DEDICATION OF VICTORIA CHURCH

Remarkable Scene When Whole Debt of Nearly $4000 Was Wiped Out

Given a beautiful October day, one of the finest churches located in one of the most beautiful spots of beautiful Carleton county, and promoted by a little body of sincere, loyal and optimistic people, strong in an optimism based on a faith in the worthiness of their object, what wonder that the dedicatory ceremonies, lasting all day Sunday, Oct. 17, 1921, of the Reformed Baptist church at Victoria, were the success and revelation they proved to be.

For upwards of 30 years this body of people has been active and consistent in their propagation of the Great Cause in this community, and in these years of hardship have come along with an abundance of more pleasant experiences. During these years of struggle and gradual development, the outstanding need has ever been a comfortable and convenient home, and at last the desirable has been attained. The building is a beautiful structure of concrete in natural grey, with white trimmings; the interior is finished in stained wood with white trimmings, also, the seating arrangement is modern with an ordinary floor capacity of 300. The basement is solid concrete and here will eventually be installed the furnace and lighting plant. Altogether it is one of the finest and most modern church structures in the country and will reflect credit on those who were foremost in putting the work through. It will stand for generations, a monument to their great faith and an ornament of no mean quality to the community.

Of the dedicatory services much could be said, they were excellent in all details. The choir from Woodstock Reformed Baptist church was present at all services and contributed largely to the excellence of the music. The sermon by the morning service was delivered by Rev. P. J. Trafton when nearly 300 persons sat under him and listened in appreciation to thoughts inspired by those words he found in Luke 24. Of the afternoon service we can only say it was a revelation, a sermon without words. It was a harking back to the old time religion, and the giving spirit of Bible days. There were some small comfort for him of little faith at this season. In a few preliminary words Rev. Trafton detailed the financial situation and pictured vividly the growth of the little organization, showing that the initial indebtedness represented in round numbers $4,000 and that present outstanding needs were some $3,700, and an appeal followed for free will assistance. Then followed a scene possibly not dreamed of by any and surely not often duplicated. Contributions came in steadily for two hours and a half, ranging from $400 down, resulting finally in the payment of obligation to pay a remarkable total of $3,800, just $200 more than was asked. This certainly gave cause for, shall I say, pride, yes results will admit of that word; pride in the faith, life and spirit shown.

Recently Hector MacFarlane wrote in a satirical way of "one frozen to death in a city church." Veritably there were no cold ones at Victoria on this day.

Rev. H. G. Mullin had the privilege of talking to a full house in the evening. Following the sermon a short time was devoted to testimonies, an altar service closed one eventful and highly satisfactory day. Verily there are those who believe that without the church of Christ and its ministrations and its message, and its teachings, the name of Christ would soon become a forgotten name upon the earth. In these days the weak-hearted more than half believe the usual criticism, think too much of the church's failure and too little of its success; give most negligently to its support; discount its power, lose sight of its purpose, and take only a half-hearted interest in its work. One necessity is a revival of faith in the Church as the great organization for carrying out the purpose of God in the world. There are those who have been converted to the cause of Christ and these are at work for all their might. It is a worship that takes form and finds expression in work. If such a revival comes to any church, just such an awakening and revelation can come to that church as came to the little church round "the corner."—C.M.S.

He Proves the Value of Advertising

A motor party from Hartland stopped a short time at Bristol on Saturday. They report that they paid a visit to A. W. Phillips' store, where the great stock reduction sale is going on, and that they could scarcely squeeze into the building because of eager, buying crowds. Autos were parked in every available spot and the crowd kept coming in increasing numbers. Mr. Phillips makes wise use of printers' ink, and his full-page announcement of a clearance sale—the ad now being run in The Observer—is the sole medium through which the people were made aware of the bargains awaiting them at the Phillips store.

Mr. Phillips' idea in promoting a special sale is to advertise sufficiently broad to create the impression of liberality and then to give the buyers not only all he advertises but just a little more.

The Phillips sale will continue for several weeks, but goods are fast disappearing and buyers are advised to make their purchases early.

BEAUTIFUL DAY FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving Day was one of the most delightful days one sees in a whole life-time. While every day of the month had been fine Monday was easily the most beautiful. If one on this day did not feel a spirit of thankfulness there was surely something wrong with him.

The stores throughout town and country were closed and most of the people took advantage of the holiday to go hunting. Others went on motor trips and Houlton was the Mecca of most of these.

There were thanksgiving services in all the local churches on Sunday and the fruits of the season were brought and pleasingly displayed in a way that gave silent testimony of God's bounty. The sermon and the music in each church were appropriate to the occasion.

An Enterprising Firm

Stevens Bros., the popular Woodstock druggists, are extending their business and have made some changes in Woodstock. Douglas W. C. Stevens, of the firm, has removed to Edmundston, N. B., to take charge of the management of the firm's new store at that place. He and family left for Edmundston on Thursday by auto.

Harry T. and Arthur H. Stevens remain in charge of the store in Woodstock and they have secured the services of G. C. Richardson, a registered druggist of 15 years experience to take the place of Douglas W. C. Stevens in this town. Mr. Richardson was formerly owner of the drug business at Centerville, selling out to Stevens Bros. about eight years ago, and now under the management of J. Chesley Stevens. Mr. Richardson is a young man of fine appearance and address. Since leaving Centerville he was overseas and did his bit in the defence of his country. Stevens Bros. are to be congratulated in obtaining the services of an capable man in their line. Mr. Richardson's home is Grand Manan.

The bacon Carr sells is made from young pigs, not old hogs. His hams are boneless. Why buy bones? You can't eat it. Sausages will be more plentiful now the weather is getting cooler.

CHAUTAUQUA IS SURELY JOY TIME

First Day's Program Delighted Hundreds and Fortunate Ticket-holders Eager for Opening Hour Today

REMARKABLE SALE OF SEASON TICKETS

"It takes Hartland to put it over," is a common local expression. Meaning that in Victory Loan sales, in Church Forward drive, Salvation Army drive and all the patriotic endeavor during the war Hartland always went away "over the top" and ranked high among the top-notchers. So it has been with Hartland's Chautauque. Season tickets went over the top. It may be confessed that the outlook as late as Saturday looked blue, but a swift drive on Monday and Tuesday disposed so many tickets that the Superintendent, learning of the splendid sales at a meeting of the guarantors on Tuesday evening, advised that no more tickets be sold, since the sale up to that moment far exceeded the seating capacity of the hall. No single admissions were sold by reason of the advance sales of season tickets more than taking all available standing room.

Of the Chautauque course itself, it may be said that if the first day's program is a criterion Chautauque is quite considerably more than the people were led to expect. The lecture last evening by Hon. Charles H. Poole, member of the New Zealand parliament, was itself worth the price of a season ticket, while the American-dian quartette delighted the large audience.

The LaBell Trio this afternoon and evening and the lecture by Chancellor Bradford are declared to make up a program even surpassing that of yesterday.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening the Duckster Jubilee Singers will furnish the musical part of the program, while one of the chief features will be the "Mother Goose" party by Hartland boys and girls. It is rather remarkable that progress these young stars made the first day under the skilful training of Miss Lulu Vaisel, the Junior Chautauque Superintendent, who with Miss Gertrude Albert, the general superintendent, will remain here throughout the three days. Last evening the hall contained an audience of 485, while the maximum seating capacity was estimated at 350.

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

Why give something perishable for a Christmas present, that can last at most for an hour or a day or a week, when the imperishable is under your hand? And if, among these imperishables, you choose The Youth's Companion, your gift has this special quality: the newness of the gift, its freshness, is not at once exhausted. A jewel, a picture, or a piece of attire affords no surprises after the first inspection, but The Youth's Companion brings unsuspected delights and untasted sources of pleasure and happiness with every succeeding weekly number.

And every one in the family, of every age will see to it that the good things are shared.

"FRUIT-A-LIVES" Made Her Well, Strong and Vigorous

MADAME ARTHUR BEAUCHER

805 Cartier St., Montreal.

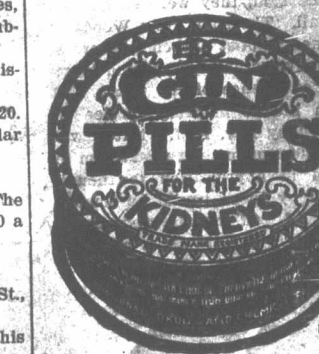

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take 'Fruit-a-lives'. I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, the Constipation was banished, I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

AND THEY ALL "STOOD PAT"

While Mr. James Corbett, Who Had Manipulated the Deck, Sat Apart and Laughed.

In a club much frequented by men of the theatrical business, a poker game which began as a mere pastime grew, by degrees, to an undisturbable intensity. The club, who usually "sat in" were all friends and fellow-laborers in a none-too-lucrative occupation. They argued among themselves that there must be no more raising of the limit and no more reckless betting. The game must be one for amusement only. On the night when this agreement was solemnly concluded, they sat down and sent for the cards. Jim Corbett brought them. "I'll just sit and look on for a while," he said. "May take a hand a little later."

One man took the cards out of the box and threw around for a deal. The dealer shuffled them and passed them for the cut. Then he dealt a hand while the banker was giving each man his checks. The first man after the deal bet the limit. Every man of the seven around the table came in, each "putting" the pot for the limit.

"Say," said Corbett, "I thought you fellows were going to play light. That's a fine way to start out."

This evoked not even a response from the players. Each was sitting tight and covertly eyeing his neighbors. The dealer asked the first man how many cards he wanted. He stood pat. Every player around the board looked startled. Then the next man stood pat. And after him the next, and finally all seven. It was at that moment that some one observed Mr. Corbett apparently about to chicken his secluded corner. Corbett had combined 23 per cent of four separate decks, so that the 52 cards he had handed the players were all spades. Each man had a pat flush when the betting began.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

PRICE vs. VALUE IN SHOES

In buying shoes (and everything else as well), it's value you want. Imported shoes cost more because of the freight, duty and exchange. These things don't add to the value of a shoe. They only increase its cost.

This store has one mission in life. That is to give you the best value. Made-in-Canada Shoes are today better value, grade for grade, than shoes imported from any country. They reflect the very latest and best styles and shapes. The material is honest. Workmanship is high grade. And so, because the prosperity of this store depends upon service to our customers, we sell and recommend Made-in-Canada Footwear, knowing that we can thereby give you the best value and satisfaction.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Penney of London.

London, Ont.—"I suffered with periodic pains, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of remedies and had been treated by physicians, but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it, and now I keep house and get out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends, and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. E. PENNEY, 200 Revere Street, London, Ont.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they may be helped.

If there are any communications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE NEW DIAMOND AMBEROLA

Thomas A. Edison

The Master Product Of A Master Mind

The World's Greatest Phonograph Value!

If you do not own a phonograph, it is doubtless because you feel you cannot afford a high-price "talking machine" or phonograph. Whatever the reason, you are in luck. Because here is a phonograph you cannot afford to be without!

The Amberola is not a product of mere mechanical ability, but of inventive genius—the world-renowned genius of Thomas A. Edison! That is why the Amberola, in spite of its moderate price, has proved its superiority over high-priced "talking machines" and ordinary phonographs in comparative tests on many occasions.

That is why its tone is a revelation—its genuine Diamond Point Reproducer does away with the cost and bother of changing needles—its Amberol Records last for years and years, whereas ordinary records are easily broken or spoiled.

The Amberola brings all the world's best music into your home—supplies necessary entertainment and relaxation—and so enables you to work better. That is why you cannot afford to be without it!

Visit our store or write us without delay and let us show you how easily you can own an Amberola.

STOP THAT COUGH

Peps will soothe your throat and loosen your chest when the cough is troublesome, and the medicinal vapor that is liberated is breathed to the remotest parts of the air passages and lungs. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, thus ending the irritation and stopping the cough. Peps are equally good for bronchitis, sore throat and laryngitis. HARTLAND, N. B., OCT. 21, 1930

GRAND FALLS AS AN AMERICAN SEES IT

The editor of Presque Isle Star Her-ald recently visited Grand Falls, and in his paper writes very interestingly of the town. Here is a portion of what he says:

When the ancient village is at last disclosed to view at the top of quite a high hill, one looks down into "Broadway," which, with the big bulk of the Catholic Church looming up to the right, gives an idea that these two features are on the proportions of the prospective city which is to materialize when this magnificent water power is developed. As we looked into "Broadway" from the hill top Monday it was in the stagnant quietude that has long characterized the town in its sleep preceding the resurrection through development which is as sure to come sometime as the forty thousand horse power cataract is sure to continue tumbling into the gorge.

We inventoried the life and activity on the street as we glanced down into it and noted that the picture comprised two automobiles, a horse and wagon, two men, a woman, a girl and boy and two dogs. We spent the day at the Falls, and when we went home we glanced back and saw apparently the same figures spread out on the broad thoroughfare, something as a constellation remains in the sky a fixed cluster of objects.

Grand Falls, however, even today in the pre-resurrection era is by no means as dull as it looks to the casual observer. It has two banks which do a large volume of business, and it has one store which carries a larger stock than any retail store in Presque Isle, and does a big business. This is the department store of J. L. White. Just twenty-seven years ago Mr. White landed in Grand Falls with less than $200. He immediately got married, and he and his bride lost no time in "getting down to brass tacks," both hiring as school teachers, and keeping at it until they saved a thousand dollars. Then, twenty years ago, they began store keeping in a small way. Their little shop has since grown into a big brick structure, housing a department store with a $70,000 stock. In the meantime, while the business has grown to such proportions, as a side-line Mr. and Mrs. White, who have always been active partners in the store game, have raised a good sized family of children, and Mr. White has mixed in politics, having been for a term a member of the Provincial Assembly.

The big increase in the garage business of Maurice Burleson (one of the best automobile mechanics either in Aroostook or New Brunswick) illustrates the big increase in cars in the Province. Three years ago Maurice got by with one helper. Today he has five and a bookkeeper. He has also had to double the floor space of his garage. It has been highly prosperous times in New Brunswick of late, and this flush condition is reflected in the increase in cars.

Today the New Brunswick farmer really has the advantage of his Aroostook brother, chiefly perhaps on account of his lighter tax burden, and unless the Republicans win and Aroostook gets the benefit of a protective tariff, instead of a drift from New Brunswick to Maine, the drift will set in the other direction.

Easy-going Grand Falls doesn't care a rap whether it is "wet" or "dry" as regards Prohibition. Ten or fifteen years ago she had thirteen saloons. As this was an unlucky number, it was cut down by the Town Council and at the time the Prohibition millennium dawned, she had five. But when the time came for her citizens to vote whether it should be five saloons or none, dryness, only nine cast a vote, either one way or the other.

Between the days when Grand Falls had saloons and the Prohibition times of today, there is so little difference that it could not be detected with a microscope. In the old days if some body got into a saloon and exceeded the corporation limit in imbibing, he went and gave himself up and was incarcerated till he sobered off, and was graduated from that institution in due course, a law abiding and sober citizen. This benevolent system put no stigma on the man, but it was a mild deterrent and tended to public good order and sobriety.

In a scenic way Grand Falls has the greatest natural attractions of any place in Maine or New Brunswick. This does not refer particularly to the cataract or the falls, but to the hundreds of spots above and below the falls, where the scenery is perhaps not so grand as it is delightful. When the time that is sure to come arrives, and Grand Falls comes into possession of its thousands of horse power now going to waste, it will grow to be a big, bustling place. Its present prominent citizens, Major Collins, J. L. White, Fred Wilson and others will be submerged by the tidal wave the event will create. But it is a pretty good sort of place now. We like to make trips there, if only for the beauty of the drive, and to shake hands with the Mayor and Town Council, and other social dignitaries of the balliwick.

PLACE OF BUSINESS CHANGED

I have now changed my business from the Hartland Drug Store to T. B. Thistle's Jewelry Store. Anyone wishing to get Phonograph Records, Books, Lamps or any other article sold by me, will find them there. Pictures to be framed or enlarged can be left there and they will be done and returned as quickly as possible. My health has failed so this year I am not able to travel much at all, so do not wait for me to come to you. I appreciate very much your patronage in the past. If my friends will come to me now I will still try to make an honest living.

Please remember to come to me. HENRY J. SHELLEY, Hartland, N. B. Farmers Phone.

LESSON IN FRANKLIN'S LIFE

Great American Statesman and Patriot of Peace to Immortal Fame From Humble Beginnings.

On the 17th of January, in 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born at Boston. His father was a soap and candle-maker, his mother, the daughter of a Quaker poet of Nantucket. When Benjamin was ten he was taken from school and set to work in his father's factory. He never again attended a regular school, yet he became a scholar. He was inept and unhappy at his first occupation, so his father apprenticed him to his brother to learn the trade of a printer. When he was seventeen he ran away from his brother and opened a printing office in Philadelphia. He pursued the career of printer and publisher until 1759, when he was made clerk of the Pennsylvania assembly. This was the beginning of his public career, and he rose steadily until he became one of the most striking figures in America. In France, when he was sent there as ambassador after the Revolutionary war, he became as widely known and loved as in his own country.

He Got the Job

The colonel of a negro regiment in France charged the adjutant with selecting a suitable soldier to serve as orderly at his billet. The adjutant combed the command for the proper man and finally found one who had been an elevator boy in a hotel—a smiling, gracious darkey, neat and respectful.

When the man reported the colonel impressed upon him the necessity for tact.

"Do you know just what I mean by tact?" he asked.

"Yes, sah. When it comes to me I'm right on the spot. Why, cummer, last week I went into the backhouse near mah billet, an' found one of de madam-selles there. I jest stopped back an' says, 'Pardun, monsieur!' Now ef dat waint fac' den I don't know what is."

THE NEW LEAGUE

Canadian ships sailing to all parts of the world carrying Canadian goods and manned by Canadians is the slogan of the Navy League of Canada in their effort to raise $750,000 in a national campaign for the relief of merchant sailors' widows and orphans, the training of Canadian boys, to help sailors' families, and for the development and administration of the movement.

The Navy League of Canada de-presents the fact that Canada has fallen behind in maritime power. Seventy years ago she stood in third place, and her ships were manned by Canadians. Today she is the eighth power. The League plans to have the ships sailing from Canadian ports manned in turn by young Canadians, and thus boosting the Dominion the world over.

Statistics compiled show that it takes six times as long to train a seaman as it does to build a ship. Maritime strength cannot be achieved in a year or even a decade. Its growth can only be commensurate with the development of a sea-conscience spirit in the nation.

The continuous training of over 2,000 Canadian lads in Boys' Naval Brigades of the Navy League of Canada is having an effect upon our Maritime future.

There are 2,700 ships under the Canadian flag today with a personnel of 45,000. The value of the merchant fleet is in money $250,000,000. Though lack of interest on the part of Canadians our maritime affairs has allowed to drift into other hands. Our ships are neither officered nor manned by Canadians. The burden of the British Navy is $17 per head of the British tax payer while Canadians escape with 25 cents.

The Navy League of Canada maintains that new routes must be opened, trade lines established and maintained. Commercial supremacy means confidence the League, the ability to carry when required, to sail without interference, and demands the freedom of the seas.

DISTRESS IN EUROPE

British Empire Effort to Help Smaller Nations.

Canadian Red Cross to Organize Appeal on Behalf of Orphans—Call to Be Made in Armistice Week.

An urgent appeal for aid to combat the widespread disease and distress in the war-stricken areas in Europe has been made by the League of Red Cross Societies to the nations which have suffered least from the war. In response a War Relief Fund has been undertaken in Great Britain with an Empire-wide appeal for contributions. The fund is under the immediate patronage of His Majesty the King and has the support of all parts of the Empire.

His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, having received communications from London upon this matter, consulted the Prime Minister, and with his approval referred the question to the Canadian Red Cross Society, and it was arranged for an appeal to be made in Canada during Armistice week in November. The fund will be known as "The British Empire War Relief Fund."

To Make Known the Need.

The Canadian Red Cross Society accepted the task of making this appeal known throughout Canada only in view of the relentless circumstances and the humane desire to help to alleviate the terrible suffering of a large number of peoples. The reasons are numerous and compelling. Large populations are suffering from distress and disease. Millions of innocent children are among them. Even in time of peace great numbers of their people lived close to the bread line. The war drained them of all their surplus resources.

Through the years of strife they were denied all but the barest necessities, and their condition now is pitiful indeed. History has repeated itself. The diseases which took such fearful toll of human life after the Thirty Years' War, the Seven Years' War (1757-65), and the Napoleonic Wars are again widespread, and now there are millions of people in Galicia, Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Roumania who, in addition to being poverty stricken, are in the direst misery and despair on account of disease. In some twelve countries, most of which were either our Allies or friendly to the Allied cause, modern civilization is faced with the inevitable consequences of a great war through partial famine and pestilence.

A Previous Epidemic.

That the epidemic is now one of alarming proportions and terrible in its effect may be noted from the following quotation from "The Times":

"At present the worst results of typhus are confined to Galicia, where the schools are closed, business is at a standstill, and civil life is crippled. The whole community is faced with starvation, whilst the absence of clothing and drugs makes it impossible for the authorities to make any headway against the epidemic. Here we have a country into which the ideas of modern sanitation has never penetrated; for the most part there is no water supply in the smaller towns and villages save wells, whilst the work of sewers is done by open gullies running through the streets. There are no doctors, no nurses, and no beds, and the miserable typhus-stricken patients lie unattended on the bare floor. Throughout the rural districts whole families exist in miserable one-roomed huts, their diet consisting of starvation rations of potatoes and beet, both bread and meat being luxuries rarely seen. In almost every hut there are several cases of typhus and in many instances whole families are stricken with the disease, and are perforce left to die unattended."

Many Countries Are Suffering.

What is said of Galicia is true of other countries of Europe, such as Esthonia, Lithuania, Latvia, and the territories of the Ukraine, Soviet Russia, Jugo-Slavia and Czechoslovakia. Nor is typhus the only affliction. Tuberculosis, smallpox, dysentery and relapsing fever are also ravaging large areas.

Lack of Medical Aid.

These terrible conditions have been called to the attention of the people of the British Empire in a statement by the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, who, speaking for the Council of the League of Nations, says:

"Men, women and children are dying by thousands, and over vast and civilized areas there are neither medical appliances nor medical skill sufficient to cope with the horrors by which we are faced. Governments have in certain cases done all in their power to bring relief, but there remains a vast field for charitable enterprise which can be dealt with only by voluntary effort."

Eleven Million Orphans.

Dr. Livingstone Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, who has just returned from Europe, states that there are 11,000,000 fatherless children in Europe who face the next few years without hope of adequate care unless outside assistance is given.

For Suffering Children.

No stronger call could be made to humanity than that of suffering children, and on their behalf particularly the Canadian Red Cross will appeal throughout Canada during Armistice week. Each provincial division of the Red Cross will have charge of the arrangements in its own province, and all Red Cross workers should put themselves into touch immediately with their local branch or with the Headquarters of the Provincial Division if no local branch is organized.

"Cream the butter with the sugar"
—the Cook-Book says

"Oh, come on, Mabel, I want to go shopping. It needn't take all afternoon to make a cake! Here, let me cream the butter and sugar. Watch how quick I can do it! If you'd ever used Lantic before you'd realize how quickly a fine sugar creams."

Lantic is a quick-acting sweetener, because it is fine. It distributes the pure cane sweetness speedily, thoroughly and economically. It saves time in the preparation of cakes, puddings and sauces, in the cooking of preserves, in the making of candy, in the sweetening of beverages, hot or cold. Not whiter are the snowy doilies and serviettes on the mahogany table than the tiny crystals of Lantic that gleam and glisten in the sugar bowl. Not finer is the silver with its hall-mark. Yet, in homes where every penny counts, Lantic goodness helps in the saving. It does go farther!

2000 YEARS AGO

the fighting Gladiators of ancient Rome healed their wounds and sores with rare herbal oils and balms. These are said to have knitted the damaged tissues together in miraculous fashion.

Though the highly-prized secrets of these precious healers were lost with the fall of Rome itself, the introduction of the great herbal balm Zam-Buk, has furnished their true successor. It is so marvellously like them in action.

The soothing and healing touch of Zam-Buk is to-day known the world over. Wherever there is a Cat Burn or Scald, a Fevering or Poisoned Sore, a patch of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Pimples or Rash, Zam-Buk ends the trouble and for all. The same with Ulcers, Ringworm, and Piles.

Nothing else known to Science performs such marvellous healing, or dispels disease from the tissues so thoroughly as Zam-Buk does. This is due to its pure herbal character and origin. Its absolute freedom from the animal fats and minerals found in present-day ointments is another valuable feature.

With production costs at high-water mark, the price of Zam-Buk remains at 50 cents. At the old price you still have the same high standard of curative and healing value. Increased world-wide demand allows this.

All dealers: Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, Ont., or 8 boxes for $1.00. Trial Sample FREE if stamp (for return postage) accompanies application.

QUEER PERQUISITES.

King George is entitled to "A Nightcap, Value One Half Penny."

There is something essentially human in the life of perquisites, which seems to be as irrefragable as the most highly-placed official in the land as to the brewer's drayman, who enjoys his daily allowance of beer, or the woman who sweeps a music hall floor, and cheerfully appropriates the cigar stumps or half-smoked cigarettes, which she converts into money, says Answers.

Even the dignified Speaker of the House of Commons is not displeased when every August brings him a fat buck filled in the royal forests—at Christmas, when he receives a doe from the same source, and a liberal supply of the very best broadcloth from the Clothworkers' Company; while his table is supplied with two hogheads of excellent wine; and an allowance of £100 a year keeps him supplied with pens, ink and paper. Such perquisites are by no means to be despised, even by a man who enjoys £5,000 a year and a certain prospect of a peerage.

The King himself has some very strange perquisites, many of which have most interesting histories attached to them. Few know that he can claim the head of a whale, so that "there may be no lack of whale-bone wherewith to stiffen the royal garments," although it is more commonly known that every surgeon caught in British waters belongs to him by right.

What a remarkable collection the King's perquisites would make if they were all duly claimed! And what possible use could his majesty make of some of them? A tablecloth of the value of three shillings; a coat of grey fur; a horse and halter, and even a silver needle, contributed by the court tailor, might conceivably be welcome; but he might willingly dispense with a nightcap of the value of one halfpenny, a pound of cumina seed, a catapult—which might be a temptation to some young royal prince—a currycomb, a pair of scarlet hose, a cross-bow, a pair of tongs, and a falcon.

And yet the King is by law and ancient custom entitled to this strange assortment of perquisites, and to others of greater value and usefulness, such as the costly and beautiful cashmere shawls which are so much treasured as wedding presents.

The principal officers of the Corporation of the City of London, are far from despising the "pickings" that fall to their lot every year. The Lord Mayor, Bushey Park yields tribute of four fat bucks, a perquisite which is eight centuries old; three bucks are assigned to each of the sheriffs; while the recorder, town clerk, chamberlain, the common sergeant, and remembrancer receive one buck each.

Among the perquisites of the Lord Chancellor, which include the perquisites of living, and appointments worth hundreds of thousands of pounds a year, is the purse in which the Great Seal is kept—a gorgeous creation in rich velvet and gold, which is treasured as a heirloom in his family. In the case of one Lord Chancellor, who held office for some time and so acquired several of these purses, they were actually used by his wife in upholstering a suite of furniture.

The guests of some of the city companies, strange to say, have the perquisites, which serve as mementoes of an excellent meal. Each guest of the Salters' Company receives a horn saltspoon; or, on special occasions, half a dozen spoons of silver.

At the coronation of a sovereign perquisites come in showers, and some of them are very quaint. From the Lord of the Manor of Addington the sovereign can claim a dish of portage concocted of "chopped chickens, capon-brawn, spices, sugar and almond-milk"; while the Lord of the Manor of Haydon must make a solemn presentation of a towel for his sovereign's use.

In olden times the Chamberlain claimed the furniture of the room in which the sovereign had slept on the eve of the coronation, in addition to forty yards of crimson velvet and a silver ewer and basin.

DISOWNED

By EVELYN LEE

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

What was that—the wind?

Wilson Brody started up from his cozy arm chair before a blazing fire in the grate and bent his ear toward the window past which the tempest was sweeping with driving force.

"It sounded like a shriek—a woman's scream," replied Eunice, his sister.

Brody hurried on hat and coat and hastened out into the yard. As he came fully out into the street he was startled to observe a girl in the refuge of a street lamp, her hand raised bewilderedly to her head, just arising from the sidewalk.

"Are you hurt? What is it?" he inquired solicitously, and caught her by the arm to steady her, noting a sweet, innocent face and gentle eyes, but just now filled with fear.

"A man!" gasped the girl breathlessly. "He pushed me and I fell. He tore my satchel from my hand."

"There it is!" exclaimed Brody, as he noticed ten feet away the object in question. It lay on a pile of its contents being scattered on the sidewalk. Brody went to pick it up and the girl clung to the lamp post as he gathered up the articles.

"I must have been followed. I feared it half a mile back from here—but why?"

"There were valuables!" questioned Brody.

"No, only my few belongings and some papers. Oh, see, this!" she cried in poignant alarm, as she groped among the contents of the bag. "They are gone!"

"If you will tell me where you live I will see you safely home," suggested Brody, kindly.

"I am a stranger here," replied the girl. "I came to seek my father. I located his office and explained to a man in charge. I told him who I was and about the papers I had to identify me. He said that Mr. Robert Farr, that is my father, was absent. I am almost sure that he followed me."

Brody was puzzled, for the girl's statements were unusual and strange. But he read the truth in those innocent, frightened eyes. Both sympathy and interest were aroused. Just then Eunice came to where they stood.

"What is it, brother?" she inquired and Brody repeating the explanation the girl had given, warm-hearted Eunice caught her arm and led the way to the house.

"Poor dear!" she murmured, "you must come in out of the storm." The girl was faint and drooping, but she revived magically as these good Samaritans placed her before the cheerful fire and Eunice brought her a steaming cup of tea.

"I am Myrtle Farr," she told them.

"I have lived with an old aunt, an invalid, in New Mexico since my mother died when I was an infant. My father was away in Alaska at the time and never returned. For some time through all these years he has trusted me to Aunt Celia, sending each year enough money to provide for both of us until lately. When she was dying she told me to go to him. Her only clue as to his whereabouts was that she had heard that he owned considerable property in this city."

"And you found him?"

"No, I only located an office bearing his name on the door. Those I inquired of said he had been here for only a few weeks."

"You must remain with us until my brother looks into this matter," declared Eunice and after Myrtle Farr was comfortably installed in a spare room they discussed the singular event that had brought this stranger to their threshold.

"I have seen Robert Farr at his office," reported Brody to Myrtle two days later. "I told him of your claim. He absolutely denies having a daughter or of ever hearing of you before."

Myrtle Farr was fairly crushed at this declaration. She was insistent on seeing the man who disowned her and asked Brody to accompany her to the office he had just left.

"That is Robert Farr," spoke Brody as they nearly reached the building he had just before visited and he pointed out a man entering it.

There came into the eyes of his companion a glow of sudden revelation. "That the Robert Farr?" she whispered, strangely agitated. "Who says I am not his daughter? Oh, Mr. Brody! there is some mystery here, for that man is not my father. Aunt Celia had a picture of him he sent her two years ago, and this man does not in any way resemble him. I had it among my papers."

There was more than mystery. There was plotting and wickedness, as Wilson Brody ascertained after a week's time devoted to unravelling the identity of the pretended Robert Farr. Through diligent application to the case and detective co-operation, he learned that the impostor and fellow conspirators had kidnaped the real Robert Farr, who lived in another place, and the principal schemer had come to the city intent on assuming his identity and claiming and selling his property.

A month later the plotter and his confederates were in jail, and the real Robert Farr, rescued from forced imprisonment, was a guest at the Brody home, glad and proud of the daughter he had never seen before.

And there they both remained, the father as a welcome member of the household, and fair Myrtle as the wife of Wilson Brody.

A FREE GIFT

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"It's now or never, girl. The train goes inside of ten minutes. It's come, or good-by. Now Rachel, decide and be quick about it."

"Oh, Jake! I love you dearly, but the baby here? Let me run home with it and leave it with mistress."

"I've said my say. It would delay me six hours to miss this train."

"But I can't leave the baby as if it was a piece of luggage!"

"Yes, you can. Put the baby on the park bench beside that innocent-faced young fellow yonder. Ask him to mind it for a few minutes. I'll scribble Miss Dole's address on a card. Slip it into the baby's clothing. When you don't come back he will find it."

"But what will they think of my abandoning the little dear in this cruel way?"

"Save your sentiment for me, if you've got any to spare."

"And my two week's wages?"

"I've got plenty of money. Don't fret on that score."

Thus Rachel Mine and Jacob Daltier, the former the average nurse girl, the latter a young man who had worked as a barber when he worked at all. His flashy ways had landed him in the county jail, he had courted her briefly, but persistently, and now with the prospect in view of a new and better situation in another city he put the question plump of immediate marriage.

The young man they had indicated suggested an easy, accommodating person of a kindly nature. Alvin Stanley was not much experienced in worldly ways. He was reasonably fortunate as to means and position. When the artful Rachel placed the sleeping babe on the bench beside him and said: "Please mind the child for a few moments, will you?" Stanley readily replied: "Certainly, Miss," and beamed down at the serene face of the infant.

He treated his involuntary charge as daintily and carefully as though it were a precious piece of fragile bric-a-brac, as at the end of five minutes it awoke. It first stared at him steadily, then its little mouth was wreathed with a seraphic smile, and then as he cooed to it and dangled his watch before its dazzled eyes it consented to remain quiet for a few minutes. It was when it began to whimper that Stanley grew alarmed. He picked it up and moved it to and fro in his arms, and as its complaints grew loud he became decidedly concerned.

"I don't see what keeps its mother or nurse, or whoever she is," he soliloquized uneasily, but in vain he strained his gaze in the direction the nurse had gone, for he gained no further sight of her, and never would. The baby grew more and more demonstrative as the minutes wore on. Stanley took to waiting with it, which somewhat annoyed the hunger and impatience. As home went by. The babe began to make a violent outcry. People passing him staring, others impatient.

"I can't stand this!" declared Stanley, "but what am I ever going to do?" Then he turned cold all over as he recalled newspaper stories he had read where children had been abandoned to the mercy of confiding strangers. Stanley waited another half an hour. Then he formed a decision. "I'll take it home," he resolved.

"Mrs. Morse will know how to care for it and tell me what to do."

Mrs. Morse had been a rock of refuge ever since his mother had died. For 30 years a favorite family servant he had retained her in service at the old home, and having a taxi he was soon relieved of the strain of the occasion.

She was a motherly, warm-hearted creature and the idea of a baby in the house seemed to brighten up the old soul magically. She heard Stanley's story.

"I don't see what you can do but advertise, or something like," she observed.

"Maybe—maybe we could keep the little cherub?" timidly suggested Stanley, enraptured as the infant, its wants attended, clasped his big finger anxiously in its little hand.

It was an hour later when Mrs. Morse appeared from the impromptu nursery, "I finished, quite excited."

"I found this card in the little one's clothing," she reported. "It reads: 'Take the child to Miss Marcia Dole, 510 Waterbury place.'"

Instantly it was a second taxi and in half an hour Stanley found himself ringing the door bell of the place indicated. A servant came to the door, looked pale and agitated.

"Does a little child belong here?" began Stanley stammeringly.

"Oh, Miss Dole, quick! Here's a word about the missing little one," and a young lady with traces of tears in her eyes hurried to the spot. Her rare loveliness made Stanley's ambassador, but he managed to tell his story. Miss Marcia Dole insisted that they go at once for the child, which belonged to her sister who had left her in charge of the infant while she went on a visit to another city.

In rapturous joy Miss Dole took the child in her arms when they reached the Stanley home.

"See," she said, as the little one extended its arms towards Stanley. "Eve wishes to kiss you."

Stanley pressed his lips to the babe's cheek, little dreaming then that before a dozen weeks had passed by he would duplicate the act upon the sweet red lips of his lovely aunt.

WORLD'S LARGEST UNCUIT GEM

"Black Opal," Found in Nevada in 1917, Was a Quarter the Size of a Brick.

What is believed to be the largest uncut gem in the world has come to light in a recently opened mining district in Nevada, where it was discovered in the spring of 1917. The stone is a "black opal," so-called because dark tones predominate in it. It shows mostly dark peacock blues and emerald greens, with a considerable amount of red, and several less prominent shades.

In size this great gem approaches a quarter of an ordinary brick, being three and fifteen-sixteenths inches in length, three and one-eighth in width, and two and one-eighth thick at the bulkiest point. Its weight is eighteen and six-tenths avoirdupois ounces, which expressed in gem diction is 8,196 grains, or 2,596.56 carats. More than a pound of opal is surely some stone! And it is all solid, uncracked, flawless gem material, free from matrix or adhering rock except for a paper thin skin encrusting the two major surfaces. Little specks broken from this skin here and there reveal the brilliant play of colors within, while the exposed ends and edge exhibit the full refracting radiance of the mass.

This stone is about half again as large as the largest of the noted gems of the world. The Cullinan diamond was roughly the size and shape of a small fist, and if it had been an opal, would have weighed but 1,728 carats. It is compared with the new opal on this basis since the specific gravity of the diamond is 75 per cent greater than that of the opal—Archibald Rice in the Scientific American.

REACHING FOR WORLD TRADE

Every Nation Wide Awake to the Possibilities That Have Opened, Following the Great War.

A more cosmopolitan document could hardly be imagined than the weekly list of trade chances which is nowadays gathered from all sources by the United States department of commerce, and published for the information of American business interests. An agency in Spain wishes to sell agricultural machinery and mechanical tools; a company in Egypt wishes to handle American cardboards and all kinds of paper; a firm in India is eager to come in contact with exporters of general merchandise; agriculturists in South Africa are interested in caterpillar tractors; a man in Switzerland would fain become an agent for yarns and fabrics; another in Belgium wishes to deal in food products; an engineer in Letland would like to represent exporters of agricultural tools and automobiles, but perceives the wisdom of having more than one string to his bow, for he wants also an agency for the sale of land. An interesting medley of commercial ambitions, with items that have already counted up to more than 1,000, the list reveals how, all over the world, individuals and companies are hoping for opportunity to share in international trade.

KNOWLESVILLE MAN DROWNED

On Tuesday, Oct. 5, the drowning took place of Fred C. Kenney of Knowlesville, who since his return from overseas, where he served with the rank of corporal, has been engaged with the New Brunswick forest service.

It was while employed with a party engaged in timber cruising on the headwaters of the Miramichi, about 48 miles northwest of Newcastle, that he unfortunately lost his life. He was last seen alive when he left his camp for a short hunting trip on Tuesday, and as he did not return to camp when expected a searching party was organized. A canoe was found overturned on a small lake in the vicinity and later the body of the unfortunate man was found in the water. There was no witness of the sad occurrence but it is presumed that Mr.
Kenney went on the lake in the canoe and that in some manner it was overturned and, as he could not swim very well, he was unable to save himself.

The sad death of Mr. Kenney, who was a very popular young man, has cast a gloom over the remainder of his party, and their sincere sympathy together with that of his many friends goes out to the family in their sad bereavement. Deceased was 28 years of age and is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kenney, of Knowlesville, four brothers and two sisters.
