Laurier's Absence From House Said to Mean His Disagreement With Party and Opposition to Obstruction

LOCAL DOCTORS IMPRESSED BY GERMAN'S WORK

Approve of Friedmann's Methods and Technique and Look For Favorable Results.

WATCHING OUTCOME

And When Efficacy of Serum Is Proven All Tubercular Patients Will Be So Treated.

The Toronto doctors who observed Dr. Friedmann's demonstration in the city on Friday were without exception impressed favorably.

The most critical and exacting sciertist among the Toronto physicians approved of the cleanliness and precision of the German doctor's clinical technique. They admired his deftness, his great care in sterilization and in the use of antiseptics, and they felt his sincerity and earnestness. They appreciated his high scientific attainments. which are beyond doubt. They earnestly hope that his antitoxin for tuberculosis will prove to be. as effective as Dr. Friedmann himself

Dr. Friedmann himself was greatly pleased with the friendliness of his reception here, and delighted with the arrangements made by Toronto doctors and by the medical faculty of the university for his demonstration. Since he landed in America he has not received anywhere so much consideration as in Toronto, and has not had, even in New York, such typical cases, and such facilities for rapidly treating a large number of patients. These facilities for quick work are greatly appreciated by Dr. Friedmann, whose natural wish it is to make as many tests as possible in the shortest possible time. In Ottawa the demon-strator was displeased by the lack of facilities and the small number of patients collected by the doctors.

Dr. Allan Adams, of 335 Jarvis street, who assisted at Dr. Friedmann's clinics here, told The Sunday World that he did not expect his chronic tuberculosis patients who received injections of the new serum on Friday to show any definite results is observing his cases closely.

"Dr. Friedmann's earnestness and his thoroly scientific methods impressed me favorably toward him," said Dr. Adams, "and all the medical men who witnessed his clinics were similarly impressed, I think. I have my own patients, who were treated under very close observation, naturthing yet. Later on, if my patients show improvement, I will freely give information about their condition. As soon as medical men have sufficient data upon which to form a favorable opinion as to the efficacy of the serumali tubercular patients will be treated with it, and it will be used in the same way as other anti-toxins are used. Dr. Friedmann seems to be absolutely certain of its curative character. It is possible that he may have convincing data which he is holding back."

Dr. Friedmann himself sald on Friday evening that his Toronto clinic was the most successful and satisfactory he had ever conducted. The success of the clinic was due very largely to the system of registration of tuber-culosis cases at the medical health department, and to the system of visiting nurses under Miss Dyke. Dr.

Even If Closure is Applied Liberals May Attempt to Force Election on Demand for Redistribution

OTTAWA, March 15.—The situation in the house of commons changes every hour, but still two or three things stand out more and more in bold relief. The first is that the opposition might in a short time weaken in their obstruction; the second is that if they do not some sort of a closure will be attempted; and the third thing is that if the opposition weaken in their obstruction and if a closure is put in force they will never-theless continue to delay proceedings and try and force an election on the demand for a redistribution based on the recent census, and which redistribution would increase the representation of the west and somewhat reduce the representation of the east. The Liberals believe that on this issue they can talk for weeks more if they have to, and that they can delay the government in getting supplies.

All the strength, therefore, is not on the one side, and the desirability of some kind of compromise in regard to the naval vote and the policy in connection with it, and some kind of reasonable program in connection with the unfinished business of the house is all the more pressing, and is recognized most by those who have had the greatest experience in parliament. Outside of parliament there is a widespread feeling that the action of the house in the matter of the naval vote should be unanimous if this be at all possible.

They Favor the South York Compromise. A representative Liberal said to The World on Saturday forenoon: "Threefourths of the Liberals of Ontario are, in favor of the compromise suggested by Mr. Maclean of South York.'

First Knockdown For Opposition When It Is Decided That Principle of Bill Can't Be Discussed.

MANY VOTES TAKEN

Government Is Trying to Hold Liberals to the Point, But Rulings and Appeals Consume Time.

(By Tom King.) OTTAWA, March 15 .- Mr. Borden is cometimes described by his friends as having an iron hand in a velvet glove. If this be true it must be admitted by friends and foes alike that he came to the house last night without his gloves. He took charge of affairs almost immediately after Mr. Rogers had suddenly announced the coming of suddenly announced the coming of closure and remained in possession of the house until early morning.

First and foremost upon his motion came the ruling that the principle of the bill could not be further discussed. Scarcely had the opposition recovered from this knock down when a crushing blow for the moment threw them over the ropes entirely. This was them over the ropes entirely. This was nothing less than another motion that the Laurier amendment and the Mc-Kenzie sub-amendment were out of order.

Widened the Discussion.

By this time it was 4 o'clock in the morning, and the Liberals were restricted to very narrow limits so far as any discussion was concerned. Hugh Guthrie of Wellington proposed an amendment to the effect that the dreadnoughts must be built in Canada. This amendment was ruled out of order at daylight, and Mr. Pugsley moved that the committee adjourn.

In support of this amendment, Mr. Sinclair, the Liberal member for Guysboro, N.S., recited the many public works in his riding for which money was needed. ### WITH IRON HAND Opposition Fox Between The River and the Wall

GOVERNS HOUSE Government Pressing Liberals Hard and Fight Has Become So Bitter That Comprom se Seems Unlikely-Garrison Finish of a Dull Week.

(By Tom King).

OTTAWA, March 15.—Events have been moving swiftly since 11 o'clock last night. If the government were too lenient during nearly all of the past fortnight, they have suddenly swung to the other extreme and are pressing the opposition hard. It looks at noon today as the the fox was standing between the river and the wall.

Still is must be admitted that the opposition is resourceful and by no means inclined to surrender. They can probably prolong the present deadlock until midnight, and the Coderre charges on Monday may give them additional rest and time for preparation and enable them to successfully hold up the naval bill in committee until the Easter adjournment.

Except for this garrison finish, the week has not been eventful. There was, of course, the publication of the Churchill correspondence on Monday, and the somewhat sensational encounter between Mr. Crothers and Mr. Pugsley on Friday last.

Apart from these, the news item of the week was the effort of W. F. Maclean (South York) to bring about a good understanding on the problem of naval defence between the two parties to the end that Canadians might present upon this important question a united front to the empire and to the world. His proposal was heartily seconded by Hon. Charles Marcil, but now the fight has become so bitter and intense that no compromise seems to be possible. The one question now is whether the Liberals can, by resisting closure and holding up estimates, force an appeal to the country.

a crowd, however successfully, runs the risk of being hoisted by his own petard. The Liberals are claiming that Mr. Borden and his policy have been struck by a piece of the shell, but, however that may be, the prime minister undoubtedly exploded a bombshell with terrific effect in the house of commons last Monday night. The reading of the Churchill correspondence and memoranda completely surprised and, for the time at least, completely disconcerted the opposi-

The scene was extremely dramatic. Indeed, the Liberals, not without bit-terness, say it was exceedingly "well staged." All afternoon and all evening of that eventful day, the orators of the opposition had insisted that Mr.
Borden was withholding from the house some portions of the Churchill correspondence which might be of benefit to their contention. They had all along regarded the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill as the white-haired boy cause of his significant speech at the Shipwrights' dinner. Some of them inadvertently called it the "Fishwaves" dinner," but that is a detail. In that particular speech Mr Churchill apparently declared for colonial navies to be co-ordinated with the imperial fleet. Not unnaturally the Liberals contended that he sided with them in believing that a Canadian navy was the one thing needed, and even went. so far as to say that the memorandum of the admiralty, presented to the house upon the first reading of the naval bill, had been extorted from the flery young sea-lord by "duress."

Now, in the Churchill correspondence, as first made public, it was evident that the prime minister had used his blue pencil freely. Indeed, it was a meagre deliverance and the asterisks denoting omissions were more in evidence that the original text.

Why These Omissions?
Something evidently had been suppressed, and suppression, like secrecy, is somtimes a badge of fraud. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was good enough to suggest that Mr. Borden had not used the blue pencil with conscious unfair-ness, but insisted upon the maxim that no one should be the judge in his own case. There was no telling what the impulsive young sea-lord might have written. The prime minister, Sir Wil-

Votes For Women

Movement.

The breaking-up of political meetings was bad enough, raids on the house of commons were worse; but they were regarded with more or less tolerance by the mass of the public. Now it looks as if we were in for a period of anarchy which will simply irritate the ordinary citizen beyond endurance. It is all very well for Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Drummond to assert that they are out simply to annoy and pester cabinet ministers, and have no hope or intention of endangering human life, but bombs are arguments and annoyances which cannot be disissed in that offhand way. Besides. Drummond were anxious for nyone to attach importance to her rotestations she should be more arded in her exultation when anyhing more than ordinarily disquieting occurs. First to state that hu-man life is sacred and then clap one's hands at an action which might pos-ably have killed a dozen men, speaks too much of hypocrisy.

Creates Morbid Craving.

And the worst of it is that this kind of thing becomes a disease. It creates a morbid craving for excitement and risk in the minds of those who indulge risk in the minds of those who indulge in it, and, if once the militant partisans who have pledged themselves for "active service" are blessed (?) with a few successes in such enterprises, all the plous admonitions and smirking warnings of their leaders will not keep them in check.

Apart from all this, however, the matter is of deepest moment to the er is of deepest moment to the sitself. The demand for votes or women is based upon the principle that, as women are equally respon-sible with men for creating the wealth, prosperity, and happiness of the nation, they should have an equal share in the administration of government. In short, it is the fundamental principle of democracy. Rightbelieve that, or, if they do, the tter does not strike them as being portant enough to worry about. I is a serious matter to any nation when one sex, because of its sex, is kept from exercising thought and power on national problems. But there it is. Men have the power to give or withhold the franchise to women, and they choose to withhold it.

Ministers Scapegoats.

Liberal cabinet ministers have been made the scapegoats for this. They have been alternately cursed, taunted and ridiculed. But why? I have no brief for Liberals, cabinet ministers or otherwise, but I think the movement has been unjust in blaming them for not giving women the vote. As a matter of fact I would like to see the present government defeated at once. In my opinion it is the worst government we have had for a long, long time, but not because of its attitude on the question of votes for women.

And the electorate means the common man whom one meets in the street, or in the theatre, or at meetings and debates and all kinds of functions, political or otherwise.

Do suffragettes realize all there is yet before them? Think of the hundreds and hundreds of thousands of women who are frankly indifferent. Think of the enormous number who are opposed. Here is the field for propaganda. Once convince the women of the necessity for the parliamentary franchise and there will be mentary franchise and there will be little to fear from either men voters or members of the government. The in-dividual woman will tackle the individual man and do it far more ef-fectively than the W. S. P. U. members, with all their waste of energy, Can ever hope to do.

But it will not be done by either hreats or violence—petty or serious. I think it's grand," remarked Mrs. orumnond with enthusiasm; "it shows the determination of women. When Mr. Lloyd George learns that when Mr. Lloyd George learns that his house has been wrecked he will realize that things are getting sertous." Will he? Perhaps he will. But the seriousness of the situation will not affect Lloyd George overmuch. The serious part of the business is how it will affect the cause Mrs. Drummond professes to serve Mrs. Drummond professes to serve.

It looked for a moment like a col-lapse. Not since Mr. Fielding dramatically announced the reciprocity agreement has an opposition been for the time more completely stampeded.

Mr. Turriff, be it said to his credit, got to his feet; he struck out blindly, but he did strike out. Indeed, he gave the cue, if somewhat crudely, to the opposition campaign directed against the British minister and British in-British minister and British interference in Canada, which raged with no little violence on the following

Who Is Mr. Turriff?

Mr. Turriff was Dominion land commissioner when Hon. Clifford Sifton was minister of the interior, and during the parliament which was elected in 1904 was constantly subjected to a galling fire from the Conservative op-position. He and Mr. Adamson, Mr. Burrows and Hon. Clifford Sifton were under fire on many occasions and many will still recall the systematic many will still recall the systematic campaign conducted against alleged iniquities in timber leases by Mr. H. B. Ames of Montreal. In 1908 Mr. Turriff was re-elected by his constituents and to that extent vindicated. During the succeeding parliament he seemed somewhat out of sympathy with the Laurier government, taking and maintaining a somewhat inde-pendent attitude. The reciprocity issue brought him back to his party and again brought him back to par-liament. Personally he may not favor the Laurier two-fleet unit plan any more than the Borden gift—his constituents favor neither he tells usbut he is taking an active part in the present deadlock and debate. The first lively set-to in the deadlock came yesterday afternoon when an ex-minister of the crown accused a cabinet minister of having spoken in the house when intoxicated. The charge was withdrawn, but having been made it is only fair to say that there has been little drinking, if any, and there has certainly been no drunkances among members of parliament enness among members of parliament during the present contest. Both sides seem to be in deadly earnest and maintain almost military discipline. Neither have there been any outbursts of bad temper or displays of violence. Except for the rough-house yesterday, and it was merely noisy, not vitriolic the continuous sitting has been as dull and quiet as the proverbial millpond.
If closure is really attempted there may follow scores of violence and con-fusion. But, to date, good nature and good temper have made the deadlock uneventful,

The Wonder of the BUTTERICK PATTERN

THINK what it means to be privileged to model your garments upon patterns on which the highest priced designers in Europe and America have spent their splendid genius. What a contrast to the hap-hazard, six-months-behind-thetimes methods of only a few years ago! Having establishments of our own in Paris, Berlin, London and New York, we are at the birth as it were, of every new creation in the world of fashion. Our own designers then eliminate anything exaggerated or far-fetched and we at once offer the results to our Canadian patrons.

Practicability as well as smartness are the 10c first considerations given every Butterick pattern before we sell it to you. This is why you feel assured that your Butterick pattern is capable of being made up inexpensively and 15c into a garment graceful in line and the last

In our parlors may be seen the world's two greatest talking machines—the Victor Victrola and the Edison Phonograph, Amberola and new Disc Phonograph.

If you were to purchase a Victrola or Phonograph without first hearing both of them you might regret

If you heard one at one time, at one place, and the other at another time in another place, you could not thoroughly judge the respective merits of the two

BUT-

If you were to hear them both at the same place, at the same time, and under the same conditions, you could easily determine which instrument you preferred and would never have cause to regret your decision.

That is one reason why you should visit our Edison-Victor parlors to choose your instrument. Another is because of the comfort, convenience, accessibility, and service afforded by our Edison-Victor Department on the second floor of our new building. A main showroom and ten soundproof private rooms, with an ample staff to look after your every need, will mean something to those whose time is valuable, and who appreciate comford.

Daily Noon-Day Recitals.

We have daily recitals on the Victrola and Phonograph from 12 to 2 each noon, at which all the latest as well as the older records are played. You are cordially invited.

OUR FIRST SPECIAL

Spring Offering

This week we are going to make our first special spring offering to introduce some of the splendid new Parisian millinery trim-

A STUNNING NEW PARISIAN OSTRICH MOUNT, which has proved a most popular feather in Paris this Spring, and which we are sure will be equally popular in Canada, will be offered this week as a special. It follows in style the popular French plume. It is made in our own factory from the very best South African stock, hand-made throughout, beautifully curled, making an extremely smart hat trim. We make it in all the new colors, including their those, and d'Or, Gaby Cope, etc., etc. To make the Siren Mount a leader, 2.50 We make it in all the new colors, including Nell Rose, Argent, Capon we are offering it at the very special price this week of..... ANOTHER MOUNT, exceedingly popular in New York and which is absolutely new with us this spring, is marked at... 3.75 NEW HATS FROM PARIS AND NEW YORK. A very careful selection of the best models of trimmed and untrimmed hats shown in Paris and New York has resulted in an exquisite display of these

WIGG—ASSELSTINE.

A very pretty wedding took place at four o'clock on Tuesday the 4th inst., at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davis, 152 Lippincott street, when Geraldine Winaford, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Asselstine, was united in marriage by the Rev. Dr. Hincks, to Mr. Albert F. Wigg, son of Mr. F. Wigg, of Oshawa. The lovely bride looked charming in ivory duchess satin with coronet of orange blossoms and bridal veil, and was attended by Miss Blanch E. Wood. of Mimico. while the groom was assisted by Clarence R. Free-was a sating with nature's own process.

SEVEN-STOREY OFFICE BUILDING 400 FEET LONG, 200 FEET WIDE PART OF C. P. R.'S BIG WORK HERE

Two Freight Sheds Nine Hundred Feet Long, One Two Storeys High, and a Smaller Office Structure, Are All But Completed-Big Building Starts This Spring on Old Government House Site at King and Simcoe Streets-Nearly Five Millions Being Expended.

The C.P.R. are certainly doing big things with the good house property on West King street. Plans have been made for a large seven-storey office building with a frontage of 400 feet on King street and 200 feet on Simcoe street. This building will be directly alongside the tracks which feed the new freight sheds and be started this spring.

As a rule freight sheds are so constructed that they appear an eyesore to the citizens, but the C.P.R.'s new structures have a trim and neat appearance.

Two brick structures extend from just west of the new freight offices on

One building, which is to be confined to incoming freight, will be two storeys. Plunger elevators will be installed to convey the freight to and from the upper floor. The outgoing freight building, altho covering as much ground, will only have the one floor.

One feature, which will be hailed with delight by teamsters, is the new system of one long line of sliding doors, which fold up into a hood over the wagon which is receiving or delivering freight. The sides of the buildings are nothing but doors so constructed that a car can be unloaded from where it

THOROLD has now under course of erection manufacturing industries which will be completed at an early date, and which will more than double the number of hands now employed in the town, and also more than double the town's present pay-roll.

THOROLD had a population at a Dominion Census in June, 1911 of 2.196. Its present population is about 3,000, and within the next year its population should about double what it is now.

THOROLD is now served by the Grand Trunk Railway and the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway. The latter running from Port Dalhousie to Port Colborne branches off at Thorold to Niagara Falls, connecting at Niagara Falls and Welland with the Michigan Central and New York Central Railway Systems. The Canadian Pacific Railway, The Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway, The Wabash Railway, and the Pere Marquette Railway.

THOROLD will soon have the Canadian Northern Railway. The line has been surveyed, and the route approved by the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners. It runs through the south part of the town, and the depot will be close to Beaver Dams Heights. WHERE ARE THESE MEN

This is the New Townsite

On the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

Delacour is situated in one of the most thickly-populated and thriving farming sections of Alberta. It is on the Tofield to-Calgary Branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and is only twenty miles from Calgary.

We guarantee that this is the original townsite, for the station grounds, siding and road allowances have been approved and confirmed by the Dominion Railway Commission. The railway will reach Delacour shortly, and will be completed into Calgary this Spring.

Townsite Lots the Best Investment

Big realty profits have always been made by purchasers of townsites. You get in on the ground floor, and each improvement means an increase in value to every holder of a lot in the town.

The last townsite we sold-Swalwell--was only a farm a year ago. Now it has a railroad and over thirty places of business, and many of the purchasers of the townsite lots have already realized handsome profits in less than a year.

LOTS $1.00 PER FOOT UP—EASY TERMS.

Lots are now as low as $1:00 per foot, but a material advance is expected as soon as the railroad enters the town. A small cash payment secures your lots, and easy terms can be arranged on the balance.

Come in and let us show you the facts, or write or phone for full particulars of Delacour, on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

GOOD CHANCE FOR INVESTORS TO PICK UP STOCKS CHEAP

Excellent Opportunities Presented in the Canadian Stock Situation---Wall Street Com-

done little more than mark time during the past few days, the dearth of speculative activity precluding any material price changes. Several erratic movements have occurred in the specialties, but these have been the exception rather than the rule, and, on the whole, the market has evidenced an entire lack of initiative. The exigencies of the money stringency—funds being just as tight as ever—have been the leading factor contributory to the dull trading, and, until some relief from the tension is appa-rent, there is no hope of any improvement in this respect. The inter-national monetary situation is still fraught with danger, and will be so until after the conclusion of the Apri settlement in Europe. Meanwhile bankers are inclined to view the stock market with a little more favor, and the hint is being passed around that the clouds on the horizon are break-ing up, and that the very near future will probably see a slight easement, at least, in money conditions.

Good Stocks Are Cheap.

It is in times such as the present at bargain-day prices. It matters not what the immediate course of values N. B., and Halifax, N. S. may be, the trader who buys securi-tles of known merit at ruling levels, market and locks it in his strong lox, with the idea of hanging on until conditions have been bettered materially, will see big profits accrue on his purchase. There are many excellent preferred issues offering in the market at quotations which return as much as 6 1-2, 7 and 7 1-2 per cent, on the investment, with the practical surety that they will appreciate in price as soon as the money stringency is abatted. Brokers are advising their clients of the favorable opportunities now presented, and the man with ready money at hand will find many chances money at hand will find many chances to place it wisely, at the minimum risk, and yet, at the same time, where it will give a highly profitable interest 100,000 a year have been built up entirely on the mail order principle.

NEW YORK, March 15,—(Special.)

The London correspondent of The Evening Post cables the following comment on the financial situation:
At the close of a trying week the financial situation in Germany remains acute, but the feeling here is that the outcome still depends altogether on the course of continental politics. Granting that further serious war alarms can be avoided, Berlin should pull thru without a crisis. But there is no margin for accidents.

With almost complete unanimity, the financial press is more optimistic concerning the situation in internal politics. The Statist believes the cloud on the markets to be definitely lifting. The Economist dwells on Asquith's intimation that no formal entangling alliance exists with France and on the

Bad Feelings by Greeks Against Bulgarians

ATHENS, Greece, March 15.—Strong feeling against the Bulgarians is spreading with great rapidity among the Greek population, and only the strong hand of the government prevents a virulent outbreak.

The editor of the newspaper Chronos was sentenced today to a week's imprisonment for editorially denouncing Bulgarian avarice, and proceedings have been begun against several other persons for similar offences.

The irritation of the Greeks arose from the Bulgarians laying claim to great stretches of erstwhile Turkish territory which Greece considers hers by right of conquest.

Hull Chemist Invents Remarkable Machine Which Discharges Explosive Gases.

SUCCESSFUL TRIALS

New Invention Which Ignites Everything it Hits at a Distance of Five Miles.

LONDON. March 15.—A remarkable machine gun has been invented by Mr. Ernest Welsh, a Hull chemist. The gun, weighing about three hundredweight, is discharged by explosive gases, and it is claimed that it will send projectiles a distance of five miles, which will then ignite-whatever they hit. The gun is not unlike a Maxim in appearance, and the mechanism consists in part of three generators which manufacture three distinct gases. In the stopper there is a small sponge saturated with a certain fluid, which also gives off a gas; while there is, further, a supply of oxygen and hydrogen inside the cylinder. The cylinder rests on a plate, and by the setting into motion of a small electric motor situated on the right-hand of the gun the gases are exploded, and the projectile is propelled thru the muzzle. There is no recoil, and there is no pressure of the cylinder. All pressure is felt forward.

The nature of the gases is a secret

THE SACRED LAKE OF LIFE

P. Amaury Talbot the First European to Gaze Into the Holy Waters.

LONDON, March 15 .- In Southern Nigeria, Africa, there is a "Sacred Lake of Life," upon which, according to popular belief, depend the lives of 100,000 people. The first white men to look upon it are Mr. P. Amaury Talbot, a district commissioner, and Mr. Eakin, news of whose discovery has just been received. Heretofore the knowledge of the lake has been kept a jealously guarded secret from all Europeans, and not even the na-tives, with the exception of the high priests, had been allowed to approach the sacred water—the dwelling-place of the greatest diety of the race of the Ibibios, whose chief town is Ikot Obo.

And on it put a steeple.

His father was a Gallagher,
His mother was a Brady;
His aunt was an O'Shaughnessy, His uncle an O'Grady.

For he's a saint so clever; Oh! he gave the snakes and toads a twist, And banished them forever. The Wicklow hills are very high,
And so's the Hill of Howth, sir;
But there's a hill, much bigger still,
Much higher than them both, sir.
Twas on the top of this high hill

So success attend St. Patrick's fist,

St. Patrick preached his sarmint, And banished all the varmint. Oh, success, etc.

There's not a mile in Ireland's isle Where dirty varmin musters, And murdered them in clusters The toads went pop, the frogs went hop, Slap dash into the water, the snakes committed suicide To save themselves from slaughter. Oh, success, etc.

Nine hundred thousand reptiles blue He charmed with sweet discourses, And dined on them at Killaloe In soups and second courses,
Where blind worms crawling in the grass
Disgusted all the nation, He gave them a rise, which opened their eyes
To a sense of their situation.

Oh, success, etc.

No wonder that those Irish lads Should be so gay and frisky,
For sure St. Pat. he taught them that,
As well as making whisky;
No wonder that the Saint himself Should understand distilling, Since his mother kept a shebeen shop In the town of Enniskillen.

Oh, success, etc.

Oh, was I but so fortunate As to be back in Munster, 'Tis I'd be bound, that from that ground I never more would once stir. For there St. Patrick planted turf, And plenty of the praties;
With pigs galore, ma gra, ma store,
And cabbages—and ladies.

Then my blessing on St. Patrick's fist,

For he's the darling Saint, O!

Oh, he gave the snakes and toads a twist,

He's a beauty without paint, O!

The 1st, 2nd, 5th and 6th verses were written by Henry Bennett and Mr. Tolsken, of Cork, in 1814. The others were added later.

St. Patrick

St. George, St. Andrew and St. David are remote and even nebulous compared with the brilliant and intimate figure that Ireland presents to the world in St. Patrick. It is true St. George conquered the Dragon. But St. Patrick banished the snakes. Even if both stories are myths relief from snakes appeals more closely to the ordinary man' than escape from a Dragon. Very few have experienced Dragons, even domestically. Almost anybody is liable to see Snakes. So that St. Patrick attracts universal sympathy as a general and practical benefactor. St. Andrew and St. David suffer by comparison for lack of a popular exploit. St. Patrick excels in other ways. He has left considerable literature behind him, and associated with him, and the national imagination has been fired by the missionary heroism of his character and the magnanimity with which, a native of Gaul, he was able to give himself up to being an Irishman. He has always been associated in Ireland with a heroic period of her history. Naturally the English suppressed the facts. St. Patrick himself says: "My father was Calpurnius, a deacon, son of Potitus, a priest of the town Bonavem Taberniae. He had near the town a small villa Enon, where I became a captive." Bonavem was in Armoric Gaul, the present site of Boulogne-sur-Mer in Picardy, and was later known as Bononia. Taberniae marked it as belonging to the district of Tarvanna or Tarabanna, a celebrated city not far from Boulogne, the ruins of which are known as Terouanne. When Patrick was enslaved he was sent to the North of Ireland near Slemish, within sight of Scotland to which he could easily have escaped had that been his home. When he did escape he made his way south and passed thru England to France. His Keltic character as a French Briton or Breton placed him easily in touch with the Irish by whom he had been captured in one of the raids of Niall the Great. During the reign of Crimthann, A. D. 365, this Irish king swept over Britain, and he and his guards occupied London. He and Niall and Dathi had great navies for those days. In A. D. 388 Niall invaded and plundered Brittany and carried away captive into Ireland, Patrick, then a youth of sixteen, and his two sisters, Lupida and Darerca, with a host of others. Niall the Great never did anything so wonderful for Ireland, little as he may have dreamed it, than in bestowing upon her her patron saint.

Succoth as the Amorican captive was called was named Patricius on account of his noble birth, and Patrick he remains, noble in birth, noble in nature, noble in toil, typical of the best in Ireland, and a pattern for the Kelt in all times and places. The literature and learning of Ireland, its civilization, its government and laws, the military skill of its kings and generals, and the intelligence of the people must have appealed to a man of Patrick's temperament. They had everything but Christianity and he thought it well worth the sacrifice of his life if he could give them that. The extraordinary ability of the Irish has not ceased since the time of Patrick. It has frequently been the cause of anathemas in the sister nation. Time after time it has seemed to England that ruthless suppression and even extinction was the only remedy for such racial brilliance. Many English and some Irish even yet do not realize that such brilliance cannot be utilized in any kind of bondage. Such a race must be free to exhibit its best energies. And for 800 years Ireland has been made subject to another power. That the subjection is voluntary in some cases does not alter the fact that the best qualities are not developed in those even voluntarily subject. Like Patrick, the most brilliant have sought to escape from bondage and no country in the world but testifies to their brilliance in exile, whether forced or voluntary.

Ireland is nearer the ideal of an equal freedom with her sister nation than she has been for centuries. The cup has so often been dashed from her lips that no one will dare to say the sacramental draught of Freedom has been taken until it has actually been drained. England has had ample revenge for the subjugation which Niall accomplished fifteen centuries ago, and perhaps now the cycle has run its course, and the old unrest will be allowed to sink to peace. There is only one element of discord. We all know the advice St. Patrick would give the brothers of discord. And we all know also how the advice would be taken. Ulster's minority is a vexing problem, which arises largely out of the political party system. Had the Conservatives introduced home rule instead of the Liberals there would have been no discord. Rev. C. Silvester Horne, the wellknown English nonconformist, has pointed out that when the Scottish Temperance Bill required the support of the Ulster Presbyterian north of Ireland members, only David Hogg, the Presbyterian Nationalist member for Derry, voted for it. Not a single Unionist vote from the Presbyterian north was recorded for the bill at any stage. The "stalwarts," H. T. Barrie. Captain Craig, C. C. Craig, Sir. John Lonsdale, R. Thompson (Belfast), Mitchell Thomson and Arthur O'Neill voted "against the government." As long as Ulster is partisan before she is Irish there will be a little rift within the lute. But party exigencies have sometimes undergone swift meta

Ireland has never shown more ability in all departments of human activity than in the present generation. Could Pat rick return today he might well be proud of the race he had chosen to lead. In literature Irishmen lead the way. No English writer excels Shaw. The Keltic revival with Russell and Yeats and Moore, Standish O'Grady and Lady Gregory, and those so lately passed like Lionel Johnson and J. M. Synge, has marked new bounds. In law, oratory, music, politics, the army, the navy, the church, the schools, in science, art, philosophy. history, drama, commerce, journalism, Irishmen are nowhere in the second place. Nor have they failed to show their ability to regenerate and revitalize Ireland. The great co-operative movements, the new farming methods, the improved economic system growing up have wrought wonders already. And the old brilliance of the days of Patrick is apparent in other lands than England and other cities than London. America especially shows evidences of the Irish ability and character. But Irishmen abroad have yet to learn to follow the example of the Great Saint Patrick and make themselves at home, as cosmopolitan in Canada or in California as in London, as full of the unhindering spirit of humanity as Patrick when he turned once more from his native land to convert his captors. He warred and won with the sword of the spirit.

TOO STRONG FOR HIM

Spring Literature

We are in the mood already to welcome spring, despite the mildness of the winter. But as to the garden seeds, indeed it is none too early to think about them, and to purchase if you can come to a decision. The seed catalogs are so alluring! It is hard to select. Read a page and there is another page and another. And each is so convincing. One needs a large plantation to give the spring catalog scope, and to satisfy the eager hunger of the winter-satiated man and woman.

As we buy garden seeds we let the imag-ination revel in that which the seeds mean to us. We work the ground, plant, water, weed, watch, and finally see the tiny breaks in the earth, then the bit of green, then from day to day the stalk, the bud, and finally the lovely and sweet flower. And all the while we prove to ourselves that it is the man who is willing to delve that can really get most happiness from the blossom.

Real Fighting Ships

The Honorable Mackenzie King before the Canadian Club the other day deprecated the purpose of the Borden Government to build the "most powerful fighting machines afloat," . e. Dreadnoughts. Being a supporter of the Laurier policy he, of course, thinks we should have battleships but he is horror-stricken at the idea of them being great and effective

The Laurier program calls for two Dreadnoughts, Mr. Borden's three. We fancy, however, that Canadian people will not seriously object to having ships that can fight, now that the country has almost unanimously endorsed the idea of getting into the navy business. Mr Mackenzie King's preference probably would be for ships like the "Rainbow" and the "Niobe," not strong enough to do battle and not fast enough to get away from it. The purpose of the Borden plan has been, of course, to defend the empire against attack. While we know that Britain employs smaller ships for scouting it is going to be the powerful Dreadnoughts that will do the real execution in the event of war. Is Canada to be in the front of the battle or under the bed?

Stand By the Hydro

The railway committee of the legislature has refused to release the City of Stratford from its agreement to use Hydro, Electric power exclusively. The city wanted the advantages of the provincial system and became a member of a group of municipalities which contracted for a supply at a certain rate.

But the Canadian Northern Railway ap peared. It wanted to go into Stratford but insisted upon the right to sell power. Under the agreement with the Hydro Commission the city was prevented from accepting the terms. Stratford wants both the railway and cheap power. It ought to have both, but if it must throw away one boon as the price of securing another then surely the price is too much to

The Hydro Electric means too much for the municipalities of Western Ontario for the legislature to lightly regard the Stratford agreement and it is gratifying to know that only one voice was raised in the committee in favor of the amendment asked for by Stratford.

The same tendency to be blind to their own interests which led Stratford to propose to break away from the cheap power proposal seems to be moving the council men of Aurora and Newmarket to tie up the residents of those places to a private corporation and deprive not only themselves but all those in the surround ing district of the benefit of cheap power. There is no doubt in the case of Aurora and Newmarket that the councils have deliberately deprived the people of the opportunity of hearing the facts in the case.

Extravagance

Our first impulse is to rule out of court the person who denies the high cost of living. Dr. George K. Holmes, U. S. government expert, has figures to prove that the prices of many things are not unprecedented, but are high by reason of comparison with an era of low prices in the later years of the '80s and thruout the '90s. He shows for example, that the farm price of beef was higher from 1881 to 1885 and from 1896 to 1900 than in any subsequent year except 1911 and 1912. Other factors to which this government expert refers as being responsible for high living cost are the luxuries and pleasures now demanded as a matter of course by every one. During the last decade the scale of extravagance on which we live has risen equally with the increased cost of living. Dr. Holmes mentions the motion picture show, the card party prize the automobile tipping buy card party prize, the automobile, tipping, buy"Och hone, ech hone," which might you will get the same good treatment ing on credit and in small packages, buying by well be familiar to exiles from Erin. from me you got from Finn, for telephone and demanding free delivery as some But one must not be led away to the sound of your voice is pleasing of the changes in general habits, all of which fascinating topic of ancient Irish me." Each circle of dots represents 1 letter of the word and the number of dots in each circle determine the letter in its relation to the alphabet. For instance: A is represented by 1 dot because it is the fittletter in the alphabet, B is represented by 2 dots because it is the 2nd letter in the alphabet. Cis represented by 3 dots because it is the 3rd letter in the alphabet. Now, with these simple succession and a little patience you can soon have the puzzle solved. To give you a little assistance the last letter of the first word is M, because the circle contains 13 dots and M is the 13th letter of the alphabet. ave found the solution write your answer neatly on a piece of paper with your name and anything else you wish to say about the contest and send it in to us. send in the Correct or the Nearest Correct Answers; whose answers are the neatest and to the condition of the contest (read rules of contest below), will win the following 9th Prize, Mission Upholetered Rocker Value $10.00. 10th Prize, Violin. How much do you pay per mile for gasoline? The R. C. H. Motor was designed especially to take the car farthest on a gallon of gasoline.

Over in Europe, where gasoline is twice as expensive as in America, fuel economy has been the biggest question for automobile engineers. They found after exhaustive tests that a motor of small bore in proportion to stroke gave the best mileage per gallon of fuel.

European standards were carefully studied in designing the R. C. H. Motor, which has incorporated many of the best ideas of European engineers.

Some very careful tests have been made of gasoline mileage at the R. C. H. factory. The average of many of these tests showed at a speed of ten to fifteen miles per hour, 27.7 miles per gallon were obtained; at fifteen miles per hour, the mileage per gallon was the same; at twenty miles per hour, the mileage was 24.2; at twenty-five miles per hour it was 22.2 and at thirty, it was 19.3.

Let us demonstrate to you these and other great teatures of the R. C. H.

Carbureter Trouble

"Did it ever occur to you," asks W. M. Lee of the Regal Service organization," that many troubles which appear to be in the carburetor of an automobile are really not the fault of the carburetor at all?

"By carelessly filling the gasoline tank, without straining the gasoline thru a chamois skin, scale or foreign substances will work from the tank thru the feed pipe into the carburetor. These small particles of scale or tordelicate valve action of the carbureton

"Water in the gasoline is a common cause for trouble. Careful straining of the gasoline thru the chamois skin will remove both the foreign particles and all water. If water does get into the gasoline system, the sur-est relief is to open the drain cock at the bottom of the carburetor bowl and allow a free flushing out. Be sure that your car gets all the gasoline that may contain water, out or its The motor cannot digest water nor gasoline diluted with

"A stopped up gasoline feed pipe is another source of trouble. To memedy this, shut off the gasoline at the tank, detach each end of the feed pipe and blow thru it. If extreme force is necessary use the tire pump. Bear in mind again that the only way to insure your car against such trouble is to strain the gasoline in the first place. Experienced engineers agree that much so-called carburetor trouble is due to the presence of water or foreign matter in the gasoline. Remem ber the adage: 'An ounce of preven tion is worth a pound of cure."

Famous "Milestones" Returns This Week

Play Which Made a Sensation Here in December Again at Princess Theatre.

"Milestones," by Arnold Bennett and Edward Knoblauch, one of the most talked of plays of the generation, interpreted by a remarkable company of distinguished English players, will return to the Princess Theatre all this week.

Historically "Milestones" is of unusual interest. Several of the characters are carried along by the same players thru youth, maturity and old age. The play made a positive sen-sation here early in December. John Rhead, shipbuilder, defles his own and partner's family, dissolves partnership, and even risks losing his flancee because he will go in for building ships of iron instead of wood. Twenty-five years later the same John Rhead, married, prosperous and about to become a baronet, opposes a proposition to build ships of steel instead of iron, a project devised by his daughter's sweetheart, a brainy young draughtsman. He prevents his daughter from marrying the choice of her Play by Augustin MacHugh, ter from marrying the choice of her heart and compels her to marry a peer old enough to be her father.

Another generation passes and the shipbuilder baronet, now in his sevently-seventh year, on his golden wedding day, tries to frustrate the match between his granddaughter and a fine young engineer who sees a career for himself in the Canadian Far West. This time the old baronet's efforts are This time the old baronet's efforts are opposed by his wife, who pleads for a strike in the shipbuilder's firm.

Youthful enthusiasm and vigor, A bigger and better show each week coupled with undeniable ability, trainis the rule at Shea's Theatre. Maned to the last notch of perfection. a laugh, a story full of human interest and human nature, and with a clever company cast.

The special extra attraction on the bill is Edward Gillette's wonderful performing animals, featuring as Adam and Eve, original bowlers.

Another feature of the bill is John F. Wade, with his own company of selected players, will be seen in a classic of southern life and character. "Marse Shelby's Chicken Dinner." The story is from the pen of Mr. Wade, and is full of tender pathos and delightful humor. Lewis and Dody, "The Two Sams," are newcomers at Shea's, and have an up-to-date talking act that is original and full of laughs. Fred St. Onge, "the Whimsical Wheelsman," has not been in Toronto in many seasons, and is introducing in his act the only woman in the world who turns twenty Arabian somersaults in twen-

Henry Devine and Belle Williams, "The Traveling Salesman and the Female Drummer," are bound to be favorites with their merry comedy offering. Jessie and Marion Standish are pretty singing comediennes with dainty songs, and a load of dainty costumes. John Higgins is the world's champion jumper. This is his first appearance at Shea's, and much interest is shown in his novel offering.

The present organization has been five times around the world, playing in every English-speaking centre. The members of the company are all Australians, and are all trained to perfection. The repertoire for the week is as follows: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinee, "Sergeant Brue": Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Friday matinees, "The Mikado"; and Saturday matinee only, "The Toy Maker."

Bob Manchester's Famous Cracker-Jacks will be here for one week's stay, at the Gayety Theatre, this week, and it goes without saying that this season's production, being new from start to finish, will more than repeat its former triumphs. It is larger and stronger than ever, introducing Johnny Jess, the man you all know; James Coglan, an all-around

STAGECRAFT

Any play emanating from the pen of Sir Arthur Pinero is entitled to respectful consideration, inasmuch as he is England's foremost playwright and has been recognized as such with a title. To call Pinero England's foremost playwright does not necessarily imply that he is England's foremost play writer. That distinction belongs to Bernard Shaw, who almost certainly never will receive a title. The one is "safe and sane" and the other is—well, anything but that. The crown would as soon bestow a title on a red-handed nihilist as upon Shaw. Toronto has been favored this season with plays by both these men, so a comparison between them is not out of place.

A playwright is a technician, a man who knows how to compose plays irrespective of the material that goes into them; the matter may be good or indifferent but the manner of presenting it is aimed to be perfect. In this sense Pinero is a great play-wright. Bernard Shaw is not a great playwright; he is notoriously deficient as a playwright; but he writes great plays because the matter that goes into them is great. Shaw's plays are made of brain-stuff and they triumph by their brilliancy regardless of technical deficiencies. Judged by the Shaw standard the stuff that goes into Pinero's plays is not very momental plays is not very momental deficiencies.

shaw standard the stuff that goes into Pinero's plays is not very momentous; he is more the painter of society than its critic or philosopher or revolutionizer. He has a long list of plays to his credit, however, some of them well-nigh perfect from the standpoint of technique.

If forced to choose between Shaw and Pinero one would readily sacrifice everything Pinero ever wrote for Shaw's brilliant, eccentric, "undramatic" "Man and Superman"; but one is glad there is no such ruthless compulsion and quite willing to admire Pinero for all his 'good points. One might even admit that Pinero, judged from all sides, comes closer to the standard measurements of a dramatist than does Shaw. ### IRISH-AMERICANS

A likeable, unpretentious offering was "Top o' th' Mornin'" at the Royal Alexandra. It had in it much of the hearty, good-natured spirit which pervades the well-known greeting which the play took for its title. And of course it was Irish—a great point in its favor. That is, the principal characters were Irish, tho the scene was laid in America. A "Kerry Fair" in the last act, with its pipes and fiddle and jig dances, was almost as good as a touch of "the ould sod."

The plot was thin and improbable, but that didn't matter. It gave rise to some pleasing situations and many laughs. The strength of the piece was in its characterization. There were two or three real personalities in it, all of Irish descent, exemplify-ing the admirable traits of their race, with a commendable absence of the conventional "business" which has grown up around stage Hibernians.

The feature of the performance was Miss Gertrude Quinlan in the part of "Jerry" O'Donnell, an Irish girl just six weeks over. It was a natural, wholesome and thoroly effective characterization, without travesty or over-emphasis, just spontan-equs and easy. Her lines were almost continuously witty, and she delivered them in just the right way, tpyically Irish, without too much emphasis on the brogue. She was a fine girl, was "Jerry"—a real character creation that stays with one and comes to represent a type. This is not the only nemorable type to Miss Quinlan's credit, the landlady's daughter in "The College Widow" being another. Tim Murphy, in the part of Father Quinn, was also effective. It is a role, not a bit exaggerated.

Centenary of the Birth of David Livingstone First Missionary to Penetrate Heart of Africa

Story of Hardships and Devoted Christian Life of Explorer Who Sleeps in Westminster Abbey Amongst the Greatest of Britainy's Heroes.

On April 18, 1874, a great company of mourners assembled in Westminster Abbey to witness the burial in that hallowed fane of the embalmed body of a Scotsman, born of humble parentage, but who had achieved greatness, not because of genius, but for a life of devoted self-sacrifice and unconquerable courage. His poor mortal remains had been carried by his faithful servants from Chitambo's village, Itala, in Central Africa, where one morning he had been found by them dead in the attitude of prayer. There under a tree they buried that his choice lay between the openhis heart and other organs, prepared of the slave trade and continuance in the routine of missionary efand every scrap of writing, and bore fort. them for 1500 miles, thru dangers and difficulties innumerable to the coast at Zanzibar. From thence they coast at Zanzibar. From thence they were carried to Southampton and to London, and the body identified by the crushed bones of the left shoulder, the result of a lion's bite made many years before. The man that Britain homored by interment in the abbey that holds all that was mortal of so many of her best and noblest sons was David Livingstone.

Livingstone, the centenary of whose birth will be commemorated by all English-speaking peoples on whose birth will be commemorated by all English-speaking peoples on March 19, was born in Blantyre, then a factory village on the Clyde, a few miles south of the City of Glasgow. His father was a small teadealer, and at the age of ten, after a few years' schooling, he started to work in one of the cotton mills. Although the hours were from 6 in Altho the hours were from 6 in the morning to 8 in the evening, he found time to increase his stock of education, started to learn Latin, and at the age of 19 the reading of an appeal for the conversion of China determined him to become a missionary. For eight years he worked and studied, ultimately acquiring a medical degree and being accepted by the London Missionary Society. Troubles in China interfered with his original intention, and a meeting with Robert Moffat, one of the ploneer missionaries to Africa, whose daughter he later married, turned him to the dark continent, whose interior was then utterly unknown. On July 31, 1841, he reached Kuruman, and entered up-the devastating slave traffic, Livingfort. The former meant separation from his wife and family; long periods of silence, and many accidents. For it was an utterly un-known country into which he had to plunge; and before he made the great renunciation there must have been much prayerful consideration by Livingstone and his wife. But the hour of separation came at Capetown, She sailed for England, he remained and journeying northward he penned these sentences in his journal: "I will place no value on anything I have place no value on anything I have or may possess, except in relation to the kingdom of Christ. If anything will advantage the interests of that kingdom, it shall be given away or kept only as by giving or keeping of it, I shall most promote the glory of Him to whom I owe all my hopes in time and eternity. May grace be given to me to adhere to this."

First Great Expedition. In June, 1852, Livingstone started out from Cape Town with the primary out from Cape Town with the primary object of discovering a practicable route into Central Africa, from either the east or west coast. With Oswell he had previously reacher the Upper Zambezi and they had been fired by the ambition of following the course of that river from its source to its mouth. Oswell, however, had to return to England, but his assistance enabled Livingstone to get together a small caravan of men, goods for trading purposes and scientific instruments. Livingstone had early begun to train himself as an observer and object of discovering a practicable route into Central Africa, from either ing purposes and scientific instruments. Livingstone had early begun to train himself as an observer and geographer. During his long voyage to South Africa he had steadily practiced the taking of astronomical observations, and had later spent some time under the tuition of Sir, Thomas Maclean, the Astronomer Royal at the Cape, and so thoroly trained did the Cape, and so thoroly trained did to have that on his return from his

The explorer followed closely his arlier route, via the Chobe River to the Upper Zambest, which he reaches in December, 1855, and trac-ed its course upward. The journey was a terrible one and Livingstone's poor health added to the difficulties offer-ed by the character of the country and the constant hostility of the natives. Yet, during his many journeys Livingstone hever fired a shoti in anger and persistently inculated on his companions the advantage of constant kindness and courtesy to those with whom they came in contact. On his first march he determined his positions with precision, noted the fauna and flood and wrote charming descriptions of the beauty of the land and kept regular and accurate journals into which he poured the secrets of his soul and heart. One passage written at this period breathes the earnest prayer: "O Almighty God! and kept regular and accurate journearnest prayer: "O Almighty God! help! help! leave not this wretched people to the slave trade and Satan!" Turning westward Livingstone reached, May 31, 1854, the Portuguese port of St. Paul de Lvanda, on the west coast, and received the utmost kindness from the members of the Roman Catholic missions, and proceeded to prepare his journals and despatches for England. That country had its supreme call for him, for there were wife and children but he resolutely turned from that temptation, and on Sept. 20, 1854, he commenced his return 1854, he commenced his return eastward. Satan having lost his battle against the Good, embarks on his evil way by sowing the first seeds of evil into the souls of Adam and Eve.

Carefully his footsteps are followed as he advances in his wicked warfare on mankind.

The ruin wrought by his cunning hand from the earth's beginning to the present day is shown in pictures that cannot fail to teach a lingering lesson to all who see them.

His triumphs and final defeat by the Saviour are shown in marvelous biblical correctness. His discovery of the demoniac brew, "Alcohol," and the awful ruin he causes by its use. False Traditions.

Probably in no other field have more cherished traditions and ideas been abandoned than in that of medicine. Superstition has succeeded superstition and panaceas have followed to be admit for a moment that the infinance of the physician may be admit for a moment that the infinance of the physician may be a succeeded superstition and panaceas have followed admit for a moment that the infinance of the physician may be a succeeded superstition and panaceas only too frequently to be admit for a moment that the infinance of the physician may be merely an alleged one his pill may be a erstition and panaceas have followed panaceas, only too frequently to be abandoned for something more futile than ever. In fact it may be said, with some justice, that only during the last century has medicine been on anything like a rational basis.

The Value of Drugs.

Almost the greatest revolution during that time or at least within the last fifty years has been in the position assigned to drugs. In a day not introduced no regular physician would admit for a moment that the infinitesimal does of the homoepath its was obvious that these physicians lost no more of their patients than their brethren of the standard type. The only conclusion one could come to was that most drugs had no effect whatever on the diseases for which they were administered.

Something more futile damit for a moment that the infinitesimal does of the homoepath its was obvious that these physicians lost no more of the physician may be merely an alleged one, his pill may be a bread pill but in the past at least it has provided a solid basis for that faith often necessary for a cure. The statues which occupy niches in the much-vaunted hall of fame are constantly in need of repair. Many of them are merely soiled, sufferers at the hands of the vicissitudes of time and in need of a thoro dusting, Some of them are cracked, not a few have broken noses, while a multitude have fallen to the ground owing to the weak feet supplied by careless or incompetent sculptors. There are many divisions in the hall of fame and in all of them there is evidence of this wanton careless-ness and violence. Statues of men, once of noble proportions, are broken into tiny fragments. Statues representing the more abstract ideas such as much-extolled discoveries (for often the perpetuation of the memory of such a thing is as worthy of a statue as a man) are in a like pitiable plight. Such ruin and devastation reminds us that often those things which in the real world seem genuine and praiseworthy may prove to be of a spurious value or entirely worthless.

For there was George the Third, very noble in his eighteenth century hateur. Tho why the hateur of that century should be different from any other sections. of that century should be different from any other, goodness only knows. But the Georges Three and Four most decidedly had a presence quite different from the next monarch of the same name. The next George was not at this court of which I speak, even the it was held in February, 1913. The atmosphere was quite free from Lloyd Georgeisms and all that sort of thing, the courtiers much more autocratic than tiers much more autocratic than he would have them be.

After drawing a reader's curiosity to such an extent, it seems rather natural to explain that I am not laboring under a welrd hallucination or have joined a refuge for the historically insame. Besides a devotion to the study of "btaid Scots," he carried with him many of the best traits of 'Scottish character, among which was a zeal for education amounting almost to reverence. His parents settled first in the United States and lived there until he was ten years of age. Then they removed to Brant County, Ontario, sear St. George. Up to this time he had been able to attend the elementary schools, but no such facilities were donvenient to his pioneer home in Ontario, so that from his tenit to his eighteenth year he had but eight months' schooling. The desire for an education would not be quelled, so he approached his father with a request that he might be allowed to attend college. "Well, you know, William," answered his father, "there are two other boys, and it wouldn't seem fair just to help one. But couldn't you teach school for a while, and earn some money for yourself?" This sounds like an absurd suggestion to make to a boy who bad not even a good public school fraining himself, but the ft imposed a task, it was not an insuperable one. ### Academy Orchestra In Fine Program

With Leopold Godowsky as Soloist, Amateur Organization Will Give Splendid Concert.

Last year the amateur orchestra of the Canadian Academy of Music, under the conductorship of Mr. Alfred Bruce, gave one of the best concerts of the season. In fact, the people who packed Massey Hall to its capacity were astonished that amateur players could accomplish so much in the length of time they had been rehearsing—only five months. Nearly a year has passed since then, and during the whole winter Mr. Bruce has been putting his forces thru a season of most strenuous work, and season of most strenuous work, and confidently expects his orchestra to give a realy good account of itself on March 26, the date fixed for the The orchestral numbers in preparation are the overture to "Wil-liam Tell," Rossini; overture to "Der Freischutz," Weber; unfinished sym-phony, Schubert; introduction to hony, Schubert; introduction to ct 3, "Lohengrin," Wagner; the Bach ir and Boccherini minuet, the last wo numbers for strings only. At his moment a definite announcemen annot be made as to Godowsky's part of the program; but it is cer-ain that he will play his own wonand transcendentally beautiful symphonic metamorphoses of the Strauss "Kunstlerleben." He will also play Liszt and Chopin, but further than this cannot be announced for several days. being numear stack, and the winds seek with more seek and the detective lay there in sidence, bling at straws and tossing anxiously on their comfortable bed.

It seemed fully two hours before they came. Gallegher had listened without breathing, and with every muscle on a strain, at least a dozen times when some movement in the yard had led him to believe that they were at the door.

And he had numerous doubts and lasts. Somothmes it was that the police had learnt of the fight, and had naided Keppler's in his absence, and again it was that the fight had been postponed, or, worst of all, that it would be put off until so late that Mr. Dwyer could not get back in time for the last edition of the paper. Their coming, when at last they came, was heralded by an advance-guard of two sporting men, who stationed themselves at either side of the big door. "Ilurry up, now, gents," one of the men said with a shiver, "don't keep this door open no longer'n is needfal"

It was not a very large crowd, but it was wonderfully well selected. It ran, in the majority of its component parts, to heavy white coats with peaributions. The white coats were shouldered by long blue coats with a strakhan fur trimmings, the wearers of which preserved a cliqueness not remarkable when one considers that the believed every one else present to be either a crook or a prize-fighter. There were well-fed, well-groomed clubmen and brokers in the crowd, a politician or two, a popular comedian with his manager, amateur boxers from the athletic clubs, and quiet, close-mouthed sourcing men from the athletic clubs, and quiet, close-mouthed sourcing men from the athletic clubs, and quiet, close-mouthed sourcing men from the other countries of the officers and were beaten back against the ropes of the ring; others dived headlong into the stalls, among the horses and eatile and the stall control the stranger of the stall control to the stranger of the stall control to the stranger of the stall control now; they drowned kep-pler's petitions for silence with o

"Now, then," said Gallegher, having apparently vanquished his foe.
"you come with me." His companion followed quickly as Gallegher climbed to one of the haymows, and crawling carefully out on the fence rail, stretched himself at full length, face downward.

"The two men sprang into a posture of defence, which was lost as quickly as it was taken, one great arm shot out like a piston-rod; there was the sound of bare fists beating on naked flesh; there was an exultant indrawn gasp of savage pleasure and relief from the crowd, and the great fight had begun.

The boy from the newspaper office.

How the fortunes of war rose and fell, and changed and rechanged that night, is an old story to those who listen to such stories; and those who do not will be glad to be spared the telling of it. It was, they say, one of the bitterest fights between two men that this country has ever known.

But all that is of interest here is politician or two, a popular comedian with his manager, amateur boxers from the athletic clubs, and quiet, close-mouthed sporting men from still others shoved the rolls of money they held into the hands of the police. and begged like children to be allowed to escape.

And among these men, whose only thought was of the brutal sport to thought was declared Hefflefinger slipped

The fantastic Queen Anne suburban stations, were dark and deserted, but in one or two of the block-towers he could see the operators writing at their desks, and the sight in some way comforted him.

Once he thought of stopping to get out the blanket in which he had wrapped himself on the first trip, but he feared to spare, the time, and drove on with his teeth chattering and his shoulders shaking with the cold.

He welcomed the first solitary row of darkened houses with a faint cheer of recognition. The scattered lampposts lightened his spirits, and even the badly paved streets rang under the lowest of their many stories, began to take the place of the gloomy farmhouses and gaunt trees that had starnlouses and sand treet, the calculated, the place of the spown the shouled street in the place of the spown farmhouses and street, he cliv's great therefare, that stretches from its one end to the other, and cuts it evenly in two.

He was driving noiselessly over the snow and slish in the tory of the shouled and the collect-face he wished so much to see, when a hoarse voice challenged him from the sidewalk. "Hey, you, stop there, hold up!" said the voice.

Galleghre turned his head, and the he saw that the voice came from under a policeman's helmet, his only an agailog.

This, on 'its part, was followed by a sharp, shrill whistle from the policeman. Another whistle answered income and answered, "Not yet?" to an allowed the saw and the saw that the work whist e answered in the side walk. "Hey, you, stop there, hold up!" said the voice.

over the head with his whip and to urge it into a gallop.

This, on his part, was followed by a sharp, shrill whistle from the policeman. Another whistle answered it from a street-corner one block ahead of him. "Whoa," said Gallegher, pulling on the reins. "There's one too many of them." he added, in an apologetic explanation. The horse stopped, and stood, breathing heavily, with great clouds of steam rising from its flanks.

"Why in hell didn't you stop whom."

The managing editor of the Press took up the india-rubber speaking-tube at its side, and answered, "Not yet" to an inquiry the night editor had already put to him five times within the last twenty minutes.

Then he snapped the metal top of the tube impatiently, and went up-stairs. As he passed the door of the local room, he noticed that the reporters had not gone home, but were sitting about on the tables and chairs, waiting. They looked up inquiringly as he passed, and the city editor asked, "Any news yet?"

I told you to?" remanded the voice, now close at the cab's side.

"I didn't hear you," returned Gallegher, sweetly. "But, I heard you whistle, and I heard your partner whistle, and I thought more than the managing editor shook his head. The compositors were standing idle in the composing-room, and their foreman was talking with the night editor. "Well," said that gentleman, tentatively. tle, and I heard your partner whistle, and I thought maybe it was me you wanted to speak to, so I just stopped."
"You heard me well enough Why

"You heard me well enough Why aren't your lights lit?" demanded the sher, bending over and regarding them with sudden interest.

"You know you should, and if you don't you've no right to be driving that cab. I don't believe you're the regular driver."

"Well," returned the managing editor, "I don't think we can wait; do you?"

"It's a half-hour after time now," said the night editor, "and we'll miss the suburban trains if we hold the paper back any longer. We can't afford to wait for a purely hypothetical story. The chances are all against the fight's having taken place or this Hade's having been arrested."

A Man in the Open

By ROGER POCOCK

HIS MAN in the open is first a trapper, then a sailor, then a cowboy, last a ranger. He knows the bitter cold of Labrador winters, what it is to be wrecked at sea, how it feels to live a brother to the grizzly in the wilds of British

I Always he is a lover and worshipper of nature. Simple of heart he is, and of a quaint, abounding, unfailing humor all his own.

I He falls in love with a grand opera singer, whom chance has brought to the forest and the wilderness, and marries her, loses her, fights for her, loses her again and at lastwell the reader must discover for himself what happens at last.

9 By reading THE WORLD every day, starting toporrow, you will learn all about this MAN IN THE OPEN. It is the best story of the year. An instalment of the story will appear in the Women's Home Department of The World every day, commencing tomorrow.

Reasons Why Social Service Women Have Come to Favor Equal Suffrage

Their Work for the Betterment of Social Conditions Has Shown Them the Need-Mrs. Torrington, Miss Rutherford, Mrs. Huestis, Mrs. O'Sullivan, Miss Brooking All Ballot Reformers and With Good Reason.

When the woman called on me, to earn about it. I patiently went into he same old story, mostly in answer' to eager questions. With what adignation did she receive the news that she was not the parent of her own children, in the eyes of the law; that the Marred Woman's Property Act was of recent date; and that in many places, say Queebc, women were still little more than chattels, and that in other places the age of consent was only ten years! She was amazed to learn that for sixty years a sturdy fight has cars. She was amazed to learn that or sixty years a sturdy fight has een carried on by the bravest and est women that the world has ver produced, to get our social, in-ustrial, and political life on a basis if equality between men and women.

Her idea of the woman's suffrage accement soelled only smashed win-ows and general disturbance in London. Since one is inclined to be Since one is inclined to be in religion, politics, or nadity, and see only the good in ments favoring the particular finey profess to be on, I depreted in this article to give viewpoint of women, who are for political equality, first, last, all the time, but whese work as social service lines, places them he first rank of public benefacand whose devotion to woreforms in our city's life them the gratitude of every a-while citizen.

Leader of Social Referm. ed cared for and segregated, so that an imbecile population would not aternally be multiplying. Why, there is hardly a charity, or reform, or educational propaganda, but what her name appears prominently. One wonders where she got the time; for Mrs. Torrington has been a busy wofor and segregated.

(By Flora MacD. Denison.)
A prominent merchant from Edmonton was on his why to New York, a couple of weeks ago. His wife, prominent in club circles, accompanied him there. Before reaching Toronto, he said to her: "Do you know anything about woman's suffrage?"

"Well, no; not very much," she admitted.

"Then, as soon as you get to Toronto, go and find out, for everybody in the smoking car, in the dining car, and in the Pullman car are all talking about woman's suffrage."

When the woman called on me, to learn about it, I national council, and as head of this great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great on the come in to busy people to do things. Mrs. Torrington has come in touch with every phase of our city's life. The unprotected girl found her. Hundreds of organizations of girls and women have had Mrs. Torrington to the federal government, asking that women be given the federal franchise on the same basis as men.

Mrs. Torrington did not start out on her career of social service to get suffrage, but in her career of social service, she found that her work was 4aken up and discussed.

She resigned as president of the local council, and as head of this great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great the proposed to do this great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent views of all they great organization, standing as it does for divergent view

OUR EMBROIDERY DESIGN.

Two Panels in Richelleu Embroldery

Silk should be used to bring out perfect designs. Any number of colors can be used, the dull tones, such as are shown in tapestry are best suited to the work.

The form of the panel showing the woman's head can be solidly worked, but so carefully must the colors blend that no one tint should predominate, the the colors of the eyes, lins, hair and cheeks should be distinguishable. The ribbon and scroll effects can be in heavy relief, raised slightly but not padded. If care is exercised this entire panel can be worked in flat surface effect. The background must be worked in one tone and in one direction.

For the floral panel the Battenburg stitches are used, and the flowers can be made wholly in face stitches. If, however, they are made in Battenburg lave fashion then embroider the outside leaves in solid satin stitch. Only very fine filk or floss will look attractive for use in either pattern.

To Transfer.

Put a cake of soap in a) pint of hot water, stir vigorously, remove soap. Saturate the design with the mixture, then remove the excess moisture. Place the fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and lay the design flat down on the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper and with the bowl of a tablespoon rub hard till the design is transferred, being careful to rub from rather than toward you. Do not wet the material or rub the face of the design with damp fingers. To remove the design after the article is completed wash in warm water with soap.

Her Name is Called "Blessed,"
The name of Miss Rutherford is another whom so many call "blessed." Her work in connection with the W. C. T. U. rescue work, and the women's medical dispensary is well known. A few years ago, Miss Rutherford organized a deputation to Sir James Whitney, asking that the women of this province be enfranmen of this province be enfran-chised. Miss Rutherford also was forced to see that the ballot was the only dignified way of gaining legislation; in fact, the only way. Mrs. Huestis, president of the local Mrs. Huestis, president of the local council, who has a finger in more social betterment pies than anyone I ever heard of, thought for many years that men could be persuaded to do the square thing; but, after 21 years of trying to get a home for the feeble-minded, and months and years to get pure milk for sick babies, and public inspection for schools, she, too, began to think that the ballot was an absolutely necessary weapon in the hands for schools, she, too, began to think that the ballot was an absolutely necessary weapon in the hands of women; and she and her council workers have urged the mayor and city council to go with them to the provincial government, to ask for votes for women.

I could name a hundred women co-workers, of these three ultra-prominent ones, whose good work in this city cannot be estimated, who are colisted in the suffrage ranks.

Convinced of Need.

I rang up that grand and noble woman, Mrs. O'Sullivan, who has one of the most difficult positions in this province, and asked her for an expression of opinion upon this most vital subject. In one terse sentence she spoke volumes: "Eleven years in charge of the Mercer Reformatory have convinced me of the need of women being enfranch'sed."

Miss Brocking, superintendent of the girls' industrial home, says she knows little of the woman's suffrage movement, but her experience with the sad and sickening side of the unfortunate girl life of our province has made her an ardent woman's suffrage advocate.

Now, our suffrage women have never been indifferent to all the social betterment schemes advocated by other reformers; but their vision from the first has been clear and the goal they wished to reach has been straight ahead. They believe that men and women should be born equally free and independent members of the human race, equally endowed with intelligence and ability, and equally entitled to the free exercise of their individual rights and liberty. That the natural relation of the sexes is that of inter-dependence and co-operation, and that the repression of the rights and libert tes of one sex inevitably works injury to the other, and hence the only legal and permanent means of defending the rights to "life, liberty, and the pursuit or happiness," and accepted as inalienable by all clvilized nations. In any representative form of government, therefore, women should be vested with all political rights and privileges of electors.
