Between Two Continents

By R. O. Armstrong

"As I saw the last blue lines of my native land fade away like a cloud in the horizon, it seemed as if I had closed one volume of the world and its concerns, and had time for meditation before I opened another."

Thus wrote Washington Irving concerning his sea voyage to Europe more than half a century ago. The writer was never in a better position to appreciate the great author's figure than now while in actual mid-ocean between the old land and the new. There are days of travel but every man who sees at all sees something different from his fellows and sees something that may be of interest to them. It does us good to get away occasionally from the scenes of our toils and cares, from routine and grind, from local strife and prejudice, from Provincial and even from National affairs and take a look at it all as an observer, close the volume of Canadian affairs, small and great and meditate thereon for a little time.

But modern progress has despoiled some of the best passages of our literature and the portion quoted from has suffered. A sea voyage is no longer a "blank of existence!" The Marconigrams follow us from wave to wave. It would seem as if already the prophecy, "There shall be no more seas" were fulfilled. It is possible now to read and receive word of the busy world's doings at any hour. They are human and helpless enough when things go wrong, and the ship sinks as the Titanic did. Yet, barring that, how rapidly the world has shrunk in size—figuratively—in the last generation. We pass now from continent to continent in days when our fathers took an equal number of weeks. Messages flash from nation to nation with the speed of thought itself. The world is being rapidly made into what a neighborhood of a century ago would be. And that has brought with it whole budgets of problems. Things are being "overturned, overturned," in the words of an ancient prophet. We see it before our eyes. Cosmology changes; it is inevitable. But that is not all. Theology, too, must change; and thus our thoughts and modes of life. Europe and America are next door neighbors today and Asia, Africa, and the Island of the sea are not far away.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

Probably a word should be offered about the associations of the present tour. Four years ago the British Association of Scientists met at Winnipeg. All Canada was proud to have such a galaxy of learned men within her borders. They were men of big heads, to be sure, but they were also men with big hearts and took close observations of the social conditions around them, especially their own fellow countrymen. One day one of them noticed an advertisement in a daily paper calling for men, with the rider that no Englishman need apply. He was both startled and wounded by this open challenge to the usefulness of his compatriots. He took the matter up in a personal way and made the phrase "No Englishman need apply" the subject of an address. Men were not wanting to offer apologies for this apparent rudeness. They explained that it was largely due to misunderstandings and prejudice born of ignorance and impatience. The whole situation would be clear if they could only know each other better. That was all right—a good diagnosis—but how were they to become better acquainted? Mr. Fred J. Ney was one of the bystanders and seriously thought what he might do. He was chief secretary of the Provincial Education Department. He was an Englishman by birth with a sprinkling of chivalric Norman blood in his veins; he was a Canadian and he was an Imperialist. It occurred to him naturally that the best way to disseminate knowledge was through the schools. He had a vision of teachers visiting the British Isles and studying the historic relics of the past and the problems of the present at first hand. Out of that dream came the "Hands Across the Seas" movement and in 1910 the first party of teachers actually visited the home land. The movement has now the patronage of the Dominion Government. This is the fourth party and while the various Provincial Educational Departments have not seen their way to cooperate officially in the movement, yet every Province in the Dominion is this year represented, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. Mr. Ney, Honorable Organizer, says that this is by all means the most interesting tour they have had. The party travel by the Allan Line and have received the most courteous treatment from the Company and their officers.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Provincialism is one of our greatest bane in Canada. We have our east and west. We heard the remark the other day concerning the educational head of one of our Provinces, "He sees his own Province first, then Canada, then the Empire." Perhaps that man would justify his stand by the text about a man caring for his own household, but we might immediately challenge his interpretation by another text, that the Kingdom comes first. The statesman who puts Nation before Province as well as the preacher who puts Kingdom of Heaven before sectarianism is likely to hear the old cry even yet "Crucify Him." "Hands Across the Seas" is an attempt to get together. That is what we need all along the line and all across the continent. From the days of the simple village "moat" of our forefathers down to the present time it has been the "getting-together" that has been the precursor of progress. In Canada we have east and west, race cries, religious differences, the foreign problems and so forth. Nominally we have one Canada, but in reality it is an arbitrary political organization. The federation of the world—the dream of poets—is a mighty long way off yet. There is some very necessary work to be done nearer home before this consummation is realized.

NATIONAL EDUCATION POLICY.

Canada is a federation of Provinces. So far so good. We heard lately a gentleman express the desirability of Canada having a national educational policy. Alas, we cannot as yet see even two of our Provinces united in this respect. But that is what we need. And to go still further and follow the trail of our premise, we need a national religious policy. May the time speedily come when home, school, State and church will cooperate intelligently and freely to produce not bigots, sectarians, or partisans, but full orbed men and women. That will come with the growth of a national consciousness of which at present we have little enough, and there is a danger of losing even that under the impact of immigration. Welcome then every movement that conceives the best ideals of our race and makes for the unification, education and consolidation of Canada. We are slow to learn the lessons so long ago assigned by Lord Durham.

WHY WE VISIT THE OLD LAND.

Why do we visit the "old land," the British Isles? We think that it is not to see better natural scenery. Canada has enough of that to match herself against all comers. We do not go to seek fortunes, or to look for greater opportunities of life investment. Canada offers all is superabundance. There are other things that lure us. Britain is the home of our forefathers, the cradle of our civilization, the mint in which the ideals of our race were cast, the best of the world colonizers, the land that produced our language, literature, and science of Government, the country that gave us all men—for Britain is generous—Shakespeare, Cromwell, Milton, Knox, Buayan, Wesley, and a long, long role of mighty names. "My native country," said an appreciative American long ago, "was full of youthful promise; Europe was rich in the accumulated treasures of age. I longed to wander over the scenes of renowned achievement . . . to escape in short, from the commonplace realities of the present, and lose myself in the shadow grandeur of the past." The present needs the past, the new needs the old, Canada needs something which time had treasured on Britain's shores, and each generation must go for its own share. For generations the Motherland especially has been pouring its surplus and more ambitious peoples westward. Abroad those people have developed a sense of appreciation they could not have done at home; and for generations the West will send its representative eastward to study with grateful appreciation the way marks and mementoes which trace the progress of our civilization. Canada needs Britain, so Britain needs Canada. The past has its limitations as well as the present, the old as well as the new. They are complimentary to each other. Imperialism is retroactive. The "Navy Question" is incidental.

NOT A CLOSED VOLUME.

Europe and America—more particularly Canada and Great Britain—have been alluded to as volumes; but in neither case is the volume the first or last of the series. Great Britain is not a closed or a closing history. Those who have marvelled that way and pretend to know somewhat are pronounced in their opinion that the Motherland was never more virile and hopeful than it is now. We like to hear this in view of what the logic prophets tell us, namely, that Britain, like other nations, must totter to its fall, and that not far off. But a greater prophet has spoken—and the world is slow to hear—proclaiming the principle of eternal life. In this great world, federation based on brotherhood and co-operation may be not hope that all the worthy shall live? And it is our business to keep ourselves worthy. Britain is a wonderful "volume." At Quebec we saw a game of baseball. The writer remarked to his companion, "Poor playing, that."

"Ah," he immediately replied, "it takes the English to play ball!" Significant remark that! The English have been playing the game for several centuries and playing it well; not absolutely fair play always, but professionally so. There have been some great runs, some great field work, great batting, pitching, catching, great venture, ebriety, caution, patience, nerve, courage, heroism, valor!

CANADA'S VOLUME.

Now what about Canada's volume? What a heritage we have of everything calculated to stimulate and inspire. The Imperialism Canada wants to trouble about is not an arbitrary political affair, but an Imperialism of vision, service and character. One of our young Canadian poets, Stead, expressed the thought well in his lines "England Speaking to Canada":

"I pronounce his absolute liberty, I remove my slightest ban, And I give him the keys of a continent with the bidding, Be a Man."

"But manhood honors his mother's name and loves his mother still." "The twentieth century belongs to Canada," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and there is more truth than fancy in that. Warned by the blunders of the foolish and guided by the teachings of the wise she may yet work out a record worthier than all who have gone before her. We like to dream of one country in the world, where the principles of justice and charity will be realized.

My letter must close. For one reason it is long enough and for another because on a rapid ocean liner we cannot remain for long "between two continents." The coming days I expect will afford far better opportunities of reading some lessons from the Old Country volume.

R. O. ARMSTRONG,
R.M.S. Gramplan, July 12, 1913.

MONEY SCARCE AT SASKATOON

Saskatoon, Sask., Aug. 15.—Declaring that it is impossible to get one dollar from the banks on personal loans, and that money on mortgages could only be obtained at from eight to ten per cent, a large number of representative farmers from the Saskatoon district attended the Royal Commission on agricultural credits and grain markets here yesterday afternoon. Farmers declared that from fifty to ninety-eight per cent of the farms in the district were mortgaged, and complained of heavy charges for negotiating the loans.

KARAKULE SHEEP FOR THE DOMINION

Recently a consignment of Karakule sheep, the first to be shipped into the Dominion, was purchased from the now famous ranch owned by L. M. Crawford & Company of Topeka, Kansas, and a company of gentlemen from Bridgetown and Clarence are starting a ranch for the purpose of importing and breeding full-blood Karakule sheep, for the production of half-blood rams, which when bred to Lincoln and Cotswold ewes give Persian lamb, Astrachan and Kimmur fur.

The full blood bucks, two of which are now owned by the local company and on their ranch, were originally imported from Bokhara, Persia, by Dr. C. C. Young and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt at a very large expense. The animals owned by this company have just passed inspection by the Department of Agriculture of both the United States and the Dominion of Canada. The breeding on the Crawford ranch is being supervised by Dr. R. N. Nabous of the Kansas Agricultural College, and an assurance is given by T. R. Arrell the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, that the government of Canada will do all in its power to encourage the breeding of these animals in the Dominion.

The United States Government is now breeding Karakule sheep on their experimental farm near Washington, and the Dominion Government has sent a committee to purchase some of these sheep for scientific purposes in Canada. While this is a new enterprise in Canada, it has every assurance of success.

By actual tests by Armour Bros. it has been found that Karakule blood means an increase of from 37 per cent to 50 per cent increase in weight and that even 25 percent of the Karakule strain absolutely eliminates the "sheep" taste so characteristic of our native sheep.

The Karakule is a desert sheep, indigenous to Bokhara, Central Asia, on account of the extreme heat in summer and the intense cold in winter, which climate prevails in the desert of Bokhara and the Karakule sheep has become inured to the hardships of that country, and can therefore stand much more heat and cold than any of our domestic sheep.

Several years of testing have shown that the United States can compete with Asia in the production of Astrachan, Persian Lamb and Kimmur pets, and we have every reason to believe that Canada will in a few years be supplying this country and the United States with the $14,000,000 worth of these furs which is required every year.

The local company is called "The Dominion Karakule-Arabi Sheep Co., importers and breeders, and have the exclusive right to sell this stock in Canada, and are about purchasing one hundred ewes of the best long-wool breeds to put on their ranch in Clarence to breed to their thoroughbred bucks.

The local company are now in a position to sell half-bred bucks for immediate delivery, or give options on thoroughbreds for future delivery.

Two thoroughbred bucks and one this Spring's lamb will be on exhibition at the Provincial Fair in Halifax next month.

THE COST OF WAR.

Sir Felix Schuster, of London, whose word in such matters is respected by financiers the world over, estimates that the recent losses of the Balkan war amount to $1,200,000,000. The figure means nothing other than it represents an amount beyond human conception. And the end is not yet. What if the great European Powers were to be drawn into the whirlpool? What if such mighty nations as England, Russia, France, Austria, Germany, and Italy were to try the arbitration of the sword? What would the figures be then? To think of it stupefies the mind. It would be such a calamity as would cause the world to stagger under the awful burden for long years to come. Nor is the pressure confined to the Balkan states. The money market the world over has reflected the crimson glow of conflict. —Messenger, St. Alban, Vt.

Family Re-union

Quite a large family re-union was held at Mr. Edward Whitman's, Clarence, on Saturday, August 16. There were present five Whitman brothers, Asbel of Mount Rose, Edward of Clarence, Willard of South Williamston, Joel of Brickton, George of Beverly, Mass., and one sister, Mrs. Silas Banks of Mount Rose. A number of years had passed since they had been together at the same time, the family being all present except Frank Whitman of Mass. These with their descendants and family connections made a company of thirty-six.

After the picnic-dinner a pleasant afternoon was spent, conversation being interspersed with recitations and music. Pictures were taken of the different generations. Before separating all joined in singing "God be with you till we meet again."

STARR MANUFACTURING COMPANY HAS PASSED INTO NEW HANDS.

The Shareholders, by a Large Majority, Agreed to Sell Out to J. C. MacKintosh and Company, Who Will Organize a New Company.

(Halifax Herald, Aug. 8.)

The Starr Manufacturing Company, Limited, which for forty years has been a prime factor in the industrial life of Dartmouth, and whose output has made its way into all parts of the world, seems likely to soon give place to a new and greater company the Starr Iron and Steel Corporation, Limited.

A meeting of the shareholders, presided over by J. C. MacKintosh, was held at the board of trade rooms yesterday afternoon, and they voted by a large majority in favor of a deal which its advocates are confident will bring this about.

At this meeting a resolution was adopted under which the Starr Manufacturing Company passes over to J. C. MacKintosh & Company, who agree to organize a new company, probably to be known as the Starr Iron and Steel Corporation, Limited, and whose capital as authorized will be $500,000 of seven per cent preferred stock and $500,000 common.

BELIEVED TO BE TITANIC WRECK.

Much of the mystery that surrounded the sinking of the White Star Liner Titanic, on April 14, 1912, may be dispelled by the discovery of a wreck believed to be part of the hull of the ill-starred vessel, standing on end in the Atlantic Ocean, off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, practically in the spot where the disaster occurred.

Capt. Remnant of the British steamship Luciline, which arrived at Philadelphia from Bordeaux several days ago, reported sighting the wreck, and the United States Hydrographic Office has begun an investigation to learn more about the wreck. Lieut. Commander Landenberger, United States hydrographer, stationed in this city, said today that the matter was of the utmost importance.

Should the vessel sighted by Luciline prove to be the remains of the Titanic the story of the memorable wreck would be rewritten. The fact that after more than a year the hulk stands vertically in the waves, protruding eight feet or more above the surface, would indicate that a submerged ledge of rock had prevented the wreck from going to the bottom of the sea.

Capt. Remnant says the wreck was covered with a marine growth of comparatively recent formation tending to show that it had been in the water a little more than a year. It had the appearance, Capt. Remnant said, of being held down by anchors in shoal water and of being buoyed up by water-tight compartments. He is of the opinion that it was the forward part, which, it was said, split in two just before it sank.

Mariners say there is every reason to believe the wreckage of a submerged wreck where the Titanic was destroyed.

CHEAP FARES TO TORONTO EXHIBITION.

In connection with the Canadian national exhibition at Toronto, which will be held this year from August 23, until September 8, the Intercolonial Railway will give very low excursion rates which will give the opportunity to many to visit the Queen City on the occasion of its great annual fair.

The Toronto fair is the largest and most attractive of annual exhibitions in America, and this year new permanent buildings have been constructed and its extensive boundaries enlarged by new boulevards. Aside from the attractions of the exhibition a visit to Toronto at this season is sure to be enjoyable especially in view of the very low rates prevailing. From Truro the round trip will be $25.95, good going Aug. 21, 23, 25, 26 and 27 and Sept. 3 and 4. A special rate of $20.20 will prevail on Aug. 22 and 28 and on Sept. 2. All tickets are good to return Sept. 10. Maritime Province travellers will have their choice of two through vestibule trains, the Ocean Limited and the Maritime Express, both of which connect at Bonaventure Union Station, Montreal, with the through Grand Trunk trains for Toronto. It will be well for intending travellers to apply early for reservations. 13-21.

Picked from the delicious young leaves of Orange Pekoe—the tea with the golden tips—hence its rich and mellow flavor.

The Annual Farmers' Picnic will be held Aug. 27. We hope every farmer in the County who can possibly come will hitch up his team bright and early and drive with his family into Lawrence-town. You need bring no lunches if you are not disposed to, as dinner and supper will be provided by the ladies of the Baptist and Methodist churches, and you know they excel as cooks.

On Friday, 15th inst., Mrs. Chas. Shankle of South Williamston, was laid to rest in the cemetery on the hill. She was a native of Queens County, and a very estimable lady, of cheery disposition and loving heart. Her large circle of friends regret her early death. From her long suffering her "going home" was a release. Her husband and three sons are the only ones of her immediate family who remain to remember a good wife and mother.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1913.

The last Annual Report of the Superintendent of Education in Nova Scotia indicates progress in all departments of the work under his supervision.

The total enrolment of scholars for the year was 103,984, being an increase of 1074 over that of the preceding year, and the largest increase for the last three years.

The total number of days' attendance shows an increase of 600,000 and was partly due to the greater regularity of the scholars.

The number of schools was 23 in excess of those of the preceding year.
Notwithstanding the great draft which the West makes upon our teachers, the number of trained Normal teachers employed was slightly increased, and the number of temporarily employed third class teachers was 25 less. But the percentage of female over male teachers increased considerably. The ratio at present is one male to eight females.

There was a general increase in the average salary of teachers of all grades, though in most cases a larger increase ought to be made. The small salaries is a chief reason for the diminution in the number of male male teachers.

In 1900 the candidates presenting themselves at the Provincial examinations numbered 3549, while in 1912
the number was 5035.

One night school under government control is recorded. This was in Richmond County, and had an enrolment of 39. In most of our towns and villages, if not in all, there are youths who have not had the usual educational advantages, and an extension of this plan of night schools would be of great benefit to them,
and would solve, at the same time,
important questions relating to mortality and public order.

Besides the night school referred to,
evening schools for technical training in single and double entry bookkeeping, mechanical drawing, architectural drawing, electricity, chemistry, dress and garment making, are reported. These were intended to meet the needs of persons who were unable to attend the regular sessions of the Technical College. In Halifax so many applied for admission to the classes in needle-work that many had to be turned away for lack of sufficient accommodation.

There were fifteen schools with a department of Manual Training, having an enrolment of 1926, and seventeen with a department of Domestic Science, having an enrolment of 4148.

On the whole the Superintendent of Education regards the year as marking the highest school level of educational progress in the history of the Province.

The Kings of England have generally been patrons of learning, from the time of King Alfred, but their special favors have, for the most part, been confined to men distinguished in literature, science and art.
King George is the first to recognize in any marked manner the ordinary day school teachers. This he did by a garden party given at Buckingham Palace to five thousand of them.
They formed a row on both sides of the path leading from the palace,
through which the King and Queen, walked, bowing to all and addressing personally one here and there. Four hours were spent in the beautiful gardens, in pleasure boats on the lake, and in listening to a musical program furnished by five hundred school children. The two oldest teachers were presented to the King and Queen, and also the leader of the children's choir. This was a well-deserved recognition of a class of persons whose usefulness is very frequently underrated.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZA Q. TUPPER

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon in this town of Mrs. Eliza Tupper, in the 65th year of her age. The deceased suffered a shock of paralysis about a year ago, while on a visit to one of her daughters who resides in Saskatchewan.

As soon as she sufficiently recovered
so she could travel she returned to her home in this county, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Alice Tupper, who at that time held a position in St. Luke's hospital, New York. She at once resigned her position at that institute and went to her mother, returning with her to this county and has been a constant attendance on her ever since.

Mrs. Tupper was the eldest daughter of the late Charles Hoyt, for many years post master of this town. She married William E. Tupper, at the time a prosperous farmer residing at Round Hill, who pre-deceased her some eighteen years.

She leaves behind to mourn their great loss four daughters and four sons, Mrs.
Pineo and Miss Frazer Tupper of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Fitz Randolph of this town,
Frank, residing in British Columbia,
Lewis, of Ottawa, Bertram, of California, and Harold of Seattle. Also one sister Mrs. Fitz Randolph of Weymouth and three brothers, Henry of New York,
Lewis of Boston and Charles of North Sydney.

Mrs. Tupper was a consistent member of the Church of England and up to the time of her death was a regular attendant at all services. The funeral took place Monday from St. James' Church and the body was taken to Round Hill and placed alongside of her husband in that beautiful cemetery.

ence and Mrs. Hattie Marshall, Lynn.

home, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock.
There was a large attendance. Rev.
Ernest Ventres, pastor of the North-boro Baptist Church officiated and there were friends and relatives present from Worcester. A quartet selection was

MINIATURE WAR ON CUNARD LINER.

New York, August 8.—Officers of the Cunard liner Pannonia, arriving here today from Trieste, report that a miniature Balkan war occurred aboard almost continuously during the twenty-six days voyage. Among the steerage passengers were several hundred ex-volunteers, Greeks, Servians, Bulgars and Turks, who were returning to this country after taking part in the Balkan war.

Frequent riots between these hostile factions in the first few days resulted in several combatants going to the sick bay with severe stab wounds. Captain Capper thereupon ordered a general disarmament, but the fighting continued with whatever missile was at hand.

Then the nationalities were separated into groups, but on meeting for meals the battle was resumed. As a precautionary measure, the stewards removed knives and forks from the tables and all the steerage passengers of whom there were 1121, had to eat with spoons.

It is stated that the women in the warring camps fought as fiercely and as effectively as the men.

ENGLAND HAS SCHEME FOR SEVENTY-MILE BRIDGE

London, Aug. 6.—The serious attempt which is again being made to get the Government to sanction the carrying out of the Channel Tunnel scheme has excited the greatest interest among all classes of the population. Whatever may be the result of the present agitation in its favor, all parties and all classes seem to be united in opinion on one phase of the question, which is that the realization of this project would result in the tremendous commercial advantage to both Great Britain and France.
But the project of a tunnel pales into insignificance besides the proposal
now seriously put forward to bridge the English Channel, and thus connect the two countries by an international driveway across the sea. This bridge would be seventy miles long, and would only cost $110,000,000, or one-fourth what the tunnel would cost.

We are in receipt of the following note from Mr. A. L. Davidson, M.P., regarding the Fenian Raid Bounty: "I am desirous of obtaining as much first-hand information as possible relative to the calling out in this county of the militia in the year 1865 to meet the threatened invasion of the Fenians, so that the claims of Annapolis County applicants for bounties under the provisions of the Fenian Raid Volunteer Bounty Act may be more effectively presented. With this end in view, I would like through your columns to ask as many of those interested, having a clear recollection of this event, and who can conveniently do so, to meet me at Middleton on Saturday afternoon next at 2.30 o'clock."

The steamship "Tenadores," the latest addition to the Great White fleet of the United Fruit Co., commanded by Capt. L. H. Porter, arrived in New York from Belfast, Ireland, where she was built, on the 12th inst. The Tenadores is a sister ship of the Pastores, with all the improvements suggested by that ship. She is 500 feet long, 9000 tons, and carries a crew, including officers, of 135. She has a speed of eighteen knots, and cost over one million dollars, and is most magnificently fitted up for the passenger trade of the tropics. Her route will take in Jamaica, Cuba and Port Limon and return to New York, voyage occupying twenty-four days.

The Methodists of the Bridgetown Circuit were greatly favored on Sabbath last by the services of the Rev. W. I. Smith, Montreal, lately appointed Assistant Secretary of the Temperance, Prohibition and Moral Reform department of the Methodist Church, in the place of the Rev. J. W. Aikens, who has become pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church, Toronto. Mr. Smith took in Bridgetown on his return from the Camp Meeting at Berwick. His addresses in the three churches were very highly appreciated. There being no service in the Baptist Church in the evening a large number of the Baptist friends joined with the Methodists and taxed the seating capacity of each church. Mr. Smith's address on each occasion was along the lines of his special work. He gave several instances indicating the villainy of the White Slave Traffic in Canada, and showed conclusively the need of an advanced sentiment and increased effort on the part of the Christian Church in Canada, in order to the destruction of this abominable business, the overthrow of the slums, the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and an active Christian propaganda among the strangers who are flocking to our shores, and all classes of our citizens. Mr. Smith will be welcomed whenever he has an opportunity to visit Bridgetown again.

POTATO PEST WHICH IS CREATING HAVOC.

Tuber Moth Working Wide Havoc in United States. Farmers Warned by Government Scientists.

Farmers in New Brunswick have hardly got over complimenting themselves on getting rid of the old-fashioned potato bug until a new pest put in an appearance across the border which threatens to be carried over on this side unless great precaution is taken to prevent it.

Warnings against the pest that threatens every dinner table in the land has been issued by the department of agriculture at Washington; against the potato tuber moth, which is making great havoc with the potato crops in the United States, and the ravages of which threaten to prevent the planting of the vegetable in many places of the winter supply.

The pest is especially prevalent in California, the department reports, through shipment of early potatoes it is being introduced broadcast throughout the United States.

Experts of the bureau of entomology urge potato growers to look carefully over the potatoes they dig and destroy every potato and vine that shows the slightest sign of the moth. Special attention they add, should be given to the seed potatoes on which the subsequent crop depends. Fumigation with carbon bisulphid is recommended.

The scientists utter a warning against careless methods in planting and harvesting potatoes and declare that unless protective and defensive measures are adopted at once there will be a serious reduction of the potato crop.

Now that this pest has got a foothold in Maine it will find its way into the border counties of New Brunswick unless great precaution is taken. — Kings County Record.

HOW THEY WOO AND WED IN GERMANY.

Human hearts do not vary the whole world over, and when Cupid calls he must be obeyed. The only thing that varies is the way in which the call is answered, and thus each country has its own customs in the matter of wooing and wedding.

The form of proposal in Germany has undergone great change during the past few years. At one time any young man who proposed marriage attired himself in his dress suit and carried a bouquet as an offering to his chosen one. We must not seek to pry into the intimacy of such proposals, but if the disconsolate lover left the house carrying his bouquet with him it was a sure sign that he was rejected.

Nowadays proposals are less formal, but engagements are no less binding. With us a betrothal is often lightly entered upon, but not so in Germany, where so much publicity is given to an engagement that it is regarded almost as solemn and binding as the wedding itself.

As soon as the lover has declared himself and been accepted, each lover gives to the other a plain gold ring, which is worn on the fourth finger of the left hand until the marriage takes place, when the same ring is changed over to the corresponding finger of the right hand.

The engagement is announced in the local paper, and to each friend of the bridal pair there is a dainty announcement sent by post. On the first page the parents of the bride-elect announce that their daughter is engaged to So-and-so while on the opposite page the bridegroom-elect makes a similar announcement.

Then everyone who has received an announcement is supposed to call on the engaged girl and to offer hearty congratulations. Each call must be returned by the bride-elect, and if her lover resides in the same town he is supposed to be with her when she makes the return call.

An engagement makes a good excuse for an offering of flowers and until the wedding the bride-elect can depend upon her rooms being perfect bowers of flowers.

The lovers have plenty of chances of seeing each other, but most of the billing and cooing has to be done in public, for it is not considered "proper" for an engaged couple to be left much alone. Still, it must be confessed that the German lovers is not bashful, and sometimes the love-making is so sweet and delightful that it would seem a pity to reserve it for the edification of one person only.

On every possible occasion German lovers appear arm-in-arm, and the custom is not continued to one class alone. Peasants walk thus, and the recently published charming snapshots of the Kaiser's only daughter show that princes and princesses follow the popular custom.

Any spare time that the bride-elect has is devoted to the preparation of the trousseau, and perhaps no bride in any country goes to her husband with such well-filled chests of linen. Six dozen of everything is quite an ordinary allowance and generally lasts an ordinary lifetime. Most of the articles are of good plain linen, but they are all marked with elaborate monograms. The bride's friends are always very liberal in their contributions, and various things for the adornment of the new home are amply showered on the bride-to-be.

In Germany it is not considered bad luck for a bridal pair to be photographed together, and no engagement seems complete without a photograph. In every case it will be found that the man is sitting down, while the girl stands up behind her betrothed.

Before the wedding the girl gives an afternoon party, to all her friends and this is usually known as a "beau party." The chief cake at this gathering contains one bean, and each guest is anxious to secure the slice containing it, for it is supposed to predict her own marriage within a year.

On the night before the wedding the bride's parents give an entertainment, generally a dinner party, and the "brout pair" sit together with garlands spread behind them. At one time it was usual to break crockery against the door to ensure good luck in the new life.

There are two weddings in Germany. The first is a civil wedding of formal character, which takes place overnight or early in the morning of the religious wedding. For this part of the ceremony the bride wears a dress of black silk or a dark costume, while for the religious ceremony she dons a dress of white silk or satin, with a veil and a wreath of myrtle, which takes the place of our familiar orange blossom.

The ladies present at the wedding wear evening dress without hats, while the men wear evening dress and top hats.

After the ceremony the bride changes into a travelling dress, and departs quietly with her groom without any throwing of rice, slippers, or confetti. Those who remain sit down to the ample meal which Germans dearly love.

A pretty custom prevails in the Black Forest and in Saxony, whereby a wedding is made known by fixing in front of the bride's house two fir trees decked with ribbons and flowers and guns are fired off during the day in celebration of the event. — N. Y. "Tri-bune."

CIVILIZATION OF BABYLONIANS WAS COMPLETE

Philadelphia, Pa., July 22. — Modern bankruptcy laws are founded upon provisions in the code of Hamurabi, who was "King of Babylon, of Akkad and Summer, and Lord of the Four Quarters of the Earth," and who ruled it is supposed, about 2100 to 2300 B.C.

This discovery has been made by Dr. Arno Poebel the great German Oriental scholar, who has been working for months on fragments of clay bricks belonging to the museum of the University of Pennsylvania and taken from the ruins at Nippur.

Dr. Poebel has also deciphered other laws, which together make up the earliest code of commercial laws known. Some of these laws are:

THE LAW OF INTEREST.

"If the merchant lends grains upon interest he shall take one-fifth of a kor of grain for each kor as interest. If he lends money upon interest he shall take a sixth and six grains of silver for each shekel as interest (i.e., twenty per cent.)"

"If a merchant charges compound interest he shall lose the principal and six times the amount of interest as forfeit."

"If a man has borrowed grain or money from the merchant, and he has neither grain nor money to pay back but he has movable goods, he shall give whatever he has to the merchant in the presence of witnesses, according as— (words missing)—the merchant shall not refuse he must accept."

The importance of this law lies in the fact that among primitive peoples and in many civilizations long after the Babylonian period in question, even down to the Norman conquest in Great Britain, it was customary for the creditor to seize the body of the debtor either for a time or in perpetuity. A later phase was to hold a judgment against the man and whatever he might accumulate in after years.

But the text here as well as the spirit indicates that when a debtor had given up all he had and had taken a receipt with witnesses his debt was discharged.

Other laws are:

"If the agent or underman who has borrowed goods or money from the merchant asserts he has been robbed and has nothing to repay he must go to the temple and swear to the facts after which he is to be let go."

"If an agent, has been on a business tour and has returned without making any profits the merchant may not ask interest on goods or money advanced, but the agent must prove that he used all due diligence. If it can be proved that the agent did not go where he said, then the merchant is entitled to judgment for three-fold interest."

There are some other laws of a similar sort showing that already business was on an elaborate scale, that the merchant adventurer went to distant lands and took great risks. The high interest charged was partly because of the risks involved and partly because the middlemen were accustomed to much greater profits than today.

The stela on which the nearly complete code of Hamurabi is written in Babylonian characters was discovered in the winter of 1901-2 by M. de Morgan, the French archaeologist at Susa.

Unfortunately this stela was not perfect. Originally it was placed in some temple at Sippar, but the conquering Elamites many years later carried it off to Susa. The Elamites were either iconoclasts or desirous of getting some glory out of the code, and they chiselled off almost one-tenth of the inscriptions and replaced them with some writings of their own.

GRATITUDE PROMPTED THIS LETTER

Prominent People Proud To Testify For "Fruit-a-tives"

330 ATLANTIC AVE., MONTREAL, MARCH 1ST 1912. For years, I suffered from Rheumatism, being unable to work for weeks at a time and spent hundreds of dollars on doctor's medicines, besides receiving treatment at Notre Dame Hospital where I was informed that I was incurable. I was discouraged when a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". After using three packages, I felt relieved and continued until I had used five packages when a complete cure was the result after years of doctoring failed. I consider "Fruit-a-tives" a wonderful remedy. You are at liberty to use this testimonial to prove to others the good that "Fruit-a-tives" has done me.

AN INDIAN FISHING CAT.

(London Times.)

Mr. J. S. E. Walker, of Meerpore, Motihari, has sent for presentation to the Zoological Society an unusually fine example of the Indian fishing cat (Felis viverrina), obtained near the frontier of Nepal. It was sent down to Bombay, where it was received and forwarded by Mr. W. S. Millard, the secretary of the Bombay Natural History Society, and a Fellow of the London Zoological Society who takes an active interest in the welfare of the Gardens in Regent's Park. The fishing cat is rather larger than the domestic cat, reaching nearly three feet in length with a tail relatively rather short, about ten inches, and with the limbs short and very strong. The general appearance is cat-like, but the head is elongate and the ears wide and rounded. The color is dull grey with shades of brown, spotted with very dark brown or black. The head is marked with narrow parallel bands which are continued along the back as rows of elongated spots, and the tail is ringed with black above. The example that has just come to London is rather savage, and thus bears out the reputation of the species, as these cats have been known to attack and kill parish dogs, lambs and even calves. It is said to frequent swampy ground or even tidal creeks, and to be fond of fish, and to eat mussels and water snails. It certainly does not limit its diet to such Lenten fare, but takes any kind of animal food that it can obtain.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

FRESHEN THE PASTURES.

When Run Out Should be Reseeded and Made New.

The scarcity of farm help has driven many to seed a large portion of their farms down to pasture, and stock them, where it is possible to get the cattle, with stocker or feeder steers and heifers. Such practice may save labor, but the cattle pasturing business, like any other undertaking, cannot be expected to run itself and bring success, says Farmer's Advocate. It should be the aim of every man in the business to make the most of his cattle. Pastures run out, if kept seeded year after year without breaking up, and get to such a state as to provide very little feed of rather inferior quality. It is not possible to get highest returns in pasture from land unless that land is in the best condition to grow grass, and land infested with grubs and wire worms from being seeded down too many years and the grass all killed out with the exception of a little wiry Canadian blue grass which heads early in June and is dry the remainder of the season, is not in a condition to produce green feed. Grass on it grows much as do plants, which become root-bound in too small a pot—scrubby and sickly. Even where pasturing is the main reliance of the farm, a certain amount of crop rotation, or, at least, an attempt at reseeding the old pastures once in a while is essential.

Good pasture is necessary to develop the frame of each young steer or heifer on the grass. Profits are made on gain in weight, and gains in weight in stockers or young feeders come chiefly through the growth and spreading of the frame. The man who buys these cattle to finish wants a large frame, not too thin, that he may have room in plenty to put on a large amount of beef in finishing them. The better the grass the better the growth the greater the gains, and the larger the frame-work for the finisher. Besides, the feeder gets his cattle in a more favorable condition to respond to heavy feeding in the stalls.

To get good pasture, two mixtures we can again recommend. These are the annual pasture mixture and the permanent pasture mixture, recommended by Prof. C. A. Zavitz, O. A. C., Guelph. For the annual sow, 51 lbs. of oats, 30 lbs. early amber sugar cane and 7 lbs. of red clover per acre, and for the permanent try alfalfa, 5 lbs.; alsike, 2 lbs.; white Dutch clover, 2 lbs.; orchard grass, 4 lbs.; meadow fescue, 4 lbs.; tall oat grass, 3 lbs.; timothy, 2 lbs. and meadow foxtail, 2 lbs.—24 lbs. per acre.—The Maritime Apple.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired indigestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.

SMILING MOODS HELP DIGESTION.

That smiles should help your digestive organs seems an odd theory, yet it has just been put forward by an influential physician. Digestion, he affirms, depends very largely on the state of mind!

Be merry when you eat is more than a mere saying. There is real wisdom in it. It is best not to sit down to a meal when you are tired out, physically or mentally. It is best not to eat in solitude, and to the accompaniment of unpleasant thoughts.

It may sound strange to the average person to say, "Watch your thought while you are at the table." But it is good common sense when you think it over, and get at the reason. Watching your thought simply means that you will by intention, think of and talk of pleasant, bright things.

Thinking and talking of bright things simply means your mind will be in a proper frame. And then your several points nearer properly digesting your food.

The next important matter, which by the way is just as "firstly" as the state mind question, has to do with the way you eat your food.

Do you masticate it, or do you swallow it almost whole.

Hurrying through a meal is poor policy. Many foods should be acted upon, in part, by the mouth secretions. If they lose this part of the process of digestion entirely.

And do you know that the preservation of the teeth depends very largely on the use of them in masticating food.

That which we do put to good use is very likely to disappear.

Thirdly and lastly, do not get into the habit of reading or studying while at a meal. It is a heavy tax on the digestive organ, and in the end will not prove either a saving of time or a relaxation.

OLD AGE AND MEMORY.

General Duff recalls a conversation on the recollections of old men in the course of which Lord Houghton mentioned that he had once been present when Lord Lyndhurst and Doctor Lushington were asked what was the most interesting thing that they remembered. "Oh," said Lyndhurst, "undoubtedly the day which I spent with Washington at Mount Vernon." "Oh," said Doctor Lushington, "undoubtedly the week which I spent with Burke at Beaconsfield." But when they were asked to tell the company something of what had passed neither of them could remember anything whatever.

Emerson was often at a loss for the names of common objects. Once when he wanted an umbrella, he said: "I can't tell its name, but I can tell its history. Strangers take it away!" This failing led to a pathetic scene at Longfellow's funeral. After gazing long at the face of his life-long friend as he lay in his coffin, Emerson said to a bystander: "That gentleman was a sweet, beautiful soul, but I have entirely forgotten his name."

The Home

THE WEARING OF WHITE.

The Canadian summer makes the wearing of light dresses a necessity, and there is nothing in which one feels so much in harmony with the season as one does in white. But, to many girls, a white dress is something of an extravagance, on account of the frequent laundering it requires because unless it is perfectly clean and fresh-looking, a white gown is not beautiful. It may be extremely simple, it may be inexpensive, so long as it is immaculate.

Often a dress or suit looks "mussy" when it is not really soiled at all, but is only crumpled. Linen is the worst offender in this direction, but pique, corduroy, Bedford cord, even ratine, show creases and wrinkles after even a short period of wear. The girl who wants to wear white dresses and suits through the summer should provide herself with a spirit burner, a smoothing iron, and a skirt board padded and covered with an old sheet—unless she lives at home where she has access to laundry utensils. If one has an electric iron, the problem is still more easily solved.

It takes only a few minutes to press a skirt or one-piece dress, and the attention makes it look fresh enough to pay for the small amount of trouble. To remove the wrinkles, it will usually be sufficient to dampen them slightly with a moist rag. Sometimes it helps to use water with a little starch dissolved in it, applying it to a small portion with the wet rag, and then ironing with quite a hot iron.

Never use a hot iron to press linen or any material while dry. A dress that has been worn should not be pressed until it has been hung up and thoroughly aired.

It is not every housekeeper who has an ice-cream freezer among her kitchen utensils, but it is possible to make ice cream enough for family use without the regular freezing apparatus. Take an ordinary water bucket or a large granite-ware saucepan, and a glass fruit jar with a metal top which screws on tight. Put the sweetened and flavored cream in the jar, but do not fill it more than two-thirds full. Screw on the top. Put a layer of cracked ice and a layer of salt in the bottom of the pan, set the jar on this, and pack it with alternate layers of ice and salt, using twice as much ice as salt. Get a piece of stout cord and pass it around the metal top of the jar, so that the cord will lie in creases. By pulling on the ends of the cord first with one hand, then with the other, the jar is rotated from side to side, accelerating the freezing of the mixture evenly. After five or six minutes, take off the cover, and scrape the frozen cream from the sides, then put on the top again, and rotate the can as before. When the cream is frozen, drain off the brine from the bucket, pack the jar in with ice and salt, cover with a thick wet cloth, leave to "ripen" for three or four hours before serving. Of course, the glass jar must be quite cold when it is packed into the ice. If a custard mixture is to be frozen, do not put it warm into the jar, and then set the jar in the ice, or the sudden contraction will break the glass. A small, cylindrical tin pail with a close-fitting cover can be used in the same way as the jar.

Ice to be used in packing the freezer should be broken into small pieces. This is usually done by putting it in a canvas bag, and breaking with a pounder. Coarse rock salt is much better to use than table salt, as the latter melts the ice too rapidly.

GREEN GOOSEBERRY PUDDING

Weigh a pound and a half of green gooseberries, pick them over and put to stew with a couple of tablespoonsful of water, a tablespoonful of butter and a strip of lemon rind. When the fruit is tender pass it through a sieve, keeping back the skins. Add to the pulp the beaten yolks of two eggs and sugar to sweeten. Line a deep pie-dish with good paste, tuck in the gooseberry mixture, and bake. Make a meringue of the whites of the two eggs, beaten stiff and sweetened with two tablespoonsful of powdered sugar. Fill lightly on the pudding, set in the oven to brown the meringue lightly, and serve hot or cold.

ORANGE ICE

Squeeze the juice of six oranges and the juice of one lemon into a bowl. Let stand until the sugar is completely dissolved, then strain, and pack in ice and salt, and freeze. When frozen to a pulpy mass, work in the beaten whites of two eggs.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by all dealers.

Joker's Corner

Willie—"Paw, what is a boy scout?" Paw—"A woman of thirty who chases a youth of eighteen, my son."

"Some adjectives," said the teacher, "are made from nouns, such as dangerous, meaning full of danger; and hazardous, full of hazard. Can any boy give me another example?" "Yes, sir," replied the fat boy at the end of the form, "pious, full of pie."

The motorist emerged from beneath the car and struggled for breath. His helpful friend, holding an oilcan, beamed on him.

"I've just given the cylinder a thorough oiling, Dick."

"Cylinder!" howled the motorist. "That wasn't the cylinder; it was my ear."

An old colored man who could neither read nor write, and who had been found by his master to be deficient in his market-book account, blamed the butcher for tampering with his book. The gentleman of the house remonstrated by saying: "But, Tom, figures don't lie."

"No," answered the old man, "but liars do figger."

A very homely clergyman was severely battered in a railroad wreck, in which he suffered the loss of a foot. One day, soon after marrying a beautiful woman, the ill-used minister met an old friend on the street, who bantering asked how in the world such a pretty girl came to marry him.

"Oh, ladies like remnants!" was the cheerful reply.

"Was the sermon today to y'r liking, Pat?" inquired the priest.

"Troth, y'r Reverence, it was a grand sermon entirely," said Pat with a genuine admiration.

"What seemed to take hold of ye?" the priest inquired.

"Well, now, as ye are for axin' me, begorra, I'll tell ye. What tuck hold of me most was y'r Reverence's perseverance—the way ye wint over the same thing agin and agin and agin."

A country vicar is telling a story of an incident which happened in his church the other Sunday. During the sermon a baby began to cry, and its mother picked it up and began to carry it toward the door.

"Stop!" the vicar exclaimed. "Don't go away. The baby is not disturbing me."

The mother continued her way to the door with the remark: "Oh, he ain't, ain't he? But you're a-disturbin' of 'im!"

A Scotchman was riding a donkey one day across a sheep pasture, but when the animal came to an open drain he would not go over. So the man rode back a short distance, turned and applied the whip, thinking of course, that the donkey, when at top speed would jump the drain. But when the donkey got to the drain he stopped sharply, and the man went over his head, and cleared the drain. No sooner had he touched the ground than he got up, and looking the best straight in the face, said: "Verra weel pitched, but then, hoo are ye goin' to get over yerse!"

Sandy MacNab was a widower and had fallen in love with Eliza McFarlane, an elderly spinster, who lived in the next street. All his advances, however, were rewarded by cold rebuffs, and at last in desperation, asked the minister to put in a good word for him, so the next time the minister visited the lady he was bold enough to plead the cause of Sandy.

"Just think," he said, "how nice it would be to have a husband, some one to protect you and shield you from the cold blasts of a cruel world."

"A husband," replied the spinster sourly. "I dinna need ane. Why should I tak' a husband? Ma dog grows, ma parrot swears, and ma cat stays out a' night."

Robert Burns was once standing on a long pier on the water front of Edinburgh. A well-known and wealthy merchant, walking by, stumbling and fell into the water. He could not swim and so sank. When he arose for the third time nobody dared to save him, but an old weather-beaten sailor, at the risk of his own life, ran up the pier and, jumping in, rescued the man.

The gentleman had been worked over quite a while before he became conscious, and when he realized the situation he rewarded his rescuer with what in our money would amount to twenty-five cents. At this the crowd which had gathered, knowing his wealth, hooted and jeered. But Burns, who was standing by, quieted them and said: "Surely the gentleman knows what his life is worth!"

FAIRY TALES.

Once upon a time a large motor car passed slowly through the city.

"Do not let that bother you," said the landlord, "Your rent is only a few months overdue. There is no need for you to pay it for a year or two."

It so happened that once upon a time a man arrived at his home at four o'clock in the morning in a most boisterous condition, and was greeted pleasantly by his wife.

Once upon a time a waiter drew himself up haughtily and in deeply injured tones, exclaimed: "Sir, it is against my principles to accept tips. Your offer of money is an insult."
