The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

University of Windsor

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol $\rightarrow$ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

University of Windsor

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole $\rightarrow$ signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

I. March 5, a partial eclipse of the Sun, invisible to the greter part of British North America—it will be seen at Labrador, Newfoundland and Greenland.

II. March 19, a total eclipse of the Moon, part of which will be visible in the British Provinces:—

Last contact of Limbs	- 9	0	2 p. m.

The ingress will be visible from the greater portion of Europe and Asia, the whole of Africa and South America—the egress from the western extremity of Europe, the greater part of Africa and North America and the whole of South America.

NOTE.—The planet may be seen on the Sun's disk, if it be a fair day, through a piece of smoked glass.

EXPLANATION OF THE CALENDAR PAGES.

COLUMN 1st and 2d, contain the days of the month and of the week. 3d and 4th. The rising and setting in mean time, of the highest point, or of the upper limb of the sun, corrected for refraction.

5th. Days length in hours and minutes.

6th. The Equation of Time (or quantity by which the Sun is slow or fast of the clock) at noon, apparent time (not mean) at Greenwich, or at a quarter before eight in the morning at Halifax. The interval of time between the Sun being on the meridian or southing, on one day, and his being on the meridian or southing there next day, is not always the same; and, therefore, solar days are not equal in duration; about one-half are a little more, and about one-half are a little less than 24 hours. A clock regulated by the Sun, or the Sun-dial, would need frequent adjustment; to avoid this, an imaginary Sun is supposed to move, so that the interval of time between its consecutive passages over the meridian is always the same, viz., 24 hours; such a time represents a mean solar day, and it is the average of all the apparent solar days in a year. The difference of time between the imaginary Sun and the true Sun passing the meridian, is called the "Equation of Time," the amount of which at noon on every day, is inserted in this column. There are only four days in the year when apparent and mean time are the same, or the Equation of Time is nothing. In this year these days are April 15, June 15, Sept. 1, and Decr. 24. Between April 15 and June 15, and between Sept. 1 and Decr. 24, the imaginary Sun follows the true Sun, and the Equation of Time is subtractive; the true time being earlier than that shown by the Sun. Between June 15 and Sept. 1, and between Decr. 24 and April 15, the imaginary Sun precedes the true Sun, and the "Equation of Time" is additive. By the assistance of the numbers in this column, a clock can be set by a Sun-dial as follows. When fast is placed above the number opposite to the day, then the clock ought to be set fast on the time shown by the Sun-dial, and when slow is above the numbers, the clock ought to be set so much slower. Example:—when the sun shows noon on the Sun-dial on June 1, and July 1, what are the true times? On June 1, from the Almanack, the Equation of time is, subtract 2m. 28s., therefore the clock should be 2m. 28s. before noon; so the true time is 11h. 57m. 32s. A. M. On July 1, the Equation of time is, add, 3m. 30s., therefore the clock should be 3m. 30s. afternoon, or the time is 0h. 3m. 30s. P. M. The greatest difference between mean time (common clock time) and apparent time (time by the Sun-dial) occurs on the 3rd Nov., and it is 16m. 16s. subtractive. On the 12th Feby. the greatest additive difference occurs, viz. 14m. 33s.

7th. The Sun's declination, for the same as the Equation, 6th column.

8th. The rising or setting of the Moon. The setting being given from the New Moon to Full, and her rising from Full to New Moon.

9th. The place of the Moon in the Ecliptic.

10th. The time of the Moon's southing, or passing the meridian.

11th. Days increase or decrease in hours and minutes.

The top of the columns of each month shows the moon's phases, or the times of new and full moon, and of the first and last quarters, or two quadratures with the sun.

The FARMER'S CALENDAR is placed at the foot of the columns of each month.

of that tide which immediately precedes the southing of the moon. These four columns being computed on the supposition, that the time of High Water on the days of New and Full Moon (L'établissement du port) is 24. Between Halifax, 7h. 15m.—at Annapolis, 10h. 45m.—at Charlotte Town, 10h. 15m.—and at Windsor, and St. John, N. B. 11h. 45m. All the calculations in this Calendar are made to mean solar time; a mode of computation now in general use, and which will very soon supersede the old mode of reckoning. Mean time can be converted into apparent time, by subtracting the quantity in the sixth column of the left hand calendar pages, when the Sun is slow of clock, and adding it when fast.

Next to man's duty of providing for himself and household, is that of relieving, to the extent of his power, the wants of his fellow men in general,—and next to that, is the duty, (to say nothing of interest,) of protecting and nourishing the animals placed under his care, and from which his own comforts are so largely derived. Winter is indeed a season of gloom and unhappiness to those who are in need of food, raiment and shelter and in truth, however well provided the farmer and his family may be in these respects; if he has the common sympathies of humanity, he will find himself a stranger to peace of mind, while any of the animals dependent on him, are miserable from hunger or exposure; but let every individual of his flocks and herds, receive the full care and attention requisite to their comfort and enjoyment, and a consciousness of this will enable the owner to rest quietly on his pillow, though the storm may howl and rage around. A test of good management is well exhibited in the manner a farmer carries his stock through the winter—when an animal is kept comfortable, it keeps fat; when it suffers, flesh wastes. If an animal shivers in the cold, shelter it in stables or sheds; if damp and dirt annoys it, curry it and give it clean litter. Besides the cutting and collecting wood and timber, and other business usually done in the winter, the farmer may do much in this season, towards forwarding the labors of spring.

Although the farmer is sometimes prevented from carrying on out door operations by the severity of the weather, his time during this season may be as profitably employed as in any other part of the year. The leisure now enjoyed, permits his mind to be directed to subjects of interest, and importance which he had not the opportunity to examine thoroughly, when more busily engaged. He has now time for studying and laying plans for future operations—time for reading and for investigating the principles on which his art is based,—a knowledge of which enables him to direct his labors understandingly. By reading he acquires information as to the state and condition of agriculture everywhere. In relation to the different branches of husbandry he notes well the practices of others, and carefully compares them with his own—resolving to improve his system by adopting whatever is applicable to his circumstances. While prosecuting inquiries, however, he should avoid a credulous assent to untried schemes and theories. Though he should examine freely, he should apply cautiously—he should endeavour to “prove all things, and hold fast that which is good”—counsel, which though originally given in reference to spiritual concerns, should be held as a motto in all temporal affairs. Have good feeding racks, and save a quarter of the hay otherwise trodden underfoot; one ton lost in every four, is five in every twenty, which would soon pay for many good racks. Mix cut or chopped hay with straw, and with meal and roots, and save much hay with fine cattle to boot—chop corn stalks fine, that cattle may eat all—get a good straw cutter and keep it going—Fodder cattle regularly, give them water at all times and plenty of salt.

Finish all winter jobs before the driving work of spring comes on—get tools, implements, and every thing else in readiness for the business of the approaching season—see that ploughs, carts, harrows, rakes, and other things, are in good order and fit for work—and clevises, chains, hoes, and spades, are all in their places, that men and teams may not stand idle by half hour searchers. Let all firewood be drawn, cut up, and housed for use during the coming summer, so that good dry wood may be always at hand, with no interruption to other work, and a smoky kitchen.

fore eyes, delayed meals, and work behind hand, all from wet wood, entirely prevented. Fences should be repaired as soon as the weather will permit, rails laid up, loose boards nailed to posts, and gates well hung, in freely swinging, self-shutting and self-latching order. Look after cows about to calve, give them a warm place well littered, and keep calves separate from the cows, except for a short time while sucking; many a splendid cow has been dried up and spoiled by running with the calf.
Give sheep good protection and plenty of food, but not too much.
Pick over decaying apples—procure fencing stuff—tread snow round the fruit trees—thrash the grain early and cheat the rats.
When the studding is good keep your teams going drawing wood, manure, and if practicable, peat or swamp muck to spread over your barnyard to mix with manure.

It is a matter of astonishment that at this day, after so great improvements have been made in agriculture, and so much light thrown upon the subject by scientific men of almost every country, any should be found, who will not give assent to the doctrine of rotation; or who will not admit that a judicious system of alternation of crops should be adopted by every one who would cultivate the earth with success. Yet there are thousands who still cling to the old way of cropping their fields continually with the same kind of grain or plant, until they hardly make a return of the seed they have received—to such men farming will prove to be a sinking business—these too, are the very men whom we always hear finding fault with their crops, and almost charging the Wise Dispenser of all things, as being less favorable with them than with some of their more wise and prudent neighbours.

 No man ought to expect a return for his labour, unless he give back to the soil, in some form, a part at least, of what he takes from it. It is to obviate in a great measure the evils consequent upon the practice of taking all, and returning nothing to the land, that is proposed to be effected by the rotation system. By heavy manuring and high cultivation, land may be made to produce one kind of grain, perhaps abundantly, for a number of years in succession—but the soil cannot without great expense of labour and manure, produce two or three crops of a kind without a perceptible falling off in the product. Spade round young fruit trees, and keep the ground clear and mellow round them.

Unless compelled by scarcity of winter food, we should not generally turn stock to pasture till the grass has started so as to afford what farmers call "a good bite." If animals only get a little grass, and that of a watery nature, as the first growth generally is, it takes away the appetite for other food without giving much nourishment in its place—besides, grass lands, while in a soft or unsettled state, are injured by being trodden or poached by stock—this is perhaps the greatest objection to turning out early, or before the soil gets firm; though sheep from their comparative lightness, do much less injury than heavy stock. best not to turn working oxen to grass till they have done their "spring work."—they will perform labor much better when fed on good, bright soft hay, with two or three quarts of meal from Indian Corn, barley, or oats and peas, with a few potatoes, carrots, and other succulent vegetables than when fed on the young grass. It takes some time for the animal system to accommodate itself to the change from dry to green food, or from hay to grass, and the first growth of grass, besides being deficient in nutriment, is likely to weaken animals. Sheep may be pastured on rye for a short time, if it is pretty forward, without injury to the crop, and with very great advantage to the sheep, especially to nursing ewes. In case of a scarcity of other feed they may be turned on dry meadows. Look out for weeds.

ing varieties of fruit that are capable of being cultivated in our climate; the elegance of form and beauty of colour displayed by many of them; and above all their delightful fragrance and exquisite flavour; it may well be asked, what objects more demand our constant and fostering care? Nor is the value of fruit at all lessened when we view it as a means of increasing our wealth. The culture of flowers has a very important bearing on national virtue and prosperity—every man who has a family should seriously examine the question whether his duty to his children, should not prompt him to encourage a proper share of the culture of flowers—the time spent on their cultivation is in no sense of the word wasted—they contribute to our pleasures; they add to our knowledge of nature; they unfold to us the mysteries of the beautiful; and tend to humanize and elevate the mind.

Every farmer may effectually be his own banker if he chooses. he has the right, he has the power, he has the means at his own command, and by the exercise of this right, this power and these means, he can be benefitted far more than by any investment of capital in Banks—the bank alluded to is the Farmer's Bank of Manure, the location in his own barn-yard—this is a bank that can never fail, can never be insolvent. He subjects himself to no protest, he lives in no fear of a suspension of discounts, he needs no bolts, bars, or locks to secure him from the robber, there is no Cashier to tell him when he presents himself to this bank for means to carry on his farming operations that a discount is required to grant him a favor, or to tell him his endorser is not good or sufficient. He is not confined to a limited number of days, with a little grace beyond it; and when he draws his check, he has no fear of being told that there is not any funds placed to his credit. Then let every farmer, if he has not done so already, securely arrange his barn-yard in such a manner that none of the deposits can be squandered until he removes them himself. If the farmer owns stock in this bank he suffers no perplexity or anxiety of mind as to the forthcoming dividends—Beware of all other Banks! do not be drawn into their snare. There is a class of men and business which these Banks may perhaps benefit; but the farmers, they can never benefit, as will their own Bank, The Farmer's Bank of manure.

In many parts of the country the dairy is such an object, and it is so desirable to have a living machine that can convert, in abundance and perfection, the food it consumes, to so useful, so profitable, and so essential an article, as milk, that the breed the most distinguished for that property must always be in great demand—but whether a particular breed should be kept entirely for that purpose, or whether it is preferable to have stock partly calculated for the butcher, and partly for the dairy, is a point well entitled to the most deliberate consideration. The excellence of a dairy cow is estimated by the quantity and quality of her milk.

and the quality of the milk is estimated by the quantity of butter that it will yield—much depends on the quality of the food, but more on the animal. If cows are ever allowed to fall away during winter, in vain shall we hope to obtain an abundant supply of milk by bringing them into high condition in the summer; for if a cow be lean at the time of calving, no management afterwards, will ever bring her to yield for the season anything like the quantity of milk that she would have done, had she been the while in high condition. An ordinary cow fed on young lover should give for the first three months after calving, from 5 to 18 quarts of milk per day, which will produce, if of good quality, 1½ lbs. of butter—or nearly 9 lbs. per week. Continue to drive your haying and harvesting. Cut wheat a few days before it becomes dead ripe and it will make more and better flour.

Although the advantages of draining are almost universally conceded, yet, how rare it is, to see well drained or thoroughly reclaimed swamps, or wet, lowlands. Such lands, abounding almost every district, when neglected, are not only unproductive and unprofitable, subtracting materially from the value of a farm, but are unsightly, and more or less prejudicial to health. On the contrary, when reclaimed, such lands, of all others, are the most interesting and productive. They have been depositories of freshets and floods for ages, and have received more or less of the manure and surface soil gradually carried from time to time from the surrounding knolls and hill sides. When thorough ained and stirred up by proper cultivation, and the inert vegetable substance brought into action by the application of the usual composing agents, such lands are distinguished for their enduring fertility. FENCES have become as diversified and various as they are useful or necessary—the common worm-fence is in general use throughout the country and has become an absolute nuisance and an annual tax upon the farmers—this fence is made of rails to a pannel, the worm 4 or 5 feet wide, stakes set out 2 feet at the corners; one foot more may be added which cannot be ploughed, making 10 feet of land in all, occupied by fence. Such a fence, on a farm of 100 acres, divided into fields of 10 acres each, will occupy about six acres of land—the scarcity of poles, will however, we hope, make this kind of fence give way to something more neat and economical. Corn sown late for fodder should be timely secured, mow it, and let it dry by sweating in small cocks

As a science, agriculture includes in all its branches a knowledge as extensive, and as difficult completely to master, as many of the learned professions. There are doubtless many who have far excelled in some of its ramifications, but very few who have attained that perfection which places them beyond the point of being taught. It is a pursuit which offers the liberal mind opportunities for research and experiments which are denied him in almost every other branch of science, but let him devote his enthusiastic toil to agriculture, and if he does not make some important discovery, he may go far towards arranging the thousand and discordant facts which have been handed down from time memorial. It is to be regretted that there is not among the majority of farmers, a more inquisitive spirit in regard to the nature of the objects with which they are so intimately connected, and from which they expect to derive, not only their subsistence, but their hope of gain. The leading object of agriculture, is to increase the quantity, and improve the quality, of the productions of the soil, and to do it with the least expenditure, or in other words, with the greatest profit, without impoverishing the soil. In order to accomplish this, resort must be had to experiments, and here again opens a wide and extensive field. The leading principles of agriculture are ever the same; animal and vegetable matter, after decomposition, furnish food for plants, while heat, air, and moisture, aid in nutrition.

One of the most important subjects that can arrest the attention of our farmers, especially such as have yet to provide their farm buildings, is the position, plan, and construction of their houses &c. The position of the buildings on the farm, with reference to roads, convenience, or health, is a matter of much moment—the fashion so prevalent of forcing all the buildings into the road, or as near it as possible, without reference to the condition, or wants of the farm, is a very great error, and shows a deplorable want of taste and judgement—the less a farmer omits his family have to do with the road, except for necessary purposes, the better for all concerned. Another point should be well considered in fixing the location of the buildings for the farm; and that is the arrangement in such a way as to reduce the farm labor as much as possible. Health is another thing which must not be overlooked in the situation and construction of farm buildings. All low, sunken, swampy places should be carefully drained. Good, pure water, is of the first importance, and no expense should be considered too great to ensure a permanent and ample supply. Convenience and comfort in the plan of the house is of much consequence, and should never be overlooked; with these should be combined the elegance and taste, so desirable in every farm establishment. Public opinion is fast banishing the huge two story "shingle palaces," that once were so fashionable as farm houses, and the far neater, compact, and comfortable cottage style of buildings, is fast taking their places throughout the country.

The favorable opportunity for reading and study, afforded by the long evenings of this season of the year, it is hoped will be duly improved by farmers. It is important that the farmer should acquaint himself, as thoroughly as possible, with the natural laws which constitute the basis of the art by which he obtains his livelihood; and the more his practice is made to conform to these unerring laws, the greater will be his success. Beside studying the principles of his art, the farmer should keep himself constantly advised of the improvements and discoveries in every department of rural economy, which are made from time to time.

The Publisher returns thanks for the various lists furnished for Almanack, and the suggestions which have, whenever it could be done, not interfere with previous arrangements, been attended to. Several lists corrections were received too late to be inserted in the body of the work most important are noticed above. The very large and increasing circulation of the Farmer's Almanack renders it necessary to commence the printing of it early in the year—the Publisher would therefore like to have come lists from the different Counties, in future, from those correspondents, have heretofore kindly furnished them, much earlier than they have been heretofore furnished.

This Society has now being favorably known in Nova Scotia in period of eight years, during which time it has enrolled among its policyholders, many of the most influential and respectable persons in Province.

The benefits which have accrued to the families of some of the assured who have been removed by death, and the claims on whose Policies have been promptly paid in cash, (during the period above mentioned), the strongest, because the most practical, arguments in favor, not merely of the practice of Life Insurance but of Insurance in a well established office, like the National Loan Fund Society of London. The fact of this being an English office of tried and acknowledged high reputation are sufficient guarantees for its liberal and honorable dealing. Premiums in this Office are low.

The Local Board are empowered to accept proposals and issue temporary Policies (binding on the Society till a stamped Policy is received without referring to the Court of Directors in London.

No charge is made for Medical certificate, and if wished Policies can be obtained without the charge for stamp duty.

Thirty days allowed for the payment of premium after the Policy falls due, without forfeiture of Policy.

Pamphlets containing the Society's rates of premium and every information as to the different modes of Insuring may be had gratis on application to the undersigned.

Examiner, R. S. BLACK, Esq., M. D. Office, No. 210 Hollis

The above Company stands high in England, as a proof of which the number of their Policies are largely increasing, their rates and privileges favorable as any other London Society, and the proportion of their profits given to the Policy holders greater than any other, being 10 per cent of the whole. The great benefit of Life Insurance to all classes of persons and especially to those beginning the world with small means, is daily becoming of greater importance, and as it becomes better understood will no doubt be much more generally attended to. A Celebrated Writer states "that nothing is more uncertain than the life of any single individual, and it is a sense of this insecurity that has given rise to Life Assurance Societies, and in answer to objections sometimes urged as to its propriety, as implying a want of reliance on Divine Providence, the same writer observes that "provisions made by Life Assurance are generally of so moderate a character as to be in perfect consistency with the spirit of Christianity, and strictly comes within the limits of that providing for his own household which who ever neglects is worse than infidel," no prudent man of property neglects to make his will while in health, the christian Merchant insures his Vessel or Cargo against loss by sea and his Houses and Stores against loss by fire, and neither of these provisions are deemed inconsistent with his Christian Character, but a exercise of that prudence which God commands to be employed, and easy to prove that Life Assurance is likely to be a great preservative against an over anxious care after worldly things which is so often injurious to the Christian Professor, it is particularly recommended to all Young Men, or to those intending to enter that honourable Estate, to take out a Life Policy while in good health, as it will be the best security when health is lost. They will receive every information and attention from the Society's Agent at Halifax.
