Gold Bars Recovered.
Bremen, April 12, via Skagway, April 18.—The gold bars valued at $16,000 and supposed to have been stolen from the vessel Kaiser Wilhelm de Grosse, were found by the steamer's steward where they had been hidden behind a cornice.

Heavy Chinese Claims.
Washington, April 13, via Skagway, April 18.—The Chinese indemnity claims submitted by all the powers aggregate $300,000,000. The state department thinks the amount should not have exceeded $200,000,000 for even that is more than China will have ability to pay. The claim of the United States is $25,000,000. While the amount is not stated, Britain's claim is said to be comparatively reasonable.

Aguinaldo's Game.
New York, April 13, via Skagway, April 18.—Aguinaldo's delay in issuing a manifesto advising general surrender of the Filipinos is causing a great deal of comment.

The Zero Club is now the only gentleman's club in Dawson, the Regina being a thing of the past.

Family Night.
This is family night at the Standard theater and the play which will be presented, "My Partner," is one of the best yet produced by the management of this popular resort. Seats should be secured early as "standing room only" will be the appointment of late arrivals without seats.

PURSUED 25 YEARS

After Which He is Acquitted of Charge of Flurder.

Evanston, Wyo., April 13, via Skagway, April 18.—Harry Lyons, alias Harry Teer, has been acquitted after a most sensational trial of the charge of murdering John Wheeling 25 years ago, since which time and until his capture a short time ago Lyons has been chased all over the globe. The account of his travels, as related by himself on the witness stand, is more strange than fiction. The verdict of not guilty meets general approval.

Last Stage Billed.
Skagway, April 18.—It is officially announced that the last stage of the season will leave Whitehorse for Dawson on Saturday the 20th.

ONE YEAR FOR ROSENFELD.

Increased His Time by Being Over-Fresh in Court.

Less than an hour was consumed in Judge Dugas' court this morning in the trial, conviction and sentence to one year at hard labor of Jacob Rosenfeld on the charge of having on the 14th of last month obtained from Mrs. Mary E. Scott of the Stockholm baths $50 on various false representations, one of which was that he was a brother of Uncle Hoffman, another that he owned several stores in town; that he had plenty of money at the Bank of B. N. A., and that at that particular time, which was after banking hours, he needed the amount obtained to treat "some prominent peezees unt professional men," who had carried him around on a silver salver the previous night.

On these representations Mrs. Scott had accommodated him with a loan of $50 until the following day, but later developments had proven Rosenfeld, alias "Uncle Joe Hoffman," to be a fraud and a bilk.

The evidence of the prosecution was of a most convicting nature and to which Rosenfeld only attempted to reply by making a broad statement defamatory to the character of the principal witness who then and there branded it as a malicious lie. The prominent men with whom the prisoner claimed to have hob-nobbed testified that they did not even know him.

In passing sentence Judge Dugas said it had been in his mind after hearing the very incriminating evidence to give the prisoner six months, but in view of the fact that he, in addition to having been proven a rascal had, by the charge made by himself also proven him to be malicious and a coward, he would sentence him to a period of one year at hard labor.

So far as baths of the Stockholm variety are concerned, "Uncle Joe" will not indulge in any for some time to come.

Pitched Battle.
Gillett, Col., April 3.—A pitched battle occurred between City Marshal McBeth and two masked holdups in which Albert Tilsdale, one of the hold-ups, was killed, his partner, whose name is unknown, wounded, and McBeth slightly injured. The two men after holding up a saloon, retreated to the door, while firing their revolvers. McBeth heard the firing and ran through the back door of the saloon and began firing. The robbers returned the fire which lasted several minutes. Tilsdale was shot through the body and died shortly afterward. His partner escaped with a ball in his shoulder.

The Easter Recess.
London, April 3.—Parliament has risen for the Easter recess after a session more satisfactory to the opposition than to the government. The record of business is meagre, but that is a small matter in comparison, but that is lack of energy and judgment with which the house of commons has been led.

The continuance of Lord Salisbury in power for many weeks is doubted by some of the most experienced parliamentary heads. There are rumors that he has sought to offer his resignation before his departure for Beaulieu and that A. J. Balfour would be found in the upper house when parliament re-assembles. Another version is that nothing will be done for a fortnight, and that Lord Salisbury may consent to remain in office until the close of the session if his health improves in the Riviera.

There was no lack of gossip in the smoking room of the house of commons during the closing hours, but the only points on which there was a general agreement were that the government had been on a downward grade since the king's speech was read and that a stronger leader than Mr. Balfour was needed in the commons.

KENTUCKY BLOOD

Copiously Spilled in Fight Between Sheriff's Posse and Desperadoes

ON MOUNTAIN TOP NEAR WHITESBURG

Gang Had Robbed and Murdered Woman and Son.

THREE HUNDRED SHOTS FIRED

Government Troops Ordered Out, But Not Needed—Firing Heard Twelve Miles Away.

Whitesburg, Ky., April 13, via Skagway, April 18.—Two men are dead and two wounded as the result of a pitched battle fought today between Sheriff Wright and a strong posse of deputies and five desperadoes on a mountain top near this place and where the gang had fortified itself. The desperadoes had robbed and murdered Mrs. Jennie Hull and son, after which they burned both bodies by firing the house.

In the battle which was heard twelve miles away three hundred shots were fired. Young Wright, one of the killed and a nephew of the sheriff, joined the posse a month ago to avenge the death of his father who is supposed to have been murdered by the same gang. The other man killed was Isaac Millard. The entire gang was captured and is now in jail. There is strong talk of wholesale lynching but the sheriff and his posse will make every effort to protect the prisoners.

When the firing on the mountain was heard in the valley below it was feared the posse had been defeated and a message was sent to the governor at Frankfort asking for troops which were at once dispatched but whose services were not required.

(Whitesburg, Ky., is in the Cumberland mountains about 100 miles north from Chattanooga, Tenn., and near the line of the Cincinnati Southern railroad. It was in the same locality that the notorious Taylor brothers surprised and murdered a sheriff and his entire posse, 10 all six men, the night of September 13th, 1882, on which eventful night the writer who was detained in the mountains by a railroad wreck within four miles of where the battle was fought distinctly heard the firing.)

Proposed Bench Show.
A public meeting is called for tonight at 8 o'clock at the rooms of the Board of Trade to discuss the particulars of the proposed bench show. NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

There is as yet no cause for unnecessary alarm over the fact that a combine is made or is being made of all companies operating steamers on the lower Yukon for the reason that from a reliable source has come the statement that the combine is for the purpose of effecting a reduction rather than an increase in charges. And this statement is a most reasonable one for the very apparent reason that the future success of the interests involved in the big companies of in the consolidated companies depends wholly and entirely on the development of the country and to impede that development by the levy of excessive charges will be to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. No companies nor combine of companies can afford for what profits would accrue in one or two seasons to choke off the development of the one industry of this country.

A fair profit should be realized by all transportation companies on the capital invested and for risks taken, and the consumers in the country are ready and willing to pay that fair profit which, we have been informed, is all that will be demanded by the lower river fleet, and until the cloven foot is exposed there is no cause for alarm.

The legitimate growth and development of the country can and will stand what is right in the way of necessary expense, but when the limit is exceeded that growth and development must cease and in the latter event the companies would be the heavy losers.

Another negro has paid the penalty of his infamy in Louisiana and paid it at one end of a rope which extended over a limb and to the hands of an outraged people. Yet the northern press has ceased to use that once stereotyped heading "Another Southern Outrage." On the contrary nearly every northern state in the Union has had a lynching or two of its own to record within the past year or so, and the press has virtually ceased in its efforts to immortalize the dying words of Charles Sumner which were: "Take care of my civil rights bill." Thirty years' trial has proven that civil rights are too frequently abused by the "brother in black," and that a lesson in hemp is much more effective than is the learned legislation of statesmen and the moral suasion of the ministry combined. So long as outrages continue, their perpetrators will be used as tree decorations, civil and religious codes to the contrary notwithstanding.

If a gambling house wins $100,000 in two months and, after losing a few thousand in one day decides that it is hoodooed and suspends business, where does the "gambler's grit" we hear about in sporting circles come in? The house that is not broke but stops its games until the hoodoo is broken has much less of that so-called "gambler's grit" than has the poor chumps whose bad luck made the accumulation of a $100,000 bank roll possible. Brave men are these gamblers whom we are told are the backbone of our city. Did anyone ever hear of a game being voluntarily closed down when the hoodoo was on the players, rather than on it? Well, scarcely.

If water is running as freely on the creeks these days as it is in the ditches along the streets of Dawson there can be no lack of it for sluicing purposes. The possible drawback to the work of inaugurating the spring cleanup is that the dumps are still frozen and, therefore, inaccessible to the shoveling brigade until thawed either by the rays of Sol or by artificial means. Regarding water for sluicing purposes, no possible shortage can be experienced this season.

After eating eggs all winter at $1 per dozen the jump in price to $2.50 and $3 per dozen and the corresponding advance in the price of fresh meats is conclusive evidence that the days of corners in the Dawson market have not been relegated to the shades of obscurity. And all this, too, so soon after the passage of the game law which is a protective measure to the poor butcher. Verily, there be things past finding out.

That Commissioner Ross is above and beyond the petty superstitions which practically govern the actions of some men throughout their lives is evidenced by the fact that he took the oath of office on Friday and entered actively upon his official duties on the 13th day of the month. Men of his stamp have little time and less inclination for nursery superstitions.

It is encouraging to know that there is a disposition among the business interests of Dawson to take the bull by the horns regarding transportation rates or any other question which should develop symptoms of a spirit of unfairness or of excessive greed. But until such symptoms develop there is no cause for undue alarm.

The addition of Mr. J. P. McLennan to the committee which has in hand the matter of discussing ways and means to bring Dawson and the Klondike from a gold dust to a currency basis is a valuable one and the committee as it previously stood is to be congratulated on its acquisition.

The speedy manner in which justice was meted to a flagrant offender of law and decency today was but another sample of the unswerving regard for right which is characteristic of our judiciary.

Expects a Reversal.

J. G. Price, who went north on the City of Seattle recently from his mission to Washington, D. C., in the interest of the citizens in the townsites case, gave a different version of his trip to what was quoted of him in a Seattle morning paper. The townsites case, far from being ended in the interior department, has the best kind of a chance of being reopened and a hearing granted before the secretary of the interior on the strength of the new and important evidence which the citizens' committee and attorneys have secured. "I am at a loss to account for those adverse reports published in the Seattle P. L., nor am I able to assign a motive for them," said Mr. Price. "I knew nothing of them until they reached me through the Skagway papers. That they were entirely untrue it is almost unnecessary to say. The secretary of the interior has not declared that the case is ended as far as his department is concerned. On the contrary, the way is yet open to again bring up the hearing of the case on the strength of the new evidence which has been obtained during the past two months. As to the nature of this evidence, it would be poor policy to give it out and thus expose our line of attack, but every property owner would agree with us were the evidence known to them, that we are not over confident in expecting not only a rehearing but a reversal of the last decision."

The townsites case, according to Mr. Price, has become almost a national matter. Through the efforts of the Skagway Chamber of Commerce, its special committee and the attorneys, every friend of Alaska has enlisted to do the best for the town. The Skagway Chamber of Commerce has a stack of correspondence a foot high from representative men all over the United States, promising their aid.—Seattle Times.

THE HEEL OF OPPRESSION.

It looks to a man up a tree as though the people in this country occupy the same position that the Spaniards found themselves in when Schley bottled them up in Santiago harbor and drove the cork home.

If the reported combination is effected by the big companies, including the White Pass Railroad, we are up against the real thing, and the small merchants can step down and out. The one least considered is "the mon on the dump" but the chances are he will dance to some lively music in the future—monopoly will grasp him by the throat. We use this space to say what we think of this latest and most damnable condition and feel better for the saying of it. Of course this combination will not effect us as others less fortunate, for we have a warehouse full of goods. See us for nobby clothing.

OPPOSITE WHITE PASS DOCK

"HERSHBERG"

EARLY-DAY HISTORY

When the Public Bowd to Transportation Monopoly.

One of the most prominent questions in the public mind is, what will be the effect of monopoly with respect to transportation interests, should the reported combination be consummated?

This takes one back to the time when independent merchants in the Yukon district were an unknown quantity. Mr. P. B. Weare, of the N. A. T. & T. Co., tells a story of the difficulty he experienced in the early days in landing his supplies at St. Michael. Even then those who had already secured a footing thought they had some exclusive or inherent rights not possessed by others.

In 1896 there was no store at Circle City doing an independent business. The reason was that no freight could be gotten into the country. The river boats were owned and operated by wealthy corporations who discouraged others, and placed obstacles in the way of their engaging in the mercantile business. Every old timer knows this. They did business with the big companies because they had to. Once in a while a man brought something more than a grub stake in his boat down the river, but he was swallowed up in the infinite vastness of the country and the little he had made no difference to the total sales of the big 2. After a while if he remained in the country he had to purchase at the same market.

With the birth of Dawson came a change. Of course the original companies established themselves here. They had peculiar facilities for doing so quickly, but this did not last. Dawson is in Canada and native firms felt abundantly able to compete with the foreign ones because they practically had to draw their supplies from the same source, or the duty would be in favor of the Canadian firm.

Following upon this condition came the building of the White Pass & Yukon railway and that great arterial waterway, the Yukon river, was the channel down which commerce passed on its way from a Canadian source to supply the demands of Dawson.

The great richness of the Klondike gold fields was not apparent at the first, but it soon became so. No sooner was it demonstrated that this was a substantial camp and the gold present in large quantities over a considerable area, than the question of better transportation facilities on the up-river route became a question of practical value. It was quickly solved by alert capitalists and as soon as the machinery could be imported into the territory, first one and then another steambot was added, until the present up-river fleet was busily engaged.

At first the rates were thought to be high—they were high; but the service was such an improvement over the old method of bringing goods down in barges, boats and rats (and the consumer paid it anyway) that the exorbitant figure was overlooked. Following upon this came the competition of the down-river fleet, and the merchant who did not choose to pay the high rate via Whitehorse might take the extra risks and send his goods in by way of St. Michael and the down-river boat.

Owned and operated separately there has been no opportunity of combining upon a high freight rate, and the patronage has been (not calculating the freight each company carried for itself) about equal. Last season 32,000 tons of freight came into Dawson during the short time navigation was open—11,627 tons from St. Michael and 15,417 tons from Whitehorse, exclusive of 5000 tons brought in by barges from Whitehorse.

Thus it will be seen that a very small amount per ton represents a considerable sum of money to the transportation companies.

The question is, what proportion of this 32,000 tons was brought in for the use of the companies said to be in the combination, and what proportion was carried for other institutions. Whatever it is, that is the amount that would have to be provided for in the event of there being a movement on foot for the purpose of combining with the view of maintaining high transportation charges.

The Nugget has no hesitation in saying that there will be sufficient for the use of independent traders and individuals to provide a large remunerative business for several steamers either up or down the river as may be decided upon. There is a way out of the difficulty, if those interested desire to avail themselves of it. If they don't, well and good.

Christian Science Lecture.

Ithaca, N. Y., April 3.—Carroll D. Norton, of New York, delivered a lecture in Barnes hall last night on Christian Science. His presence brought a petition from the physicians of Ithaca to the university authorities protesting against the lecture. Members of the University Christian Association also opposed it as a university function. Dean T. F. Crane refused to listen to the complaint and the lecture brought out a big audience.

Mr. Norton dealt largely with the development of Christian Science, its growth and application. Cornell is said to be the first of the larger universities at which a lecture has been given on this subject.

WHALE CALLED SAM PATCH.

Had Good Cause for Grudge Against Whaler Davids.

Whom He Followed With Six Harpoons in His Body for Three Years Before Getting His Prey.

We were bound for Alijos island, off the coast of Lower California, in the bark Dolphin, to look for an old wreck of 40 years before. One day, when yet 200 miles to the north of the island, a whale suddenly breached within 300 feet of our craft, which was making only about three knots an hour under a light breeze. The monster of the deep shot to the surface and above it as if propelled by an engine of 1000-horse power. At least forty feet of his great body was in the air when he came down with a crash, and the fall kicked up such a sea that the bark was boarded by three waves in succession. Instead of sinking out of sight or making off the whale kept company with the vessel and gradually edged down toward us until a man could have tossed his cap over the rail on the broad back covered with patches of barnacles. Almost as the whale shot up from the depths of the sea our mate, whose name was Davids, cried out:

"Before heaven, but that's old Sam Patch, and he's after me!"

We had come out of a California port with a picked crew, excepting the mate I mean by that that Capt. Chambers knew his men personally, most of whom had sailed with him before. At the last moment the old mate of the bark had met with an accident, and Davids had been given the berth at an hour's notice. He had been found to be a man who thoroughly knew his business, and it was understood that he was an old whaler. He had spun no yarns of his adventures, however, and now for the first time, as the whale kept pace with us and the frightened crew tiptoed about the decks, the mate gave us a brief outline. He had been whaling in every sea, both in sail and steam vessels, and had been ashore after his last cruise only a month when joining us. Three years before in a whaler out of London they had lowered for a monster whale off the Maderas and fought him for four hours. The leviathan had smashed two boats and killed five men. Davids in his boat had got him fast, but the whale sounded so deep they had to cut the line and let him go. Three months later 700 miles to the north the whaler encountered the same fish and had another boat destroyed and two men killed. Again Davids got fast, but after being towed 15 miles to windward had to cut loose. Six months later, down off the coast of Brazil, he had his third fight with the same whale and got in a third harpoon.

During the next two years Davids sighted that whale, which had come to be known as Sam Patch, off the Cape of Good Hope, off the coast of Peru and off the coast of Mexico, and on each and every occasion at least one boat was smashed and some one killed, and the mate also made fast and had to let go again. The whale had scars by which he could easily be identified. He had always been known as a wild fish, and that he should rise so near our bark and keep company with us for hours was more than a mystery to the mate.

"I'll tell you what it is," he said after leaning his elbows on the rail and taking a long look at the vast bulk almost rubbing our starboard side; "that whale is after me. He knows I'm aboard here. Six of my harpoons are sticking in his carcass, and though I'm not after him on this voyage he wants to get me."

We laughed at the idea, but the mate clung to it. He was an intelligent, fairly educated man, and it was evident that he fully believed in his own words. Perhaps it was his earnestness that made us also come to believe that there might be something in it, although it looked absurd at first sight. When the whale had been keeping company with us for three hours, we let the bark go four points off her course, thinking to quietly steal away from her, but he changed his course and came with her. Then we shortened sail, but he slowed up. For an hour we worked to part company, but he came up to all our tricks. For seven long hours he hung to us, and then of a sudden he sank out of sight without so much as a splash. We argued that he had gone for good, and it was a weight off our minds, but Davids shook his head in a mournful way and replied:

"Sam Patch came here after me, and he won't leave for good till he gets me. He's only off to feed."

We reached the island without having seen more of him, however. As we came within a mile of the north shore the bark was thrown into the wind, the boat lowered, and Davids was to be rowed in to sound the depth and find a safe anchorage. Three sailors took their places at the oars, and the boat shoved off. It was a sunny sky and a calm sea, with never a thought of danger, but the yawl had not pulled above a cable's length from us and every man in the bark had his eye on her when she suddenly rose in the air with a crashing, rending noise. Below her appeared the great head of Sam Patch, and it was thrust upward until the stove boat was lifted 30 feet high and then slid off. When ten feet more of the body was exposed to view, the whale fell over with a mighty swash, rolled his great body over and over three or four times and then disappeared beneath the surface.

We had a second boat down in no time to pick up the men, but while four had gone in the boat there were only three to rescue. The trio were more or less knocked about and almost frightened to death, but they had come off better than the mate. Whether the whale seized him in its mouth or drowned him as it rolled we could not say, but our search for the body was in vain, and Sam Patch disappeared to trouble us no more. M. QUAD.

Jewels and Diamonds.

New York, March 29.—The rich, fashionable and luxurious of this country are adorning themselves more and more with precious gems. Consequently the jewelers are prosperous and Uncle Sam is collecting money on imported precious stones and is watching even more closely for smugglers of them.

Gen. George W. Mindil, jewelry examiner at the public stores in this city, has reported to Appraiser Wakeman on the importation of precious stones and pearls for the month of February last.

During that month, the shortest in the year, precious stones and pearls aggregating in value $1,776,073.74 were entered at this port from abroad, the greater portion of which were consigned to merchants in this city, the remainder going to large western cities. These importations are the smallest in bulk that ever pass through the customs house, yet are an important source of revenue to the government, on account of the high duties imposed on them.

Gen. Mindil's figures show an increase last month over the importations of precious stones in February, 1900, of nearly $1,200,000, and over $500,000 more than in any February in the past five years. The invoices include diamonds, pearls, rubies, sapphires, emeralds and other rare varieties of gems, both cut and uncut, the cut stones being largely in excess of the uncut ones.

The appraisements in this city last month for cut gems were $1,171,313.60, and for uncut ones $604,760.14. Similar appraisements for February, 1900, were respectively $533,796.70 and $44,244.09.

The aggregate value of importations of precious stones entered at the port of New York alone amounts to more than $21,000,000 annually. The value of those successfully smuggled into the country cannot be estimated, of course.

United States Claims.

Washington, March 26.—Upon being advised by the navy department that the U. S. S. New York had arrived at Tangiers, the state department immediately sent a cablegram to Consul-General Gummer, directing him to board the New York and go forward on her special mission. Something is left to Gummer's discretion as to the execution of the details, and it is for him to say whether he will be satisfied if the sultan and court meet him half way at Mazargin, and whether he will proceed according to the original program directly to Morocco city.

It probably will make no difference in principle, provided the necessary explanations are afforded for the treatment our consul has received, and provision be made for settling the claims. They are not very large in the aggregate; probably $60,000 will cover them all, or less than half an indemnity that was summarily collected by Germany a short time ago on a precisely similar class of claim. But it can be stated that if the court does not appear at Mazargin by the third week in April, then Consul-General Gummer will go to Morocco city.

Sherlock Holmes, Jr.

"Do you see that man with the dark mustache?" said Sherlock Holmes, jr.

"Yes. Do you know him?"
"I never saw him before. He is married. He ought to live in a flat, but doesn't. His wife is afraid of the hired girl, and he is left handed."

"Mr. Holmes, you are an everlasting marvel. How can you tell that about a man you don't know and whom you never saw before?"

"Look at the second knuckle on his left hand. You see, it is badly skinned."

"Also there is a black mark on his left cuff. Now let us see what we must make of this: 'When a left handed man pokes up the furnace fire, how does he do it? By putting his left hand forward, of course. Thus it happened that it was his left hand which scraped against the furnace door. The blackened cuff shows that it was a furnace door. Having this foundation to work upon, the rest is easy. If he lived in a flat, he would have no furnace to look after, and his wife were not afraid of the hired girl they would make the latter do the poking up. It is all very simple if one's perceptive faculties are properly trained. He can't really afford to live in a house, because if he could he would have a man to look after the furnace. Therefore he ought to live in a flat."

"But hold on. How do you know the man is married? He can't be over 30 at the most. Why may it not be possible that he lives at home with his widowed mother?"

"My dear sir," said Sherlock Holmes, jr., "I am surprised at your lack of perspicacity. If he lived at home with his widowed mother, he would permit her to tend to the furnace herself."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Fine Destination.

A young down town drug clerk who had heard the story of the colored woman who had asked for flesh colored court plaster and was given black by the observant dealer stored the incident away in his mental dust box and decided to use it at the first opportunity. He had not long to wait, for a few nights ago a comely colored girl stepped into the store where he was employed. "Ah wants some court plaster," she said.

"What color?" inquired the clerk, with affected nonchalance.
"Flesh cullah, sah."

Trembling in his shoes and keeping within easy reach of a heavy pestle, the clerk handed the woman a box of black court plaster, and he was surprised at the time that the situation afforded so little humor. The woman opened the box with a deliberation that was amusing, but she was unruffled when she noted the color of the contents.

"Ah guess yo' mus' a-misunderstood mah ordah. Ah asked foh flesh cullah, and yo' done give me skin cullah."

The drug clerk is still a little daed from the encounter, and he has firmly resolved to subject every joke to rigid laboratory test hereafter before using.—Pittsburg News.

The boy's name is Rufus, and he was busily engaged in polishing the doctor's shoes while he was being shaved. As was his custom, the doctor said, "How are you feeling, Rufus?"

"I ain't much. Kindly pohly, thank you, doctah," answered the boy.
"What's the matter?"
"Paralysis."

"What?"
"Paralysis."

Had the doctor not been so well acquainted with the negro race, he might have allowed himself to show astonishment. As it was, he determined to see what would result from further inquiries.

"Where's your paralysis?" he asked kindly.
Rufus was drawing a rag swiftly across the left shoe.
"In the right hip, doctah," he answered.

"It's probably rheumatism," suggested the physician.
"No, indeed. It's paralysis. I reckon I knows rheumatism, and I knows paralysis. This is sutenly paralysis."

The doctor drew a good sized pin from the lapel of his coat.
"Well, Rufus," he said seriously, "there is only one way to tell. Come here. I'm going to jab this pin in your hip. If it hurts, then you have rheumatism. If you don't feel it, then you are right, and you have paralysis."

The boy did not rise, but drew the rag thoughtfully across the shoe. Finally he said:
"Doctah, I reckon you mus' know more about them things than I do. I know it ain't nothin but jes' commop ole misery."

A Topper's Dinner.

Instead of going to their work one Monday a number of workmen entered a public house determined to spend the day there.

About noon a woman looked in and said addressing one of the party:
"I suppose you are not coming home to dinner today, so I have brought you your share."

So saying, she placed a dish and plate carefully tied up, in front of the topper and went away.

"Looks well after you, your wife does," said a mate. "Suppose we taste and see what it's like?"

"Aye, let us have a taste," said the husband as he untied the bundle.
But the plates were empty, and there was a note with them which ran as follows:
"I hope you will enjoy your dinner. It is the same as myself and the children are having at home."—London Answers.

CHOOSE EASIEST WAY OUT OF IT

Namely, Referred Matter of Transportation to Committee

After Many Sensible Views Had Been Advanced—Report Will be Submitted in Two Weeks.

It was generally agreed by the members of the Board of Trade present at last night's meeting that the freight rates of the transportation companies and especially of the W. P. & Y. R. are very much higher than the price of commodities will justify. No definite action was taken but a committee consisting of Falcon Joslin, D. Doig, E. B. Condon, H. E. Stumer and J. H. Rogers was appointed to procure data and other information upon the subject and to report back to a meeting of the Board of Trade to be held in two weeks, the advisability of memorializing the government or otherwise as they may see fit.

Before proceeding to the discussion of the question a communication was read from H. C. Macaulay who left yesterday morning for the outside requesting the appointment of some one to take his place on the various committees of which he was a member. On the committee regarding the transient trade the chairman appointed Mr. Hull and on the committee on the retirement of gold dust Mr. J. P. McLennan was appointed.

The chair then announced the question which the meeting was called to consider and requested the opinion of the members on the subject.

Several personal calls for the chair were made before anyone was found who was willing to open the discussion. Secretary Clayton stated that acting under instructions from a previous meeting to get data regarding freight rates, etc., he had procured copies of the transcontinental freight tariffs and that was about all the data he could find.

Mr. Timmins opened the discussion by making a motion that a committee of five be appointed to prepare a memorial to the Yukon council relative to legislation on the subject. In support of his motion he said that he had heard Justice Dugas speak at some length on the subject and from his remarks he would infer that the council would be willing and pleased to act on suggestions from the Board of Trade.

Mr. Doig was opposed to the motion as he was of the opinion that as the Yukon council has no jurisdiction over the matter it would only be a waste of time to memorialize them but the memorial should go straight to the federal government, who only can pass legislation on the matter.

M. Timmins replied that his object in having the matter brought through the council was that they would perhaps give it more weight than if coming merely through the Board of Trade. Here the discussion became general and the motion was lost sight of and did not come before the meeting again.

Mr. Fulda made a request for information on the subject of freight rates, stating that he was ignorant on the subject and if anyone knew anything about it he would be glad to be enlightened.

At this point Mr. Doig produced a general round of laughter by saying that having heard a great deal of complaint about the excessive charges of the banks he wanted to know how it could be helped when they had to pay $2500 per ton on their gold shipments and got no more security than was given on a shipment of hay, which was only charged $155 per ton, and he made a motion that instead of the government being petitioned to establish an assay office they be petitioned to start a line of steamers to carry the gold at a reasonable rate to the outside. Seconds to the motion were heard from all parts of the house, but it was not brought to a vote.

Mr. Fulda remarked that there was in great risk and also a large expense shipping gold especially on the river, and cited one instance where one boat with a large treasure shipment went aground and it took two boats one whole day to get her off. "The charges," he said, "should have been $400, but it was compromised at $400. When we send any dust down the river we always send an armed escort with it and we have often paid other companies first-class fare for their passage back besides paying them a good salary for their services." Turning to Mr. Doig he said, "I don't believe you want the government to establish a line of boats on the river," to which Mr. Doig replied that he did as much as he wanted an assay office established here."

Mr. Joslin was of the opinion that before progress could be made it would be necessary to get more information. He said he supposed that 75 per cent of the business was done by the W. P. & Y. R. and all knew that their rates are excessive. "For the government royalty and freight," he said, "the country is paying 25 per cent of its gross output of the mines. We should take the company rates and the transcontinental tariff rates and make a table of comparison, learn the law on the subject and see if the company's charter cannot be attacked in some way to compel a reduction. Another feature for discussion would be a competing line. Let us encourage the government to grant a charter to another line which I believe is now pending before the provisional parliament."

Mr. R. P. McLennan in response to a call from the chair, said: "Much benefit would result from a competing line. Those of us who are doing a large shipping business know very well that we are today paying more to have our goods brought into Dawson by the W. P. & Y. R. than we did to have them hauled from Dyea to the Canyon, from there over the Chilkoot trail and then by Orr & Tukey's pack train to Bennett and down the river by scows. The price we paid then was six cents per pound from Dyea clear through to Dawson. According to the schedule of the W. P. & Y. R. for 1901 the price ranges from $125 on shipments of 5 to 10 tons up to $270, and in some cases it goes over $400 per ton and it strikes me that the rate is altogether too high. Taking my own business for example, under the new rate we will have to pay for pots and kettles 18 cents per pound, enamelware 13 cents, pig iron, which has the cheapest rate quoted is $125 per ton, japanware 21½ cents per pound, graniteware 21 cents, window sash 21½ cents; then taking other commodities, pianos will cost 19½ cents, general merchandise 28½ cents, millinery 23½ cents, silk underwear 21½ cents, bath tubs $150 per ton, linoleum and wall paper $150, suspenders $225, pants buttons $225, coffins $300, beer and ale $135 and other things in like proportion.

"The general average I think will amount to about $200 per ton and taking the amount of last year's importation, which was about 30,000 tons, as a fair estimate of this year's business, it will give to the railroad company $6,000,000 in freight charges; add to that $8,000,000 for the cost of the goods, $1,000,000 for royalty, and it leaves $5,000,000 to be divided between 15,000 people which will give them a little over $300 each."

The question was further discussed by the gentlemen present when the chairman asked Mr. Rogers to make a statement from the railroad company's point of view, seeing that he was considered the defendant in the case.

He closed his remarks by making reference to the losses of the different steamers by wreckage and asked if anyone could show where the old B. L. & K. line, the Flyer line, the B. A. C. or its successor the D. & W. H. Nav. Co., the Empire line or the B. A. companies ever made any money on their steamboats.

Mr. Rogers had a previously prepared, lengthy but concise address which he delivered, and which tended to show that there are not the profits with the W. P. & Y. R. as many suppose.

His remarks closed the discussion and the motion was put and carried unanimously. The meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks.

Delayed Garden Flaking.
Until the mercury changes its habits and refrains from dropping down to within a few degrees of zero every night as is its custom at present, the work of garden making must be postponed.

It was fully demonstrated last year that garden truck of several varieties can be very successfully and quickly grown here after the season once opens, but from present indications the month of May will be well advanced before it will be safe to entrust seeds to the ground.

BUILDING MATERIAL

In Way of Brick and Lime a Future Certainty in Dawson.

The discovery of lime which in quality is equal to that of any in the world has recently been made and is bound to create a revolution in the building industry of this country. The ledge was discovered about a week ago on the Yukon near the Indian river and assays made show it to be of a very high quality.

The assays were made by the A. E. Co. and this morning Mr. Marsden the chief assayer of the company brought into this office a sample of the assay which showed 51 per cent pure lime, with about 12 per cent calcium.

The location was made by O. W. Hobbs and Chas. Welch, who have now four men at work blasting out the rock to erect kilns and other buildings preparatory to carrying on the work on a large scale this summer.

Other discoveries of lime have been made but have always proven to be of a very inferior quality and it has been the intention of those contemplating the erection of brick buildings to have their lime shipped in from the outside.

This discovery brings all the material necessary for the erection of brick buildings within easy reach of Dawson and there is no doubt that there will be a number of brick buildings erected here this summer.

Not only will this enable the erection of brick buildings but will be used to a large extent in preparing frame houses for the winter by lathing and plastering them, which everyone who has lived in a frame house this last winter realizes would be a great aid in keeping warm.

Two brick yards will also be in full operation this summer and it is claimed that brick will be as cheap if not cheaper than lumber.

Messrs. Matheson and Graham will establish a kiln on the hill about two miles back of Dawson, where they have an excellent bed of clay and expect to work on a large scale.

Mr. Hobbs has also a large plant established up the Yukon near the Indian river and will have several kilns in operation. He expects to make about a million and a half bricks during the summer.

This country is rich in mineral resources, traces of every known mineral product having been found and paying ledges will surely be discovered. With the material at hand Dawson will become a metropolitan city in good earnest and we can reasonably look forward to seeing stately brick buildings in the near future.

COMING AND GOING.

Miss Howe from Seattle, is a guest at the Regina today.

U. S. Consul J. C. McCook is reported much better today.

L. J. Pike, of Tacoma, Wash., is among the recent arrivals from the outside.

Hulme, Miller & Co. are preparing to do a more extensive business this year than ever before.

Thos. Nixon, of Big Skookum, Arvid Brodin, of 18 above Bonanza, and A. J. McDonald, are registered at the McDonald.

Incoming mail passed Selwyn at noon yesterday and if it does not encounter too much open water on the trail will arrive in Dawson this evening.

At the Board of Trade meeting last night the secretary was instructed to procure a copy of the miners' lien law now pending before the council for final action and request the council to postpone action for one week to give the board an opportunity to discuss the ordinance.

Yesterday morning men were employed in taking down the curling rink which is located on the slough this side of the barracks and it was none too soon for the water raised there in the afternoon nearly a foot, overflowing and breaking the ice. It froze again last night but this afternoon was flowing again.
