BETWEEN THE SHOWERS.

BY MRS. ABDY

There is the ramble that we planned

The weather-glass with ruthless hand,

Nor gather wild flowers in the glade,

We may not gaze on winding streams

And rose encircled bowers;

But we may watch the sunny gleams

That come between the shower

With gloomy ills to cope,

Wooed the deceiver-Hope I knew that calm succeeds to strife.

So drooped not on my way;

I did not talk of vanished dreams,

I watched to see the sunny gleams

Yet learnt their loss to bear

Stood not at " settled fair : '

And many on my road I passed

Their eyes upon the ground.

To such the world a desert seems

All may, in seasons of distress,

To some slight solace cling,

And feel how much of happiness

From little joys may spring.

Sma'l gifts, if sately, duly stored,

Riches beyond the miser's hoard-

And still such boons to us are given.

Shine forth between the showers.

While gleams of sunshine, sent from heaven,

He skipped about in the aspen tree, And talked to himself and blinked at me And all the trembling foliage through, He scanned me with a bird's-eye view; His under dress was of satin and gold. And over his back in graceful fold. He flapped the skirts of his blue black coat, And darted aloft, repeating his note-"I cheat-ed-ye! I cheat-ed-ye! I cheat-ed-ye

I watched his flight, as towards the dell. His graceful motions rose and fell; A flutter or two-an upward glide, Then folding his pinions close by his side, He fell in a wave of the calm, sweet air, With never a flutter and never a care : Then mounting again on vigorous wing, His heart gave vent in the graceful swing; "I cheat-ed-ve! I cheat-ed-ve! I cheat-ed-ve!

I watched his flight with wistful eye, Where the apple tree stood crotched deep rye ;

Till high above the tasseling corn, This noble lord, to the manor born, In measured course came bounding back, In a circle wide, on a brand-new track; Aiming his flight at the aspen tree, Singing the same sweet chorus of glee-'I cheat-ed-ye! I cheat-ed-ye! I cheat-ed-ye

The aspen leaves rocked lazily;
As he scanned me again with his keen black eye You can't cheat me for I see the nest. Warmed by your sweet-heart's downy breast, Way up in the crotch of the aspen tree; I know the wealth of your birdlings three! I turned the joke on the gaudy cheat, And took up his song and began to re eat; "I cheat-ed-ve! I cheat-ed-ve! I cheat- d-ve!

STAPLE AND FANCY

SOUTH FARMINGTON, SEPTEMBER, 1869.

DR. GATES,—Dear Sir.—I suffered two years with Asthama—I suffered day and night. I purchased every remedy that I cou'd hear tell of, but all to little or no purpose; the more I-took of Doctors' medicines, such as powders, &c., the worse I got, and that they left me so weak that I could scarcely walk. I expected to suffer the rest of my days; but, thanks to Gates' Life of Man Bitters and Syrup, I am cured of the Asthama. I have completely recovered my health, strength, and spirits. My friends, my physician, and myself are confident that it is owing solely to the use of your wonderful Life of Man Bitters and Syrup that this happy result has come to pass; and I shall ever gratefully acknowledge it; and am now and will be at all times ready to state any further particulars to satisfy the public teat my assertions are true in every respect.
