CHAPTER XXIV.

She recited again; then, amidst a storm of applause, moved from the piano. Heroncourt rose and made his way, none too gently, through the crowd towards the hall. It was full of guests who had been unable to find room in the salon, and he could not reach his hat and coat for a minute or two. As he stood, waiting to attract a footman's eye, there was a slight movement in the crowd; a lane was made, and Maida came down it. He was starting forward instinctively and impulsively; but he remembered his promise and checked himself. He was, however, in the front line of the lane, and Maida, as she passed him, raised her downcast eyes and met his.

She half stopped, the pallor of her face was suffused by crimson, then it became pale again, and, without the slightest sign of recognition beyond that momentary change of colour, she passed on and was lost to his sight. He stood for a moment, scarcely knowing where he was, his heart beating thickly, so that he felt half-suffocated; then he got his hat and coat, and was leaving the house when Lady Glassbury, just behind him, called to him.

He got into the brougham with her and leaned back in his corner, his head bent on his chest, his arms folded.

"You have seen her?" she said in a whisper, frightened by the expression of his face.

"I have seen her," he said. "She passed me without a word, a bow—as if we were strangers. Oh, my God, it is hard to bear! And, only a few weeks ago—passed me as a stranger! And she will do it every time we meet. I know her! There is no hope for me. Put me down here, Ethelreda—they were opposite his club. I am not fit company—I scarcely know what I am saying—Put me down here."

He went into the club and into the smoking-room, and called for some brandy, and smoked and drank for an hour.

He had of late been one of the most temperate of men, and the liquor soon told upon him. He lay back on the settee with his hat drawn over his eyes, his cigar—he had smoked incessantly—in the corner of his lips. Several men, friends and acquaintances, had entered the room or passed through it; but he had not returned their greetings, and, after eying him curiously, they left him alone.

Presently a man came in, a middle-aged man, with a bronzed face and keen, resolute-looking eyes.

"Hallo, Heroncourt!" he said, and he flung himself down on the settee beside Heroncourt. "How are you? Glad to see you! Have a drink?" Heroncourt motioned to his glass, which was half full, then finished it and nodded.

"What are you drinking? brandy-and-soda? Right! I'll do the same." He ordered the drinks.

"Lord, how jolly it is to be back in old London again! First time I've seen it for nine years."

Heroncourt glanced at the man indifferently. He had not recognized him at first; now he saw that it was an old acquaintance named Dartford, the younger brother of the Earl of Erith. He remembered that Dartford had left England some years ago to go out to some property he had in Australia, a cattle ranch, Heroncourt thought.

"I'm home on a holiday," said Dartford, lounging back with the air of enjoyment which a man who has been away from England always displays during the early days of his return. "It's nice to be back. And perhaps I'm back for good. Erith's boy is dead, and of course they want me home. Australia's good enough, but London's the place, after all."

"Have you had a good time?" asked Heroncourt, with polite indifference.

"Oh, well, yes; good enough. At any rate, I've had a very lucky time, and I've done deuced well. Went out without a penny, or nearly so, as you know, and have made a fairish bit; should have made more if I'd stayed; but Erith wanted me, and there's the title and estates, you know. I shall have to sell out, I'm afraid. Been trying to get a partner, or even a manager, but haven't dropped upon the man I want."

Heroncourt nodded. The man's conversation did not interest him—not yet.

"Yes. You see," Dartford continued, with the garrulity of a man just come back to civilization, "I don't want to sell. I want to stick to the thing. What I require and what I am looking for is a man to run the show during my absence; a sort of alter ego, a locum tenens. I'd pay him a good screw; in fact, I don't mind taking him into partnership—that is, if I could find a man after my own heart. And, mind you, it will be a deuced good thing for him; there's a lot of money to be made, and I'm not sure that there isn't gold on the property. It's a jolly fine thing, a ranch on the Quashi River. It makes me laugh when I hear Erith talk about his land; he has got about thirty thousand acres; I've got about a hundred and twenty thousand. But I'm boring you, I'm afraid. Got a cigar?"

Heroncourt held out his case and watched Dartford as he lit the cigar. Heroncourt had been drinking far more than he was accustomed to, but his brain was clear enough to seize upon the salient points of Dartford's statements, and an idea, vague and indefinite at the moment, was forming in his whirling brain.

"So you want a man to take your place, do you?" he said.

"That's exactly it," returned Dartford, with an emphatic nod. "I want a man who'll come in as a partner, look after my interests and his own, run the show during my absence and keep it going. He must be a man who is not afraid of work, a good rider, and a good shot. To such a man I could promise a fortune; yet, a fortune, I suppose I shall have to advertise for him. Beastly nuisance! You don't happen to know such a man, do you? As I say, he must be a man who is not afraid of work, and a decent chap; because, don't you see, I might have to go over and chum with him; at any rate, I shall have to trust him. Do you know of such a man?"

Heroncourt took off his hat and drew his hand across his brow.

"Walter," he said, "bring me a s'phon of soda-water. Yes; I know of such a man. And I think—the man would suit you. You want a man who can ride and shoot, a man who could look after your interests and his own, a man who wants to leave England and make his fortune. Oh, yes, know the man you want?"

Dartford looked at him with eager anticipation.

"No, really! You don't say so? What's his name—who is he?"

"It's I," said Heroncourt, drinking a long draught of the soda-water.

Dartford looked at him with amazement.

"You!" he exclaimed. "Why, you are the Earl of Heroncourt, aren't you? I heard of poor Harold's death—you've got the titles and the estates, haven't you?"

"Yes," said Heroncourt; "but I'm short of money; I want a trust. See here, Dartford, if you can trust me if you think I am the man you want—"

"My dear fellow!" cried Dartford enthusiastically. "I couldn't wish for a better. But—dash it all; do you know what it means? Hard work plenty of it, your life in your hands, no society, no nothing; just hard work and danger all the time."

"I know," said Heroncourt. "I have heard, I've read about the Colonies; I'm not afraid. I'm your man, and I'll close with you, if you can't find a better. Just tell me the terms."

He drank some more soda-water and lit another cigar, sitting bolt upright, with his dark eyes fixed on Dartford's face.

Dartford went into details. Heroncourt nodded.

"When do you want me to start?" he asked.

"Well, I'm afraid, soon," replied Dartford.

"The sooner the better," said Heroncourt, with a bitter smile. "There is nothing to keep me."

Dartford looked at him eagerly.

"Right you are, old chap!" he said. "By George! I couldn't have found a better man; I remember you, and what you were and what you did at Oxford! I'll draw up a little agreement. Meet me here to-morrow, or I'll go to your lawyers if you like, and we'll settle the matter. But you are sure you mean business?"

"I mean business," said Heroncourt, grimly. "I want to leave England, I want to make my fortune."

"Then, by George! you're on the right line," responded Dartford. "You'll make your fortune on the Quashi River. Good-night, old chap! I'll meet you here at, say, twelve o'clock to-morrow; and if you're of the same mind we'll settle the business off-hand."

As Heroncourt walked home—a little unsteadily at first, but the cool night air soon cleared his brain, for he was as strong as a horse—a glimmer of hope began to rise within his heart. Was it possible that he could get Maida after all? Other men had made fortunes across the seas—why, even Dartford, who had never been regarded as a Solomon—had done well; and why shouldn't he, Heroncourt? But suddenly he saw a difficulty in the way: Mr. Spinner. If that gentleman got to know that Heroncourt intended leaving England the probability was that Mr. Spinner would issue a writ and stop his debtor; for Heroncourt owed him other sums besides that which was secured by his future marriage. Mr. Spinner, could, in short, lay him by the heels and spoil this little hope for him. Heron-

WOMAN A PHYSICAL WRECK

Tells in Following Letter How She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a physical wreck. I had been going to a doctor for several years but he did me no good. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I decided to give it a fair trial, and it gave me relief from bearing down pains which had been so bad that I would have to lie down. I also used the Sanative Wash and it has done me a great deal of good, and I am not troubled with a weakness any more."—Mrs. P. L. BILL, 1299 Booth Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

The most successful remedy for woman's ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test for forty years, which would be impossible if it did not have genuine merit.

For special advice, free, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

court was now sober enough to see that if he were to leave England, he would have to do so on the quiet; he must confide in no one, not even in the Glassburys, for Glassbury was the most forgetful of men and would probably blurt it out unintentionally. It seemed to Heroncourt that Dartford and his proposal had come in the nick of time, had come providentially to save him from utter wreck and ruin, for there was a kind of madness working in his veins, the madness of unsatisfied love, of despair.

He met Dartford the next day at twelve o'clock and heard a great many particulars and details. He confided his money troubles to Dartford, who could quite understand the necessity for secrecy. Dartford was delighted at the idea of getting such a man for a partner; and before the two men separated, they drew up between them—Heroncourt was afraid of going to a lawyer—a simple, but sufficient agreement.

It was agreed that Heroncourt should sail at once and take up his post at the ranch; that he was to carry on the business as partner, and that he was not to return until Dartford agreed to his doing so, or went out to relieve him. They were to share and share alike.

"There was one thing I wanted to mention," said Heroncourt: "I shall prefer to go out there under another name. It is hard to explain my reason for this—"

"Oh, it is easy to understand," said Dartford, promptly. "It's no advantage being a swell over there, in fact, it's against you: people think you're a new chum, and, of course, you will be at first, and a soft-head—which you're not! Yes; I should certainly advise you to change your name; should do the same if I were in your place. What name will you take?"

Heroncourt considered for a moment or two, then he remembered some of the family names: there were plenty of them; and he himself had a string of Christian names a yard long. He hit upon Owen Tudor, names which had been in the family for generations.

Dartford nodded approvingly.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME A

The preliminary Mt. Cash between the B.L.S. and C. was a large gathering of fans to St. Field last night. The game was extra innings, and eventually Chesman thought it prudent to allow them a hit. Hall secured same treatment to the B.L.S. second St. John scored for the sters, as did Brazie and Willie the Macmen. The game was planned, and through overtime the bases let in 3 runs. This was to be outside, repeated stunt. At the beginning of the McGraff crew were leading run and the game looked to them, but when Carew was dugan and Clouston and Roberts a hit, aeronautics were more displayed; and an over third and a return throw overie's head, allowed the Cubs to thus tying the score. LAST NIGHT'S GAME A DRAW.

The preliminary Mt. Cashel game between the B.I.S. and Cubs drew a large gathering of fans to St. George's Field last night. The game went into extra innings, and eventually Chief Chesman thought it prudent to call it owing to the impending darkness, fearing injury to some of the players, with the score 6 to 6. The B.I.S. winning the toss, sent the Cubs to bat. In their first innings Carew did not allow them a hit. Hall accorded the same treatment to the B.I.S. in the second St. John scored for the youngsters, as did Brazie and Williams for the Macmen. Then the Irish aeroplane, and through overthrowing to the bases let in 3 runs. The Cubs, not to be outdone, repeated the same stunt. At the beginning of the 6th run the McGrath crew were leading by 1 run and the game looked good to them, but when Carew walked both Duggan and Clouston and allowed Roberts a hit, aeroplanes were once more displayed; and an overthrow to third and a return throw over Brazie's head, allowed the Cubs 2 runs, thus tying the score. As in ordinary circumstances there can be no draw in baseball the game went into an extra innings, but darkness set in when both sides were retired hitless, and fearing accidents the umpires decided to call the game. Thomas's one-handed stab, Brazie's three bagger, and Williams' and Carter's work in the outer gardens were features of the game. The fielding of both teams was loose and scattered though the tied score kept the fans on their feet to the finish. The Cubs' battery was in excellent fettle and Hall outclassed all his previous efforts. The Irish machine, however, was by no means perfect, and overthrowing in the pinches allowed Clouston and his men to pile up the runs. The umpires were Messrs. Chesman and Hartnett, with Messrs. Outerbridge and Mullings in the scoring box.

GAME TO BE REPLAYED.

It has not been decided just yet when the game will be replayed, but as the winners must play the Red Lions for the H. D. Reid Cup at the Garden Party at Mount Cashel on Wednesday, it is likely that arrangements will be effected through the courtesy of the executive of the Football League, whereby Monday evening will be available. The next meet between these clubs is exciting much interest and the fans regard the odds about even. The entire proceeds will be devoted to the orphanage funds as in the case of the other preliminary games.

Distinguished Visitors to Arrive.

BIG RECEPTION IS BEING PREPARED.

Three distinguished visitors, His Grace Most Rev. E. P. Roche, Archbishop of St. John's and Metropolitan of Newfoundland, His Lordship Rt. Rev. M. F. Power, our highly respected and well-known Bishop of the West, and Monsignor McDermott, V.C., and Chancellor of the Archdiocese, will pay a formal visit to Bay of Islands on Friday of this week. We understand this is the first visit of His Grace to the West, and his people and the community at large will extend to them a hearty welcome.

A motor boat excursion around the Humber Arm is being arranged to take place immediately upon the arrival of His Grace and party. The S. S. George L. and the ferryboat have both been placed at the disposal of the Committee in charge of the reception.

Later in the afternoon there will be an assemblage at the Deanery grounds where an address of welcome will be read to His Grace. Afterwards he will hold a reception; and we understand it is His Grace's desire to meet everyone here, regardless of class or creed.

Through the courtesy of the Reid Nfld. Co. a private car will be placed at His Grace's disposal, which will go on sitting here until Saturday, when His Grace and suite will leave for St. George's.—Western Star, July 18th.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. L. Walsh's gratitude is due to the following: Dr. Keegan and Miss Taylor, Dr. Smith and Miss Scott, also Sisters Fleming and Miffin, Nurses Long, O'Flynn, Jolliffe, Harrington, Walsh and Snelgrove, for the great care and attention that was given her. Ever have toothache at a time when it was impracticable to go to the dentist? If you have had you will appreciate the value of an article like our Quick and Sure Toothache Remedy. It will not, of course, cure a tooth that should be out or filled but as a temporary relief, or in cases where it is not possible to apply to the dentist, it is almost certain to be of service. Price 15 cents a bottle.

Parrish's Syrup or Chemical Food is one of the best general tonics, especially for children, who take it readily and assimilate it well. The phosphates are bone-and blood-making, and the phosphoric acid contained imparts the nerves and increases the appetite. Four ounce bottle, 25c.

EXPERIENCE.

I jogged along a country road, in my large choo-choo dragon, and met a farmer with a load of pumpkins in his wagon. "Go back, go back," the granger said, through his whiskers long and luddy; "you'd best turn round—the road ahead is dangerous and muddy." "I never yet have seen the pike," I said, "that scared this auto, and I'll go on, so help me Mike, for 'Get There' is my motto." I drove into a marshy hole, when I had gone some distance, and farmers took away my roll for giving me assistance. We tolled and wrought a night and day, to remedy my folly, and when again I took my way, I reeked with melancholy. The road of life is much the same, the road we blithely follow; we're warned by men who've played the game, to shun the swampy hollow. They tell us where the way is worst, and where the bridge is rotten, and when we've gone a half a verse their counsel is forgotten. We will not learn from sage and seer who've walked the path before us; we greet the prophet with a sneer and wise men only bore us. And every day we pay the price, the cost this course engenders; we stick in mud and break through ice, and bust our best suspenders.

Household Notes.

If new enameled saucepans are placed in a pan of warm water, allowed to come to the boil, and then cooled, they will be found to last much longer before either cracking or burning.

When darning table linen it is best to use a raveling from the goods. Where there is a hole, put under it a piece of the same material, carefully matching the pattern. If the darning is carefully done, the hole will not be noticeable.

The Task Ahead.

The News considers that we are unnecessarily agitated over the plain purpose of the Legislature, which it does not deny, to rush through such legislation as remains in the space of a fortnight or less. It then waxed sarcastic at our expense. The sarcasm moves us not at all. It is a common trick of debate to answer what the other side has not said. We are not concerned in the least with the actual drafting of any act, which the News elevates to such importance, for the simple reason that, whatever the original draft and whoever the draftsman, the final act which will be passed by the Legislature itself. The Legislature is the real draftsman, either by adopting the proposed clauses or by amending them in any way. It is the only fault with the News's argument is that it is entirely beside the point. But we shall nevertheless answer it on its own ground tomorrow.

Concerning discussion of the bills, we are quite ready to agree with our contemporary that the time prescribed will be quite sufficient, for it is plain that the House will only introduce such legislation and in such form as it pleases. The whole essence of our real "agitation" is that the country at large and the House have very different ideas of what legislation is necessary and the form it should take. We shall be more explicit than we have been and make our meaning clear through a few instances. The public has been given to understand that the large questions of the day—that is to say, of the war—have been responsible for the creation of the new Government. What is the very first of these questions that affects this country? Clearly the position of our military and naval forces. What are the Government going to do about this? Can anyone maintain that the situation is as it should be, or in any way satisfactory? The matter has not even been the subject of inquiry in the House, the proper place for the country to look to for enlightenment. We know the reason why. All except one or two of its members are afraid to touch it, just as they have been afraid to show themselves in their districts in the interest of recruiting. The country demands to know whether the Regiment in France is to be kept at strength or not, for it knows that the present methods cannot do it. The Premier on his return from England made a pronouncement that almost prepared the country for conscription. Was there any purpose behind the pronouncement, or was it the usual bluff? Next, we notice that the Advocate has been saying a great deal lately about measures to be taken to ensure the marketing of our fish. We are in entire sympathy, but we are frankly curious to see what sort of legislation is proposed to that end. If any at all, we think we are safe in guessing that even the anxious desire of the whole House for a holiday will not be able to rush it through in summary fashion. There is next the matter of food control, which we see is an item of the programme. That will probably consume little time, for it seems to be the purpose of the Government simply to adopt the easy, and very vicious, method of delegating powers, which will in many cases be actually legislative, to a private body. But even so some attempt will have to be made to define the powers of the board, and it will be a difficult and delicate matter. We prophesy, for our part, complete failure for the whole attempt. One single intelligent effort towards ensuring supply would have been worth many times what will be achieved by this laborious endeavour to control what cannot be controlled.

Last among the examples we will mention is the Excess Profits Tax. This is a most necessary measure, but it will be applied to a community which its application will be difficult in the extreme. What profits and what sorts of business are to be included in its scope? How are the profits to be estimated? On what capital? What machinery will be used for the hard task of ascertaining them? On what scale will the tax be imposed? These are only a few of the most obvious questions that will have to be answered. To evolve a satisfactory and equitable law on the subject might well have occupied the greater part of the six weeks that have been wasted. To sum up the programme the House has set itself does not include several matters of the first importance which the times and conditions imperatively demand. Such as it does include are mostly of the nature of extraordinary legislation, for which no precedent can be found, and constitute important departures from established usage. Yet it is proposed to dispose of this task in the space of a short week or ten days! We could labour the argument a little more, but leave our readers to judge for themselves from what we have said between the opinion of the News and our own.

Strayaways Reaches Land.

By the express, which reached the city yesterday afternoon, there arrived two American seamen, who strayed away from their Gloucester vessel on the Grand Banks recently and reached the land after a long and arduous voyage. They were very much exhausted, having very small rations of food and water for several days. They went astray during the fog. The fishermen were very much exhausted from rowing day and night in their dory and were thankful for having reached the land safely. Their interests are being looked after by American Consul Benedict.

The Wrecked Liner.

The condition of the wrecked liner Kristianiafjord is virtually the same as yesterday. The work of salvaging the dry cargo is finished and several wrecking tugs, which are now standing by, are endeavoring to refloat the disabled liner by using compressed air. Most of the crew are now on their way to the city from Trepany, where the night many of the passengers of the stranded liner met and protested against re-embarking on anything but a Norwegian steamer. The little tug, however, quickly subsided when the authorities here explained the situation fully, their efforts being then fully appreciated by the emigrants. To Mrs. Jones, of the Seamen's Institute, the woman survivors are deeply grateful for the treatment accorded them there.

Reid's Boats.

The Argyle arrived at Placentia at 6.30 p.m. yesterday. The Clyde left Twillingate at 3 p.m. yesterday, inward. The Dundee left Greenspond at 3.30 p.m. yesterday. The Ethie left Parsons' Pond at 1.30 p.m. yesterday, going north. The Glencoe left St. Jacques at 2.50 p.m. yesterday, going east. The Home left Springdale at 4.10 p.m. yesterday. The Wren arrived at Clarenville at 3.45 p.m. yesterday. The Theis left Harbor Grace at 10 a.m. to-day.

NEW FISH BUILDING.—Mr. A. W. Piccott, Manager of the Gorton Pew Co. here have asked permission to put up a building 75 feet by 60 and 3 storeys high, on the Southside. The new building is on the site recently purchased from Mr. K. R. Prowse, and will be used as a storehouse in connection with the company's fishery operations. In all probability a cold storage plant will be installed in it.

Editor Evening Telegram, City.

Mr. Editor,—Will you kindly allow me once more to acknowledge in the Evening Telegram the most enjoyable At Home held yesterday at Bally Haly by the lady members of the Golf Club. I wish especially to thank the Ladies Committee, whose Captain, Mrs. Phyllis Gordon Winter, and Secretary, Mrs. Robert C. Grieve, have been unsparing of their efforts on behalf of our wounded soldiers and were rewarded by a brilliant success. I should very much like to mention many other names, such as those of Mrs. W. Rennie, Mrs. W. G. Gosling, Miss F. Gosling, Miss E. Hutchings and Miss S. Hutchings, but that the list would be too long of the many ladies and gentlemen who so generously patronized the French Day at the Golf Links. It is my pleasure to acknowledge to Mrs. W. Mr. Grace Notes.
Strawberries were on sale in town the past few days at $1.00 per gallon.
Mrs. Harold Rowe, of Heart's Content, after spending a few weeks at the home of her parents, Capt. James and Mrs. Wells, of Bristol Hope, left for home on Saturday.
Mr. Edward Parsons and his little daughter Mildred, arrived from St. John's by Monday's train on a visit to Mr. Parsons' mother, Mrs. Jas. Parsons, and his sister, Mrs. A. L. Collins.

Mr. Parsons has resided at Brooklyn, New York, for a number of years, but lately came to St. John's where he will reside with his family, who accompanied him. All his old friends were pleased to see him.
Mr. Joseph Power, of Boston, is in town on his annual vacation. Mr. Power looks forward to these visits with as much pleasure as his friends here, who are always pleased to welcome him.
The sch. Minnie Maud lately discharged a load of lumber at the shipyard here. She is now taking on board oil, etc., for St. John's.

Politicians are very careful today when discussing the wisdom or otherwise of the amalgamation. In some cases towns are in evidence, probably by people who were anticipating a little "heat" from the election work. It is not uncommon to hear some of the dissatisfied ones trying to console themselves by saying: "I suppose that's the best that could be done." We shall see. May the interest in and love of country grow in every politician's heart and smother self, and then we will begin to prosper in this country.

It has often been declared that the sound of running water has the effect of lulling one to sleep, but in India the mothers go much further than this to make their babies sleep by letting a small stream of water flow directly on their little heads.
Such means seems almost incredible, and one might think colds and other ailments would result that would kill the babies, but apparently this novel lullaby has no harmful effects upon the native infants, and they lie sleeping for hours with a stream of water flowing directly upon their little heads.

Danes Think a Revolution
Is Now Possible in Germany.
Copenhagen, July 10.—All the advices reaching here indicate that the situation in Germany is very serious. If the Liberal factions do not succeed in their Parliamentary aims, there are predictions here that trouble will follow. The Danish newspapers only discuss the possibility of a German revolution.

The German censorship, of which the General Staff has charge, has always been very fluctuating. During the first days of the present crisis even alarming telegrams were allowed to pass, but since yesterday nearly all private and press dispatches have been stopped. Only insignificant official statements trying to gloss over the situation have arrived here.

Those Awful Little Things.

RUTH CAMERON

By RUTH CAMERON.
We were talking of old schoolmates the other day and someone mentioned Gertrude B. "Gertrude," said one of the group vaguely, "who was she? Oh yes, I remember now. The girl who always wore so much cheap jewelry." "Funny," said someone else, "how you remember those things. Now I can never think of Beatrice S. without seeing those dirty finger nails of hers. And yet there were lots of nice things about her." "Surely," said the first speaker, "and about Gertrude, too. Why should we remember those horrid little things?" "Because we are horrid!" "Because we're horrid, I guess," said the lady who had remembered the finger nails, contritely. "Is it horrid of people not to be able to see the sun with a penny held close up to their eyes?" said someone else. "Those are little things but they shut out the sun. Is it our fault?" "It's our fault if we hold the penny close up to our eyes. And rather horrid of us, I call it," said someone else. "We don't hold it up," defended the simile maker. "Memory does." "Can We Control Memory?" "Can't we control our memories?" "Not entirely," said the simile maker. "We could have controlled the habit of thinking so much about the little things in the first place," persisted the other. About that time I came away so I didn't hear the argument ended. But I carried it on in my mind and came to these two conclusions:

VACCINATION is a painful remedy for some disease that is four jumps removed from the country line. Every once in a while the low, rumbling accents of an approaching epidemic can be heard in the distance, when it becomes necessary to puncture the entire community in the left arm and drive the germs in another direction. The germ has never been discovered that can attack a vaccinated citizen immediately after the vaccine has secured a firm hold and live to tell the tale. Vaccination is caused by poisoning the patient with a penknife and six drops of high-priced lymph. By the proper use of these articles a very perceptible limp can be imparted to the patient, especially when he attempts to lift his left arm above his head. Some people are so constituted that they cannot be vaccinated without Vaccination is good for only seven years, after which it has to be done over again in a dark purple tint. Compulsory vaccination is a variety which has been legalized by law, and springs up whenever somebody on the Pacific coast has been bitten by a mad dog. Whenever a small-pox microbe is seen edging its way over the horizon, school is dismissed and the children are allowed to be vaccinated, in order to sweeten their vacation hours. Vaccination is said to "take" when it takes four strong men to hold the victim in bed the second day after.

The only defenders of vaccination in this country are the doctors, who were the first to recognize its benefits. Why is it that the average doctor is perfectly willing to vaccinate everybody on the town plot and yet prefers to keep his own arm in an unblemished and sharply condition? If every patient would require his family physician to be vaccinated first, there would be fewer people going around with arms like a captive balloon.

Household Notes.

The old rule to "eat what you can and can what you can't" is an excellent one to remember in regard to all fruits and vegetables this summer. When preparing peaches for preserving, put them into a wire basket and slip them into boiling water for a minute. The skins will slip off easily. Only see that the family is well fed and sanitation properly looked after, and a good many householding matters can be skipped—these are the essentials. You may have lettuce fresh in the picnic basket if you will wash it, drain it, chill it thoroughly and then wrap it in oiled paper and place in a pail with a close cover. Black walnut furniture or furniture made of any dark rich wood should be cleaned occasionally with a soft rag dipped in a paraffin oil, then polished with another soft rag. Before putting away spare silver clean it thoroughly, then wrap it in dark blue paper with camphor balls in the parcel, and it will be found bright even months afterward.

To Our Boys in Newfoundland.

Written by William F. Strachan, Everett, Mass.
We are "Sons of Old England," we are fighting to-day For Freedom and Justice, o'er the seas far away. We don't care for the Germans, they've found we can fight, And to England we are Loyal, and we're doing what's right. For our King and our Country, we are willing to die, And we'll all keep on fighting for our victory is nigh. We'll be Loyal and True to the flag we love best, And we'll all do our duty and trust God for the rest. Then onward, boys, onward, for victory is nigh, May God grant us the victory, it's for freedom we save, And the Old Union Jack, boys, in honour will wave Over all who fought for her, their Country to save.

Then, boys of Newfoundland, to your England has ruled us with justice, to your flag be true blue. We'll look to bless us for conquer we must, For our hearts are with England and in God is our trust. So bravely, boys, offer yourselves to your King, For you fight for the Right and that's a great thing; And our dear heroes who've died may they ever be blessed, Those who loved England most and have served her the best. And brave hearts that fought for her, who now lie in their graves They all did their best, their dear And as you march forward let your voices ring In praise to England and God save the King!

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive. Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY, may 23.!!

To flower pansies in the house, sow the seed in shallow boxes of sandy soil. When they are rooted, transplant them to window boxes or separate pots. Keep them quite warm, give them an abundance of water and a great deal of sun.

Municipal Council

At last night's meeting of the Municipal Council, a letter was read from the Colonial Secretary, dealing with the repairs of the Southside Road, disclaiming any liability in the matter and informing the Council that the latter was liable for the upkeep. The Council's Solicitor holds a different view on the matter, claiming that the Government, having constructed the road, are consequently responsible for its upkeep. Another petition from the residents of LeMarchant Road between Springdale Street and Hamilton Street was sent to the Council protesting against calling that section of the Street "Patrick Street." In this petition they set forth that an Act of the Legislature of 1872 gave the name of LeMarchant Road not only to the section referred to but also along what is called Patrick Street to the Gas House. The petitioners claim that the re-naming of the street has interfered with the value of their property. The petition has been sent to the Council's Solicitor, but beyond that nothing will be done.

The Smith Co. made application for permission to build a concrete wall and premises on the Southside, and also to install a cold storage plant. The Engineer will report. Mr. Mark Chaplin asked permission to allow a few head of cattle to graze along Military Road and other parts of the city during the next few months. The Impounder will investigate Mr. Chaplin's application.

The Gorton Pew Co. will have to furnish plans before starting building on the Southside. The Real Nde Co. will have to give a guarantee to the effect that buildings to be erected west of the railway station be of an inflammable material. Several other matters were disposed of.

"Hello" Company's Terms Not Acceptable.

The following letter was ordered to be sent the Colonial Secretary by the Municipal Council in relation to the offer of the Colonial Utilities Company, of Halifax, to install a new telephone system in St. John's. "In reply to your favour of the 25th ult., enclosing the proposal of the Colonial Utilities Company, for the installation of a telephone system for St. John's, I am directed to say— "The Council cannot approve of any scheme which gives to a private company an exclusive franchise for 20 years, or any term, for the right to operate a telephone system in Saint John's. As a matter of principle, the Council is of opinion that a public utility, such as the telephone, should be operated either by the Government in the interest of the whole Colony, which would include a long distance telephone, or by the city for the benefit of the city. The Council therefore enters its strong protest against the granting of such a franchise. Having taken this position it is perhaps unnecessary to comment on the proposals submitted. The Council, however, desires to say in reference to proposition "A" that it appears to hold out very little prospect of an improved service. To buy out the present system and run it for an indefinite period, to install some system or other, at some time or other, is too loose a proposal to be seriously considered. As to proposition "B", the suggestion seems to be that the Colony should provide the capital sum of $150,000, either by the guarantee of bonds or in a lump sum, which would be paid off at the rate of $9,000 per annum. The Council begs to submit that if the Colony is to provide the capital the Colony should conduct business on its own account and take such profits as may accrue therefrom.

The Council understands that the Govt. had adopted the principle for a new telephone system and that the Legislature has authorized a loan for installation. If for any reason the Government intends to abandon the decision, the Council desires that the right to operate this important public utility should vest in the city.

FRENCH SUCCESS RECORDED.

PARIS, July 19.
The affair cost the Germans not only the loss of their former conquest and about five hundred prisoners, but the French cut into their lines and repeated German counter attacks failed to recover any part thereof and resulted even in more losses. The Germans when they advanced at the end of June obtained possession of a number of observations, giving them a splendid view of the French lines. The Germans, for several days, have been expecting the French would try to shell them, but did not expect an infantry attack. The French were obliged to delay the movement owing to bad weather, but continued a heavy bombardment causing the Germans such losses that they were obliged to take the tenth reserve division, which was holding their position, out of the trenches as some of its companies had been reduced to fifty men apiece, and relieve them by the Twenty-Ninth Division, supported by the Forty-Eighth Division composed of fresh troops brought from the Russian front. It was while the relief was proceeding that the French attacked, thoroughly surprising the enemy by appearing in their trenches while the bombardment was proceeding. The French battalions were greatly animated. In a few seconds they had surmounted the obstacles, separating the armies and dispersing them on the other side. Before the Germans could recover the French were within the third line of German trenches. The enemy's disorder was so great that the French were able to gather many prisoners, and dashed even further forward than they intended and occupied ground on a 200 yards front which had been the French position before the German attack in June. The French now hold all the observation posts overlooking the slopes of Le Mort Homme and Hill 604. The whole engagement lasted only thirty minutes. The first German reaction occurred unsuccessfully twelve hours later.

GERMANS MAKE ATTACK.

PARIS, July 19.
The Germans made an attack last night on a front of 800 metres south of St. Quentin. The war office announces that the enemy gained a footing in the French first line, but was expelled from the greater part of these positions by a counter attack. The Germans attempted to regain the ground captured by the French near Avocourt Wood on the Verdun front but were defeated.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE.

PETROGRAD, July 19.
Russian troops have again driven into the Galician village of Novica, south of Kalucz, and now occupy the eastern end of that place.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 19.
As a result of the recent fighting east of Monchy Le Preux the advanced posts from which our troops were compelled to fall back by the enemy's attack on July 11th, have now been established last night west of Cherby before reaching our trenches. We made successful raids north and east of Ypres and secured prisoners. A few other prisoners were captured by us in an unsuccessful hostile attack upon one of our advanced posts east of Costevaine. There was considerable artillery activity on both sides in the night.

MAURICE'S SUMMARY.

LONDON, July 19.
Summarising the military events of the past week, Major General P. B. Maurice, Chief Director of military operations at the War Office, said today to the Associated Press: The British front has been noteworthy only for the fact that it has seen the heaviest air fighting in the history of the war, with losses severe on the German side and results generally favorable to the British. On land there was only minor fighting without material change. On the French front the Germans are still carrying the policy of using picked troops in local operations aimed at exhausting and paralyzing the French. The result has been nil. The policy is a confession that the Germans are incapable of attempting a really great effort. On the Russian front bad weather and floods necessitated drawing back some advanced posts without important change. Supplementing his talk on the military operations, General Maurice remarked, I am told that in the United States the ordinary man had a general impression that when any really stiff fighting job has to be done the Englishman calls on the Australian, Canadian or Scotsman to take the van. This idea is carefully fostered by the Germans with the foolish idea of spreading some dissension or dissatisfaction between the branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. They soon will be trying the same propaganda to push the wedge between Great Britain and the United States. As a matter of fact the greatest part in the fighting since the war began has naturally fallen on the English troops. They form the largest part of the army and have borne the brunt of the fighting. The casualty lists show that English regiments have fought just as gallantly and bravely and have lost as heavily as any regiments in the imperial army.

WILL NOT PARTICIPATE.

WASHINGTON, July 19.
The United States was officially invited by the Allied Governments to participate in the inter-allied conference at Paris this month, but has decided that for the present it will not be necessary to take part in such meetings not directly affecting this country's part. It is officially explained at the State department that while this course is followed at present it is not to be taken as an indication of a permanent policy.

FIGHTING OVER CHURCHILL'S APPOINTMENT.

LONDON, July 19.
According to a statement of lobby correspondents of all the morning newspapers, Winston S P R S N E E R Churchill's appointment to the Cabinet as Minister of Munitions has aroused a storm of anger and resentment among the Conservative members of Commons, while some Liberals also regard it with disapproval. The Conservative Parliamentary groups, such as the Unionist War Committee, are holding a meeting to consider what action to take regarding the appointment. Some Unionists say they contemplate refusing further support to the Government if it includes Churchill. There is talk of presenting the Premier with a signed protest against the appointment. An unconfirmed rumor mentions the likelihood of resignations among some of the Conservative members of the Government. The Colonial Secretary, Walter Hume Long, is said to be resentful because he was not consulted about Churchill's appointment. The Daily News lobby reporter says if the opposition against Churchill continues, the Liberal War Committee, of which Churchill is a distinguished member, will retaliate and similar action will be taken against the admission to the war cabinet of Sir Edward Carson. Winston Spencer Churchill must seek re-election. He will go to Dundee on Saturday to address his constituents.

GOVERNMENT CONTROLS PETROGRAD.

PETROGRAD, July 19.
The Government controls the city to-day as completely as the Bolsheviks appeared to control it yesterday.

MUNITIONS FACTORY BURNED.

ZURICH, July 19.
The munitions factory of the Hungarian Iron and Steel Rolling Mills at Engelsfeld, Budapest, was completely burned on Sunday. The entire stock will exceed a million crowns.

Germany's "Crisis."

Whether Bethmann Hollweg has resigned or not, the wisest words that have been spoken about the German "crisis" are those of Acting Secretary of State Polk:

"It is well not to exaggerate the real meaning of Germany's internal strife on her foreign policies or on her efforts in the war. Any changes that may take place there would be much more important if they affected the military rather than the civil—denburg and Ludendorff, for instance."

The present is the most serious and heated internal conflict that has arisen in Germany since the war began, but there will have to be much graver ones than this before anything can happen there which will have any effect on the war, or even upon German liberty. It makes no difference whether Zimmerman or some one else holds the post of Foreign Minister. The Foreign Minister in other and democratic countries is appointed by the people through their Parliaments or other representatives, is responsible to them, and does their will. The Foreign Minister in Germany is a mere head of department, a sublimated head clerk, carrying out the Kaiser's orders, responsible only to him. It makes no difference whether Bethmann or some one else is Chancellor, for the Chancellor is literally what he proclaims himself to be, the servant of the Kaiser. "I do not serve the Reichstag," said Bethmann himself on a notable occasion. It makes no difference whether the people obtain a larger representation in the Reichstag and the Junkers accept a smaller one. The Reichstag is an impotent body of public speakers and does not legislate; the legislation is done in secret by the reigning houses of Germany; meeting in the Bismarckstrasse, and all the Reichstag can do is to talk. When it talks too much, the Kaiser ends its session.

It makes no difference, in short, what is done. It makes no difference what reforms the Kaiser grants, so long as he stops short of constitutional reform; and he will stop short of that. It makes no difference what officials he dismisses or what officials he appoints. Whatever he may do, the war will go on for the accomplishment of the Kaiser's aims alone. True, there is a check upon those aims and upon the direction he compels Germany to take, but it is a check with which the people have nothing to do. The check is not in the hands of the people, but in the hands of his brother Princes of the royal German houses. That is the intent of the German Constitution, and until that Constitution is swept away there can be no change that will mean anything to the world. And that Constitution cannot even be amended if the Kaiser prefers that it should not be, for he has a practical veto over everything in that direction that the other German monarchs might attempt.

Therefore the present "crisis" is no place to look for any real reform in Germany, any advance of democracy, or any change in war aims dictated by the people. The encouraging thing about it is that there should

There have been even such a crisis as this. It will lead the way, perhaps, to others, and each will go a little further, until some time in the future there may be a real crisis; and then there will be hope for Germany.—N. Y. Times.
