"Silver Gray."

A new and popular song, by S. Turney.

When these locks are silver gray,
When this life fast ebbs away,
When this form is rack'd with pain,
Will your early love remain;
Will the gems I gave to you
(Tokens of affection true)
Will be prized with loving care,
As in days of old they were.

Should fierce passions away my soul,
Robbing me of self control,
Causing you to shed a tear,
Will you speak in tones still dear;
Or should fortune's fickleness,
Bring us deep and dire distress,
Through our sorrow and our pain
Will your early love remain.

PERILOUS VOYAGING.

Those familiar with the lumber regions of the United States and Canada, know that the great streams which float the huge rafts of timber down the various ports and mills along their courses, are often made serviceable for other purposes. Sometimes the lumberman or shingle-maker takes his family with him to the scene of his winter's labors; and in the spring, when the season's work is ended, places them—wonderful children, sometimes a round dozen—on a raft of logs or shingles, and, keeping close to the shore, floats down ten, twenty, or thirty miles to his home. The hunter, who has for weeks hunted and trapped in the vast forests along these streams, binds his packages of furs together, makes himself a conveyance by lashing half a dozen logs firmly to each other, and accomplishes his journey of a hundred or more miles in twenty-four hours.

As a general thing, there is little risk in such a journey. If the weather is fair, and the river clear of floating lumber, there is hardly more danger than there would be in making the distance behind a pair of farm horses in a country wagon. People, however, if they live in constant contact with danger, grow careless in time, and often risk their own lives and those of others where there is no apparent necessity.

And so it happened in the instance I am about to relate. John Allen was a well-to-do farmer of Woodstock, on the River St. John, and besides the income derived from his land and dairy, he owned, in connection with his son, a tract of wild timber, some dozen miles up the river, beginning to turn its advantages to account in a small way, the two had erected a small shingle mill near the shore and kept half a dozen men at work. The result of the first year was so satisfactory that it was resolved to increase the facilities of the manufacture, and that it might be done understandingly, they determined to visit the mill for a personal examination.

They were to have one of the farm-hands drive them up as far as they could get with a team; and from that point it was hardly more than a mile to the mill. More than half the way, the road was merely a rough cart-track through the woods, making the journey rather a tedious one; but by starting very early in the morning, they calculated to make all the necessary investigations and get back early in the afternoon.

This was the plan agreed upon, and the time set was the following Saturday. As soon as it became known in the house, the two youngest boys, Harry and Jack, were wild with excitement.

"Mayn't we go too?" they shouted in concert. "Please let us go. We never saw a shingle mill."

"A shingle mill isn't much to see," answered their father. "And, besides, you'll be getting into all sorts of danger."

"Oh! no, we won't. We'll be so careful if you'll let us go. It would be such a nice ride."

"Why don't you let them go, father?" said Mrs. Allen. "They won't take up much room and they'll enjoy it so much."

"Well, well," said the farmer, good-naturedly, "let 'em go, then; let 'em go. I shall have to take the double wagon, if they do, though; and that's big enough for the whole family."

"Why not take the whole family then?" said Mrs. Allen, half in earnest. "I've hardly been out of doors the whole winter and spring, and I should enjoy the ride as much as the boys."

Farmer Allen laughed.

"Any more of you want to go? What would you do with the baby?"

"Take her, of course. You don't suppose weather like this would hurt her? She needs the air as much as anybody."

"Are you really in earnest, mother?"

"Certainly, I don't see why you can't make a pleasure jaunt out of it as well as a business one. I haven't been so far away from home for five years, and I guess the house could get along without me for half a day. Becky can get dinner for the men at noon, and we should get home by two or three o'clock at the latest."

"Well, just as you say, then. I'm sure I've no objections. We'll have to start pretty early and, instead of having one of the men go with us, I shall have to drive."

So the matter was settled.

The next Saturday morning the party set out, all in the highest possible spirits. Innumerable charges were left with Becky as to what to do about dinner, and how to dispose of other household duties, if they should not return at the time expected. A huge basket of lunch was placed under the seat, much to the satisfaction of Harry and Jack, who had been too much excited in regard to their journey to care for breakfast.

It was a splendid April morning, and but for the brown looks of the fields and the thinly-leaved trees would have seemed like June. The sun shone and the birds sang and everything seemed delightful. The two boys were constantly finding something new to admire in the things about them, and their merry shouts often occasioned a sympathetic "coo" from the eyes of the baby, who stared with his big round eyes at the commonest objects as if they were the most wonderful things in the world.

It was after eleven o'clock when they reached the mill. The wagon had been left at the end of the road, a mile back, the horses taken out, and a bag of oats emptied upon the ground for them. They were both steady-going old veterans, used to the narrow and the plow, and would stand just where they were left, hours at a time. The farmer, however, had taken the precaution, after putting the bridles in the wagon, to tie the halter to one of the wheels.

The mill stood close down to the water's edge, and, end in front and all around it were heaps of blocks, refuse timber, logs, and shavings. It was not a very romantic looking place, but the children were delighted with it.

The long ride had given them all a good appetite. A rough table was made out of some boards laid across a couple of stumps, and the contents of the big basket were soon placed upon it. Lunch finished, the farmer and his son began their investigation, while Mrs. Allen and the children wandered about, looking for arbutus and gathering pine-cones. There was more to be looked after about the mill than expected, and it was two o'clock before the job was finished.

So busy had they been that the gradual clouding up of the sky had not been noticed, and it was not until the sudden pattering of rain began upon the leaves, that the little party began to look about them.

"It's nothing but an April shower," said Tom. "We shall have to get under the shelter of the mill till it passes over."

"Don't you believe it," returned the farmer. "We have had rain hanging around for a week past, and we've got it now, sure enough. Do the best we can we shall be drenched. You run on ahead, Tom, and put the horses in, so as to be ready by the time we get there. We'll be right after you."

Obedient to his father's advice, Tom hurried rapidly along the path leading to the spot where the team had been left, while the remainder of the party followed after as fast as they could. The place was reached at last. The wagon was there, the two bridles lay just where they were thrown, but the horses were gone.

For a moment the farmer stood dumb-founded. Then he began to examine their tracks.

"It's plain enough," at last he hurriedly said. "They've slipped the halter and have started back home. You'll have to see if you can overtake 'em, Tom. I'll take your mother and the children back to the mill. The wind is rising, and it is setting in for a cold, raw storm."

The rain came faster and faster, and by the time they had regained the shelter of the mill they were thoroughly wet through. A fire was soon kindled in the little crack stove used by the shingle makers the winter before, and the time spent in waiting for Tom's return was employed in drying their clothes.

An hour passed away. The storm grew more and more furious. The rain poured down in torrents, and the great tops of the pine trees bent and withered in the terrible gusts, which became more and more frequent. The river, always rapid and strong, and now a fierce, turbulent stream, whose middle current nothing could cross in safety.

At last Tom burst in the mill.

"It's of no use," he exclaimed. "We've got to stay here or swim home. I went clear to the main road, more than five miles from here, and found that the horses have turned the wrong way, instead of going home. If they had gone straight back, the men would have known that something had happened and come for us; but there's no chance for that now."

"At this Harry and Jack began to cry, and even Mrs. Allen looked dismayed.

"Staying here to-night is out of the question," said Mr. Allen. "We must get home somehow. We haven't a morsel to eat, and every hour we stay makes it worse. We're in for a long storm, and the road half the way from here to the turnpike will be underwater within twelve hours."

"What shall we do, then?" asked Tom who was holding his dripping coat before the blaze.

Mr. Allen shook his head.

"If it was fair weather I should know what to do quick enough; and I don't know but we shall be obliged to come to it any way."

"Why what do you mean, father?" asked Mrs. Allen, anxiously.

He pointed to the river.

"I should take the shingle-raft lying there by the landing. It is staunch and strong, and just as safe as any boat that ever floated on the River St. John."

Mrs. Allen had all a woman's dread of the water, and her heart sank at once. But the idea of being compelled to remain for two or three days in that desolate spot, without food or a chance to sleep, was more dreadful yet, and she felt almost like urging her husband to carry out the desperate idea he had announced.

"We've got to decide upon something very quick," continued the farmer. "It'll be dark in an hour, and then we shall have no choice."

He went to the window and looked out for a moment at the river. Then he came back to the stove.

"It seems fearful; but then we're pretty high as wet as we can be, now. I believe we can keep in shore without much trouble, and at the rate the stream is now running we should reach Woodstock in less than an hour if we done it in worse weather than this."

"I shouldn't be afraid myself," said Tom; "but then there's mother and the children to think of."

"I'm not afraid, Tom," said Mrs. Allen. "And even if I were, I believe it's the only thing we can do."

"We'll try it, then," said Mr. Allen, decidedly. "Come, Tom, we've no time to lose. See if there is rope enough in the corner there for a coil to throw ashore when we get to the landing at Woodstock, and put the paddles aboard. Let me take the baby, mother. Now, boys, jump on. There's room enough for a regiment. You'll have to make up your minds to stand a good deal of water, the next hour. Push her off!"

The raft swung slowly round from its fastenings, and in another minute struck the strong current, which, though less swift than that in the middle of the river, was yet so strong as to make safe navigation a difficult task. The rain came with such blinding force that it was almost impossible to see the shore, and the increasing darkness threatened to grow into total darkness before the end of their perilous journey was reached.

It was barely three-quarters of an hour from the time they left their starting-point when the raft touched the landing-place at Woodstock, and Tom, rope in hand, jumped on shore, to throw the loop over the post which had always stood there.

To his dismay, the post was gone, and as the raft swept along he felt the rope slip through his fingers, in spite of his endeavors to hold it. There was another point, lower down where the raft might strike, if his father could keep it out of the current by his kingle arm. Beyond that the river made a sudden bend, and if the landing should be missed there, no power could keep them from going down the river.

He hurried to the nearest houses of the village and gave the alarm, and then flew down the street, which ran parallel with the river, to the lower landing. He was just in time to see his father spring from the raft, holding the rope, and pushing in the water up to his waist, caught hold of it to assist. Their united strength barely fair to bring the raft into the eddy, and the shouts of the rapidly-advancing men, who had been raised by Tom's brief warning, gave them additional energy. Two minutes later, half a dozen strong arms were aiding them, and the raft was slowly drawing to the shore, when the rope suddenly parted.

With a wild scream, the mother rose, with her babe in her arms, as if to plunge into the river. Then, seeming to remember the children who clung to her garments, she sank down again, and the next moment the fierce current had swept them away in the darkness.

There was but one hope more. If the ferry, five miles lower down, could be reached in time, they might be saved; and the almost distracted father and son, mounted on horses provided by sympathizing friends, galloped there. Too late!

The ferry-keeper had seen some black object rush by in the darkness, and heard cries for help, which he was unable to give. They were in the hands of God, and he only could help them.

All that night Farmer Allen paced the floor of his desolate home. The friends who came to comfort him found their endeavors vain. He wished to be alone with his sorrow. Tom had remained at the ferry, determined to take a boat early daylight and follow down the river.

There was little sleep that night in Woodstock, and long before the usual time for the village to be astir, little groups were abroad in the rain, discussing the sad event of the preceding evening. Suddenly there was a stir in the direction of the little telegraph office, and the operator, who slept there, came rushing out with a sealed envelope in his hand, in a state of great excitement.

"Who'll carry this over to Farmer Allen's?" he shouted.

"What is it? Any news? Is it about his folks?"

"He'll tell you. It's his news. I've no right to tell you. I wish I had! Who'll take it?"

"I will! I will!" exclaimed half a dozen eager to be the bearer of the news.

The message was entrusted to the fleetest-footed boy of the village, who sped over the mile which lay between the office and Farmer Allen's like a greyhound.

"Here's something for you he panted, as he burst into the house, without knocking.

The farmer took it mechanically without a thought that it concerned those whom he already looked upon as in heaven. Breaking the seal he opened the folded slip of paper, and glanced at its contents. Then with a fervent "Thank God!" he fell upon his knees, and the feeling so long pent up, found vent in tears of thankfulness.

The message was a brief one. It ran: "Fredericton, N. B., April 19th.

"John Allen—Your wife and children were picked up at eight this morning, on a shingle raft, three miles above this city. All safe. Answer."

Swift as were the feet of the messenger they had hard work to keep pace with J. Allen's on the return. The news spread like wildfire, and within half an hour every one in Woodstock knew the contents of the despatch.

Little more need be said. Farmer Allen followed the message he sent without the loss of an hour. That was Sunday morning, and it was Thursday night before the parted household again met beneath the roof whose few hours' desolation made it yet the more sacred and precious to all.

St. Patrick Central Agricultural Society's Fair.

The Fair of the Society was held on the 27th October, owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not so large an attendance as otherwise would have been.

The show of cattle and horses was fair, considering the torrents of rain that fell, but people generally are willing to have wet backs and cold hands, when a dollar is to be made. The vice-president Mr. Patrick, together with the board had trouble to get judges, on account of most all present having articles for competition. The president, Matthew Stevenson, Esq., did arrive not until afternoon, owing to the storm; the judges however were in the field by eleven o'clock, to award prizes to the successful competitors.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA,

Friday, 7th & 7th of May, 1875.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS it is provided by the 8th Section of the Act 31 Victoria, Chapter 8, intitled "An Act respecting the Customs," that the importer of any cattle or swine may slaughter and sell the same in bond, under such Regulations and restrictions as the Governor in Council may from time to time make for this purpose.

And whereas it has been found expedient to give effect to the said Section 8, in so far as regards the importation of swine, and to alter the terms of the Regulations for this purpose, adopted by Order in Council of 22nd of May, 1866, in His Excellency, on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs and under the provisions of the said Act has been pleased to issue an Order in Council of 22nd of May, 1875, and the same are hereby repealed, and that the following Regulations be and are hereby adopted and established in lieu thereof—that is to say:

1. Upon the importation of swine for the purpose of slaughter, the Importer shall enter the same for Warehouse, upon the usual form of such entries, stating upon its face, the number and value of the herd, and also the quantity of pork, bacon, hams and lard, which the number stated will produce when slaughtered and dressed at 119 pounds weight for each live hog, so imported, and the amount of duty to which such produce is or may be liable under the rate prescribed by the tariff in force at the time of entry, and the amount of such duty, in such manner as to execute a bond to the Queen, in double the amount of such duty, the condition of which bond shall be, that upon the due exportation within one year of the said produce of the swine so imported and converted into pork, bacon, hams and lard, or payment of the duty entered by the said bond, then the said bond shall be and become null and void, otherwise shall remain in full force and virtue.
2. Upon the reception into the Bonding Warehouse, the swine shall be regarded only as meat, and it shall not be lawful to remove any of the produce of such swine before the expiration of the term for any purpose, without a permit from the Collector, or proper Officer of Customs, as in the case of all other bonded goods.
3. Swine imported in the carcasses to be cured and packed in box, may be entered in the usual way for Warehouse, and be placed in the premises established as a Warehouse of this class for the special purpose of curing and packing. The weight of such carcasses to be duly ascertained and given bonds to the Queen in double the amount of duty accruing thereupon under the tariff in force, conditioned for the due exportation of the same, or payment of duty with: two years from the date of entry.
4. The killing pen, curing and packing houses and all cellars, stores or other apartments installed in such Warehouse, shall be accessible at all times between sunrise and sunset to the inspection and survey of the Collector or Inspector of Customs, or any officer of Customs to whom the duty of such inspection may be assigned by them or their officers.
5. The produce of swine imported alive and slaughtered for curing, at the rate of 119 pounds for each hog, and the meat of the swine imported in carcasses for curing and packing, at the actual ascertained weight at the entry, shall, for subject while in bond to all changes in the tariff rate of duty, and when entered out of bond for home consumption, shall pay the rate of duty in force at the date of such entry.

Customs Dept. Notice.

Ottawa, October 15, 1875.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following goods are subject to further notice: 14 per cent.

J. JOHN. ON, Commissioner of Customs.

Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.
PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA.
ISSUED MONTHLY.
A MAGNIFICENT CONCEPTION FULLY CARRIED OUT.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the products of our great artists has always been felt, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The success of these attempts has invariably allowed each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has been of the ten to twenty monthly. It is an elegant and costly production. It is a fine full literature; and a collection of the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the end of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with trials of a similar class THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—above and unapproached—of its class.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interpretation of landscape, marine, figures, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in all colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"MAN'S UNSELFISH FRIEND" will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself.

Besides the chromo, every advance subscriber to THE ALDINE for 1875 is constituted a member, and entitled to all the privileges of THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 50.00 subscribers, 100 different pictures, valued at over $2,500 are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the proceeds of each series are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

ONE SUBSCRIPTION ENTITLING TO THE ALDINE ONE YEAR, THE CHROMO AND THE ART UNION, $6 per annum, in advance. (No charge for postage.) 50 COPIES OF THE ALDINE, 50 CENTS. THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable by subscription. There will be no reduction or club rates; each for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or forwarded to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the facsimile signature of J. W. STEVENSON, President.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Walker's Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are a gentle blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form. H. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair. Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Elygant and safe remedy ever sustained the sinking system. Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the West of one great river throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon the various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, which they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Gout, Rheumatism of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations, Belching of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a long list of testimonials. Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Gout, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Abscesses, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases. For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood. Mechanical Diseases, - Persons engaged in Painting and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scrofulous Discolorations of the Skin, Annular and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time, by the use of these Bitters. Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuge, or cathartic, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the day of womanhood or the time of life, these Bitters are used display so decided an influence, when the government is soon perceptible. Jaundice. - In all cases of jaundice, we are assured that your liver is not long in recovering. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and purge the system. For this purpose, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are the best.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood, wherever you find its impurities burning through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or other eruptions, it when you take these Bitters, the impurities will tell you when the blood is pure, and the health of the system will follow.
