Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER XVIII.
"DON'T BEAT ME!"

For the whole of the next day, and several others, indeed, she avoided Elliot. He tried to get hold of her, but she was like an eel; she managed to take her meals either before or after he came in, and she carefully watched his movements so that she could evade him. Elliot felt the loss of her companionship keenly, as was very natural, and, as was also very natural, she saw more of Miss Margery. She had a knack of throwing herself in his way, if the expression is not too active a one, took his lunch to the quarry, and accepted his assistance with the cattle, assistance which Nora had grudgingly yielded. Margery had very little or nothing to say for herself, but she was seemingly quite content to follow Elliot about and listen when he spoke.

Elliot regarded her as just a pretty child, and treated her as one; and often, when she was walking beside him, or standing watching him at some odd job about the farm, he was self-consciously in her presence. It is needless to say that Nora was aware of this new companionship. From a distance she saw them together, and the sight of them, the expression on Margery's ingenuous countenance, filled Nora with impatience, contempt, and—was it jealousy?

One day, entering the sitting-room suddenly, she saw Margery sitting over the fire with her head bent, regarding something in her hand. She started as Nora came behind her; she held closed over the object, and she blushed furiously.

"What have you got there?" Nora demanded.

"Nothing," faltered Margery, moving away.

"Yes, you have," insisted Nora. "You were mooning over something in the silly way you girls—some of you—have. Let me see what it is."

She took hold of Margery's arm, none too gently, and the girl uttered a little squeak.

"Take care, you'll break it!" she exclaimed. "There! if you must see." She held out her hand, and Nora exclaimed angrily—

"Why, it's a blue gull's egg; one of my eggs! Where did you steal it from?"

"I didn't steal it," said Margery, with mild indignation. "Mr. Graham gave it to me."

"Then where did he steal it?" demanded Nora, still more angrily. "He got it himself, went down the cliff for it."

Nora bit her lip.

"And you asked him to get it for you, of course?"

"I said I should like some," admitted Margery.

"I thought so," said Nora scornfully. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. He might have fallen, broken his neck or his leg, or something. If you wanted any eggs, why didn't you ask me? I can get them easily enough."

"You are always so unkind, Master Cyril," whimpered Margery. "You'd have put me off, or said 'No' right out. And Mr. Graham is always kind, and does what I ask him."

"Oh, does he?" retorted Nora, with suppressed fury. "Yes, I suppose he does; he's idiot enough for anything. Oh, for goodness' sake do stop crying! What's the use of it? He's not here to see you and comfort you. How I hate girls!"

With this last stab Nora fung herself out of the house. She was angry with Margery, she was angry with herself, but most angry with Elliot, and in this charming mood, forgetting her resolution to avoid him, she went straight to the quarry. Elliot saw her in a moment. He ceased working and called up to her, with just a note of uncertainty and anxiety in his voice—

"Hullo, boy! there you are."

Presently he came up to her, and looked down at her smilingly.

"Haven't seen you for days," he remarked. "What have you been doing? Thought I had offended you."

"Why? Because I 'don't' trot about after you like a pet lamb?" retorted Nora. "I don't suppose you'd miss me. I daresay you have been able to find a companion."

"Yes," assented Elliot, with sublime innocence. "Miss Margery and I have been about together a good deal."

Nora glared, her lip curled with lofty contempt.

"Then I'm sure you haven't missed me," she said. "She's just the kind of pet lamb a man likes, trotting and bawling at his side. I suppose she's got you to do all sorts of odd jobs for her, as she used to get me."

"I daresay," said Elliot. "She's a nice little girl; reminds me of a little wayside flower."

"Oh, she does, does she?" commented Nora. "I know that kind of wayside flower—so simple, so innocent! Wayside flower! How blind you men are! Just because a girl's got a head of hair like a mop of tow, and eyes like a saucer, and can't say Roo to a goose—I suppose she talks to you sometimes, though—you think she's like a daisy or a buttercup! That girl is as artful as a cat!"

"And I'm hanged if you're not as spiteful as one," he said, evidently much amused. "What's the girl done to you that you should be so rough on her, eh, boy?"

"Nothing," snapped Nora; "she hasn't even got me to go down the cliff after eggs for her."

Elliot laughed again. "Oh, I see. That's the trouble, is it? You're jealous, Cyril?"

Nora's face flamed, then grew suddenly pale.

"And you are stupid and foolish," she said.

"That's true enough," he assented, with so simple a gravity that Nora's anger melted.

"That's just it," she said. "You'd better let Margery alone—"

Elliot regarded her with a deeper gravity and with a sternness which was unusual with him.

"Look here, my boy," he said; "don't you talk nonsense of that sort. But there, you didn't mean it, I know. I'll show you the plans of the cutting down to the beach, and the new quay."

He drew the papers from his pocket, and they bent over them. Their heads were so close together that they almost touched, and Nora breathed a little hard.

"I think I shall run over to Nelsworthy and show these to Mr. Trunton," said Elliot thoughtfully. "He might not understand them unless I explained them."

"Oh, yes, he would," said Nora quickly; "they are plain enough for anyone to understand; but they are very dirty. Why didn't you wash your hands before you drew them?"

"I did," he replied innocently; "but somehow they got dirty all the same. My huge fist wasn't made for this kind of thing."

"Look here," said Nora, "I'll copy them for you neatly, if—"

"If what?" he asked.

"If you'll promise not to go after any more eggs for Margery," said Nora. "Oh, don't fancy I'm jealous—how absurd! But I don't want you to break your neck—before you've finished this business."

"I see," he said. "I'll promise not to get any more eggs—for Margery. What a queer lad you are!"

Nora did not notice the pause before "for Margery," and was satisfied. She took the plans and went off with them, resolving to take some time over the copying. The prospect of his leaving the island had caused her a sudden sinking of the heart; it would be horrible without him. Day after day he asked for those plans, and day after day she put him off with one excuse or another. Elliot did not worry about it overmuch; he was growing strangely contented with his life; the lines were disappearing from his face, the harassed expression from his eyes.

The time was approaching when Hodges and Shuffley would stamp up their rent, and Nora herself would have to leave the island. It was she who began to look anxious and preoccupied. She now again joined Elliot in his rambles, and hovered about him at the quarry, and it was evident that Elliot was much relieved and gratified by this renewal of their friendship. He not only kept his promise and made no further presentation of eggs to Margery, but he took little or no notice of her. These days were happy ones for Nora—would have been perfectly happy if she had not known that they were rapidly drawing to a close.

One evening she brought down her eggs to the sitting-room, and began sorting them and wrapping them in some wool. He sat on the other side of the table, watching her with interest.

"Not a bad collection, Cyril," he said. "No; it's nearly complete," said Nora. "There only one egg I want—the Great Kkua. I saw a couple of the birds the other day off the Long Cliff, but they've nested rather far down. It has been raining, and the cliff was too soft for me to get at them. They're beautiful birds, and they're rather rare here. I should like to have had one of the eggs. I am going to give them to Miss Ralton when I go back."

"That won't be for some time, I suppose," said Elliot easily.

"Oh, yes, it will," replied Nora. "I shall be gone before the 25th."

Elliot looked up sharply.

"So soon as that?" he said gravely. He thought for a moment, then he added, "No, I can't go with you. I've decided that I must wait and see Shuffley through that new cutting. The 25th." He sighed and frowned. "I'll be precious lonely here without you, boy. By George, I shall miss you!"

"Oh, you'll get on all right," remarked Nora carelessly, and shooting a glance at Margery, who at that moment came in.

Elliot got up, lit his pipe, and with a short "Good-night" went off. Nora came down to breakfast at the usual time next morning, but Elliot had not arrived. They waited for a little while, and then they went on with their breakfast. Hodges remarking that no doubt Mr. Graham was kept at the quarry. Nora hung about after the meal, expecting Elliot to turn up every moment, but he did not come, and about ten o'clock she sauntered down to the quarry, with a huge slice of saffron cake in her pocket, in case he should have been foolish enough to have gone without any breakfast.

He was not at the quarry, and Shuffley informed her that Mr. Graham had got up early and gone off somewhere, and that he, Shuffley, had not set eyes on him since.

"He said as he'd give me a hand with the blasting this morning," he remarked complacently, "but it bain't like him to break his word."

"Which way did he go?" inquired Nora.

"I donno," said Shuffley. "On the cliffs, most like."

Nora went up to the heights, looked round, and coo-ed to him; but no response came to the clear notes that thrilled on the still air. She was perplexed, but certainly not anxious, and she walked along the edge of the cliff expecting to find him lounging on the grass and smoking his pipe, having forgotten his promise to help Shuffley.

Suddenly she stopped, her preoccupation vanished, and she was all on the alert; for she saw, at the extreme edge of the cliff, a couple of footmarks, which from their size she knew must be Elliot's. Her eyes traced them inland on the short, wet grass, but they stopped at the edge of the cliff, and with a sharp sting of fear, she threw herself down and looked over. The cliff, after a slight slope, was extremely precipitous. She saw the footmarks descending the slope, then they disappeared. She knew that he had gone down, and she knew that he had not returned, for the footmarks pointed one way only. At that moment she suffered as Elliot had suffered the day he had watched her balanced on the treacherous ledge. With a sick feeling at her heart, she peered into the depths below.

A sea mist hung above the beach, and she could distinguish nothing. She coo-ed quaveringly, but no answer came, no sound save the breaking of somehow they got dirty all the same. My huge fist wasn't made for this kind of thing."

"Look here," said Nora, "I'll copy them for you neatly, if—"

"If what?" he asked.

"If you'll promise not to go after any more eggs for Margery," said Nora. "Oh, don't fancy I'm jealous—how absurd! But I don't want you to break your neck—before you've finished this business."

"I see," he said. "I'll promise not to get any more eggs—for Margery. What a queer lad you are!"

Nora did not notice the pause before "for Margery," and was satisfied. She took the plans and went off with them, resolving to take some time over the copying. The prospect of his leaving the island had caused her a sudden sinking of the heart; it would be horrible without him. Day after day he asked for those plans, and day after day she put him off with one excuse or another. Elliot did not worry about it overmuch; he was growing strangely contented with his life; the lines were disappearing from his face, the harassed expression from his eyes.

CHAPTER XIX.
THE SILLY CRIMINAL.
Mrs. Ryall was enjoying herself exceedingly in London. It was like old times, only "fatter," as she would have put it; for there is a great deal of spending in a hundred pounds, especially, as she would have put it again, when you know the ropes.

In Company with "Monty Gert" and other stars of the "masse" stage, she went about from shop to shop, not only buying what she fancied, but driving the assistants to the verge of distraction by insisting upon examining others she had not the slightest intention of purchasing. To women of Mrs. Ryall's nature there are few joys more keen than that of being surrounded by articles of feminine attire, which they cause to be displayed for the mere pleasure of looking at them.

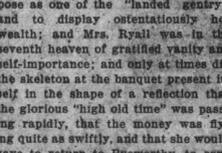

Then how delightful, after the shopping, were the little dinners at the would-be fashionable Boho restaurant, where you can obtain six courses, including wine, for half a crown. That the courses all tasted alike, and the wine was sometimes manufactured by an ingenious chemist somewhere in the vicinity of Whitechapel, did not matter to Mrs. Ryall and her companions, who grew noisy and hilarious over the feast, and carried their good spirits to a neighbouring music-hall, finishing up at a similar restaurant with similar food. It was delightful to pose as one of the "landed gentry" and to display ostentatiously her wealth; and Mrs. Ryall was in the seventh heaven of gratified vanity and self-importance; and only at times did the skeleton at the banquet present itself in the shape of a reflection that the glorious "high old time" was passing rapidly, that the money was flying quite as swiftly, and that she would have to return to Byeworthy, to confess that she had spent her bribe and had done nothing to earn it.

She had paid the thousand pounds into a bank, and had not yet touched it, had not even intended to do so; but one morning she discovered that her hundred pounds had nearly run out, and, of course, she drew a small cheque on the purchase money. Then she began to consider the situation, and she grew exasperated by the thought that Nora was the cause of the trouble which she had now seriously to face.

Where could the stupid girl be hiding herself? It was possible that Nora had gone abroad, as she had reported, if so, it might be impossible to trace her. She might have taken another name—have resolved never to return. And even if she did come back, it might not be for years. By that time it was very likely that Sir Joseph would have changed his mind about the land, and Nora would lose a large sum of money. Really, it was her duty to guard against such a calamity.

Another Public Man Collapses Under Strain

Premier Lloyd George Ordered Complete Rest--Western States of America are Flood Stricken--Striking Miners nearing end of Resources.

BRITISH PREMIER ILL.
LONDON, June 6. Prime Minister Lloyd George has been ordered by his physicians to take a complete rest. He is suffering as a result of severe chill and overwork and has cancelled all his engagements for this week.

BONDS IN DEFAULT.
LONDON, June 6. Collection of interest on Greek Government bonds, covering a credit of $5,000,000, granted by Canada to encourage trade, has been placed by the Canadian High Commissioner here, Sir George Perley, in the hands of the British Treasury for recovery in connection with interest on British loans to the same country. The same course has been followed with regard to Rumanian bonds, interest on which is also in default.

MINERS AND OWNERS MEET.
LONDON, June 6. Events leading to attempt to settle the strike of coal-miners moved rapidly this morning. While the Executive body of miners was in session a letter was received from the mine owners, suggesting a joint conference at the latter's headquarters. The miners' representatives deliberated and accepted the invitation. They proceeded to Altych, where at present they are conferring with the owners.

RECORD FLOODS IN WESTERN STATES.

PUEBLO, Col., June 6. Flood stricken Central Colorado today surveys the havoc of the most disastrous flood in the history of the Western States. With murgens crowded to overflowing, hospitals turning patients to improvised relief stations, and thousands of homeless or suffering from exposure, every effort today was being directed toward alleviation of suffering. Restoration of the city to even an approach to normal will be a matter of weeks. The local Red Cross placed the number of bodies found at approximately one hundred, and the number of persons in temporary hospitals is placed at five hundred. Typhoid, pneumonia, diphtheria, and one or two cases of influenza were found among these patients. Floods of lesser magnitude were reported to-day by several towns in Kansas, and scores of lives were believed to have been lost. The Platte River broke its banks at Denver shortly after midnight, inundating several blocks of the west side residential section. Three times yesterday came a renewal of the food here. State Rangers have been sent into the lowlands of the north side of the city. This morning a new flood is approaching from Swallow, 16 miles west of here. Over one hundred lives were

We Must Draw a Line.

The latest developments of the coal stoppage, reported to-day, make it clear that we must draw a line between the legitimate Trade Union action and the legitimate operations of Trade Unions, which nobody wants to interfere with. There are plenty of Trade Unions which attend to their lawful business. That is to say, they devote themselves to procuring equitable conditions for workers; and ethy assist their less fortunate members. So long as they do this and stick to their proper sphere, the public has every sympathy with them. But when a Trade Union takes action which strikes at the very existence of the nation, that is not legitimate Trade Union action but an attempt at domination by force.

If the persons responsible for this misuse of Trade Union methods keep on "asking for it," the Government will be obliged to introduce legislation for the purpose of defining what a Trade Union may do and what it may not do. But in the meanwhile any Government is bound to defend the freedom and existence of the nation, and in using its enormous powers in that defence it is certain to have the support of the country.

When Mr. Cramp or Mr. Robert Williams tells the nation that it cannot be permitted to import and distribute coal, the answer to them is that this means tyranny; and that we do not tolerate tyranny, whether exercised by the Kaiser or by Mr. Cramp.—Daily Mail 11.

LONDON GOSSIP.

ANOTHER HOTEL BOOM.
LONDON, May 2nd, 1921. Except for the subdued lighting and the absence of illuminated sky signs, the West End of London bears no outward indication that we are in the midst of a big industrial conflict. Theatre audiences, it is true, are thinner than usual, but the big hotels and restaurants still throb with life and movement. The majority, indeed, are filled to overflowing, and would-be residents are being daily turned away by the score. The explanation of this hotel boom is interesting. The hoteliers themselves attribute it to an invasion from the country of people who are closing their houses owing to dwindling coal supplies. Whilst in town these visitors are entering into the spirit of the West End. Restaurants are more than usually well filled for this time of year, and all rooms are once more being given up to dancers.

FUTURE QUEENS OF COMMERCE.
Among the students reading for the Bachelor of Commerce degree at the London School of Economics are ten young women, who will be launched upon the sea of business affairs after their final in June, 1922. They are studying economics, banking, currency, trade and finance, the history of commerce and industry, and world history which last is compulsory for banking candidates. I notice that at the School of Economics, candidates preparing for journalistic, editorial, and publicity work, are recommended to take English as their optional subject. Comment is superfluous.

THE CIGAR CUT.

A clear authority with whom I had some conversation to-day said that the trade had been astonished at the extraordinary demand, once their cut in prices due to the Budget abolition of the ad valorem duty became known. The merchants had not waited till the 10th May, when this duty comes off, but announced this morning the reduction in price. The Corona cigar fell from 38d. to 24d. in the big stores, and all the other brands were reduced by from 10s. to 50s. a box. The tennipenny Havana, so popular before the war, rose to 2s. at the extreme of high prices, and is now down to a shilling, or 20s. a hundred. It is calculated that there are about forty million cigars at present in bond, and clearing on a large scale will begin after the 10th. The top stocks are very low. When the ad valorem duty was put on the trade was caught at a disadvantage, for that new duty was quite unexpected and stocks had been kept short, partly because of the high exchange. The trade saw that they have almost been ruined by Mr. Chamberlain's mistake—for as it meant a loss in revenue and not a gain, it was obviously a mistake in budgeting, but there are smaller visible over the cigars in their quarters to-day.

COSTER'S HUMBLE TRIBUTE.

Those who arrange and remove the wreaths at the Cenotaph have frequently noticed a choice head of cauliflower among the tributes, and have been until a few days ago at a loss as to the donor or the reason for its presence. Yesterday morning, however, a constable saw in the early hours a coter pushing his barrow with vegetables from Covent Garden. When on the shadow side of the monuments, this man halted, and, removing his hat, placed a small head of cauliflower among the wreaths. When the policeman asked what he meant, the coster answered that his coster chum had been killed by his side in one of the Somme attacks, and that periodically he placed a head of cabbage or some other vegetable on the Cenotaph to his memory.

VIOLIN BOW MAKER OF SOHO.

A great craftsman died last week in comparative obscurity in a cramped little house in Soho. He was the one famous maker of violin bows that this country has produced. More magic lies in the bow of the violin than many people are aware, and the unsurpassed balance of the bows that James Tubbs made, the perfection with which they realized the elusive mean between plasticity and rigidity, the subtle delicacy

Air Force with more or less knowledge of what they will be expected to do, and their preliminary training will not need to be so extensive as in the case of the flying officers, but they will have to take their training seriously.

HEIR-APPARENT AND FREE-MASONRY.

Some confusion has been caused to-day by the circulation of conflicting statements concerning the latest step taken by the Prince of Wales in Freemasonry, one report even crediting him with having become a "Grand Master," while others err in stating that he is now "Worshipful Master." The precise fact is that the Heir-Apparent was last night installed as the Deputy Worshipful Master of the Household Brigade Lodge (which is entirely composed of his fellow-officers in the Brigade of Guards), the Master an permanence being great-uncle, the Duke of Connaught, the Grand Master of English Freemasons. The only Masonic Lodges in which a Deputy Master can be appointed are those of which a Prince of the Blood is Master, and I believe this is the first instance on record in which a Prince has acted as the deputy of another member of the Royal House. Among the guests at the Prince of Wales' installation was the Duke of York, who is following his brother's footsteps in Freemasonry, being at present the Senior Warden of his "mother lodge," the Navy, from which position he is at no distant date will be elected in due course to the chair.

TERRITORIAL AIR FORCE.

There is little prospect, I hear, of the arrangements for the inauguration of the new Territorial or Volunteer Air Force being completed much before the end of the present year. That it will be in being shortly after the New Year is undoubted and probably the first units will have their headquarters at Manchester and Glasgow. There seems to be more keenness for the establishment of volunteer air squadrons in these cities than in any other part of the United Kingdom. This year a sum of £20,000 will be devoted to the new force, which is about one-fourth of what may have to be expended in a normal year. The equipment for the squadrons will be supplied from the Air Force stores, and the appropriation from the Territorial grant will be expended solely on upkeep, including petrol, repairs, and replacement of material. It seems likely that pilots will have to give a prolonged period to their training, perhaps as much as a full twelve months at the beginning, with frequent flights at intervals of comparatively brief duration. So far as mechanics and others are concerned, they will be able to join the Territorial

IT'S A WINNER.

This world is a winner, my masters, though troubles may on us descend; we always live through the disasters, and everything's right in the end. I've lived through a surfeit of sorrow, I've lived through an ocean of care, I've wept through the night and the morrow convinced me my woe wasn't there. Some people are always abusing the planet whereon we abide; they hint that if they had the choosing, on some other world we would ride. But when they are scheduled to leave us, and flee to a happier clime, they look on the journey as grievous, they think their departure a crime. The longer I live on this planet, the better and smoother it seems, the better the world of my dreams. The knockers are dealing in fiction who call it a wilderness drear; there's just enough grief and affliction to season the happiness here. There's just enough hustle and hurry to spur us to showing our worth; there's just enough trouble and worry to keep us from dying of mirth. If others are putting up dirges, your voice to the walling don't lend; the world from all shadows emerges, and everything's right in the end.

Mr. Fox Pays Eloquent Compliment to Chairman of Committee --Another Night Session at House.

MR. FOX ON OIL.

The unusual feature of yesterday's proceedings of the House was that progress was actively made in clearing up the Order Paper. The whole of the afternoon session was taken up by Mr. Fox on the D'Arcy Exploration Co. Resolutions, but during the night session several Bills passed either their Second Reading or the Committee Stage, so much progress was made at every session, it would not be too much to hope for the clearing of the House within two weeks.

The House met at 8 15 p.m. Notices of question were given by Mr. Moore, Sir M. P. Cashin, Mr. Walsh.

The Minister of Public Works admitted that a shop in a certain place in the district of Twillingate had been broken into by some people and two barrels of flour taken. He did not think the people were destitute.

The Council's Amendment to the Letters Patent Act was read a second time. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the D'Arcy Exploration Co. Resolutions.

The Minister of Justice read amendments which had been added to the Resolutions as a result of Mr. Macdonnell's suggestions.

Mr. Fox again took the matter up and spoke at some length on the dangers of allowing the Company to take advantage of the opportunities for exploration and prospecting given them by the agreement, in his opinion if the resources of Newfoundland were ever to be worth anything, it would be only under the direct control of the State. The resolution meant that for all time the D'Arcy Exploration Co. had a monopoly over the oil-bearing resources of Newfoundland, if by any chance they were not coming here for any philanthropic purpose. Let the biggest individual of the group be the D'Arcy Exploration Co. the Anglo-Parsons Oil Co. of the British Government, be the one with whom negotiations be made. What chance had we that the D'Arcy Exploration Co. would not be wound up to-morrow. Mr. Fox also suggested nationalization of our water power. He had hundreds of thousands of horsepower waiting to be developed in this country. He suggested that the D'Arcy Exploration Co. be made to pay the amount that would be saved by reducing the salaries of Civil Servants.

At this point Sir M. P. Cashin called the Speaker's attention that the House was without a quorum.

The speaker immediately summoned the Government members, who were lurching in the Speaker's room, namely Messrs. Fox, Leary, Crow, Stannell, Targett, Samson, Winsor, Hayward.

Mr. Fox poured forth volumes of truth upon the heads of these members before continuing his speech. Mr. Fox was later interrupted during his speech by Mr. Samson, who drew this Chairman's attention to the fact that he was introducing irrelevant matters.

HE BOWED TO NONE.

Upon Mr. Fox waxing sarcastic at Mr. Samson's expense the Minister of Justice rose to a point of order and claimed that the member for St. John's East was not speaking to the subject before the chair.

Mr. Higgins enquired as to what were the remarks of Mr. Fox to which exception had been taken.

The Minister of Justice was forced to admit that he could not quote them.

Mr. Higgins insisted upon the words being repeated and the Reporters' Box was appealed to. Upon the words being read to the House, Mr. Higgins said that Mr. Fox was absolutely in order when he used them.

Mr. Cashin said that as the matter before the House was oil and not Mr. Fox had merely referred to Mr. Coaker's comments on oil in his circular, he was perfectly in order.

Mr. Higgins said that the Minister of the country. He did not think that the war work done by women entitled them to the vote. He concluded by saying he would oppose the Bill at every stage. He said there would be no more deference paid to women such as lifting one's hat to her or giving her a seat in a crowded tram car. The women wanted equality with men and yet desired to maintain their own little privileges. They could not have both.

Sir John Crosbie had a little dig at the Minister of Education, Hon. Dr. Barnes, by asking if he were going to say nothing on the Bill. The joke was that Dr. Barnes is a bachelor.

The Prime Minister in reply, said the Hon. Minister would like a little experience before making any comment. The Bill was given its second reading without further debate.

The Bill to amend the Law Society Act was given its second reading. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the War Measures Act amendment.

Mr. Higgins wanted this Act entirely repealed.

The Prime Minister moved the rising of the Committee and also that the remaining Orders of the Day be read. After some discussion on the question of Road Grants the House adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

House of Assembly.

TUESDAY, June 7, 1921.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Minister of Public Works.—To move the House into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions to amend the Act Cap. 40 of 11 Geo. V. entitled "An Act respecting the maintenance of certain Public Roads."

NOTICE OF QUESTION.

Mr. Moore.—To ask the Minister of Shipping to lay on the table of the House a statement showing how much was paid Messrs. Bowring Brothers, Limited, by the trip, the week, the month, or the year for the wharfage money of the government steamers how much was paid them for other services in the same way in connection with the use of Bowring premises for these boats.

Sir M. P. Cashin.—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Minister of Finance and Customs, to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the amount of customs revenue collected for the eleven months ending May 31st of the fiscal years 1918-19, 1919-20 and 1920-21, and of the total revenue for the eleven months in each of these years.

Sir M. P. Cashin.—To call the attention of Hon. the Prime Minister to this statement in the circular issued by the President of the F.P.U. on April 22nd, and published in the Evening Telegram in which Mr. Coaker states that "the government is working out a plan to help outfit schooners so as to get all possible away fishing" and to ask what was the nature of the said policy, and what practical steps were made to give it effect and why was nothing done in this important matter in the House, and only that did the government take any steps to put this policy into force?

Sir M. P. Cashin.—To ask Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines, if it is correct that the government has proposed the proposition of Mr. F. H. Hurst in the purchase by him of the pit ropes cut for relief work last winter, and is negotiating with Mr. E. Collishaw for the sale of the same, and if so, and if the negotiations are in writing, to lay on the table of the House copies of the letters and, if not, to table a statement of the basis on which the negotiations are proceeding.

Sir M. P. Cashin.—To ask the Minister of Public Works if it is correct that the government has decided to leave a large section of the Tuberculosis Sanatorium vacant on the ground that there is a scarcity of money to operate it, although there are scores of people applying for admission, and if so, cannot the government economize in other directions rather than to persist in the inhuman policy of denying medical aid to suffering humanity.

WILL DISARM.

The Bavarian Einwohnerwehr, or Citizens' Guard, has decided to disarm voluntarily by June 1st, under terms of the Allied ultimatum.

$15,000,000 LOSS.

Paralysed, June 6.

Systematic and drastic action to ascertain the number of dead and to clean the city of Pueblo, Colo. struck off for three days, was begun this afternoon. Acting under military authority, Lieut.-Col. Paul Newton ordered every able-bodied man to apply himself to the task of removing debris from the streets, as a means to prevent fire and pestilence. The order bars sightseers, and makes work compulsory, either for stipulated pay or under military guard without pay. The situation is declared well in hand. Recovery of bodies is proceeding slowly. A check by the Associated Press shows forty-two dead in morgues here, and a report of ten more was received from St. Charles, Mo., downstream. Observers of three hundred and fifty city blocks, damaged by the flood, estimated the loss at fifteen million dollars to-day.

DISPERSED AMBUSHERS.

DUBLIN, June 6.

Military dispersed an ambushing party of forty civilians yesterday at Strabally, County Waterford, and shot and killed one in the fight.

INSISTENT GERMAN POLICY.

LONDON, June 6.

Dr. Sthamer, German Ambassador to Britain, to-day delivered a note to Foreign Minister Curzon, protesting against treatment of inter-Allied Commission for the withdrawal of Allied troops in the industrial region of Upper Silesia, unless the withdrawal of German defence forces begins forthwith. The note declares the threat constitutes a grave breach of the peace treaty, and is tantamount to placing the German population at the mercy of Polish insurgents, making civil war inevitable.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

MEIGHEN'S PLATFORM. QUÉBEC, June 6.

Premier Meighen is now on his way to London to attend the Imperial Conference of Premiers of the British Dominions. According to Gratian O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian press, Meighen will strenuously urge on his arrival in London, that the question of military and naval defence, which is contained in the Agenda of the Conference should be postponed, until the precise relations of the Dominions to the Motherland are defined.

With regard to the proposal to renew the Anglo-Japanese Agreement, O'Leary says there is good reason for supposing Meighen will support a renewal only upon the condition that it is satisfactory to United States. On the question of relations of Nations within the Empire, Meighen will stand on the ground that centralization must be avoided, and full autonomy preserved, and no changes made in the constitution of the Parliaments of the people concerned.

FROM WAR TO PEACE. PARIS, June 6.

The Council of Ambassadors to-day sent a letter, signed by Premier Briand, to the German Ambassador, in recognition of the good will of German Government in its efforts to fulfill its undertakings under the Peace Treaty. In its letter the Council grants Germany a delay until September 30, for transformation of diesel motors from submarine use to civilian industry.

LEONARD MAINTAINS. HARRISON PARK, N.J., June 6.

Bonny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, defended his title against "Rocky" Kansas of Buffalo, here to-night. Under the law no decision was given, but the consensus of opinion was that Leonard outpointed his opponent. A crowd of thirty thousand saw the bout in the Ball Park.

THE WAR IN IRELAND. LONDON, June 6.

The immediate sending of additional troops to Ireland for the purpose of maintaining order, has been decided upon, it was announced in the House of Commons to-day, by Austen Chamberlain, Government leader. Mr. Chamberlain made this statement in response to a question by Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, replied to an inquiry as to the number of soldiers killed or wounded in Ireland since January 1920, and said that 127 had been killed and 286 wounded.

NO PROGRESS. LONDON, June 6.

A conference of mine owners and workers, which was held to-day with the object of negotiating a settlement of the strike, if possible, adjourned until to-morrow without any definite result. An official statement announces that the points in dispute were discussed in a friendly spirit.

BELEAST EN FETE. BELFAST, June 6.

Belfast's stately City Hall is gaily beflagged for the opening term of the Northern Parliament, which will only be surpassed in brilliancy of ceremonial by the State opening. Lord Fitzalan, the new Viceroy, who will represent the King at to-morrow's ceremony, will arrive in the motorcade with Viscountess Fitzalan to pay his first official visit to the Northern city.

UNIQUE CREW. NEW YORK, June 6.

The steamer Bergenfjord, arrived to-day from Christiania, manned by a crew that includes a few interesting characters, five captains, 15 first mates and a number of Norwegian college youths. Because of the general strike which has paralyzed the Norwegian ports, a regular crew could not be signed. The liner brought only 200 passengers, instead of her usual 1,000. In her cargo were 200 tons of cargo, which could not be unloaded at Christiania.

WILL DISARM. MUNICH, Bavaria, June 6.

The Bavarian Einwohnerwehr, or Citizens' Guard, has decided to disarm voluntarily by June 1st, under terms of the Allied ultimatum.

Salvage Notes.

Mr. Stanley Brown had 14 barrels of fish in his cod-trap on Empire Day, the first sign of any account for the fish. The fish were of an excellent size.

Several salmon were taken from the nets yesterday. The retail price was ten cents per pound.

Those wary enough to get out early this morning did well with the Tickle—a very dainty treat at $1.00 this time of the year when "fresh" is conspicuous by its scarcity.

Since our last notes, more of our people from Grand Falls have arrived, and things are looking pretty gloomy for those who are depending on the pulp and paper factories. Terra Nova Co. has only a few men left, and are doing no construction work before later in the season, possibly autumn.

Diphtheria appears to be dying out, and no case has been reported for the past week or ten days. The lower department of Salvage school is still closed, but glad to say its teacher is convalescing.

We notice that potatoes in the city market and elsewhere are much cheaper than here as only within the past few days they sold for the high figure of $4.00 a barrel. At Goose Bay a barrel, however, prices ranged from $2 to $2.50 per barrel.

The schooner owners of Salvage and Bigg's Cove are ready for their spring trips to St. John's. Most of them are loaded with pit props, and are merely waiting for a favorable wind to be off.

Empire Day, with its snow furrles, was a vivid touch of waning winter, and many people opine that the seeds sown derived no benefit from the same.

The scarcity of work during the past winter and spring, and the lateness of the season have caused quite an amount of semi-desertion among these hordes, and at present there are quite a few actually in want.

The first-fruits of the Bay system of steamships for 1921, apparently, were the Malakoff arrived from Trinity Bay. What a farce to put such a boat or any boats on such a route, from St. John's to the South side of Trinity Bay to Wesleyville on the North side of Bonavista Bay. Relevant to the above might we ask how comes it that Capt. Geo. Bishop, in charge of the Malakoff, has been reduced in rank to the position of first mate of a Malakoff? Such is the outcome of Coaker's tampering with the Coast-guard system.

Perhaps the least said about the Union the better preserved. Suffice it to say, however, that the appearance of the Malakoff on such a circuitous

TRINITY.

Old Jimmy Hogarth—son of Isaac and Dorothy Hogarth—lived on the North Side of Trinity during the early part of the last century. Though born in Newfoundland, he was a replica of the short-and-thick Englishmen from Bideford in Devon, as represented by his father. He had several traits of character in common with his neighbors, and one of them was he was peculiar in several other respects he was different from them all. He was a handy man with tools, and whilst he could do many things with them, and do them well, there was one thing he could not do—he could not work and talk at the same time. Because of this he usually worked alone. As he did not need his mouth for speech, and as he did not use tobacco, he found his mouth useful to hold a spare nail or two, a gimlet, or any other small tool that he used only occasionally, but wished to have by him when he needed it. Oftentimes he would go about with something in his mouth that he had ceased to need for the rest of the day, but quite unconscious of the fact that it was there.

One day in particular, he was using a gimlet occasionally; but during the afternoon, when he needed it most, he could not find it anywhere. He searched for it high and low, and as he could not go on with his work without his gimlet, he mentally decided to go to the shop and buy one. The nearest shop was Garland's, on the other side of the Harbor. So he pushed off the "rodney" from the landwash, got into it, and by dextrous use of his cross-landed paddle, within a half hour he had crossed the Harbor and was in the shop ready to be served. Everybody was busy, so he waited patiently, till at last seeing a clerk disengaged, he went to the counter, and as he opened his mouth to ask for a gimlet—the one he had been looking for so long, fell from his mouth to the floor. He made no remark, but picking it up he went back to his work, as though nothing in particular had happened. The clerk, not knowing Jimmy's peculiarity, was at a loss to account for his actions; but when he told one of Jimmy's neighbors about what he had done, the neighbor laughed heartily, and told the clerk all about it. The amusing story has been handed down to us. To-day the story is so well known in Trinity Bight, that when a person finds himself looking for something, and then discovers that he has it, either on him or about him, he says: "I am as bad as Jimmy Hogarth and the gimlet."

"Necessity is the mother of invention." Well, I saw a boy last week who had a contract to deliver several hundred birch junks. First he appeared at the wood pile with a wheelbarrow, in which he pushed two loads to the place of delivery. In the meantime, however, he had done some thinking. Then he came back to the wood-pile with his dog harnessed, and the tall rope attached to the barrow. That saved him the trouble of pushing. Then he did some more thinking. Evidently he saw no reason why his arms should have to hold up the weight of the barrow and the load of junks. So when he came back the third time, he had taken the wheel out of another barrow, and by means of temporary bearings, he had attached the spare wheel to the ends of the legs of the barrow, in a direct line with the wheel in front. So the barrow held the junks; the dog pulled them along; the hind wheel took the weight; and the boy steered. I believe that if the boy had had another hundred or two of junks to deliver, he would have arranged to be relieved of the steering.

This action of the boy has deprived us of an opportunity to be "smart" at the other fellow's expense. We used to ask—"What do you call a machine with three wheels?" To this question the intended victim would answer promptly—"Why, a tricycle, of course." "Yes, and what would you call a machine with two wheels?" And again the answer would be equally prompt—"Why? a bicycle, of course." "Correct; and what would you call a machine with one wheel?" Then the other fellow, if he had not heard this catechism before, would hesitate, and after a while he would say—"I don't know." Then you would say, with a chuckle—"Why, a wheelbarrow, of course." That joke, however, is now, and for ever ruled out, since the boy attached another wheel to the legs of the wheelbarrow. The two-wheel wheelbarrow was new to me; but perhaps not to others. I so far as he was concerned.

As several people were pleased with the information I gave last week, with reference to the marriages that began the perpetuation of their family names; I give a few other names of people who were married in Trinity and elsewhere. I shall be glad to look up, for anybody, the names of persons I have not given, if they will drop me a card.

In spite of the bad weather, and delays caused by broken machinery, good progress has been made on the public harbor construction. Mr. Bishop knows his business, and the men are working faithfully.

A few weeks ago I mentioned that David Martin, one of the old schoolmasters of Trinity was in Deacon's orders. I have just found a reference to his ordination by Bishop Spencer when he made his first official visit to Trinity in 1840.

Mr. Ralph Hayter and wife, of Grand Falls, are visiting relatives and friends in Trinity. When we saw Ralph last week, he was sitting out for the fishery, and he had already invested heavily in several files, a trout line, and a bamboo rod. Glad to see you Ralph. Hope you will have a successful summer.

The Star-fish that we see on the bottom, and on the wharf posts in the water, do not usually impress us with an overstock of sight, or quickness of motion. Yet within twenty-four hours after the large piles were driven at the head of the new wharf, those Star-fish had found them out, and had climbed seven or eight feet on them to low water mark.

An appeal has been issued to the members of St. Paul's congregation, for a sum of money sufficient to carry out some necessary repairs to the Church. The necessity for the majority of these repairs, has been caused by the roof having been slated by inexperienced men, when the Church was being built. It is a great pity for all the other buildings that at the same time were slated by experienced men, are, to-day, in perfect condition.

Rev. Fr. Tarahan's residence has just received some exterior attention. Mr. Fred Hunt has improved the appearance of his house and surroundings by a generous use of paint and lime. Mrs. Hiscock, Mr. Erikson, and Capt. Harbour have begun to trim their fences. Mr. Gent has painted his new shop roof. Others will follow. Every individual improvement helps to improve the whole town. Keep it up.

The Altar-Cross, made to order at Birkenhead's, Toronto, for the Oratio de Morris Memorial Altar, in the Mortuary Chapel, has just been received, and is a very beautiful piece of solid brass work. It bears the inscription:

ORLANDO J. MORRIS. Jesus Pray for Me. It is all very beautiful, but not too good for God's House, and for God's good man, whose memory it will perpetuate.

I have in my possession a letter that was posted in Poole, England, on May 22nd, 1857, received in St. John's June 25th, 1857, and in Trinity June 12th, 1857. It was sent "per steamer via Liverpool and Halifax." It was not enclosed in an envelope, but was folded, sealed with wax, and addressed on a blank page of the letter. There is no postage stamp on it, but there is a date stamp in red ink, on which is a crown, the letters K.L. and the date the letter was posted in Poole. There is also another date stamp in black ink, with the date of postage, and the letters L.C. on it. I presume it is a very ordinary specimen of letters sent at that date.

Doctor Sinclair and his wife arrived at St. John's by the "Digby" on Sunday last, on their way to Trinity—the doctor having undertaken the responsibility of keeping our bodies in good repair. They were met on the steamer at St. John's by Mr. Jas. D. Lockyer, and Mr. Gilbert Christian who, on behalf of the Trinity Town Council, welcomed them to Newfoundland, and arranged for their comfort whilst at St. John's. The Secretary of the Committee, Mr. Fred Morris, also telegraphed a welcome on Monday. By the time these notes are published, Doctor and Mrs. Sinclair will probably be with us, when they will receive the heartiest of welcomes to beautiful and historic Trinity, and where, we hope they will spend many happy years. Household Notes.

After thorough cleansing greens should be washed with hot water, as this leaves them free from grit. Diced turnips are nice served with drawn butter sauce and garnished with chopped mint and parsley. A good custard pudding can be made with coffee and milk heated and combined with egg and gelatine.

If a few whole cloves are stuck into a roasting beef, the meat and the gravy will have a delicious flavor. Grated cheese is sometimes served with spinach and is sprinkled over it just as sugar is sprinkled over cereal. Cakes may be ornamented by sprinkling over the soft icing a bit of finely cut yellow or green candied fruit.

Save the pasteboards that come in skirts from the laundry. They are handy when you pack your vacation trunk.

Drugists also sell larger packages. Made in Canada. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Some Terse Remarks. A half-witted person is often described as "half baked"; and I once heard the village idiot described as "one of God's oddities, put in w' the bread 'n' took out w' the cake." A placid person is set down as "mild as a moon-beam"; and an old bachelor, living alone, was spoken of as "as lonely as a gander in setting-time."

Drinking to drown sorrow is described as "trying to sleek a fire with gunpowder"; to make a bad bargain is "to sell a hen on a rainy day"; a rich fool is said to "carry his brains in his breeches-pocket"; a sour, disagreeable person is spoken of as "sour enough to curdle a cheese"; a child with a squint is said "to be born in the middle of the week, and looks both ways for Sunday."

"Bless my wife and soul, my gal, but what's this?" I heard a Midland villager say as his wife poured out a cup of weak tea for him. "This water bewitched an' 'as bebrugged, sure enough."

The saying applied to things slow

Quaint Country Sayings.

RURAL PLACES ABOUND IN PECULIAR PHRASES. "My word, it's a thin wind this mornin'; it'll go through you before it'll go round you."

That is the way of the Midland peasant to describe a cold wind; in other parts the east wind is said to "make thin linings," that is, to make one's clothes feel thin. Humour of a dry kind is shown repeatedly in these country sayings. The rustic is usually regarded as lacking in a sense of humour, but if some of the folk-sayings and proverbs are looked into, he can only be regarded as shrewd and capable, with a natural taste of fun, although it may be rough in kind.

Such sayings as "He was as nimble as a cat on hot bricks," describing an active person; "as busy as a cat in a tripe shop," or "as happy as little pigs in straw," describing comfort, all contain up a picture; whilst the description of a gossiping woman as "she's in and out o' folk's houses like a fiddler's elbow," is one heard recently in Sussex.

British Back-Slang. "To be all mops and brooms" is a description for a state of bewilderment; a mean man is described as "so stingy he'd nip a raisin in two"; and a clumsy person is often spoken of as "nimble as a cow in a cage."

I once heard a young maidervant at a farmstead said "as awkward as a cat in pattons," and when the same little maid worked herself into a state of excitement over the arrival of visitors, her mistress addressed her as being "like a fly in a glue-pot."

The same woman, talking of a man who was always worrying himself over trifles, said "he's as busy as bees in a basin," and she, too, described her father-in-law as coming home "as drunk as a mouse," an expression which is to be found in old-time writers, but I have never been able to discover why the epithet should be applied in this fashion.

Anyone who sets himself to do an impossible task is told that "he tries to cut smoke with a leather hatchet;" to do anything in the slowest or most awkward way is said to be "ploughing with dogs;" a "penury and pound foolish" person is described as "sawing at the spigot and letting it run out of the bung-hole;" and a Warwickshire description of any undertaking that fails is to say "that cake's all dough."

but sure—"Tis as long in coming as Cotswold barley"—explained itself to those who know the slow growth but excellent corn of the Cotswold country. Another Gloucestershire saying is "As sure as God's in Gloucestershire," probably an allusion to the large number of churches and meeting-houses formerly in that country.

Handed Down From Father to Son. A brazen, impudent girl is described as having "rubbed her face with a brass candlestick"; of a niggardly person it is said that "he'd skin a toad for its hide and tallow"; of an unlucky man there runs a proverb, "he saps sorrow by spoonfuls," and there is a proverb, "the black ox has mud on his foot," used when a man met with numerous misfortunes.

Many of these country sayings are to be found in our early literature, rustic folk hand them on from father to son. When preparing spinach for children, it is best to rub through a sieve, so as to avoid any coarse leaves or particles.

If cleaning the carving on furniture, use a soft toothbrush to apply polish. Rub dry with a piece of cheesecloth. For a wedding breakfast, breads or chicken served on toast and surrounded with thin slices of ham are most appropriate.

They are Happy and Well

You Should Be the Same

A LARGE number of women's ailments are not surgical ones. Serious displacements or radical changes have not yet taken place. A tiny part in a fine clock may become loose and cause the clock to gain or lose. If not attended to in time, the part may fall from its place and cause serious trouble. So it is with women's ailments, they start from simple causes; but if allowed to continue, produce serious conditions.

When the warning symptoms are first noted, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present troublesome ailment, and to prevent the development of serious trouble.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator, and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble."—Mrs. EMILY BEECROFT, 263 Victoria Ave., N. Hamilton, Ontario.

OVEREATING OF OUR PLEASURES

A 20 year old friend of mine has recently taken up a new game called "which" she is very enthusiastic. The other evening I was surprised to hear her refuse an opportunity to join in her beloved pastime. "What, tired of it already?" I asked in surprise. "No," she said, "I'm not and I don't mean to be."

"You mean that's why you aren't going to-day?" "Exactly," she said, "I've spoiled things for myself that way several times and I'm not going to do it any more."

Young and Yet so Wise!

What astonishing wisdom for one so young! It, as the Greeks claim, "show through" is the most important of all laws, this girl has certainly travelled far on the road to wisdom. Most of us don't learn a lesson like that until we are beyond the age of enthusiasm when we need it most. The instinct to over-eat of one's pleasures is a universal human instinct, and as self defeating as over-eating of any kind of bodily food.

Sudden Friendships

Emerson warns of the danger of trying to "suck a sudden sweetness" from every new friendship, and most of us have found that that is a disappointing experience. We meet some new friend who seems to embody all the qualities that we have been looking for and none of the faults we are so badly aware of in our familiar friends. We are so delighted that we cannot get too close to him. We want to tell him all our intimate thoughts and (in lesser degree, of course, for that is ever so) to hear all of his. Instantly we tire him and ourselves until the reaction comes and we realize that he wasn't what we thought him and that old friends are best after all. Whereas, while he may not have been quite so much as we thought him, in the first warmth of enthusiasm, he may be much more than we think him in the weariness of our reaction from overeating of Jenny Lind at a Scotch Kirk.

It is not perhaps generally known that Jenny Lind once "led the singing" in a Scotch country kirk. The world's greatest singer was once the guest of the Earl of Leven and Melville at his country seat of Glenferness, on the banks of the Findhorn. The local postman happened to arrive with the mail bag one Saturday afternoon when Jenny Lind was singing in the drawing-room of Glenferness House, and was invited to hear her. He found an opportunity to say to the great singer, "I am a singer myself; I am the precursor of the Parish Kirk." "Then," was the reply, "I shall have the pleasure of going to hear you to-morrow."

On Sunday the postman was at his desk and Jenny Lind in the kirk's pew. Fortunately for the congregation, the preacher pitched his tune too high and it was soon in difficulties. Jenny Lind at once struck in, and the worshippers had the unique privilege of listening to a familiar Scotch psalm "uns rendered as a glorious solo by the "Queen of Song."

No one else could reach the high notes.

Disagrees With Principle Montreal Citizen Regains Appetite After 32 Years

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—With the principle of the main thesis of Mr. Darby's letter of Saturday's date I cannot agree. The contention is that because a thing is law it must be obeyed. In my opinion that principle is unsound. There may be and have been cases where it was not immoral to violate a law, and where, indeed, it was highly moral to violate it. I instance the case of the early Americans who violated the law that compelled them to pay tribute to the King of England. That was, to them, immoral. Therefore they violated it. If there be one case or only one case where a principle does not apply, then that principle is not a principle at all. If a principle is a principle, then no exceptionality, if a thing is to be decided according to the exigency of the case, then clearly it is not a case of principle.

Suppose there is a law which is immoral. That law was made, say, at a time when, according to the average of intelligence, it was not regarded as immoral. But by now, say, (the average of intelligence having lifted) it is regarded as immoral. There is no machinery by which the law may be removed—that is, no machinery except the chance that politicians remove it for one reason or another. If the politicians refuse to remove or change it, then it stands. There is no referendum and no recall. Hence, if the people want to have that law removed, they must either wait until the next election, and elect men who promise to remove it (and of course they might refuse to remove it, in which case the same thing would happen at the end of their term, and so on indefinitely) or have recourse to revolution. This is what happened in America. As a very last resort—all else having failed—revolution as a means of sweeping aside a barrier to social progress is justifiable. For example, if the majority of the people of Newfoundland were totally against Prohibition, regarding it as an immoral law and as a barrier to their advancement and social progress, and their legislators refused to remove or amend it as to agree with their desires, they would be justified in having a revolution and thus attaining their desire. However, as one will see, revolution is always a dangerous thing, and should be avoided as long as human endurance lasts.

Now, as regards Prohibition. In my opinion, the thing for Prohibitionists to do is to get started a movement to educate the people of Newfoundland up to the benefit and desirability of total abolition of booze, and that done, secure a referendum on the measure. If a majority of the people vote for it, they make it law. If a minority voted for it, then let it go. In any case let the people vote it in at the psychological moment. Prohibition stands at the parting of the ways. Either it is going to be a losing of ground or a gaining of ground. Certainly Prohibition has fallen in the estimation of the people, and the cause is the faulty construction of the act itself, and the unworkable methods of carrying out that act. Prohibition has little hold on the people. Either it must be scrapped or made a reality.

One more point; it is advanced in some quarters that because of a hypothetical shortage of finances on the part of the country, it is all right to loosen up at the controller's department, and so rake in some money. Such a proposition I denounce as a vicious one. It is violation of a principle for the sake of expediency. Such is immoral and unjustifiable. Either a principle is sound or it is unsound. If it is sound, then do not violate it for any expediency. If it is not sound, then scrap it altogether. So with the Prohibition act. If the principle back of that is sound, then soundly carry it out. If it is not sound, then scrap it. Of course, I readily recognize that there is such a thing as higher principle. Show me a higher principle than prohibition of booze and I will admit it. If the two principles be involved, then prohibition must go overboard.

Yours sincerely, J. R. SMALLWOOD.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES. (From North Sydney Herald, June 4.) BIG MACKEREL CATCH. Capt. George Harridge, master of the schooner Bunn, of Channel, has disposed of the Leonard Fisheries Ltd., 1,100 mackerel, which he had purchased at Ingonish. The price received was a fair one.

ON THE RYLE. This morning the steamer Kyle arrived in port on schedule time. She had 24 first and 26 second class passengers on board, the majority of the crew being out on the west bound express this morning.

TO ENTER HOSPITAL. W. Martin, chief stevedore for the Reid-Nfld. Co. at Port aux Basques, arrived here this morning on the steamer Kyle. He is suffering from a long-standing complaint and will enter the Hamilton hospital for treatment.

LEAVING FOR ST. JOHN'S. Mr. Oliver L. Squires, one of the agents of the Western Union cable office, leaves this afternoon on the steamer Sable I. for St. John's and other parts of Newfoundland, where he will spend his vacation with relatives and old friends, and incidentally combine business with pleasure.

NFLD. RAILWAY CHANGE. A despatch from St. John's, Nfld., says that abandonment of government operation of the Newfoundland railway system was announced. The railway commission, consisting of three members appointed by the cabinet and three by the Newfoundland Company, owners of the system, will be dissolved on June 30, and the railway will be returned to the company for operation.

SEAMAN SUES FOR WAGES. An action for balance of wages has been taken by Thomas Farrell, a seaman of Belleoram, Nfld., against Capt. Fudge, of the schooner Marne. The amount claimed by Farrell is due him $195. Capt. Fudge repudiates Farrell's claim for $195, and states that Farrell deserted his ship some time last summer, and that when he left there was owing him something like $40. The case will be heard before Stipendiary Forbes this afternoon at one o'clock.

Cabbage may be cooked with celery, creamed and served on toast. Melt a little cheese in the white sauce in which you scalded onions. Steamed chard mold is delicious served on lettuce with cream sauce. Tomatoes are excellent, cooled, stuffed with pork sausage and baked. Stuff tomatoes with Boston baked beans, season with mustard and bake. Left-over coffee gives a nice flavor to chocolate cream pudding or pie.

Whipped cream for coffee should be sweetened and flavored with vanilla. Grated American or Parmesan cheese is nice served with thick spinach soup. Celery, carrots, radishes and beets keep fresh for weeks if buried in moist sand. Little individual jelly rolls are "iced" this pasteurized into small squares, and sold. Large radishes may be cooked in salted water until tender and served with a cream sauce. Crab meat, canned pineapple and grapefruit are good in a highly seasoned gelatine salad. Cold coffee may be used instead of milk when making chocolate frosting with powdered sugar. Greens may be boiled in water left after cooking a ham or in the water with a ham bone. A delicious fruit cup is a combination of grapefruit, canned pears and chopped preserved ginger. A good fruit dessert is sections of oranges, grapefruit and sliced bananas sweetened with honey.

True Love Matches.

ROMANCES IN REAL LIFE WHICH MAKE THE AVERAGE NOVEL READ QUITE TAMELY.

A widower "without encumbrance," a life-abstainer and non-smoker, and, incidentally, a Canadian, and wealthy, appealed by letter a few months since to Councillor Donald Clark, of mixed-bathing fame, to find him a "soul-mate." The good councillor did not regard this as a "tall order," but at once set out to fulfil it.

He received 2,000 applications for the post of "soul-mate," and just before Christmas Mr. Clark received a handsome cheque from the Canadian wherewith to purchase a gift, the finest box of "choocs" obtainable and a bouquet for the lady chosen.

A friend of a Baltimore doctor, who wished to marry, but had no time for courtship, entrusted the matter to a dear friend, who immediately advertised. One of the replies, from a widow in Philadelphia, so captivated the doctor that he immediately went to the telephone, rang up the lady, and proposed, adding the suggestion that they should not see each other till the knot was tied!

His Yelled Bride.

At the ceremony the widow appeared heavily veiled, but when she unveiled for her husband, ten minutes later, he exclaimed: "Well, I've got the best of the bargain!" The lady may not think so, however, as the doctor is a very handsome man.

A couple married lately at Topeka first met two years ago, and, as far as the man was concerned, it was a case of love at first sight, but whilst he feared to propose the lady left for a tour round the world. A little later he was offered a good post in China, and finally proposed by letter. The letter followed the girl from land to land, but she did not receive it until she arrived home again seven months later. It had been re-directed in seventeen languages.

In the meantime the ardent lover had gone from China to Japan, Korea, Manchuria, back to San Francisco, and back again to the East. Chinese, Japanese, Koreans, Americans promptly re-directed the young engineer's mail, and it actually crossed the Pacific six times before the letter and man met in "Frisco."

Meanwhile, as it was two years since his proposal, he had given up hope, but had not "ceased to love." Now he hustled. He found that a train left for Topeka, Kansas, in one hour's time. He threw a few things into a handbag, wired his coming, rushed to the station, and the couple were man and wife within the week.

Was It Still "News-Ladd"?

After being held prisoner for over twelve months by the Cold Storage Trust of America, an egg, upon which a seventeen-year-old girl had written her name and address, and invited would-be suitors to communicate with her at her father's farm in Missouri, escaped from bondage, and Cupid triumphed.

The girl had not reckoned on "cold storage," and nearly accepted a certain young man whom she met while the egg was at zero. However, she was glad she "gave Cupid a chance," as she said, because the young man the egg found was a great improvement on the young man she found herself. Some time ago another young lady threw a bottle containing a note into the little river which runs through the village of New Liberty, Pope County, U.S.A. The bottle was picked up by a prosperous young farmer in Louisiana, who promptly replied to the matrimonial proposal, and the couple were wedded.

A letter was enclosed in a Brazil nut by a young playster in South Africa, much as a move or "fortune" is inserted in a bombon. He bored a hole through the shell, rolled up his message, pushed it in, and sealed up the orifice. The nut was actually cracked at a Christmas party by a charming young lady, and she is today the playster's happy bride.

Through the Hymn-Books.
But it is not always distance or remoteness which makes difficult the road to matrimony. A pair of lovers who had been forbidden to speak, much less to correspond, succeeded, in spite of the heavy barrage, in getting their correspondence through. How? They went to the same church, and exchanged hymn-books! Simple enough! As the young man was an officer of the church he attended to this little duty before the service commenced.

They marked certain words in the hymn-book to form their messages. Presently, however, the blockade was raised, and the lovers no longer needed to smuggle their messages through. But they regretted it, for not only was it jolly good fun, but hymn-books are so filled with words like "love" and "sweet" and "blessed" and "tongues" and "yearning"—Answers.

The Midwives' Union.

A woman who has acted as a midwife for several years, sued a man for non-payment of a bill for $3 for services rendered to his wife. Mr. O. W. B. Ayre appeared for the plaintiff and placed her in the box. She said that the usual charge for such services as she had rendered was $10.
Mr. Ayre: "Who put the fees up?"
Witness: "The Union, I suppose."
Judgment was given for the plaintiff.

Corbett Discusses the Title Scrap.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Brilliant and interesting in the extreme are the hectic careers of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, the dapper French fighter, who will try to win the world's championship July 2. The rise of Dempsey was meteoric. It was impressive, too, writes James J. Corbett.

Carpentier's ascendancy to the European heavyweight championship is a long story of persistence, marked here and there in his more youthful days with reverses that would have discouraged many a boxer.

When Dempsey launched forth on his big drive towards the title he was a man full grown. He had the strength of an ox and above all the fighting instinct. Once he got started no man was able to stand before him until he toppled over Jess Willard at Toledo. He blazed a trail down the line of opponents that was dotted with quick knockouts and the two fights he has had since winning the crown, with Mike and Brennan, have resulted the same way.

Carpentier's record and his experience is much different, though he has stopped some of the biggest men who have crawled through the ropes in recent years.

The French champion, is the only boxer I have ever heard of who has held up the championship of his native country in every division from bantam to heavyweight. And, mind you, it was only a short time before the outbreak of the world war that

Fashion Plates.

A Dainty, Charming Frock.

Pattern 3616 is illustrated here. It is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 5 1/2 yards of 44 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 3 1/2 yards. The yoke band and cascades may be omitted.

Embroidered crepe or duvetyn, printed georgette or crepe, tulle, linen, voile, pongee, gingham, organdie, tulle and crepe de chine are attractive for this style.
A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A Comfortable Play Suit.

2815. This style comprises a kimono waist, with wrist or short sleeve finish, and sleeveless rompers, which close on the shoulders. Gingham, percale, khaki, drill, seersucker or galles may be used for this style.
The Pattern is cut in 5 Sizes: 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/2 yard for the waist, and 2 1/4 yards for the rompers of 37 inch material.

he got his full growth and strength. In the early days of his career he was a little, anemic-looking chap, who did not appear capable of standing a heating, let alone dealing out punishment to an opponent. Yet Carpentier triumphed and his success entitles him to considerable praise and very serious consideration as a candidate for the world's heavyweight championship.

Here are two men both in their prime. When a man is under 30 he is at his best. Furthermore, both fighters are thoroughly experienced. The fact that one will have an advantage over the other in a physical way is not to be taken seriously, considering that that disadvantage will not be great. I have always contended that a man weighing 175 pounds is big enough to win the heavyweight championship if he possesses the punch, the science and the instinct to fight.

Carpentier has proven by his remarkable rise from a frail boy as a bantamweight to a thick-chested, heavy-limbed, swift-moving and hard-hitting heavyweight that he was born of fighting stock. Dempsey, with Irish, Scotch and Indian blood in his veins, came by his fighting instinct just as naturally.

Ice Age Mysteries.

When did the Glacial Period end? Was it, an American scientist pertinently asks, when the ice began to disappear, or had half disappeared, or had entirely disappeared?

If the last-mentioned, then we are still in the Ice Age, for Europe has its glaciers, and so has Labrador, the Rockies, Alaska, and islands in the Arctic regions, and, as every school-boy is aware, Greenland is nearly covered with an ice-cap.

Can the question be settled by a reference to climate? If so, then the Glacial Period ended, for, say, the Ontario region at the beginning of Lake Troquois, for its trees belonged to a cool temperate climate.

Probably the point is best settled by making the Glacial Period a progressive event, regarding it as ending in one region perhaps thousands of years before it ends in another.

Without doubt, this far-off epoch of thick-ribbed ice, constitutes one of the great mysteries of the world's history. It is absolutely hedged in with uncertainty.

Though it is generally believed that there was more than one Ice Age, no one can say with any degree of certainty whether there were three, four, or six, or a dozen, for the matter of that.

And the deepest of all the mysteries connected with one or any of these Ice periods is what was the cause of them. Both geologists and astronomers have, so far, failed to solve that problem: It is not yet even agreed as to what extent the ice-cap covered the globe.

DUBLIN, June 7.
Edward Foley and Patrick Maher were executed this morning for the murder of a Royal Irish Sergeant and a constable. William Mitchell was executed for the murder of Magistrate Dixon, of Dunlavin.

THE UNBROUQUED BRITISH.
OPPELN, Silesia, June 7.
Detachments of Royal Irish Infantry, the first British troops to cross the lines established by Polish insurgents in Upper Silesia, detained at Gletwitz yesterday, and assumed control of the city. As the troops, consisting of one battalion, with full field equipment, entered Gross Strehlitz, northwest of Gletwitz, they encountered the first Polish outposts. Machine guns had been trained on the station by the Poles, but when the British appeared, Poles withdrew. The train was held there for some time, so that the officers could investigate a report that the track further on had been mined. The report proved to be false. It is learned from British sources that a probable plan for the pacification of Upper Silesia will be to garrison all large industrial towns with British troops, who will probably extend their authority northward through the occupied area, disarming Poles as they proceed. It is said that local police forces will also be formed of "Citizens of the town of Good Character," and the British will gradually relinquish the policing of the district to this organization.

A "Youth" Again at Seventy.

THYROID DRAMA.
Mr. Alfred Wilson, who, at the age of seventy, was recently operated on by the discoverer of the thyroid gland treatment for the renewal of youth, and has been its chief advocate in this country, was found dead in bed a few days ago, shortly before he was to have addressed a meeting in the Royal Albert Hall on "How I was made twenty years younger by the method of Professor Steinbach, of Vienna."

Mr. Wilson recently made a trip to Vienna to get thyroid gland treatment from Professor Steinbach, and on his return wrote that, although unable to get this form of treatment, he had been operated upon. Already, he said, he felt its rejuvenating effects, so much so that he had been in correspondence with a nurse, aged thirty-four, who nursed him at the hospital at Vienna, and he was going to marry her.

Mr. Wilson, who had received medical attention from a local doctor recently, caused much mystification to his friends by daily visits to another practitioner in another part of London. Mr. Calfe said Mr. Wilson went out to keep an appointment at a certain time every day for a month. This was understood to be for medical advice, but he was very reserved about the matter.
Strain and Excitement.
On the night before his death he went to bed about 9.30, and an hour later he called out that he was in pain and wanted some water. Later, when his landlady went up to see him he had evidently been restless and his bedclothes had been thrown off. She rearranged the bed and left. When she went into the room the next morning she found him dead, and sent for a doctor. The pains he complained of were in his chest, and it was thought he had indigestion, as before going to bed he had taken a meal which included haricot beans and tea. "I believe the strain and excitement through which he has passed," said Mr. Calfe, "has upset him a great deal. One remarkable fact about his death is that we have just had a letter from Professor Steinbach, in Vienna, asking Mr. Wilson to get a film taken of himself going through a number of gymnastic movements."

"Twenty Years Younger."
Mr. Wilson, seen in London a few days ago, appeared to be in the best of health, and said: "When I was last seen Professor Steinbach I asked him along the effect of the operation would last, and he laughingly said twenty to thirty years. So I replied, 'Well, I am a man of seventy now. When I am a hundred I will come to you again to have another operation performed, and then perhaps I will last until I am 150.'" "I am afraid Mr. Wilson has been over-exercising himself since his return from Vienna," said Mrs. Krueger, his landlady, to a Daily Post representative recently. "He was changed man after his operation. Before he was of a quiet, retiring disposition, but since he has been reading about interesting himself in business affairs."

For your special type of skin—there is a special treatment

Skins differ widely—are you using the right treatment for your type of skin?

IF your skin is a constant problem to you—if you cannot keep it smooth and flawless—then you may be sure it is because you are not using the right treatment for your special type of skin.

Skins differ widely—and each different type of skin needs a different kind of care.

The girl whose complexion is of an oily type should use a special form of cleansing to counteract the tendency to become disagreeably shiny.

The girl with a pale, sallow skin needs a treatment that will rouse and stimulate the delicate pores and blood vessels.

No matter what your type of skin happens to be—you can overcome its defects! By the right treatment, followed persistently, you can give it the natural charm, the fresh loveliness and color that come from a healthy, well-cared-for condition of the skin itself.

Remember that your skin is constantly changing—each day old skin dies and new skin takes its place. Even if, through neglect, or the wrong kind of treatment, you have allowed your skin to lose its attractiveness—by giving the new skin which forms each day, the special care suited to its needs you can actually make it over—make it as clear and smooth as you want it to be.

Study the special needs of your skin—find out just what its weaknesses are, and begin, now, to use the treatment that will overcome them. Three of the famous Woodbury treatments for improving the skin are republished on this page. You will find additional treatments for each different type of skin in the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today and find in the booklet the treatment recommended for your skin. Begin using it tonight!

The very first treatment with Woodbury's will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. Do not regard this as a disadvantage—it is an indication that the treatment is doing you good, for it means that your skin is responding in the right way to a more thorough and stimulating kind of cleansing. After a few nights this drawn sensation will disappear and your skin will emerge from its nightly bath so soft and smooth that you will never again want to use any other method of cleansing your face.

You can get Woodbury's Facial Soap at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of any treatment, and for general cleansing use for that time. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

For the girl who is pale and sallow

If your skin is pale and colorless, try this new steam treatment for it:

ONE night a week fill your bowl full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the bowl and cover your head and the bowl with a heavy bath towel so that no steam can escape. Steam your face for thirty seconds.

Now lay a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into your skin with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold.

Finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry very carefully.

The very first time you use this Woodbury steam treatment, your skin will begin to show more color. The other six nights of the week, cleanse your skin thoroughly in the usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water.

Woodbury treatments for each different type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

For the girl who is troubled with blackheads

APPLY hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened.

Now with a rough washcloth, work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear, hot water, then with cold—the colder the better.

If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry carefully.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a fresh basket for the washcloth in the treatment above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Woodbury treatments for each different type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

For the girl with an oily skin

If you are continually embarrassed by that most common of troubles—an oily skin and shiny nose—begin tonight to use this simple treatment:

FIRST cleanse your face thoroughly by washing it in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp.

Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better.

If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin clearer and fresher the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit, and before long you will see a marked improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's brings.

Special treatments for each type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Use daily—to keep your skin in good condition

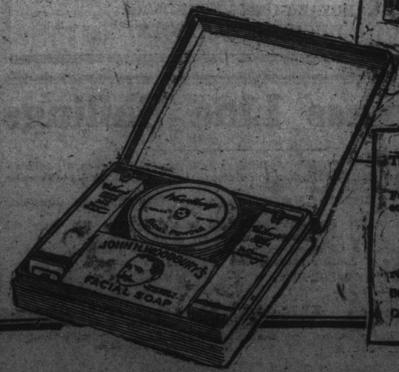

If used regularly, Woodbury's Facial Soap has a markedly beneficial effect on the skin as an organism. It stimulates the little blood vessels, keeps the pores in an active condition, and gives the skin tissues firmness and tone.

The power of Woodbury's Facial Soap to benefit and improve the complexion is due to the fact that it is based on a special formula, the result of years of scientific study of the skin and its needs. Only the purest and finest ingredients enter into this formula. In consequence Woodbury's Facial Soap can be used with extremely sensitive and tender skins which often react unfavorably to other toilet soaps.

Use Woodbury's daily in your toilet and see how instantly your skin will begin to respond to its tonic qualities—what a new feeling of softness and smoothness your skin will have.

You will find Woodbury's one of the most economical soaps you have ever used. A 25-cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks—almost twice as long as an ordinary toilet soap of the same apparent size.
