SCHOLL Eases the Feet

The Old Marquis

The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XXX.

"Yes!" he said, coming and standing beside her, his hands clasped behind his back, his keen eyes resting on her watchfully.

"What have I done—how offended you?" For I see that you are angry with me."

"Your discernment is at fault; I am not angry with you, as you term it," was the cold retort. "We are angry only with those we respect or esteem. I have neither respect nor esteem for you, Mr. Revel."

He was silent for a moment—his acute brain was at work. What had happened to rouse her like this?

"Go on, please. Remember that my love is long-suffering and patient. I warn you that you can not try to test it, however severely, without discovering that it is steadfast and unyielding."

"Your love!" she echoed, leaning forward for a moment, then sinking back. "Do not profane the word. Love can not exist in the heart of a traitor."

His face paled and his lips twitched. "Do not call me that," he said, in a low, still voice. "If I am a traitor, I have not betrayed you."

"Yes! yes! a thousand times, yes!" she exclaimed; then she restrained herself. "Mr. Revel—"

"Why not call me Clifford; you will do so presently," he said, gently, with incisive conviction.

"Never!" she retorted, with a pant. "Never! Listen to me, and as this is the last time you will have the opportunity, listen attentively. Some time since you made me an offer of your hand—"

"My heart was already yours," he murmured.

She smiled scornfully. "Of your hand. You appealed not to my heart, but to my ambition, and knowing you for what you are, an unscrupulous adventurer and schemer, I—I accepted on one condition; that you should be the Marquis of Farintosh."

"True," he said, quietly. "And I was content."

"I am glad, for your sake," she said, with bitter irony, "that the condition satisfied you; you will be all the more ready to admit that you have no claim upon my consideration, because that condition can never be fulfilled."

"Why not?" he asked, quite calmly.

looking down at her with his keen, watchful eyes.

"Because—" she began. Then she paused, and leaning forward, fixed her dark, magnificent eyes upon him.

"Because I have seen Lord Fane, who stands between you and the title you offered me!"

"Yes!" he said, still quite calmly. "Yes!" she said, "And the girl he loves, Lela Temple!"

"Yes," he repeated as calmly as before.

She smiled with fierce scorn. "And I know what you have hidden from me, what, like a coward and a cheat, you have kept secret."

"What is this you know?" he asked, his eyes fixed on hers.

"I know that they are married!" she hissed.

He looked at her in silence, a strange light in his eyes.

She waited a second, then she laughed with a scorn that should have cut him to the quick.

"They are married, and you know it. You betrayed me—and yourself! Into the air go all your hysterical boasts and vanities. You have no chance of becoming the marquis, or the heir to the marquise, so I cast you off!"

Still he remained silent.

"You must feel small and mean," she went on, fiercely, torturing herself while she thought she was torturing him—"you, who made so sure of reaching your ambition; you, who thought it so easy to make a tool and dupe of the man who stood between you and all your desire, all you would have purchased me with! You are the tool and dupe; you have been beaten by the man you sought to cheat! I will have no tool or dupe for a husband! I recall—no, I abide by my promise—and I cast you off now and forever!" and, with a gesture of infinite scorn, she threw out her splendid arms as if she were discarding some worthless, hateful object.

He stood pale, white to the lips. Her scorn cut him to the heart. With all his baseness, he loved her as passionately, as truly, as a better man might have done, and her words cut into his soul.

"Well?" she demanded. "What have you to say? Nothing? Then relieve me of your presence. Why do you stand there?"

"Because I am thinking," he said, calmly, his voice low but clear as the ring of silver on stone. "Because I am weighing in my mind the good and the evil of the knowledge which your scorn almost goods me to give you, Edith—"

"Not that name, please—Miss Drayton—Mr. Revel."

"Edith," he said, calmly, as if she had not spoken, "I asked you to trust me. I ask you still. For your own sake, trust me. Do not force me to speak. I can clear away the mist that seems so impenetrable to you, but I would rather not do so. For your sake I would wish that in the future you might be able to say to your heart, 'I knew nothing of this. With him, and him alone—meaning myself—rests this thing.' Do not force me to tell you, Edith. Trust me, only trust me to the end."

"So far as I am concerned, the end has come," she said, icily. "By Lord Edgar's marriage you are vanquished; acknowledge that you are beaten, and leave me; I will never see you again after to-night."

"Edith, do not force me to explain. Though appearances seem against my success, do not believe them. Put faith in me," he said, with deep earnestness.

"Lord Edgar is married. You stand no chance of being the marquis. I promised to marry the Marquis of Farintosh, not Mr. Clifford Revel. Go, please!"

"Good," he said; "then I take it that you insist upon my speaking. Remember—remember after I have spoken, that I would fain have kept this from you, that I would gladly have spared your innocence—I bid you remember this, Edith."

"I care nothing for your heroics; the fact is enough. Lord Edgar and Lela Temple are married."

He drew nearer, so near that his breath stirred her hair.

"No," he whispered, "Lord Edgar and Lela Temple are not married."

She started, then she laughed scornfully.

"You forget that I saw them together this afternoon, and that he confessed it to me."

"I care not where you saw them, or what he confessed. Lord Edgar and Lela Temple are not married."

She thought of the horse Assassin

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magical Corns and calluses lift right off—Doesn't hurt a bit

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

Something in his tone rather than his words startled her.

She sat upright and looked at him. Her heart gave a great leap. Her soul seemed struggling from the darkness of despair into the realms of wild hope.

"Not—married!" she echoed.

"No," he whispered.

"But"—she murmured, faintly. He smiled.

"They are not married. Do you wish me to explain? I will do so. Remember, you forced me! There are false marriages and true, legal marriages and illegal. This marriage of Edgar and Lela's took place in his rooms, and all the formalities were left to my arranging; all left to me. Ah! you see?" for she had turned, ghastly white, and had sunk back in her chair with a shudder.

"All left to me! I arranged their meeting, the hour of the marriage ceremony, found the clergyman. What! Do you think that I would make them man and wife? Build up a barrier between myself and the marquise, between you and me? No! I bribed a penniless wretch to play the part of parson, and so reduced the ceremony, which satisfied him and her, to an elaborate farce! No! There is no Lady Fane! And Lord Edgar and Lela Temple are not married!"

For a full moment she was silent. She leaned back in the chair motionless, apparently lifeless, then she drew a long breath, and the word "hideous!" passed her white lips.

He smiled.

"Hideous? Yes, it would have been hideous for me if a real marriage had taken place. Hideous, too hideous! For it would have wrecked my whole life, have destroyed my only chance of happiness in this world! And who am I that I should do that? I am not an angel, but a man! I prize your love above wealth and station and honor. I would sacrifice myself for it without a murmur; why should I not sacrifice them? I have done it. All innocently they think that they are man and wife, while you and I know them to be—"

"Stop!" she gasped. "Oh, Heaven! are you man or devil?"

"Whoever you choose to make me!" he retorted, fiercely. "I told you that nothing should stop me, nothing should come between you and me. There is no crime that I would not commit to make you mine. I—I alone have planned this and brought it to a successful conclusion. I would have hidden it from you until the time came when you must have known, but you forced my hand. You know the truth now. What will you do?"

"What should she do? That was the question. Storm-beaten, by a passion he never guessed at or conjectured, she lay back in the chair prostrate. Horror at his crime and its victims contended in her bosom with an awful gladness at the thought that Lord Edgar was still unmarried—still within her reach. She loathed the sin and the crime, yet clung to the consequences.

"You see," he said, "I have proved that I was in earnest. There is no marriage between them. He may go on for years in the belief that there is. He may die—"

She thought of the horse Assassin

which he had engaged to ride, and shuddered.

"He may die, and then what will there be between me and the marquise? Ah, Edith, look at me! Do not turn from me! For your sake I have done this—for your sake I would wade through any mire of sin and crime! Think—think for one moment, and recall, if you can, any man who would, who has done more for you than I have, or would do!"

—In his intense emotion he knelt at her feet as abject a slave, for all his intellect and genius, as the lad Lord Claxton.

With a deep sigh, she extended her hand.

"So be it," she said. "You have proved your sincerity. They are not married? You will swear that?"

"I will swear it," he said. "I tell you the ceremony was a mere mockery. The clergyman was my hired tool. There is at present nothing between you and the marquise but Lord Edgar, and he—"

He smiled.

"And he," she said, faintly, "he rides Assassin for the Badmore race."

CHAPTER XXXI. IN SWEET CONTENT.

"AND is this as good as The Moorhen?" asked Lord Edgar, bending over her and taking a morning kiss, as she sat at the breakfast-table in the Albany rooms. Fresh and beautiful she looked as a daisy, in her morning robe of pale sateen, the faint bloom of health on her cheeks, the light of happiness in her eyes. "Is it as good, or do you miss the river and the woods, my darling? Do you pine for the cackling of the hens and the crowing of that tremendous old cock who used to perch on the stable-gate and yell by the hour together? Are you quite as happy? If not—"

"If not, what?" she demanded, putting up her white, soft hands and drawing his face down to hers. "If not, you would go back to Pangley, or to anywhere else on the face of the globe, I suppose, sir?"

"Certainly," he said, decisively; "anywhere to keep that smile on those lips of mine—by which I mean yours—anything or anywhere, so that you are happy, Lela!"

"Then there is no need to go back to Pangley," she said, "for I am just as happy here; I don't know that I am not happier. I fell in love with these rooms directly I saw them," and she looked around; "and do you know what I thought, sir?"

"No; something tremendously worth knowing, I'll be bound," he said, taking his cup of coffee and seating himself with an air of perfect contentment and lazy enjoyment. "What was it?"

"Why, that they were miles too good for a bachelor; they are too pretty, miles—there! I've said that twice! What would grandpa say if he heard it? I don't know how it is, but I seem to have caught all your slang words, Edgar," with a smiling gravity of reproach. "It is a pity you have not taught me something useful! But as to that, I have quite degenerated! I have done absolutely nothing in the shape of work since—we were married! But I mean to begin to-day. I am going to dust the room. I want you to buy me a little feather-brush such as I used to have at the Cloisters."

BRITISH REPUBLIC.

COLOGNE, June 6. Dorten, President of the new British Republic, has telegraphed the commander of the British forces of occupation, announcing the formation of a republic and repudiating any desire to evade a "just share in reparation of war damages." RHINISH REPUBLIC.

COLOGNE, June 6. Dorten, President of the new Rhinish Republic, has telegraphed the commander of the British forces of occupation, announcing the formation of a republic and repudiating any desire to evade a "just share in reparation of war damages." He appeals to the Entente Powers to protect the new State against "inevitable revenge from Prussian militarism."

U.S. SOLDIERS WITHDRAWING. ARCHANGEL, June 6. According to revised arrangements all American forces will be withdrawn from the North Russian front and will be ready for sailing the last of June.

REPORT MANY MURDERS.

PARIS, June 5. Within the last few months at least ten citizens have been killed in Ireland by soldiers or constables under circumstances found by coroners' juries to have been wilful murder. This charge is made in a report on observations made in Ireland by Walsh, Ryan and Dunne, delegates of Irish societies in America. The report made public to-night was sent to Wilson along with the demand that the peace conference investigate Irish questions.

UNABLE TO PAY.

LONDON, June 7. Germany's inability to meet the financial demands of the peace terms and inability of the Allies to make her pay are insisted in by Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, the German Minister of Finance, in an interview telegraphed by the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail. Dr. Dernburg reiterated his recent declaration that Germany will not sign the terms as presented.

CALLS FOR MORE SOLDIERS.

WASHINGTON, June 8. Declaring that the Mexican situation is so critical that a larger force of troops on the border is necessary to protect lives and property of citizens, Governor Hobby of Texas, has requested Secretary Baker to call into and Brigades of Texas Cavalry and to mobilize them at a convenient point.

DRIVING THE BOLSHEVISTS.

COPENHAGEN, June 8. The Estonians are reported to have taken Sauswega in Southern Livonia. They have begun to drive the Bolshevik in the direction of Kreuthburg, 70 miles southeast of Riga. The Bolsheviks are fleeing in panic from Central Livonia to avoid being surrounded.

REFUSED TO OBEY ORDERS.

PLYMOUTH, June 8. Fifteen hundred British troops, of General Allenby's force in Egypt and Palestine, who returned here to-night after having served at Gallipoli and Mesopotamia and the Balkans, refused to enter for an isolation camp. The order was given because of six cases of snailpox having been discovered during the voyage to England. The soldiers who had contracted left the camp, and the others refused to enter. The authorities finally gave way, and the men went to demobilization centres instead of the isolation camp.

PEASANTS DEFEATED.

LONDON, June 7. Armed peasants, who revolted against the Hungarian Communist Government and Hungarian troops, have been engaged in heavy fighting in western Hungary, which resulted in the defeat of the peasants, an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Vienna says.

LONDON, June 7. Having held up the Bolshevik counter offensive along the Gatchina railway, the Estonians, according to an official communication, have commenced an advance in the direction of Kreuzburg, but are being hampered by German Government troops which cut the railway bridge between Wolden and Ramoth.

WILL DO HIS DUTY.

WINNIPEG, June 7. Mayor Charles F. Gray faced a heckling crowd of strikers and sympathizers to-day at Victoria Park and told the mass meeting that the city would not recede one inch from its determination to employ every legitimate means to maintain law and order, to feed all citizens and to combat the sympathetic strike of Municipal employees. Gray told the strikers that he would be "a spineless pup" if he acted otherwise.

PRESENTED WITH LOVING CUP.

LONDON, June 7. At the Canadian Officers' Club last night, the Prince of Wales received the Loving Cup, subscribed for by members of the Canadian Corps during the stay of His Royal Highness with the Corps in France. Sir John Leigh presided, the gift being made by General Sir Arthur Currie. The Prince, in acknowledgment, assured the gathering that he would go west in his forthcoming visit to your Dominion. "None of us enjoyed the war itself," said His Royal Highness, "but we enjoyed the last five weeks because we knew we had them (the Germans) on the run." (Cheers and laughter.)

THE NEW AMBASSADOR.

LONDON, June 8. The "Times," under a double headed lead, fore-shadowed the appointment of Herbert A. L. Fisher, President of the Board of Education, as British Ambassador at Washington.

GOT FOUR MONTHS.

DUBLIN, June 8. Laurence Ginnell, Sinn Fein member of the House of Commons for West Heath, was to-day sentenced to four months' imprisonment for inciting disaffection and boycotting of the police in a speech. Several persons were wounded in the clash between the troops and those attending the meeting.

GETTING READY FOR HOME.

PARIS, June 8. President Wilson, it is now regarded as probable, will leave France for the United States within ten days or two weeks.

THE KNOCKING WIFE.

A wife's not worth the sock she's knitting, she lacks all dignity and charm, who goes around the town admitting her husband is a false alarm. But yesterday I heard a lady complaining of her wedded state; she sat beneath an elm tree shady, and railed and grumbled at her fate. She said, "Alas, when I was married I left my mascot in the lurch; I picked a lemon when I carried my veil and bridal wreath to church. I cuss my luck in Greek and Latin; I might have had a better man, who would have bought me silk and satin, equipped me with a fine sedan. But I was young and Fate was yellow, I'd only lived through eighteen June's; and so I gathered in a fellow who barely earns enough for prunes." She grumbles as she does her hemmin', she grouches as she kicks the cat; it was the husband drew the lemon—her line of talk is proof of that. The wife who's worth the rags she's wearing won't call her hub an also ran; though he is punk, she still is swearing she harvested the finest man. He may be trifling as a poet, as worthless as a can of soup; but she won't let the neighbors know it, won't let the news leak from her coop. She may pull out his whiskers hoary, and press hot fatrons on his head; but ere she'd tell her friends the story, she'd see herself among the dead.

Scapa Flow.

Known In Naval Circles as the "Last Place on Earth."

Scapa is known by navy men as "the last place on earth"—but it is really only in the midst of winter that this title is deserved. Then there are only about seven hours of daylight, and, owing to the rough seas, communication with the shore more or less ceases.

THE NEW AMBASSADOR.

LONDON, June 8. The "Times," under a double headed lead, fore-shadowed the appointment of Herbert A. L. Fisher, President of the Board of Education, as British Ambassador at Washington.

GOT FOUR MONTHS.

DUBLIN, June 8. Laurence Ginnell, Sinn Fein mem-

perhaps nicely ready for next year's seed. In the early days of the war men were much inconvenienced by having nowhere to shop, but in 1915 the steamship Borodino was chartered by the Junior Army and Navy Stores, who started a floating branch of their establishment at Scapa. This ship indeed came as a blessing to the fleet, for she contained a laundry and a hairdressing saloon, and in the shop were to be purchased all manner of articles and luxuries which help to comfort those who "go down to the sea in ships."

The after-hold of the steamship Gourko, a provision-ship, and sister of the Borodino, was early in 1916 turned into a theatre, so that while in the daytime the Gourko carried on provisioning the fleet, at night she was able to lay alongside any warship requiring accommodation for a concert.

Our surgeons will always have a good word for Scapa; its air is most bracing, and with the climate slightly warmed by the Gulf Stream, it might almost be called a health resort.

A Different Opinion.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—I read and smiled at a letter from the pen of Mr. S. E. Garland, headed "Eat More Whole Meal," under date of 9th inst.
 Mr. Garland first deals with brown sugar diverted to some other part of the world instead of coming to Newfoundland as intended. Seems that Mr. Garland was sorry that such a thing happened. As to brown sugar personally I have no dislike whatever, but if the said gentleman had to sell 1 lb. of white and 1 lb. of brown sugar to his customers he may have a different view on the matter. Probably Mr. Garland may use it himself, but a great many of the majority of fishermen strongly objected to using it all, but the law was such that we had to sell so much of each, but it was quite a job to get rid of same.
 As to Standard Flour I have no objection to same personally. At first it sold fairly well but when the substitutes had to be added to it and forty-nine pounds to every barrel it then became quite different.
 Probably Mr. Garland had the chance to get white flour as a great many did. Then it would be all right to add the full amount of substitutes, but I think if Mr. Garland had to use the Standard Flour with the full amount of substitutes he would tell a different story.
 When at St. John's last winter several people said (when talking about substitutes) that the people were very particular.
 It may be very well for the people of a city to talk about the people of the outports re substitutes, etc., but the fact is the people of the outports have not the chance to obtain fresh beef, mutton and all the other extras that the people of St. John's have. Bread—whether it be whole meal or whatever it may be—forms but a small portion of a meal for the majority of city folk, but if the chief article of a meal is bread, as is very often the case with a great many people here, I think it would like for it to be as good as could be obtained. A great many city folk will say, as well as outport people, that they have had white flour all the time, while others have had Standard for a whole year. Let any man use Ogilvie's Standard, adding the amount of substitutes required by law, then I think he will be glad once more to get a slice or two of the bread that he was always accustomed to eat.

 Another thing re substitutes is that people of the outports generally take enough flour to last until the summer or perhaps for the whole year.
 Since Feb. 1st substitutes are not required by law to be used. What about all the substitutes lying around since then that a great many people were obliged to have. I hardly see what will be done with same.
 Hoping Mr. Editor, I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space I will conclude by again saying what a man just said to me that he would like for some people to be tied to it for a year doing hard labour. Then I think they would have a different opinion.
 Yours truly,
 JACOB GARLAND.

The Garden Campaign.

Dear Girls and Boys,—The season has been so backward that the date for entries in the Garden Competitions has been extended to June 20th.
 To-day we would like to speak a little about Window-Boxes and Climbing Plants.
 A handy man can easily make the boxes at home from old crates or boxes. They can be from six to nine inches wide and as long as the sill.
 Holes must be made in the bottom to allow the water to escape freely.
 Give the box a coat or two of green paint to preserve the wood, and do not put in the earth until the paint is thoroughly dry. Good drainage must be provided by first putting in a layer of clean pebbles.
 Many ordinary house-plants, such as geraniums, will thrive well in window-boxes.
 Pansies and daisies, if roots can be procured, make an effective showing, and given a little attention will bloom throughout the season.
 The lovely ferns, which are so abundant in our woods, make most attractive plants for window-boxes.
 They are easily obtained, grow readily, need little care, and can be renewed if necessary.
 Think how much prettier our streets would look if each house had even one window-box to brighten it.
 Come, everyone, big and small, begin to-day to prepare your window-box. The effort will be well worth while, for plants and flowers when loved are assuredly potent educators and exert a wholesome influence on the community.
 Ugly bare walls and fences are so easily hidden, that it can only be indifference to them, or lack of knowledge of how to treat them, or want of sympathy with things beautiful that leaves their unsightliness an eyesore to be endured. For almost any wall is a canvas upon which a picture can be painted in living colours with living flowers. A good way is to plant Runner Beans or tall Convolv-ulus at the foot and train them to the top, by means of strings six inches apart, fastened to the top and the bottom of the fence. Up this the climbers quickly run. Hops are wonderful growers.

A Marine Disaster.

ONE MAN DROWNED.

On Saturday afternoon, Captain Joseph Johnson and five members of the crew of the schooner Albert J.
 Lutz, arrived in town from Renewa, which place they had reached that morning, after their ship had capsized in a squall of wind and gone down, taking one of the crew, the cook, with her. The schooner left Sydney on Tuesday with a load of coal for P.
 Templeman and was bound to Catalina. Fine weather was experienced, and up to the time of the disaster, the ship was running by the wind in a moderate breeze with smooth sea.
 At one o'clock Saturday morning, without the slightest warning, a heavy squall of wind struck the ship and threw her on her beam ends.
 The captain met and two of the crew were on deck at the time, the former was unequal to the task and went down with the vessel which sunk just a minute or two after the others had boarded the dory. The men found themselves without oars and were at the time about 6 miles south east of Cape Broyle, but with the use of the thwarts which they used as paddles and with the help of the wind however they succeeded in making Renewa at about 5 o'clock in the morning, where they were looked after and subsequently brought on here. William Johnson, who was drowned was a married man and his widow survives him. He belonged to Catalina. The Albert J.
 Lutz was a ship of 95 tons and was owned by Captain Johnson. The names of the crew besides those mentioned were Azariah Tippet and Fred King.

CHAPE-PACK.
 A very pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Canon Hewitt, in St.
 Andrew's Church, Petty Harbor, on Wednesday, June 4th, when Mr. Harry Pack, of Bay Bulls, led to the altar
 Miss Flora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
 Alexander Chafe of Petty Harbor.
 The bride wore a pretty dress of white silk with hat to match, and was attended by Miss Lucy Pack (sister of the groom) who wore a dress of blue silk. The groom was supported by Mr. W. Chafe, brother of the bride.
 After the ceremony was performed the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents where a reception was held which was participated in by the immediate relatives and friends of the family. After the reception the newly-wedded pair drove to Bay Bulls, their future home. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Pack many years of happiness.

The Majestic.

A big week-opening bill is arranged for to-night at the above theatre. The B. S. Moss Productions presents that startling love romance entitled "One Day," with an all-star cast.
 The Majestic orchestra has now added a new feature, that of Mr. David Swedlin, late of the Boston Conservatory of Music, who will be the violinist, and he is some violinist. Just hear him play. Mr. John O'Reilly will be heard in a new song to-night accompanied by the orchestra. Prof. F.
 J. King, Mr. David Swedlin and Mr.
 J. F. Ross.
 A floor-lighting system has been installed in the balcony. There is a light in each step over which is placed a heavy plate glass on a level with the floor. These floor lights are similar to those used in the large American theatres, and the Majestic is the first theatre in St. John's to have them. The screen has been set back six feet, so that the people sitting in the front rows will have as good a view of the pictures as the people in the back of the hall. These improvements will enhance the value of the Majestic as the Queen of Cinema Theatres.

WHY WOMAN'S NATURE IS MIS-
 In a book on feminist matters I came across an interesting hypothesis the other day,—that the true nature of woman is entirely misunderstood because for centuries a most everything written about woman was written by men.
 I like this idea. It explains so many things. The familiar contention, for example, that women are greater talkers than men. They may be among themselves (though I have my doubts about that) but put a man and a woman together and who does most of the talking. Doesn't the man lecture on that great topic, himself, while the woman listens? (The Authoress who has been looking over my shoulder wishes to differ with me at this point. He says the woman may listen before marriage but she makes up for it afterwards.)
 Many Men Love To Say "I Told You So."
 Then there is the thoroughly masculine assumption that women say "I told you so" and men never do. I believe I have tilted at this theory before. Men hate to be proved wrong and when events have proved them wrong, to have a woman say "I told you so" is simply not to prevent it by branding those words as a peculiarly feminine and objectionable trick. It has been my experience that men say "I told you so" just as much as women; perhaps more, because there isn't any sex tradition to frighten them away from it.
 What Is Your Experience?
 Then there is the thoroughly masculine theory that women have no sense of humor. I have met women who had no sense of humor and I've met men who had no sense of humor (just as I've met women who weren't fit to vote and men who weren't fit to vote), and I've met men with a keen sense of humor and women with an equally keen sense. And I can't see that there are any more of one than the other. Can you?

Why Men Love To Say "I Told You So."

There is the thoroughly masculine assumption that women say "I told you so" and men never do. I believe I have tilted at this theory before. Men hate to be proved wrong and when events have proved them wrong, to have a woman say "I told you so" is simply not to prevent it by handling those words as a peculiarly feminine and objectionable trick. The False Idea That Women Have More Vanity.

But the crowning misinterpretation which men have put upon the character of women is that almost universally accepted idea that women are more interested in their personal appearance than men. In the animal world which sex is it that preens itself the most? The male to be sure. For some reason, the human male has learned to camouflage this interest in personal appearance, but no one who ever owned a husband, father or brother and saw him inspect a new necktie or a haircut in the mirror at length or make the whole family miserable over a semi visible wrinkle in a new suit could doubt that it is there. In one of the popular magazines a business woman writes, "This stuff about the differences between people and nations. They are generally superficial. Give women the similar opportunity and training and there's not much difference between them and men."

An interesting point of view at least.

A German Compliment.

(From the Edinburgh Scotsman.) There are not many statutes of Englishmen in Germany, and even the one at Offenburg near the edge of the Black Forest, may have been "removed" by this time, or used as gunmetal. But if it still there it is the statue of an English sailor, one of our naval heroes. Yes, Offenburg possesses a statue of Sir Francis Drake. Not, however, as the circumnavigator of the globe; not as the smasher of the Spanish Armada, not as the hero who went on playing bowls when the enemy was in sight, not as the typical Englishman knighted on board his ship by Queen Elizabeth—Offenburg knows the "discoverer of the potato." Some people think Raleigh discovered Germany's staple food; but Offenburg says Drake. The effigy of Drake seems to flourish a map of South America with one hand, and in the other he holds a potato plant.

Hindenburg Wants Holiday.

Geneva, May 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, formerly appealed to the Swiss government asking permission to reside in Switzerland as a simple citizen. The field marshal, who recently bought a villa on the shores of Lake Constance, added that he had only 15 days' holiday since the war began. The Swiss authorities are somewhat embarrassed, as it is known that von Hindenburg is a monarchist and also an intriguer. It is learned, however, that when sufficient guarantees are given, permission for his residence will be granted. Meanwhile, the Germans continue their anti-Allied propaganda in Switzerland.

The Greatest Fool of All Times.

The Editor of the American Freeman, in commenting on the alleged statement of the ex-Kaiser, when he said, among other things, that Freemasonry to him was Satanism, says: "This is interesting only as illustrating the aberrations of a mind that so short time ago was held by millions to be especially guided by Divine wisdom. How he squares his latest obsession with the facts that his immediate ancestors were active and honored members of the Craft of Masonry is beyond ordinary mortals. And surely his experience with the Freemasonry of Germany during the war period could not have given him an idea of Satanism in the fraternity, beyond the active devilry in which the whole nation was adept. The truth would seem to be that the Craft, of the world failed to respond to the recent plea for sympathy and support made by the Masons of Germany. Having failed to take up Wilhelm's cause the institution is to him at once revealed as satanic and anarchical. History will class the ex-Kaiser, not as a monarch of unbalanced ambitions, and not as a ruthless warrior, but as being clearly the greatest fool of all time.—The Masonic Sun.

Austria Protests.

The cabled intelligence that Austria does not favor the Peace Terms of the Allies is not altogether unexpected nor surprising. She has doubtless taken a lesson from her big ally, Germany, and intends if possible to play a similar game of procrastination, in the hope of having the conditions modified in her favor. Germany has played for time all through and the endeavours of the Berlin Government have been directed toward the securing of peace by negotiation. Austria apparently, encouraged by that attitude, and the leniency of the Peace Conference toward Germany in respect of having granted several extensions is about to enter upon a similar course. Warnings that the time for talk has expired do not seem to be heeded by either of the Teutonic Powers and with a perseverance worthy a better cause they are endeavoring to change places with the Allies, and instead of being the suppliants, become the dictators.

The President of the Austrian Republic states that the Peace proposals handed his Government are of a nature that cannot be enforced by any power at his command. He is not being asked to sign. His part is to sign. The Associated Powers will see to it that the terms are obeyed and carried out. That is their part of the business. Should Austria persist in the refusal to sign, the Allies whose patience has been worn threadbare by Germany's studied willingness in seeking for sympathy and in declarations of the injustice and harshness of the terms offered, will take drastic and immediate action to have their conditions accepted, notwithstanding any protest to the contrary. At the signing of the armistice with Austria-Hungary on November 3, 1918, the demands of the Allies were agreed to unconditionally, the same to be the basis for the text of the peace treaty to be made when Germany had surrendered, and the Associated Powers had assembled in Conference. Austria now desires to side step her agreement made on that Sunday, and refuses to sign the treaty of peace urging that to do so would be exceedingly dangerous. It will be—for Austria—if she does not. Having been made the tool of Germany in precipitating the war in 1914, which has ended so disastrously for both, it is not likely that the Powers in Council are going to stand any nonsense from President Seitz. There has been enough giving way already and the Allies are now determined in the course which will be pursued in the case of both Germany and Austria. Contumacy and stubbornness will not avail either country. The victors have the whip hand and also possess the power to have their decrees accepted. Neither Austria nor Germany have anything to gain by standing out for better terms, and the choice has been offered them both, agreement or occupation. There is no sympathy for the nations who started the war for aggressive purposes, and their appeal to the world goes unheeded. As they sowed, so must they reap.

Ordination Service.
Yesterday, being Whitsunday, an ordination service was held at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist, when Mr. John Marks, a student of Queen's Theological College, was made a Deacon and Rev. E. J. Jones and J. Beauchamp received the priest's order. The congregation was large and devout. Rev. Canon Bayley preached the ordination sermon. The candidates for Holy Orders were presented by Rev. Canon Bolt, examining Chaplain. At the administration of the Holy Eucharist were His Lordship Bishop White, celebrant, assisted by Rev. J. E. Brinton and E. H. Fletcher. The newly made deacon, Rev. J. Marks, being Gosseller. Other clergy taking part in the service and assisting the Bishop in the imposition of hands were: Rev. Canon Field, Rev. C. H. Barton and Rev. H. Pike.

The singing by the choir was exceptionally fine, the Benedictus, Agnus Dei and Gloria in Excelsis being exquisitely rendered.

Tidal Wave at St. Lawrence.

On Saturday a heavy tidal wave swept through St. Lawrence Harbor damaging the public wharf considerably, and also some private wharves and stages. The wave is supposed to have resulted from the heavy lightning storm of the previous day, and the unusual ocean conditions that prevailed at the time.

Coming Home.

News was received in town a few days ago that the Rev. E. J. Rawlins, who was, for the past six years, a student in the Irish College, Rome, and was ordained to the Priesthood about two months ago, would leave the Eternal City for Newfoundland on the first of the present month, and may be expected here about 1st July. Father Rawlins will come via New York and visit Boston where he will meet his brother, Dr. Charles Rawlins, dentist, who has been employed in his profession in that city for the past 8 years and will accompany Father Rawlins to their Native Land. It is needless to say that the young priest and his brother will receive a hearty and sincere welcome home from their many friends in St. John's.

"Eliza Comes to Stay."

FOR THE CHILD WELFARE FUND.
On Tuesday, 17th inst., the amusing farce, "Eliza Comes to Stay," will be repeated in the Casino for the benefit of the Child Welfare Fund. We bespeak the generous patronage of the public for these talented performers in their efforts to help on so deserving a charity.

The care of our newly-born children, the safeguarding them against illness, and the educating of their mothers, is all work, and the importance of which it is impossible to over estimate. Funds are urgently required to defray the salary of another community nurse, as the present staff is too small, adequately to cope with the work, and the two nurses find it impossible to attend to the large number of calls. Already conditions are much improved owing to their efforts, but there is a vast amount of work still to be done, in which it is hoped the public will co-operate by generous giving. The first step made will be a visit to "Eliza Comes to Stay," on the 17th.

At Cochrane St. Church.

Two very important and timely sermons on the Methodist Educational Campaign, now being launched in this city, were preached in Cochrane St. Methodist Centennial Church yesterday by the Revs. T. B. Darby, M.A. and Dr. Bond. The immediate need for proper facilities and a good sound education for the young people who are the greatest asset Newfoundland possesses, were ably put forth and dealt with.

Mr. J. T. Croucher, Baine Johnson & Co.'s agent at Battle Harbor, will leave for the scene of his summer's operations by train to-morrow, and will connect with the Ethie at Humbermouth, Bay of Islands, whence he will proceed to his destination. Mr. Croucher's crew will proceed by schooner from St. John's, as soon as the ice clears away from the northern bays, which we hope will be in a day or two, if the present westerly breeze continues.

Ready for Flight.

The work on the aerodrome near the Ropewalk, was completed Saturday, and preparation for the erection of the hangar which will house the giant Vimy-Vickers aeroplane made, the frame-work and covering being all on the ground ready for putting into place. Pentecostal Ceremonies

AT R. C. CATHEDRAL.
Yesterday the Feast of Pentecost, was celebrated with all the grand ritual and solemnity in honour of the Holy Ghost. His Grace the Archbishop presided at the Solemn High Mass at the Throne, assisted by Father Renouf, Dr. Greene and Father Battcock. The celebrant was Father Maher with Fr. Wilson as deacon and Dr. Carter sub-deacon. At the Solemn Pontifical Vespers, His Grace officiated with Fathers Renouf, Maher and Battcock as assistants at the Throne. Dr. Greene was Master of Ceremonies, and Father Wilson and Dr. Carter, Chanters. We understand that His Grace is holding an ordination on the 24th, when two young men will be raised to the Sacred Priesthood.

Ethen Dickenson Memorial.

The Committee appointed a few weeks ago to consider the erection of the monument to the memory of Miss Ethel Dickenson has now completed the preliminary arrangements for their intended campaign which we understand will probably begin on Wednesday next.

It is proposed to raise the sum of about seven thousand dollars for the purpose of placing a monolith on a suitable site which, however, has not yet definitely been decided. A sub-committee has divided the city of St. John's into a number of districts or wards which will be visited by ladies and gentlemen with a view to collecting the required amount. Letters from the Secretary, Mr. Fred R. Emerson, Bank of Montreal Building, have already been forwarded to the outport Justices of the Peace who, doubtless, will be instrumental in raising a large portion of the fund. It is the desire of the Committee to afford every opportunity to the outports to contribute their proportion of the amount. Three quarters of the number of patients nursed by Miss Dickenson came from outside St. John's.

Miss Dickenson, it will be remembered was one of the nurses who so nobly volunteered their services at the time last Autumn when the Spanish Influenza epidemic was rife and herself died of the scourge. It is felt that a suitable monument in St. John's in memory of so noble a type of lady will find favor in the eyes of the public and that a ready response to the Committee's appeal will be met with. Already a large number of representative citizens have accorded their hearty support to this movement.

Tidewater Assaulted.

Saturday night a west end truckman visited Tessler's wharf and while there got into a discussion with the tidewater who was doing duty on the schooner Nevis. The tidewater requested the truckman to leave the wharf, which the latter did, but not before he gave a demonstration of his abilities with the hands using the Customs man for a punching bag. The tidewater who is many years senior of the truckman, was cut about the face and mouth. It is understood that an action at law will result. Interfering with a Customs officer in the discharge of his duties is a serious offence.

MANY VISITORS THREE YESTERDAY—DISAPPOINTMENT VERY GREAT.
Special to Evening Telegram.
HARBOR GRACE, To-day.
Large numbers of people came here yesterday in expectation of witnessing a trial flight by the Handley-Page machine. The day being beautiful, one of the best for the season, almost all the population of Carbonear was on the scene, in addition to those from other neighbouring places, and automobiles, carriages and bicycles were much in evidence. Many folk from St. John's were also present, including Mayor and Mrs. Gosling who motored around the Bay. Much disappointment was expressed because no flight, as similar opportunity may not occur again to see the machine go up. The second radiator was attached yesterday. Although there are but two radiators, the arrangement of them, making one sufficient to serve two engines, the

SEARCH FOR THE MISSING.
LONDON, June 8.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)
A specially formed unit of the Air Force is leaving for headquarters in the field, shortly. It will consist of twenty officers, who were attached to the various army divisions. Their purpose is to search for any possible traces of missing officers, and other ranks of the Royal Air Force on the Western Front. This is being undertaken to ensure, as far as is humanly possible, that no members of the force are being detained and lying helpless in the hands of the enemy.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM.
MELBOURNE, Australia.
June 7.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The interstate commission report on rents, shows the existence of overcrowding and the great shortage of houses in all Australian cities. The commission declares that wholesale construction and reconstruction of dwellings is immediately necessary and urges Govt. to render financial assistance.

DESTROYERS FOR AUSTRALIA.
LONDON, June 8.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)
The Govt. has handed over the destroyers Anzac, Swordsman, Tartar, Stalwart, Success and Tasmania to Australia. The Anzac is the squadron ship and the others are also of the latest type. The terms on which the war vessels were handed over have not been disclosed but the Australian Navy will man and maintain them.

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER.
VIENNA, June 8.
Three thousand peasants, including young women and children, have been shot or hanged by the Red Army as consequence of the revolt in Western Hungary, according to reports received here.

BURNING SHIP TOWED TO PORT.
NEW YORK, June 9.
The story of a desperate battle with flames in mid-ocean, in which two men lost their lives, was told to-day by members of the crew of the British tanker Beechleaf, towed into port by the transport Westhaven. The Beechleaf, which was bound from Baltimore to Ireland, took fire off the Azores. The engines were put out of commission, rudder control disabled and wireless sending equipment destroyed. A Royal Mail Packet steamer stood by, but after working two days in heavy seas to get a line to Beechleaf, sent wireless calls for assistance. The Westhaven responded and got line aboard. Two of the Beechleaf crew died from burns received in the flames.

IDLE GOSSIP.

The rumour that a cabinet crisis imminent is dismissed in official circles as idle gossip. The Constitutional Convention has completed consideration of the Bill creating a State Court to try those accused of strengthening and losing the war. It will be presented shortly.

From War to Work.

The greatest deed of kindness ever done to Germany was the stroke of the Allied pen which reduced her army from a potential military force of 10,000,000 to a permanent police of 100,000.

For thereby have the German people been turned from war to work. They cannot any longer war; but they can work—they must work—and they will. Patriotism and common sense point that way.

Nor is the task so hopeless as Sceldemann and his coadjutors would have us believe. In the first place, the terms imposed on Germany are far less onerous than a Germany triumphant would have laid upon the Allies; and no one knows this so well as the Germans themselves.

Moreover, Germany will go to work rid of the crushing weight of her naval and military burdens. Pre-war statistics show that in money alone this represented the huge sum of $400,000,000 annually—which was exceeded, no doubt, in the loss of revenue, due to the diversion of many millions of her people from industry and commerce.

Germany will go to work, not merely in the material but, also, in the moral and ethical world, where, if anything, she has even more serious leeway to make up. She must win her way back to the confidence of the world that she has so greatly betrayed—for it is inconceivable that she will be content to remain forever a Pariah among the peoples of the earth. And there is no surer road by which to return than that broad international highway which is built of honor, consideration and mutual good faith. Some few men of note there are in Germany who clearly realize these truths in all their naked simplicity; and to their honor be it said that, in the midst of all the present rhodomontade over the so-called brutality and betrayal of the peace treaties, they have not hesitated to say to the German people "Be quiet, and go to work."—Scientific American.

Bald Heads and Souls.

Why They Differ in Their Relations to Modern Advertising.

When hair, in treacherous deliquescence, Its fond proprietor would betray, What art can guard and save its presence.

Advertising so a local authority informs us, can retard the vanishing thatch. It has already done so, he avers. By calling our attention to hair-tonics, advertising has acquainted us with the fact that we have hair and that it is ours, not only to have but to hold.

But though eradicating the bald head from the scenery be a tippy enterprise, a still loftier adventure was under discussion. The saving of the soul. And advertising is the medicine prescribed. Dr. Fahy, the Gabriel d'Annunzio of advertising whom we quote, postulates that man's attitude toward his soul is like that toward his hair—he doesn't know he's got one until it's too late.

Believing as we do in the near-omnipotence of advertising, it is distressing to us to have to question this pronouncement. And in a way we don't question it. We are convinced that advertising can put the church back to fighting trim quicker than any other remedy available. It is the diabolical analogy which occasions our dismay. The one citadel which advertising has bargained in vain is the bald head. As for man's hair, its days are but few, and that regardless of whether he knows he's got hair, or doesn't know it. The remorseless wind of time passeth-over it, and good night. And the caput thereof shall know it no more. He may meditate, massage, electricity, singe, and shampoo. He may have a rabbit's foot in his right sock, carry a rabbit's foot in his vest pocket. He may metaphysically assert that there is no such thing as baldness. But as the far-flung pink of moulting millions, there is such a thing as baldness, and it's an awful thing and advertising hasn't retarded it—not by a hair.

Advertising can help the churches in the work of soul-making. But hair, once it gets going the pace, is doomed to perdition and lost forever.—Oklahoma.

The Aerial Championship.

(From the London Advertiser.)

Congratulations are extended the American navy and Commander Read for having successfully made the air passage between the new and old worlds in a heavier than air machine. The N. C. 4 has still another lap of her voyage to make, but in reaching Lisbon the crossing of the "pond" has been achieved. While the credit for this "triumph," as our cousins over the line are calling it, will stand on the records, the real triumph will be scored when somebody achieves the non-stop flight. The American achievement was rendered somewhat tame and uninteresting by the elaborate safeguard surrounding the flier at every stage. There was little of the awful chance, the gamble with death, which closed about Hawker and Grieve the moment they leaped from that Newfoundland headland. The success of the American experiment will be recognized more in scientific circles than in the popular mind. Read's feat appeals to the intellect, Hawker's to the imagination. Amundsen will be known as the discoverer of the South Pole, but a greater glory will cling to Scott's name because of the immeasurably greater difficulties he overcame and his tragic death. The real hero of the trans-Atlantic air flight, the real conqueror, will be that bold airman, who first makes it in one jump. Whatever nation's colors he will carry, he is the lad the world is waiting to give three rousing cheers. We hope he is a Canadian.

When making tomato or asparagus soup a few grains of baking soda should be added to the cooked vegetables.

French and Kitchener.

Brief reference was made in the cable despatches the other day to Mr. Asquith's reply to the attacks which are being made upon Lord Kitchener in the sensational correspondence of Lord French, formerly Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in France, and now Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. It was not desirable, Mr. Asquith felt, to say all that could be said about the incident or that must be said hereafter when it passes into history, but to the particular charges that reflect on Lord Kitchener, namely, that being Secretary for War he interferred gratuitously with the Commander-in-Chief, usurped his functions, and gave bad and ignorant advice, which, unless resisted, might have brought disaster upon the army, Mr. Asquith makes clear and positive answers.

He says that it is "wholly untrue" to suggest that either Lord Kitchener or the Home Government contemplated and attempted to supersede the commander in the field. He says that the Government itself took action on communications from Lord French as to his intentions, committed mistakes, and gave bad advice, "after full deliberation, came unanimously to important conclusions which seemed to them to be justified by reasons of policy as well as of strategy." Finally, Lord Kitchener was "entrusted, with the knowledge and full consent of all his colleagues, with the duty of conveying and explaining these conclusions to Sir John French" (as he then was), and it was these, and not his own ideas of strategy, that he brought before the Commander-in-Chief. Mr. Asquith adds his own opinion that the decision taken by the government were "the only ones which could have been taken by any responsible British Government," and he "entertains no doubt that they would have had the practically unanimous support of the country," or that "in visiting France and conferring with Sir John French, Lord Kitchener performed a service of the greatest value to the country, and, as the event showed, with the best results."

Mr. Asquith declares that while it is impossible to deal adequately with the case until "in due course there is a full disclosure of the confidential documents, including Sir John French's letters, which passed at the time, Lord Kitchener's friends may await in perfect serenity the process of disclosure." It is a pity that this controversy has come up in the present form and at this time, but apparently Lord Kitchener's friends are determined that the story shall not be half told or wrongly told. Lord French's disclosure promise to be followed by others equally as sensational and interesting.—Morning Chronicle.

Leninism in Winnipeg.

(From the New York Times.)

In support of the metal workers and building trades a sympathetic strike, affecting some 30,000 trade unionists, was ordered last week by the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council. This general strike is said to be approved by the returned soldiers. In that case the Dominion authorities may be a little tender on political grounds. Of the merits of the controversy there is no judgement to be passed at this distance. It is the opinion uttered by the business agent of the strikers that interests outlanders in the Winnipeg labor troubles:

There will be no more newspapers until we decide to let them appear. We know the effect that a newspaper has in moulding public opinion, and that in the past such opinion has been moulded against our class. We realize that had we left the press open it would have taken advantage of the hard situation by trying to show the public that the strikers were weakening in their position by the opening of food depots. So the press was closed. The next step should be the publication of papers devoted passionately to the proletariat. All others should be prohibited permanently. This is the Leninist, the new autocratic method of dealing with the press. The Alexanders and Big and Little Napoleons were afraid of a public opinion not moulded by themselves and sought to gag it. The contemporary Red plan of silencing absolutely all unfriendly voices, of limiting the freedom of the press to the freedom of lauding the proletariat autocrats, is cooler, more thorough, than the autocrats of the throne, born to the purple, or usurpers, were able to maintain effectively. By the side of the Lenines and the Trotskys and their brief imitators in Germany, the earlier autocracy looks almost tolerant, or at least, a silenced press, however, is an imported product that is not likely to prove itself hardy in Manitoba.

Don't judge Floor Covering by its price alone. Floor Covering at $1.50 per yard is always cheaper than Floor Covering at $2.50 per yard.

FOR INSTANCE. If the $1.50 covering wears out in 1 year and the $2.50 covering gives 3 years' wear, you can see that the $1.50 covering actually costs $4.50 per yard over a 3 year period, and is really costing you on this basis MORE than twice the cost of the Floor Covering which gives 3 years' wear and which cost you only $2.50 per yard.

CONGOLEUM, the guaranteed Floor Covering, costs less in the long run.

Decide for yourself,—do you want a cheap imitation which you will need to renew next year, or do you want Genuine Guaranteed Congoleum which costs a little more, looks better and lasts longer.

Says Willard is Forty Years Old.

Toledo, May 28.—There will be no boxing on the training programme for Jack Dempsey next week because of the danger of Dempsey going stale. The challenger may drop all strenuous work for the week if the weather continues warm. Dempsey is so near being in top condition at present that he could enter the ring to-morrow. He increased his ring work to eight rounds to-day. One-Round Davis was sent reeling against the ropes and Trainer Deforest promptly called time. Bill Tate received another terrific punching for four rounds, and Dempsey ripped into Terry Keller for the final two rounds. Tom Jones, Willard's manager for six and a half years, arrived here to-day to arrange for special trains to bring fight delegations from Columbus. Jones still retains his admiration for Willard, despite his split with the champion after piloting him to victory over Jack Johnson. Jones said that in his opinion the only chance Dempsey has to win is to land a knockout. "I am not taking any credit away from Dempsey," Jones said, "but Willard is too big. With his tremendous size and great hitting power, a knowledge of boxing that will surprise his enemies and the ability to take punishment, if compelled, to present a battle-front that in my judgment cannot be penetrated." Jones revealed that Willard is forty years old, which caused some surprise among the ring sharps. He declared that Willard did not begin boxing until he was 32 years of age, and because of his late athletic development had not lost any of his fighting stamina. He said that when he reached a settlement with the champion five years ago Willard appeared to be in condition for a contest ten days later. He asserted that Willard had trained secretly in a gymnasium at his home in Chicago and Lawrence, Kansas.

The Rest Cure. "How are you this morning?" "I am not very well, and I do not know why I ever came to this place." "Why this is a fine place to take the Rest Cure, and that is what your doctor has prescribed." "I wish it was no rest for me, for I have had such a time to think and to worry. I could not get any sleep last night, and I know I shall never get better here." "Most people like it here." "Perhaps they do if there is nothing the matter with them. But if their nerves were in such a condition as mine they would be about as miserable as I am. I wish I had stayed home and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, that is what some of my friends advised." "Why not use it now. I know lots of people who have been cured by using it, and the rest will surely help you." "That sounds to me like a good idea. Now you just get me half a dozen boxes at the drug store and we will try it out. If it will only steady my nerves so I can rest and sleep I am sure that I shall soon be better." "I know that it will help you, for I have watched so many cases in which it was used and never saw a failure yet." "And I was told about it often enough before I left home, but thought I had to have more expensive treatment. They will have the joke on me if the Nerve Food cures me, but we will give it a chance, anyway." Dr. Chase's Medicines are sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Newfoundland. Wholesale from GERALD S. Electric Heaters in Sweden. The use of electricity for heating purposes is comparatively new, but since the enormous water power in Sweden and Norway has been increasingly utilized, and especially because of the acute shortage of fuel during the war, electric heating has become more and more extensive in Scandinavia. Back in 1915 a company was organized for the purpose of manufacturing electric heating apparatus. In the beginning this factory employed 40 men, but at the end of 1917 the number was increased to 500. Extensions are now being made which are expected to be completed in the fall of 1919, when the number of employees will be about 1,000. The factory makes all kinds of heating apparatus for cooking, ironing, and so on, and all kinds of lamps and heating materials. All of which is by way of showing how certain countries are developing their water power to the utmost extent.

كتاب مفتوح للاسائيب New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandria leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

The British Touch.

From a purely military point of view the Germans won the war up to July 18th, 1918. Then came a sudden and dramatic turn of affairs and from that date until the signing of the armistice on November 11th they were driven backward all along the line and were only saved from complete destruction by the great surrender. Since that time there has been much discussion as to whom the supreme honours are due for the deliverance of the knock-out blow which ended the long blood-bath of the nations, there being a tendency for each of the Allies to put forth special claims. It is pleasant reading, therefore, to find an American writer summing up the triumphant statistics of the various Allies during the four final months of the campaign on all the fronts, and after due consideration honoring the British Empire with the greatest accomplishment.

After the termination of the enemy offensive against the British front in Flanders and in Northern France, a tremendous task confronted Haig's Army. Fully 5,000 miles of new trenches had to be dug, 23,000 tons of barbed wire and fifteen million steel or wooden pickets used and 485 miles of new railroad with 4,000 miles of siding had to be constructed. Fully 3,500 miles of carriage roads had to be built and 500 shell craters filled, using one and one half million tons of road rock and 685,000 ties. In its advance 700 road bridges had to be built, and many miles of water mains and 400 mechanical pumps had to be installed to insure 20 million gallons of water daily to the advancing troops. Such was the enormous amount of material work to be done in order to start and carry forward the great offensive campaign. Meanwhile the Air Forces had been at work most energetically. Between January 1st, 1918, and November 11th of the same year, the Royal Air Force downed 2,900 enemy planes and put 1,200 others out of action, while 300 observation balloons were destroyed and 5,000 tons of bombs dropped on German positions. In May, General Haig loaned four divisions of British troops to the French. Early in July all French troops were withdrawn from the British front, and by the middle of the month eight divisions were loaned to the French. When the grand offensive was on, day after day saw great gains made in terrain and huge numbers of prisoners taken. From July 18th to November 11th, 59 British divisions encountered and seriously defeated 99 separate German divisions, capturing 2,858 guns, 9,500 trench mortars, 29,000 machine guns and 138,000 prisoners. During the same period, the French took 1,580 guns and 189,000 prisoners, the Americans 1,421 guns and 14,500 prisoners. It will thus be seen that the British figures are much greater than those of the other Allies, and it may be added that from first to last the British forces captured 327,000 German prisoners.

The Italian battle line was also the scene of tremendous activities during the final period of the war, and in those activities the British and French contingents did their parts in splendid style, but the taking of Austrian prisoners was a very different task from capturing the stern fighters of Prussia. As it was, the British captured 49,000 prisoners on the Italian front and 759 guns. The French captured 20,000 prisoners and 400 guns, while the Italians took 200,000 prisoners and something like 2,000 guns, their forces being, of course, many times more numerous than those of the British and French co-operating with them.

In the Balkans there was an Allied army composed of practically all the Allied nations, and of these the Serbians did the fiercest of the fighting, yet the British forces there captured 25,000 prisoners.

In Mesopotamia 25,000 prisoners were captured and in Palestine 70,000 more. The sum total of British captures from July 18th to November 11th, 1918, in all the various theatres of warfare were 4,000 guns, 4,500 mor-

During the year 1918, on all fronts, the Royal Air Service brought down more enemy planes than the combined totals of all the other nations fighting the General Powers, and it gives an added pleasure to Canadians to know that a very large number of the officers of the Imperial Air Service are Canadians, the very best of the individual fighters being men from the Dominion. As the British casualties on all fronts in 1918 passed the million mark, it must be confessed by all that the hardest blows in the final conflict were struck by Britain; but there is plenty glory to go around.—Acadian Recorder.

Wave of Resentment.

Sweeps Over Germany. Paris.—The protests that come from various quarters in Germany over the peace terms, as they were reported before the official terms became known, are as nothing in comparison with the wave of resentment, anger and bitter disappointment that is sweeping over Germany now that the treaty has been presented. States, municipalities, districts, organizations of various societies, business men's and women's clubs and the political parties through their spokesmen are vying with each other in finding words in which to express scorn and condemnation for the document.

Rock of Moses.

The "Rock of Moses" lies in the wild valley at the base of Jebel Musa, the Mount of the Law, in the Peninsula of Sinai. The rock is eighteen or twenty feet high, slightly inclined. A rough indentation runs over each side, which is intersected here and there with slits, and the stone is worn away in places as if from the effects of running water. It is beyond doubt the oldest known legendary object in the vicinity. The Koran refers to this rock more than once, and from these allusions arose the reverence from the Bedouins, who held it sacred. From the Middle Ages onward it has been visited by Christian pilgrims, who have carved rude crosses in its side. Of all the objects in the desert, it is most closely bound up with the simple faith of its wild inhabitants, and of its early visitants.—The Masonic Sun.

Look After the Parks.

Now that our public parks in this city are beginning to bloom, and hundreds of our citizens are visiting them every day and evening, it would be well if the Inspector General would appoint a Constable to look after affairs in these popular places of rest for the aged, and recreation for the young. As it is at present quite a number of mischievous individuals, who should know better, make themselves a nuisance by their destructive propensities, which they exercise during their visits. A few days ago the energetic caretaker of Bannerman Park, Mr. Spurrell, planted 148 young trees, and upon going his rounds found many of them pulled up by the roots. Now, this not to be tolerated, for one and would not be tolerated, for one moment, in any civilized community outside Newfoundland. Nor is this vandalism perpetrated by young children, but, in many instances, by great galeots who should know better, but which unfortunately goes to show that their ideas of right and wrong have been received at the Street "Corner University." Certainly their home training has been most lamentably neglected, and much blame rests on the shoulders of the parents. One would imagine that every citizen, no matter how young or uneducated, would be possessed of sufficient intelligence and love of the beautiful to do all in their power to preserve these pleasure grounds where so many congregate after a hard day's work, to rest and converse with their associates, as well as to inhale the pure atmosphere of the locality amidst the trees and flowers, but to all appearances such have no interest to a certain class, and their whole instinct and object is to wantonly destroy the beauties of the place and make themselves obnoxious to respectable citizens and their families. It is impossible for the veteran caretaker of Bannerman Park to be in all places at the one time, and his long and faithful services of twenty-nine years should, at least, be recognized and appreciated to such an extent that his work would be preserved from the destructive hands of those whose presence is neither looked for nor desired. The only way to accomplish this end is to have a Constable there who will perform his duty—arrest the culprits, and Judge Morris will do the rest.

Prince Albert Tobacco.

We are pleased to announce that Mr. M. A. Duffy, who has just returned from the Southern States, has been appointed a distributor for Prince Albert Tobacco, of which we have now begun a course of advertising. Mr. Duffy visited the Company at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and while there was the guest of the Vice-President. We learn from him that the magnitude of their factory's warehouses and offices is amazing and takes in an area of land about twice the size of Bannerman Park. While discussing the Newfoundland trade, Mr. Duffy suggested to them that in order to get the business which their tobacco merited, that it would be wise to begin advertising in the Newfoundland papers. In this they concurred, but decided that it must be in the Evening Telegram, as they had already heard that that was the popular paper amongst the masses. This coming all the way from North Carolina, is sufficient proof of the popularity of the Telegram.

The Congregational Pulpit.

On Sunday morning the Rev. Dudley B. Ashford gave his people an interesting and most instructive study of the Motives and Methods of Christian Service as revealed in the life of St. Paul. A study of the "least" yet greatest of the Apostles gives us as a first principle that "it is never lost sight of that fact: 'It is God that worketh in us'." Such a thought should keep us humble but should also give us confidence. There is no limit to the power of a consecrated life. Then we notice Paul's implicit obedience as revealed by his translation of vision into action. He says to King Agrippa, "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." The mere visionary never accomplishes anything. Then too Paul was ever ready for unexpected guidance. We read in Acts 16, that they "assayed to go into Bithynia but the Spirit suffered them not." Then came the vision of the man from Macedonia, and "immediately" Paul endeavored to go. We ought to be ever ready for the unexpected prompting of God's Spirit. There was something very definite about Paul's testimony and work. He insisted continually upon the great facts concerning Christ's divinity, humanity, atonement and resurrection. "He preached Christ that He is the Son of God." We notice also that he was very personal in his work. He got hold of individuals like Sergius Paulus, King Agrippa and the Philippian Jailor. And alongside this "one by one" method there was also a world-wide vision. "That the Gentiles should be followers." He must reign till He hath put all enemies under his feet." The world for Christ was his motto. We notice too a tremendous urgency about Paul's ministry, a veritable passion for souls. "I could wish myself accursed for my brethren's sake." But coupled with this there was also a remarkable patience. We read that he returned to Lystra and Iconium and Antioch, "confirming the souls and exhorting them to continue in the faith." It is not enough to get folk converted, they need establishing also. Another characteristic of Paul's ministry was his courage and enthusiasm. "I am ready not only to be bound but to die at Jerusalem," he says. And alongside this boldness we notice his tact and adaptability. He used the synagogues wherever he went in order to reach the Jews. And at Mars Hill in speaking to Greeks he showed great skill in finding his point of contact by his reference to "the Unknown God." Two other characteristics of Paul were his faith and his reason. "I can do all things through Christ," he says. Christ is the power of God unto salvation. But Paul was also ever ready to give an answer concerning the hope that was in him. We read that he disputed with the Jews in the synagogue. So faith and reason should go together. And what is the reward for faithful service? More Service. In the parable of the Talents the Lord says to his servants, "Because thou hast been faithful in a very little have thou authority over ten cities." To Paul in the prison at Jerusalem there came the message, "Be of good cheer, Paul; as thou has testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome." To witness at Rome meant martyrdom, but Paul died in the faith that "henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."—Com.

Unusual Bridge Construction.

A combination bridge and market place has been constructed by the city of Monterey, Mexico, and this bridge which serves a double purpose is one of the sights of that part of Mexico. A shaded market place is almost necessary in the southwestern part of the continent to protect the produce and make marketing comfortable for the citizens. It may be that the people felt that they were scarcely getting the value of their money in putting up a simple bridge that was only necessary part of the year, as the river is dry except in the rainy season when it becomes a raging stream that is very difficult to cross. As the market place on top of the bridge is used all the year and means an income to the city rentals, the wisdom of this unusual bridge construction is seen at a glance. Heavy buttressed walls support the bridge. These are of solid concrete, but the walls, roof, and partitions for the booths are made of metal lath with a coating of cement. This greatly reduces the cost and is permanent and fireproof. A double row of windows on each side of the enclosed part of the bridge gives sufficient light and ventilation, so that it is always cool and pleasant on the hottest day. Monterey is evidently one of the enterprising Mexican cities which is keeping up-to-date in its construction work.—Scientific American.

The men Parsons, of Flatrock, who boarded the abandoned schooner Klondyke, near Cape St. Francis, and took her as a prize, were paid, so we are informed, $500.00 each for bringing her to port. One is apt to say that these men struck a real klondyke as the time occupied by them was just two days.

Every day at all the Masses the annual collection in aid of Belvedere and Mount Carmel Cemeteries, was taken up, and the response was not only an evidence of the interest taken by the Catholic people in the resting place of their dear departed, but an appreciation of the efforts of the committees in charge of the grounds. The collection was more than $400 in excess of last year's, and totalled $2,286.74 made up as follows:—

Glut in Salmon in Canada.

Canneries to be Closed Until July 1. Ottawa, May 31.—Firm measures to ensure the consumption of first class Canadian food in Canada, which was in danger of being left unsold through needless importations from abroad, have been taken by making it imperative that individual licenses must now be obtained from the Canadian Trade Commission, Ottawa, to import either sardines or canned salmon into the Dominion. There are about three hundred thousand cases of 48 pounds each of salmon lying idle in Vancouver. These are an excellent food in nutritive value as salmon from any part of the globe, but owing to light color and importations of pink fleshed varieties of lower nutritive value had commenced to be made, simply to satisfy the taste of the public for pink rather than white fish, which has been stimulated in the last few years. There is a glut of Canadian sardines, and 40,000 cases of 25 pounds each, beyond immediate demand, await a market, and the canneries of the Atlantic coast will probably remain closed until July 1, throwing 2,000 people out of employment for two months over normal times. WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE
ANNOUNCEMENT.
Owing to a shortage in the Grape crop this season and the enormous increased demand for Welch's Grape Juice in the United States due to the approaching "dry" legislation, The Welch Grape Juice Company can only supply a small portion of our present requirements this season. By the next two New York boats we are expecting a total shipment of Fifty cases of 4 oz. ("Nips"). This is the only shipment of this size we expect to receive this season. Firms requiring any of this shipment must let us know immediately, as it is going to be a case of "first come first served", and there will be no use in the world in abusing us after the supply is gone. The price this year will be $9.50 per case, the increase being due to the advanced price in the U. S. A. and the extra duty on the increase and not due to our making any additional profit because of the shortage.
A FEW CHEERING WORDS.
In order not to disappoint our many friends who have been steady customers with us for Grape Juice for the past five years, and to whom the shortage in the Welch supply this season is going to put to serious inconvenience, we beg to announce that we are now in communication with a fine firm of Grape Juice manufacturers in the Niagara belt and that we expect to be able to arrange with them for a supply of an excellent brand of Grape Juice to carry the trade on till such time as The Welch Grape Juice Company are in a position to resume supplies. Further announcement of this matter will be made just as soon as negotiations are completed.

Household Notes.

When preparing vegetables, cook them so that there will be enough liquid for a cream soup for the next day's luncheon. Baking powder is excellent for cleaning jewelry. Rub it on with a brush and then rinse off with boiling water. Grease and cream stains should not be put in cold water, followed by soap and water. To keep drawers from pulling out, garnish each end with a brass ring to each end and buy a new one when the old one is worn. When cooking on the gas stove, use cooking vessels that cover the burner. All heat not directly under the utensil is lost. To stretch kid gloves when new, place them between the folds of a damp towel for almost one hour before they are to be worn. Add a pinch of cream of tartar to the whites of eggs when they are half beaten. This keeps them from falling before being used.

When you want something in a hurry for tea, go to ELLIS'—Head Cheese, Ox Tongue, Boiled Ham, Cooked Corned Beef, Bologna Sausage.

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

WELCOME HOME!

To the boys who have been playing the bigger game "Over There" for four years—Welcome Home! We've got your spikes and gloves all ready for you. So step up to the plate again—you very gallant gentlemen—your places are ready for you, and we want you to impart into the good old game of ball the same pep you displayed on the plains of Gallipoli and Flanders' Fields.

WILHELM AT THE BAT.

(Try this to the tune of "Casey at the Bat.")

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the German troops that day; Bulgaria and Turkey had struck out and quit the fray. When Austria-Hungary had failed to hit the pill, The eyes of all the Fatherland were turned on Kaiser Bill.

He goose-stepped to the rubber with a proud and mighty glance; Resolved to knock the pellet from Berlin to Paris, France, The Prussians wildly cheered him as he twisted his moustache; And hollered "Hick der Kaiser," when he grabbed his mighty ash.

Ten million eyes were on him as he dipped his hands in blood; Ten million then applauded as he rubbed them in the mud. And when upon the umpire he contemptuously spat, No person in the crowd could doubt 'twas Wilhelm at the bat.

But Foch's pesky pellets had the Kaiser on the run; The first one split the platter and the umpire yelled "strike one." He looked the next one over and across the plate it flew; "That's not my style," said Wilhelm, and the umpire yelled "strike two."

The third one fairly sizzled as it sped across the plate; And Wilhelm pounced upon it, but he swung a trifle late. Then from the maddened populace there rose a lusty roar; For Wilhelm, mighty Wilhelm, had struck out and lost the war.

Oh, somewhere in the Fatherland there is a ray of hope. For somewhere there are people who have sauerkraut and soap; And somewhere there is woinerwurst and lager-beer and cheese; But there is no joy in Berlin, mighty Wilhelm hit the breeze.

THE WAR AND BASEBALL!

In this, our opening column, we have no desire to inflict on our readers a treatise on the War,—firstly, because not having been there we cannot give firsthand information about it, and secondly, because this is a Baseball Column pure and simple, conducted for the amusement and edification of local fandom. But we would like to give expression to our conviction that War, it appears, isn't all loss, for it brings in its train large and lasting benefits.

Henry James once expressed regret that there was no logical substitute for war, for he recognised the benefits of war and appreciated the human emotions which find their fullest expression in martial ardour. The knights of the middle ages were taught to look upon war as the holiest of avocations and nations of all ages have united in doing honour to the soldier and sailor.

From all this it appears that war is a crude and brutal expression of a number of perfectly laudable human ambitions. True, the good which it performs has been swallowed up in an abyss of desolation and human suffering. But the good is there, none the less.

Can we not find some institution which will give proper scope to normal combativeness, which will stimulate patriotic feeling, which will cater to the love of rivalry and strife so typified upon the battlefield, without paying the ghastly price in blood and waste which that grim sacrifice always demands? We believe we can suggest an admirable substitute which fulfills all requirements. And this substitute is ATHLETIC SPORT—particularly Baseball.

What has been the most striking defect in the German people? Their lack of athletic sport which fosters good fellowship and square dealing. For athletic sport does foster these things as well as proper discipline, and the value of communal effort, self-control, and all the rest. In short, athletic sport satisfies these primitive emotions which for so many centuries have found their chief outlet in war.

Between the stagnation of Peace and the delirium of War there is a sane middle course. The drum and the commonplace rebel us almost as much as excess of excitement. Why should we yield to either extreme? Athletic sport is at once free from the "stale, flat and unprofitable" benefits of peace and the reckless destruction of war. Athletic sport demands no waste of blood and treasure and it does impart a zest and spice to everyday existence. In short, athletic sport is the crying need of the hour. Great is local athletic sport, and greater are its triumphs yet to come.

1919 promises to be the best year yet in sport,—with the revival that is sure to be caused by the return of our athletes who have been overseas. This applies particularly to Baseball, for doesn't "1919" contain two first rate nines in it and each of them has "one" to the good.

The largest, sturdiest and most beautiful car in its price-class THE ECONOMY CAR

Looks Good, Doesn't It? And the Picture Doesn't Begin to Do It Justice—But Most of All, ECONOMICAL

It is graceful in design and beautiful in finish—smart and stylish in every detail. Nothing lacking for beauty, comfort, performance or endurance. Drive all day and you won't be cramped or tired. In fuel economy this car is almost without an equal—18 to 22 miles to the gallon of gasoline are the rule rather than the exception. The steering is the easiest; the control the simplest. Easy riding whether fully or partially loaded; remarkable in this respect. Abundant power for hard pulls—fine driving qualities at all speeds—and all the speed you want. Reliable quality is a certainty in the Elcar. Its builders learned to put in quality years ago in building cars selling up to and above $3000. It is a quality car at a popular price—good and large enough to fulfill any motor car requirement. Don't think of choosing until you have seen the Elcar.
