CHAPTER XIV.

"Oh, let us come outside, and leave the old people to fight it out."

Diana shook her head smilingly, but wistfully; but the earl, whom no movement of hers escaped—he had been watching Diana without appearing to do so—came to Mabel's aid.

"Better go, my dear," he said, "or that tiresome child will give you no rest; and Diana, with a blush, allowed Mabel to draw her out. Of course, Dalesford followed; but Mabel turned upon him indignantly.

"Oh, Vane, you'll surely let me have her to myself for a minute or two?" she exclaimed. "That's where men are so selfish! He doesn't remember that he'll have you for the rest of his natural life!"

"I'll give you five minutes," said Dalesford longingly; "and that's four minutes more than I can really spare."

Mabel made a grimace at him, and, linking her arm in Diana's, led her to a seat, into which she plumped Diana with gentle force.

"Now, tell me all about it, Diana—I've really the right to call you Diana now, haven't I? But, of course, you won't tell me anything; I shall have to get it out of Vane. And he'll be worse than ever; he's so conceitedly happy. And no wonder! Shouldn't I be if I were a man! And you are really going to be my cousin! Diana, you'll let me come and stay with you when you are married?"

Diana laughed and blushed. "That will be a very long time to look forward to, Mabel."

"Oh, no, it won't. You won't catch Vane waiting very long. He's too bad for that. And, oh, Diana, promise me now, now this minute, that I shall be one of your bridesmaids!" she said eagerly. "I suppose you'll have ever so many; but, mind, mind, you must make room for me!"

The blush faded from Diana's face, and she looked rather grave.

"I think it is very likely that you will be the only one, dear. I haven't any relatives, or girl friends, like other girls."

"Haven't you?" said Mabel, with wide-open and sympathetic eyes. "How strange!"

"Yes; it is strange," said Diana. "But there is only Aunt Mary."

"Well, that makes me safe, anyhow," said Mabel, with a sigh of satisfaction. "And how beautiful you will look as a bride, Diana! I don't wonder at Vane being so proud of you. You didn't see him while he was looking at you and Uncle Edward. And isn't he a dear old man—didn't he behave splendidly? There are times when I think Uncle Edward must be the nicest man that was ever created. But there! I knew he would go down before you. He adores beauty, and you are irresistible!"

"You are an irresistible flatterer," Diana assured her. "Yes; Lord Wrayborough was very sweet to me, and I—I am very grateful to him. I did not expect—but I must not say any more on that point. I am very grateful to you all for being so kind to me."

Mabel's eyes opened wide. "Kind to you? You mean because we are all so glad you accepted Vane? Why, my dear Diana, it is the best thing that could have happened to him, and all of us. Why, you just saved him."

She colored, and looked down shyly. "I am only a girl, but, of course, I know how important it is that Vane should marry, should settle down. Of course, I know he has been wild, like—all the Wrayboroughs. But he is quite changed now. And you have changed him, you dear, sweet girl. Love you! I should think we should! Oh, here is Vane! What a bother! Vane, I am sure the five minutes aren't up."

"It is, my sweet child, and you are waiting in the drawing room."

"Of course, that's a fib!" retorted Mabel. "But I suppose I shall have to go." And, stooping, she kissed Diana, and ran in, pausing at the window to throw her another kiss.

Vane was all aglow with happiness. "What did I tell you, dearest?" he said. "I wish you could have heard my father singing your praises to Mrs. Burton. I haven't seen the dear old man look so happy for years. He told Mrs. Burton that our marriage would add twenty years to his life."

Diana looked up at him, with joy in her eyes, but still with a shadow of surprise in them. "It seems so strange," she said. "I can't be blind to the fact that your people ought not to regard our engagement as a good thing for you."

He laughed. "But what more can you want?" he asked. "What will convince you? Diana, you are the only beautiful woman I ever met who was really humble-minded and free from vanity. I have got a prize, indeed!"

As he spoke, lifting her hand to his lips, a carriage came down the road, and stopped at the front gate. "Good heavens! Another visitor!" he said disgustedly. "Yes; I suppose we must go in," he deplored, as Diana rose.

They went toward the house, drawing apart to a conventional distance, when they got within sight of the windows.

"Why, it's my Fairy Godmother!" Diana said, as she heard Mr. Fielding's voice.

"Your what?" Dalesford asked. "My lawyer, Mr. Fielding," Diana explained. "I call him my Fairy Godmother, because he has been so good to me; because he found me—"

"Found you?" echoed Dalesford. Before she could give him any more information, they had reached the window, and Mr. Fielding, catching sight of her, came forward to meet her.

"I have just come in time, my dear Miss Bourne, to hear some important and interesting news," he said, as they entered the room.

He stood and smiled at her, his thin lips drawn together, his eyebrows raised, his keen eyes looking from her blushing face to Dalesford's.

"I was going to write to you," said Diana, in a low voice.

"Of course, of course," he said, with a little bow. "This is Lord Dalesford? Lord Dalesford, you will permit me to offer you my heartiest congratulations. I have just expressed them to Lord Wrayborough." He inclined his head to the earl; and, at the same moment, cast a glance, as if casually, at Mrs. Burton, who was sitting with her head bent and her hands gripping each other. "Yes; my visit is a happy accident, and I am delighted to have arrived at such an auspicious moment. I have just been telling Lord Wrayborough, my dear Miss Bourne, that you have been good enough to grant me the inestimable privilege of calling myself your friend, as well as your legal adviser."

He had taken a chair, and leaned forward, with the self-possessed and alert manner which Diana remembered he had shown on her first visit to him at Lincoln's Inn. With his bird-like eyes, he seemed to dominate the situation, to hold the others, as it were, in his grip. With his fine acuteness, his quick, intuitive insight, the earl saw that this suave, self-possessed man of law had something to say, and was going to say it. "Most happy coincidence, Mr. Fielding," he murmured, with a smile. "Particularly happy for me. I am delighted to meet you. Of course, I know the famous Mr. Fielding by repute, but this is the first time I have had the pleasure of meeting him. Let me congratulate our dear child here on the advantage of possessing so valuable a friend and so efficient an adviser."

Fielding bowed. "Thank you, my lord. You are very kind. Yes, I need scarcely say that Miss Bourne's friendship, which I esteem beyond words, amply rewards me for any exertion I may have made in my efforts in watching over her vast interests."

He laid a slight emphasis on the word vast, and Lady Selina caught it, and looked up, with surprise and sudden interest. Vane also heard it, and vaguely wondered why the lawyer should use such an apparently inappropriate adjective in connection with Diana's small means—"enough to live upon." But the earl's smile did not flicker; and he leaned back, gently swinging his gold pince-nez.

"How vast they are," continued Mr. Fielding, addressing the earl, "you may not, perhaps, be aware, Lord Wrayborough."

The earl made a noncommittal gesture, and Mr. Fielding went on: "I myself have scarcely arrived at a proper estimate; but I suppose I should not be far wrong if I valued Miss Bourne's estate at very little below a million."

Vane was standing near Diana, and he turned to her, with an exclamation, a swift inquiry, an expression almost of reproach. Lady Selina gasped like a fish out of water; Mabel cried "Oh!" and stared at the pale-faced lawyer; and the earl dropped the pince-nez, and leaned forward, with an admirably feigned surprise, which gradually slid into satisfaction.

"My dear Mr. Fielding, that is a very large sum! Our dear Diana's interests are vast, indeed—"

Dalesford came slightly forward. His face was pale, and he was frowning.

"I didn't know," he said. He turned to Diana. "Diana, why did you not tell me?"

Diana hung her head for a moment, then looked at him appealingly. "Why didn't you tell me, dearest? Why did you keep me ignorant of the fact that you were so rich, that you had so much money?"

"My dear Vane," murmured the earl, reproachfully. "I quite understand! There has scarcely been time. If I may venture to say so, Diana did quite right."

"Quite right!" echoed Mr. Fielding. "Lord Dalesford would have received from me the information of Miss Bourne's enviable position. This is not the moment for business details; but, perhaps, I may be permitted to supplement my rather startling announcement with a few particulars. Miss Bourne's father, my—or—esteemed client, died abroad, leaving the whole of his fortune, his immense fortune, to his only daughter and child. Mr. Bourne's state of health rendered it impossible for him to reside in England; and for many years he had not seen his daughter, who was left to the efficient and affectionate guardianship of her aunt, Mrs. Burton—"

He stopped suddenly, and rose, not abruptly, but in quite a self-possessed manner, for, though he had not been looking at her directly, he had seen the grip of her hands relax, and her thin form sway to and fro. She, also, had risen, and, stretching out her hands, as if groping in darkness, uttered a cry, and fell back in the chair.

So quick were his movements, notwithstanding his deliberate manner, that Mr. Fielding had caught her before she could fall to the floor. With a cry, Diana was at her side.

"Aunt Mary!" she exclaimed. "You are ill! Oh, what is it? What has happened? What have you said?"

They had all gathered round the fainting woman, in amazement and dismay; but Mr. Fielding, still self-possessed and still master of the situation, said calmly: "If you will ring the bell, Lord Dalesford— Thank you!"

A maidservant entered, and she and Diana almost carried Mrs. Burton from the room.

All eyes were turned to Mr. Fielding, but he was quite equal to the occasion.

"An extremely nervous and highly strung lady—Mrs. Burton," he said quietly. "It is my fault. I ought not to have referred to her brother's death in her presence. It was inexcusable. Her state of health—"

"We will go," said Lady Selina. "Edward, Mabel. You will remain, I suppose, Vane?" Vane nodded.

"You must come and see me, Mr. Fielding," said the earl, as he shook hands. "Vane, this is very distressing. Take care of that dear girl."

They got outside, and the carriage drove off. Lady Selina leaned back, as if she herself were threatening to faint; then she jerked forward, and, in a Cassandre-like tone, said impressively:

"Edward, mark my words, there is a mystery here."

The earl carefully adjusted his eyeglasses, and smiled. "There may be, my dear Selina," he said. "But there is also a million. And, if there were not," he added, after a pause, "Vane should have my consent to marry her! She has only one fault." He paused. "She is too good for him—or any man!"

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLD

New Zealand Will Develop Her Navy.

Wellington, N. Z., Nov. 16.—An important development in New Zealand's naval policy is foreshadowed by Mr. Massey, the Prime Minister, in a manifesto in which he outlines the platform of the reform party in the Dominion.

Every effort will be made, says the Premier, worthily to sustain New Zealand's share in the responsibilities and obligations of the British Empire.

The party he represented would undertake to preserve the national defence system already in operation throughout the country and at the same time they would promote a naval policy under which the Dominion would train its own personnel and gradually develop interests in the Imperial navy that could protect the Empire as a whole, at the same time maintain the supremacy of the British flag in the Pacific ocean, as well as ensure the safety of the trade routes from hostile raids.

If Child is Cross, Feverish and Sick

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

One Vast Charnel House.

The whole stretch of country from Nieuport to Dixmude to Ypres presents a picture so terribly appalling that it is difficult to describe it. Nieuport is greatly damaged by shell fire. The country from a little south of there towards Dixmude is one vast charnel house of German slain. Belgian officers estimate the German corpses slain around Dixmude alone at thirty-seven thousand. It has been necessary day after day recently to send out Belgian soldiers, several thousand strong, to bury the German dead in the ground from which the enemy retreated.

The German troops must be suffering heavily from living day after day in the trenches amid these putrefying masses, masses which in many points form long heaps four feet high. They have had apparently no time to care for them, and little time to treat the wounded. Our hospital parties find Germans who have been lying three days in the lines beyond the Allies where their own comrades could not come with aid.

Shoe Factories Tender for Army Boots

In reply to an advertisement from the War Office, England, asking for tenders to supply winter boots for the soldiers at the front, the managers of our local boot and shoe factories are sending by the R. M. S. Carthaginian samples and price lists of the top boots made by these concerns. The boots turned out by our factories for fishermen and seamen have always given satisfaction and are absolutely impervious to water. Our factories should also be able to turn out an equally serviceable army boot, and if the samples being sent by the Carthaginian meet with approval at the War Office, it is likely that our manufacturers will be given a share of patronage.

A Mean Act.

A very mean act was demonstrated a few days ago. Night watchman E. Skiffington lost a bundle of dry cod-fish which was picked up by a certain man who has kept the parcel and has never mentioned to anyone a word about his "good luck." An interesting case in court will likely follow if the property is not restored.

American View of German Threat.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Herald today says editorially:

If it is true, as cabled from Amsterdam, that Germany has threatened to prevent the American Relief Committee from distributing food and other supplies to suffering Belgians, the defenders of "Kultur" in this country will have more defending to do.

Germany's attitude toward any action in Belgium is a crime against civilization. Having conquered and overrun a country with which they had neither quarrel nor excuse for quarrel, the Germans have stripped the country of not only its valuables, but of its food supplies, and at the same time neutral nations are compelled in the interest of humanity to undertake the task of saving the Belgian people from starvation, Germans continue their pillage.

"Now to their vandalism they add the threat of preventing the distribution of supplies to the needy. The spectacle is one that not even the greatest admirer of German progress can view with any feeling save disgust."

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—That's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yet really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

Italy and the Allies.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger:—Italy's tenure in North Africa is obviously tied up with that of Great Britain's stability in Egypt. If the Moslem tribes, over which the Sultan claims a suzerainty by virtue of being the head of Islam, succeed in breaking England's hold upon Egypt they would follow up their victory by attacking the Italians in Tripoli. An alliance for the defence of their African holdings will be the most natural thing for Great Britain and Italy. But it will be certain to draw Italy into the European phase of the war.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fall to understand how such a gas fire drives the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, 14.

To Treat British as Belgians Were Treated

Brags German Embassy.

New York, Nov. 11.—A special to the Tribune from Rome says:

"A member of the German embassy here stated to-day that, when the Germans landed in Britain, as men, women and children alike, probably would oppose them stubbornly, the Germans would treat them as they have treated the Belgians."

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

GERMAN REGIMENT DESTROYED.

LONDON, Nov. 17. To Governor, Newfoundland: Following from Press Bureau:—Fighting in France and Belgium was less violent yesterday. One German regiment was entirely destroyed, south of Bixchoote.

HARCOURT. ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—(Official.) At Nieuport, opposite Dixmude, and in the Ypres region, cannonading has again started much heavier than on previous days. On the canal south of Dixmude, our artillery stopped the enemy's operations under way to check the flooding. The Germans were compelled to evacuate several of their trenches filling with water.

Two German infantry attacks, one south of Bixchoote, the other south of Ypres, failed. On our side we have recorded progress between Bixchoote and the canal. An artillery duel, particularly sharp, marked the line between La Bassee and Armentiers. Several German detachments which attempted to cross the River Aisne, near Vailly, were thrown back or destroyed. There has been heavy cannonading beyond Vailly, and also in the Rheims region, where several shells fell on the town of Rheims. In the Argonne were no infantry engagements but we have blown up, by means of mines, several German trenches. On the heights of the Meuse and south of Verdun we have advanced on several points. In St. Mihiel region we have taken several houses of Chauvencourt village, the barracks of St. Mihiel garrison. This village is the sole position still held by Germans on the left banks of the Meuse in this region. On the remainder of the front nothing to be reported.

NORTH SEA CLOSED.

LONDON, Nov. 17. Premier Asquith stated to-day in the Commons, that the British Government had decided to declare the whole of the North Sea a military area. All subjects of the enemy found on neutral vessels, he said, would be liable to detention as prisoners of war. Further oil and copper would be declared contraband.

BRITAIN'S WAR TAXES.

LONDON, Nov. 17. Chancellor Lloyd George proposed in the Commons to-day an additional duty on beer of 17 1/2 (approximately $4.15) per barrel. This is equivalent to about a cent a glass. He said that he proposed, as a means of raising the deficit, resulting from the war, to increase the income tax. On unearned incomes he proposed that a man should contribute one-fourth of his income this year, and one-sixteenth next year. In respect to earned incomes, he said each man would have to contribute one-eighth this year and three-eighths next year. He said that the country had to find by the end of the financial year £385,367,000, or there would be a deficit of £239,511,000. The first two years of the war, he estimated, would cost at least £450,000,000.

ALREADY HALF SUBSCRIBED.

LONDON, Nov. 17. £500,000,000 of the new British War Loan of $1,125,000,000 has already been taken by one firm, was the announcement made in the Commons to-day by Chancellor Lloyd George. He said also that an additional duty of six cents a pound would be placed on tea.

REPAIRING AT RIO.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 17. The British cruiser Glasgow, which came into port yesterday, after her trip from the Chilean coast, where she was damaged in an encounter with the German squadron, will undergo repairs here.

THE 'BERLIN' INTERNED.

CHRISTIANIA, Nov. 17. It is officially announced here to-day that disarmament of the German cruiser Berlin, which put in at the Norwegian seaport of Trondheim, has been commenced. The Berlin appeared off Trondheim, which is on the northwest coast of Norway, and well outside the North Sea, yesterday. It was then reported that she was endeavoring to escape from the North Sea to act as commerce-raider in the Atlantic, very much as the Emden had done in the Indian Ocean. The Berlin, with a crew of 450 men, arrived yesterday. Her commander was given the choice of putting to sea within 24 hours, or submitting to disarmament. He chose the latter.

O'BRIEN'S ADVICE.

LONDON, Nov. 17. "We have got either to bid goodbye to Home Rule or help England honestly in this war," said William O'Brien, M.P. for Cork, and leader of the Independent Nationalists, writing to-day to constituents who had protested against the suggestion of conscription. Irishmen, he said, were being cruelly led astray, and their attitude to the Government was inexplicable. This, he said, was furnishing to certain English politicians their only excuse for deserting the cause of Home Rule.

KILLED IN ACTION.

TORONTO, Nov. 17. Lieut. Gordon MacKenzie, of Toronto, has been killed in action in France. He was with the Royal Scot Fusiliers when he met his death. Lieut. MacKenzie was a graduate of the Royal Military College.

WILL BE BURIED IN ST. PAUL'S.

LONDON, Nov. 17. In deference to the public wishes, the body of Lord Roberts will be buried in St. Paul's Cathedral. The funeral will be of an elaborate military character.

BANK MANAGER DEAD.

TORONTO, Nov. 17. D. R. Wilkie, Manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, and President of the Canadian Bankers' Association, is dead.

AUSTRIANS SEARING BELGRADE.

BERLIN, Nov. 18. The occupation of Belgrade, Serbia, by the Austrians, is, apparently, imminent, according to an official announcement made public here.

LEFT SALISBURY PLAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 18. The Princess Patricia Regiment have left Bustard Camp, Salisbury Plain, and gone to Winchester, in order to be nearer Southampton. It seems likely they will be merged with the Home Division, and are therefore likely to see active service before any of the other Canadian Regiments.

OFFICIAL FROM BERLIN.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—(Official.) Generally speaking, yesterday was quiet in the Western arena of the war. To the south of Verdun and northeast of Cirey, the French made several attacks, which, however, were unsuccessful. Operations in the eastern arena made further favorable progress, but a detailed report is not yet to hand.

Stop Coughing.

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since "PHORATONE COUGH MIXTURE" is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time, and they are not able to get rid of it. Don't let a cough or cold hang on to you day after day and run the chance of catching and developing the "cough" that is not easy to throw off. You will avoid all this worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining "Phoratone Cough Mixture" at once. Sold at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c.; postage, 5 cts extra.

Phoratone Cough Cure is prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Newfoundland. Manufacturers of Stafford's Liniment, Stafford's Prescription "A", Stafford's Phoratone Cough Cure, etc.

SITUATION SATISFACTORY.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—(Official.) According to latest advices, the enemy has renewed his attacks to the east and south of Ypres, but they have not altered the situation, which is satisfactory. During the last two days we have registered progress, more or less pronounced, everywhere we have attacked, at Hetch, on the Yser, between Armentieres and Arras, and in the region of Vailly, in Argonne, and on the heights of the Meuse.

A GREAT BATTLE RAGING.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 18. In East Prussia the enemy is falling back along the whole front between Glimbinen and Angerburg, while continuing to hold the passages in Mazurian lakes. On the front between the Vistula and Warthe Rivers (in Russian Poland) fighting continues, it taking the character of a great battle. There are still important German forces in Galicia. We have reached the Austrian rearguard in the region of Dukia and the passages of Ujok.

BODY OF LORD ROBERTS ON ENGLISH SOIL.

FOLKSTONE, Nov. 18. The body of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, on its arrival here last night from Boulogne, was received by a large contingent of officers from the Sherborne camp. The Mayor of Folkstone and other officials were in waiting. A room at the railway station had been converted into a mortuary chamber, and the coffin was borne there by Non-Comm. Army officers. It was laden with a number of wreaths. In the procession from the boat to the railway station marched a delegation of British, French and Indian officers as a guard of honor.

Anaemic Mothers Here is Relief.

You Can Enrich Your Worn-out Blood and Quickly Renew Your Health With Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I can't remember any time during the past twenty years when my heart wasn't aching. If I bent over, dark specks would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to my head." Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam, P.O., and containing her interesting statement she says: "Work or exertion made my heart beat terrible, and going upstairs caused shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. I tell you how I feel to-day and you can understand what a great cure Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as for going up stairs on the run, it doesn't bother me at all. I eat and sleep as any well person ought, and as for dizziness which used to frighten me so much, it has entirely disappeared." Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful medicine. They helped, and I know every woman that uses them will have comfort and good health. Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box at druggists and storekeepers, or the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

"Morgan's Treasure."

To-day a very strong picture programme specially arranged to suit the patrons of the Crescent Picture Palace is advertised, an excellent sensational feature produced by the Powers Picture Play Company, in two reels is "Morgan's Treasure." The son on account of his love for the fair tylist in his father's office is cast off; he befriends a seaman who shows him a chart of where "Morgan's Treasure" is buried; they arrange with the owner and crew of a schooner to go and look for the hidden wealth, they are overtaken by storms and are shipwrecked and meet with adventures which are graphically portrayed in this great feature.

"Poisoned Waters," is a beautiful legendary drama, a masterpiece of acting and photography. "The Moonshiners" is a strong western drama produced by the Frontier people, full of exciting situations. Messrs. Walsh and McDonald are singing new songs to-day. The Crescent gives a complete change three times a week—songs and pictures. Go to the Crescent and take in this excellent show.

Vigilance in the North Sea

The intermingling of the Berlin at Tromsø brings into relief the vigilance exercised by Jellicoe in the North Sea. The Berlin is a sister ship of the Emden which did so much damage to shipping in the Indian Ocean, and which was recently sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney off Cocos Island. In 1903 three cruisers of this type were launched, the Berlin, the Emden and the Hamburg. Their tonnage is 3,200 and they carry ten 4.1 guns. The Berlin managed to escape from the Heligoland Bight or the Baltic and ran up a third of the coast of Norway and put into Tromsø. In all probability, she was followed and forced into the Norwegian fjord to escape British cruisers. The fact that on the alternative of leaving in twenty hours or submitting to internment being put up to her by the Norwegian authorities, that she accepted the latter, indicates that British cruisers were awaiting her re-appearance outside the three-mile limit. The fate of the Berlin brings into clear relief the vigilance of the British fleet in the North Sea. So far as is known not a single German commerce destroyer has escaped from the North Sea into the Atlantic for a period of three months. The watch kept up is never ending and it has been highly successful. Had it been otherwise, there would have been a far different tale to tell in regard to the shipping on the North Atlantic. British ships have crossed from North American waters to European waters during this time practically unimpeded by the commerce destroyers of our enemies. Ships have come and gone from Newfoundland to Canada, the United States, the British Islands, the Mediterranean and the Brazil and to date we are in the happy position of not having had to record a single loss. We have much to be thankful for, and we can also congratulate ourselves that our own fishermen, the Newfoundland Naval Reserve, are taking part in this patriotic and needful work. A hundred or so of our own boys are on the H. M. S. Nobe and more than three-hundred others who crossed the Atlantic to Franconia, are now or soon will be afloat on other warships helping the mother country to keep down the German menace on the high seas. There are more getting ready for the work on the Calypso, and during the next few weeks we are hoping to see a sufficient influx to enable Newfoundland to fulfill her pledge of providing 1,000 men for the Navy. The strong endorsement which this pledge has received from the F. P. U. and the example of Mr. John Stone, M.P. for Trinity District in offering himself as a recruit will doubtless be fruitful in stimulating recruiting for the King's Navy.

Golden Bullets.

British sailors, British soldiers and British gold were three great factors in bringing Napoleon to his knees. British sailors, British soldiers and British gold will be three great factors in crushing German militarism. In spite of wearing down tactics of the Germans, the British Navy holds the seas to-day, and is relatively stronger now in regard to the German Navy than it was three months ago. The "conquerable" British soldier has shown himself man for man, battalion for battalion, army corps for corps, more than a match for the vaunted German soldier. Throughout the Empire there are two million of them, either at the front, or in training to fight the battle of the flag, and within the next six months there will be three millions. This will give an immense army of fresh and strong men to hurl back the western armies of the Kaiser on Berlin, who are already suffering exhaustion from the pressure which is constantly being exerted in their two fronts. Now comes the story that the British Government are raising immense sums of money to do for the Kaiser what British gold did for Napoleon. Lloyd George points out that the income of the people of the British Isles is nine times what it was at that time. This is a most hopeful sign. The cost of the Napoleonic wars, staggering though it was, cleared the way for the extraordinary developments of the Nineteenth Century. Surely then we may hope that the cost of clearing away the Kaiser menace will be followed by a still greater development in the Twentieth Century.

Supreme Court.

The Court met at 11 a.m. pursuant to adjournment. The Grand Jury were in attendance and were informed that the witnesses for the case, the King vs. Ricketts, have not yet arrived, and asked them to be present again at 2.30 to-morrow afternoon.

Presentation of Grand Jury.

In the Presentation of the Grand Jury made at the Supreme Court to-day the report of their visit to the Penitentiary was a very satisfactory one. It was mentioned that while the question of keeping the inmates employed was carefully attended to by Superintendent Parsons, and their spiritual needs were being looked after by the various religious denominations, it was thought that the feasibility of procuring some means whereby those serving long terms could receive an elementary education, was worthy of a careful consideration.

There are thousands dead who should be alive to-day if they paid proper attention to their underwear.

LETTER FROM THE FRONT.

Tommy, Terra Nova, Writes.
 J. M. DEVINE, The Right House,
 Corner Water and Adelaide Streets.
 Dear Sir,—Just a word to say we are all fine and that the Old Country is quite up to my expectations. All hands are well. We had a nice time coming across—'twas a great sight to look at the ships lined up. I must confess, leaving the Narrows and dear old South Side Hill behind, made me feel kind of lonely, but such feelings soon disappeared. We are training hard and hope to be on the firing line at an early date. By the way, that Underwear you supplied the Regiment with is great stuff. They could scarcely believe in England 'twas made in Newfoundland. We are all comfortably fixed. I notice some of the papers are slightly twisting again politically. 'Twas ever thus. We'll do our duty and we cannot do more.
 Yours faithfully,
 TOMMY.

Get ready, mothers, for Friday and Saturday are going to be great days at DEVINE'S on the Corner. Buy, buy all you want, the qualities are good, the price is low, and as usual you will enjoy the treatment our sales help will give you.

building was not at all in conformity with the requirements of the inmates of such an institution, which exists for the alleviation of want and misery. Instead the inmates were compelled to live in a most unwholesome atmosphere, chiefly for the want of sufficient room, thus increasing their misery to a maximum instead of fulfilling the desired purpose.

At the Rev. Fr. Conway's recital the accommodation is insufficient for the number of inmates, and it is hoped that the erection of a new Asylum, which is in contemplation, will solve the difficulty, as the old building could then be converted into a Poor Asylum.

First Victoria Cross of War

The gallant act for which this soldier was awarded the Cross occurred at Le Catiau where, while his corps had been driven back by German cavalrymen, he returned in the face of a hail of bullets searching for his wounded captain. He was successful, and carried the officer to safety. The Sergt-Major was shot in both legs.

White won the distinguished conduct medal in South Africa for carrying Lord Roberts' son, who was mortally wounded, from the danger zone before Colenso.

The all-black hat means a rage for all-black veils.

Nevertheless, white veils are always excellent with the black hats.

AS AN AFTER THOUGHT—that is, after the fire starts—it is useless to think of taking out a policy. The time to do it is NOW—before the danger threatens.

BE ON THE SAFE SIDE

and let us write you a Policy on your home and property at once. It ought to be made a criminal offense to be without fire insurance when the cost is so small.

PERCIE JOHNSON,

Insurance Agent.
 LONDON NO. 10. — Sergt-Major White, of the Army Service Corps, is the first man to get the coveted Victoria Cross in the present war.

THE LION

is recognized as the King of Beasts, SUNLIGHT SOAP is recognized as the King of Laundry Soaps. The rule of the Lion extends only over the animal world; the rule of SUNLIGHT SOAP extends to wherever Soap is necessary. It is without a rival for washing clothes, household linen and all fabrics even of the finest texture. It is the best Soap that skill and money can produce. Give it a trial and you will be convinced of its value.

Gloves and Mittens

HOW TO KNIT THEM.
To the Editor of The Times:—Having for many years tried various plans for keeping the hands warm in cold climates when wild-fowling, I should like to give a word of warning and advice to those kind people who are knitting gloves and mitts for winter wear for our soldiers. Knitted gloves if once wetted by snow or rain are worthless for keeping the hands dry or warm unless there is a fire to dry them at. When wet the fingers through them and turns the gloves into a numbed and frozen condition, and keeps them so, a condition most unsuitable for feeling a rifle-trigger! In quite dry weather knitted gloves will keep the hands warm, but even then are very difficult to feel a trigger with. If worn when shooting they should have no ends for the forefinger and the thumb, as if these are covered with thick wool, being the fingers chiefly used, the thread of wool catch on every small projection they rub against on a rifle. Leather seven partially inside a knitted glove, as I see suggested, is a poor addition, as it gives no warmth, and when wetted becomes hard and crossed by being dried and remains so.

Woollen mitts, as thick as possible, that fit close to the wrist for a length of six inches, and which come up to the second joint of the fingers, are far better than gloves, and leave the fingers free for use. The fingers do not get cold with these mitts, as they keep the blood warm at the wrist and hence the fingers are warm, even though wet. The mitts do not catch projections and do not wear out. I see it is advised that the mitts should be made of a length to draw over the sleeves—a very bad plan, as they would be away from the wrist, and the wind would blow through them, and being enlarged to go over the sleeve, when they slipped off the latter, as would constantly happen in any exertion, they would be loosely fitting to the wrist instead of fitting it warm and tight as they should be. Yours obediently,
RALPH F. PAYNE-GALLWEY,

CARDINAL POLE died 1558, aged 58. He was Cardinal Archbishop of Canterbury under Queen Mary, having succeeded Cranmer, and was the Queen's most trusted adviser.
FUNERAL OF THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON 1852. The Duke was 83 when he died and his funeral at St. Paul's was one of the great pageants of last century. No doubt a similar pageant will be seen on the occasion of Lord Roberts' funeral and our volunteers will probably have some part in it.
SIR WILLIAM S. GILBERT born 1836. The dramatist and lyric writer who has contributed so largely to the gaiety of nations. He is more widely known in connection with the comic operas which he wrote and to which Sir Arthur Sullivan set music.

THE CRY OF THE BELGIAN CHILDREN.

What did we know of War, its rights and wrongs?
We heard it named but gave it not a thought.
Gaily we sang our patriotic songs,
And with imaginary Germans fought.
We manned our forts of mud against attack,
And, child-like, revelled in the dust and grime.
Driving our fancied foes with fury back,
Guarding our homes, Kaiser, was this a crime?
Nearer it drew, but little did we care;
When Father left we watched him march away,
Enrived his uniform and martial air.
Then marched ourselves to meet the foe, in play.
Only the look of grief on Mother's face
Caused vague unrest within our hearts to stir,
And, clumsily, with kiss and fond embrace,
We did our very best to comfort her.
And then it came, and with it Terror tenses
And Fire and Blood, blighting with its foul breath
All that we knew of love and innocence:
Teaching us Pain and Death, and worse than Death.
Mother and sister butchered 'neath our eyes,
Crimes that our minds, thank God, could never guess,
Screening his firing line our childhood dies.
To meet the War Lord's call for "frightfulness."

Kaiser, when soon or late your hour shall come,
And at God's Throne you, suppliant, bend the knee,
Think you those prattling voices will be dumb—
Which now are silenced by your dread decree?
When boastful pride is turned to abject dread
What bid for mercy will you make, what plea?
Facing the righteous wrath of Him, Who said:
"Suffer the little ones to come to Me."
—A. R. Hamilton.

Poultry Show.

The third annual exhibition of Poultry by the Newfoundland Poultry Association will be formally opened by His Excellency the Governor in the Prince's Rink at 3 o'clock this afternoon.
This year's display promises to surpass that of the previous years. The Committee in charge have done much to arouse the enthusiasm of exhibitors and as a result there will be many more birds shown than last year, as the interest in poultry raising is rapidly increasing. The display of waterfowls, ducks, geese, etc., will include all the principal breeds and will be particularly interesting. The White Rock, Plymouth Rock, Orpingtons and fancy fowls, such as the Houdans and Campines will be exhibited in large numbers.
Mr. W. H. Henry, of Picton, who arrived in the city by Monday's express, will act as judge. Much of the preliminary work of judging was done at the Prince's Rink last night, such as the classification of the different breeds, and the selection of winners. Owing to the existing conditions, there will be no cash prizes this year, the winners receiving badges only.
The Association will donate ten per cent of the gross receipts to the Funds of the Women's Patriotic Association. In view of this fact, and as an appreciation of the work of the Poultry Association, the exhibition should be largely patronized.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 50c. a cake.

Clothes and Souls.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day when I was out, Molly had gone. I felt a sense of her presence which was almost uncanny.

Is it not wonderful how clothes seem to catch the flavor of those who wear them, and to identify themselves inseparably with their individuality?

Of course I do not mean the dress-up gowns that scarcely get a chance to become acquainted with their wearers because they spend most of their time hanging in a bag in the closet. I mean the well-worn everyday things,—the house dress, the sweater, the little sun hat, the old suit or the cutting shirt, the little familiar things that give us almost as poignant a sense of the wearer's presence as if we heard his voice in the next room.

I am not one of those fortunate people who can easily visualize. I cannot at will call up my absent friends' faces, and see them distinctly with the mind's eye. The effort I make to recall them seems to defeat itself, and the faces elude me. But when I come across some familiar garment I can visualize perfectly and without effort. I can see its wearer, and not only see him, but feel his presence, hear his voice, sense him.

In a little black trunk in our garage is a dark blue sweater and an old felt gray hat. Their owner has been dead many years. Time has healed the wound of his loss; I have ceased to actively miss him except now, and then when some anniversary makes the wound ache. Yet one look at the sweater and the old gray felt hat brings it all back. I hear his voice. I see his face. I sense his presence with a poignancy that is half sweet and half painful.

And then I wonder at it all. Here they are, his garments. If we choose to care for them they may be kept indefinitely, while he, for whom they were made, is gone and we could not hold him and we cannot call him back.

And with Myrtle Reed I say,

"Where does it all go to,—all the love and tenderness and everything else? Where are all the dreams that went into these tiny stitches? Where is the lovelight gone from my mother's eyes? Here's this futile, meaningless coat, moth eaten but still able to fill its original purpose and I outgrown it these fifty years almost. Where has the rest of it gone, Judith, where is it?"

Ruth Cameron

Thrilling Rescue of Niger's Crew.

(Special Cable to the Morning Chronicle.)

Deal, Eng., Nov. 11.—By the destruction of the English gunboat Niger, which was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the Downs this afternoon, the realities of war were brought home to the inhabitants of Deal and Walmar.

A loud explosion was heard from the gunboat as she lay off the Deal pier and great volumes of smoke enveloped the vessel.

When the smoke cleared, the Niger was observed to be settling down forward. Men, women and children, rushed to the sea front exclaiming that the vessel had been torpedoed or mined. They soon realized that the Niger was doomed. The Deal and Kingston lifeboats, as well as boats from other parts of the beach were launched in an effort to save the sailors.

Consternation and almost panic prevailed among the hundreds who stood watching the ghastly sight from the beach. Fortunately the North Deal galley, Hope, commanded by Captain John Budd, lay at anchor near the spot waiting to land the pilot from a London steamer which was going down the channel. When the boatman realized that the Niger had been hit by a submarine or mine, to use their own expression, they rowed like the very devil.

"We saw the sailors," said Captain Budd, "jumping from the vessel's side in dozens. As we neared the fast disappearing vessel we came upon swarms of men struggling in the sea and heroically trying to support each other. Some were fully dressed, others only partly so. They were clinging to pieces of wreckage and deck furniture and some were in life belts."

"It was a heart-rending spectacle. The men were so thick in the water that they grasped at our oars as we dipped them into the sea. We rescued so many and our boat got so choked that we could not move. With our gunwhale only just out of water, we were in danger of sinking ourselves."

"We called to the men that we could take no more in, or we should sink ourselves, but they continued to pour over the sides and some clung to the stern of our boat. We had about fifty on board. Never had there been so many in the boat before. One burly sailor, whom we told to wait until the next boat came along, laughingly remarked while he was in the water, 'alright, I will hold on by my eyebrow,' and he drifted to another galley. Another Deal boat then came along and relieved us of some of our men."

A BRAVE CAPTAIN.

"Suddenly we heard a shout and looking around, saw the commander of the Niger waving and beckoning us from the stern of the sinking ship. We could not go to him because our craft was so heavily laden. Another galley then came along, and after taking out some of our men, together with those who were hanging onto our sides we went closer to the sinking gunboat and took off some more men and at the captain's special request we waited until he took a final look

Big Guns in War.

Much that is sensational has been written by non-experts about the big guns that have made their appearance in the war, and which have been so destructive to the cities against which they have been used. As a matter of fact, very little of a definite nature is known about these guns, their size or details. An expert discusses these guns in the special war issue of the Scientific American of November 7th, where he sums up the evidence as follows:

Apparently there are three types: an 11-inch German howitzer; a 12-inch Austrian howitzer; and a German 16-inch siege gun. The first two pieces have been freely photographed—the huge 16-inch piece has, apparently, so far escaped the camera.

Report has it that Austria sent several of these pieces to Belgium and France for use in the German attack, and that they were manned by Austrian artillerymen. That this was so would seem to be proved by photographs of this gun, in which the artillerymen are Austrians and the country has the characteristic appearance of Flanders.

The outfit of one gun consists of the motor car carrying the gun detachment, a car carrying the foundation bed, the turntable and mounting, including the sleeve and recoil gear, and a car for the gun.

That these heavy pieces lose their mobility and are liable to capture if they leave the macadam roads is shown by photographs of one section (the mounting) sunk to the hubs in a wheat field.

Disgruntled.

"These floors I have to sweep and swab," the janitor exclaimed; "it is indeed a nasty job, of which I am ashamed. I was designed for better things and higher heaven knows; I should be fiddling with the strings of lyres and things like those. I cannot do such work with zest. It's not my proper sphere; I'm sick of it, and I'll be blest if I shall tarry here." Then came the boss, who seemed to be depressed and sad and tired, and to the janitor said he, "Go, chase yourself! You're fired! You queer me with your dismal face, your feet are always cold; a dozen fellows want the place that you so lightly hold." The janitor has time to burn, communing with his soul; and how he envies those who earn each week, their little roll! How well he'd like to sweep and swab, and light the fires at dawn. In vain he rustles for a job—and winter's coming on. Though we must do some work we hate, let's wield a willing hand, for he's the wisest sort of skater who keeps his grousches canned. We may desire a higher sphere, but till our chance arrives, let's do our work without a tear, for thus the toiler thrives.

Jap Warships at Honolulu.

Honolulu, Nov. 11.—The Japanese battleship Hizen and the cruiser Asama, which entered this port yesterday for coal and provisions, left here today for an unknown destination.

Rumour has it in the Japanese colony that the warships will rendezvous with a Japanese fleet, now nearing the coast of Chile, where it is supposed to be seeking the German cruisers, believed to be in that vicinity.

Two Japanese merchantmen at Hilo, are due to clear shortly, but in view of the sinking of the Emden and the known presence of the remainder of the German Pacific squadron off the coast of South America, it is not believed the Hizen and the Asama will be detailed to convoy them.

WAR LOAN

1,750 Million Dollars

Income of Country is Nine Times What it Was in Napoleon's Time--
The First Year of War Will Cost 2,250 Million Dollars.

11.30 A.M.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in presenting the financial statement to the Commons yesterday afternoon said, he was making proposals not merely to meet an increased expenditure up to the end of March next but to meet also a deficit in the necessary sum for which provision had been made. Already £535,000,000 covering ordinary war expenses. The additional amount which had to be found was £233,571,000. The full year of the war would cost £450,000,000. The proposed income tax should be doubled in this year there would only be collected in that respect one-third of the income tax. He announced an extra duty of three pence per pound on tea, one halfpenny on a half pint of beer. It would be necessary, continued the Chancellor, to borrow £230,000,000 through to the end of the financial year. It was also desirable to have some surplus, hence he proposed a loan of £250,000,000 at three and one-half per cent. The issue price would be ninety-five redeemable at war on the thirty-first of March, 1928; £100,000,000 had already been offered the Government. The tea duty, he said, would produce £95,000,000 this year, £2,200,000 next year. The beer duty would yield £2,000,000 this year and £19,000,000 the year following. The new taxation this year would realize £15,500,000, the suspension of the sinking fund would give £2,750,000. Proceeding, Lloyd George declared the income of the country at present to be £2,200,000,000, whereas during the Napoleonic war it was £250,000,000. If, he added, we rose to the heroic level of our ancestors, we should now be raising almost £700,000,000. The war, he said, might be long or short, but we are fighting an enemy who will submit to no terms that we could accept or on no terms we could prudently accept without a smashing defeat. A wise Chancellor undertakes to give the States certain facilities in connection with the new loan. The Bank for three years would be prepared to make advances against the deposit of war stock taken at issue price without collateral security at one per cent below the market rate of interest. In conclusion, he appealed for support for the loan. He said it was a loan to help this country to fight this battle for her existence. Victory meant value. Defeat meant destruction. It was an excellent investment because the credit of Britain was still the best in the world. Lloyd George was loudly cheered upon resuming his seat. The resolution was passed.

TURKS FIRE ON U. S. LAUNCH.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Athens says a launch of the United States, carrying Tennessee, which was entering the Gulf of Smyrna to arrange for a cruiser to come into the harbor, was fired upon by the forts and sunk. The launch returned to the Tennessee. The Commander informed the Vell that he had orders from his Government to enter the harbor of Smyrna and had decided to do so.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF LORD ROBERTS AT THE BRITISH HEAD-QUARTERS.

LONDON, To-day. The Official Press Bureau gives a touching account of the funeral services of Lord Roberts at the headquarters of the British Army in France. The route of the cortege from the house where he died to the Matrie where the funeral service was held, says the statement, was lined with British and French troops. The coffin was borne on a gun carriage. The guards of honor were Indian and British troops.

O' the Forest" from the plipers. The cortege moved slowly through a double rank of soldiers with arms reversed. General officers acted as pall bearers, those following the casket included representatives of the family of Lord Roberts and King Albert and President Poincare, the Prince of Wales, Prince Arthur of Connaught and General French. The simple funeral service was conducted by Chaplain Anderson of the British forces. At the conclusion of the service British bugles rang out "The Last Post." As the coffin was removed to a motor ambulance for conveyance to Boulogne, French trumpeters across the square blew a fanfare and the guns of Roberts' old regiment roared out the last farewell.

CAPT. LUCE'S REPORT OF THE NAVAL BATTLE OFF THE CHILEAN COAST.

LONDON, To-day. The Admiralty issued last night the report of Captain Luce, of the British light cruiser Glasgow, of the battle with the German squadron on Nov. 1st, off the Chilean coast. The Glasgow, which left Coronel on the morning of that day was advised by Rear Admiral Craddock that the enemy's ships were to the northward. Towards evening the Glasgow sighted the smoke and reported to Rear Admiral Craddock and the British fleet formed a line ahead with the Good Hope leading, the Monmouth, Glasgow and Otranto following. The enemy had turned South and were also in single line ahead, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau leading. The enemy was at that time 15,000 yards away says the report and maintained this range, at the same time jabbing the wireless signals. The sun was setting immediately behind the British ships and while it remained above the horizon the British had the advantage in light, but the range was too great. When it had set and visibility of conditions were altered, the British ships were silhouetted against afterglow and the falling light made the enemy difficult to see. The Germans opened fire at 7 o'clock at twelve thousand yards, followed in quick succession by the British; the growing darkness and heavy spray and head sea made firing difficult, particularly from the main deck of the guns of Good Hope and Monmouth. The enemy firing salvoes got the range quickly and their third salvo caused an outbreak of fire on the forepart of both ships which were constantly on fire until 7.45 in the evening. At 7.50 an explosion occurred on the Good Hope amidships, the flames reached 200 feet high. Total destruction must have followed. It was now quite dark and both sides continued firing at the flashes of the operating guns. The Monmouth was badly down by the bow and turned away to get her stern to the sea, signalling the Glasgow to effect a landing. The Glasgow signalled to the Monmouth, the enemy is following us, but received no reply. Under a rising moon the enemy ships could be seen approaching and as the Glasgow could render the Monmouth no assistance she proceeded at full speed to avoid destruction. At 8.40 we lost sight of the enemy. At 9.30 we observed flashes of fire which were doubtless the final attack on the Monmouth. A statement issued by the British Admiralty on November 6th, concerning the sea fight off Chile said the battleship Canopus was not present at the time of the battle. The report of Capt. Luce indicates that Craddock tried with his wireless to locate the Canopus which was doubtless in the Pacific and within range of a wireless call, with the hope that the battleship would turn her prow in his direction and assist in giving battle to the Germans.

NO OVERTURES FOR PEACE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. No suggestion of overture for peace in the European conflict has been made by any of the belligerents in response to President Wilson's tender of friendly offices of the United States, and there is no present intention on the part of the President to renew negotiations to end the war. The President gave this information to callers yesterday and added that his Government now awaits some action by belligerents.

Why Indians Fight in France.

The London Times prints this translation of an interview between the correspondent of the Secolo and one of the King's Indian soldiers now in France. The correspondent was curious to discover the temper of the Indian troops. "Are you glad," he asked, "to have come here to fight for a country which is not yours—France—England—which dominates you?" The Indian looked at him with eyes full of wonder and indignation, and replied: "India is not oppressed by any one; she is a part, and not a small part of a great Empire. Therefore the Indians are not slaves of this Empire, but subjects as are the English, the Scottish, and the Irish. The English Empire is menaced by a nation called Germany, and to defend itself it has appealed to all its subjects. If the Empire were menaced in India, the English soldiers would have gone there, but as it is menaced in Europe, we have come here." He added in accents of profound pride, "We are English!"

Not Tempting to France

Springfield Republican:—For France to desert its Allies would mean the gravest possible peril, whichever side should win; in the case of a triumph for Germany, France would always be her mere vassal, while if the Allies should win France would probably be made to suffer in many ways. The very fact that France never had a more pacific government than when the war broke out has apparently united the nation to an extraordinary degree. Russia has its pro-Germans, whose influence is felt in the press, and England has its Russophobes who may seek a peace which will preserve a strong Germany, but in France all classes, including the socialists, seem resolved to see the thing through. Even the whole of Alsace-Lorraine would hardly be a temptation.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPH-

Economy in Baking

In these times of great advance in prices of many foods it is important to House-keepers to know that the old reliable Royal Baking Powder, made from pure cream of tartar and soda, is sold at the old prices.

Spaniard's Bay Briefs.

Our men have all arrived from Labrador; the last of them came by the s.s. Sagona. Whereas some of them have done fairly well, others haven't done much, this with a smaller price than previous years, coupled with the increased prices of foodstuffs and the scarcity of labour, many will find it difficult to tide themselves over the winter months. On behalf of the Parish of Spaniard's Bay, we take the opportunity (although late) of congratulating our Rector Rev. J. S. Adams on his success in satisfying the examiners of the London University and thereby gaining the degree of B.D.

The public building is now completed and we hear that within a few days it will be opened. We feel keenly for Mr. Simeon Sheppard, who on Nov. 5th had his dwelling house and shop entirely destroyed by fire. He carried no insurance whatever on the property.

On the 11th inst., the Ladies of the Patriotic Association held a hot supper followed by a short entertainment, when the grand amount of $132 was realized. Much credit is due to the ladies for bringing it to such a successful issue.

On Saturday, 14th inst., we were very much pleased with a visit from Lady Davidson, who addressed the ladies of the Patriotic Association in the Parish Hall, and by her noble and patriotic address not only endeared herself to those of her hearers, but encouraged them to continue the noble work which they had been doing.

We were very sorry His Excellency the Governor could not pay us a visit owing to his time being limited, but many of the men drove to Bay Roberts and had the pleasure of listening to his patriotic and instructive address and also the privilege of shaking hands with him.

The following young men from Spaniard's Bay are now doing active service for King and Country: James Jewer, Stanley Hutchings, James Gosse, John Hutchings, Edward Neil, Herbert Drover and Levi Chipman.—COR.

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 12.—F. W. Heman, business manager of the Jacksonville, Florida, Times-Union, was killed; Captain Ingram, of the Clyde liner Mohawk, and C. L. Perkins was arrested when the steamer arrived here to-day, and held pending action by the coroner.

In response to a wireless call, the hospital steward of the torpedo boat destroyer Flusser, came to the assistance of the wounded men.
