Ts War Punishment ?

It has been a favorite doctrine all through the centuries and with all religions, that war pestilence and other calamities were sent by God or the gods as a punishment for wrongdoing. It would be impossible to prove or to disprove this, but it matters little when it can be shown not only that war may come, but will come if men and nations continue to live along the materialistic lines of jungle law in things international and things industrial and social. If men continue to live in accordance with the law of might is right, in international affairs, not only may we have war as a result, but we shall have war as a result, not only military one but also industrial war. If we live according to the jungle law, "it must follow as the night the day" that we shall live in the jungle. Nothing is surer. What people sow, that shall they reap. If they sow 'living to self in international affairs and in industrial and social affairs, they will reap strife. They will reap war. It matters not if they have treaties, by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out end this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; dition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Cat-arth, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

That small states as well as great states shall be involved. That no state shall be conquered by force and governed by another against its will. That each state will be allowed to work out its own salvation without interference and without pressure. Then why should the people of any particular state not adopt a similar rule for operation among the individuals of that state? Why should the law of the jungle be elimated from international affairs, and left to hold sway in national affairs, in industrial affairs, in social affairs? If the law of the jungle remain the law of nations, we shall continue to have military war. If the law of the jungle remain the law of relations among the people of a nation, we will still have industrial and social wars. War may not be sent by God or the gods, but it will come to individuals and to nations if this law of relationships is not changed.

Alsace and Lorraine will have returned to France, and that one last corner still soiled by Turkish rule may, one hopes, have been cleaned out. The main features will remain. Ten years after peace is signed—every schoolboy knows it—we shall be buying from Germany, selling to Germany. In 20 years we shall be playing tennis with them and teaching them golf, and 30 years later it is quite possible they in their turn may be our allies.

But users of Gin Pills have discovered that this invaluable remedy also acts as a mild cathartic. The evidence of hundreds of letters we have received establishes the very logical fact that in compounding a medicine to heal and tune up the Kidneys and Bladder certain of the ingredients have a stimulating effect upon the other organs, especially the bowels, It is important to know, in the case of constipated patients, that Gin Pills do not act harship on the bowels; there is no griping, but a gradual and gentle restoration of the function. FIRE, ACCIDENT AND SICK BENEVIT

This song of hate does not suit the English voice. Our soldiers make funof it; the only manly thing to do. Hatred during wartime may be necessary to a few poor creatures incapable of fighting for love of country. But now that the end of the contes is coming into sight it will be well to get rid of it. There is, we are told, "a time to love and a time to hate; a time of war and a time of peace."

It will be well when we lay aside the sword to be prepared to lay aside our hate. It may in some quarters be considered bad taste. But in this matter I would personally rather lis-ten to the voice of Edith Cavell than to the most strident speakers of the to the most strident speakers of the anti-German League. Edith Cavell did a fine thing when she laid down her life for her country. There are many who do that. Poor, feeble, evil men and women have done that. Hundreds of our nameless lads do it every day. The finest thing she did, not only for her country but for the men and women of all lands, was when she put aside all hatred, all bitterness. bitterness.

"Standing as I do in view of God and eternity, I realize that patriotism is not enough. I must have no hatred or bitterness toward any one."

Battles on Snow-shoes and Skates

The recent battle on snow-shoes, fought between the Italians and the Austrians among the glaciers of the High Alps, is not quite the loftiest encounter between regular armed and drilled soldiers recorded in the world's history, as has been asserted in some quarters.

No longer ago than 1904, British troops stormed the Gyangtse Jong, a strong Tibetan fort on the road to Lhasa, which is situated at a height of not less than 15,000 feet above the of not less than 15,000 feet above the level of the sea. It was while scrambling to the attack up a wellnigh perpendicular precipice, that a weary Tommy was heard to ejaculate: "I thought as how they told up afore we started that this 'ere Tibet was a bloomin' tableland." "So it is, say fethead." a sowrade. you fathead," answered a comrade, 'and we're climbing up the bally legs.'

There has been no fighting on skates in Flanders this year, but that was due to the absence of prolonged Both sides were known to frost. Both sides were known to have laid in plentiful stocks of skates, and had the winter been a severe one, instead of comparatively open, we should no doubt have seen a repetition of the tactics pursued by the Dutch when the Spaniards, under Alva, were besieging Amsterdam.

The besiegers in this case were taken completely by surprise, for the armed burghers of the city were adepts at skating; and sallying out across the frozen broads and marshes, they were able easily to out-man oeuvre the Spaniards, and eventually put them to flight, with the loss of several hundreds left dead upon the Beating About the Bush.

Mr. Tennant's recent remark in the House of Commons to the effect that his "honorable friend," who had put a guestion to him respecting the "emptiness" of certain barracks, "was confusing 'emptiness' with the temporary existence of vacant accommodation," may fairly take its place as a nice example of official periphrasis. It is not quite so perfect, perhaps, as Mr. Winston Churchill's immortal "terminological inexactitude," but, none the less, quite good in its way. We recall in this connection another effort in the same line once humorously ascribed to an eminent postal official, now departed, who was famous for his love of grandiloquent language. In place of the words "grease-proof paper," he proposed, it was alleged, to substitute "paper impermeable by oleaginous matter"! Mr. Tennant's recent remark in the

MYSTERY OF THE MOLE.

He Lives In the Dark, Yet Yearns Fee the Midday Sun.

There is a great mystery about the moles. They live in the dark underground, but yet they are sun worshipers. Just at the hour of noon, when the sun is at its highest point in the sky, the mole often comes to the surface. It is a habit of the race, a kind of religious observance, one might think. Seldom does a mole willingly make its appearance in the upper world at any other time of the day, but at that moment they come of their own accord. This fact, which has been observed again and again, has never been explained by naturalists.

But, remembering the common belief that a mole is blind, you may ask, "How can it see the sun?" The myth of the blindness of moles has been brushed away. Some species perhaps cannot see, but most of them can. Their eyes are very small and hidden in the fine hair, but they serve as or-Still, they can have very little use for them underground. Any leakings of daylight that may penetrate there must be extremely faint, and if their eyes were meant to enable them to see with so little illumination they ought to be large and free from obstruction. whereas they are minute and thatched with hair. But such eyes may be par ticularly well suited for an occasional look at the blinding sun.

Imprisonment For Debt.

About the middle of the last century the power of imprisoning a debtor for life was taken from the creditor, and it fills one with amazement to think that a system so ridiculous should have continued as long as it did. The three principal debtors' prisons in England were the King's Bench, the Marshalsea and the Borough Compter. In the year 1759 there were 20,000 prisoners for debt in Great Britain and Ireland. The futility of the system was quite as great as its barbarity. More than half the prisoners in some of the prisons were kept there solely because they could not pay the attorneys' costs. Many prisoners had their wives and children with them. There was no infirmary, no resident surgeon and no bath.—Dundee Advertiser.

SHOEBLACKS IN GREECE.

They Shine as Artists In One of the National Recreations.

Boot cleaning, one of the milder recreations that Saloniki offers, ranks among the national industries of Greece. To sit drinking little cups of Turkish coffee and having his boots cleaned at the same time is the Greek's ideal of a pleasant afternoon. The lus tros, as Greek shoeblacks are music ally called, though usually of tender age, is a true artist and is by no means content with the dull burnish that salisfies the English boot boy. He first meticulously scrapes your boot clean of the smallest fragment of mud, then wipes it carefully so as to have a perfectly clean background to work on. After that he applies the blacking, not by dabbing the blacking brush into the tin, but with a variety of little metal implements and sponges.

When he has brushed this to a bright polish you imagine that your shine is over, but it has really only begun, for the lustros now goes on to bring out the high lights by smearing your boot over with a colorless cream which be brushes again to great brilliance and finishes off by two or three minutes friction with a velvet cloth. He com pletes his work by painting the edge of sole and heel with a sort of varnish.— G. Ward Price in London Times.

A Slight Misadventure. When Roosevelt was in the White House he received from an inmate of a penitentiary an appeal for a pardon couched in something like the following terms: "Dear Colonel-Maybe you'll remem ber I was with you in the rough riders. They've got me locked up in this hole, and I want you, please, to get me

"It was all a mistake, anyhow. The judge sent me up for ten years for shooting a lady in the eye. I didn't mean to do it-honest, I didn't. wasn't even shooting at the lady. was shooting at my wife.".

Cutting Diamonds.

The method of cutting diamonds is a very delicate one, diamond dust being largely used for the cutting, as no steel is hard enough for the purpose. It is remarkable that the diamond cutters can cut such small stones into perfect brilliants, but sometimes there are cut 100 to a carat, a carat weight being only 3.2 grains, and when shown in a bit of white paper look like a number of brilliant minute stars.

The wonder is not that diamonds are so costly, but that they can be pur-chased for any price within reason, when the rarity of good stones and the difficulty of cutting is all considered.

Beauty of the Silver Acacia. There are many miracles. A silves tree is always one of them. When it rains your heart is likely to be broken ecause the silver acacia has its bright eyes so filled with shining tears that it may spill them any minute from the weight, and its death means the end of joy. This is the one acacia that seems almost at its loveliest when not in bloom. It is like a hand illumined edition of fairy stories bound in bright gray silk, with tassels for book marks. Every trembling leaf makes you think of the kiss of a child. When you pass the tree you feel baby arms about your neck. You may exist without a silver acacia, but you cannot be said to live without one.

Orders of British Knighthood. The titles of the different orders of knighthood are all of a most high and mighty description. The Garter is "most noble," the Thistle "most ancient and most noble" and St. Patrick "most illustrious." The Knights of the Bath are officially "most honorable," the Star of India is "the most exalted," St. Michael and St. George is "the most distinguished," the Order of the Indian Empire is "the most eminent."-Lon-

The Swish of the Rod. A college president in an address on pedagogy said:

NOTE AND COMMENT

Kitchener was the great exemplar of duty, and there were those who shuddered at the thought of his unswerving code of efficiency. In the great testing times of lite there is no other code that serves. And it is as a testing time of the nations, and of the individuals of the nations, that the present crisis in the world's affairs must be considered. As month after long month rolls on, and the phastly list of the dead lengthens out, this must be more and more apparent to anyone who thinks and who sees more in life than a wild night-mare of inhuman butchery.

A pecular feature of the new liquor law is the failure to impose any limit upon the quantity of liquor that a householder may lawfully import and keep in his residence. Under the Ontario Temperence Act it will be quite lawful for a householder to import, say, forty barrels of whisky if he can find storage room for them on his home premises. He may import a barrel a day if he sees fit, subject only to the cubic capacity of his cellar. Many think this leaves a wide open door through which that ubiquitous creature the "blind pig" may enter.—Toronto World.

Kitchener and Staff Drown

London, June 6 .- All Britain was stun London, June 6.—All Britain was stunned to-night by grief over the traggic loss of Earl Kitchener, who, with his entire staff as secretary of state for war, was drowned last night off the Orkney Islands when the cruiser Hampshire, on which they were voyaging to Russia, was sunk either by a mine or torpedo.

Admiral Jellicoe reports to the Admiralty as follows:

Four boats were seen by observers on Four boats were seen by observers on shore. The wind was northwest and heavy seas were running. Patrol vessels shore. The wind was northwest and heavy seas were running. Patrol vessels and dertroyers at once proceeded to the spot, and a party was sent along the coast to search, but only some bodies and a capsized boat have been found up to the present. As the whole shore has been searched from the seaward, I greatly fear that there is little hope of there being any survivors.

H.M.S. Hampshire was on her way to Russia.

Magistrate Alex. McDougall, who is in his nintieth year, has sent in his resignation to the council, after holding the position in Wallaceburg for fifty years.

County Council

The June session of the County Council opened at the court house here on Monday afternoon, Warden W. G. Hall in the chair. Warden Hall in opening the session gave a short address of welcome and outlined some of the work there was for the council to dispose of throughout the week. Chief among the notices given were that dealings of importance would be considered in regard to good roads and also that hydro power for some of the townships would be discussed.

a communication was read from Col. T. P. Bradley, of the 149th Battalion, asking for a further grant of $1,200 as the country's share with which to meet current expenses to the amount of $4,000. The communication gave details of what was needed, and statements to the effect that the $3,000 which was granted at the that the $3,000 which was granted at the last session of the council had all been used.

Urgent Appeal for Economy

London, June 5.-The National War Savings Committee has issued another extremely urgent appeal to the nation, especially to the wealthier classes, to observe the strictest economy, pointing out the "appalling responsibility" of pro-longing the war by indulgence in luxury. The committee especially refers to the question of motor cars and petrol.

≠ HIS ⊨ MONUMENT

It Was One to the Living, Not the Dead

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Old Charlie's life began with the coming of the children's mission to the Eighty birthdays or more had he known on this same sandy beach.

Then one day when the tempting odor of his favorite ginger cookies filled the air Charlie's real life began. It was a group of romping Fresh Air mission children who attracted his attention. They were drawn to his place, no doubt, by that same delicious odor. Charlie's glance was forbidding. "Now, look a-here," he commanded. "You scamper. Don't come a-trackin' up my steps!" But one little maiden lingered unafraid. Beneath a shock of fair curls her witching eyes looked up at him.

"If you please," she said, "I would like three cookies." Charlie chuckled. "Three!" he exclaimed. "I want them." the little girl told him, "for the Borin sky children. They have never had any cookies." Behind their spokesman the Borinsky children waited hopefully.

"Land!" said Charlie. (It was his one exclamation, but he brought forth a plate heaped generously.) "No, thank you," the unusual young person remarked. *4I did not ask for the cookies for myself." Grinning widely, old Charlie watched her down the sands.

"There's a nervy one," he murmured delightedly. "Spunky, too." The next morning she was back again, this time bearing in her arms a white bedraggled kitten. Uninvited, she confidently walked inside, appropriating Charlie's own big chair. "You'll keep the kitten, please," she said; "it cried last night all around the mission, and they would

"Land!" ejaculated the old man. "Do you think I want to take keer of a cat?"

"You will," answered Miss Goldilocks. She smiled winsomely. "I like you," she said. Charlie took up the kitten, something unaccountable stirring in his breast. "You can come here and see it," he told her, "as often as the mission folks'll let you." He paused perplexedly. "You ain't like the rest of 'em," said Charlie. "How'd you come to get here?'

"Mother thought it best," the child replied in her pretty, precise way. "It is hot and crowded in the city, where we live, and we had not money to pay for country. You see"-she raised grieved eyes to his-"our daddy went and left us. "Left a little thing like you?" said Charlie. But he added in quick encouragement, "He'll be comin' back again." The child shook her head. "He can't, mother says, because he's broken his leg. People with broken legs cannot walk." "Sho!" said Charlie slowly. "That's so—if mother told you." "And," continued the child, you." "mother has to work very hard to keep us both, so she cannot go away to find father. But if I stay here long enough perhaps she can save money to go. Then we will all be happy again. We were so happy! That's why they call me Joy." "Joy!" whispered old Charlie. For a moment his roughened hand rested upon the curly head. "It's a good name," he said. Suddenly Joy leaned forward. "Couldn't you go to find father?" she asked. "Mebbe," he said, Charlie smiled. mebbe, some day."

When he had finished reading his paper that evening Charlie drew forth in the lamplight an old tin box. Painstakingly he made a record of the savings within and added his evening's Then, with furrowed brow, he toll. bent to study a map and a drawing which had for him never failing interest and charm. The map was the plan of a nearby cemetery, the drawing that of a tall marble tombstone. If in this uncertain life old Charlie had lived and labored unrecognized it was his one dream and determination to leave a mark after death. Here his name should be pointed out to future genera tions, the resting place of Charles Jaffray-Charles James Jaffray. And so, gloating one morning over his little store, Joy, coming to visit her kitten, found him.

"What's it for?" she asked in her straight, childish way. And, delighting at last in a confidant, old Charlie

"That," said Joy softly, "will be beautiful, and I shall come to place flowers about your monument." When upon a never forgotten day

Joy brought her mother to visit him

dren were coming tegether across the sands, so young and sweet and fair was the mother of Joy. Looking up with the same frank smile, she thanked him for his care of her daughter

"Land," said the pleased old man "that wan't nothing! Reckon"—he smiled—"reckon Joy's my first love She was telling me about her father,' he went on, lowering his voice-"how he went away and didn't come back I'm real sorry. Seems you put her off, lettin' on he'd broke his leg."

"But it's true!" eried the mother of Joy, her cheeks flaming and her eyes "He is the finest man in the world, Joy's father, the best, should not have married on so little money. Our people told us so. But we did"-she tossed her head defiantly-"and we were happy, so happy, until the accident. It was an automobile, and it injured his hip. At the hospital they could do little, and, oh, the suffering!" The girl covered her face, but soon her voice rang clear again. "Even then I could have managed had he trusted me. He was brought home from the hospital to spend his life in a wheeled chair. But I found a position, and it was good. After hours there was extra typing. Joy alone seemed to suffer, needing more care than I could give. So I decided to put love before pride-to send her here with those good people for the sum-Then, sitting there all day alone, her father reasoned wrongly. 'A double burden is more than even willing hands can bear,' he wrote. I found the cruel self sacrificing note when I came home at night, and he was gone. He would have good care, he assured me. But the place where he was going should be kept secret that I might not come to break his determination. Always I would have news of him, and he would hear of me. But until some easier way might be opened my husband would efface himself for my Letters came, many and often, all dated from New York. How he had managed to get there I could not

In silent sympathy old Charlie reachhand.

"And does it." asked the child at evening, "take so many dollars to buy tombstone?" Charlie was counting the money back into the box, his fingers moving shakily. He nodded. "Reckon you'll have to take keer o' your cat for a day or two, Joy," he "I've got to go into town."

"Oh," she cried, her eyes wide and shining, "are you going to find my papa now? you said 'some day, meb-be.'" Charlie's horny palm closed in promise over the little soft one. "If I kin," he answered simply. From hospital to hospital went the bent old figure, and then Charlie turned into the broad gateway of the place of his last hope. New York, he felt sure, was not the true hiding place of the crippled father. Letters might be forwarded from there in order to keep from the loved one the humiliating fact of the home city "poor farm." And Charlie found that he was right. His sharp old eyes soon sought out the wheel chair even in its secluded corner. A young man, lifting his head in quick alarm at a stranger's approach, dropped it again at sight of the seaman's bent figure.

"How do?" said Charlie pleasantly. "Pretty tiresome, I reckon, a-settin" round all day. Been like this long?"
The young man nodded brusquely.

"And they ain't no cure?" "None." The word was shortly spoken. Sympathy, deep and true, shone in every line of Charlie's wrinkled face. The sick man, regarding him quietly, smiled in sudden friendliness. less," he added, "I were rich; then there might be a chance."

"Sho!" Charlie was interested. "How's that?" "There's a clever old customer, an Austrian surgeon, who sometimes fixes up a job like me. He's in New York now, but it would take more money than I'll have in all my crippled life just to bring him to look me over." "Land!" murmured Charlie softly. "That's too bad!"

The young man laughed. "Oh, well," he said, "don't you worry about it." "Too bad." Charlie repeated as be shuffled down the long corridor to the doctor's door.
"Come in," called a brisk voice, and old Charlie entered the attending physician's office.

Joy was waiting for him when he returned at evening—waiting upon his doorstep in the early twilight, the white kitten in her arms. "You didn't find my daddy," she sighed resignedly. "But 'maybe' another day you'll bring him back to me."

"Mebbe," said old Charlie.

When the little mother came again upon visiting day she hurried eagerly across the sands with Joy.

"Listen, kind friend," she called, and waved aloft a letter. "It is from my She paused breathlessly. husband." "Such wonderful news. I must share it with you. He feared to write too hopefully, yet could not keep his hope from me. Some great Austrian surgeon has consented to take his case-to operate there in New York. The doctors have arranged everything. If the operation is successful my husband will walk again." The girl's voice sang. Charlie turned reverently from the radiance of her eyes

"An' then you'll be happy?" he asked. There was a subdued eagerness in the question.

"Happy!" She breathed the word tremulously.
"Reckon," said Charlie slowly, "that's real livin'-makin' folks happy. It was Joy who finally told him the great news. How daddy had been sent to New York, where a great surgeon, like the wizard in a fairy tale, made broken limbs straight and strong. "And soon," said Joy, nestling close in the old man's arms, "my daddy will walk home again. But I'll come to see you after because I love you so, and-and I'll be sorry when you have your monument." "As for that monument," said Char lie, "I've changed my mind. Reckoned it'd be better to rejoice in a livin' monument here than to have a piece o' marble when I'm dead."

"I'll bring you flowers," murmured the child sleepily. Old Charlie gazed tenderly down upon the little head against his breast. Over his rugged features came a look of great content.
"Reckon, dearie," he said, "you're a-bringin' me flowers right now." FANCY CHEESE.

How Club and Cream Cheese May

Easily Be Made in the Home. To Make "Club Cheese."—Secure piece of good-flavored, well-ripened Cheddar cheese. Remove the rind, cut the cheese in pieces and put it through the meat grinder. It is better to put it through the grinder at least twice, and when putting it through the second time add two level tablespoonfuls of butter for each pound of cheese. Next add cream, allowing a quarter of a cup-ful per pound of cheese and mix it in thoroughly. The amounts of butter and cream may be varied to suit conditions, such as dryness of the cheese and the purpose for which it is wanted. Butter or cream alone may be used if preferred. Some add to their club cheese a small amount of some condiment such as mustard or cayenne pepper. If any additions are made care should be exercised in the mixing in order that it may be evenly distributed throughout the whole mass. This cheese may be packed in small jars, or else put up in small blocks and wrapped in parchment paper or tinfoil? Keep it in a cool place. This cheese makes a tasty sandwich filling and is liked for school lunches.

school lunches. Cream Cheese. -We will now give simple directions for making what we call Cream cheese. A bowl or small basin is a suitable vessel in which to make a small quantity, but those wishing to make larger amounts will find enamelled pails very satisfactory. To 1 quart of thin cream at a temperature of 70 to 80 degrees (depending on the tempera-ture of the room) add 1 teaspoonful of good-flavored, sour skim-milk or buttermilk. To this add 5 drops of buttermilk. To tuis and a table-rennet extract diluted in a tablecover, and leave undisturbed for about four hours or until a nice, soft curd has formed. Spread a square of beavy white cotton over a bowl care fully ladle the curd into it, the the corners of the cloth together and hang it up to drain, placing the bowl beneath to receive the whey. The next morning open the cloth and with a knife scrape the thickened cream from the cloth to assist in the draining. Hang it up again, and when it has drained well and become fairly firm remove it from the heavy cloth and place it on a piece of thin muslin or cheesecloth and carefully mix in about a level teaspoonful (vary the salt to suit the taste). Fold the cloth over the cheese and place it between two pieces of board and put a small weight on top for pressure. As soon as it is sufficiently drained it is ready to be put up in small blocks suitable for the table.

Had Terrible Pains in Kidneys and Back.

Dear Mr. Editor—I want to write you Dear Mr. Editor—I want to write you about "Anuric." I was very sick, could hardly be up; I was in bed most of the time. Had terrible pains in my kidneys and back, so much so that I had to scream sometimes when I was sitting down and wanted to get up, the pain was so great. I had tried a well-known kidney medicine but it didn't help me. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets so I thought I would try them. I took only one box of the Tablets, and my back is now free from pain and I can work and take care of my family. I feel I cannot say enough for this medicine. Sincerely, Mrs. WM. Keller.

Note: This "Anuric" is adapted especially for kidney complaints and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine and urinary troubles. The physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's great Institution, at Buffalo, N. Y., have thoroughly tested this prescription and have been with one accord successful in eradicating these troubles, and in most cases absolutely curing the diseased kidneys. Patients having once used "Anuric"

Patients having once used "Anuric" at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, have repeatedly sent back for more. Such ademand has been created that Dr. Pierce has decided to put "Anuric" in the drug stores of this country, in a ready-to-use form. If not obtainable send one dime by mail to Dr. Pierce for trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists the body to make the bady the bady the bady the bady to be a start of the bady the rich, red blood, which feeds the heart, nerves, brain and organs of the body. You feel clean, strong and strenuous.

The Dead In India Three distinct methods of disposing of the dead are in vogue in India While the Mohammedans inter the dead, the Hindus prefer to throw the bodies into the purifying waters of the Ganges, and even now there are constant infractions of the severe regulations framed to suppress this danger ous practice. The form of funeral adopted by the Parsees is that of simply exposing their dead at a great altic tude to the scavenging services of crows and vultures.

The Way He Excused Her. It is said that a French ambassado at Vienna once bitterly complained to Metternich of the tongue lashing he had received from the wife of that great diplomatist. The Small Things That Score For the Well Dressed Woman,

There was a time when it was far more difficult to look smartly dressed an it is today. That was the time when we wore separate belts, when there was dress braid on our skirts. when we wore separate neckwear. We had to be careful that the braid on our skirts didn't become ripped, to hang in it that the belt of our skirt didn't sag. We had to see to it that the leather belt we wore exactly coincided with the skirt belt. We had to see to it that the ribbon or muslin collar we wore exactly made connections with the blouse beneath it. Yes, those were indeed difficult days.

Today neatness counts as much as ever, but there are not so many pitfalls for the woman who would be Neatness of footgear counts more than ever before. The shoes must be spotless, well polished and in good repair. Heels that slant are an outrage on good dressing; moreover, they are decidedly unhealthful.

It goes without saying that the hair must be neat. A hair net sometimes produces a stiff effect, but that is better than a sloppy one. So choose the hair net in windy weather, and learn to adjust it becomingly. This year, when our milliners tell us to wear our hats straight on the head, neither tipped to left or right, neat hair is more than ever essential.

Immaculate gloves count for much in producing a smart appearance. Soiled gloves, ripped gloves or worn gloves are a disgrace. Nowadays, when washable gloves can be bought at almost any price, it is possible for everybody to have clean gloves. The cotton ones, if clean, always look well-infinitely better than soiled kid ones. And a stitch now and then will keep gloves always well mended.

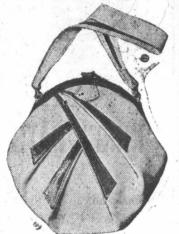

Then there is the handbag. In this case the more you pay the better, for an expensive handbag outwears two cheaper ones and looks better the last day it is carried than the cheap one does after the first few weeks.

There are little details, like the handkerchief, which should always be sheer and snow white, that count quite as much as some of the bigger things in giving the impression of smartness, which the modern woman aims to at-

How to Freshen Up Your Old Gown So It Looks Actually Frenchy. Fashions change so rapidly that wonen of limited means are often sore tried in their attempts to keep up with these periodic and quick movements. A Frenchwoman, whose husband was among the first to respond to his country's call, saw her opportunity and seized it. She made the fact known that she was clever at adapting clothing and that she was ready to exercise her skill on reasonable terms. Plain materials are easily added to, the introduction of contrast is often permissible, and the present vogue for trimming has greatly facilitated her enterprise. The tunic was one of her best resources when she first started her business. Now she finds that the contrast hip yoke and the panel serve her very well.

Frequently sale bargains come in admirably for her purpose, and she is always ready not only to assist in adapting, but to give her aid in choosing from the big stocks of rich and beautiful material which are shown. A serge gown done up recently had the last season's bodice remodeled into a bolero arranged over an undervest made of a piece of rich silk picked up at a sale and sold off because this winter's patterns will not be brought out again for another season.

THE WORD "JEHOVAH."

its Curious Origin Which, by the Way, Is Comparatively Modern. An interesting feature in "The Old Testament In the Light of Today," by William Frederic Bade, professor of Old Testament literature and Semitic languages in the Pacific Theological seminary, is the following explanation of the word "Jehovah:" "The name 'Jehovah' is of recent origin. It was quite unknown in antiquity. As G. F. Moore has shown, it occurs for the first time sporadically in the fourteenth century. The word arose in a peculiar way. Until some centuries after the Christian era the text of the Hebrew Scriptures was written with consonants only. The name of the deity therefore was writ-ten with the four consonants 'Jhvh.' As Hebrew ceased to be a spoken tongue, words written consonantally, begun to present difficulties to readers.

This fact led to the invention of systems of vowel points, which were writ-ten under and above the consonants.

Long before the invention of vowel points it had become customary, on account of dread of the name of the deity, to read 'Adonay' (Lord) where ever 'Jhvh' occurred. To indicate this fact the vowels of 'Adonay' were connected with the consonants 'Jhyh.' the short 'A' of 'Adonay' by a regular change becoming 'e' when connected with the consonant 'J.' Persons ignorant of the purpose of the vowels began to read them with the consonants, and thus the preposterous hybrid 'Je-HoVaH' arose."

England's Greatest Mine Fire. The most serious colliery fire ever known in Britain was undoubtedly that which broke out in the Tawd valley mine, near Preston, in 1872. Thousands of pounds were spent in trying to get the flames under control, but they overcame everything and consumed some millions of tons of coal. A wall ten feet in thickness was built round the affected parts, but the heat cracked the masonry and brought it down as fast as it was rebuilt. However, in 1897 the river Tawd overflowed its banks and went pouring down into the mine. No fire could withstand such an immense volume of water hurled upon it, and although the flames extended for 500 yards, they were quenched after having raged for a quarter of a century.-London Tit-Bits.

Peat possesses wonderful antiseptic and preservative qualities owing to the presence of tannin, iron and other substances in it. Here is an instance: At the time of the covenanters, in 1685, three men were shot at a place called Crossgelloch, on the moor above Old Cumnock, in Scotland. In 1825, when a monument was being erected to their memory, the workmen came upon the corpses rolled in their plaids. The bodies were in exactly the same state as when they were buried. The moss had preserved them as if they had been

A Ford Car bought part by part costs only $40 more than the list price of the complete car as against $940 more for the parts of the average car priced around $1000 and less.

$940-cost, over and above the list price of the car itself, for enough spare parts to build the average touring car priced around $1000 and less.

$ 40-cost, over and above the list price of the car itself, for enough spare parts to build a Ford touring car complete.

$900-Difference in part by part cost of cars.

And remember, both by laboratory tests and actual service tests, the parts of a Ford car have proved them-selves superior, part by part, to those of any other car.

Don't these figures drive home what is meant by the low unkeep cost of the Ford ?

Fifty Years Married

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Steadman of the town line, Plympton, celebrated their golden wedding Thursday at the family residence. The wedding party, consisting of the family and intimate friends, was held in the afternoon, followed by a was held in the afternoon, followed by a public reception in the evening. Lunchcon was served in a tent on the lawn, in the serving of which some took part who did like service for the same couple 60 years ago. Many callers paid their respects to the venerable couple. An impromptu program was gone through at which one of the sons, Rev. T. Steadman, was chairman, and addresses were made by I.E. Armstrong, M. P. for Feet made by J. E. Armstrong, M. THEIR ADVANTAGES

The comparatively new TORIC lenses are made with a deep curve - not flat - these lenses cover more fully the eye and give more up and down and side to side vision than any other form of lens.

This deep curve saves the muscles of the eye and prevents eye strain. They can be made in any focus to sutt any sight. If your glasses require changing try TORIC lenses this time. We assume all responsibility for their being satisfactory. The best is the best.

READY FOR INVASION.

England Has Miles of Trenches Inland Manned Every Night.

According to a passenger who arrived in America recently from London, the Admiralty believes that Germany may attempt to invade England in the next few weeks, and has made all preparations to give the enemy a warm reception.

The south-east and east coasts are

The south-east and east coasts are protected for miles inland by trenches which are filled with troops every night. A fleet of 100 naval aeroplanes make flights out over the North Sea day and night to get the first sight of any of the German scout ships approaching from Heligoland. Powerful searchlights have been placed all along the coast, which will light the surface of the water as by day in case of an attack. "By courtesy of the Admiralty," the passenger said, "I was taken to a base along the east coast, where there was a fleet of light cruisers assembled, which are of the latest type The south-east and east coasts are

Except the new type of destroyers, which can make forty knots, these cruisers are the fastest war vessels in the world. I saw a flotilla of the latest type of submarines in the British Navy, which was accommonded. which was accompanied by two motor ships.

"The naval commander who ac ompanied me on my tour explained a new type of disappearing big guns which suddenly rise from the water, fire a round and then sink beneath the waves without leaving any trace behind them, the submerged torpedo tubes at various points along the coast, and other specimens of what he termed "frightfulness," which he termed "frightfulness," which were waiting to welcome any invader on the shores of ancient Albion. These preparations are exclusive of the permanent land forts which have been equipped with the big naval guns having a range of twenty-three to twenty-five miles.

"The battleship fleets are stationed ready for action at three bases adjacent to the North Sea. The first fleet, which includes the battle cruisers and swiftest battleships, is within twelve hours' steam of the strategic centre in the North Sea and strategic centre in the North Sea and strategic centre in the North Sea, and strategic centre in the North Sea, and the other fleets can reach that position within fifteen and eighteen hours respectively. The commander also informed me that some of the latest superdreadnoughts had been equipped with heavy guns, which would astonish the world by their powers of destruction when they get into action.
"The officers and men of the fleets get shore leave every three months to see their families, and are all well trained and in the best physical condition and eager for the fray. dition and eager for the fray. All leave was stopped at the garrisons along the east coast when I left England, and the leaves was also stopped on the warships until further orders had been received from the Admiralty, as it was expected the German fleet intended to make a dash across the North Sea some dark night and fire a few shells at the coast towns.

With regard to the Zeppelins the assenger explained that the naval air squadrons along the east coast went up and attacked the German aerial raiders directly they appeared in sight from the North Sea, and in many cases drove them back, which was not made public by the Naval Intelligence Department at the Admiralty.

Motorboats Took Gunboat.

A thrilling tale comes from Cape Town of the capture of a German gunboat on Lake Tanganyika by two British motor-boats. Fire was one ed at 2,500 yards, the Germans fail-ing to hit. The Britishers' second shot carried away the gunboat's wireless apparatus, and the third hit her on the waterline. The gunboat then turned and fled, but the motorboats were much the faster. The fifth shot killed the captain, who had belonged to the Konigsberg. The gunboat surrendered twenty minutes after the action commenced. It, was not seriously damaged. The engines and boilers were untouched, and repairs were effected within a week. The gunboat is five times the combined tonnage of the motor-boats. The tonnage of the motor-boats. The capture was due to the splendid dash and gunnery of the British, who fired fifteer shots while going at full speed in a choppy sea and hit the gunboat twelve times. The commanding officer had a tremendous reception on landing. Belgian officers tried to kiss him, while thousands of natives did a war dance and rubbed their heads with sand. their heads with sand.

A Strange Will.

A Strange Will.

A curious will was left by SurgeonMajor John O'Leary, I.M.S., of Curryhevern, Timoleague, County Cork,
