Pulp Mill Shut Down

Gate Breaks and Caused Great Loss.

On Sunday morning the gate at the head of the huge pipe which carries the water to the pulp mill was sucked into the pipe and the water rushed down into the pulp mill and for a time it looked as if the plant might be carried away. On Saturday afternoon the water had been shut out and the lower end of the pipe removed to make repairs on the wheels. The pipe is a very large one and is capable of carrying a large volume of water, and the structure proved itself very firm to withstand the great power of the water. An overflow of water in the pond made the rush of the water more tremendous and it was impossible to keep back the water. Messrs. Murphy, Fuller and Plude were on the scene soon after the gate broke and soon had the work of breaking down the main dam begun. After many charges of dynamite an opening was made and the water in the pond was gradually lowered. The dam was very solidly constructed and the task of breaking it down was by no means an easy one.

The accident will be keenly felt by the town as the pulp mill supplies power to the five granite mills. It will mean that the mills will be shut down from two to six weeks pending the repairs in the pulp mill. The loss will run into the thousands. Fortunately it was that no men were working in the mill or were making any repairs which had been planned at the time of the accident for the death of a few would surely have been the outcome. A crew of men are rushing matters and the mills will be shut down for as short a time as possible.

It is a regrettable fact that the accident should happen at the present time for the granite mills are in the midst of their busy season and also a large number of men are thrown out of employment.

MAYOR GAYNOR OUT OF DANGER.

New York, Aug. 19.—Propped up with pillows, Mayor Gaynor sat up in bed for more than an hour today reading and talking to his seven-year-old daughter, Rath. From his child's lips he heard the latest news from his country home at St. James L. L., whose familiar gossip he has been denied since being shot by James Gallagher on Aug. 9. The little girl sat beside him on the bed and prattled away while the mayor was not reading.

After a most satisfactory day, marked by the last blood test that will be taken, Robert Adamson, the mayor's secretary, said tonight that the surgeons had assured him that the mayor was practically out of danger.

"All this time," said Mr. Adamson, "there is scarcely the remotest danger to be considered. With the care that the mayor is getting he will surely be able to leave the hospital in a little more than a week."

Rufus Gaynor said this afternoon that it had not been decided whether his father, when he leaves St. Mary's hospital, will go to the Adirondacks for his long delayed vacation or return to St. James.

It May Be

That the high cost of living is due to that general wave of uplift that has been sweeping over the land for several years past.

That when the aeroplane is finally perfected the man higher up may be induced to come down and see what he looks like.

That the American headdress is an invention of a far-seeing nature to fill in those financial spots where the Lord is unable to provide.

That there is a girl somewhere, who after you have kissed her on one cheek will turn the other to you, but she is not easy to find.

That there is a lesson in scientific optimism in the case of the average small boy who regards the mumps not as an affliction but as an achievement.

That the wise man meets trouble with a smiling face, but even at that it is hardly necessary to invite him to meet your wife and children.

That speech is silver but it is just as well after all when you are making a speech to a hostile crowd to have a few coppers in the hall to maintain order.

That Caesar's last words were "Et tu, Brute," but it is a pretty safe bet that he interpolated an "Ouch" or two in his Latin equivalent before giving up the ghost.

The Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard to get her poor dog a bone, but the chances are that under the stress of circumstances she sold the animal to the butcher to be used as a spring lamb until the hard times were over.

That, as the philosopher has said, "Life is just one blame thing after another," but the trouble is there are so many blame things after the same thing.

Obituary

Sergt. Thos. Coughlan.

One of the old and well known residents of Charlotte Co. passed away on Friday in the person of Thomas Coughlan. He was a British soldier in the old Indian Mutiny days and was a well known personage throughout the country. In the old country he was a drill master for many years, and has resided in this country for nearly fifty years. The deceased has been only ill for about three months, and his death at the advanced age of 87 was due to the infirmities of old age.

Mrs. Mary Kane and Patrick Grace are step-children and Margaret Duffy is a grand-daughter.

The funeral took place in the afternoon, and interment was made in the old Catholic cemetery.

The Cliffs of Grand Manan

Just off Passamaquoddy Bay, on the northern coast of Maine, washed by the sweeping tides pouring forth at the entrance of the Bay of Fundy, a huge, grim wall of rock sixteen miles in length rises three hundred feet straight up from the ocean. From the Maine coast it looks in the gloaming like a dark, threatening, massive, storm-cloud. Made up of bold cliffs, frowning headlands and overhanging bluffs, it is inaccessible to both the foot of man and the fur of Old Ocean. This magnificent but inhospitable wall forms the western side of the Island of Grand Manan—the Great Island of the Indians.

Grim and forbidding as the island seems, turning its back upon the coast of Maine, it stretches open arms to the Nova Scotians, making a gradual descent to sea level on the Bay of Fundy shore. Even this low-lying beach, however, is firmly lashed to the rocky cliffs by long rock ledges crossing the island at intervals and reaching out into the sea in the form of headlands, with a series of harbors between. This sloping eastern shore is further protected and made attractive by many little islands which have broken away from the rocky ridges, and shield the harbors from the force of the strong, swift tides.

There are good roads on Grand Manan. Its fresh, invigorating climate and picture-que and widely varied scenery have made the island a favorite vacation spot for artist and summer visitor. Its inhabitants are mostly engaged in fishing. There is an abundance of timber, however, and good facilities for ship-building. Over on the rough western side there still live a few descendants of the original owners of the island—the Passamaquoddy Indians, who make a precarious living by catching and selling porpoises along the north shore at Indian Beach.

Grand Manan belongs to New Brunswick, and is one of the most delightful spots to be found for one who loves nature and the fresh, clear ocean air. Crossing over to the island, what has seemed to be a regular, forbidding wall is found to be, in reality broken up into a series of bold headlands, over the upper half of which a forest of verdure clammers down to meet the naked rock of the deep gorges between. The Northern Head, a dark, beetling cliff, hewed and hacked about its base by the repeated attacks of the ocean, and frowning darkly overhead, seems to brush disdainfully aside the peculiar torrent like tides of the Bay of Fundy, which come pouring out as if the flood-gates of Old Ocean had been opened wide. Protecting Public Men.

The attempt which was made upon the life of Mayor Gaynor of New York, calls attention afresh to the safeguards which most necessarily be provided for men in high places. In the countries of the old world, the Sovereign's and, in some cases, the other members of the Royal Houses, are constantly guarded by police officers, private detectives and secret service men. In the United States they have not gone further than the employment of private detectives and secret service men, but is quite possible, in view of the villainous assault upon the Mayor of New York, and the fact that three Presidents have fallen by the assassin's hand, that further protective measure may be taken. The Boston Transcript recalls that when President McKinley was shot at Buffalo, two secret service men were near him. The one upon whom the responsibility finally fell has since been somewhat broken in health, in consequence of his feeling that perhaps he might have prevented the crime. He had been appointed for reasons of personal friendliness, without the training of a detective. He had been the Sergeant-at-Arms in one of the houses of the Ohio Legislature, when Mr. McKinley was Governor. Liking him, Mr. McKinley had found him a place in the Secret Service Division of Treasury, and when he became President his old friend was transferred to White House, and assigned for duty with him on public occasions, chiefly because Mr. McKinley liked him as a companion. It has since been explained that at Buffalo this attendant was charged with duties which are now divided among several men, and that it was not humanly possible for him to keep watch over the President, and, at the same time, attend to other duties. It is the kind of work that requires special training. Since 1891 plans for guarding the American President have been greatly elaborated. President Roosevelt whose personal reputation for courage and bravery was high, very largely extended the system during his term of office. President Cleveland for a long time protested against the efforts made regarding him, and some of these were undertaken without his approval or knowledge. The President of the White House is constantly in receipt of threatening letters and subject to threats of violence, in the utterances of persons who are permitted to gain access to his presence. All this shows how necessary it is that the strictest precautions should be taken and, as the numerous assassinations which have occurred in recent years show, even the most vigilant watchfulness is not always a defence against this anarchic element of the population.—Halt- fax Chronicle.

In and about Hillsboro keen sympathy is felt for the people of Campbellton. The ladies of the Hillsboro Village Club have forwarded $256.80 in money and some $300 worth of clothing, bedding, etc., to the relief committee in the desolated town. Hon. C. J. Osman has made a donation of $100. The Methodist church are also raising $50 for their fellow church people of the town. Persons living in Hillsboro Parish, but outside the town, are also helping in the relief of North Shore residents.

Shooting Pains in Arms, Back, Side,

Prove the Presence of Rheumatic Virus, Which is Cured Quickest by Nerviline.

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck or the chest, they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anything that will not tell you wonderful things about the powerful power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

CURES all muscular aches and pains.

Hints on Camping out

There is more to know about camping out than is found in the philosophes, declares a woman writer in the New Idea Woman's Magazine for July. Laundry is a big item. Ours was accomplished by taking our soiled clothes with us when we went in bathing and simply tramping them into the water on the white sand of the beach.

This scoured them magically. Badly soiled places were rubbed with soap and perhaps trampled a second time.

Then we threw the garments on the bushes around the tent, where the sun bleached them to a dazzling whiteness. Sometimes we found them a little scratchy with sand, but what of that—in camp? We shook it out the best we could, for sand is not dirt, you know.

Single tents about five by seven are most desirable for sleeping purposes. These can be bought for four or six dollars apiece, and will much more than pay for themselves in comfort. At least one extra fly, to stretch overhead for a kitchen, adds enormously to camp comfort, especially in rainy weather.

A fly at the front of the tent is also desirable. Strips of canvas of various lengths are always handy for covering things. These flies and canvas pieces can be bought for twenty-five to thirty-five cents a square yard, according to weight, the heavier grade being best; there is likely to be much rain.

Sleeping bags are better than blankets. These bags can be bought for ten to fifteen dollars, according to the number of thicknesses of wool and the patent appliances that finish the bag, but ordinary blankets sewed at the sides and end in the form of a bag are equally good for any camp short of the Rocky Mountains.

A man may select his wife, but he cannot pick out his own relatives.

American Settlers are Now Loyal Canadians

Weyburn, Sask., Aug. 4.—Weyburn is a small, but exceedingly lively town on the way from Regina to Moose Jaw on the Soo Line. It is less than ten years old, and was settled largely by Americans who are now of course, all loyal Canadians. That they were of a good class is evident from the prosperous condition of the place. They had a banquet for the press at Weyburn and we heard all about the place and its sentiments and aspirations. The atmosphere was as Canadian as anything could be, and the two Americans who spoke did so in a sensible and gratifying manner, making no bones of the fact that they had a warm feeling of affection for the land from which they had come, but declaring that they had prospered and been well-treated in Canada, and it was now home to them. It is a singular and not ungratifying fact that in this country where there are so many former Americans, there is none of that flapping of the American flag and intermingling of it with the flag of our own country, which is not uncommon among restaurant keepers and others in the East, animated with what must be taken to be more an effort to get at the American's pocket than his heart. Born in the United States, as so many of them here have been, they seem able, nevertheless, to get along without any unnecessary display of their affection for that country, which may be taken by all persons of judgement to be none the less strong.

Much of the land surrounding Weyburn is devoted to the cultivation of flax, which is a lucrative crop and does well in this country, even in a dry season such as the present. At present, only the seed of the plant is used, principally for oil, but the time must soon come when the straw, now allowed to go to waste, will be used for the manufacture of cloth and, particularly, of binder twine. It has been said that flax is hard on the land, but those who raise it here say that is not so. Much wheat and other grain is raised here also, and land is high in price, as indeed it is everywhere now in the West within reach of civilization.

Some miles out of Weyburn is a farm of sixteen hundred acres to which we motored. This farmer expects a return of thirty-five bushels to the acre this year. Much of the labor on this farm usually done by horses is here done by mules. He had twenty-two of the animals working on the harvest when we visited the place. The animals were brought from Missouri. They are much more expensive than horses, some of them running as high as one thousand dollars a pair, but they cost less to keep, and it is claimed they will do as much work. They presented an unusual sight to us as they were all lined up in the field abreast, with their ears stuck forward, and they looked very intelligent and "workmanlike." But they did not like the camera flashes, and when we went close to snap them they became restless and looked as though preparing to stampede. From the way in which their drivers humored their caprices, we judged they were "kittle cattle" to deal with.

We were conveyed from the hotel to the rink at Weyburn in a genuine western mail coach. It was an enormous, lumbering affair, dragged by four horses and we were assured that it had gone through many a hold-up in Montana and the Black Hills from which it came to Weyburn. Inside and on top there was accommodation for sixteen or twenty, and for baggage behind. Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Graham and the other got into the body of the coach, while the rest of us clambered on top, and proceeded and followed by hands, made our way to the rink in true western style.

The premier took advantage of the presence of so many Americans in the audience to refer to the relations existing and that might be hoped to exist between the people of different origins. The influence of the two people—those of the United States who had come here to make their homes and our own living in harmony beside them—might extend far beyond their borders even to the motherlands of both, and make it impossible that any serious quarrel should arise between them. This sentiment was warmly applauded by all present.

THE GRANITETOWN GREETINGS

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to weaken and hold the purest and best love of a worthy man. When she loses it, she loses the heart agency no one in the wide world can give her. The woman who loses it from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organs and derangement of her special womanly organs soon loses the power to give the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of 15 physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive tonic. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive tonic. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive tonic.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

THE WORLD LOOKS DARK

To the Dyspeptic. How to Make It Bright.

Father Morrisey, the learned physician, realized that many of the difficulties and troubles of this world are due to indigestion. He believed that to get a proper mental and spiritual attitude, a normal digestive apparatus is very helpful. The good Father therefore gave much study to the important question of the stomach.

His famous prescription, "No. 11," for dyspepsia and indigestion, consists of simple tablets cleverly compounded from the materials in Nature's laboratory. Each tablet will perfectly digest a full meal of 1 1/2 pounds of food.

Father Morrisey's "No. 11" has brought ease and continued health to thousands of sufferers who had previously tried other remedies in vain. It instantly relieves and in due time restores the stomach to full vigor.

If you suffer at times or regularly from a sick, sour, dyspeptic stomach, try No. 11, and see how quickly you can again enjoy hearty meals, and how bright the world looks once more.

AUTO RUNS INTO BEAR; CARRIED ON HOOD OF CAR

Ranger, Me. Aug. 17.—A motor car driven by Edward Hopkins of New York collided with a large black bear in the highway in the town of Lagrange on Tuesday morning, causing slight damage to the car, but giving both the motoring party and the bear a bad fright.

The party composed of Mr. Hopkins and his wife and their guests, John P. Fessett of New York, and Miss Marion Gordon of Philadelphia, were returning from a tour of northern Maine, and at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning were running through Lagrange at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour, when the bear rose up on its haunches directly in the middle of the road. Mr. Hopkins, who was driving, had his choice of ditching the car or striking the bear, expecting to toss the animal to one side.

Instead of being brushed aside, however, the bear fell sprawling upon the car, and in that position was carried some distance, growling and clawing, while the women of the party shrieked in terror.

Finally the car struck a bad place in the road and bounced the bear off. The animal fell under one wheel thus ditching the car.

The occupants of the car were not hurt, and soon had the machine righted. The bear was somewhat dazed, but quickly made off into the woods.

70 Years with Coughs

We have had nearly seventy years of experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. That makes us have great confidence in it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. Ask your own doctor what experience he has had with it. He knows. He can advise you wisely. Keep in close touch with your family physician. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Be well, be strong. You cannot if your bowels are constipated. The best laxative is Ayer's Pills, all vegetable. Ask your doctor if he agrees with us. Do as he says.

Census of Crops.

Ottawa, August 12.—The Census Bulletin shows that the conditions of field crops in Canada this year have been greatly modified by temperature and rainfall, and that between the East and the West it is hardly possible to make a statement of averages that will not be misleading. In the eastern provinces growth has been uniformly good through out July, and the percentages of condition have been high for every crop; but in extensive tracts of the Northwest provinces drought has prevailed and crop reports are in every stage of condition. The northerly parts of these provinces have been largely exempt from the drought, and there the percentage conditions are high. It is difficult to fairly average conditions for the East and West which does not take account of the areas sown, and these have been considerably reduced since the June report. The August report will give revised figures from which yields may be estimated.

In comparing the crop conditions for 1909 and 1910 it should be remembered that fall wheat, rye, peas, buckwheat, mixed grains, beans, potatoes, hay and clover and corn are principally produced in the eastern provinces; and spring wheat and flax mostly in the northwest provinces; with oats and barley in nearly equal proportions in the two regions.

Fall wheat is grown chiefly in Ontario, and its condition for all Canada has been reduced by a relatively poor crop in Alberta. Compared with the condition at the same time last year, it is 84.63 to 76.53. Rye is 85.20 in 1910 to 81.84 in 1909; peas is 81.70 to 87, buckwheat 87.64 to 86.15, mixed grains 99.91 to 87.23, beans 85.43 to 84.33, potatoes 81 to 92, hay and clover 90.87 to 73.79, corn for husking 84.30 to 82.86 and corn for fodder 89.76 to 83. These crops, which are mainly grown in the East, show a high average of condition, affected only in a slight degree by reports for the west.

The average condition of spring wheat is 77 for 1910 to 84.57 for 1909, and of oats 79.57 to 87.78 for all Canada, which is substantially lower than the averages for the East. In the three Northwest provinces the condition of spring wheat is 62, of oats 53.62 and of barley 63.60.

The estimated yield of fall wheat in the country is 18,724,000 bushels, being 26.46 bushels per acre. The hay and clover crop is estimated at 15,490,000 tons, or 1.80 tons per acre, and of alfalfa 1.92 tons per acre.

MUSIC TREAT AT ST. JOHN FAIR

Famous Ladies Orchestra a Magnificent Feature.

Musical lovers are quite rightly contemplating delightful music at the St. John Fair in St. John, N. B., September 5th to 15th, and judging from the numerous comment in American editions, their expectations will be fully met. Madame Belle Weston Renfrew's Ladies Orchestra of twenty-five players will, of course, programme twice daily beneath the new music gallery in the main building. This organization is the finest of its kind in existence, and is a favorite at important musical events, being billed in the same programme with the famous United States Marine Band of Washington, Creators' Italian Band, Sousa's Band and Arthur Pryor's Band. In Pittsburgh last year the Renfrew orchestra made a sensational hit, and after the big Exhibition was closed in that city, played a successful week's engagement in one of the leading theatres at the request of a discriminating public. The following sample programme will indicate the versatility of Madame Renfrew's players:

Coronation March	Meyerbeer
Overture, 'Beautiful Galatea,'	Von Suppe
Cornet Solo, 'The Rosary,'	Nerin
American Sketch, 'Swanee River,'	Myddleton
Selection from 'Carmen,'	Bizet
Overture, 'Oberson,'	Weber
Waltz, 'Artist's Life,'	Strauss
Violin Solo, 'Second Polonaise,'	Wetniewski
Mexican Idyl, 'The Mesa Grande,'	Maurice
Descriptive Fantasia, 'Americans Abroad'	Bratto
National Anthem.

Base-Ball Slang

Some years ago baseball was hailed as a compelling force in the spread of the English or American language, mainly because, according to accounts, a New York German paper, which had previously excluded every word of English from its reading columns, found itself forced to print the baseball news in the tongue that is used on the coaching lines and in disputes with the umpire. "Pitcher" could be translated "wreter" and the catcher might be masquerading as "der-fanger," but after the reporters had blunted many pencils in desperate attempts to describe the intricacies of the national game in an alien tongue, the obdurate Teutonic editor yielded, and the baseball column thereafter appeared in what passes for English.

Considerations such as these add cogency to the protest of the Providence Journal against the reactionary demands emanating from various purists of the press who would eliminate slang from baseball stories and substitute plain English.

This protest, which became of moment says The Journal, only when it was traitorously seconded by a prominent baseball weekly, is vigorously negated by enthusiasts who do not wish their base-ball reports to "read like one of Henry James' short stories." The Journal quotes an expert in the language appropriate to the game as explaining that.

"Ever since base-ball began, it has had a language of its own. The slang that the baseball writer is accused of slinging so profusely has become inseparably a part of the game. It is hot off the bat, it is brief and graphic. It tells its story tersely and always to the point.

"There is a picturesqueness in the line of goods handled by the baseball writer that you don't stack up against anywhere else in the paper. The English he uses may not be errorless, and some of it may be unintelligible to the common herd, but it is vivid, concise and usually coherent. And, if I remember correctly, my dear old college professor was always strong for vividness and conciseness.

The Tame Seal

All visitors to Sant Catalina Island make the acquaintance of Ben, the big seal, who is constantly seen in the waters of the harbor swimming on the surface or under the water in the shallows. This huge animal is as playful as a kitten and just about as tame although he is not in any sense a captive, as he has the whole pacific ocean to range in. Ben is always on the lookout for a fish dinner, and when a visitor attracts his attention by throwing a big stone into the water he will come barking with delight and dive for it. As he takes his disappointments good naturedly, he is usually rewarded with a real fish. The Comrade.

He Knows It.

R. L. Borden is harranguing the Illinois on the Liberal crime of increasing the national expenditure. He refuses to recognize that a larger nation with a greater business deals in bigger figures.

The Assassin

Lips of the millions 'breath their earnest prayer,
Hope baffles doubt and joy succeeds despair,
As hour by hour the gladsome tidings swell:
"He's getting well! Thank God, he's getting well!"

But raging with a force we need must heed,
A thirst of vengeance for the dastard deed—
Vengeance against the hand which all alone
Made the whole nation grit its teeth and moan.

Vengeance? But wait and let us all give pause,
Can it be meted out by man-made laws?
Can our just rage with vengeance be appeased
By punishment upon his mind diseased?

What vengeance worked by us can give again
Light to that dull, dark, bleak, besotted brain?
Of all known penalties who knows of one
Can make him know the thing that he has done?

Poor, crack-brained wretch! There in his cell he sits,
The victim of his tortured, 'twisted wits,
When all the world looks on with scorn to see,
What punishment than that could greater be?

—Paul West, in New York World.

Millions Loss by Forest Fires in West.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 15.—Until general rain comes to break the long dry period it is evident that the forest fires now raging in a score of districts all over the Pacific Northwest will remain a serious menace. The cost at present can be counted only in millions, but how many millions can scarcely be guessed.

The forerunner gives no hope for rain. Forest rangers and settlers are working day and night in the Coeur d'Alene region, Idaho, where three towns have been wiped out.

The eastern part of Washington has suffered severely. A line of fire is still maintained in the Colville reserve.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 16.—At Wallace, Idaho, hundreds of pounds of dynamite hung to the limbs of trees on the high points surrounding the city and exploded in the hope that the effect might produce rain to check the devastation by forest fires, it is said to have had a result for last midnight rain began falling for the first time in two months. The fall has been heavy.

Only those who have worries can afford to look worried.

A man with a sunny disposition seldom has a hot temper.

Probably the most popular illustrated paper is the bank note.

After giving us a lift the elevator man is ready to run us down.

A woman can't help admiring a man if he tells her she is good looking.

Flattery will open a woman's heart much quicker than it will open a man's purse.

Better a man who falls in his efforts to do something than one who never tries.

The strongest belief that a conceited man has is that he isn't.

An extra hateful bill to pay is when it was for something useful.

Temptation plays a game where nobody else has a chance to win.

A woman is willing to slave herself to death for a man who tells her she inspires him to want to do noble things for her.

A woman never loses interest in a man as long as he knows something she is anxious to find out.

"Are you going to take in summer boarders this year, Josiah?"

"All we kin, sir."

Who Likes Rain

I said the duck, I call it fun.
For I have my little red rubbers on;
They make a cunning three toed track
In the soft, cool mud, Quack! Quack!"

'T said the dandelion, 'I
My roots are thirsty, my buds are dry'
And she lifted her little yellow head
Out of her green and grassy bed.

'I hope 'twill pour! I hope 'twill pour!'
Croaked the tree toad at his grav bark door;
'For, with a broad leaf for a roof,
I am perfectly weather proof.'
Sang the brook, I laugh at every drop,
And wish they never need to stop Till a big river I grow to be,
And could find my way to the sea."

—Zion's Herald.

What's in a Word.

There's a Milwaukee man who has been prosperous in business and whose note is worth anything within reason that he is willing to write it for. Not so long ago he received a check from the United States Government for $10 to his firm. He took it to the post office to have it cashed.

The clerk said he would cash it if the man would endorse it.

"Oh, no you don't," the man answered. "I promised my partner when I went into business with him that I would never endorse any paper in the firm's name."

"Well, then, just the name of the firm across the back; that will answer the purpose," the wily clerk persuaded.

"Sure, I'll do that," he said.

"You are charged with larceny. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty!"

"I thought I was but I have been talking to a lawyer and he convinced me that I ain't."

Free Trade

The significance of the appeal of the western farmers for a lower tariff is the greater because of the rapid growth of population in the west. The time is close at hand when the west will have a much larger representation in parliament. Even British Columbia expects to have ten or twelve members after the next census, and the Victoria Colonist says it would not be very much surprised if there were thirteen, compared with seven at present. The Winnipeg Telegram says Western Canada is growing at the rate of about 200,000 people a year, and manufacturing members of parliament at the rate of eight per annum. Making the allowance for western optimism, the voice of the west in national affairs is growing more powerful at a very rapid rate, and while there are Conservatives in the west as well as in the east it is safe to conclude that the majority of the new comers are law tariff men. Their presence will give great encouragement to low tariff men. Their presence will give great encouragement to low tariff men in the east. Thus we find the Montreal Witness making this comment:

"Now we are beginning to get our national element from the west, and it is good, large, healthy sentiment. Though the people there are largely newcomers, their sentiment is national sentiment, more than that of the east is, which is largely provincial. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declares that his tour in the west is a liberal education. It has been that to the country. The demand for a reduction in the tariff, which has been latent but articulate in the east, has come with a clear ring wherever Sir Wilfrid has set his foot. Sir Wilfrid has announced, not for the first time, that he is a free trader. Many other members of this cabinet are free traders in principle; but they have been under the impression that there was no effective demand for free trade in the country. As they hear his demand upon the prairies and realize how greatly the census of next year will increase the weight of the west in the national councils they will, as Sir Wilfrid has promised, take heart and see what they can do to emancipate the young giant and to make the tariff a revenue producing one."

Prosperous Canada.

It cannot be doubted that the Dominion is passing through an amazing season of prosperity. Perhaps there has been nothing more striking and impressive in the history of the American continent. The Federal revenue has reached a hundred million dollars. Upon this increase of from a million to a million and a half a month are reported.

During the half year immigration from Great Britain and Europe is estimated at over one hundred millions. The figures exceed those for the whole of 1909. There is no cessation in the movement from across the border. Building operations in the cities are phenomenally active. Manufacturers are unable to keep pace with the demand. Labor grows scarcer and wages rise higher. It begins to appear that the balance of political power will not pass to the West as soon as has been expected. The increase of farming population in the West means increase of industrial population in the east. In a few years Montreal and Toronto will each have a population of half a million, while there will be a proportionate growth in other industrial centres.

beyond the isolated rock known as the Bishop lies Whale Cove, the harbor Champlain is supposed to have reached when, in 1866, he discovered the island. Here the side of the island seems to have been gouged out purposely for the cove; the distorted crags of Fish Head on the east flank the equally hideous Eel Brook Point on the west. On the high bluffs here a fog horn is located.

Long before the foot of the white man had ever trod the shore of Grand Manan, the island was a well-known landmark from the northern coast. But its forbidding appearance, baffling currents and many outlying shoals made in a place to be avoided by the sailors. Its splendid isolation was a stumbling-block to settlers, and it remained for many years in magnificent desolation.

No Island visitor should miss seeing the cliffs at the Southern Head. The road which crosses the island from end to end strung as on a thread the settlements along the eastern shore, and while given an excellent series of views of the island, puts one into touch also with the lives of the inhabitants, so isolated with the outer world. At these times it is hard to realize that for months at a time Grand Manan is quite cut off from the mainland. This road mostly follows the shore, giving enchanting glimpses of bays and gentle islands; with the ocean always close at hand, and at times rolling in upon the strip of shingle close to the rambling highway. Sometimes the way lies through a dark, fragrant forest of evergreens; again it curves around one of the ribs of rock. Everywhere the soil is thin and stony, with but a few good farms under cultivation.

The very fruit and shade trees look dwarfed and scrawny. The prettiest of the settlements is at Seal Cove, nestling in a hollow among the hills, through one of which a stream runs down to the hills.

On a high, grassy plateau at the further end of the island, a light house stands, perched like a sentry-box on some huge fortress wall. A path zig-zags in and out around this jagged, rocky shore, now skirting the edge of a wild gorge over which one scarcely dares to look; then meeting and joining the circling headland. The thunderous roll of the Atlantic ground swell beats rhythmically against the rocks, from which frost and wave have stripped the earth, leaving them gaunt and bare. In some of the wildest spots on the sides of the deep, dark precipices, a drift of delicate blue shows where the harelalls are fearlessly nodding. The scars and seams of the headlands tell an eloquent tale of the conflict which rages here when the fury of the storm king is released.

Climbing to the side of a steep gorge, one finds the entire dark interior alive with fluttering, alarmed white wings. In a twinkling myriads of sea gulls rise in air—a beautiful sight, as the white wings sail and wheel among the dull colored crags, or circle overhead against the sky's clear blue. Overcoming their fear, the cloud of gulls begins to settle slowly back among the rocks, in the nooks and crannies of which great colonies of these birds build their nests. From them the region here bears the name of Sea-Gull Cliffs, and the lighthouse is known as Gulf Cliff Light. Penguins and elder ducks are also found on Grand Manan, and a solitary eagle is sometimes seen perched among the crags of the rocky fastnesses.

There are many places at this end of the island where the cliffs bristle with great splinters of upright rock, thrust up out of the shattered wastes like monuments to the surrounding ruin. One of these detached shafts, standing erect on a peccol of broken ledge near the shore, is rudely but strikingly shaped in the form of a great cross. This natural curiosity has been known for many years among the sailors and Bay of Fundy pilots and the Old Maid, though it has now long borne the more picturesque and appropriate name of the Southern Cross. As these exposed rocks are warm and dry, the sea-birds love to perch upon them. The cross is therefore seldom without the symbol of the dove.

Gulf Cliff Light, here lighting the Bay of Fundy entrance at night with gleams of alternating red and blue, shows from its tower the long blue line of the coast of Nova Scotia, some thirty or forty miles away. By a slight change in position, looking toward the Maine coast one may gaze straight into the mouth of Little River Harbor, at Cutler. On this side the Mashias Seal Rocks stand out sharp and clear, while on the other longly Gannet Rock lifts its warning shaft far out into sea.

Loitering about these headlands and exploring every nook and corner of this charming, fascinating spot is a favorite pastime with the colony of summer visitors and artists who have sought out this romantic island. Looking out at sunset upon the crimsoning wastes one sees the shadows creeping up the dark faces of the ancient cliffs and settling gently down into the black depths of the gorges. No noise is heard save the languid wash of water in and out among the rocks.

The waves beat in slow and regular motion. Twilight softly broods down over the gently throbbing ocean. As the light of day fades, Gulf Cliff Light comes glimmering out. Exceeding peace rests on land and sea, and as the moon rises slowly from the sea, touching the shadowed scene with high lights of silver along the headlands and tipping the waves with iridescent sheen, one feels that, lovely as it is by day, the keen and mystery of evening at Grand Manan enfold the island with enchantment irresistible and entranced.

THE GRANITETOWN GREETINGS

THE WEEK IN ST. GEORGE

The house owned by Mrs. James Doer looks splendidly in its new coat of paint.

The Sch. Francis Goodnow arrived in port yesterday to load pulp for Cornwall Conn.

The Sch. John R. Fells cleared on Thursday last with 550 tons of ground wood pulp.

Straw and Linen Hats for Men and Boys, one half price for cash at Hanson Bros. A snap while they last.

Franley Bros. are prepared to fit out the youngsters with the necessary school books. Their prices are the lowest in town.

Smr. Connors Bros. discharged freight on Monday and left on the afternoon tide for St. Andrews from which place they ran an excursion to Blacks Harbor yesterday.

Paving more is wasteful you can get Clothing, Furnishings, Hats and Caps at prices cut 20 per cent. to 50 per cent. from regular at our Cash Clearance Sale Hanson Bros. St. George.

What might have been a disastrous fire was averted on Saturday evening last. A lamp was upset at the residence of Mrs. James Lynott and a slight blaze was the outcome. By prompt action the fire was quickly extinguished.

A large party was over from St. Andrews in a motor boat on Sunday. The party included F. H. Grimmer, W. F. Fudge, N. E. Fortune, B. DeWolfe, J. Russell, H. P. O'Neill and Elmer Rigby. They took dinner at the Victoria hotel.

In the Leech cup shooting match in Ohio, Lieut. C. L. Sturdevant made 24 bulls in succession at 800, 900 and 1000 yards, thus making a perfect score of 105. This breaks the world's record, which was 104, made in 1908.

The new well-boring machine is at work on the lower street. The machine which is brand new is a portable one and of the best in the country. After completing the boring on the lower street, it will be removed to Blacks Harbor.

The Presbyterian Sunday school picnic took place on Monday. Several heavy loads of children and older ones left about noon for Young's bridge and a jolly good time was the report of all taking in the outing. Boating, bathing, football, baseball and other sports were enjoyed by young and old. Everything passed off smoothly with not the slightest sign of an accident to diminish the ardour manifested by the happy crowd. The picnickers arrived home shortly before dark.

The Baptists held a big day yesterday at Blacks Harbor. The S. S. Connors Bros. carried excursions from St. Andrews, Deer Island and Back Bay. The St. Andrews Band accompanied the excursion and furnished excellent music. In the morning motor boat racing was a feature. And in the p. m. land sports and a base ball game between Lord's Cove and the Blacks Harbor team furnished amusement for the crowd. The game was won by Lord's Cove in a close game by a score of 27 to 9. A neat sum of money was realized by the congregation of the church and will be used towards the repairing of the church at that place.

At St. John last Saturday the St. Johns defeated the Clippers 2-0 in the fastest game ever seen in that place. The St. Johns had five imported men, two from St. Stephen and three from Woodstock including the famous Peasley, Smith of Boston, pitched for the Clippers; he struck out thirteen men and if he had received proper support his team would have won. The St. Johns made two hits and left one man on base, while the Clippers made five hits and left eleven on bases. As the teams are so evenly matched the result of the league is still uncertain.

storey. On Aug. 22nd, to Mr. and Mrs. Jutson Storey, a daughter.

The Red Granite Division have engaged Mr. Chas. A. Cooke, the Indian entertainer and singer to appear in Court's Hall on September 9th. Watch for further announcements.

Campbellton is fast being built up again, over 300 buildings having been put up since the fire. Building lots in that place are selling at very high prices so it seems that it will soon be a thriving town again.

Large quantities of Red Rose Tea and Crushed Coffee have been shipped to a number of our merchants within the past few days. They all have fresh lots. A good chance to try the new Coffee. Everyone uses Red Rose Tea.

Gallagher, the would-be assassin of Mayor Gaynor, is going to plead insanity for his act. If Gaynor should die then in a United States criminal court we will likely have the old "brain-stem" nonsense that disgusted the world in the Thaw trial.

Today is to be a big day in town. A big picnic is to be held on the St. George B. E. A. grounds. Come out to the ball game between the St. Stephen and Camp Utopia teams; come out and see the sports; come out and take supper and enjoy the refreshments. Do anything you can to help a good cause along.

A young man charged with having been drunk the night before told the justice that he had never been drunk in his life and never meant to be, for it always made him feel so badly the next morning.

Personals.

Messrs Joseph Spear, Arthur Murray, John Dewar, Merl Meating and Harry Doyle spent last week at Lake Utopia.

Mr. Dixon of Camp Utopia left on yesterday's train to spend a week in New York.

A party consisting of a number of the Lake boys drove to Blacks Harbor yesterday to take in the picnic.

Miss McNicol of Eastport, Me., is visiting her cousin, Miss Ethel McNicol.

The Misses Keboe of Upper Mills, attended the funeral of Sergeant Coghlan on Sunday.

David Mathews was a passenger on yesterday's train to St. Stephen.

Mr. George Melrose, arrived on yesterday's train from St. John.

Mrs. Cram of Woodstock, who has been visiting her sister Mrs. John McLeod, returned home on Monday.

Granville Cawley has returned to his position in the bank at Farmouth, N. S. after spending a pleasant two weeks at home.

Miss McKenzie and Mrs. Jordan are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie, Mascarene.

Commercial travellers McKenzie and Ledingham were in town last week.

Arthur Stewart left on Thursday's train on a business trip.

The following notice is printing on the property of a man in Sussex and is evidently a product of the mind of some one who has forest conservation at heart.

"Save every young spruce. He'll be there for you or your boys to cut in a few years."

"Do not destroy the lumber of the future by careless cutting now."

"We will be thankful for the help of every man in the cause of careful Lumbering."

"Think it over seriously."

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Told by the Blotting Paper

Lord Robert Eldon tapped at the door of his wife's boudoir. For a moment he stood irresolute, then entered and shut the door. His wife must be out he had looked everywhere for her. How strange, and she particularly wanted that address which she promised to give him and as usual had forgotten! Perhaps it was in her bureau.

He signed and sat down at the writing table and hunted about for the address. There was no sign of it anywhere. A blotter, newly furnished with fresh paper caught his eye. It might be in there, he thought hopefully, and, pulling it to him, he opened it. There was nothing in it whatever except an unsophisticated impression of Mireille's large, healthy writing. Mechanically and without the least intention to spy, Lord Robert found himself spelling out the words, and then, as his import dawned on his astounded brain, he deliberately read it through again.

"Come tonight at 11," he read, and, a little lower down, Captain P. Everest, and his address.

By some oversight, Eldon told his wife the division was fixed for 11, when in reality it took place at 10. Relying on the knowledge that he would be safely out of the way, Mireille had fixed that hour for her lover's coming. He left early and drove down to the house and, entering, made his way to the Opposition lobby to vote with his party. Coming out, he was bitten holed by an excited constabulary.

At last, he was free, and hurrying to the entrance, he secured a waiting taxi. At the top of the street in which he lived he dismissed the cab and walked a few yards leading to his door. The house was very quiet as he noiselessly let himself in, and, hanging up his coat and hat he stole swiftly upstairs.

The drawing-room door was ajar and in semi-darkness, but he caught the glimmer from the fire and was cautiously entered. The room was empty, and while he stood undecided what to do he heard the rustle of a woman's gown on the stairs. Rapidly he crossed the floor, making for a great Japanese screen which cut off a corner of the room, and was hardly behind it when his wife entered and switched on the lights. Mireille, steady looking into the fire, then, with a heavy sigh, bowed her bright head until it rested on her outstretched arm, and he thought he heard her sob. In answer to that pitiful sob his heart went out in voiceless appeal.

"If I dare tell you," she said in a whisper that was perfectly audible to her unseen listener, "if only I dared. But the risk is too great. I could not face the scorn and loathing such a confession would bring into your dear eyes. Oh, my love, my love, forgive me!" With a passionate gesture she pressed her lips to the cold grass, then resumed her attitude of shrinking expectation by the fire.

He made a step forward, but at that moment the door opened, and with a movement of desperate courage his wife greeted the newcomer. Her visitor's keen eye raked the room.

"We are quite alone?" he said briefly.

"As you see," said Mireille coldly.

"Good. Then we can discuss matters and come to terms."

"Be merciful," she implored. "Have pity, I can do nothing more. I have given you all I possess, so be content and leave me in peace."

"Be easy my dear," he said, "I have not come for money this time; I fly for higher stakes. Briefly, London is becoming a trifle too warm for me, and I want a change. A clean start to another country will suit my book very well, and as the governorship of Armesia will be vacant shortly I think of applying for the post."

"Armesia?" she echoed aghast; but——but you have no chance of obtaining it; you have no influence."

"But your husband has," he replied with malign significance, "and you will persuade him to use it on my behalf."

"And if I refuse?"

"Why then, my dear," he said dryly

"I think it will be time to enlighten Lord Robert as to certain facts in your past history which so far have been carefully concealed from his knowledge. Perhaps, if I run over them the recital may prove to you the necessity for doing as I demand."

Mireille raised a protesting hand, then let it fall clenched to her side, and with bowed head listened while the smooth pitiless voice continued.

"When Lord Robert first met you, you were passing as Mireille Temperly, the penniless companion of his cousin's child. No one knew, he least of all, that Temperly was not your full name, that after your brother's arrest and conviction of forgery you dropped your rightful surname and married your husband under a false one; allowing him to believe you were an orphan. Why? Because you were afraid if he knew he would break off his engagement that your chances of marrying wealth and position would be at an end."

"No, no," she cried, with convincing passion, "for no such sordid reasons, but because I loved him, and feared to smirch his name with the shame that clung to mine."

"Exactly," was the triumphant answer "and because you dared to read the score for your deception to him on his face you will do all I demand."

"No?"

"Take care, my lady. You forget, I think, that you are in my power, and—"

"I forget nothing. Do your worst. Even though I lose my most precious thing on earth, this love, I defy you, Nay, I will tell him everything myself."

"There is no need," said a quiet voice behind them, "for he already knows," and Lord Robert advanced from behind the screen.

"Captain Everest, alias Gentleman Pete, alias Scribbling Charlie—ah you see your record is no secret from me—you have exactly twelve hours in which to leave England. If you refuse Scotland Yard will be in the possession of much wanted information concerning some little affairs which have puzzled them lately. Go!"

With a parting glance full of malice and hate "Captain Everest" stalked from the room.—London Tatler.

Turkey Receives German Vessels.

The old German battleships Weissenburg and Kurfurst Friedrich Wilhelm were delivered to the Turkish navy today and departed for Constantinople. They are under command of Rear Admiral Kock and have twenty-six Turkish officers aboard.

According to Berlin advices the Porto first applied to the British Government purchase battleships, but was informed that it had no warships for sale. The offer made by the German Government were extremely favorable for the Turkish Government. The sale was only $2,500,000 for the two ships, including the whole of the guns on board.

The Kurfurst Friedrich Wilhelm was launched at Wilhelmshafen in 1891 was completed in 1893. It is a battleship of 9,874 tons, has a length of 354 feet a beam of 65 feet and a depth of 24 feet. engines indicate 9,959 horse power, and she has a speed of 16 knots. Her armament is a formidable one. She also has three torpedo tubes. Her cost was $3,265,000.

DAYBREAK.

I saw the dawn break faltering on the tide,

That long, torn tide of rayless winter sea.

O, how it breathes of barrenness to me;

I saw the dawn upon it, dead and wide,

And wished that never might the daylight be.

I longed to burrow in the dark and hide

From light—from light, and its keen surgery;

I turned upon my pillows, and I cried—

How lifelong weary are those stairs it seems

That we must climb like bathers from the night,

Leaving the sluggish waters of our dreams

Warm and star-broken, while we face

The trembling, speechless day of all our pain.

O Death, resembling night, return again!

Small boats, they say, should hug the shore
Nor venture out like freighters,
At those who go about in them
Should not be imitators.

How does it happen that you are five minutes late at school this morning?
Teacher asked severely.
"Please, ma'am," said Ethel, I must have overwashed myself."

"Have you seen his new magazine?"
"Yes."
"He said it was to be indifferent. How is it?"
"Indifferent."

"Women are terribly hard to understand."
"Oh, I don't know."
"How is that?"
"I never try," and then they come in flocks and explain the whole thing."

"Has he good taste?"
"No."
"That's too bad."
"Yes, but that isn't the worst."
"What could be worse?"
"He has so much of it."

"I thought you were going to retire at fifty."
"I did expect to, but not yet."
"But you have made money."
"Yes, and I have two more sons-in-law to support."

"So you don't have Mrs. Modest make you go any more?" said the first dear girl.
"I should say not," rejoined A. G.
No. 2. "Why, if that woman made a gown to suit my figure I'd have a fit."

"You never kissed a girl in your life?"
"Never!"
"You don't know what you are missing."
"Yes, I do."
"What?"
"Microbes."

"He has raised every temptation so far."
"My! He must be strong."
"Not necessarily."
"Why not?"
"His special brand hasn't happened along."

Father—"This is your little sister Tommy; you will love her very dearly will you not?"
Tommy—"Yes, of course, but it will cost a great deal to keep her, won't it?"
Father—"I presume so."

Tommy—"Yes, and when I asked you the other day to buy me a white rabbit, you said you couldn't afford it."—M. A.

Are you the girl that took my order?
asked the old grocer as the pretty waitress tripped in under the weight of her load.

"I sure am," replied the girl, who was not addicted to slang, but could use it on occasions.

"I want to compliment you on one thing."

"What's that you're giving me now?"
"It is this: You don't look a day older than when you took it."

wasn't a single applicant showed up."
Oldwed—"How did you word it?"
Newsed—"I wanted a plain cook." Oldwed—"Tuh! No wonder your advertisement didn't pull. Try something like this: 'Wanted—A refined young lady to do plain cooking,' and you'll have a hundred applicants for the job."

A grocer enjoys the unenviable notoriousness of selling the worst goods in the district, but he has not recovered from the shock he got the other day when a little girl came into the shop and said:—"My ma sent me for two pounds of your best tea to kill rats with and a pound of finest ham, and mind and eat it in good thick slices, for it is to sole and heel my dad's boots."

"No," said the principal constituents with a shudder, "we can never vote for that man for the council. He would be suspected from his very occupation. He is a gardener."

"What has that to do with it," asked the candidate's friend.
"Naturally, he would take to grafting."

Citizen—"Why don't you go to work?"
Tramp—"Don't have to. The world owes me a living."
Citizen—"Then why don't you collect it?"
Tramp—"Can't. The world has too many preferred creditors."

A minister being sent to officiate one Sunday at a country parish was accommodated at night in the manse in a very diminutive apartment, instead of the usual best bedroom appropriated to strangers.
"Is this the bedroom?" he said, starting back in amazement.
"Deed, aye, sir, this is the prop-

"It must be for the minor prophets

The Protocol of Fish And Game

A new departure, one that should receive the approval of all sportsmen, marks the August issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont. The greater portion of the reading pages is given up to the reproduction in full of the Interim Report of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission. As a rule government publications receive only scant attention and have but a limited circulation. In this instance, however, the report, through its appearance in the Magazine, will be brought prominently before the attention of sportsmen, not only throughout Canada but also in the United States, and the many suggestions and recommendations it contains can scarcely fail to have some effect in a much wider field than Ontario. The interest taken in Fish and Game Protection is now general throughout North America and this document will be studied and quoted for a long time to come. The statement of existing conditions and the many recommendations for improvement will bear much consideration from sportsmen.

Through their organizations they should let the government know their views on these matters in order that legislation may be based upon at least some of them.
The interesting experience gained in "Canoeing on Lake Superior" is concluded and the story told of Mr. Vance's Pet Fox, while the capture of a big fish is related. For trappers the number is fascinating as it gives interesting accounts of many big meets and numerous smaller ones, showing the importance attached to this branch of sport throughout the Dominion.

A Modest Vacation.

I do not ask for very much
A little patch of shade
By branches of the noble oak
Or spreading chestnut made.
A couch of daisies silver white
And sweetly scented grass,
A quart of ice-cold lemonade,
A pitcher and a glass.
The fashions do not trouble me,
I merely ask to choose
A suit of well-worn corduroys,
A pair of easy shoes,
An ancient cap that fits my head,
No collar and no tie,
And vexed with neither work nor play,
I'll watch the world go by.

Nothing Like a Father's Love.

"Father, dear, won't you get us an automobile today?"
Thus implored the lovely Norman Nonpareil as she clung lissomely about her father's neck.
Nelson Nonpareil turned his face away to hide a tear. Day after day he heard his wife and daughters pleading for the gift which their happiness demanded.
Day after day he had to shake his head and put them off with promises.
No one but a father can understand the anguish which the poor man suffered at being obliged to deny his darlings the simple luxury they craved. Readers who are not fathers are urged not to try.

"Do not ask me," he told his daughter.
"I cannot afford an automobile; I am ashamed to admit it to you, but it is true:
No matter how hard I struggle I cannot get ahead. Take pity on your father's graying hair and do not insist.

The girl wailed beneath the blow like a sensitive plant, but in a minute she straightened up and her eyes flashed with a purpose, for she was a girl who read the newspapers.

"I have a plan," she cried, "Father
dear, for our sake get yourself elected to some municipal office.

Then the city will give you all the automobiles you want."

"My child, I will, declared Nelson Nonpareil. "Much as I dislike politics,
I will go to see the boss today.

What will not a father do for the sake of his loved ones.—Newark News.

A man in New York city drank seventeen jiggers of whiskey on a bet and is dead. A boy in the same city ate four dishes of ice cream and drank five glasses of soda water to cool off, and is also dead. The fool killer seems to be working without favoritism.

Why go to Church?

In many parts of the West the rural telephone has grown from a fence post affair to a thing of daily convenience.
And now in Kansas it is entering a field that is unusual and yet useful, for it is becoming the disseminator of the Sunday sermon.

No more the farmer's wife who lives three miles from a church need to worry as to whether the weather will be too bad for the long drive; no longer need the hitching up of the horses for that trip to the church be a matter of absolute necessity, for the telephone has stepped in and brought the church to the home.

It is in Olathe, Kan., that the experiment of the telephone sermon is being tried, and so far it has been a success that is growing. There illness and bad weather cannot interfere with the Sunday worship, for the sermons, and every other church service, for that matter, are transmitted directly to the home, and all one needs to do to hear is to place a telephone transmitter to the ear. The telephone company through connection with pulpits of the churches, does the rest.

"Three Olathe churches—the Presbyterian, the Reformed Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian—are using the service now," says the Baltimore Sun.
"In the first two it is used only for the old and ill. But in the other one the service is of general practice. Each of the churches is fitted with a transmitter, containing an extremely sensitive microphone arrangement and provided with special batteries and coils. The transmitter is no larger than the ordinary one used in telephone exchanges and hangs suspended from a rod in front of the pulpit, without obscuring the congregation's view of the minister. As the sermon is delivered the transmitted takes in the tone and carries them over the wires to the various listeners.

"Recently a newspaper correspondent sat in an easy chair in a hotel three blocks away from the church, and with an ordinary telephone receiver to his ear heard every word of the service—the reading of the Scriptures, the prayer, the singing of the Psalms, the announcements, the sermon and the benediction.
"The electrophone has been practically applied to the transmission of concerts theatrical performances and political meetings. During the last election in England it was used to transmit a speech of Mr. Balfour from Birmingham to Highbury, the estate of Joseph Chamberlain, the former Liberal Unionist leader, who was thus enabled to know what was going on. Twenty transmitters were installed beside the rail of the platform."

Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $5.00 per acre. Duties—must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of three years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $5.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres, erect a house worth $500.00.

W. W. CORRY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

His Choice

There came to a home of a negro in Tennessee an addition to the family in the shape of triplets. The proud father hailed the first man who came along the road and asked him to see them. The man, who was an Irishman, seemed greatly interested in the infants as he looked them over, lying in a row before him.

"What does 'em think?" asked the parent.

"Well"—pointing to the one in the middle—"I think I'd save that one."
