the Rev. James D. Dollard performs with greater skill a more difficult feat in the hauntingly lovely lines we quote below. Simply a string of names—but what exquisite melody they make!" says the Literary Digest.

The pleasant little villages that grace
the Irish glens,
Down among the wheat-fields—up
amid the whins.
The little white-walled villages
crowding close together, Clinging to the Old Sod in spite of wind and weather:
Ballylaneen, Ballyporeen, Bansha,
Blyle, Ballingarry, Ballymagorry by the Banks of Foyle,
Ballylaneen, Ballyporeen, Bansha,
Ballysadare,
Ballybrack, Ballinalack, Barna, Bal-lyclare.

The cosy little villages that shelter
from the mist,
Where the great West Walls by ocean
spray are kissed;
The happy little villages that cuddle
in the sun,
Where blackberries ripen and the harvest work is done,
Corrymeela, Croaghneela, Clogher, Cahirciveen, Cappaharoo, Carrigatoo, Cashel, and Coosheen,
Castletinn and Carrigtohill, Crumlin,
Clara, Clane,
Carrigaholt, Carrigaline, CloghJordan,
and Coolrain.

Leave the little villages, o'er the black seas go,
Learn the stranger's welcome, learn
the exile's woe,
Leave the little villages but think
not to forget,
Afar they'll rise before your eyes to rack your bosoms yet.
Moneymore, Moneygall, Monivea, and Moyny, Mullinahone, Mullinavatt, Mullagh,
and Moonocin,
Shanagolden, Shanballymore, Stran-
oriar, and Slane, Toberheena, Toomyvara, Tempo and Strabane.

On the Southern Lianos—north where strange light gleams,
Many a yearning exile sees them in his dreams: Dying voices murmur (passed all pain and care),
"Lo the little villages, God has heard our prayer."
Lisdoonvarna, Lissadill, Lisdangan,
Lisnaskea,
Portlengone, Portlinton, Portun-
na, Portmagee, Clondalkin, and Clongowan, Cloon-
dara, and Clonara,
God bless the little villages and keep them night and day!

ZAM-BUK
IS NATURE'S REMEDY

The healthiest men and women in the world are found in the uncivilized races, knowing nothing of medical science. Why? Because these people are content with nature's own "healers." They use roots and herbs, solely, for their skin diseases and injuries.

Recognizing this truth, the proprietors of Zam-Buk compounded their great balm on nature's lines. Zam-Buk contains only healing herbal essences, but instead of using them in crude form, in Zam-Buk these essences are purified and concentrated.

Take Mother Nature's finest healing extracts. Add all that modern science can do in the way of concentrating, purifying and making antiseptic these essences, and the result is Zam-Buk. Don't you believe that roots and herbs are the healers intended for man? If you do, you get these in Zam-Buk.

Don't you believe that antiseptic treatment of a wound or sore is necessary? Zam-Buk is antiseptic.

Don't you desire to stop the pain of a wound, cut or skin disease? Zam-Buk will do this as nothing else can.

Finally, don't you believe that personal experience is worth more than hearsay? If so, cut out this article. Write across it name of this paper and mail it to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, with 1c stamp and we will send you a FREE TRIAL BOX

The Post says that it will be learned with pleasure by the many friends of Ope. Dan McDonald, who had command of the City of Sydney, when he ran on Sambro Ledges, has been exonerated from all blame for the occurrence.

WASHINGTON, April 6.
Secretary of the Navy, Daniels, has issued an order barring the use of alcoholic liquors in the Navy after July 1st next. It will not only affect the men and the officers' mess, but every ship and store station. The order is causing much discussion.

LONDON, April 6.
Sir Edward Morris, the Premier of Newfoundland, who arrived here Saturday, on being interviewed stated that he had been appalled by the wireless message received on board the ship the day before landing, conveying the news of the sealing disaster.

JUAREZ, April 6.
Rudolfo Fierro, of Villa's staff, is to be executed for killing Gen. Benton, on Feb. 17th, as a result of the findings of the commission of enquiry. He is now in the penitentiary at Chihuahua, and has been stripped of his rank. The commission's report shows that when Benton upbraided Villa in the latter's office in Juarez, Villa ordered Fierro to place him un-

East Fife, rendered necessary by his acceptance of Secretaryship War. The meeting took place in the village Assembly room, and was opened by the usual formal business, including the adoption of the Prime Minister as the Liberal candidate. Mr. Asquith, Mrs. Asquith and daughter were given a rousing welcome. Mr. Asquith said he was submitting himself to the hazard and inconvenience of the election because he had become Secretary of State for War. Without going into the incidents connected with that change, he declared there had been genuine misunderstandings, and honest mistakes, but in his deliberate opinion there had been nothing, at any stage, or in any quarter, which cast the least doubt upon the honor of those immediately concerned. None had better reason than he to know the zeal, devotion to duty and sense of responsibility of the military as well as the naval forces. The very fact that the army rested upon a voluntary, and not a mercenary basis, was the best safeguard for the maintenance of the splendid, untarnished traditions of its redoubtable past. "I am certain," continued Asquith, "that they can be counted upon from the highest to the lowest, without exception, to undertake duties which they may be required to discharge. The Army in this country is not a practical political instrument, and has no place in the framing of policy, or the moulding of our laws. (Cheers). The Prime Minister said it was his duty in the post which he had assumed, by searching personal enquiry with the co-operation upon which he could count on, to see that the Army was fit in every shifting condition, for its primary and elementary duty. The Army would hear nothing of politics from him. He expected to hear nothing of politics from the Army." (Cheers). Responsibility for the preservation of domestic peace, continued the Prime Minister, lay with the magistrates and police. Under normal conditions the army could not, and ought not, to be invoked by the civil power. It was only in emergencies which were happily rare that any such call could be addressed to the army. When such occasion arose it was the duty of the soldier, as it was the duty of civilians to comply with the demands of the civil power, but these present tory doctrines struck at the very root, not only of army discipline, but of democratic government. Where did they lead to? They set a precedent, which was capable of an infinite number of applications, and was much more dangerous in its consequences, than the one which went before it. If the Government was to recognize the existence of a dispensing and discriminating power they must recognize it not only in officers but in men, not only in the army but in everybody. At a public meeting two years ago in this same hall he had described Tory doctrines as furnishing the complete grammar of anarchy. (Cheers). He repeated now that these new dogmas, countersigned by Tory leaders, would be invoked whenever the spirit of lawlessness undertook to block the ordered machinery of self-governing society. Turning to the question of Home Rule, Mr. Asquith said: The Bill under the Parliament Act, which was not intended to be a dead letter, was far advanced on its road to the Statute Book. There was neither force nor plausibility in theory, electors were not left in the dark regarding the Government's intentions to take up Home Rule. His supposed silence on that topic was a favorite theme with Bonar Law. Asquith quoted from a speech which he delivered at St. Andrew's on December 7th, 1910, in which he dealt exclusively with Home Rule. We believe that settlement by consent is in the interests of the country, and both great political parties, continued the Premier, those who believe in Home Rule, do not desire to see the new system, started under the most unfavorable conditions, amidst clouds and darkness and civil turmoil. On the other hand those who wish Home Rule is repugnant cannot face with equanimity problems which the Government of Ireland presents, if by misadventure the new hopes and expectations of four-fifths of the Irish people were to be dashed to the ground. Asquith recapitulated his temporary exclusion plan. While admitting its disadvantages, he said it had great merit, it at least got rid of any question of coercion, and gave the population concerned the immediate arbitration ballot. "I am anxious for peace, and, I say this for both sides, it must be peace with honor." In any settlement that is to come we must securely place the Home Rule Bill on the Statute Book, we hope and think that such is not incompatible with providing careful provisions to meet the convictions and susceptibilities of the minority. I firmly believe that in time, after experience, there will be a convergence of forces in the direction of complete Irish unity. They must see some process applied with necessary variations, applied without undue delay, to other parts of the United Kingdom. The conviction that such reconstruction and constitutional organization would lead to greater efficiency in the conduct both of a local and im-

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats, which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-sought-for article is proven every day. The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant dressing, and is sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50 cents.

perial interests, and the quickened patriotism of every party would stimulate the larger patriotism of the whole. Asquith dealt briefly with other subjects of political importance such as the Welsh Disestablishment, Plural voting and rating problems. He said there remained one very serious point to be emphasized. If they studied the by-elections of the last two years they would find, with perhaps one exception, every loss to Liberals has been due to split forces. On Home Rule the by-elections had pronounced with an overwhelming majority in favor of the Government policy, and it was indeed a melancholy thing for those whose hearts were bound up in the future prospects of wise democratic legislation, to find the democratic army split. It was time that such a state of things came to an end. It would surely be childish if in great issues before them which could only be brought to success by unity, loyal co-operation they should allow comparatively trivial differences upon issues not vital, to divide forces, which, united, were irresistible.

A Word In Season.

"I think this eczema will drive me crazy some day; always itching, burning, paining; relief, not speak of cure, seems impossible. It will set me off one of these days."

It will not, if you follow my advice. Go to your druggist and buy a box of Zylex, and use it according to directions. Eczema cannot long remain when it is used. I've tried it myself, and you should wash with Zylex Soap. That will prevent its coming back again."

Zylex Ointment (50c.) and Soap 25c. can be bought at your druggist's. —ap3.eod.4t

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Perennials must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a 1/2 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—
40 lbs. Superphosphate,
26 lbs. Fine bone meal,
10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia,
15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash,
21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 45 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—
66 lbs. Superphosphate,
13 lbs. Fine bone meal,
13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash,
20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.
