RECOGNITION.

The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals, all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER IX.
He even managed a laugh.
"Silly child—kiss me, and say you're sorry for being cross."

This easy, half bantering way of affection was easier. He turned her face to him by his soft little chin and kissed her lips.

It was not a kiss of love, not even of passion; just a light, brotherly sort of kiss, but it swept the clouds from Eva's horizon with a magic touch; she smiled through her tears.

"I wasn't cross—it wasn't that at all."

"Then what was it?"

But she could not explain; she wiped her eyes sadly.

"Look—the sun's coming out again," she said.

"That's a good sign," he answered. "And when did you say you will marry me?"

"I haven't made up my mind."

"Very well, then, I'll make it up for you. Let me see—I suppose a fortnight is long enough for you to buy clothes in, isn't it?"

She laughed happily.

"Anybody would think I wanted dozens of frocks."

"Well, won't you?" he submitted comically. "I thought brides always had dozens of everything," he said laughingly. "Then we'll say a fortnight, shall we?"

"It's too soon—I couldn't possibly."

"Three weeks, then—not a day longer. What is there to wait for?"

"Nothing, but . . ."

"Then we won't wait. Three weeks to-day, I'll tell your father when we get back."

"He'll say it's absurd," she protested, but her heart was beating with excitement and happiness.

"Oh, no, he won't. . . . He put the clutch in and the car started slowly forward. "Three weeks to-day, you won't forget?"

"Is it likely?"

His eyes softened as they looked at her flushed face.

"How old are you?" he asked suddenly.

"Twenty-three."

It struck him as being pathetically young. He laid his hand over hers.

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such up-building treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Get the nerves right and the headaches will not return.

Mrs. W. J. Pearce, Nunn St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

At All Dealers.

Distributor:

GERALD S. DOYLE.

All druggists sell Bayer Tablets of Aspirin in handy tin boxes of 12 tablets, and in bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

"We're going to be ever so happy, aren't we?" he said.

"Yes."

"And you'll never be cross with me again?"

"I wasn't cross. . . . It was only . . ."

"She turned her face away. "Somehow this afternoon," she said hesitatingly, "it all seemed wrong."

"Everything," she explained haltingly. "Our engagement—everything . . . it seemed as if you . . . you couldn't really love me. . . ."

The wheel jerked beneath his hand and the car zig-zagged dangerously for a moment.

"That's rather an unkind thing to say, isn't it?" he asked presently.

"I really thought it," she said sadly.

"And do you still think so?"

"No. . . ."

"You don't seem very sure," he said grimly.

She did not answer, and he turned his head and met her eyes.

"Are you sorry you said you would marry me?" he demanded. He felt that he must say something to hide his own embarrassment.

She slipped a hand into his.

"I shall never be sorry for that," she said.

CHAPTER X.

Dinner was progressing rather silently at the Highway House, when Philip Winterdick suddenly pushed back his chair and announced that he was going to be married in three weeks' time.

Mrs. Winterdick gasped.

"Three weeks, my dear boy! What is the hurry—you've only just got engaged."

"I know . . . may I smoke?—thanks. . . ."

He lit a cigarette, conscious that both his parents were watching him in utter amazement.

"Come, come, Phil, there's no such hurry," his father protested. "Wait till you've got to know each other better—it's early days yet. . . ."

Philip laughed.

"Think so? Well, I don't. . . . we're going to be married three weeks to-day."

Mrs. Winterdick began to cry softly.

"I can't bear the thought of losing you. The house won't be the same without you."

Philip looked at her with hard eyes.

"Oh, I dare say you'll see me almost as often as you do now," he said. "I don't fancy we shall live in town a great deal after all."

"In town? But, Phil. . . ."

Philip went on rapidly.

"Mr. Dennison is giving us a town house for a wedding present; he's going to furnish it and all the rest of it. I saw him to-night, and it's all settled. . . . Very generous of him, isn't it?"

His parents exchanged glances, and after a moment his father ventured another mild protest.

"It's a bit of a shock to your mother, you know, my boy; we hadn't thought of a wedding so soon. Why not put it off for a bit? Why not wait?"

"Because, if I put it off now, it will be for ever," Philip interrupted passionately. "If we wait, it will never come off at all. Once we're married, it will give us both a chance to settle down. As it is. . . ."

He laughed gleefully. "Another month of this and I shall have given the whole show away," he added.

"He got up and began to walk about the room."

"There's nothing for you to worry about, mother," he said more gently. "Eva's all right—she's a thundering sight too good for me. I shall shake down comfortably enough. It's only just . . . just the idea of it. . . . I've been so free—I've never been tied at all. . . ."

He laughed rather guiltily.

Was this how he would have felt if Kitty Arlington had been the girl he was to marry? He wondered. Somehow, in spite of everything, he did not think so. It had been easy to make love to her. He pushed the thought from him resolutely. She had thrown him over. He had wiped her out of his life for ever.

"I had hoped that perhaps you might both live here with us," Mrs. Winterdick said falteringly. "I am sure if I spoke to Eva about it . . . she seems such a nice girl."

Philip interrupted.

"She'd hate it, and so should I. It's kind of you, mother, but you know it never pays. We're far better in a house of our own . . . and as it's going to be given to us free of charge, well . . ."

"Phil. . . . Phil," said his father, rebukingly. He was shocked at the hardness in his son's voice.

The young man swung round. His eyes looked very fiery.

"I thought you'd both be pleased," he said loudly. "I quite expected to be overwhelmed with congratulations. Haven't I done the right thing? Don't you want me to get married after all?"

Mr. Winterdick had risen. He stood rubbing his hands together nervously.

"Yes, yes—of course, of course," he said. "It's only that we're so surprised—it was so unexpected."

Philip stared at him, then he burst out laughing.

It really struck him as being intensely funny after all that had happened that his father should say he was surprised. . . .

"Well, it's all signed and sealed," he said more quietly. "So you can see about a new get-up, mater. . . . It seems that we've got to have half the country to see us married. Old Dennison is going to give us what he calls a slap-up wedding! Champagne flowing like water, and all the rest of it. . . ."

He broke off suddenly.

Buried deep down in his heart there had been such dreams of the future—such tender dreams of his wedding-day—dreams of which he had been half ashamed, and now . . . a loveless marriage! An impossible future—this was all he had to look forward to.

There was a tragic silence in the beautiful room. Then Mrs. Winterdick went over to her son and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Phil," she said gently.

"Yes, mother. . . ."

"You shan't do it, dear," she said tremblingly. "You've got all your life before you, and ours—mine and your father's—are nearly done. It's not too late—the girl can be told the truth—she must be made to understand. . . ."

She looked away from him, and her eyes wandered over the room. She loved every inch of it, but she loved this man more.

"Oh, I must have been mad, mad!" she said passionately. "To think that I could ever really sacrifice you, Phil, my dear boy, let me tell you—I can take the blame—I can tell her the truth. . . . It's not too late. She must be made to understand that this marriage cannot take place. . . . The money can be given back—after all, there is nothing dishonourable in having to leave this house. . . ."

Her voice faltered and died away.

Philip raised his hand, took hers, and kissed it on the soft palm. Then he put her gently away.

"You don't understand, mother," he said gently. "It is too late—it's . . . it's much too late. I ought not to have said what I did just now—I hope you'll both forget it. . . ."

He turned to go, but she caught his arm.

"What do you mean, Phil? . . . not . . . you can't care for her—you don't want to marry her. . . ."

He shook his head. "I'm not the only one to be considered, am I?" he asked.

She understood. She let him go without a word. Her husband came over and patted her shoulder.

"You mustn't blame yourself—you mustn't fret—it's my fault—all my fault," he said brokenly.

She turned on him passionately. "It's my fault—oh, I must have been mad—to think of sacrificing him—his whole life—his whole happiness! What do a few years matter to us? It's of him we ought to have thought; our only son—our only son. . . ."

But she knew that Philip was right when he said it was too late. She knew that in honour bound—or at least what was left to them of their honour—they could not go back.

(To be continued.)

Salmon Salad

A can of salmon will serve twice as many people when combined with Knox Gelatine

1 envelope Knox Gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
Yolks of two eggs
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoonful mustard

Few grains cayenne
1½ tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons vinegar
¾ cup milk
1 can salmon

Soak Gelatine in cold water five minutes. Mix egg yolks slightly beaten, with salt, mustard and cayenne; then add butter, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add soaked Gelatine and salmon separated into flakes. Turn into fish mold, first dipped in cold water, chill and remove to bed of crisp lettuce leaves.

Get a box of Knox Gelatine at your grocer's to-day and try the above recipe.

Irish Peace Committee Will Report to Dail.

London Times Correspondent Rescued -- Much Amazement at De Valera's Proposals -- New Fishery Treaty Between Canada and United States.

PEACE COMMITTEE.

DUBLIN, Jan. 5. Dail Eireann, which met this morning with disruption threatened, adjourned to-night in the hope that a basis of agreement might be reached between supporters and opponents of the Anglo-Irish Treaty. The Peace Committee, which is trying to patch up a convention between the two factions, is meeting again to-night and will report at a private session of the Dail to-morrow. The announcement of the existing Peace Committee was the chief feature of the day, and a thrill was given to the general situation by the revelation that armed men, assumed to be Republican Army opponents of the Treaty, had kidnapped the correspondent of the London Times and carried him to Cork. Agents of Michael Collins, however, rescued him and he is returning unharmed to Dublin, it was reported to-night.

THE UNKNOWN FACTOR.

LONDON, Jan. 5. All English newspaper correspondents record the amazement caused by the submission of De Valera's alternative proposals to Dail Eireann, and doubts arising therefrom. They generally agree that the entrance of this factor greatly alters the situation, and that the action of Dail cannot be predicted.

WAITING AND WONDERING.

DUBLIN, Jan. 5. Adjournment of Dail was to give members the opportunity of discussing the situation created by the presentation of De Valera's alternative proposals. It was regarded by many as a hopeful sign that some agreement might be reached. One member of Dail stated that an effort would be made to reach an agreement on the plan proposed the other day by Michael Collins, that opponents of the Treaty should abstain from voting and permit the Treaty to pass.

SAYS TREATY WILL BE DEFEATED.

LONDON, Jan. 5. J. J. Walsh, member of Dail Eireann, is quoted in a Central News despatch from Dublin to-day as saying, "I can definitely state that as the position stands the Treaty will be defeated by at least two votes."

NEWFOUNDLANDER KILLED.

SYDNEY, Jan. 5. David Hodder, a native of Newfoundland, was killed here to-day when coal from a hopper on the pier fell on his head. He leaves a widow and one child.

SUBMARINE RULES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. The full naval committee of the Arms Conference issued a communique to-night saying the following rules were adopted unanimously:

laid by changes of government in both countries, it is expected some action will result in a comparatively short time. The war-time agreement between the two governments, made in 1918, which provided for reciprocity in port privileges, and admitted Canadian fish free in American markets though requiring American fishermen selling catches in Canadian ports to pay Canadian customs duty, if any, was abrogated so far as the U.S.A. was concerned last summer. Canada, however, has continued the war-time privileges to American fishing vessels for the nominal payment of one dollar per vessel annually.

TRAINS MOVING AGAIN.

SYDNEY, Jan. 5. Eastern Nova Scotia dug itself out of the snow to-night and the Halifax express, seventy-two hours late, was on the way here. It started snowing again to-night.

EGYPTIAN OFFICIAL'S NARROW ESCAPE.

CAIRO, Jan. 5. Badreldine Bey, controller of the Egyptian Government, Crimes Department, narrowly escaped assassination to-day at the hands of a youth believed to be a student. Bey was seriously wounded by a revolver shot. He returned the fire but the assailant escaped.

ITALY WILL FOLLOW FRANCE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. Italy has decided to accept the second Root resolution prohibiting attacks by submarines on merchantmen providing France does the same, it was said to-day in authoritative circles.

FIRE'S DESTRUCTIVE WORK.

WEST HARTLEPOOL, Eng. Jan. 5. Scores of houses were laid waste to-day, two thousand people rendered homeless, and more than one million pounds damage done by a fire which broke out yesterday in the timber yards here.

TO HELP RUSSIAN CHILDREN.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5. An appeal to Canadians to help save the starving children of Russia, was considered by a gathering of Protestant clergymen here to-day, and it was decided to ask the Canadian Government to make an appropriation to be turned over to the British or other relief organizations.

THE MERCHANTS BANK ENQUIRY.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5. Forty-two prominent financiers of Montreal have been summoned as witnesses in the enquete court here on January 9, and ordered to bring with them all books and papers relating to dealings with the Merchants Bank, which is to be absorbed by the Bank of Montreal, and the brokerage house of Thornton Davidson, now in liquidation and through which the Merchants Bank is said to have lost four million dollars at least, and Colin Cameron, the manager, at present under arrest charged with stealing half a million dollars in connection with the brokerage house. Among those summoned are, Sir Montague Allan, President of the Merchants Bank; D. C. Macarow, late General Manager, and its directors including Hon. C. C. Ballantyne. They will be examined in the enquete court in the case against Cameron.

DISCUSSING REPARATIONS.

CANNES, Jan. 5. Reparations were discussed by executives of the Supreme Council here to-day, the Belgians opposing any modification in the schedules of payments or compromise their priority on the 2,500,000,000 marks due from Germany. The French delegation are backing the Belgians on this point.

Vancouver Woman Stayed in Her Bed For Weeks at Time

Mrs. Dearsley Was Sick And Miserable For Years—Is Now Well And Happy.

"I can never say enough for Tanlac after what it has done for me, for it has changed me from a sick, miserable woman to a well and happy one," said Mrs. H. T. Dearsley, 331 Georgia St., West, Vancouver, B.C. "It has been all of eight years ago that my stomach trouble commenced, and as time went on I grew gradually worse. Finally my whole system seemed to give way and I would be confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I had the most violent headaches and my nerves were so tense they felt like they would snap in two. It is almost beyond belief the way Tanlac has restored me to health and I can hardly realize that I am the same person. Tanlac was surely a blessing to me."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

STRIKE.

Some day, I trust, all swords will rust, and armor cease to rattle; all wars are vain and men insane when they resort to battle.

The dove of peace should never cease cavorting round above us, and human life should know no strife and those who hate should love us. The wolves and bears come from their lairs and scrap around like blazes, and hunting foes the bobcat goes along the forest mazes. But I, at least, am not a beast, I claim that I am human; I do not care to rip and tear and fuss with man or woman. I wear a smile that's free from guile, I treat all gently politely; and troubles veer when I come near, I have no scraps unsightly. I herd my cows and seek no rows, and so no rows come near me; no roar ascends from injured friends, but kindly greetings cheer me. If I packed gas and shot men's hats, to show my independence, I'd be in jail and there I'd wait for medical attendance. Men, friendly now, would punch my brow, and tear my scalp to ribbons, and break my dome with "Fall of Rome" and other works of Gibbon's. When nations skip without war's stream of gore will roll, a chip upon each martial shoulder, more, and guns will rust and molder.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ALL RIGHT UNTIL THEY OPEN THEIR MOUTHS.

RUTH CAMERON

How many people are all right, until they open their mouths, and then are all wrong? I mean that in several senses. In the first place when people open their mouths they show their teeth—unless they are careful. And to one set of teeth that add to the three or four that detract. Of course this is going to be less so in the future than it was in the past. What with dental hygiene in the schools, greatly improved methods of dentistry and an awakened public conscience in regard to the value of good teeth for health as well as beauty, the next generation cannot help having better teeth than the present one.

Unpleasant Social Offences.

Another way in which people sometimes destroy a good impression when they open their mouths is,—well I hesitate how to express it delicately and that ought to let you know what I mean. There are few social offenses more antagonizing and more inexcusable than a bad breath. Besides, a bad breath is a danger signal to its possessor that there is something wrong with him. It may be his teeth, or it may be his stomach, but whatever it is it should be looked after both for his health's sake and for the sake of keeping on friendly terms with his friends. Of course a person sometimes doesn't know that he is offending in this direction. It isn't exactly a thing you care to call anyone's attention to. But surely there must be someone in his family who loves him enough to perform the disagreeable duty.

A Third Way.

The third way in which people spoil themselves when they open their mouths is by their voices. Haven't you seen a thoroughly pretty girl somewhere and been delighted with her prettiness until she opened her mouth and out came a voice that spoiled the whole effect? Perhaps it was nasal, perhaps it was sharp and high pitched, perhaps it had that peculiar roughness that seems to ro with lack of education and breeding. And weren't you reminded of the peacock and the lavish way he has been given beauty of plumage and ugliness of voice? But the peacock is excusable and some of the voices we hear are not.

QUIT TOBACCO

So easy to drop Cigarette, Cigar, or Chewing habit.

No-To-Bac has helped thousands to break the costly, nerve-shattering tobacco habit. Whenever you have a longing for a smoke or chew, just place a harmless No-To-Bac tablet in your mouth instead. All desire stops. Shortly the habit is completely broken, and you are better off mentally, physically, financially. It's so easy, so simple. Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

Wouldn't "Live In."

"Haven't you a job yet?" "No, sir." "Didn't you answer that advertisement for a baker's assistant that I gave you?" "No, sir." "Why is that?" "Well, sir, perhaps you didn't trouble to read it. But it said, 'Wanted—Strong youth to help take charge of ovens in bakery. Live in.' Now, sir, I ain't the sort of chap to be roasted for thirty bob a week, you bet!"

Friday, January 6, 1922.

Morineophobia.

The Advocate has this malady violently. The bare mention of Mr. Morine's name is sufficient for our otherwise broadminded and easy-going contemporary to froth at the mouth, and use up all the strength of its vituperation and invective against the gentleman who was one time chosen by the President himself to be the guide, philosopher, counsel and friend of the Union. But times change. Not finding Mr. Morine subservient to his wishes, nor bound by his desires, the President turned on him tooth and nail, and it is more or less of a habit that the attacks on the erstwhile Solicitor of the F.P.U. on all occasions since his contumacy should be particularly venomous and personal. What Mr. Morine's defeat in Bonavista district by Mr. Coaker in 1919 has to do with, the subject at issue, is not quite clear. But doubtless the Advocate, in its verdancy, is under the impression that such impassioned clap-trap as characterises its leading article in Wednesday's issue, will appeal to the fishermen of the North. Mr. Morine does not give gratuitous advice to the Union Trading and Export Companies as to how they should run their business. That would be impossible. He but suggests a method by which the fishermen shareholders would be better off if certain things were done, and every fisherman in the island will agree with him if allowed to use his own judgment and not permit himself to be bulldozed by the frothy and superficial articles on the Advocate's daily literary menu. Co-operation has to come, and co-operation in marketing will prove the ultimate salvation of Newfoundland. Commerce and politics will not mix any more than oil and water can unite. So far as the Telegram standing indicted for its declaration that "the Union cannot be saved financially unless it ceases to function politically," we are willing to stand by that statement. The fishermen-shareholders will themselves discover the truth of it ere long. The astounding part of it only is that it is not palatable to Mr. Coaker; nor is it unwarranted. The future will tell. We repeat again that the financial salvation—not of the F.P.U.—but of the Union Trading and Export Companies can only come through their being absolutely divorced from politics. The quicker shareholders realise this, the better. Commercially we believe that these concerns are a splendid asset to the trade of Newfoundland, and notwithstanding the frenzied shrieks of the Advocate that the desire is to kill the Union Companies financially, no person knows better that the one desire of all is to see them flourish. But before that happy circumstance can be accomplished in full measure party politics must be eschewed by the organization.

Feast of the Epiphany.

TWELFTH DAY.

To-day (Jan. 6) is being celebrated in commemoration of the Epiphany or the Manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles—the Magi or Wise Men who had been guided to the Manger at Bethlehem by the Star (Matt. chap. 2). In very early times, says the Church Dictionary, the whole twelve days' festival which began with the day of the Nativity was called the Epiphany; but in course of time the name was limited to the last day of the twelve. In the Eastern Church the event selected for special commemoration on the last day was the Baptism of our Lord, as the occasion of His manifestation to St. John the Baptist, and through him to the world. In the Western Church the manifestation of the Saviour to the Wise Men from the East, as the first fruits of the Gentile world, was selected as the special subject for commemoration. Being the twelfth day after Christmas to-day was formerly devoted to festivities of various kinds in celebration of the visit of the three kings (Magi) one person being chosen as king of the feast.

Schooner Makes Port.

IN BLINDING SNOW STORM.

Schr. Willie K., Capt. Barry, was towed to port last night by the tug Hugh D., at midnight in blinding snow and wind. Capt. Barry says he left Catalina in ample time to reach port early, but the wind gave out at 2 p.m. yesterday when six miles north of Cape St. Francis. He signalled for a tug, and was expecting to get one until 7 p.m. when all hope was given up. At dark the vessel was lying becalmed south of Cape St. Francis. The motor boat was hoisted out and towed the schooner abreast of Flatrock, when the wind sprang up from S.E. and blew strongly with snow. Capt. Barry says they were just thinking of putting in a bad night when the tug Hugh D. came alongside at 10.45. He might have tried to get to Carbonara, knowing he was to have some wind and snow, but as he had signalled for a tug, did not want to deceive any one. It seems that he would not have got to port at all but for the captain of a Danish vessel coming out of Conception Bay which was six or seven miles ahead and towed to port earlier, who reported seeing a vessel with signals up, which brought the Hugh D. out. The seamanship of both captain and crew of the Willie K. is to be commended.

Red Cross Liner Silvia.

The work of reclassing s.s. Silvia, which will run in conjunction with s.s. Rosalind on the Halifax-New York route, will not likely be ready to come to this side for the next two or three months. The alterations to the ship are being made at Greenock, and when completed the Silvia will be first class in every particular.

It is proposed on Sunday evening next to repeat the Xmas Music consisting of Choruses from Handel's "Messiah." Miss Herder taking the Solo "Oh Thou That Telles," and carols by T. Tertius Noble of St. Thomas's Church, New York, the soloist being Miss Vincent.

Committee on Unemployment.

The above Committee met last night in the board of Trade Rooms, when the situation regarding unemployment was discussed at considerable length, and many valuable suggestions were put forward, particularly by the representatives of the various labor organizations. The committee was of the opinion that suitable work could be arranged to take care of the situation during the winter months, and that the co-operation of citizens generally would go far to help those who are unfortunately out of employment. It was decided to investigate the possibilities of the various schemes suggested, and that the matter be again taken up at a meeting to be held next week.

Storm-Tossed Schooner at Channel.

Deputy Minister of Customs Le Messurier received a message yesterday afternoon from Channel stating that the schooner Enid E. Legge had arrived there in a damaged condition. The vessel was bound to St. John's from Macleod in ballast, and encountered stormy weather on the passage. The Legge had all her sails carried away and the crew had a trying time as their provisions had run short. Repairs to the vessel will be made at Channel.

Our Local Pepys.

HIS DIARY.

January 5th.—It being frost and dry, as far as this office, and all the talk of the situation in Ireland, and how Mr. DeValera, that calls himself President of the Irish Republic, makes alternative proposals to the Irish Treaty. I, therefore, to read the public dispatches about the matter, but did become addled by the divers issues, nor am I now any the wiser. So to Water Street, where I hear how the Government hath ordered the branch lines of the railway to be kept open and this, despite the Railway Commission, and the Act. And it is indeed hard to know who are now ruling the country, seeing how that which is done one day is undone the next, and what things are coming to is known to few men. News comes from Botwood of the aeroplane that would fly to Halifax, and how in starting, it did go through the ice and suffer damage. And my letters, which I did send by air mail being still undelivered, they will, I think, remain so. Mr. Briggs comes to me and tells me that there is news upon the street that there will be much work for men on Bell Island soon. How true this is I cannot tell. To the Board of Trade, where meeting Sir P. McGrath, he comes to shake me by the hand and tells me of his visit to Canada and America about the boundary of the Labrador. To the C.L.B. Club, and to play at ping-pong. And I win my game, being in mighty good form, and so home, well pleased. But my wife makes complaint that I have not allowed her enough money and asks for more. Nor does she pay heed to what I tell her of the difficulties of the times, and how there is mighty little left to me after paying my accounts. So I to give her a cheque for twenty dollars, nor does she say so much as thank you, which is a piece of gross ingratitude, but is no more than I did expect from her.

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

FEAST OF EPIPHANY.

(From the Telegram File.)

Mrs. Coady, resident of Torbay, had three men before court for breaking open her door whilst they were going the rounds of the place dressed as mummies.

A marine monster 15 feet long in the body, 11 feet girth, with tentacles 37 feet long was captured at Barrisway, Little Placentia. The fish was cut up by its captors and only the beak was saved. This was sent to Mr. Howley at the Museum.

The W. S. Harkins Co. with Miss Jessie Bonstelle as leading lady, staged "The Girl in the Barracks" in the T. A. Hall.

The Star of the Sea Association headed by Prof. Power's Band paraded to Mass at St. Patrick's Church Riverhead. The C.C.C. Band also accompanied the Society.

A party of Scots Greys were ambushed by the Boers near Pretoria. The British losses amounted to six killed and thirteen wounded.

Masons' Attend Funeral.

A Guard of Honour from Avalon Lodge of the Masonic Body attended the funeral of the late Mr. E. T. Kavill, which took place at 2.30 p.m. to-day. Interment was in the Church of England Cemetery. It will be remembered that Mr. Kavill was killed by a fall from a window in New York. A wreath was sent to adorn the casket by the Marine Engineer's Association of this city.

Building Up Road.

The work of rebuilding the Church Hill or "Molasses" Road at Spaniard's Bay is now proceeding. This road was damaged in the great storm of Oct. last. The work is being done under the supervision of Mr. T. A. Hall, the Government Engineer. Only men who are destitute or in poor circumstances are employed on this work. It is expected that it will be completed shortly. This is the only road work which is now going on in connection with damage done by the October storm.

Sale of Work.

A sale of work and Christmas Tree held at Kibridge terminated Wednesday night with a dance. The sale was well patronized. Rev. Fr. Rawlinson and his co-workers being well pleased with the amount realized, which will be devoted to the needs of the parish.

Marine Engineers Meet.

At a meeting of the Marine Engineers held last night a vote of sympathy was passed to the wife and family of the late E. T. Kavill, whose funeral took place this afternoon. Many minor matters were discussed at the meeting and arrangements made for holding of the annual meeting. Two engineers who received their tickets yesterday John Tizzard (1st) and Aston Joffe (2nd) were complimented by the Executive on their success.

Still Alarm.

A telephone message this morning called the Central Fire Company to the residence of Mr. F. Dodd, where a slight blaze was in progress. The fire originated in a clothes closet and was caused by a 3-year-old child lighting matches. A quantity of apparel including a fur coat and suit of clothes was destroyed but no damage was done to the building.

Rosalind's Passengers.

S.S. Rosalind sails at 1 p.m. tomorrow for Halifax and New York. The ship will call at Sydney on the trip to take 500 tons of sulphite of ammonia for New York. The following passengers have booked accommodation: J. Canley, Miss Mary Casey, H. Payne, G. R. Vokey, Miss Edith Vokey, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Greig, Elsie and John Greig, Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. S. Gordon, W. H. Martin, David Johnson, N. H. Gosse, Miss Laura Roper, Miss Elsie Dempster. The ship has a full freight outward.

Presentation Made.

A pleasing event took place at the C. L. B. Armoury last night when Sergt. Major Downtown, President of the Warrant and N. C. O.'s Mess, presented to Lance Corporal W. R. Boone a silver butter dish as a wedding present. L.-C. Boone recently joined the ranks of the Benedicts and, as he is a popular member of the Mess, his comrades were not slow to present him with a token of their esteem. Appropriate speeches were made during the presentation.

Preparations Completed

PULPWOOD CUTTING PROCEEDING.

The preparations necessary, before the work of cutting pulpwood for relief work could be started, have now been completed. These preparations consisted of making camps and attending to other necessities of a somewhat similar nature. It is presumed that the actual work has now begun in earnest, although some little work is supposed to have been done in the past few weeks. No report has yet been received by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines.

Providing for Relief.

BUILDING BREAKWATER AT TWILLINGATE.

A relief commission consisting of leading business men of the place has been provided for Twillingate proper. This has been made necessary because the people of that settlement are too far distant from the scene of the pulpwood operations to permit of their participation in that scheme. Several of the 4,000 residents in Twillingate proper are in poor circumstances and it has been decided to build up the breakwater. Some of the men will be sent to the woods to cut timber and others will attend to the ballast. The commission will supervise this work and see that it is done properly.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—The Child Welfare Association gratefully acknowledge the sum of Twenty-five Dollars from the pupils of the Presbyterian School and Five Dollars from Mrs. A. B. Morine.—Jan 6, 21

Schr. Freedom, Capt. Noseworthy, arrived in port last night, 25 days from Turk's Island, with a cargo of salt to A. S. Rendell.

Schr. General Gough has entered to load codfish at Grand Bank for Oporto.

POSTPONEMENT

An advertisement in another column announces the postponement of the performance of "The Quaker Girl" scheduled for to-morrow night. Over half the tickets had been sold in advance, and holders of these will use them for Monday night's show. The past week has been an exceedingly strenuous one on the performers, and it was considered most desirable, in view of the Matinee to-morrow afternoon, to afford a well needed rest to the entire cast. The run of the Musical Comedy will be continued until Wednesday next. Further particulars may be had at Royal Stationery Company, phone 842.—adv.

Week of Prayer.

Rev. C. H. Johnson Delivers Practical Address on Home, Its Duties and Sanctity.

(I. C. M.)

As the week passes the impressions of the services of the Week of Prayer are deepening, and great interest is being manifested, both by pastors and people. And so it was last night at the Congregational Church, where a large congregation assembled, and where earnest prayers were offered, and a practical talk delivered. Like all the services of the week, the singing was hearty, and the hymns were such as suited the topic of the evening, and there was a volume of song at once inspiring.

The service was in charge of the Pastor of the Church, the Rev. B. T. Holden, and the address was delivered by the Rev. C. H. Johnson. Like the other rev. gentlemen who have officiated during the week, both these pastors are with us for the first time in the Week of Prayer, and we feel safe in saying that the united feelings of all present last night were in their favour.

The topic was one of the most important that the church can consider, viz: "The Home and Young People." The speaker began by summarising the other topics of the week. Repentance was a personal matter. The local church was a community matter. The cause of Missions was a universal matter. The home, at first sight, may appear a lesser subject, but it was not, for from the home went out those in which really constitute the State. In ancient times the home-life of the people was not as ideal as it is to-day. The Hebrew people had the best ideals of home-life up to their time, but it was not until the Redeemer came that the home was established on the high principles which follow from his teachings. The Christian home afforded the best opportunity of training, and the nearer our homes were conducted to religious teachings the better should our more public life be. The family was the best asset of the city, and those people who had homes, but had not families, could do great good, and disseminate much blessing, by taking into their homes two or three children who had lost their parents. This was certainly a timely and charitable suggestion on the part of the speaker. Will anyone heed it? Would that some may do so. Continuing the speaker referred to family prayer, and he paid a high tribute to the home-life of St. John's as far as he knew it, in this respect. The influence of prayer in the home, and of consistent Christian living by the parents before their children were of paramount importance. If the head of the family broke one law of the land, or of the Decalogue, and his children knew it, he could not blame them if they in turn broke the law also. There was great need of a higher standard of life in the home circle, and the best life of the home circle makes the best life of the community. The address was twenty minutes in delivery, and was listened to with close and eager attention, and all that was said was plain, practical and sincere—and without a doubt, helpful.

Ping Pong Tournament.

INSTITUTE DEFEATS C. L. B. The first ping pong tournament for the year was held last night when the C.E.I. team defeated the officers of the C.L.B. by a margin of 33 points. The tournament was played in the C.E.I. rooms. It was keenly contested and in some cases the results were rather surprising. The scores were:

C.L.B.—Lt. Col. Goodridge, 34; Major R. H. Tait, 33; Lieut. A. B. Perlin, 45; Lieut. P. B. Rendell, 41; Lieut. H. C. Hayward, 26; Lieut. F. Reid, 25. Total 204.

C.E.I.—Lt. Knight, 42; F. F. Willis, 45; H. Worsley, 23; T. Cook, 41; J. Edwards, 48; L. Hookey, 46. Total 242.

It is expected that a return tournament will be played shortly. Ping pong is apparently in for a revival, as several are now taken it up.

Enjoyable Smoker.

Mr. C. E. Hunt presided over the Smoker which the Llewellyn Club held in the Canon Wood Hall last night. The President, Rev. E. C. Earp, was absent through illness. There was a large gathering of members and the visitors included Rev. Canon Jeeves and Rev. A. B. S. Stirling. An enjoyable programme was rendered, those taking part being Messrs. H. F. Glass, F. M. Ruggles, J. C. Fitzgerald, A. R. Stansfield, Geo. McDonald, L. Green, H. J. Earl, Revs. Canon Jeeves, A. B. S. Stirling, C. A. Moulton. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the performers and to Mr. R. W. Jeans who arranged the programme. Refreshments were served after the concert.

CHIMNEY FIRE.—The Central and West End fire companies were called last evening to the residence of Mr. R. Callahan, LeMarchant Road, where a chimney fire was in progress. The blaze was quenched after a few minutes and no damage was done.

Leaming Lodge, L.O.A.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

The regular meeting of Leaming L.O.L. was held last night, when the installation of the officers elected at the annual meeting, was conducted. The installing officer was Grand Master, Bro. W. H. Cave, assisted by P.M. Bro. S. H. Peet, as installing marshal. After the ceremony congratulatory speeches were made by the R.W.G.M. Bro. W. H. Cave, P.G.M. J. C. Puddister, several Past Masters and the W.M. of Royal Oak Lodge. The new W.M., Bro. G. T. Phillips enters upon his term with every assurance of active support of the members of the Lodge. A pleasing incident connected with the installation was the presentation of a Past Master's Jewel to W. Bro. E. A. Crowther, who retired last year after a successful term.

GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Following the regular meeting, the Sub-Committee on the Golden Jubilee celebration of the establishment of the Association in Newfoundland, was held and plans discussed. It has not yet been decided what form the celebration will take, but there is no doubt that it will be in keeping with the event and do credit to the Society. Another pleasing feature was an invitation extended by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary Lodge Davidson, L.O.B.A. to repair to their lodge room to be entertained at supper. The W.M. for the Lodge accepted the invitation with many expressions of thanks and appreciation and a very pleasant and fraternal time was spent.

NEW COUNCIL TAKES OFFICE.

Secretary - Treas. Says Deficit for 1921 Will Go Into Thousands.

The new Council elected by the ratepayers on December 15th last, formally assumed office yesterday. Hon. Tasker Cooke being sworn in as Mayor by the Chief Justice in the forenoon who in summoning the Councillors to the regular meeting was called to order at 4.30 p.m., the full Council being in attendance.

His Honor Mayor Cooke in taking his seat spoke briefly, congratulating the Councillors who had been selected by the taxpayers, and asked that co-operation be given in every undertaking for the benefit of and advancement of the city. Wild schemes, he said, were out of the question. Sane government must necessarily be undertaken, and if conditions could be improved economy must be practised and every dollar of revenue used to the utmost advantage. It was very necessary, he said, that the financial standing of the Council should be first at hand before any move at expenditure be made. Rumors were abroad that the financial status of the Council did not stand 100 per cent. Personally he had not time to go into this matter, and he asked the Sec.-Treas. to state how conditions were.

The reply from Mr. Mahony was: "I am afraid, sir, we will have to face a very large deficit. It will probably be the largest on record. The past year's outlay has been enormous, and the collections not up to expectations."

Continuing Mayor Cooke said there was no need to further discuss the financial problem until such time as the Sec.-Treas. had a full statement ready which he ordered to be submitted at next regular meeting.

Councillor Dowden, complimented the Mayor firstly on his election to office, and secondly for the position he had taken as to financial affairs. So far as he was concerned he had no other motive than to serve the city and to see that every dollar of revenue was judiciously spent. He regretted that the suggestions of the late Mayor or Morris had been made public as he understood they were only offered in a friendly spirit, and not for any other purpose. The idea of a "runway" over Barker's Hill, was, in his opinion, nonsensical, and instead of benefiting a people would only be endangering their lives. He regretted that an over-expenditure had been made during 1921, and offered the opinion that if the press was properly represented at the meetings the last year and an unbiased report given after each meeting such would not have occurred. In the future he hoped the press would be represented and full reports given.

Councillor Martin congratulated Mayor Cooke on his election and in the main way in which it was conducted, notwithstanding what was said to the contrary. He wished to endorse all that had been said by Councillor Dowden whose expressions he believed were timely and well reasoned.

Councillor Outerbridge after briefly congratulating the Mayor and Councillors moved, that Councillor Martin be appointed Deputy Mayor. In doing so he wished it to be remembered that Mr. Martin had led the poll, that the ballots showed he had the confidence of every class of citizen and as an appreciation of the vote given him, it was the duty of the Council to elect him as Deputy Mayor.

Councillor Ryan seconded the motion and in doing so paid a tribute to Councillor Martin's work while member of former Boards. He was prepared to support every measure that meant betterment for the city, but every expenditure should be within means at disposal.

Councillor Dowden supported the motion and also Councillor Vincombe and being put was carried unanimously.

Councillor Collier after congratulating the Mayor referred to the publication of the suggestions of ex-Mayor Morris. He agreed with Councillor Dowden that they should not have been published. Their publication was either a breach of faith or an oversight, but in either case it was improper.

Councillor Vincombe held similar views. In his opinion they should not have been published. He had never heard of the different proposals before, and it looked as if they were placed on the new Council as a legacy. The opinion was probably abroad that the proposals were the work of the old Council but he hoped such impression would be removed. As a member of the old Board he disclaimed any connection whatever with the programme, and believed the publication was unnecessary and uncalled for.

Mayor Cooke also regretted the publication but took the position that further discussion was useless and of no avail.

Councillor Dowden asked the question as to the expenditure covering the Municipal Election. The Sec.-Treas. was asked to read the minutes of the final meeting of the old Council, which showed that the total cost was in the vicinity of $8,000.00 as per original bill presented by Returning Officer Doyle. The old Council had deducted from the original bill $1,776.00, it had been ordered by the outgoing Board that the original bill and the bill as modified by the old Council be published.

Councillor Collier asked why it had not been published. In his opinion it should have been. The original bill asked for $100.00 for four checkers. A large amount for cab driving and carting ballot boxes, etc. A great deal had been said about the Road de Luxe—but in his opinion the matter under discussion was of bigger magnitude and full publicity should be given.

After some further discussion in which Councillors Vincombe, Dowden, Outerbridge and Ryan took part, it was decided that the resolution of the old Board be complied with and the original bill and the other with deductions made by the Council be published.

Applications were read from J. Fogarty and J. Morrissey for a position as Sanitary Inspector; also from J. Coady and Archibald Lock for a position as Impounder. No such positions are at present vacant, but the applications were ordered placed on file for future reference.

R. C. Hopkins, Contractor, asked permission to erect signboard for Barnes and Company, Waldegrave Street. This was referred to the City Engineer, and if it meets with his approval, permit may be issued.

The matter of street crossings was discussed, and the Sanitary Supervisor was instructed to have same attended to by his Department.

A discussion took place on arrears due, account City Taxes, and it is the intention of the Council to have all delinquents in this respect prosecuted.

The financial position of the Council was also talked over, and it was ordered that statements be prepared and submitted for next meeting so that they may form an idea of their present standing.

Deputy Mayor Martin was appointed to represent the Council on the Committee recently formed to consider methods to meet the unemployment situation.

Reports of City Engineer, Health Officer, etc. for week were read; pay rolls and bills presented were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

The following matters received attention:—
Patrick Mallard, Pleasant Street, asked compensation for damages caused his premises through overflow of gully on said street. The Engineer was instructed to report on same for next meeting.

Mr. Hibbs, Livingstone Street, called attention to defective water service, which was a source of great inconvenience and expense to him during the past year. The Engineer is to investigate and report.

A communication was received from J. J. Lacey, in reference to Taxes on Insurance, Stock and Loan Companies, etc., recently published in the daily papers. The Sections dealing with such taxes are, at present, law, and the Council has no power to make alterations.

The Secretary of the Newfoundland Board of Trade submitted report and recommendations of the subcommittee appointed to consider improved methods in connection with the watering of shipping. Deferred for consideration.

Applications were read from J. Fogarty and J. Morrissey for a position as Sanitary Inspector; also from J. Coady and Archibald Lock for a position as Impounder. No such positions are at present vacant, but the applications were ordered placed on file for future reference.

M. C. L. I. Debate.

MANY SPEAKERS ON MOST INTERESTING SUBJECT.

Rarely if ever in fifty-five years has M.C.L.I. debated a resolution so heatedly and hence so interestingly as last night, when the subject of Competition vs. Co-operation came up to be thrashed out to the satisfaction of the very large number who had turned up. If last evening is to be taken as a criterion of the season, there is every reason for believing that the present will be the best in the long history of the well-known institute.

The Speakers.

The set speakers who opened up the fray were: affirmative, J. A. W. McNelly, Fred Gushue and William Crane; and negative, Albert Soper, C. F. Garland and Fred Edgecombe. The leaders started the ball rolling with each an exposition of what competition and co-operation was. The floor took up the threads of the argument, and a surprisingly large number mounted the tribune to outline their views. These members were: Joseph Moore, A. B. Parkins, George Jones, Capt. A. Kean, S. P. Whiteway, William Drover, A. E. Hayward, S. Bursey, Fred Moore, William White, Thos. Soper, J. S. Currie and J. R. Smallwood.

The Resolution

The wording of the resolution was: "That the public interests are better served by the competitive system than they would be by the co-operative system." Both sides explained what was meant by the two systems, and the two sides disagreed in their interpretation of what the systems were. Indeed, throughout the evening the affirmative and negative speakers treated the subject from almost divergent angles.

The Arguments.

The negative side maintained, for example, that while there is a competitive system of business there is no co-operative system as yet, whatever the future might bring forth.

Only scattered and varying examples of what the co-operative idea would be like are to be seen. The affirmative policy was to take these examples and, by contrasting them with the capitalist or competitive system, make them look very imperfect. The negative side maintained that by co-operative and competitive systems as mentioned, what was meant was systems of production and distribution of commodities and articles of universal use—not competition or co-operation in ideas or athletics or education, but in trade, commerce and industry. The affirmative maintained that co-operation in all things of life. The affirmative maintained that co-operation would destroy individual initiative. The competitive system, they said, brought out great individual efforts. Bible precedents of struggle, competition and rivalry were cited. One speaker mentioned a boat race on Quidi Vidi as an example of competition. Another pointed out that there was co-operation as well—co-operation in the individual crews, and competition between whole crews. The negative maintained that athletics had nothing to do with it. In fact, throughout the whole debate the two sides treated the subject from two different attitudes, altogether.

Difficult to be Impartial.

It is difficult for the writer of this article to be quite impartial in the presentation of the two sets of argument—he had his own side to support, and naturally is of the opinion that his side had the best of the argument. It may be remarked, however, that the negative side really did have the best of it so far as proof and logic went and the reason for the voice, which favored the competitive system, might indeed be what the leader of the negative said, in his closing speech: "If you don't vote for our side, the only thing I can think of is that you don't understand what co-operation is." (Laughter.) The negative side cited many results of extreme individualism and competition. Competition between nations resulted in the Great War and the slaughter of fifteen millions. Competition as to soned international relations as to make it necessary to maintain great navies and armies that drained the pockets of taxpayers. Competitive industry succeeds in exploiting the wage earner, produces slums, prostitution, vice, crime and sin. Competitive industry stands for profit, and co-operative business for service. Co-operation eliminates waste and conserves resources. Competition is stationary forces at play throughout the ages. It was not an end—it was a perfect—it was not final, it was a stage. Evolution never stopped, and out of competition would grow up co-operation, just as out of feudalism grew up capitalism. It all comes in continuous, almost imperceptible change. Even now, within the husk of the old, we see the beginnings of the new, in the shape of co-operative societies. Co-operative societies would eventually merge into the grand whole of co-operative society.

Societies and Society.

The affirmative pointed to the failure of co-operative societies, their faulty construction and imperfections and shortcomings, as reasons against the co-operative system. They said that co-operative societies were business like every other business, for profit. They said that even if any country should go into co-operation on a national scale, and become a co-operative commonwealth, it would mean, simply, that in its relations with other nations the other nations would suffer.

Matter of Evolution.

The negative replied that that was so. But just as co-operative societies within any nation were the beginning of co-operative society in that nation, or preceded the co-operative commonwealth, so did co-operative commonwealths precede a world commonwealth of co-operation. It was all a matter of evolution. Change was usually steady and continuous and almost imperceptible. The negative set no time limit. The co-operative commonwealth might not come for many years, and the world co-operative commonwealth not for many years later. It was all a matter of evolution, and time was no object. It would come when things were ripe for it. The affirmative maintained that human nature contained much of selfishness. Selfishness was the core of the competitive system. To have a co-operative system it would be necessary to change human nature. The negative answered that it was true that that part of human nature would have to be changed and it would be changed. Human nature was not a fixed, stationary quality, but changing and evolutionary. We were not now so selfish, or rather our selfishness did not now take such virulent form as in ages past. Man is a social animal, gravitating to each and forming groups, first families, then clans, then tribes, then wandering nations, then stationary nations, then empires, and so on. If needs be, the affirmative was prepared to grow a generation in whom the co-operative idea was fostered and cultivated, and defer the co-operative commonwealth until then. (Laughter.) Seriously, though, human nature changed continuously to suit external conditions and systems.

Altogether it was a debate sufficient to delight the heart of any controversialist and any lover of contention and debate. Many points were brought out, and the evening was one of the most enjoyable held in many a day.—J.R.S.

New Account of Nelson's Victory.

PORT OF TRAFALGAR RETOLD.

On the one hundred and sixteenth anniversary of the great sea fight of Trafalgar—Oct. 21—a new account, by Capt. Andrew Green, of R.M.S. Neptune, of the defeat of the French and Spanish fleets was published in English. The New York Times. The argument was discovered by Lord St. Helier, great-grandson of Captain F. Fremantle, of the Neptune, in looking over neglected family papers. Although considerably more than one hundred years have passed since Trafalgar, Nelson's plan of battle is still subject of discussion in naval circles. In 1912 an Admiralty committee, with Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge as chairman, made an inquiry into the handling of British ships in the engagement. Existing models and diagrams seemed to indicate, in the opinion of some critics, that Nelson's captains did not always understand the positions assigned to them. The committee, after a full inquiry, concluded, on all the evidence available, that the diagrams were faulty in not showing the real places of ships in the attacking fleet; also that the divisions were formed in two lines ahead which had been questioned.

Collingwood's Impatience.
Collingwood, it is said, would have preferred "a line of bearing rather than a line ahead," but Nelson's tactics were strategically sounder, as the event proved. In a note to Southey's "Life of Nelson" it is said that when the flags began to go up for the admiral's signal, "England, expects every man will do his duty," Collingwood, not knowing what the signal was, said to himself: "I wish Nelson would make no more signals; he will know what we have to do." When the signal was translated, Collingwood was delighted with his old friend's appeal; but the story indicates that a good many signals had been given. It may have been the case that some captains became a bit confused as the curtain went up on the most dramatic of sea fights. Lieut. Green's story of Trafalgar is in the form of notes taken every ten or fifteen minutes during the engagement. It seems to corroborate the judgment of the Admiralty committee, that the British captains knew what they were about when going into action, and that the formation signaled by Nelson was in two lines ahead and directed against the far-flung line of battle of the French and Spaniards at two.

Valor of Few Unrecognized.
But there is nothing in Lieut. Green's version to show how gallant in individual cases, how heroically the enemy fought the forlornest of battles against the superlative skill of Nelson and the efficiency of his carefully trained crews. Southey, in his classic short study of Nelson's career, does not recognize the valor of the few although his book was published eight years after Trafalgar. The anniversary interest in England, quickened by the discovery of Lieut. Green's notes, recalls the centenary celebration in England in 1905, when French naval officers came to London as guests of the nation. French and Spanish colors were shown in every town in the British Isles, and the event was commemorated at the banquet on the Victory at Portsmouth was: "To the glorious memory of those who fought and fell, whether friend or foe, in the glorious battle of a hundred years ago." It is true that the ill-fated allies were glorious in defeat. The story is handsomely told in "The Battle of Trafalgar," by Edward Hase, which was published the year after the celebration.

Vacillating and Nervous.
The author had access to the French and Spanish archives, and made liberal use of them. He points out that jealousy and friction sapped the strength of the Franco-Spanish alliance. "The enemy," he says, "were in no condition to give battle, as they themselves well knew and said before they put to sea." Press gangs and filled the depleted complement of the Spanish fleet with raw and reluctant levies. Brave and able as was the French Admiral Villeneuve, who commanded the allies, he put to sea unready, to escape being superceded by Admiral Rosily, supposed to be coming posthaste from Paris and the choice of Napoleon. Moreover, Villeneuve, vacillating and nervous, did not have the confidence of his officers. Yet this allied fleet, doomed to disaster in advance, battled with tremendous energy, courage and fortitude. Admiral Villeneuve fought on until, as one of his officers wrote, "the upper decks and gangways of the flagship Bucentaur, heaped with dead and the wreckage from overhead, presented an appalling spectacle." It had become impossible to navigate help.

Enemy Captain Rescued.
Capt. Lucas, of the Redoubtable, lost three-quarters of his crew in killed and wounded, almost put the Victory, a bigger ship, out of action, and yielded only after standing off the Venerable, as well as the Victory, for hours. Captain Lucas' sword was returned to him. Admiral Magdon, of the Algeria, trying to board the Tonant, was wounded by three bullets, stayed in the fight, and was cut in two by a cannon ball. Capt. Internet, of the Intrepid, fought his ship to the last gasp, like a man who bore a charmed life. Spanish commanders also covered themselves with glory: Commodore Galliano, who nailed his flag on the Bahama to the mast, he was killed; "El gran Churrua," who died like "El Cid"; Rear-Admiral Cienfuegos, whose deck on the lofty Santissima Trinidad was a shambles; Admiral Gravina, who was terrible.

Universal Peace in 1932.

The year 1932 is destined to shake the world to its foundation, both physically and politically. It is to be a succession of plagues, famines, floods, shipwrecks, rioting and revolution. So says the British Journal of Astrology, which has drawn the horoscope for that year, when the planets Mars and Mercury will be in conjunction. Six years later the great Armageddon is to take place. It will be a final conflict between Mohammedanism, allied with Bolshevism, against the united Anglo-Saxon world. It will end in a "universal peace" in 1932, but "there will be so few of us left and we shall all be so tired, that peace should happen anyhow," the horoscope says.

Great Interest

IN WEDDING OF PRINCESS MARY

London. (Canadian Press).—Interest in the betrothal of Princess Mary to Viscount Lascelles continues to grow in this country, and the general public picks up news in connection with the future home-making of the Royal lady and her non-Royal lover with avidity. Plans for wedding gifts have taken possession of the people, and the gifts will be as varied as the numerous groups of givers differ in their ideas with regard thereto. London itself will make a gift to the bride. The Lord Mayor has announced the opening of a fund for this purpose. To the state married people probably one of the uppermost questions in connection with the coming marriage is where will the couple reside. To begin with, the Princess and her husband propose to live during the early part of their married life at Goldborough Hall, Yorkshire. Goldborough Hall is a red-brick early Jacobean mansion standing in a park and gardens which have an area of over 100 acres.

The village of Goldborough is near the old town of Knaresborough. Goldborough Hall is the property of Lord Lascelles' father, Lord Harwood, who himself lived there for fourteen years. For the past twenty-six years the mansion has been occupied by W. R. Lamb, a Yorkshire magistrate, and his family. Mr. Lamb has arranged to give up possession on April 30, and the Hall is to be prepared for the reception of Lord Lascelles and his bride next summer.

HAREWOOD HOUSE FOR BRIDAL PAIR.
The future country residence of Princess Mary and her husband will be Harewood House, the home of the Lascelles family. It is a stately mansion commanding fine views of the natural beauties of Wharfedale. It has many Royal associations, and the early Lords of Harewood were of royal descent. The name is said to be derived from Here-wood—the wood of the soldiers—where a battle was fought between Danes and Saxons. The Royal castle, which was built in the reign of Edward III, has long since been dismantled, but its ruins and the old church, with its wonderful sculptured tombs, remain. The present mansion was built in 1760 for Edwin Lascelles, who was created the first Baron Harewood in 1790. It took twelve years to build it, at a cost, it is said, of £120,000. Harewood House was enlarged and improved about sixty years ago, and it was then that the fine Italian garden on the south terrace was planned. The palatial front affords a sweeping view of wooded landscape, and near at the gardens, which were laid out at a cost of £15,000. The grounds contain a famous "Tokay" vine, seventy feet long and twenty-four feet wide, which was planted in 1783. The State apartments are handsomely decorated and furnished. In Harewood House are wonderful painted ceilings by Rebecchi, Rose and Zucchi; plaques by Kauffman, and portraits by Reynolds, Hoppner and Lawrence; also a collection of china—largely Sevres—valued at over £200,000. The Prince of Wales stayed at Harewood House last summer. The King and Queen were entertained there in 1903, when their Majesties visited Leeds to open the new University buildings. King Edward and Queen Alexandra were guests at Harewood House as Queen Victoria had been before her accession to the throne.

BRIDEGROOM'S TOWN RESIDENCE
Lord Lascelles' town residence is Chesterfield House, which he bought from the Dowager Lady Burton early last year. Until then he lived, when in London, with his brother and sister-in-law, the Hon. Edward and Mrs. Lascelles, in South Street, W.I. Chesterfield House stands at the corner of Audley and Curzon Streets. It has a rather gloomy exterior with a closed courtyard. When Lord Lascelles bought Chesterfield House it was the headquarters of the League of Nations, and it was lent to the Government as a residence for the Crown Prince of Japan during his recent visit to this country. The house was built for the fourth Earl of Chesterfield, the author of the famous "Letters to My Son." It was completed in 1749, and has remained practically unchanged.

Dyed Child's Coat and Her Old Skirt

Buy "Diamond Dyes" and follow the simple directions in every package. Dye your old clothes, your old coat or that "succeeding" because perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Worn, faded dresses, skirts, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything, become like new again. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.

White fudge is nice flavored with wintergreen and tinted pink with vegetable coloring.

Studying Economy.

One of the best film stories I remember to have heard for many a long day was told recently by Douglas Fairbanks. It concerned a certain producer who spent several weeks of his valuable time, and a lot of his firm's money, in producing a picture, the great scene in which was a realistic representation of a sea-serpent. When the film was released he went to the local picture palace, intending to go inside in order to see what sort of a reception it was being accorded there. Outside, however, his attention was attracted by the sound of high voices. One came from the throat of a small boy—not a Christian—who was earnestly entreating his father to give him sixpence so that he could "go inside and see the sea-serpent."

But the old man would have none of it. "Vasteful boy!" he exclaimed. "Wanting to shuck away a tanner to see a sea-serpent. Tell you vit, mine son, ven you gets home take a magnifying glass into the garden and find a worm."

Cork and Its Uses.

The finest cork in the world comes from Spain. The province of Andalus is particularly famous for its cork trees. Cork stoppers manufactured in Spain are exported to all parts of the world; likewise fine and very smooth sheets of cork, which are used for tips of cigarettes, linings of hats and helmets and to some extent (curiously enough) for the printing of visiting cards. Cork sawdust is used for making bricks, and combined with coal dust and tar, for fuel briquettes; also for packing fruit; the extent of its consumption for this last purpose may be judged by the fact that each barrel of grapes exported contains eight pounds of the material, and annually the exportation of grapes from Spain amounts to 3,000,000 barrels. Finally, the waste scraps of cork are pressed into bales, dried, and shipped to France, England, and the United States, where they are used for insulating and various other purposes.

GREATER THAN VICTORY.

I thought I'd done a dreadful thing. My hope had fallen fluttering. And I had failed where I had tried. For conquest and its touch of pride. I'd done my best and I had lost. And in despair I summed the cost. But quickly I was reconciled. She heard my story through, and smiled. "What matters it?" she said to me. "We did not need the victory." Then Bud came bounding through the door. And better-keller on the floor I romped with him, forgetting there The hurt of failure and despair. As happy at the close of day. As though success had come my way. Bud and his mother—blessed pair! Were proof against the stings of care. They would not change or love me less Because I failed in success.

They did not, to be proud of me. Always require a victory. And though despair had left me glum. They still would smile to see me come.

Here is the cure for every ache. The balm to comfort each mistake. So long as they who understand. Rejoice to take me by the hand. And gladly welcome me at night. I still can master every plight. Here is the greater victory. Always to have them proud of me.

Town of Weird Wonders.

Burmese Wizards' Uncanny Powers.

There is a town in Lower Burma which is surely the most weird and uncanny place on the map.

Few Europeans have ever penetrated to it, but Indians who have been there declare it is inhabited by wizards and necromancers who wield strange powers.

Visitors who enter this town of Kale Thangtong are said to be doomed. A native who went there found a terrible silence brooding over the place. His bearers would not go near the place, declaring that the marshes which almost encircle it are the abode of beings neither human nor supernatural, but possessing the characteristics of both man and demon.

Hiduous Noises in the Night.
The woods are entirely devoid of bird life, but extraordinary and grotesque noises are heard coming from the deeper parts of the forest. The night is made hideous with the sound of gongs and the wild chanting of wizards invoking the spirits of the dead to reappear.

Strange are the stories of miracles told about this town. A trader saw a fowl taken out of a bag, its head cut off and then put on again, after which the bird, when placed on the ground, walked away.

Another traveller in Burma has averred that he saw a necromancer expand himself by some means into the size of a small balloon, collapse, and disappear to the sound of an explosion!

There are wizards who believe they can transform themselves into the shape of wild animals, and they strike terror into the hearts of the superstitious natives.

Women who have been rubbed with oil enchanted by a wizard are said to lose their reason and to flee away into the woods, says a writer in 'The Occult Review.' They retain their human shape for seven days, and if within that period a man shall submit himself to the same process of being anointed with the magic ointment, and shall follow the woman to the woods and strike her on the head with a heavy bar, she shall recover her reason and return home cured.

If, however, this is not done, at the end of the seven days she is transformed into a tigress.

Princess Mary's wedding ring, it is understood, will be made from gold mined in the Welsh mountains. The British gold, known to the Romans, and indicated in many Welsh place-names, has been used before for wedding rings for Royal brides.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

OPENING THE 72 LIST.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.
The rescue of seven men from the Nova Scotia schooner Ruby L. Pentz, while their vessel was afloat at sea, was reported to-day in a radiogram believed to have been sent out by the tank steamer Muskogee. The Ruby L. Pentz, probably bound from Turin's Island for LaHave, N.S., was destroyed the message indicated. The Pentz was a participant in the first Nova Scotia schooner race in 1920. Her captain, Calvin Lohman, was drowned following the race, when he was knocked overboard by the mainsail in Halifax Harbor.

SPRINGING A SENSATION.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.
The German Foreign Office is about to publish all the documents in its archives, relating to the foreign policies of all European Cabinets, from 1871 to 1914, says the Taegische Rundschau.

WAGE CUTTING.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.
Wage reductions of fifteen per cent. and upwards will be put into effect immediately by the American Steamship Owners Association, it was announced to-day.

MAY NOT BE PEACE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 5.
A treaty of friendship between Turkish Nationalists and Ukrainians was signed Monday at Angora.

CLOSING XMAS SEASON.

BELFAST, Jan. 6.
Firing was renewed last night, and one child and a man wounded.

COUNCIL CONVENED.

CANNES, Jan. 5.
Premier Briand at eleven twenty this morning formally convened the Allied Supreme Council for the conference, which is to consider measures for the economic restoration of Europe.

THE TIMES SPEAKS.

LONDON, Jan. 6.
Eamonn De Valera's alternative Treaty proposals, which according to Daily Mail's Dublin correspondent, have fallen very flat in Ireland, are the subject of some editorial criticism in morning newspapers here. The Times says the status for Ireland that Mr. De Valera contemplates is not that of Dominion, but of an independent power, in loose treaty relationship with Great Britain. The plan, it declares, "obviously was designated to embody the ideas of that limited number of extremists, who are set determinedly against peace on any other than their own terms. De Valera and his friends apparently believe that England is prepared, on little pressure to withdraw its treaty, and consent to the absolute independence of Ireland. Irishmen should not imagine that the British Government would have the support of this country, if they surrendered the position they rightly held vital at the request of a group of Irish extremists."

Brief Story of Mr. De Valera.

Here are some interesting points about Mr. De Valera and his career culled from the new Daily Mail Year Book.

His father was a Spanish artist who married a Limerick girl in New York. He was christened "Edouardo" (which has been "Irishified" into "Eamonn"). He was brought to Ireland when two years old, married a Dublin school teacher, and has six children, who all speak the old Irish language.

He was sentenced to penal servitude for life after Easter week 1918, and escaped from Lincoln gaol in 1919 and went to the United States until last January.

Completing New Wing G.P.O.

The work of completing the exterior of the new wing which is being added to the General Post Office is now drawing to a close, and the wood scaffolding will shortly be removed. The interior of the building is now receiving attention. The total cost, including heating and lighting is estimated at $115,000. The new wing has been necessary for some time.

Cherchez La Femme.

Literature is rich in analogies of disenchantment. As a subject, woman has been as necessary to pessimism as to romance. She has been the goddess, and she has been the goat. Cherchez la femme. Something has always been wrong with the world. Nothing could be clearer in the records than that it has been convenient to find woman as the explanation. If any era gets ready to decline and fall, track down the odor of woman. When a man or a civilization is "successful" there is a rush to woman. When there is failure, it is toward woman that the accusing finger is pointed. The Bible begins with the sad story of woman's culpability, and it ends with a scathing allegory that gets the image of her erring body in a high and horrible prominence. The devil is male, as benefits his large functions, but no literature conceals his chief weapon. The sacrifice of the anchorite is an escape from woman. The mind makes abstractions. Even the male mind, that alone is supposed to be capable of abstractions, has preferred to personify. Having decided that angels are male, it fixed the images of Life and Death. For Temptation it made a digression. Woman is Temptation, vide Genesis and all the epics. Having envisaged Woman as Temptation, it has been easy, under the spell of antithesis, to envisage Man as the eternal St. Anthony, with the supreme preoccupation of not succumbing. He is the searcher for the Holy Grail. She is the vampire. He is pictured as persistently aspiring, she is persistently vamping. Alexander Black in Harper's.

A new chairman will then be appointed each week. The chairmen until April are:—R. F. Horwood, January; J. J. Mulcahy, February; and T. V. Hartnett, March.

Brief Story of Mr. De Valera.

Here are some interesting points about Mr. De Valera and his career culled from the new Daily Mail Year Book.

His father was a Spanish artist who married a Limerick girl in New York. He was christened "Edouardo" (which has been "Irishified" into "Eamonn"). He was brought to Ireland when two years old, married a Dublin school teacher, and has six children, who all speak the old Irish language.

He was sentenced to penal servitude for life after Easter week 1918, and escaped from Lincoln gaol in 1919 and went to the United States until last January.

Tear Gas for Strikers.

Rioting without precedent even in the troubled history of Chicago kept the dockyard district of that city in an uproar recently. Fifty thousand striking butchers and their women, inflamed by poisonous illicit whisky, which was openly sold in dozens of saloons, repeatedly attacked strong forces of police in a series of pitched battles, in which pistols, clubs, paving stones, and bottles were used with the utmost ferocity. The strikers adopted the stratagem of placing women in front of their ranks, and when the mounted police prepared to charge taunted them with cries of "Cosaaks."

So difficult became the task of the police that supplies of riot-guns, which are sawn-off shot-guns, firing fine buckshot, and Wells bombs, containing tear gas, were issued to them. Early in the morning, however, the situation was got under control without recourse to extreme measures, only one man, a negro, being killed. He was thrown into a creek by strikers, and pelled with bricks until he sank. Both sides suffered heavy casualties in injured.

The strikers were a section of the stockyard workers who were dissatisfied with the Wage reduction agreed to by their representatives on the Joint-Committee of Employers and Workers, which was recently set up and which was strongly opposed by the unions.

DEBATES BEGIN SHORTLY.—The St. Andrew's Debating Society will recommence their debates very shortly, and these will be continued throughout the winter.

The Annual Meeting of the Industrial Home Association will be held on Saturday, Jan. 14th, in the usual place. All members are requested to attend.—Jan. 11

Curious Origin of Lloyd's Registry.

Had its Birth in a London Coffee-house in 1720.

London (Canadian Press)—Lloyd's is a name known throughout the civilized world, yet probably few people know anything of the origin of the parent business organization carried on under it. Lloyd's Registry of Shipping had its birth in a London coffee-house in 1720, but the man who gave the name to it was not Edward Lloyd, had been dead eight years, when the first insurance company was launched. It seemed the natural thing that the scheme of insurance should have been born, cradled and nursed in Edward Lloyd's place of entertainment, though he himself had not lived to see it. His coffeehouse was patronized chiefly by shipping men, and when Lloyd's list was founded the name of the departed coffee-house man was regarded as worth using in this connection.

Lloyd's News, the forerunner of Lloyd's List, was launched in Edward Lloyd's lifetime, and was published largely in the interests of shipping men but more particularly in the interests of the coffee house. It lasted only six months, but it was the seedling from which Lloyd's insurance sprang. Lloyd's List was not published until some years after Mr. Lloyd's death.

Sidney Boulton, Chairman of Lloyd's addressing the Insurance Institute of London recently, said that if insurance men were indebted to Edward Lloyd for nothing but his name, that was a priceless gift. It was no exaggeration to say that the name of this humble "coffee man" was more often on the lips of men than any other name in the commercial world. It must have some strange fascination about it, Mr. Boulton said, for it had been appropriated by shipping and insurance companies all over the world without any other ostensible reason than that of its natural charm.

Lloyd's List.

Lloyd's List, founded in 1726, is the oldest existing newspaper in the world, excepting the London Gazette, and has continued without a break down to the present time. Lloyd's today consists of 1,096 underwriting members, 94 non-underwriting members, 333 subscribers, 82 associates, and 1,400 substitutes. There are 1,400 agents and sub-agents all over the world, those at the most important places being empowered to settle and pay claims. The premium income for last year was upwards of 30,000,000 pounds sterling, of which 18,000,000 was for marine and 12,000,000 for non-marine. Lloyd's is the largest insurance institution in the world.

One might wonder how the company system of insurance had its birth in a coffee house, but in Edward Lloyd's day insurance was effected through bankers, merchants had money lenders, who carried on insurance in addition to their ordinary vocations, and the coffee house furnished a convenient place in which to deliver the policies. Previous to the institution of this popular place of refreshment insurance policies were taken around by the merchants' or the shipowners' clerks or by brokers appointed for the purpose, to the offices of the bankers, merchants and money lenders, scattered throughout the city. This tedious method lasted about 100 years.

Then coffee houses came into existence. Some of them were the chosen resort of poets, politicians and actors, while others were frequented by commercial men, and these latter gradually came to be subdivided, certain of them being identified with special classes of business. Lloyd was one of the pioneers in the coffee house—the precursor of company insurance—and doubtless he lent the strength of his personality to the evolution of the latter then slowly taking shape. That he did this the first insurance company was formed yet left behind a name to congregate with in the new business, is a striking testimony to his ability and strength of character.

Edward Lloyd not only left his impress on the London of his time, but he left a name to be handed down through the centuries, gathering strength with the years.

Canadian Ex-Soldiers in Want.

There is so much distress among Canadian ex-soldiers and otherwise in New York City that the President of the Canadian Club has issued the following appeal:

There are many hundreds of Canadian and British ex-soldiers in New York not only out of employment, but in real need of shelter and clothing. As the winter grows more severe their needs will be the more acute.

"Many of our fellow-Canadians in search of food and employment are out in the present weather without sufficient clothing, and I appeal for your contributions of any spare clothing you may have. Over 40 men a day are being dealt with and I cannot over-emphasize the urgency of this appeal."

When mixing pastry use a perforated aluminum coffee-fitted top on a bottle to add the liquid evenly.

Life in the Spanish Foreign Legion.

According to E. C. Stephenson, Hamilton, who served in the Great War and afterwards enlisted with the Spanish Foreign Legion, "being decorated" in the latter was a matter of being forced to buy medals. To make it worse, he alleges that the price of the decorations was taken off his pay. He claims he was forced to buy ten medals in this way. Mr. Stephenson also alleges cruelty by the officers. Because he could not understand the orders given by the Spanish officers, he was beaten on the head.

For seven days he was forced to carry a pack of 50 pounds, and was not even allowed to take it off at meal times. He was thrown in a rat-infested cell, left to starve, and his kit was stolen. When he fell exhausted, he claims, he was beaten on the head.

Ghosts as Detectives.

ANY CLUES IN MURDER CASES.

Creah-Jerningham, in Glasgow Weekly Herald)

association of superstition with murder is easily understandable. For the community has shuddered at the tale of "Cain." So there grew up stories connecting the unknown with the crime of murder.

Landru's Villa Mysteries.

being pressed for an explanation of the women explained that they imagined the cries and lights as supernatural events proving that a murder had been committed; and that it was a popular belief that a wizard was a wizard. This was brushed aside as trivial; but it is significant that deep-rooted superstitions connected with murder, and the "ghosts" are supposed to point to a "ghost" of a murder.

may be the Ghost of Cook as too flimsy, while the legend of Sweeney Todd, the murderous Street barber (who lured his victims into his cellar of death) was arrested through the suspicion of a murdered boy "appearing" to his mother and telling her that he had murdered me." is well known but unsupported by evidence.

A Spectral Dog.

Johnston often repeated a story of a great impression upon a public mind.

gentleman of means was murdered in Soho, Square, and despite the presence of the police, no clue was made as to the murderer. The dead man had a little spaniel, of which he was very fond.

Some months afterwards, a close friend of the deceased was walking by the scene of the tragedy when he noticed the dog endeavouring to attract attention. Having gained it, the dog set off at a great pace, until a small old house in Oxford Street was reached. The dog ran inside, following the gentleman was immediately struck by seeing, in a case full of umbrellas, a small dog, a spaniel, which he knew had belonged to the dead man.

inquiries were made, and eventually the keeper of the shop was arrested, confessed to the murder. But it was proved at the trial that on the day the gentleman had been seen, he had been in Scotland, having been there by the widow.

A Profound Mystery.

that case the apparition was an animal. But the "Hanging Sword Alibi" mystery of London is the classic instance of a ghost as a detective. A man's naked body was found floating in the canal, the body was open out of the Strand. The head was missing. Some time later, a policeman rolling the alley was startled to find a man's body floating in the water. Suddenly, as the policeman came up with it, the floating body drew itself up, turned, gazed steadily into the face of the constable, and vanished. "Brim," looking into the water, the constable saw a head floating. It was the head of a murdered man. As a result, the case was identified, and a conviction obtained.

The Ghost and the Ring.

Barrett mystery was even more remarkable. In this instance a girl was murdered in London. A man of the name of Charles was arrested. He protested his innocence, but the evidence against him seemed conclusive. One night before his execution he had a curious experience. He was up at night, he saw by his side a neatly-dressed man with a head of blood on his forehead. The figure was that of a young man who had left the locality some time before. Upon the finger of the man appeared a ring. After a minute the figure slowly faded, leaving the man in a state of extreme nervousness. The next morning, the brother of the murdered man, who had been told that a ring had been found in the possession of the man, was examined, traced to a man whose apparition had appeared, and eventually he confessed to the murder.

For seven days he was even allowed to times. He was tested, left to be stolen. When he claims, he was

Princess Mary.

SOCIETY WHISPERS ABOUT THE WEDDING.

Thif some official announcement is made, society tongues will keep on whispering about Princess Mary and the probable date of her wedding to Viscount Lascelles. The rumour that finds most favour is that the ceremony will take place about February 21.

The "Weekly Post" understands that Princess Mary's wedding dress is to be made by a famous man dressmaker of Hanover-square, London. The same dressmaker was entrusted with the making of a wonderful dress in which another Royal bride, a cousin of Princess Mary, went to the altar a year or two ago. It was said recently that the dress would be made of cloth of silver.

Plans as to the wedding dress are not yet complete, but it is expected that a final decision will be made very shortly. If Princess Mary is to be married in February, there is not too much time for the settling of many important details in regard to the dress in which she will be married. For instance, should the Queen and Princess Mary decide that, following the precedent set by many Royal brides, the wedding dress shall be of hand-woven brocade of a design symbolising the union of the British Isles, about ten weeks would be required for the designing and weaving of the fabric and for the preparation of the looms for the weaving of the special design.

Ex-soldier Embroiderers. In this case it is probable that ex-soldier embroiderers would be entrusted with the work. It is anticipated that whether brocade or hand-embroidered satin is used for the gown the material would be specially woven by English workers who are experts in using hand-looms. The pure white silk which is alone considered fine enough for the wedding robes of a King's daughter will have to come from China. For coloured silks the product of Italian silkworms suffices.

Bridesmaids Not Yet Chosen.

Arrangements for the Royal wedding are proceeding apace, but the "Weekly Post" learns on the best authority that the bridesmaids have not yet been chosen. It is fairly certain that one or two Royal cousins will be invited to attend Princess Mary when she marries Lord Lascelles. It is more conjecture to pick out any of the girl friends whom the Princess may be expected to make choice.

V.A.D.'s Wedding Gift.

Lady Amphilh announces that all past and present V.A.D. are invited to join in the V.A.D. wedding gift which is to be presented to Commandant Princess Mary. Subscriptions, which are limited to 1s, should be forwarded through the Commandant of the subscriber's own detachment before January 1st. It was in 1915 that the Princess became a fully-qualified V.A.D.—Liverpool Post.

How to Find a Perfect Lady.

Ten Questions For Fair U.S. Undergrads.

(Liverpool Post)

Not one girl in Willard Hall, Northwestern University's main hostel for women, is a perfect lady, according to Chicago statistics.

The most circumspect in the hall (said a Chicago telegram recently) is only 90 per cent. "moral," if judged by the standards of her mother's day. The gayest of them—lacking only 20 per cent. ladylike. Someone, anxious to rate the deportment of the university girls, distributed a "morality questionnaire" in the hall. Each girl was asked to answer ten questions about her behaviour, with secrecy, so far as names are concerned, strictly guaranteed.

These were the questions:—
Have you ever cheated?
Have you ever been kissed?
Have you ever smoked?
Did you ever consciously tell a lie?
Have you ever used intoxicating liquor?
Have you ever danced improperly?
Have you ever worn improper clothes?
Did you ever have a "crush"?
Were you ever on a "petting party"?
Have you ever done anything you would conceal from your parents?
One girl had to write "yes" after eight of the questions, according to the compiler of the statistics from the questionnaires. No girl in the hall was able to write "no" ten times. The most ladylike return contained only one "yes." It came from a girl who never had been kissed, never had told a conscious lie, never drank liquor, nor smoked, nor danced improperly. Her one confession of sin was the first on the list. She had cheated.

The 20 per cent. girl who put an affirmative answer after eight of the questions made "no" her answer to the tenth question. She had nothing to conceal from her parents, she said. The statistician would not say which of the remaining nine "sins" the wickedest girl denied.

The average for the hall was 60 per cent., which means five average girls confessed to four of the ten misdeeds named.

Violin strings make excellent strings for beads.
Prune custard is good served with chocolate sauce.

Cream taken after meals is excellent to increase flesh.
Cooking oil can be used instead of butter for salting nuts.

Flavor apple blanc-mange with a little grated lemon rind.

When frying doughnuts, never crowd them in the kettle.

If you use a washing-machine, dissolve soap before using.

In boiling potatoes, allow just enough water to boil dry.

A bit of chopped ham, or chicken, is excellent in stuffed eggs.

Keep pickles in a dark, dry place, in either glass or stone jars.

Cream dressing is most appreciated when served on fruit salad.

Whipped cream beaten into fudge makes it unusually light and rich.

Broiled green peppers make a delicious finishing touch to a steak.

GENERAL MOTORS.

Since the last advertisement was written on Saturday, this issue dropped off almost a full point, and now, as the expected recession has taken place, believing the worst has been discounted, we say that General Motors is again a purchase, even with the possibility of a dividend decrease which can only be 12 cents per share. Motors may sell lower but it is risky to wait for a lower figure as $8.50 makes it a good buy right now. Traded on margin $3.00 per share.
