ACCOUNT OF THE GLOBE

INFERIOR STRATIFIED OR NON-FORMER

Hitherto the hardest and most compact substances that we have met with have been characterised by the presence of organic remains, but we now enter upon the examination of a class of rocks which were formed at a period when, as far as our knowledge extends, neither animal nor vegetable life existed on the globe—a period antecedent to that when the Divine Spirit, which Milton so sublimely invokes,

"With might and main, and

Dove-like gentleness, on the vast

And made it pregnant

This group, and that which follows, have long gone under the name of primitive or primary rocks, because, from their occurring lowest in the series of rocks, and also from their containing no organic remains, they are supposed to have been first in the order of formation. Before describing them, it will be necessary to give an account of four substances which enter largely into their composition, namely, Quartz, Feldspar, Mica, and Hornblende.

Quartz, or silica, is a crystalline substance of various colours, but generally in appearance something like white glass. It scratches glass, strikes fire with steel, and is sometimes nearly transparent. It presents itself almost in the form of rock crystal, in the varieties of flint, agate, chalcedony, and siliceous sand. It is a metallic oxide, its base is called silicium.

The scientific world is indebted to Sir Humphry Davy for its decomposition. Quartz is very extensively used in the arts. When combined with soda, it forms glass, and, with alumina, porcelain and pottery ware.

Feldspar is another crystalline stone, which displays various colours, and attracts the light. It principally consists of a mixture of sandy and clayey matter. Lime and potash are also present, but oxide of iron occasionally colours it of a reddish hue. Its colours are usually white, red, and grey. It is softer than quartz, but harder than glass, and therefore scratches it. Feldspar is used in pottery, that of Cornwall, from its fine quality. (To poraneous with rocks amongst which the occur, of which hornblende constitutes the principal ingredient—Mica Slate is essentially composed of mica and quartz, and forms extensive tracts of country, as well as thin beds included amongst other rocks.—Feldspar is principally, and in many cases entirely, composed of the substance called compact felspar.

It is generally subordinate to gneiss or mica slate, and does not appear to constitute any extensive tracts of country.

Primitive Limestone.—This is an important rock, and is easily known from other limestones, by containing no organic remains.

It is composed of various kinds of stony marble so valuable in the fine arts. An account of the varieties of the marble is compatible with our limits. It is found in several parts of Scotland; but the finest is the Parian marble, of which the famous statue, the Venus de Medici, is formed. It is almost incapable of decay. A question here arises, under what circumstances could marble have been produced? It is a carbonate of lime, and must have been, from its composition, subjected to great heat. Now, carbonate when heated, gives out its acid but the acid is still present in the marble.—

Mr J. Hall has thrown considerable light upon this obscure subject. He subjected common carbonate of lime to heat, under a high pressure, which prevented the acid. The consequence was, that the lime was fused, and a substance which in every respect was identical with the finest marble. We are therefore justified in inferring, that, under a high pressure in the bowels of the earth, nature formed her extensive beds of statuary marble.

Gneiss is composed of quartz, felspar, mica and hornblende, with an occasional mixture of other minerals. It occupies very considerable tracts of country, and we are informed by professor Jameson, that all the useful metals, except mercury, occur in this rock.

Proteine may be arranged with gneiss, as they are very nearly similar, and both are closely allied to granite. These are the most remarkable of the inferior stratified rocks, but they are far from being the whole of them, for the varieties and transitions of the one into the other are endless, and set classification at defiance.

We cannot enumerate the various situations where these rocks are to be found.—

They occupy a large portion of the earth's surface, and they always occur with constant general characters, so that we may suppose them all to have resulted from common causes, and these of a chemical nature, since the present mineralogical characteristic of the mass is conjoined crystalline.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE STANDARD.

Mr. ELLIOT.

Some time since I took the liberty to call the attention of the public, through the medium of the Standard, to the erection of a market house, public room &c. &c., since which I have heard it roundly asserted, that I was an interested person, and had proposed a plan which, if carried into effect, would materially enhance the value of property belonging to myself. Now Sir, so far from that being the case, I declare that I do not possess one foot of any kind of property in the vicinity of the proposed erection, and that it can only benefit me in common with the public. Having said this much by way of preface, I will endeavour to give you and the public as correct a history of the way in which the present building was erected, as I can, and the claim which in my opinion they have to it, and which is to the site on which it stands; but writing wholly from memory I may not be correct as to dates, otherwise I presume the facts stated will not be denied.

Some twenty or thirty years ago, the Magistrates of this county applied for, and obtained a grant of a public landing to the eastward of King street, then vacant, (except when employed for timber booms by the neighbouring gentry) for the purpose of building thereon a Market House and slip. In order to carry this intention into effect, a number of persons in 1809 or 1810, entered into subscription for the purpose of erecting a Market House, over which there was to be a public room. The frame was contracted for, raised, and the outside partly finished.

The funds being already expended, they

WRITTEN UNDER THE PICTURE OF A LADY IN THE LIBRARY OF THE REV. JOHN MITCHELL.

I cannot guess thy name or face, Lad, and yet I think thy face, Thy cheek so bright, thine eye so free, Thy red-lips lips are known to me.
But I am very young, and thou Belongest to the by-gone years,
And other lips were on thy brow,
And other voices in thine ears.
Mine eye doth wander from the book,
To gaze upon each quiet feature;
And well it may—thy gleeful look Is hard on me, sweet unknown creature!
Thy tresses of rich summer brown, Thy sunny cheeks are glowing down, Thy hand plays with a rose the while;
Thy heart is in some distant spot,
Of that bright rose it thinketh not,
I see love at that thoughtful smile.

I gaze upon thee o'er and o'er,
And turn aside and gaze once more.
Enchantress of the place, Thy weeping memory I would bear The colour of thy cheek, thy hair, Thy beauty and thy grace.
For weak and dim my eyes may be,
Ere they again shall look on thee.

Yet there is one when I am gone,
The Poet of this lowly domain; Ah! lady, at thy gentle call,
He wakes his soul to life again;
Thy faithful eye, thy angel smile Are with him, so he fondly dreams, His lonely wanderings to beguile, By distant hills and haunted streams;
At eve his twilight lamp doth glow Repeats the radiant brow of snow.
Thou art the lady of these bowers; Mid books and music thou dost dwell;
Mid purple hues and scented flowers,
And rich delights thou lovest as well.
Thy small white hand is rose and pearl, Thy neck its chain of pearls and pearl;
A bright gem sparkles in thy hair, Beautiful Girl!
Who'er thou art, I bless thy face,
A Poet's blessing rest with thee.

PUBLICATIONS.

NILLY WAIT & Co. BOSTON.
To Parents, Teachers, School Committees, and all who feel an interest in the Improvement of Youth.
It is only one year since Parley's Magazine was commenced. During that short period the number of subscribers has increased to 20,000 and the work has received, every where, the most unqualified approbation. It has found its way into the hands of families, and while it has entertained the social circle, its instructive lessons have, we hope, often had a salutary influence on the juvenile mind and heart. It has also found its way to the school room; and many classes of young pupils have been cheered twice a month by the welcome voice of the teacher bidding them to lay aside, for a few days, the class book which they have read over and over, perhaps twenty times, and read the pages of Parley's Magazine.
The demand for the work, to be used in schools, is rapidly increasing. Encouraged by such unexampled success, the Publishers resolved to render it still more worthy of so liberal a patronage and to meet their exertions they see it introduced into families and schools, through the whole length and breadth of the United States.
In this view they have secured the aid of the late Editor of the Juvenile Rambler; who has the advantage of many years experience, not only as a writer for the youth, but as a Teacher.
Among the topics which we propose to present in this volume are the following:
I. Natural History—Beasts, birds, fishes, reptiles, insects, plants, flowers, trees, the human frame, &c.
II. Biography—Especially of the young.
III. Geography—Accounts of places, manners customs, &c.
IV. Travels and Voyages, in various parts of the world.
V. Descriptions of the Curiosities of Nature and Art, in the United States, and in other countries.
VI. Lessons on objects around Children—in the Nursery, Parlor, Garden, &c. Trades and Employment.
VII. Particular duties of the young—to Parents, Teachers, Brothers, Sisters, &c.
VIII. Bible Lessons and stories.
IX. Narratives—such as are well authenticated Original Tales.
X. Parables, Fables and Proverbs, where the moral is obvious and excellent.
XI. The young adapted to the youthful capacity and feelings.
XII. Intelligence—Embracing accounts of Juvenile Books, societies, and Remarkable Occurrences.
Many of these subjects will be illustrated by numerous and beautiful engravings prepared by the best artists, and selected not only with a view to adorn the work, but to improve the taste, cultivate the mind, and raise the affections of the young to appropriate and worthy objects. We would make them better children, better brothers, better sisters, better pupils, better associates, and in the end, better citizens.
May we not ask the co-operation of all who receive the Circular, in the great work of forming the youthful mind and character? Will you not send us your aid and influence, in endeavoring to introduce to the American schools, and particularly, and first of all, the stories and lessons of Parley's Magazine?
The yearly subscription being but one dollar one friend will perceive the impracticability of keeping open so many thousand accounts. It is therefore indispensable that we should require payment in advance.
The price of the Magazine is $1 a year six copies for $5; twenty copies for $15 or twenty five quarterly parts for $5. Payment in all cases to be made in advance.
Subscriptions for the above received at the Office of the STANDARD.

at No. 3, Atholman Buildings, Franklin Place, PHILADELPHIA.
Embellished with a beautiful and extensive variety of engravings, from original and selected designs, both colored and plain, with two engraved title pages, and two distinct indexes, (intended to perfectly separate subjects in the year) also, a choice collection of Music, original and selected, arranged for the piano or guitar, with nearly 600 pages large octavo letter press, and only $3 PER ANNUM.

Each number of this periodical contains 48 pages of elegant letter press, printed with clear new, and beautiful type, (arranged after the manner of the London "Ladies Assembly"), on paper of the finest texture and whitest colour. It is embellished with splendid Engravings on copper and steel, executed by artists of the highest skill and destination, and embracing every variety of subjects. Among these are illustrations of Popular Legends, Romantic Incidents, Attractive Scenery, and portraits of Illustrious Females. The number containing each quarter contains a picture of the existing Philadelphia Fashions, designed, engraved and coloured expressly for this work, by competent persons, and engaged for that purpose. The Embellishments of this character which have appeared in former numbers, are confessedly superior to any which have been furnished in any other similar American publication, and from the arrangements which have been made, there is every reason to believe they will be improved in the coming volumes.

PROPOSALS FOR ISSUING A REPRINT OF THE London, Edinburgh, Foreign and Westminster QUARTERLY REVIEWS.

In weekly parts of 48 royal octavo pages, comprising the entire matter of these Journals, with their indexes; so, agreed that each work may be bound separately at the end of the year, thus forming large volumes of nearly 700 pages each, for $5, being the cheapest and most valuable republication in this country.
The above journals are already so well known to the public, that little need be said of their respective merits. The well sustained reputation of the first, not only as an able defender of Tory principles, and the old order of things, but as the most interesting and most entertaining of Reviews, will always command the attention of the literary and scientific. While the second, celebrated for the rigor, learning and acuteness which its articles display, conducted by some of the principal literary men of the modern Athens, is an equally powerful champion of the moderate Reform party.
The Foreign Quarterly occupies a neutral ground in Politics, and is devoted to continental literature.
The Westminster is but little known in this country. It may be considered as the advocate of the Radicals, and the mouth piece of Bentham-ism. It represents the principles of the party already numerous in England, and fast increasing in the United States.
It is proposed to reprint the entire matter of the above works in weekly numbers, of forty eight pages each, enclosed in a substantial cover, with good type and paper, and printed in a manner that each work may be bound separately at the end of the year—forming four octavo volumes, of nearly seven hundred pages each.
The price of the whole will be $5 per annum payable three months after the delivery of the first number. The English copies cannot be had for less than $30. Three of them are at present republished: The London and the Edinburgh at $5 each, the Foreign, at $7, connected as it is with other publications.
Copies of six or more will be allowed a deduction of one dollar on each subscriber, if payment be made on the reception of the first number. Any individual procuring five subscribers, and remitting $25, will be allowed an additional copy.
All communications to be addressed (post paid) to Messrs. FOSTER, Albany subscribers Names enrolled at the STANDARD Office on forwarded to Mr. Foster.

ACCOUNT OF THE GL

This group, which is widely diversity part of the globe, comprises usually called Volcanic, Trappe-rous, and Granitic. They are with almost all the stratified, form bear every mark of having been formed from beneath. For the most part, occur as "protruded masses, as masses which have resulted from of matter after ejection, or as vein of fissures, apparently consequent violence to which the strata have been subjected. The substances principally into the composition of these rocks felspar, hornblende, and mica, have already described individ-compounds which they form either are all present, or when two or three the elements are, exceeding their aspect and texture.

Granite.—The most prevalent rock of this class is a confusion body, composed of the four above named; but there are a present; sometimes only two found in a mass, which obtains granite. This rock was long fundamental one on which all accumulated; but this opinion is it is also found in England, but scarcely. It forms a beautiful siting, and though used for that not so to an extent commensu-value. "In general," says Mr. his Outlines of Geology, "Grandurable of nature's productions exists the destroying hand of time in common bases, its extent against its employment, its use joined for public edifices." Tedly no danger of exhausting it.

Mr. Williams in his Natural Mineral Kingdom, informs us, beautiful in the world," as we serve all the kingdoms of the Egyptians." Some idea of its
