A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER VII.

The simple phrase touched Carrington, and his heart relented; but alas! Purley's next words hardened it again.

"Any way I hope there won't be any difficulty about the money, Carrington," he said, "because there isn't any time to lose. Gilmore sails to-morrow afternoon. And I've got to go with him, if I'm going at all."

The man was going to sail to-morrow afternoon; would never come back; would bury himself in that far-away station at the end of the Antipodes; would never hear of the sudden rise in the value of the shares.

Yes, the temptation was too great. The things stared at him from where they lay close to his hand and assumed, to his fevered imagination, piles upon piles of sovereigns reaching as high as the grimy ceiling.

"See here, Purley," he said. "If I am going to have anything to do with these shares I think I'd better buy them right out. It will prevent confusion and—both."

"Just as you like," assented Purley, indifferently. "It's very kind of you to take them and I sha'n't forget it."

"Well, then," went on Carrington, "I'll buy 'em of you, right out, and give you—"

He hesitated, his head burning hot, his feet icy cold. He was not utterly without heart, and if he had had a thousand pounds at his command he would have given it to Purley, if he could have done so without raising the man's suspicions; but two hundred and fifty pounds was about all he had at his disposal, and he said:

"I'll make it two hundred and fifty."

"That's right down good of you, Carrington," said Purley. "It's treating me like a pal. I always knew you were a good sort, and you're acting very 'ansomely by me. I sha'n't forget it."

"Oh, that's all right," said Carrington, moistening his lips.

He filled in the cheque as steadily as he could, and taking a necessary form from his drawer he made out a receipt for the shares.

"Just sign this, old man, will you?" he said. "Nothing like having everything straight and proper in business, even between old friends."

Purley signed the transfer and receipt and Carrington tossed it on the table.

"By the way," he asked, "you didn't mention these shares to your friend—what's his name—Gilmore?—did you?"

"No," said Purley. "I didn't think it was worth while."

"Quite so," remarked Carrington; "and if I were you I shouldn't say anything about them. When you've made a mess of a thing it's wise to forget it. At any rate, it's better not to say anything about it."

Purley nodded.

"Makes you look small, doesn't it?" he said. "No, I sha'n't say anything about it. Now, I'll be off. I suppose I sha'n't be able to get this cheque cashed till ten o'clock to-morrow."

"No; banks open at ten," said Carrington.

A sudden fear smote him as Purley straightened out his cap. Even now the man might discover the value of the shares—the way in which he had been tricked. Carrington's heart beat heavily and the veins in his forehead throbbled.

"What are you going to do with yourself this evening, Josiah?" he asked, regarding him with a friendly smile. "What do you say to our having a bit of a dinner together, and looking in at the theatre or music-hall?" He must keep the man in sight, must prevent him getting any information about the Roaring Jane, must watch him until he was safely on board the vessel. "It's a long time since you and I made a night of it. Let's have a good time this evening, for the sake of auld lang syne. I'll come with you right away now if you'll wait a minute or two."

"Right you are," assented Purley. "This is real friendly of you, Carrington."

Carrington bustled about the office, putting things straight. He locked his cash-box and cheque-book in the safe, but left the shares and the transfer on the desk.

"Ain't you going to lock those things up, Carrington?" asked Purley. "Not that it matters much."

"Oh, ay, yes," responded Carrington, as if he had forgotten. "There they are."

He pitched them in the safe carefully and locked the door—carefully; then he playfully pitched Josiah out of the room.

"Yes, we'll make a regular night of it," he said; "and as we shall no doubt be late, I'll wire to my girls to say that I will stay the night at the hotel with you. It will be quite like old times, won't it?"

Purley beamed at him gratefully and admiringly, and Carrington linked his arm in his old friend's, and they went off together. Having dispatched the telegram—he had met an old friend and was going off to the country with him on business—Carrington took Purley to the famous old dining-place, Simpson's, in the Strand, and ordered a good dinner and bottle of Burgundy to begin with. He was in wonderful spirit, kept talking of Josiah's prospects and congratulating him upon them, and passed the bottle frequently. Josiah was not accustomed to Burgundy at nine shillings a bottle, and he enjoyed it; his round face flushed, his eyes almost sparkled.

After a most excellent dinner, Carrington led his old friend into the smoking-room and ordered some cigars and some whiskey. Whiskey does not go well with Burgundy, Josiah's face grew more flushed and his nervous blink more pronounced. Presently the waiter, who scented a good tip and wanted to be attentive, laid the special edition of an evening paper beside Purley, who took it up with a hazy smile.

"It ain't often I see a paper," he said. "I don't go in much for news; ain't been used to it."

Carrington, whose eyes had been fixed on the journal with a gorgon stare, leant forward, and with a laugh, took the paper from his hand and tossed it into a corner.

"You don't want to bother about news, Josiah, just now," he said. "We want the little time we shall be together for talking and amusement."

"That's so," said Josiah. "I wish you was coming with me, Carrington. Better do so, and bring the two gels along. There don't seem much in this city game."

"No," said Carrington, with a resigned shrug of his shoulders. "You are right; but I've got into the groove, and I must stick to it, I suppose."

They had a cup of coffee—a nice mixture, Burgundy, whiskey, coffee!—then went to the Pavilion Music Hall. There is always a good entertainment at the Pavilion, and Josiah enjoyed it—enjoyed it all the more because he was in the company of his old friend. They had some more whiskey at the music hall—that is to say, Purley had; Carrington managed to dodge his, and at supper afterwards Carrington ordered a bottle of champagne.

This settled Purley, who, inarticulately endeavoring to express his gratitude for the favor Carrington had done him, and his appreciation of a rare good time, was taken in a hansom to his modest hotel in a street nearby.

When he awoke the next morning with a headache and a confused sense of his whereabouts, Carrington was standing by his bed.

"Breakfast ready, old chap!" he said. "Got a head on? So have I. We went the pace last night, didn't we? Haven't had such a time myself for years. I've brought you some soda water. Hurry up. We've got to go down to the bank with that cheque, you know, and you've got to meet your future partner."

Purley couldn't manage any breakfast when he came down into the tiny coffee-room in which Carrington was awaiting him. There was only one other man present in the room, and presently he looked up from the chop and asked the girl, who was waiting, for the paper.

Carrington had been down early, had seen an account of the sudden booming of the Roaring Jane, and had promptly stowed away the paper in his pocket.

"There was one here just now, sir," said the maid. "I don't know where it's gone, I'm sure. I'll send for another, if you like."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," grumbled the man, returning to his chop.

Purley drank a cup of coffee, and Carrington took him in a hansom to the bank, cashed the cheque, and handed the new, crisp notes to Josiah with a benevolent and friendly smile.

"Now, you go on and meet your man, Josiah," he said. "I won't come in with you—it's best for you to be alone under the circumstances. Two's company and three's none in matters of business as well as love; but I'll tell you what I'll do: I'll wait at the corner of Southampton Street, and then you and I will go and have a bit of lunch, and—yes, by Jove!—I'll go down to the docks with you and see you off."

If Purley had been in charge of a detective he could not have been more closely watched than he was by Carrington, who literally kept to his elbow all the time, and who maintained a keen lookout that Purley did not get hold of a paper. Purley made his necessary purchases, and the two men went down to the docks together; but Carrington would not let Purley go on board until almost the last minute.

"I won't come myself," he said. "It always upsets me parting from a man on board ship."

So he made his farewell on the quay. Josiah grasped his benefactor's hand and shook it as if it were a pump-handle, blinking with something that was not unlike tears.

"Good-bye, Carrington," he said. "I shall never forget all you've done for me. You've been a true friend, a friend in need. Perhaps some day I shall be able to pay you back. Who knows? If I don't pay you back, I may be of some use to yours—they gels of yours, for instance. Anyway, whatever happens to me, I sha'n't forget how you came and helped me out of this tight place and put me on my legs. Good-bye, and—" he added, apologetically—"God bless you!"

Carrington could only murmur, "Good-bye," for his old friend's gratitude, the emotion which he tried so hard to suppress, touched Carrington's heart, which had not been quite hardened by the greed for gold.

Our Volunteers.

Two recruits offered their services at Headquarters yesterday, namely: Eugene Farrell, Port aux Basques. James Shears, Port aux Basques. The volunteers were put through Swedish drill and bayonet exercises on the Parade Grounds yesterday. A number of men were inoculated. There were no enrolments for the Forestry Battalion.

Fishery News.

The Board of Trade have received these reports:— From R. Lawton (South Head of Keels to Knight's Cove Pt.)—The total catch is only 20 qts, and prospects are very poor. Bait is scarce only a few herring to be had. All the trap gear has been taken in and there is no fish with either trap, jigger or bait. From R. Furneaux (Rose Blanche to Hr. Le Cou)—Nearly all the shore boats are now at Cape Breton, and the others are getting ready for the Labrador. Prospects are poor, and there is not sufficient herring for bait. The catch to date is 11,840 qts, with 230 for last week. Two traps and 15 dories and skiffs are fishing. Six schooners have returned from the grounds. The lobster fishery is fairly good.

Clearing up Wreckage

A number of workmen are now engaged clearing away the wreckage at the Callahan Glass building which was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, have boarded up all the ground windows and roped off the sidewalk in front of the building on Duckworth Street for the protection of pedestrians. Should a strong westerly wind strike the city the charred remains of the building would certainly topple over.

A Wonderful Help in Keeping the Complexion Youthful and Clear.

Perhaps you wonder how so many women manage to have a complexion that is always fresh and clear, and how you can make your complexion better. Here's the secret:—

This is the Vanishing Cream that softens the skin and gives it that soft, velvety radiance that we all desire. Nyal's Face Cream is not oily or greasy, and it is readily absorbed by the skin, vanishing without leaving any tell tale gloss on skin. The skin welcomes this pleasant, soothing, cooling cream. It makes dry, tight skin soft and pliable. It makes rough skin firm and smooth, and gradually gives to coarse rough skin a finer, more delicate texture.

Citizens' Committee Report

Firemen's Salaries:
The City pays under the law the sum of thirteen thousand dollars annually towards the maintenance of the Fire Department. The Committee suggests that this be increased to seventeen thousand dollars, a sum sufficient to increase the salaries of the permanent staff of fire-fighters, and to enable the fire-constable to receive an allowance of about twelve dollars a month.

Fire Protection:
The provisions relative to fire protection are most stringent. The Committee suggests that the fire-protected area to include the street; detached or semi-detached houses in certain sections; and the roof-coverings; fire-proof heating apparatus; every stove and heating apparatus in the city; annual sweeping of chimneys by tenants; cleaning of gutters and down-pipes; and the square inches in area; and the Committee has asked for many suggestions in the sections relating to the above and similar subjects, and of the provisions of the Bill, in respect, are unnecessary, and though desirable, are beyond the means. We may save some insurance premiums, but in the pay far more heavily for fire protection.

Unpaid Councillors:
The proposal that the Mayor and Councillors shall serve without pay is not altogether wise. It will tend to place power in the hands of a class which may regard the interests of the wealthier sections of the community as paramount. The Committee regrets that the finances of the City do not at present permit the employing its representatives sufficient to enable them to give all their time to the City. It suggests that the Mayor receive one thousand dollars and the Councillors five hundred dollars each. This will give men of more moderate means an opportunity to take an active part in civic affairs. We believe the suggestion that such men should be able and honestly represent us, and believe that the City could, with the aid of the Mayor and the Councillors, do much to improve the City.

Biennial Elections:
The Committee does not consider that half the Councillors should be elected every two years, but that the present system of election of Councillors every four years, the better of the two systems, is the better. Biennial elections affect business, upset the generally, and cost money.

Loans:
The Committee hopes that the Mayor given the Governor-in-Council, to authorize the City Council to borrow money will not be exercised permissively. It should be made clear in the Act that this power should be used as a real check upon the Council, and that citizens may be made aware, by public announcement, of the purposes to which the money in each case is to be applied.

Repayment of Principal:
The provision that part of the principal shall be paid annually is a good one, as is the limitation of the time in which the loan is to be paid, which ranges from ten to forty years. The whole burden will not, in the case of permanent improvements, be borne by one generation of citizens. The Committee considers these provisions of special importance.

Town Planning:
If the proposed Commission on Town Planning is composed of men who understand the business and combine utility with a sense of the public good, some good may be expected.

Citizens' Committee Report.

Firemen's Salaries:

The City pays under the present law the sum of thirteen thousand dollars annually towards the upkeep of the Fire Department. The Committee suggests that this be raised to seventeen thousand dollars, the difference ($4,000.00), to be devoted solely to increase the salaries of the permanent staff of fire-fighters, each fire-constable to receive an addition of about twelve dollars a month.

Fire Protection:

The provisions relative to Fire Protection are most stringent. Fire breaks; extension of the specially protected area to include Patrick Street; detached or semi-detached houses in certain sections; prohibiting "shingles" and ordinary felt as roof-coverings; fire-proof hearths under every stove and heating apparatus in the city; annual sweeping of chimneys by tenants; chimneys eight inches thick and with flues 96 square inches in area; these are among the matters dealt with. The Committee has asked for many modifications in the sections relating to the above and similar subjects. Some of the provisions of the Bill, in this respect, are unnecessary; some, though desirable, are beyond our means. We may save somewhat on insurance premiums, but in the end pay far more heavily for Fire Protection.

Unpaid Councillors:

The proposal that the Mayor and Councillors shall serve without pay is not altogether wise. It will tend to place power in the hands of a class which may regard the interests of the wealthier sections of the community as paramount. The Committee regrets that the finances of the City do not at present permit its paying its representatives sufficient to enable them to give all their time to the City. It suggests that the Mayor receive one thousand dollars and the Councillors five hundred dollars each. This will give men of more moderate means an opportunity to take a practical part in civic affairs. We resent the suggestion that such men cannot and honestly represent us; but believe that the City could, with justice, demand more from paid than unpaid representatives.

Biennial Elections:

The Committee does not consider that half the Councillors should be elected every two years, but thinks the present system of electing them all every four years the better one. Elections affect business, upset things generally, and cost money.

Loans:

The Committee hopes that the power given the City Council to borrow money will not be exercised perfunctorily. It should be made clear in the Act that this power should be used as a real check upon the Council, and that citizens may be made aware, by public announcement, of the purposes to which the money in each case is to be applied.

Repayment of Principal:

The provision that part of the principal shall be paid annually is a good one, as is the limitation of the time in which the loan is to be paid, which ranges from ten to forty years. The whole burden will not, in the case of permanent improvements, be borne by one generation of citizens. The Committee considers these provisions of special importance.

WOMEN
WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering. It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and all the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered from the above and similar subjects. Some of the provisions of the Bill, in this respect, are unnecessary; some, though desirable, are beyond our means. We may save somewhat on insurance premiums, but in the end pay far more heavily for Fire Protection.

result from their labours. It is hoped that this will not result in increased expenditure.

Boundaries:
The proposed enlargement of the boundaries of the City takes in a large section on the West and includes 500 feet on Waterford Bridge Road west of Sime's Bridge. The Committee hopes that before any money is expended on this extension, more attention will be given the back lanes and thickly populated streets within the present boundaries.

Doctors to Visit Schools:
The Committee heartily approves of the section relating to medical examination of school children, and hopes it will be made effective at once.

Health Officers for City Only:
The Committee hopes that the City will have its own Medical Officer, not engaged in private practice, who shall have supervision of all matters connected with public health and sanitation.

Medical Advice and Medicine for Poor:
The Committee further suggests that the Council be given power to maintain a dispensary where poorer citizens may obtain medicine free, or at cost price, and that arrangements be made to provide such persons with free medical attendance. The present system encourages poor people to conceal infectious and contagious diseases rather than incur the expense of a doctor.

Food Inspection:
The Committee considers that a public abattoir would be self-sustaining, and, further, suggests that the Council be given power to regulate the sale of food products for City consumption.

Weights and Measures:
The Committee recommends that the Inspection of Weights and Measures be placed under Municipal control. Provision might be made to employ the present Inspector. The Council should be empowered to carry out the law effectively and see that not only the instruments by which weighing and measuring are done are themselves correct, but that the actual weight is delivered to the consumer. Special attention should be given to the weighing of Coal and Hay and other heavy commodities, and also to the scales and measures employed by itinerant vendors of Meat, Fish and Vegetables. The Committee strongly recommends that such vendors and all weighmasters of Coal, Hay, Fish, etc., receive licenses on payment of nominal fees, and that every person in charge of large platform scales for the weighing of Coal, Hay, Fish, etc., in large quantities be sworn to fulfil his duties faithfully. On conviction he should lose his license and be suitably punished.

Disposal of Garbage:
The sections relative to the disposal of garbage contain a lot of minute detail which would be better set forth in a By-Law subject to alteration from time to time. The Committee does not see the necessity of an enactment declaring that an ash can should be water tight and of metal; but if details are considered necessary, why not include one to the effect that sanitary carts be plainly numbered so that citizens may easily identify sanitary employees who carelessly handle the ash cans. In this connection the Committee recommends that the Council be empowered to erect an incinerator, and until this becomes feasible that citizens be obliged to burn as much garbage as possible.

City's Electric Plant:

Before the Council shall be given the right to borrow money where-with to build and equip a plant and to supply the City with electric light and power, there should be full publicity of the cost and estimated profits of said undertaking. The estimate of cost and profits should be made by experts who are in no way connected with contractors likely to tender in connection with the erection of said plant. It should be placed beyond all reasonable doubt that the enterprise will prove a success.

Public Library:

A Public Library can hardly be called a luxury at this stage of the world's history, yet, as citizens are doing without what many of us regard as necessities, we would advise that the Council "hasten slowly" before borrowing money for the erection and maintenance thereof. We hope that public spirited citizens will not forget the last few words of the section by which the Council is empowered "to receive donations of the same."

Public Market:

A movement was set on foot in the early part of the last century to establish a Public Market in St. John's, and a large sum of money has, within recent years, been voted for that purpose. The Committee is heartily in favor of a Public Market, and recommends that the Council look into the matter at once, and obtain the powers necessary for establishing the same as soon as the finances of the City permit.

Street Railway Extension:

The Committee recommends the insertion of a Section giving the Council power to make arrangements with the Street Railway Company for the extension of its service to the higher levels, and to other parts of the City which are now being built up. Such arrangement might take the form of a guarantee against loss for a limited number of years, or an amount might be agreed upon to be paid annually, as soon as the City's finances will permit of so doing.

War Time Expenditures:

The Committee strongly recommends that none but the most necessary expenditures be made during the war. The City must be kept in a cleanly state and its inhabitants in health and security. Beyond this the Council should not attempt any extension of its services, and even so important a matter as the laying down of permanent paved sidewalks might be deferred until better times.

City's Representatives in the Legislature:

It is open to question whether the Legislature, during a late session when members will naturally be anxious to attend to their own private business, can give the Bill that those citizens who are so interested in it the attention to detail which is so necessary. The Commissioners were two years drafting the Bill, and the Citizens' Committee over a year revising it. In this connection the Committee regrets that the passing away of Messrs. M. J. Kennedy, and John Dwyer, and the elevation to the bench of the

If You Want Evidence

That Hemorrhoids, or Piles, Can be Completely Cured Read These Letters—Both are Sworn Statements.

Toronto, Ont., June 13th.—Next to personal experience the sworn statements of reliable people is the strongest evidence obtainable. If you have any doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment will positively and completely cure piles, these letters should convince you.

Mr. Samuel Parker, fruit grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public of the same place: "I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding piles and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No, get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba and obtained a complete cure, for I have never been troubled with piles since. I am now seventy years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from piles. My wife has used it for itching skin and obtained complete cure."

Mr. Donald M. Campbell, Campbell's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment with great success for hemorrhoids or piles of fifteen years' standing. After trying all kinds of so-called pile cures, three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment proved me a complete cure. I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and there are no others so good. You may use this letter, if you wish, for the benefit of others who may suffer as I did." Sworn before me, Murdoch Gordon Campbell, J.P., in the County and for Interspersed County. If you would like to try Dr. Chase's Ointment at our expense, send a two cent stamp to pay postage and we shall mail you a sample free. Full size box 60 cents, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Hon. J. M. Kent have caused vacancies in the representation of the city which have not been filled. We can only, however, trust that our legislature of both Houses—most of whom are citizens of St. John's—will give the Bill and proposed amendments that careful consideration which the importance of the matters dealt with demands.

Appreciation:

The Committee desires to place on record its appreciation of the help and assistance rendered by the following: The Premier, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Auditor General, and the members of the Joint Select Commission of the Legislature, as well as those of the deputation from the Board of Civic Commissioners. While not in agreement with the members of the Civic Commission in all matters, the Committee recognizes the difficulty of their task, and fully appreciates all that they have so freely given of time and trouble for the welfare of the City.

Lastly the Committee desires to thank the Press of the City for many favors and especially those newspapers whose reporters have so assiduously followed its discussions and so well reported them.

Changes in Detail:

Accompanying, and forming part of this memorandum, are notes extracted from the Minute Book of the Committee. These minutes show in detail the changes which the Committee desires should be made in the Bill. Besides the changes in principle, such as those set forth above, there are many verbal alterations. These are suggested in order either to make the Act work more smoothly, or to change the method where the Committee agrees with the Civic Commissioners in the principle.

Conclusion:

In concluding its labours the Committee desires me to express its earnest wish that the Act, thus amended, may prove a means of improving the health and increasing the safety and happiness of the inhabitants of this, the oldest capital city in the self-governing British Dominions beyond the Seas. Here, that Greater Britain was formerly called into being. It is the proud privilege and duty of the citizens of St. John's to maintain the principles of self-government, of justice and of freedom, which form the basis of that Constitution which is their birthright. Some of our fellow citizens have given their lives for these principles; others are even now fighting to uphold them. Let us, who cannot by force and arms maintain the rights and privileges which are our heritage, do all in our power that these be not diminished. This we can help do by insisting that just and reasonable laws be promulgated and with justice and fairness enforced. WARWICK SMITH, Secretary Citizens' Committee on the Municipal Bill.

A THIN EXCUSE!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are some people who seem to place their hopes of Heaven in other people's failure to keep true to ideals. A queer delusion, isn't it? And to my mind about as safe as a cardboard box would be for a safety vault. Perhaps you don't at once recognize the type I mean.

I mean the sort of person who explains his failure to become a Christian by pointing to some of the people who profess to be Christians and don't do the name any honor.

"What do I want to belong to the Church for?" he will say. "Look at Mr. M. Did you ever see a meaner skinflint? And he's a deacon. No thank you. I've no use for such hypocrisy."

She might be glad if she didn't gossip. Or a woman will say, "When I hear some of those Ladies Aid women gossiping I'm glad I don't belong to any Church."

As if that were anything to boast about. She might well be glad if she didn't gossip, but she probably does. Only she feels she has a license to do so because she has never been willing to place the restraint of a public pledge to higher ideals upon herself.

Not to fall below ideals because you haven't any is no particular credit.

That's No Reason You Shouldn't Try. Because people who profess to be Christians aren't all they should be, doesn't justify you one bit for being afraid to even try. And it is furthermore greatly to your discredit to persistently judge any movement by those who disgrace it instead of those who honor it.

In my morning paper the other day I noticed that the Executive Committee of the Russian revolution posted a proclamation condemning acts of violence supposed to be committed by revolutionists. "Only madmen or enemies of national liberty are capable of such revolting acts which might compromise the Russian revolution," said the placard, and went on to appeal to the people to prevent a repetition of such acts, remembering that the high ideals for which they stand might be judged by them.

Why Not Judge The Cause By Those Who Honor It.

Every cause from Christianity down has within its ranks those who disgrace it in one way or another. To judge the cause by these few is like judging a beautiful garden by a few weeds.

And to think that you are excused from pledging yourself to the ideals for which any great movement stands, because some who have pledged themselves fail, is the pettiest and most childish form of self blind-folding.

SNAKES.

The snake is a successful form of sudden death which descended from the Garden of Eden after causing a family row which has never been improved upon to any extent since. There are 12,718 different varieties of snakes, most of which leave a very distinct footprint upon the human anatomy when investigated at close range.

The most deadly snake known to the medical profession is the cobra. Nobody knows who first discovered the cobra, as he did not live long enough to write it up. The cobra is a small, agile reptile which grows in the jungles of India and attacks man or beast in a noiseless and efficient manner. The elephant hunter who has been bitten by a middle-aged cobra which is in a despondent frame of mind, will not have to worry about the next stop for dinner unless he is protected by six-ply leather leggings and a copious supply of hard liquor.

The garter snake is always popping out of a rose bush.

The box constrictor is a well-developed snake with the chest expansion of a champion swimmer taking an examination for life insurance. This reptile is not equipped with a stinger, but prefers to wrap itself around its victim and interrupt his breathing for a day or two. The box constrictor is a dainty eater, seldom swallowing anything smaller than a milk cow, after which it curls up and sleeps until the following spring. When in this state it can be attacked with impunity with a repeating rifle at a distance of 2,000 yards.

The most venomous American snake is the rattlesnake, which is the only musical member of the family. Before landing on the biceps of a visiting guest this snake shakes its rattle in a shrill, menacing tone and then advances with rapid footsteps on its tail. When the rattlesnake gets a firm hold on somebody who is not armored from the hips down, he will know that something unexpected has happened without waiting for the evening edition.

"The garter snake is perhaps the most unpopular of our domestic animals, as he usually makes his home in the flower garden and is always popping out of a rose bush with his glittering red tongue working on all four cylinders. The garter snake cannot bite and destroys many injurious insects, but he is hunted down with great industry and a hoe, while the poodle dog, which destroys nothing but enamel, is treated with the utmost respect. This teaches us that life is full of injustice.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me what I should do with my wraps when entering a restaurant. I have just moved to the city and this experience is new to me," inquired Thelma.

"A woman may leave her wrap in the cloak room, or if it is a very small one, she may prefer to keep it around her shoulders while at the table. She does not remove her hat. At the table she unties her veil, if she wears one, or merely pushes it off her face and readjusts it at the conclusion of the meal. Her gloves she takes off directly after she has seated herself and replaces them before rising from the table." were detailed directions given her by her sophisticated cousin.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. may 23, 17

RESPONSIBILITY.

Oh, Kaiser Bill, with hands so red, you cannot shift your load of blame; you were not driven, forced or led—you broke your way into the game. There would have been no war, Red Bill, no other monarch sought a fray, but you were hot with lust to kill, and drank a flagon to "The Day." Had you but said, "Let war talk cease," no legions would have marched to die, and we would see the dove of peace, where now the battle pennons fly. But you for carnage were athirst, and "War Lord" dreams disturbed your sleep, and now your butcher's name is cursed of whoever soldiers' widows weep. As horror mounts on horror's head, and famine makes your people thin, you wish your hands were not so red, and while that your's is not the sin. But all the weary world is bored when you endeavour to explain that you were loath to take the sword, and strove for peace, and strove in vain. Your built your war machine to kill, you built your war machine to kill, wrecked; admit the truth, oh, Bloody Bill, and gain some fragments of respect.

WILT MASON

If the little one will not eat her porridge, do not force her to consume it against her will. Very likely the resentment in such a case would cause a dangerous state of indigestion and to the child harm. This is an opportunity to use diplomacy. Get the porridge bowl that has upon the inside some pretty or quaint little figures that will be covered with the porridge when the bowl is filled. Name the figures so that when the little one decides that she does not wish to finish her porridge she can be induced to do so because little Billy and Susie, Tower or Naira (according to what the figures may be) may be able to get a clear space enough to look at their small-mistress.

Your Boys and Girls.

Another device when a child does not wish to drink the milk that is necessary for its health's sake is to play "soda fountain." This is done by allowing the child to drink the milk through a straw. Not only will it be fun to drink the milk but the milk will be taken in such small quantities that there will be no danger of indigestion.

BRITISH RECRUITS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 12. The first contingent of British recruits gathered in the City for Overseas duty, 2,000 strong, left last night for Canadian training camps. Before their departure they were told something of a British soldier's duties by General W. A. White, Chief British Recruiting Officer, who addressed them at a luncheon.

THE LOSS OF THE NJORD.

ST. PIERRE, Mia., June 12. The burning of the British steamer Njord, coal laden, was reported yesterday when her captain, Jos. Turner and crew were landed here by the British sloop, E. R. Walters. The Njord was bound from Sydney for St. John's, N.F. She was abandoned 40 miles east by north of this Island.

REFUSE TO TAKE SOCIALISTS TO RUSSIA.

LONDON, June 12. The holding up of the Socialist labor delegation to Russia by the Seamen and Firemen's Union is causing a good deal of comment and occupies considerable space in the papers. There is a sharp conflict of opinion, and Ramsay MacDonald and Frederick W. Jowett, the heads of the Delegation, have received strong support from the Glasgow Trades Council. The Trades Council has telegraphed to the Premier, the Shipping Controller, the Foreign Minister and the Labor Party protesting against the hold up of the delegation and saying among other things "the action of the Seamen's Union may cause labor unrest." Meetings were held throughout Glasgow last evening at which the attitude of the Council was endorsed. Several morning papers confirm the report that MacDonald and Jowett have signed a guarantee that they would insist upon restitution to Allied merchant seamen for murder and destruction committed by German submarines. The papers say, however, that the labor delegates opponents declare their action has come too late. It is reported, but cannot be confirmed, that MacDonald and Jowett have gone to another port. The Union has ordered a strict watch on all harbors. Another rumor is that the delegates will cross the North Sea in an airplane.

KING CONSTANTINE ARBITRATES IN FAVOR OF SON.

ATHENS, June 12. King Constantine has abdicated in favor of his son, Prince Alexander. Alexander, the new King, is the second son of the Monarch who has just abdicated. The Crown Prince was Prince George who was born on July 19, 1890. Prince Alexander was born August 1st, 1895. He was a captain in the first Regiment of Artillery in the Greek Army.

BRITISH MAKE ANOTHER ADVANCE.

LONDON, June 12. Another advance of the British forces on a front of nearly two miles east and northeast of Messines and the capture of the village of Gaspard is reported in a British official statement issued to-night. The communication says: Our troops gained further ground to-day east and northeast of Messines, on a front of nearly two miles, and occupied the hamlet of Gaspard. We advanced our line slightly early this morning astride the Souchez River, and captured 17 prisoners and three machine guns. The enemy's artillery has shown considerable activity during the day northeast of Gouzeaucourt, north of the Scarpe and in the neighbourhood of Lens and Ypres. Our airplanes were active yesterday, although weather conditions were not favorable, and much useful work was done. One of our machines is missing.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, June 12. The official statement issued to-day by the Russian War Department says: Western Front—Our batteries shelled the village of Merahki, three miles north of Tveretsch, and caused a big fire. The military staff of the enemy quartered there fled, pursued by artillery fire. Near the village of Nikovitchi southwest of Pinsk our artillery successfully shelled assembly waggon, and explosions were heard. On the rest of this front there were fusillades in certain sectors.

BELGIAN CIVILIANS DIE OF STARVATION.

HAVRE, June 12. The death by starvation within 3 months of 500 interred Belgian civilians in Germany, is reported in a semi-official report given out here to-day. According to information received by the Belgian Minister of War, the statement says, Belgian civilians interred in the German camp near Lunenburg refused to work. Out of the 2,000 interred, 500 died of starvation in three months. The condition of the survivors is described as pitiful.

GRAVE CRISIS IN GREECE.

LONDON, June 12. Belated despatches from Reuter's correspondents at Athens were received in London to-day, and report the visit by Senator Jonnart, of France, to Salonika, and indicates he was expected later to visit Athens. Senator Jonnart represents France, England and Russia as High Commissioner of the Powers protecting Greece. The purpose of his trip to Athens, as stated in the despatches, was to make final diplomatic efforts to establish an understanding with the Royalists in Greece. The messages seem to show that Greece is now passing through a grave crisis. The possible failure of Senator Jonnart's mission is hinted at.

MERCHANT MARINE.

NEW YORK, June 12. An Associated Press despatch from an Atlantic port to-day says: Eleven large steamers aggregating 103,000 tons, six of them being under the American flag with a total tonnage of 77,274 tons reached here within the last day or two, as announced by the International Mercantile Marine, owners of the ships. Among them was the Minnesota, 20,518 tons, being the largest merchant ship afloat under the Stars and Stripes. The other American ships were the St. Louis, St. Paul, Philadelphia, Manchuria and Finland. The largest of the eleven arrivals was the British ship Justicia, a new vessel, 32,234 tons. She is the biggest steamer to come into port in this country it is stated, since the Olympic left in 1914. Other British ships belonging to the company to arrive were the Adriatic, Celtic, Raphael and Glenfield.

CONSIDERING CONSCRIPTION.

OTTAWA, June 12. The Liberals held a lengthy caucus on the conscription Bill to-day, and adjourned until later in the week. In the meantime a committee will prepare a resolution recommending to caucus a course it believes the party should take on the measure. It is understood considerable diversity of opinion was voiced on the Borden Bill the chief opposition, of course, coming from the Quebec wing of the party. The debate in the House is expected to begin about Thursday.

ANOTHER NORWEGIAN SUNK.

CHRISTIANIA, June 12. The Norwegian barque Deveron, 1,362 tons, has been sunk, and four men lost including one Canadian. The captain and another man were wounded.

REDMOND'S DEATH.

LONDON, June 12. According to official details supplied to his relatives the late William Redmond who was killed in action had a post with a staff division which justified his remaining at headquarters. Mr. Redmond earnestly insisted that it was his wish to accompany his regiment in the advance and the General reluctantly consented. Redmond was leading his men in an attack in Wytchaeve Wood when he was wounded; he did not recover consciousness and died a few hours later in an Ulster Field Hospital. His body was taken to a little village of Leoc where it was buried Saturday at the urgent request of the Nuns in a private garden of their convent. The funeral service was conducted by Chaplains of the Ulster and Irish Divisions. The grave was decorated with flowers by children of the village and the volley fired over it by a mixed company from Ulster and Irish Divisions.

REGRET BYNG'S RETIREMENT.

OTTAWA, June 12. The Governor-General has sent General Sir Julian Byng a message of regret that his association with Canada's forces had terminated.

LLOYD GEORGE ON PROFIT MAKING.

LONDON, June 12. Addressing the newly appointed Commissioners of Labor at their residence to-day, Premier Lloyd George announced that he had already started a searching investigation on the subject of profit making and hoped shortly to make proposals directed to substantially reduce the cost of some of the necessities of life. Referring to the disorders and measures for the remedying of the labor unrest, the Premier said the Government was anxious, not only that the Commission investigate the causes of unrest, but that they make their own recommendations as to the best way of dealing with the question. He hoped that they would be able to make their reports by the first week in July.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

CONSTANTINE'S ABDICATION.

ATHENS, To-Day. The fall of Constantine, King of the Hellenes, has come in response to the demand of the protecting Powers, France, Britain and Russia. He abdicated to-day in favor of his second son, Prince Alexander. This climax of affairs in Greece was brought about through the agency of the French Senator, M. Jonnart, who has held posts in several French Cabinets and who arrived in Athens only a day or two ago on a special mission as the representative of the Entente. Jonnart had previously visited Saloniki and other points and he lost no time in getting into conference with the Greek Premier, Alexander Zaimis. The demands of the Powers respecting the abdication of King Constantine also specifically eliminated Crown Prince George as his successor. The Crown Prince being included among those Greeks in official life who were considered strongly pro-German. Both the former King and Prince George, it was announced to-day by Premier Zaimis, intend to leave the country immediately. It is reported that they will embark on British warships and proceed to Switzerland by way of Italy. It is presumed that Prince Alexander will take up his king's duties with full acceptance of the ideas which the protecting Powers desire to be put into effect by the Government of Greece during the present war.

AT THE HOUSE.

Though another brief sitting, there was more progress made at the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon than any other day since the opening of Parliament. The despatch of business being materially facilitated by the Opposition ranks. Petitions were presented by Mr. Cliff and Mr. Walsh on various public matters. Notices of questions were given by Mr. Halfyard, Mr. Abbott and Mr. Grimes, the latter asking the amount paid the compiler of the war news at the Postal Telegraphs Department from January 1st, 1916, to January 1st, 1917. The Colonial Secretary asked leave to introduce a Bill respecting the General Hospital. Some fifteen questions on the order paper were asked by Mr. Cliff and Mr. Coakley. Amongst them were "What amount $151,000 to Postal Telegraph Department at the end of June last for messages?" and "To whom was $1,250.00 paid for signing bonds last year?" None of the fifteen questions were answered and in each case the proverbial reply was given: "being prepared."

The second reading of Bill authorizing the keeping in force for a further period a Volunteer Force in this Colony was postponed to Monday next. The second reading of Bill respecting Bonds issued under the Loan Act, 1916, was deferred, as was also the Woolen Mills Bill. The Bill respecting the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation was read a second time. The Finance Minister gave notice that he would move the House into Committee on Supply this afternoon when the Estimates will be brought down. The House then adjourned.

a.m. that the Premier communicated to the Commission of the Allied Powers the King's answer in the following letter: "Minister and High Commissioner of France, Great Britain and Russia. Having demanded by your note of yesterday the abdication of His Majesty King Constantine and the nomination of his successor, the undersigned Premier and Foreign Minister has the honor to inform Your Excellency that His Majesty the King, ever solicitous for the interests of Greece, has decided to leave the country with the Prince Royal and nominates Prince Alexander as his successor. (Sgd.) Zaimis." Prior to the announcement of the King's decision, many Greeks loyal to the Crown gathered for the protection of the Sovereign. On Monday night 2,000 reservists formed a cordon around the Palace in his defence, if that should be necessary, and a delegation headed by a naval commander went to Constantine and pledged the devotion of the army and people to his cause. The King's only reply was an appeal that they should remain calm. All efforts of agitators to start a manifestation failed and the army officers announced their intention to obey the order of the Government to take no part in any demonstrations and to maintain peace. The agitators were still attempting to operate in the streets of Athens to-day, but there were no disorders and everything leads to the belief that there will be none.

CONSERVATIVE ENGLAND.

LONDON, To-Day. The Commons, acting as Committee on the Franchise Reform Bill, or as it is officially known, "The Representation of the People Bill," to-day decided against the principle of proportional representation by 149 to 141 votes. The question may be considered at a subsequent stage.

TO CONTROL U. S. IMPORTS.

WASHINGTON, To-Day. Control of exports was given to the Government to-day when the Senate finally approved against the Administration Espionage Bill. With the embargo clause measure now sent to the President, his signature puts into effect the despatch of business by which it is intended to stop supplies from entering Germany through neutral countries. The passage of the Bill removes to a great extent the necessity of a British blockade, since the United States, the originator of most of the exports that reach neutral ports, will be in a position with the aid of British machinery established during three years of war, to see that the countries are supplied with enough of food and materials for their own needs.

The Greater Enemy!

In pre-historic ages man waged a stubborn fight with beasts ten times his size and won the right to till the soil and so provide the food necessary to his existence. To-day man may till the soil without fear of death, but he does not always reap the fruits of his labor, THE GREATER ENEMY contests his right to the harvest and frequently wins.

This is no fairy story but a plain statement of things as they are. YOU set a plot of cabbage last year—how many heads did you get? How many plants were cut down by cut worms and bugs?

What are you going to do about it THIS year—feed 'em up again or kill them with LARVACIDE? Come down and talk it over.

Pay the Firemen.

Editor Evening Telegram. Sir—On all sides can be heard the greatest praise for the wonderful work performed by our gallant fire-fighters at the big conflagration on Sunday last. But, Mr. Editor, I do not intend to occupy space in your valuable paper in pouring forth praise on the firemen, praise of them counts but little in these times of high prices for food and clothing, increased house rents, etc., etc. What I do want is to appeal once more for an increase of pay for those men. Surely we ought to be well ashamed of ourselves to lavish cheap praise on them from the mouth out, and then be content to let them eke out an existence on the miserable pay of forty dollars and eighty cents a month.

Let the House now in session act honestly with these men and give them a chance to live. The time has come for the members representing St. John's East and West, to show if they really have that high regard for the firemen that we hear so much of when a big fire occurs. Do not wait till another fire starts to get sympathetic. Do it now and the people will appreciate your honesty just as much as the firemen will, for the people want to see those brave men treated right and apart from the justice of it no more popular movement can be made than to give our firemen a decent substantial increase in their salaries.

Yours etc.,
VOLUNTEER.

HAD CLOSE CALL.—Mr. P. Morrissey, a workman of the East End, who has a record for narrow escapes, came within an ace of being killed yesterday while working along the water front. A large stand used for resting skids on, of several hundred pounds weight, fell from the rail of a steamer into a barge in which Morrissey was. It dropped beside him, but did not strike him.
