With Regard to Relics.

The authorized teaching and practice of the Church with regard to relics is eminently simple, reasonable, and Scriptural. It is based on the principle that matter is capable of being used as a channel or medium of grace, and is susceptible of a union with a divine Presence and influence. Thus, the Church specially venerates the bodies of the martyrs and other saints, because while they were on earth their bodies were the temples of the Holy Ghost and were the receptacles of countless graces. The graces and virtues of the saints were not virtues of the soul only; they belonged to the whole man, body and soul, which worked and suffered together. Next, Catholics believe that God is sometimes pleased to honor the relics of the saints by making them instruments of healing and other miracles, and also by bestowing spiritual graces on those who, for His sake, honor those whom He Himself has honored so greatly.

In proof of this we appeal to the Old Testament, in which is recorded the resurrection of a dead body which touched the bones of Elisha; and to the New, which tells of grace and healing being imparted by the hem of Christ's own garment (Matt. ix, 23), by the shadow of St. Peter (Acts v., 15), and by towels which had touched the living body of St. Paul (Acts xix, 12). To the teaching of reason and of the sacred Scripture may be added the testimony of the Fathers, St. Ambrose, St. Augustine, and the Fathers of the fourth and fifth centuries generally, being witnesses to this belief in the apostolic Church.

No doubt in all ages abuses have occurred with regard to relics, but the Church can not, with any truth or fairness, be held responsible for these. As a writer in a recent number of the Month remarks: "Spurious relics and legends are no part of the revelation guarded by the Church than the barnacles are part of the ship to which they adhere so tenaciously, nor has the Church ever really sanctioned them with her authority." On the contrary, she has, so far as was possible, made express provision for the prevention of such abuses. So long ago as 1215, Canon 62 of the Fourth Lateran Council, inserted in the "Corpus Juris," forbade relics to be sold or to be exposed outside of their cases or shrines, and prohibited the public veneration of new relics till their authenticity had been approved by the Pope. The Council of Trent renews these prohibitions and requires bishops to decide on the authenticity of new relics after careful consultation with theologians, or, if necessary, with the metropolitan and other bishops of the province assembled in council. It will thus be seen that only genuine relics shall be honored by the faithful, and if well-meaning but insufficiently instructed Catholics are occasionally found who accept as genuine anything and everything that is offered to them as a relic, the Church certainly can not, under the circumstances, be held responsible.

What has been said as to the Church's attitude and the Church's responsibility in regard to spurious relics applies also to unauthorized and purely legendary devotions and prayers. Many Catholics who have a zeal, indeed, but not according to knowledge, rush eagerly after any new-fangled and much-advertised devotion, and this notwithstanding that there is a superabundance of excellent authorized prayers in all the prayer-books, and notwithstanding that by application to their priest they could ascertain at once the precise value of the particular prayer or devotion that is passed upon them. —New Zealand Tablet.

Notes From England.

THE CATHEDRAL FINANCE.

His Eminence Cardinal Vaughan has issued the following statement in regard to the great Cathedral which has been in course of erection for a long period of time. His Eminence says:—

The Cathedral will be opened with fitting solemnity as soon as it shall be possible to give it over, in fee simple, to God, by the liturgical act of Consecration. For this it must be absolutely free of debt. At the present moment it is not free. Outstanding liabilities actually exceed the money in hand. To meet these obligations and to complete structural and other works that must precede the Consecration, it is estimated that a further sum of £16,000 will be required. We must collect this amount with all speed, or stop the works. The date of the formal opening depends on this. By means of the splendid charity of many founders and benefactors, and of the sum allocated by the Charity Commissioners from the sale of St. Mary's Moorfields, to the extinction of the mortgage and to the building fund, the shell of a spacious, massive, and imperishable Cathedral had been built upon a site absolutely free.

With confidence, therefore, I now invite Catholics to enable me to consecrate the work that has now so nearly reached completion. Of the founders—the record of whose Catholic Faith will be sent down the centuries to be an example and encouragement to their children's children—some may be prepared, without further personal solicitation, to add to their past generosity.

There may also be other persons both able and willing to inscribe their names upon the noble roll of founders. And there is, I doubt not, a multitude of men and women who, though not as founders, will rejoice to bear a substantial part in completing this majestic Cathedral, reared to the honor of the Most Precious Blood. Nor can it be necessary to add that the shillings and pence of the poor will be gratefully received, for the eyes of the Lord are upon the poor, and He blesses the widow's mite.

It is no longer the question of the morning—Is it prudent to set out upon the gigantic task of building in Westminster a worthy metropolitan Cathedral? You have answered that question. You have built the Cathedral. The question now is—Shall a last effort, a last sacrifice, be made to complete and consecrate it to God before the nightfall? Founders and friends must decide. It is needless to labor an appeal with a string of motives that are all too obvious. Suffice it to say, that this is my final appeal for the Building Fund—that there will be no further call upon you for the Building Fund in our lifetime if the sum now asked for be obtained.

A CATHOLIC MARQUIS.

On Friday, June 20, the young Marquis of Bute, who was educated at St. Andrew's and Oxford University, attained his majority, and rejoicings on an extensive scale took place on the ancestral estates. In the tenantry of Bute and Cumbria assembled on horseback at Mount Stuart on the morning of the date in question, each wearing an oak leaf, and, after presenting His Lordship with an address of congratulation, they accompanied him to Rothsay, where he was received in state by the magistrates, Town Council, volunteers and various public bodies of the burgh of which his father and grandfather were provosts in their time. The freedom of the burgh was then conferred upon him and a grand banquet given in his honor, after which different addresses from his tenantry at Millport, Cunnock, and Cardiff, were read to him. As an evidence of the true Catholic spirit which animates the young Marquis it may be mentioned that he has had recently erected in the family grounds at Mount Stuart a magnificent Calvary out from a massive block of pure marble as a standing memorial of his gratitude to God for having spared him to attain his majority.

His Holiness, the Pope, on the Holy Eucharist.

"La Semaine Religieuse," the official organ of his grace, Archbishop Broche, contains the full text of the encyclical letter, which the Holy Father has written on the subject of the Holy Eucharist. Subjoined are some translated extracts:—

"In these days, when there is so violent a hostility manifested towards truth and justice, it is advisable to take efficacious steps to combat the contagion of the errors which are multiplying themselves around us, either by reanimating the vigor of the Christian life or by other means which seem appropriate. Amongst these measures to be adopted there are two that are closely allied one to the other, and of which the remembrance brings timely consolation in the midst of so much that saddens our heart. In the first place, we have deemed it salutary to consecrate, by a special solemnity, the whole of mankind to the Sacred Heart of Christ, our Redeemer; secondly, we have earnestly exhorted all men who profess the Christian faith to attach themselves to Him, who is, both individually and socially, the Divine Way, Truth and Life.

"These designs we have already realized; but to crown the work we sincerely beseech all Catholics to practise the devotion to the Holy Eucharist, for it is the Divine gift which springs from the Sacred Heart of the same Redeemer who desires this special union with men. Besides, it cannot fail to secure for us in abundance the salutary fruits of His Redemption.

"It is also gratifying for us to recall that, amongst other decisions which we have given, we have fortified by our approbation, and enriched by numerous privileges, many institutions and associations devoted to the perpetual adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. We have caused the Eucharistic Congresses to be held with more befitting solemnity.

"To know by perfect faith the virtue of the Holy Eucharist such as it is, is the same thing as to know what is the work which, in the interest of the human race, God made man brought to his perfection. As an enlightened faith imposes upon us the obligation of confessing and honoring Jesus Christ as the sovereign author of our salvation, who by His wisdom, His laws, His teachings, His example, the shedding of His blood, renews all things, so we should acknowledge and adore Him as being really present in the Blessed Sacrament, to remain with us till the end of time.

"The Blessed Sacrament, as the Holy Fathers have witnessed, should be considered as a continuous and an extension of the incarnation, since by it the substance of the Incarnated Word is united to each man, and the supreme sacrifice of Calvary is renewed in an admirable manner."

After dwelling at length on the mystery of the Eucharist, the Supreme Pontiff bestows his blessing on the whole Catholic world.

The Friendship of Nature.

A Poet who spent most of his waking moments in fine frenzies gave over the companionship of men. 'Mankind is false and fleeting; I will have no friends but Nature and her works.' And he went forth apostrophized the works of Nature.

"O noble mountains, you are my brothers! On the gracious curves of your ascent I will trust myself as a babe trusts its mother. Mankind is false, but you are ever responsive to my moods."

And the mountains responded and heaved an avalanche at the poet, and if a peasant had not pulled him out of the snow he would have gone the way of all flesh.

But the next day he went forth again and apostrophized the clouds. 'O fleecy clouds, and you of the broad black backs, ye are my brothers! I would pillow my head on your undulating bosoms. Man is a vain thing and he is here but a short time, but the clouds form and reform, and live forever.'

And a large fat cloud burst at this moment and undulated the country, and the poet would have drowned if a farmer had not rescued him.

The third day, his thoughts still upon Mother Nature, he went forth and turning his lyre, he sang to a mossy bank.

'O earth thou art my friend! Gently I recline upon the soft green grasses, I pillow my form under thee and thou art responsive to me. Thou fillest the air with the fragrance of the violets that gather sustenance from their generous depths. Man comes and goes and is forgotten, and he is false withal, but the earth—'

At this moment there was an earthquake and the bank opened, and if a lusty young peasant had not caught the poet he would have disappeared for ever.

The next day he had ceased to think of his escape from Nature's Open Door and the memory of the peasant, had faded, and he went forth to sing poems to the unquiet sea.

'Ob, sea, why art thou called an angry sea? Thou smitest at me and sendest up inviting waves that lave my feet. If I were to cast myself into thy depths thou wouldst bear me up, for I am a poet and I love thee, Mankind wearies me, for men are like ants. There is no grandeur in them. They are like the eggs of fish, not to be counted for number and all alike. But thou, O sea, art strong and mighty and ever varying, and the song of thy waves has not ceased since the stars sang together. Come to my heart, my loved.'

And the waves heard his cry, for even though they did not come to his heart they sent in an undertow, and there was neither peasant nor farmer at hand he was drowned.

The workman's committee in Rome for the celebration of the Holy Father's jubilee are preparing three large plates in bronze, upon which are to be inscribed the text and Italian translation of the Pope's three labor encyclicals.

The Most Rev. Dr. Meuleman, S. J., Archbishop of Calcutta, was consecrated on Trinity Sunday in the Calcutta Cathedral by the Right Rev. Dr. Pellmann, Bishop of Lahore, assisted by Bishop Pozzi, of Krishnagar, and Bishop DeCastro, of Mysapore.

The members of the whole hierarchy of Canada have been bereaved through the death of their oldest colleague, Bishop Grandin, of St. Albert, Northwest Territories. Bishop Grandin was born on the 8th of February, 1829, at St. Pierre de la Cour, in the diocese of Le Mans, France. He was in the 50th year of his membership of the Oblate Order, the forty-ninth year of his priesthood and the forty-third year of his episcopate.

King Albert of Saxony, who died the other day, was seventy-four years of age. As Crown Prince of Saxony he was one of the principal leaders in the Franco-German war, as was also his brother and heir, Prince George, and both received the rank of field-marshal general from the Kaiser. The royal house is the only Catholic branch of the great ruling house of Wettin, and is descended through Louis XV. from Charles I. of England.

Last month the new Cathedral at Alexandria, raised on the site whereupon stood the Cathedral in which St. Cyril and St. Athanasius caused to be heard those immortal accents which still resound throughout Christianity, was solemnly dedicated by his Beatitude Cyr II., the Coptic patriarch. Mgr. Mascire, of Cairo, delivered a beautiful discourse on the occasion, the most glorious for the Egyptian Church for the past thousand years, The Holy Father subscribed 40,000 francs on his own behalf to the erection of the sacred edifice, and on behalf of the Emperor of Austria 60,000 francs, as well as 20,000 francs for a patriarchal residence.

The Emperor of Austria, protector of the Coptic, was represented at the ceremony by his Minister Plenipotentiary; the Austrian Consul was also present, with the diplomatic personnel in brilliant uniforms. The Governor of Alexandria represented the Khedive. The French Consul was, for State reasons, conspicuous by his absence.

A British War Office blunder with regard to the blessings of the colors of the Irish Guards has provoked sharp comment from some of the papers. As announced some time ago, the Right Rev. Dr. Binfield, D. S. O., Bishop of Nottingham, was invited and consented to perform the ceremony. The King, it appears, expressed a hope that when the Bishop blessed the colors he would not wear his episcopal cope and mitre, since these would preclude his displaying his numerous hard-won decorations and war medals. His Majesty's desire was received by Bishop Binfield as a command, and arrangements were in progress for the function when it was intimated to the Bishop that the Anglican chaplain general was to take part with him in the service.

All Catholics are well aware that the Church is decidedly averse to joint services of Catholics and non-Catholics, inasmuch as they tend to foster the idea that one religion is as good as another. The Bishop of Nottingham therefore found that he could not accept the invitation that had been given to him, and he was entirely in accord with the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster in coming to this decision. Application was then made to the Catholic chaplain, Father Cyril Foster, and after representation on his part it was agreed that he should bless the colors and then leave the parade ground. A feeling of strong indignation has, it is stated, been aroused amongst the members of the regiment by the action of the War Office.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Mrs. FRANCES SMITH, Prescott, Ont.

"I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless and suffering from rheumatism. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life." M. J. McDONALD, Trenton, Ont.

MR. TARTE'S OPINION OF LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has more than once been suspected of prevarication in dealing with public questions. The Prime Minister has answered many questions in Parliament in a vague way when the opposition desired to secure important information, and this is not as it should be.

Mr. Laurier has commenced his electoral tour. Tomorrow he will speak at Stanfield. He will probably have an opponent, and will say all the untruthful things that he considers useful in his own defence.

NINE BROKEN PLEDGES.

Sir Richard Cartwright's letter to the Patrons in the Toronto Globe, of Oct. 25th, 1894: "What are the other planks of the Patron platform affecting Dominion politics? They are these: First, economy in administration; second, purity and independence of Parliament; third, tariff for revenue only; fourth, reciprocal trade; fifth, protection of labor from monopoly; sixth, no railway bonuses; seventh, voters list by local officials; eighth, no gerrymandering; ninth, lands for the settlers. Now, there is simply no single one of all these objects which the Liberal party have not been fighting for, moving resolutions for, and doing their very best to obtain any time during the last 25 years."

This is how these pledges to the Patrons have been fulfilled: First: Increase in expenses of government for six years ending 1901, as compared with previous six years of Conservative rule, $88,076,412. Second: Purity and independence of Parliament.—The Liberals have appointed nearly a score of defeated candidates and members of Parliament to offices of emolument under the Crown. Two of these, Sir Louis Davies and Hon. David Mills, were Cabinet Ministers.

Third: Tariff for revenue only.—The National Policy is still unchanged.

Fourth: Reciprocal trade.—Still in abeyance and Government is said to have refused it.

Fifth: Protection of labor from monopoly.—Liberals have endeavored to make political machines of labor organizations.

Sixth: No railway bonuses.—Liberals paid railway subsidies since 1895, amounting to $11,499,904.

Seventh: Voters' lists by local officials.—Provincial lists adopted.

Eighth: No gerrymandering.—Government are preparing a strong gerrymander to be submitted when the census is completed.

Ninth: Land for settlers.—Government refused to make a test case of western land grievances, when challenged to do so during the session of 1901.

Truly the nine articles of faith have been delightfully ignored.

GOVERNMENT GAMBLING HELLS.

Once again the unsavory odor that arises from Hon. Clifford Sifton's administration of the affairs of the Yukon, has reached the public nostril. The revelations in the House of Commons during the session of 1901, which showed that Government sanction, of houses of ill-repute and gambling hells flourished in the light of open day in Dawson City had, no permanent effect in suppressing protected vice. The Dawson City Miner has started a crusade against the reign of crime, and furnishes facts that bring the blush to the faces of honest Canadians. Dawson City today is administered by the Department of the Interior

FASCIDIOUS.

A certain Liverpool man who represented one of the oldest families in the north of England had many peculiarities. Among these was a remarkably fastidious care for form of speech and pronunciation. One day when he was standing on the Prince's landing stage he slipped in some manner and went into the water with a resounding splash. There were a number of people about and amongst them an old lady, who shrieked as the gentleman disappeared.

PAT'S POINT OF VIEW.

A bishop was travelling in a mining country, and accompanied by Mr. Trismagus, a wandering minstrel who had just returned from a tour of duty in the Yukon, and was questioning the right of politicians to barter morals for the remuneration of party leaders. It was at the request of wives of men who were losing money that the Miner unmasked its batteries. Arrests followed, but $400 per month fixed things. The Miner is authority for the statement that, Tammany Hall in its most prosperous days was preferable to the present rule at Dawson City.

FARMER LOST OVER $2,000,000.

Last year the sales of Canadian butter were $74,366 less than during the previous twelve months and to that extent Canadian farmers were the sufferers. Had Hon. Sydney Fisher, the person who fills the responsible position of Minister of Agriculture, been alive to the possibilities of the British market, as an outlet for our dairy produce, there is no reason why we could not have had an increase in our butter sales equal, if not greater, than the disastrous decrease. We are told that the government has spent large sums of money in providing cold storage on steamship lines running from Canada, and their intention was to encourage the exportation of perishable goods. The falling off in the value of our butter sales alone of over two millions in single year shows the necessity for a change in the Agricultural Department. Mr. Fisher, instead of looking after the markets available for the produce of the farm, devoted months of hard work to a useless investigation of the census of 1891, merely to gratify his vanity and endeavor to cover up his dire failure which cost the country half a million dollars more than it should. The department of agriculture is one of the worst managed branches at Ottawa. It needs brains and a man of broad instincts to infuse new life into its stagnant policy. Mr. Fisher is apparently unable to even realize that he is at the head of a branch that in years behind the times; but the result of his labors, one of which is herein recorded, establishes beyond doubt that the farmer needs a new man to guard and further his interests.

MARK TWAIN'S SURPRISE.

I asked Mr. Clemens where he was living, and he merely named the town. "That's a large address," said I. Then he told me how I could find him by crossing a certain road and spotting a landmark, then looking for another landmark and then turning right-about-face and entering his "Great heavens!" I exclaimed, "that is about as clear as if you told me your relation to the man who married your wife's sister's step-mother's great aunt."

The programme offers a day of rare enjoyment to all lovers of athletic games. The national games of Scotland will predominate, affording occasion for a grand exhibition of strength and agility. There will be hammer throwing, running, jumping, vaulting and dancing, and the games will be witnessed by the most elegant and noble of the sons of old Scotia and their descendants. With generous cash and other valuable prizes as rewards to the successful competitors, and with the prizes of wild melody sounding, who will deny that competition will be keen and that enthusiasm will be high on this day? For competition prize list and all other information regarding the games, see programmes.

MARK TWAIN'S SURPRISE.

I asked Mr. Clemens where he was living, and he merely named the town. "That's a large address," said I. Then he told me how I could find him by crossing a certain road and spotting a landmark, then looking for another landmark and then turning right-about-face and entering his "Great heavens!" I exclaimed, "that is about as clear as if you told me your relation to the man who married your wife's sister's step-mother's great aunt."

The steamer Manchester Trader, which was to have performed the service this summer between Manchester, Charlottetown and St. John, has been detained so long at Queenstown for repairs that it has been decided in order to keep faith with the Charlottetown people to send the str Manchester Commerce from Montreal to Charlottetown on the 22nd or 23rd inst, to lift what cargo is here. The Manchester Trader will come to St. John and proceed to Charlottetown to complete her cargo soon after. It is expected she will make four trips.—Herald.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

The Charlottetown Policemen look well in their new uniforms and grey helmets.

A trout weighing 5 1/2 pounds was caught the other day by Lester Hayden of Vernon River.

The Military camp at Brighton—consisting of No. 4 and 5 Companies of the Artillery—disbanded on Saturday afternoon.

The new tug Otrera built by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, to look after the oyster fisheries, arrived here from Shelburne several days ago.

Messrs. James Paton & Co. as in former years will close their stores at 1 o'clock on Monday afternoon during the months of July and August.

The tea party at Morell yesterday was well attended and everything passed off most satisfactorily. A handsome sum must have been realized.

The City bookellers have agreed to close their stores every evening during the summer, except Saturday. The tailoring establishments have also made a similar agreement.

Mr. H. E. Wright, of Summerside lost a horse valued at $150 last Thursday. The animal came in contact with a barbed wire fence leaving deep wounds in its neck and chest, which caused death.

The handsome steam yacht Adele, of the Royal Yacht Club, Sydney, has been in port here for the last few days. She is owned by J. Moxham, the well known mining man of Sydney.

TENDERS for the new railway station at Georgetown are all in, and the contract calling for the completion of the work on or before the 15th of October, will shortly be awarded. The station will be built along the east side of the track on the Gordon property, at the head of the Railway Wharf.

READ the advertisement in this issue of the Grand Tea Party to be held at Fort Augustus, on Monday, July 21st. The ladies of the parish who have been instrumental in getting up such very successful tea parties in former years are determined that the tea on the 21st shall be a "greater than has been," which is saying a good deal. Bear the date well in mind "lest ye forget".

Dr. William Johnston, of Dorchester, Mass. formerly of this city, accompanied by Mrs. Johnston and two children arrived here a few evenings ago, on a visit to his parents Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston. Dr. Johnston is a brother of Rev. J. F. Johnston and Mr. J. J. Johnston, barrister. Mrs. Johnston is an accomplished musician and rendered some choice selections in the choir at the High Mass in St. Dunstan's Cathedral on Sunday last.

Rev. Thomas E. Cullen, son of Mr. P. Cullen of this city and formerly Principal of Queen Square School is here at present on a short vacation from St. Paul, Minnesota, to which diocese he is attached. He celebrated late Mass in St. Dunstan's Cathedral on Sunday last. It was a Solemn High Mass, Rev. Father Johnston being deacon and Rev. Dr. Monaghan sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by Father Johnston.

CHARLOTTETOWN is at last to have a good up-to-date drinking fountain. Mr. James Paton, one of our most wide-awake and public spirited City Councillors has donated a fountain to the city which will be a credit to himself and an ornament to the city. The fountain was manufactured at the Elwhank Foundry, Glasgow, Scotland, and will stand eight feet high from base to spigot. It has not yet been decided where the fountain will be placed and Mr. Paton will be glad to hear of any suggestions from persons interested. The fountain is due to arrive here about the first of next month.

His Lordship, Bishop McDonnell together with Rev. Father Boudreau and Rev. Father Campbell, who had been on a confirmation tour in the Magdalen Islands, returned home on Thursday forenoon last. During his visit, his Lordship conformed upwards of four hundred persons. On Saturday his Lordship held confirmation at St. Mary's, Sturgeon, on Sunday at Georgetown and Montague Bridge, on Monday at St. Theresa and Tuesday at Cardigan Bridge. He is accompanied in his tour by Rev. Father Campbell and assisted in the ceremonies by the pastors of the respected churches visited.

Max Lefargey, the little five year old son of Mr. Arnold Lefargey, North Tryon, met with a serious accident a few days ago. The little fellow ran out to the yard to drive away some horses when one of them kicked him sinking the shoe into his face between the eye and the nose. He was carried into the house by his father who arrived just as the accident occurred and Dr. Robertson was telephoned for. The doctor was on hand within a short time and dressed the wound, which necessitated several stitches to close. The eye was at first thought to be permanently injured but later accounts indicate that there is well grounded hope that the sight will be preserved and that the little fellow who is bravely and pluckily bearing up will be about in a few days.—Pioneer.

The wreck of the steamer Tiber at White Point, N. S., is now being operated upon by the purchasers. The weather has been boisterous and only an occasional day is suitable for work. It will be remembered that this steamer was sent sight of for several weeks, after leaving her Cape Breton port loaded with coal for Halifax, and was found in thirty feet of water at White Point, by Howard McKenzie, a young fisherman of Canoe, while attending his lobster trawls.

Two quick firing six pounder R. B. L. guns arrived by the Campans on Friday, for the Fourth Regiment, C. A. They will be kept here for two weeks for drill purposes and afterwards sent to St. John, where our men will in September compete in the annual big gun practice. The guns while here will be under the supervision of Sergeant Instructor Le Fleur, of Quebec, who is instructing the detachment.

We Make It Plain. To everybody who wants to understand that the Clothing we sell is superior in cloth, in make and in trimmings to what any other store in the city sells. One big reason is because we buy so much that the biggest and best makers are satisfied to sell us and us alone. Another big reason is that we pay spot cash for every dollar's worth of clothing we buy. Another reason is because when we give a very large order to one firm, their expense in selling the order is very light, and they give us a special discount for that. These are all little reasons, but taken altogether they form a very big reason why we should get your trade. Don't forget that every dollar we save in discounts, means that dollar and the profit on that dollar to you. Now count up and see how much even an extra 10 per cent. discount will amount to on your year's clothing. When you have it figured out, come in and we'll prove your answer correct. THE WONDERFUL FLOWER OF WOXINDON.

An Historical Romance of the Times of Queen Elizabeth.

BY REV. JOSEPH SPILLMAN, S. J.

PUBLISHED BY PERMISSION OF B. HERDER, ST. LOUIS, MO.

(Reproduced from the Montreal True Witness.)

But the proposal came to nothing, because of the somewhat extravagant demands of these godly folk, and the parsimoniousness of our Queen. A few thousand pounds might then have secured England and the Reformation from all further fear on account of Mary Stuart.

Elizabeth wanted to do things more cheaply, bad policy, in my opinion. Thus Scotland is still of the question as a home for her: out more France or Spain. Her death is the only solution of the difficulty.

The words of Calphurn occurred to my mind as I listened to my uncle. But I remembered that shortly after her flight to England, the Queen of Scots had been pronounced guilty by the Judicial Court at Westminster of complicity in the murder of Darnley; and the hatred to her, implanted in my mind in my boyish days, led me to say that she ought to be demanded and executed.

"Undoubtedly," he replied. "There are, it is true, some legal niceties, but an able diplomat need not let them stand in his way. Burchley represented to the Queen long since that it would be well in self defence to make short work with her detested rival. Justice would warrant such a measure; and deeds of that nature are, God knows, of no infrequent occurrence in the annals of our country. The Queen would only be too well pleased, that is, of course she would openly feign great indignation, and send the executor of her secret wishes to the gallows as his reward, in public testimony to her innocence. She has not learnt in vain in the school of Machiavelli. No one has however as yet been found to carry out her wishes. Last autumn the prisoner was assigned to the charge of a fresh jailer, Sir Amias Paulet, a rough fellow, who hates her with the hate of hell. I know on good authority that he was informed of the Queen's desire. But the man is either too honorable or too prudent; he declared that if they sent the hangman to him with a warrant signed and sealed, he would make him welcome and leave him free to perform his duty. But it was no use to talk to him about such wishes, since he would neither carry them out himself nor depute another to do so, as long as Mary Stuart was in his custody. Thus we should be no nearer our end now than we were eighteen years ago, but for some young Popish noblemen who are playing into our hands."

I looked up in surprise, and my uncle continued, a slight smile playing around his lips: "We have to thank you my dear Frank, for putting us on the track of a delightful little conspiracy. Acting upon the information you gave me, I took steps to ascertain what truth there was in the statements made by Gifford—who appears a most useful fellow—in respect to Mr. Babington. It proved to be a fact that he and half-a-dozen young noblemen of his own age and Papists like himself, have formed a league with the object of liberating Mary Stuart. They hold their meetings at the 'Blue Boat' in St. Giles-in-the-fields. This was notified to me some months ago; but I thought they were so young and so gay, that they only met for their sports, and could not do worse mischief than perhaps render assistance to some of the seminary priests and Jesuits who are prowling about. However I bade my spies to keep their eye on them, and I find Gifford is right, they are hatching a release for the Queen of Scots. It appears to be a romantic sort of affair, for the good lads have not a spark of practical common sense amongst them. Look at Babington; he is brave and venturesome enough, but how vain and frivolous! Three or four others excel in sports, football and the like, and there are a couple of poets to boot. They have probably read in their school books: 'Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori' and they think themselves called to heroic deeds. I am sorry for the silly fellows. Unless I help them, they will never attain the honor they covet."

"You mean," as soon as you have the necessary proofs, to arrest them and put them on the rack to make them confess, and so nip the conspiracy in the bud?" "I should have expected more sense from you, my dear Frank," rejoined my uncle. "I have already told you, this conspiracy is a perfect godsend to us. Joking apart, I shall do everything I can to make it easy for these young gentlemen to carry out their project—to a certain point, of course. Do you not see how it will be a means of bringing about the death of our enemy?" "I thought for a moment, then suggested that he should lay an ambush of armed men who would cut off their flight, and put them and the Queen to death.

Walsingham smiled as he answered. The same idea occurred to me. But I think we shall not let them go so far as that. Sir Amias Paulet has written orders from the Privy Council, in case of any attempt at escape, to take the life of the prisoner at once. He has promised to do this, and he will keep his word without scruple. A sudden and violent death would not however look well for the Government. I should very much prefer that Mary Stuart should "in forma juris" be condemned to death before a tribunal composed of the first nobles of the land. That would give the matter a better appearance in the eyes of foreigners, and our own people could cast no reproach on the Government. Mr. Babington and his colleagues are going to help us to obtain such a judgment. Reach down the statute book of the last parliament, and turn to the new enactment, 27th of Elizabeth, concerning conspiracies against the life of the Queen."

I did as he desired and read the statute which ordained, with every possible proviso, that every person who should participate in a conspiracy against Elizabeth's life, was to be put on trial for his life before a Court of twenty-four commissioners to be nominated by the Crown.

"Every person," Walsingham repeated. "What does that signify? What is the object of this new law? It was not wanted for the conviction of English subjects who conspire against the life of their Sovereign. The object is therefore to bring within reach of the headsman's axe every person, whatsoever, be their rank and prerogatives the highest. In a word, the bill was framed and passed to provide against the very contingency which we have been supposing."

"A most wise and judicious measure," I replied. "But there is no question now of a plot against Elizabeth's life, only of Mary Stuart's rescue. Moreover, she appears as far as we know, to be in ignorance of the existence of the conspiracy."

It is very plain, my dear Frank," rejoined my uncle, "that you are not sufficiently well versed in the ways of Machiavelli. Do you really imagine that Mary Stuart, after eighteen years of captivity, unjust captivity, knowing as she does that Elizabeth has designs upon her life, would not repay her royal sister in the same coin, were the opportunity afforded her? Doubtless she would authorize these young gentlemen to remove Elizabeth out of the way, if that were the only means of attaining her end. If proof were wanted, we need only apprehend them, and put them to torture, and I will engage that as soon as they felt the thumb-screw, or found themselves in the embrace of the scavenger's daughter, not to speak of the other pretty toys in the Tower, one or other of the six would soon confess that Mary Stuart was privy to their designs against Elizabeth. But we can manage without coming to the torture chamber. This Gifford, whom you brought with you from Paris, for the exchange of letters between the conspirators and the captive Queen. If they fall into his trap, as I have no doubt they will, we shall be able, within the space of a few weeks, to produce in black and white ample proof of the complicity of Mary Stuart with Babington and his comrades in a plot against Elizabeth's life. The matter appears to me perfectly certain. That is why I said that Babington's conspiracy exactly corresponded to my wishes. Now do you understand me?"

I answered that I did, and that I admired my uncle's sentences. Of course I was heartily willing to cooperate with him, as the welfare of Her Majesty and the stability of the reform religion were at stake. We must adopt the maxim that the end justifies the means, and as this principle was learnt in the Jesuits' school, we might console ourselves with the knowledge that we were turning their own weapons against them. My uncle laughed, and said he must confess he had never heard that saying from the lips of a Jesuit, but that every diplomat acted upon it, as nothing could be done in statecraft unless it were followed.

Finally I asked him what he thought of Parma's scheme, and what measures he intended to take against it. He shrugged his shoulders, and said the project might take definite shape, but not for some time yet. He had learnt through Cherelles, one of the French ambassador's secretaries, that a packet of letters to Mary Stuart had long lain at the embassy awaiting delivery. The letters he hoped through Gifford, who was highly recommended to the ambassador, to get into his own hands, and acquaint himself with their contents. The best thing to be done at present was to get the Queen of Scots out of the way. That would completely take the wind out of their sails, and render a Spanish invasion little short of purposeless. Now, while Philip could hope to set Mary Stuart upon the throne, and to place the Prince of Parma by her side it was quite a different thing; whereas were she once dead, a descent upon England would appear like reprisals, and it is highly questionable whether he would fit out his galleons for such a purpose. Philip was far too wise to attempt a war of conquest, or to dream of the possibility of placing the crown of England on the of a Spanish prince. He would find he had opponents more difficult to deal with than the Dutch, though he had enough on his hands with them just then.

"What we have to do now," he said in conclusion, "is to carry out our design in regard to the Queen of Scots. The first step is for Gifford to lay his tools, in order to intercept the correspondence between Babington and the prisoner. Then we will leave Babington and his friends to do their work; they must be closely watched, but not allowed to suspect that their movements are observed. And when the right moment comes, the fowler will pull the string, and the six green finches, together with the royal bird, will be fluttering in the net. With ordinary prudence and determination we cannot fail to succeed."

So saying Walsingham filled our glasses again with the ruby colored wine, and bade me drink to the prosperity of Babington's conspiracy, which was to bring about the end desired.

CHAPTER XIV.

My uncle, whose custom it was to set his agents to watch one another, assigned the unhappy apostate Gifford to the charge of Thomas Phillips and Arthur Gregory, two spies or members of his secret police, who lived in St. Paul's Churchyard. With them under the name of Nicholas Cornelius, took up his abode, and they seldom let him out of their sight. Walsingham went to see him there one evening, carefully disguised, for he could not let him go to his own house. What was then concerted between them, I did not know until later.

My uncle had already mentioned to me one of the secretaries of the French ambassador, named Cherelles, whom he had bribed, a young man, leading a gay life, and head and ears in debt through gambling. He was one of those men who are ready to sell their own soul to the devil and their master's secrets to his enemy for the sake of a handful of gold. Through him Walsingham learnt that Chateaufort had received instructions to exert himself on behalf of Mary Stuart, as much as possible, without attracting observation and especially to expedite her correspondence. The private secretary of the ambassador, Cordillot by name, was intrusted with the interests of the royal captive, and the packet of letters of which Cherelles had spoken, were in his safekeeping. Since the Queen of Scots had been removed from Tisbury to Chartley, and Sir Amias Paulet had replaced Sir Ralph Sadler as her Guardian, no letters had been permitted to reach her. What Walsingham wanted Gifford to do was to obtain possession of these letters under the promise of forwarding them to Mary and then place them in his hands. For this his reward was to be £100.

Gifford was introduced to Cordillot by Cherelles. His Catholic name, and the excellent recommendations he had brought from Paris, carried weight; also the scheme he had concocted appeared feasible. Cordillot spoke to his master in Gifford's favor, and asked permission to entrust the letters to him. But M. de Chateaufort was a very cautious man, and he distrusted Gifford. Therefore, after questioning him narrowly, he dismissed him with polite phrases, to the effect that he was glad to see a young man of good family displaying such zeal for the Catholic cause, and he would let him know if his services were required. For there was nothing of importance to be forwarded.

"What a fox the man is!" my uncle exclaimed, when Gifford communicated to him in writing the result of his first attempt. At any rate, it proves to me that the letters are of the greatest consequence. Chateaufort intends to send a messenger to Mendoza and Morgan, to convince himself that the letters of recommendation are not forgeries. We must have patience for another week. (To be continued.)

DREAMING OF HOME.

BY EUGENE FIELD.

It comes to me often in silence, When the freight sputters low— When the black, uncertain shadows Seem wreaths of long ago; Always with a throb or hearseache, That thrills each pulsive vein, Comes the old, unquiet longing For the peace of home again. I'm sick of the roar of cities, And of the faces cold and strange; I know where there's warmth and welcome, And my yearning fancies range Back to the dear old homestead, With an aching sense of pain; But there'll be joy in the coming, When I go home again.

When I go home again! There's music That never may die away, And it seems the hands of angels, On a mystic harp at play, Have touched with a yearning sadness On a beautiful broken strain, To which is my fond heart wounding, "When I go home again."

Outside of my darkened window Is the great world's crash and din, And slowly the autumn shadows Come drifting, drifting in, Sobbing the night wind murmurs, But I dream of the glorious greeting To the splash of the autumn rain; When I go home again. —S.H. Review.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the full robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

A Kings County girl offered to toss a coin the other day to see if she would marry the young fellow who had proposed to her, but he didn't have the coin.

Messrs. C. C. Richards & Co. Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes—so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected—a few applications completely curing the irritation, preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keepoff the mosquitoes. Yours truly, W. A. OKR. Harbor Grace, Nfld., Jan. 8, 1898.
