THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER XIV.

"No," he replied, "but allow me to say, Sir Arthur, that Lady Neslie is one of the most extraordinary patients I have ever attended."

The baronet smiled. "I believe it," he said. "Lady Neslie has a great dread of illness, doctor. I am glad you think there is nothing very wrong. Would you advise change of air?"

"No; let her rest and live more quietly—have less gayety and keep earlier hours—she will soon be well then."

The doctor might have thought her ladyship a wonderful patient if he had seen her as she appeared after he left her. She was standing by the fire, a flush on her face, her eyes flashing, her red lips curved in a strange smile.

"Can it be true?" she said to herself. "Is my prayer really answered? Can it be true? I will not say a word to them until I am quite sure. And, if the doctor does—but he will not—he dares not, now that I have forbidden him. Can it be that my prayer is granted? Now for my victory—now for my revenge! There shall be Lady Valerie's Drive without asking Miss Neslie's consent. Miss Neslie will not always be able to sneer at me—to look at me with calm, proud eyes, as though I were immeasurably inferior to her. She will not be able to live at the Abbey while I am sent from its doors. She will not be consulted again, while I am told indifferently that it is upon business I do not understand. Farewell to Miss Neslie's heirship and grandeur if this be true! But I will keep my secret yet awhile."

"You are better, Valerie," said Sir Arthur, entering the room and going up to her. "You have found some of your roses again. I was terribly frightened about you."

"I was frightened myself," she admitted, laughingly; "but I am better now."

"Now, Valerie," said her husband, "you must listen to reason. I know you will not be willing to submit to what I am going to say, but I must enforce obedience. You must live more quietly—you must keep earlier hours—you must get out less. Why, we never have a quiet day at home. You have carried your love of gayety a little too far, and you have made yourself quite ill."

To his surprise, she received the little lecture very meekly. "You are right," she returned—"I see my folly, and I mean to be different. You shall see that I will follow your advice, Arthur."

"What a docile little wife! You may develop into a patient Griselda soon, Valerie."

To his great surprise, he found that she kept her word. She refused half the invitations that came. She said nothing more about giving dances or balls. She was delighted with the change; even Vivien was compelled to acknowledge the improvement. Lancewood became more like itself again. Later on Sir Arthur proposed going to London for a short period, but to his intense surprise Valerie resolutely declined.

"You may go if you like," she said. "I have had enough of gayety; I want to be quiet at home."

"I shall not leave you," declared Sir Arthur. "London has no attraction for me—I would far rather be at Lancewood. But there is Vivien, she ought to have a change."

It happened most fortunately that the difficulty was soon solved. Lady Smeaton was about to visit town, and hearing that the Baronet and Lady Neslie wished Vivien to go, but were unable to accompany her, she invited Miss Neslie to join herself and her daughters; and Vivien consented. Then, when the golden promise of summer filled the land, Lady Neslie told her husband the secret she had been keeping from him; and the secret was, that before many months had passed, there would be given to her the sweetest gift Heaven can give—the gift of a little child.

CHAPTER XV.

Sir Arthur did not feel quite sure whether his wife's intelligence pleased him or not. Still he said nothing to that effect to her, but bent down and kissed her pretty face, and muttered something about happiness. It was vague enough, yet it pacified her. She was quite content.

Was he pleased? If he should have a son, his beautiful, noble daughter would no longer be heiress of Lancewood. She would never fill the position for which she had so well qualified herself. Her life would be completely spoiled. Sir Arthur understood her, and he knew that her desire to inherit Lancewood was not so much for the wealth or the importance that would accrue to her, but because she had lofty ideas of adding to the luster of her name, of doing good to all on the estate—because she would carry out needful improvements for which he had no inclination. He had often said to himself what a noble mistress Vivien would make for Lancewood, and had thought himself most fortunate in having such a daughter to succeed him. Now, if he should have a son, all hopes of Vivien's succession were of course ended. He could give her an ample fortune, but he knew her well. No fortune or money could compensate her for the loss of Lancewood. He knew that she would rather be mistress of Lancewood than Queen of England. It would be a terrible blow to her. The bringing home of a young wife had been bad enough, but that would seem trivial in comparison with the loss of Lancewood.

Another thing—if he had a son, it was almost improbable that he could live to see him reach manhood, and, if he did not, who would train him—who would teach him all that Vivien had so aptly learned? He did not say so to his wife, but in the depths of his heart Sir Arthur hoped that a little daughter might be born to them and not a son. If that were the case, the evil would be changed into a blessing. A daughter could be amply portioned out of the estate, and would not interfere with Vivien's claims.

He did not tell Vivien the news. "It will be time enough for her to know it," he said to himself, "when all the world knows it."

Vivien wrote to say that when the Smeatons left London they were going to Germany, and had asked her to accompany them, which she very much wished to do. Sir Arthur gave his consent.

"Who knows, poor child, to what kind of home she may return?" he said. "It may have passed from her hands never to be entirely her own again."

So Vivien went to Germany, little dreaming of the news that would follow her thither.

Lady Neslie was expecting the hour of her triumph. She had never admitted to herself that she might have a daughter instead of the son she longed and prayed for. Any one hinting ever so remotely at such an idea incurred her severest displeasure.

One day she summoned Mrs. Spenser, the housekeeper, to a consultation. She wanted to know which of the rooms had been used as Miss Neslie's nursery. Mrs. Spenser told her "the large room, with the oval window, on the first floor."

"That will not do for me," said her ladyship, decidedly. "I prefer a room on the ground-floor. Stairs are always dangerous for children, and boys are so much more mischievous than girls."

"But," interrupted the housekeeper, incautiously, "your ladyship might have a daughter."

"I shall have nothing of the kind," said Lady Neslie, angrily; "my son will be heir of Lancewood—a daughter would be—'" "Useless to me," she was about to add, but prudence came to her aid and checked the words.

The housekeeper went away with a smile on her face. "It is easy to see," she said, "that milord wants a son, so that Miss Neslie shall not have Lancewood. I pray to Heaven she may be disappointed."

Lady Neslie herself never seemed to have a doubt. "Arthur," she said one day to her husband, "I have been looking over the family annals, and I have found a name for my little son."

"Indeed! What name have you chosen?" he asked.

"Oswald. It seems to have been a favorite name in the family. I counted ten Oswalds, and they all seem to have been famous men."

"Yes," observed Sir Arthur, dreamily—"Oswald is a famous name with us, and we have had some gifted men called by it. If I had a son, I could not wish for a better name for him. I often wonder, if I had another name, whether it would have inspired me to be a greater man."

He spoke regretfully, like one who felt that he had missed some road in life; then, suddenly looking at his wife, he said—

"Valerie, you make very sure of this son of yours. What if, after all you should find yourself the mother of a little daughter as pretty as you are yourself?"

She looked up at him excitedly. "I should be so terribly disappointed," she said, "that I should almost hate her."

"Hush, Valerie!" he cried, shocked at her words. She perceived her imprudence. "It is your fault, Arthur—you make me say what I do not mean. My whole heart is bent upon a little son. Why do you contradict me?"

Indeed, it was useless, as he well knew. He said no more, but he hoped and prayed with all the fervor of his soul that the expected child might not be a son and heir.

There was great consternation one evening—a sweet dewy evening—for the young mistress of Lancewood was suddenly taken ill. The doctor was summoned in haste, and he sent at once for another. There was distress and dismay for Lady Valerie was sick unto death, and it seemed a terrible thing that one so young and beautiful should die.

There was long hours of suspense, when the doctors consulted with grave faces, and the servants whispered in low voices. "It would be strange," the latter said, "if this Lady Neslie too should die;" and there were hundreds of wishes expressed that no son might deprive Miss Neslie of her birthright.

Sir Arthur, walking up and down the broad corridors, tried to understand his own heart, and failed. Then they came to him, those grave-faced doctors, and told him that he had great cause for rejoicing—a son and heir was born to him—a strong, healthy boy. But there was one drawback—Lady Neslie was in great danger. He asked if he could see her; and they told him "Not yet—she was too ill."

A son was born to him! When the doctors had gone away, leaving him alone, he went to the window that looked over the Hyde woods. The moon was rising over the trees, the sky was without a cloud. The fair domain of Lancewood looked unwontedly fair. The undulating, well-wooded park, the hills in the far distance, the dark picturesque masses of trees, the moonlight silvering all—it was a home for man to be proud of and to love.

A son was born to him! This fair domain would never be his daughter's—it would never belong to her; it belonged now to the little child whom he had not seen, and Vivien was disinherited. As he stood there her thought of his first wife—Vivien's mother—of how, during her short life, she had talked of the time when her daughter would inherit Lancewood. He thought of Vivien and of how she had spent her life. She had not cared for romance or sentiment; the light, pretty occupations of other girls had had no charm for her. She had fitted herself to be mistress of Lancewood, as she would have done to be queen of a great kingdom. He could remember her enthusiasm over the grand old trees. How she had loved them! How she had gloried in the fact that, although they might die of old age, they could never be cut down! He remembered as he stood there watching the fair domain that was not to be hers, how she had planned a picturesque bridge to span the river, and a boat house lower down. Now she would never plan again. Tears dimmed his eyes, partly in gratitude for the son born to him, and partly in sorrow for the daughter who had lost all through his birth.

Then he reproached himself. It was too late, he said, for thoughts of that kind—too late for regret; he was married, and a son was born; there was nothing to be done but make the best of it.

Soon afterward he saw the little babe—a strong, healthy boy, with his mother's eyes and hair—a bonny, beautiful boy—and his heart warmed to the child.

"After all, there will be some satisfaction in being succeeded by a son," he thought; "this boy will be Sir Oswald Neslie of Lancewood."

He stooped down to kiss the tiny rose-bud face and then he went quietly to his wife's room.

She looked so ill and weak. She had fainted, they told him, two or three times in succession, but she recognized him now, and called him by name.

"Arthur," she said, faintly, as he bent over her, "they will not let me speak; they will not tell me."

He saw her face flush with triumph, ill as she was.

"A son, heir to Lancewood—I am so glad!" she whispered. Then, looking into his earnest face, she said—"I shall not die, Arthur; I shall live now that I have a son."

Then he left her, and she lay still, saying to herself over and over again—

The Governor, Newfoundland:

The French Government report a captured position at Hingekopf in Vosges, consolidated and extended. Several hundred prisoners were taken.

The Russian Government report a successful counter attack on the banks of the Narw between Vico and Bug, and north of Grubiesko. Enemy forces have crossed Bag the Sokal region.

The Italian Government report the battle continues in the Isonzo front on Carso Plateau. A strong position was captured but owing to cross fire the Italians retreated to point beneath the crest, where they maintain themselves. Progress has been made in the centre and on the right. A position on the South Carso ridge, has been captured. 3,200 prisoners were taken during the day.—BONAIR LAW.

PREMIER ASQUITH'S SPEECH AND SIR HENRY DALZIELL'S CRITICISM.

LONDON, July 28.

The war has become, and is likely to continue for some time, a contest of endurance, Premier Asquith said in the Commons this afternoon, when making a general review in moving the adjournment of Parliament to-morrow until September 14th.

The Premier remarked: "We shall be ungrateful and insensitive if we did not recognize at this moment the indescribable gallant efforts that are being made by our Russian Allies to stem the tide of invasion, and retain inviolate the integrity of our possessions. I do not think in the whole of military history there has been a more magnificent example of discipline and endurance and of individual and collective initiative than has been shown by the Russian Army in the last seven weeks."

"Our new allies in Italy are steadily gaining ground, making their progress towards the objective, which, we believe, in a very short time, will be within their reach."

The Premier declared that the British Government's confidence in the results in the Italian operations was undiminished.

He also emphasized his confidence in the unity of both the French and British armies engaged in the Western field.

Referring to the fact that this week would see the completion of a year of war, Mr. Asquith said that the world never had seen a miraculous transformation in a country, not in spirit and heart, in the outward manifestations of a life, that had taken place here in those twelve months.

The British fleet to-day was stronger, the Premier continued, in the beginning of the war, and its quiet and unobserved, but intense and all-powerful activity, in the fact that the seas are clear, substantially clear. "For, after said the Premier, "this submarine menace, serious as it has appeared, not going to inflict fatal or substantial injury on British trade. We our supplies of food and raw materials upon which we and the rest of the country depend, floating in upon in the same abundance and with the same freedom, and, I may say, without much exaggeration, judging of insurance rates and other marks."

PREMIER ASQUITH'S SPEECH AND SIR HENRY DALZIEL'S CRITICISM.

LONDON, July 28.
The war has become, and is likely to continue for some time, a contest of endurance, Premier Asquith told the Commons this afternoon, while making a general review in moving the adjournment of Parliament from to-morrow until September 14th.
The Premier remarked: "We should be ungrateful and insensitive indeed, if we did not recognize at this moment the indestructible gallant efforts that are being made by our Russian Allies to stem the tide of invasion and retain inviolate the integrity of their possessions. I do not think that the whole of military history there has been a more magnificent example of discipline and endurance and of both individual and collective initiative than has been shown by the Russian Army in the last seven weeks."
Our new allies in Italy are steadily gaining ground, making their way towards the objective, which, we believe, in a very short time, will be within their reach.
The Premier declared that the British Government's confidence in results in the Dardanelles operations was undiminished.
He also emphasized his confidence in the unity of both the French and British armies engaged in the Western field.
Referring to the fact that next week would see the completion of a year of war, Mr. Asquith remarked that the world never had seen a more marvellous transformation in this country, not in spirit and heart, but in the outward manifestations of its life, that had taken place here in those twelve months.
The British fleet to-day was far stronger, the Premier continued, than in the beginning of the war, and to his quiet and unobserved, but ubiquitous and all-powerful activity, is due the fact that the seas are clear, or substantially clear. "For, after all," said the Premier, "this submarine menace, serious as it has appeared, is not going to inflict fatal or substantial injury on British trade. We have our supplies of food and raw material upon which we and the rest of the country depends, floating in upon us in the same abundance and with the same freedom, and, I may say, without much exaggeration, judging from insurance rates and other matters, with the same immunity from serious hazards and risks, as in times of peace."

Continuing, the Premier said: "The Navy, so far, has been denied the experience of a glorious fight, but it is through the unrelenting vigilance and supreme skill with which it has been handled that this country to-day can laugh at the scare of an invasion and that we, to an extent unknown by any other of the belligerent powers, are immune from the dangers of the war."

Glancing around the House, the Premier remarked: "This is a slight unknown for a hundred years, this aggregation of members equipped in military garb, but there is not a family represented in this House, and this House is typical of the whole country, which has not given hostages in sons or brothers."

"Speaking of recruiting, he said: "Latest reports are among the best we have had for a long time."

The Premier concluded with a note of caution to the country, saying: "Do not let us suppose that our national duty is discharged, either by sending an adequate influx of recruits to the army, or to the various industries engaged in the fabrication of munitions. The duty has been cast upon this country not only of maintaining the freedom of the seas, not only of supplying large contingents of well equipped men for the battlefield, and trenches, but also of financing to a large extent the whole conduct of the war. We cannot do that if we continue to import, and increase our indebtedness to other countries, and unless we maintain our great manufacturing industries."

The Premier urged the accumulation of large reserves of gold and the use of paper currency by householders and employers.
He characterized as calumny, statements in a section of the press, which he described as melancholy and notorious exceptions to newspapers as a whole, that the people of this country had failed to rise to the height of this great occasion, and that the allies did not appreciate the contributions Britain was making to the ultimate triumph of the common cause.

"Don't let us give any encouragement of the faint-hearted, and still less to backbiters, who are disheartening our allies and encouraging our enemies. Let us in this House and in the country at large, with the same spirit of energy and determination, continue to persist and persevere to an inevitable triumphant issue."

Sir Henry Dalziel, Liberal, moved, seconded, an amendment that adjournment be only for two weeks. Sir Henry explained he did this because he was not satisfied with the situation in Flanders, where it had been understood there was to be a great advance during the spring and summer. In the Dardanelles, too, he wanted to know why such notice had been given to the enemy by the bombardment by part of the fleet without the co-operation of the land forces. Sir Henry said he could keep silence no longer, as he had not the confidence in the Government he had some months ago. He could not understand why the industries of the country had not been mobilized. He wanted to know whether any one in the War Office had been cashiered for failure to supply sufficient munitions. He also criticized the Government's delay in using gas against the Germans, and suggested the reason for the failure to do this was the breaking down of arrangements. Sir Henry concluded by saying that the discontent among the workers was due to the failure of the Government to deal with the question of food supplies, which, he contended, was responsible for the increased cost of living.

Sir Arthur Markham said the public had lost all confidence in the War Office, which had proved miserably inefficient in its conduct of the war. Dalziel did not press his amendment, and the Premier's motion that Parliament be adjourned from July 27th until September 14th was carried.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, July 28.
The British steamship Hogarth was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine to-day off Suffolk. The vessel was sent to the bottom, it is alleged, without warning. The captain and ten men are missing. Eight were saved.

ITALIAN PROGRESS REPORTED.

LONDON, July 28.
A Daily Mail despatch from Chiasso says that the Italians now are masters of the Lower Innoche. They hold all the dominating points on the Western Carso from which the Austrians could disturb the passage of the river. After the occupation of Mount San Michele on the northern ridge of Carso Plateau, they now have conquered Mount Sei Busi, 400 feet high on the southern ridge.

A CALL TO THE COLORS.

PETROGRAD, July 28.
An Imperial Ukase, issued to-day, calls to the colors men born in 1891. It is reported that a Government order is about to be issued for general mobilization throughout Siberia.

RUSSIANS HOLDING OUT.

LONDON, July 28.
The Daily News Petrograd correspondent telegraphs that Warsaw is much quieter to-day than during the previous German attack in October. The activity of private banks continues normal, unbeset by crowds of clients as formerly. By order of the municipal authorities the work of repairing the streets continues. The Germans are wearying of the fighting of the southern approach, but on the north they are applying all the efforts of their forces to approach through Pultusk. An auxiliary movement they have started a campaign against Riga, employing six infantry and four cavalry corps, hoping to engage the large Russian force having control of the Gulf of Riga. However, the Russians have protected all the roads on the right side of the sea by naval fire, while the forces defending the landward side is sufficient without disturbing the main body around Warsaw.

MORE HOPEFUL.

LONDON, July 28.
Although the Germans are using very strong reinforcements of men and guns they have not yet succeeded in breaking Russian resistance either around Warsaw or in the no-Courland provinces, in each of which sections heavy fighting has been in progress for nearly a fortnight. Except for the capture of the village of Gowerowo, on the Narva front, and a number of prisoners and machine guns, at that point, between Mitau and Niemen, the German official report issued to-day, does not claim any advance. In fact General Von Buelow, north of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, who crossed Narva at some points is being held up by Russian counter-attacks which, although probably costly to the Russians show that there is still plenty of fight left in them. In the south-east Von Mackensen's attack on the Lublin Cholm railway seems for the moment to have come to a standstill, although he, too, is receiving reinforcements from the Austrians who succeeded in crossing the Bug at Sokal. To the west of Warsaw, the Germans announce the capture of the village of Piorun, which is about fifteen miles west of the front line of the city defences, so that not much progress has been made on this front. There is a good deal in the Russian and German official reports which cannot be reconciled, but on the whole British critics are more hopeful than for some days, that the Russians will succeed in withstanding this effort to capture Warsaw, as they did during the previous attempt. The stubborn resistance of the Grand Duke's troops together with the fact that the battle is being fought on ground of his own choosing, has renewed the hope here that with an ample supply of munitions, he will be able to inflict a strategic defeat on the German allies.

The Germans have again attacked the French in Artois near Souchet, in an effort to regain the trenches lost during the last few days. They have been partially successful at both places.
"So far as the rest of the western line is concerned "comparative calm" prevails, but from the confidence expressed by Premier Asquith in moving the adjournment of the Commons this afternoon, and the cheerful report of the Minister of munitions, Lord George, as to steps being taken to supply the British army with war munitions, greater activity before long is expected.
The French report small successes at Gallipoli Peninsula.
Accounts continue to come in of the Italian advance along the Isonzo River.

ROMANIA.

NEW YORK, July 28.
A cable to the Tribune from Milan, says: "Telegrams from Bucharest report that the Roumanian Government still refuses to allow munitions for Turkey to traverse her territory. The Germans were so sure that Roumania would yield that they forwarded thousands of carloads of war material which is now congesting Austrian railways on the Roumanian frontier. Fifty cars, which had passed, were seized by the Roumanian authorities. As the Turks are unable to obtain fresh supplies of ammunition, they have determined to make a desperate effort, while they still possess some reserve, to drive the Allies from the Peninsula of Gallipoli."

GERMAN SUBMARINES STILL ACTIVE.

LONDON, July 28.
German submarines show no cessation in the activity in the North Sea. Latest reports set forth that the Swedish steamer Emma and three Danish schooners, Maria, Nepolis, and Lena, have been sunk by them. The crews of these four vessels were landed at Blyth. The British trawlers Icen and Salacca were also sunk.

THE BRITISH NOTE.

LONDON, July 28.
The new British note to the United States, now in course of preparation, will be a modification of the original reply to the American contraband note, which arrived in Washington to-day. It will take up questions which have arisen since the first note was drafted.

FORWARDED A REPORT.

WASHINGTON, July 28.
U. S. Ambassador Page, to-day, forwarded a report by the British Admiralty of the sinking of the American steamer Leelanaw by a German submarine off the Orkney Islands last Sunday. The Admiralty reported that the Leelanaw was flying an American flag when overtaken, and that the crew were given plenty of time to take to their boats, which were towed sixty miles until a strange vessel was sighted.

THE COLOGNE GAZETTE.

LONDON, July 28.
The Cologne Gazette, to-day, published an wireless dispatch from Washington, suggesting that, in order to avoid further excitement of public opinion in America, Germany should not reply to the American note unless to give a favorable answer, says a telegram from Amsterdam to Reuters' Telegram Agency. The Cologne Gazette, the message says, considers the advice well worthy of consideration.

PRESIDENT OF HAYTI SHOT TO DEATH.

PORT AU PRINCE, July 28.
A mob of Haytiens, to-day, removed President Guillaume, President of Hayti, from the French Legation, where he took refuge yesterday, and shot him to death in front of the building. This act of violence followed immediately the burial of the 160 political prisoners massacred in prison yesterday morning at the time of the revolutionary outbreak.

AMERICAN MARINES FOR PORT AU PRINCE.

WASHINGTON, July 28.
American marines will be landed at Port au Prince, Hayti, to protect the lives and property of Americans and other foreigners. Instructions were sent to Rear-Admiral Caperton to-day by the Navy Department. Admiral Caperton arrived at Port au Prince to-day in the cruiser Washington. The collier Jason, with a hundred additional marines, has been ordered to sail and will arrive at Port au Prince to-night.

TO THE STORE THAT SAVES YOU MONEY.
Ten Strong Reasons
Why You should Buy Your Furniture from us.

- 1st—We produce our own lumber which goes into the Furniture and saves considerable in cost.
- 2nd—We have the Surface Oak finish for our Furniture, which is the only thing of its kind in the country.
- 3rd—We import our own Coverings for our Parlour Suites, thus saving two duties, as most of the imported Suites come from Canada and the United States, and they have to import their coverings from France or some of the European countries, and pay duty into Canada or the States. We avoid the second duty by getting the Covering ourselves and having the frames made here.
- 4th—We have our Springs made from the wire by the only Weaver in the country; also the Oxford or Copper Wire Spring by machines too.
- 5th—We have our Mattresses made by machinery in our own building, the only machine of its kind in the country. It can produce 50 against 10 by hand, thus saving considerable in cost.
- 6th—We are producing the Excelsior or Wood Fibre and cutting the cost in two, which will mean considerable saving in the making of Mattresses.
- 7th—We are also selling agents for the celebrated Ideal Beds and Springs and sell at factory price.
- 8th—We also have the COMBINATION LATH and SPRING BED, the only thing of its kind in the country.
- 9th—Having the factory in the same building, we can handle all sizes all repairing; in fact you can choose your own Coverings for Parlour Suites, Mattresses, etc., and have it made to order.
- 10th—Our motto (last but not least) is to sell at the lowest possible prices, and despite the serious advance in prices all round, we are, where possible, reducing the prices, WHICH SHOULD APPEAL TO EVERY HOUSEKEEPER when in need of Furniture and Furnishings, as we now by arrangement work from the "Tree to the Home," thus cutting out all middlemen's profits.

A Fortnight's Response

A fortnight ago to-day the first subscription list of the Newfoundland Aeroplane Fund was published. It amounted to $1,500. To-day the subscriptions amount to nearly $22,000 without counting the cheque for $7,500 sent in by the Messrs. Reid to buy the ordinary type of machine used by the military. It will appear that there is almost enough in hand to purchase two more of the powerful type, which are able to carry greater weight and to fly further and faster than the ordinary machines. This will enable Newfoundland to purchase three machines all told, two large and one small and by the time the list closes on August 4th, there will be a good round sum in hand as a balance which will be used to start a Machine Gun Subscription. Many people consider we should emulate Canada in providing a number of such machines, and aim at providing 30 of them. The cost would be about $20,000. The Government is providing six. Mr. W. D. Reid provided two which unfortunately are of the Colt type, so delicate in construction for the rough and tumble of trench-work, though superior in the number of cartridges discharged per minute. Grand Falls aims at supplying two, and Bell Island hopes that part of the subscription from there will be devoted to machine guns. It is expected that the subscription from Bell Island will allow of at least two more being provided. Sir Edgar Dowering and his firm will provide two more. It will then be seen that next week, when the Aeroplane List closes, the Machine Gun Subscription will be well under way.

A New Venture.

The banking schooner Donald G. Hollett, Capt. T. Hollett, is now in port for supplies after taking which she will proceed to the Straits where fishing operations will be continued until the end of the voyage. Capt. Tom has about 3,500 quintals ashore to date. He has started upon a new venture this year, and now carries 22 single-handed dories instead of 11 ordinary dories as heretofore, and the men will fish with hand line. On the way to this port a trial of this new system of fishing was made, and about 100 quintals were secured. As far as we can learn, the "Donald G. Hollett" is the only vessel in Newfoundland engaged at this system of fishing and we wish the enterprising skipper the success he deserves.

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT.
The big holiday programme that the Crescent Picture Palace presents today was a source of real enjoyment to the large crowds who attended the Palace yesterday, the aim of the Crescent management is to give their patrons the best pictures procurable and the public appreciate that by attending in large numbers every day. On Monday Charles Dickens immortal story: "Martin Chuzzlewit" will be shown, this is a mass of 12 years she came from St. John, N. B., where she was born. Deceased was married at 18 to Geo. Neal, Sr., who is now in his 89th year and in poor health; one son, Mr. George Neal, Commission Merchant, and six daughters: Mrs. Christopher, of Sydney, N. S.; Mrs. Bartram, Mrs. Thistle, Mrs. Chaney, Mrs. Gould and Miss Jessie Neal, of this city. Deceased was a life long and devoted member of the Presbyterian Church. To the bereaved family the Telegram extends deepest sympathy.

BRITISH THEATRE.

A beautifully balanced bill was presented to the Patrons at the popular British Theatre yesterday, the bill was much enjoyed. The two-part feature entitled: "Fate and the Fugitive" is a particularly strong dramatic effort and is splendidly staged. Mr. Cameron introduced a new style song which is destined to become popular when acclimated—that of the lower class coster-monger—as portrayed by his friend the Great Gus Elen. We appreciate the fact that this class of song must be much more difficult to get away with when sung in evening dress, instead of the regulation costume.

NICKEL'S HOLIDAY DELIGHTFUL SHOW.

There were very large audiences at the Nickel Theatre yesterday and all expressed the greatest pleasure after seeing the show. The pictures of the soldiers were repeated. People never tire watching it. "The Million Dollar Mystery" was continued and was of the greatest interest. This delightful story is becoming more attractive all the time. The other pictures were of the highest quality. Forbes Law Duguid, the wonderful ventriloquist was at his best in a beautiful song and thunderously applauded. To-morrow "The Hazards of Helen" will be continued. Be sure and attend to-day's show.

Obituary.

MRS. GEORGE NEAL.
Last evening she passed away at the advanced age of 85 years, at her late residence, Bond Street, an estimable lady in the person of Mrs. Mary Neal, who was of 12 years she came from St. John, N. B., where she was born. Deceased was married at 18 to Geo. Neal, Sr., who is now in his 89th year and in poor health; one son, Mr. George Neal, Commission Merchant, and six daughters: Mrs. Christopher, of Sydney, N. S.; Mrs. Bartram, Mrs. Thistle, Mrs. Chaney, Mrs. Gould and Miss Jessie Neal, of this city. Deceased was a life long and devoted member of the Presbyterian Church. To the bereaved family the Telegram extends deepest sympathy.

PARSONS' Art Store, WATER STREET, Veteran Sealer.

The man Fowler, aged 83 years, who, accompanied by his 9 year-old grandson, has been knocking around the city the past week homeless and penniless, lived in St. John's formerly. He persecuted a fishery for many years and with much success. In his early days he sailed with the late Capt. Wm. Jackman, and was in the Eagle when that ship came in loaded on March 17th. The old man and grandson are being sent home today to be looked after by relatives.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

A MAD WORLD.

If I go forth and shoot a g u y whose cows have spoiled my field of rye, to prison I must wend; they will not let me be at large; they'll try me on a murder charge, and hang me in the end. No sympathy shall I receive; no mourner at my grave will grieve, or weep some being wiser; they'll say, "He is a callous brute, who would a fellow-mortal shoot, for such a slim excuse." But if my rusty sword I swing, and whoop for some bewickered king, I can't commit a crime; the more I butcher, maim and slay, the more the folks around will say, "His actions are sublime!" I do not need a thin excuse to cook the other fellow's goose; I shoot him down on sight; I plug some white-faced beardless lad, I rob some children of their dad, and all I do is right. It's murder if you guard your own; but if you guard a threatened throne, it loyalty becomes; so when you go a-gent to wing, be sure to holler for a

Banking Vessel

Cut Down This A.M.
While lying at anchor in this port the banking schooner Ella C. Hollett was run down at daylight this morning by a small steamer which was coming down the harbor, the cause of the collision being due to the breaking down of the steering gear. The vessel was struck on the starboard bow and but for the cable which somewhat broke the force of the impact, would probably have been sunk. The damages are quite extensive, and soon as repairs are made which will likely be finished by Saturday.

with the covering boards for a distance of about 15 feet, and all the plank within the same space to within nine inches of the water line. The fore-rigging including lanyards, irons, and other fixtures. The vessel which came to Dowering Bros. for supplies is now at the dock pier, and repairs have already begun. The Ella C. Hollett is a clipper craft of 86 tons, was built at Shelburne, N.S., and is owned by Hollett Bros. Burin. She is commanded by Captain William Foote who has 2,000 quintals of fish handed to date. She arrived in port at 7 p.m. yesterday and is docked for a general overhaul and to take supplies for the Labrador.

London Banker is Optimistic

Says Britain is Prepared to Deal Successfully With Recent Gigantic War Loan.

London, July 22.—Sir Felix Schuster, presiding to-day at a meeting of the Union of London and Smiths Bank, of which he is governor, took a cheerful view of the financial outlook. In his opinion the most serious problem was the question of the foreign exchanges, particularly American.

The adverse trade balance has assumed dimensions which could not be met in any ordinary way, but the country's commercial condition, he said, was sound and the country could look confidently to the future.

It was essential, Sir Felix added, that Great Britain continue to be a creditor nation. He pointed out that on June 13, thirteen out of sixteen clearing banks held deposits amounting to £176,000,000, and cash to the amount of £177,000,000, so that the nation was prepared to deal successfully with the recent gigantic war loan.

Howled Down Speakers at Montreal.

Mob of Several Thousand Shouted "We Don't Want Conscription."

Montreal, July 23.—Between twelve and fifteen hundred disorderlies, among them a great number of boys, shouting "We won't have conscription," succeeded by organized "hooping, hissing and stone and egg throwing, succeeded in breaking up a recruiting meeting at Lafontaine Park to-night, when more than five thousand persons were gathered to hear Major Emile Ranger, recently returned from the front, appeal for recruits for the Sixtieth Battalion, one of the newer units being organized under French-Canadian auspices. Major Ranger was not allowed to speak, and when he tried to secure a few minutes' hearing, he and several officers from local battalions, with an escort from the 65th Regiment and the band of the 60th Battalion, became a target for the stones and eggs. Finally all left the platform and the park, a path being forced through the side of the audience.

Lafontaine Park, which is in the heart of the French-Canadian section of the city, has been the scene of such disorders on three successive nights. Crowds of men and boys, plainly organized, have attempted to create a disturbance whenever the speakers on behalf of the units being organized attempted to address them. Socialists and Nationalists are said to have been in evidence and leading the uproar.

A meeting was to be held to-night under the auspices of the staff of the Sixtieth Battalion. Before eight o'clock many thousands of persons were gathered about the platform and it was apparent from the attitude of a large number of groups scattered through the audience, that trouble was coming. At eight-thirty o'clock, when Major Ranger and Captain C. Zeugg, and Lieut. Le Blanc of the 65th Battalion, who were to be the speakers, arrived, escorted by a company from that regiment and the band of the 60th Battalion, they were greeted with hoots and hisses. Major Ranger walked to the front of the platform and asked for a hearing, but the uproar was redoubled, voice shouting, "We don't want conscription." "We won't have conscription!" The police charged the disturbance and ejected several, but with no result. After a half-hour wait the police left the park.

Afterward the mob began a march through the streets toward the newspaper offices, threatening to "smash them up," but police reserves arrived and dispersed them, before they had gone many blocks.

"No, the soup should be served before the guests are seated," her mother-in-law answered sweetly.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did; you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylax and Zylax with it and my Eczema began to prove at once. A couple of days cured. You can get Zylax at druggists."

WORD THROWERS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

In a certain household with which I am slightly acquainted is a child whom his parents regard as a problem. He is ten years old and he has never gotten over his childish habit of throwing things at people when he is angry. He has been punished for it again and again, but when the fits of temper come he reaches for the nearest object and hurls it at the offender.

Not a perfectly normal child, you say. No, I suppose not. Throwing things because we are angry is a habit which we are supposed to leave behind in babyhood. Any full grown person who throws things is likely to land either in the insane asylum or the prison. All of which sound too obvious to say and I shouldn't say it except as a prelude to this:

If throwing things is unforfeitable why should throwing words be regarded so mildly?

Don't words hurt just as much as things sometimes?

Tongue Wounds and Sword Wounds. "A wound from the tongue," says Pythagoras, "is worse than a wound from a sword, for the latter affects only the body, the former, the spirit."

And yet people who would never think of reaching to leave behind in babyhood. Any full grown person who throws things is likely to land either in the insane asylum or the prison. All of which sound too obvious to say and I shouldn't say it except as a prelude to this:

If throwing things is unforfeitable why should throwing words be regarded so mildly?

Don't words hurt just as much as things sometimes?

"I Didn't Mean It!" No Justification. "You know I didn't mean anything I said," we may explain when the storm of rage has passed. "What of that? Does the man who throws the nearest object mean to hurt his friend? No, he obeys a blind impulse of rage and the word thrower does the same. If you were told you could take a dozen occasions out of your life wouldn't more than half of those you selected be times when you said some unforfeitable word?"

If that is true, the next time you feel an impulse of anger sweeping away the restraints of kindness and decency, stop a moment and ask yourself, word thrower and thing thrower, is there so much difference in guilt between them?

Question.—Suppose a man and wife have lived together for years, seemingly happy enough, perhaps have a small family. For some reason the man has ceased entirely to love his wife and vice versa, and it is impossible for the love to be rekindled. Both hesitate to resort to divorce as a means of separation. Would it not be better to resort to divorce as a means of separation. Would it not be better if one or the other took a few belongings and went away, thus bringing a climax to the very unpleasant position? As a matter of course a divorce would be likely to follow, but without so much publicity—An interested Reader.

Answer.—If neither wants to marry again why not simply a separation instead of divorce? Perhaps that might teach you that you would be no happier apart than together. And if a divorce still seemed desirable after a few years, you could take up the matter then.

Machine Guns from Canada to Aid the Empire.

Frederickton, N.B., July 22.—New Brunswick will donate a number of machine guns towards the equipment of the Canadian expeditionary forces. Premier Clark said yesterday afternoon that the matter had been under consideration by the Government, and he expected that a formal announcement would soon be made.

The Government's intention, it is learned, is to make an offer to the Militia Department, giving the authorities power to place the New Brunswick machine guns wherever they would do the most good.

GIFTS FROM HALIFAX.

Halifax, N. S., July 22.—Robert Hirsch, T. F. Courtney, W. B. Arthur, Michael Hirsch, William Glassey, and E. L. MacDonald, directors of the Halifax Hotel, have notified the Minister of Militia of their desire to give a machine gun to be used at the front either by the 25th Nova Scotia regiment, now at Shorncliffe, or by the 40th Nova Scotia Battalion, now at Valcartier.

At a recruiting meeting in Halifax yesterday G. S. Campbell announced that the Bank of Nova Scotia had informed the department that they were providing two machine guns.

A QUICK RESPONSE.

Saskatoon, Sask., July 22.—Mr. Cairns, of the J. F. Cairns' store here, called the staff together yesterday and made the following announcement:

"Boys, we want a machine gun and eight men and a sergeant to man it." In seven minutes the fund was subscribed and enough men had volunteered their services to operate the gun. Mr. Cairns is putting up about 75 per cent of the cost of the gun. The gun and men will be offered to Lieut.-Col. Lang of the 65th Battalion, now being organized, with headquarters here.

Toronto, July 21.—The vinegar manufacturers doing business in Ontario have decided to contribute a gun to the Dominion Government.

Moncton, N.B., July 22.—At the meeting of Prince Albert Lodge, I. O. O. F., last night, the lodge unanimously voted to purchase a fully-equipped machine gun at a cost of a thousand dollars.

Power of Eloquence.

Financial Effect of Whitefield's Sermon on Ben Franklin.

Whitefield made seven visits to America. He brought great blessings to our land. Whittier wrote of him thus:

The flood of emotion, deep and strong, Troubled the land as it swept along. But left a result of holier lives. In Philadelphia he preached with such effectiveness that the dancing rooms were discontinued, and the ball and concert rooms were shut up "as inconsistent with the gospel."

Benjamin Franklin tells that in Philadelphia 30,000 heard him with ease. Ben was caught with the matchless delivery of his sermons. "I happened in a meeting in the course of which I perceived," writes he, "that he intended to finish with a collection, and I silently resolved that he would get nothing from me. I had in my pocket a handful of copper money, three or four silver dollars and five pistoles in gold. As he preached I began to soften and concluded to give the coppers; another stroke of his oratory made me ashamed of that and determined me to give the silver; and he finished so admirably that I emptied my pockets wholly into the collection dish, gold and all."—Christian Herald.

The luncheon to be carried to the kiddies picnic, presents problems that tax many mothers' brains. Little individual jars of jams and jellies are invaluable in planning for the luncheon. So are crackers and wafers of every sort—sweet grahams, ginger snaps, oatmeal crackers, butter, thins, five o'clock tea biscuit, and a host of others. Bottled foods are the most convenient: olives, figs, peanut butter, lunch tongue, deviled ham, tuna, fish, sardines—all can be packed into the basket as they come or may be used for tasty sandwiches.

The wax paper that comes on every loaf of bread and the paraffin paper lining of cracker boxes should be treasured for wrapping sandwiches for the lunch basket. Paper napkins, paper plates and paper drinking cups make the luncheon outfit quite luxurious, and when an ordinary box is substituted for a basket, all may be thrown away and the children come home empty handed.

COLLECTORS.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."
The world is full of men who collect things.

Some men collect postage stamps and pay as high as $10,000 for a stamp which was worth 2 cents before it carried a grocery bill to a barber's wife in Mauritius. Others collect pipes, snuff boxes, engravings, birds' eggs, goodies, tulips, tobacco tags, cats, fleas, Oriental rugs or street car transfers.

When a man becomes a collector he fixes his affections upon whatever he collects and lives for his find. Nothing can exceed the pride with which an otherwise sane member of society will display a slipper of rare design, the finest in his collection of 1,789 varieties, all different, costing $100,000 and worth in the neighborhood of $1.45.

Collecting rare books is a passionate joy to many men. Edgar Allan Poe who died of scanty nutrition would be pleased to see the deep joy with which men pay thousands of dollars to-day for his manuscripts which brought 10 cents a page when he needed the money.

Collecting paintings has raised the price of lod. masters $7,000 above normal in the past thirty years. Rembrandts are so valuable, because there are not enough of them to go around among the collectors.

Collecting railroads was a great fad with Harriman, Jay Gould and others. Nothing delighted them so much as to snap up a rare little railroad for about five times its worth and add it to their systems.

Collecting wives is a pastime in many countries. Solomon was a famous collector and so was Brigham Young while some of our modern actors do very well in a modest way. Henry Ford is said to be an automobile collector and to have one of every variety in his garage. This is peculiar, because Ford's ambition seems to be to reduce automobiles to one variety.

Collecting statesmen was popular with many corporations before the new and reckless progressivism which made municipal and state ownership of public servants obligatory. Many corporations had as many as ten senators in their exhibits.

No collection, however, exceeds in peculiarity and success that of Germany which has now acquired ten enemies, thus beating Napoleon's and Frederick the Great's records.

Garden Party at Mount Cashel.

AN IDEAL DAY—A RECORD SUCCESS.

Under ideal weather conditions, the annual Garden Party was held at Mount Cashel yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended. Amongst those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson and niece, His Grace Archbishop Roche, Rev. Fr. McDermott, Administrator, Mt. Rev. Mr. St. John, Rev. J. Donnelly, Rev. Fr. Co., Rev. Mrs. Tierney, Greene, Pippy, Conway, Kelly, Doyle and Nangle, Mt. Hon. the Premier and Lady Morris and many other prominent people. The sports programme, which was under the direction of Messrs. W. J. Higgins and C. J. Ellis, proved most interesting. The 6-mile road race was won by J. Bell in the record time of 31 min. 42 sec. W. Wall, who came second, finished the course in 33 min. 23 sec. Kavanagh, who had won this event two years in succession, dropped out of the race after he had covered about two miles, owing to his having a sprained ankle as the result of injuries received in one of the recent football matches. Hill, the other competitor, retired after the first mile. In the football five, the St. Bon's team defeated the Stars, the Colegians won from the Casuals, and the B.I.S. defeated the C.E.I. Peeldians. In the play off, the Saints defeated the Colegians by a corner and the B.I.S. won from St. Bon's by a corner after 20 minutes of exciting play. The final game between the Saints and B.I.S. gave the victory to the latter team by a score of 3 goals and 1 corner to nil. The names of the winning five are: W. Duggan, T. Jackman, W. Burke, R. Walsh and R. Jackman. Another interesting feature of the programme was the baseball game and the result came as a great surprise to many of the fans, as the Red Lions defeated the Cubs by 12 to 1. Cooney and Jenkins, the winning team started as better and pitcher, respectively. The players were:

Lions—Hiltz, catcher; Cooney, pitcher; Payn, 1st base; Quick, 2nd base; Crawford, 3rd base; Munn, short stop; Rells, centre field; Gowan, right field; Jenkins, left field.
Cubs—Clonston, catcher; Simms, pitcher; T. Winter, 1st base; Peddrew, 2nd base; D. Walter, 3rd base; St. John, short stop; Ryall, centre field; Tessier, right field; Edens, left field.

The pony race was a decided attraction. Five competitors entered, and the first prize was won by Mr. W. J. Higgins' pony, the jockey being Griffin, a Mount Cashel boy, who rode a splendid race, finishing the course in 2 min. 41 sec. Second place was won by Mr. M. Kelly's pony ridden by his son Frank. The event was watched with much interest and judging from the enthusiasm shown, we feel sure that a pony race will figure in the programme in succeeding years. During the afternoon the C.C.C. T.A. and Mount Cashel bands discoursed excellent music, and the leads of the institution gave an exhibition of dancing which was thoroughly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the sports programme, Rev. Bro. Kennedy, of Mount St. Francis, presented the prizes to the winners of the various events, congratulating each one in his own happy way. Those who assisted in conducting the programme were then entertained by the Brothers, and a most enjoyable hour was spent. Songs and speeches were given by Rev. Bro. Ennis and Kennedy, Messrs. J. L. Slatery, W. J. Higgins, C. J. Ellis and others. That the splendid work of Rev. Bro. Ennis and his devoted staff is appreciated, was evidenced by the large gathering present yesterday. The entire proceeds are, we understand, over three thousand dollars, ahead of all previous events at Mount Cashel. The gate receipts alone amounted to $316, or $35 in excess of last year. To the ladies who presided at the various stalls, much congratulation is due, as well as to those who conducted the amusements.

Wedding Bells.

CARTER—SHORTIS.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon in the Oratory of the Archbishop's Palace when Mr. P. J. Carter, of the Reid Nrd. Co.'s Freight Office, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter, of the Government House Lodge, was united in matrimony to Miss Marie Shortis, daughter of Mr. H. F. Shortis. The ceremony was performed by His Grace Most Rev. B. P. Roche, D.D., Archbishop of St. John's, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. A tea-bride was attended by her sister Miss Lilian Shortis, and the groom was supported by Dr. John A. Burke. After the ceremony the happy couple and party left by the 2.30 train for Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. After visiting the principal towns in Conception Bay Mr. and Mrs. Carter will take up residence at 42 Prescott Street, their future home. The young couple were the recipients of many valuable and useful wedding gifts. The Telegram in extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Carter wishes them a very pleasant voyage over the matrimonial sea.

CREWS LANDED.

LONDON, To-day. The crew of the Swedish barque, Sagundalen, set on fire by a German submarine in the North Sea, arrived at Grimby to-day. The crew of the Lowestoft smack, Westward Ho, sunk by a German submarine also landed to-day.

SPEEDING UP MUNITIONS.

LONDON, To-day. Sixteen National Munition factories have been established in England. After consultation with the French Ministry, the British Government decided to set up additional ten large establishments. This announcement was made in the Commons last evening by Minister of Munitions, Lloyd George, who told of the progress made by his department, overcoming the shortage of shells that had prevented the army on the continent from doing all it might otherwise have done.

These new factories are being erected in the vicinity of arsenals and existing armament establishments, and according to Lloyd George, when the Government has completed in a few weeks the developments it is now engaged in, the supply of shells will be doubled. This will not merely enable us to support our men, but will enable them to cleave their way through to victory. Lloyd George explained that until the new factories are built, the work of his department will be directed to speeding up existing contracts. At first the Government had been faced with grave labor shortage. Some machines were lying idle because no one could be found to work them. One-third of the machines engaged in Government work at the outset were not being utilized at night. During three months this Department had succeeded in adding nearly forty thousand men and women to the ranks of the men skilled, to the ranks of workers connected with armaments. They were pouring further supplies. His Department also enrolled one hundred thousand volunteers, but it had been found difficult to remove the majority of these from their present employment. However, some thousands of skilled men who had enlisted had been traced and arrangements made with the War Office for the return of these men to the factories, while Trade Union leaders agreed to a relaxation of trade union restrictions. He had now secured the convince men without giving figures which he dare not give. Were all restrictions relaxed, hundreds of thousands of men could be added to the work. Steps, Lloyd George said, had been taken to increase the supply of machine guns and hand grenades for trench warfare. The country had been divided into two great co-operative areas, so that all available machinery could be used for turning out supplies in National factories erected and those to be erected under Government control. He believed this would have influence on men who would not object to a temporary relaxation of their trade union rules, when the Government and not an individual was profiting. The Government had taken over the control of machine and tool factories, so that no delay would arise in equipping new establishments. This would tax the engineering resources of the country, but when all was completed within a few months, the Government would be able to equip the armies in a way which would leave them in no way inferior to the best equipped armies on the Continent.

Boy Dies From Eating Tinned Stuff.

With somewhat suddenness Stanley, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Garland, William Street, was stricken with an apparently unknown complaint yesterday, and only lived a few hours. The two previous days he had been out in the boat of health, he went swimming in company with chums of his and, it is thought, ate some tinned fruit or vegetables. However, on Tuesday evening he came home but up to the time of retiring had felt no ill-effects. During the night he complained that something was wrong with him and that he felt awful pains from his stomach. Yesterday forenoon Dr. Anderson was summoned. On arrival the physician noticed the victim was sinking fast. On examination Dr. Anderson found that the boy was suffering from ptomaine poisoning, as a result of eating tinned stuff he had eaten. Shortly afterwards, despite all that medical skill could do, Stanley passed away. His bereaved parents much sympathy is expressed in which the Telegram joins.

LEAGUE FOOTBALL.—The St. Andrew's and St. Bon's football teams will compete this evening. The result will not affect either of their chances for the championship.

Staford's Prescription "A" cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Catarrh of the Stomach and Nervous Dyspepsia. —jly12,1f

SUNSHINE COMING HERE.—The S. Sun, which has been plying on the Fortine Bay service, is due here this evening having left Belleoram at 1.30 p.m. yesterday. The Sun, will upon arrival take up the Fogo mail service and will likely get away about Saturday.

Take a teaspoonful of Staford's Prescription "A" a few minutes before eating and enjoy your meals.—jly12,1f

NEWLY CURED COD.—A considerable quantity of this year's cure was brought to town yesterday, and this morning from Torbay and adjacent settlements. The fish fetched an average of 36.75 per quintal. The weather the last four days has been suitable for "making" cod.

POLICE COURT.—A carpenter was charged with using lewd and insulting language towards his wife, also for beating her. Two other women were summoned for insulting language in the case was postponed till this afternoon. Two men for loose and disorderly conduct were fined $2 or 5 days.

Special Evening Telegram. CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind west, light, weather fine; the sea calm. At 11 a.m. and Eleonora Maersk east at 6.15 p.m. yesterday. The S.S. Inshovien Head west at 9.35 a.m. to-day. Bar. 29.54; ther. 55.

Household Notes.

Excessive bluing may be boiled out of a garment. The kitchen knife set is one of the greatest conveniences. When serving cherry ice decorate it with leaves and fresh cherries. Custards of all kinds should be cooked slowly or they may crack. Sweet red peppers have a far finer flavor than the sweet green ones. Pie crust will keep perfectly in the refrigerator; it is not necessary to mix it fresh every time. Flounder is delicious if boned, skinned and served as the English sole is served, with tartar sauce. To remove nut meats whole, soak the nuts in hot water for a few hours. They will come out with little trouble. To warm a steamed pudding place it into a colander in a steamer, and the pudding will be very much lighter and more palatable than if placed on a dish. When eggs are high-priced a good substitute for puddings, etc., is a tablespoonful of molasses mixed with half a pint of milk; you will also require less sugar. You may have lettuce fresh in the picnic basket if you will wash it, drain it, chill it thoroughly and then wrap it in oiled paper and place in a pail with a close cover. Have an entertainment box and in it put clippings from magazines. When you are at a loss to know what entertainment to provide for the coming guest, consult the box. Jelly jars can be sealed with sugar instead of paraffin—simply sprinkle it evenly over the top as soon as the jelly is cold, then tie on the paper cover and adjust the tin one. Nothing is better for cleaning up tarnished silver than powdered magnesia. If the silver has become very tarnished, first use the magnesia with water, and finally as a dry powder.

1338—A Dainty Frock for Mother and Girl.

Girls' Dress, with Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.

This neat and becoming little model is made with a wide panel over the front, to which the side portions are attached. The sleeve may be finished with a belt at French waistline, or in elbow length, with a neat turn back cuff. The dress is in one piece style, with the fullest loose or confined by a belt at French waistline. The closing is at the left side under the panel. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a 6 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1337—A POPULAR BECOMING DRESS FOR MOTHER'S GIRL.

Girls' Dress with Two Styles of Sleeve, and with or without Peplum.

As here shown, white linene, was used, with dotted percale for trimming. This style is also nice for ginghams, chambray, percale, linen taffete, messaline, poplin, targa, cashmere or challie. In galatea or seersucker it will make a serviceable school dress. In serge combined with checked or plaid suitings, or for either of these and other woollen materials it is an excellent style. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a 6 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Is German Will Law?

Mr. W. H. Johnson, a prominent New York literary man, writing in the New York Times, asks: "Is German will the law?" Mr. Johnson argues:

The issue between the United States and Prussianized Germany is just the same as that between Germany and all other States with which she is at variance, just the same as that between Germany and international civilization itself. It is simply this: Shall a single State be allowed to set itself up as its own judge in matters of international right and obligation? That is just what Germany is actually doing in the methods by which she is carrying on the present war, and just what every indication points to as her defiant attitude toward the whole world in case she shall come out of the war successful.

And German statesmen and newspapers are complaining that the outside world does not appreciate the German way of thinking; does not get the German point of view. The outside world is only too well aware of the German way of thinking; it catches with absolute clearness the German point of view. And as the outside world is in no mood for committing suicide in the interest of furthering German political ambitions, it is unanimous in its rejection of that point of view. We are told with insistence by some of our German apologists in this country that the act of Holt, Muenster or whatever his name may really be, was mere inanity, and not to be in any way charged against the German cause in this war. As a matter of fact, the act of this criminal parallel with astonishing closeness the acts of Germany herself in this war. He was simply trying by horrible assaults on non-combatants to terrify civilians and thus bring pressure upon the enemies of Germany. Germany has been doing just the same thing, and avowedly for just the same purpose with her submarine and her aerial bombs, and the successful effort of Germany against the lives on the Lusitania was just as clearly in violation of international law as the unsuccessful effort of the assassin upon the life of Mr. Morgan was in violation of local law.

The President of the United States has twice earnestly sought from the Imperial German Government assurance that this lawless assault upon the rights and lives of American citizens shall not be repeated. This assurance the Imperial Government has twice refused to give. Simply to repeat that request a third time would be to patter with a matter of the gravest importance and to sacrifice unduly the dignity of the country. The Imperial authorities in Berlin apparently think that they can trifle with us until the war is over. They must be brought sharply to a sense of realities.

Germany's proposition to allow safe transit across the Atlantic in ships sailing under directions given by her, with due notification to her of dates of sailing, etc., can be construed only in one or two ways, either as a deliberate insult to our standing as an independent nation or as a proof of extraordinary dullness of intellect on the part of those who conceived and drafted the plan. Americans all the seas not as a privilege conceded by Germany, but in accordance with age-long international law, subject only to such restrictions as international law has previously sanctioned. We are willing to submit to the restrictions of an effective blockade, which takes due care of the lives of non-combatants, and we are further willing to trust to already provided means of redress when in doubtful cases a power maintaining such a blockade seems to have infringed upon property rights of our citizens.

Germany has not established and cannot establish any such blockade, or any kind of blockade which has even in the world's history had the slightest sanction in international law, and yet she coolly proposes to tell us just when and how and in how many specified ships our citizens may cross the Atlantic free from the danger of indiscriminate destruction by a lurking submarine. Of course, to accept such a proposition, would be to cancel every word of the strong and truthful presentation of the Lusitania case which the President has twice made to the German Government. Did the Kaiser or von Jagow imagine for a moment that the President would be capable of such a volte face when fully convinced that he is in the right and well aware that he has the whole of the loyal citizenship of the country behind him?

It is time that Germany should learn the truth, and one large feature of the truth is that the dignity of our Government and the rights and lives of our citizens cannot longer be safely trifled with.

Forcing the Dardanelles.

What It Will Mean.

When the Allied Fleet forces the Dardanelles, reaches Constantinople, and makes the way clear to the Black Sea, the public will then realize fully the value of the operations which have aroused not a little severe criticism. The first result of the achievement will be restoration of communications between Russia and her Western Allies.

The fact is not generally realized that at the beginning of the war the entrance to the Baltic was blocked by the German fleet, the Dardanelles closed by the Turks, while Archangel the only other outlet for Russia, was shut off by ice. The consequence was that there was no means of getting ammunition and other goods into Russia, and it is now fully recognized that the whole explanation of the Russian set-back in Galicia is the simple one that big guns, huge stores of ammunition, and military equipment of all kinds are waiting until a means can be devised of carrying them to the vast armies. And it is the Allied Fleet which is attempting the task of opening up a way for this purpose.

There are also two other good reasons why the Dardanelles must be forced. The autumn of 1914, according to the story of "The Dardanelles" (Andrew Melrose saw a heavy wheat harvest garnered on the shores of the Black Sea. It was a food supply of infinite value to the Allied forces at a time when the price of wheat was mounting by leaps and bounds over the world. But so long as the Dardanelles are closed to our merchant ships, the Russian wheat must be useless in the granaries. And so, if only to restore trading communications between East and West, the attempt on the Dardanelles had to be made.

The second reason why it is essential that the Dardanelles should be forced is that the Turks will be cut off from their supplies of weapons, munitions, and skilled advisers. There will be a rapid end of them as a fighting force, and a deadly menace to the whole of our Eastern Empire will be removed.

There seems no doubt that a plot has been hatched between the Germans and Turks to rouse the fanaticism of the 300,000,000 Mohammedans into carrying on a religious war against Great Britain. The Sultan has declared a holy war, and it is sedulously reported that the English are determined to crush the Mohammedan faith. That is why the Allies have decided to launch an attack at the very heart of Turkey in order that the so-called holy war will become, for the Sultan, a war of self-preservation.

Aviator Sleeps As Hydroplane Drifts on Sea

Had Descended in the Adriatic Owing to Carburettor Trouble.

Rome, July 22.—While "Gink" Dougherty, a young American birdman, slept peacefully in a hydroplane drifting about on the Adriatic, the entire Italian aviation corps at the Taranto naval base searched for some trace of his craft, believing he had encountered Austrian airmen or a submarine. The story reached Rome today.

Dougherty, whose home is in Buffalo, is an instructor in aeronautics at Taranto. He was on scout duty the morning when word came that an Austrian submarine had been sighted off the coast and he flew out to reconnoitre at five o'clock with a two-hour supply of gasoline in his tank.

The two hours passed and the Buffalo airman failed to return. When four hours had gone by John Lansing Callan another American aviator, and a dozen Italian birdmen had their machines wheeled from the hangars and started in search of Dougherty.

For nearly an hour they sped along the coast. Finally twelve miles out an Italian sighted a drifting hydroplane and slid into the water beside it. There sat Dougherty asleep in his seat. After half an hour's flight he had been forced to descend because of carburettor trouble. Something had come loose and dropped into the water, Dougherty said.

"I hadn't slept well the night before and the wind lulled me to sleep almost before I knew it," said the American. "I knew somebody would find me."

Within the next few weeks you are going to buy a new Spring Suit—that's certain. Perhaps to-day, perhaps to-morrow, perhaps in a month—but you're going to buy it.

We think you ought to know why it's wise to "Do it now." The best reason is that our stocks are complete—you're bound to get more style satisfaction out of a broad choice than a narrow one—you get the broad choice now—you may not get it later.

This is why we invite your inspection of the stylish patterns now on hand.

FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build. They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bill will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, when once installed in your boat, child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.
