NOTES AND NEWS.

ASTRONOMY.
A site has been selected for the astronomical observatory which Mr. Jas. Lick is going to establish near the stars as possible on the Sierra of California. The spot is on a promontory extending into Lake Tahoe, 5,513 feet above the sea level, within thirty hours' travel of San Francisco, and there is never more than four feet of snow.

GREENVILLE (Tenn.) - A gull-driver pleasantly says of another writer: "His slender soul is imbued with the electricity of his black heart, and the sulphurous fumes till his whole nature is absorbed in one homogeneous mass of malice," and the Northwestern Herald man says admiringly: "A man might go to the Yale School of Journalism in the year and not learn to write that way."

JOHN M. LEWIS, of Ironville, Wis., age 19, height 27 inches, weight 37 pounds, claims to be the smallest person of his years in the world, the second in rank being Benjamin Little, 27 inches high, but growing when two years old, and has not since added an iota to his stature. He is a dignified young man, takes a prominent part in the meetings of the Wisconsin Congregationalists, and has refused an offer of $1,000 a week from Boston.

ROBERT MASTON, a gentleman eighty-one years old, boasts of a fact rarely equalled. He has lived in two States, two counties, three towns and one city, and yet has never changed his residence. Last year Maston was a province of Massachusetts. Editors of newspapers and their families should be allowed to pass free in the mails.

POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS shall be paid or not, at the option of the publisher, and may be made at any time most convenient to either, and no objection shall be made to the payment of the postage on the part of the publisher, and the rate per ounce shall be determined by the post office, and shall not exceed four cents per ounce.

A Recreational Schooler.
A Western county has recently made a decision which will settle, so far as it goes, the respective powers of teachers and school directors to prescribe the conduct of public schools, and the parents in both educational and parental circles. In the case alluded to, a Miss Post was a member of the junior class in a certain public school of the county, and the school was instructed by the directors to prescribe the conduct of the school, which Miss Post's mother objected to her daughter's undertaking, on the ground that she was already studying as many lessons as her state of health permitted her to master. The young lady, consequently, refused to attend the school, and the directors, in consequence of this, closed the school. This led to trouble at once; the School Board decreed her expulsion, and the directors, in consequence of this, closed the school. This led to trouble at once; the School Board decreed her expulsion, and the directors, in consequence of this, closed the school.

THE ORIGIN OF THE EPITHET "BLIND" is accounted for as follows: The distinct dress of the Scotch Presbyterian was a blue gown, and broad blue bonnet. The Episcopal clergy, on the other hand, either wore no distinctive dress in public services, or else wore a black gown. From this arose the common epithet of "blind" and "True Blue Presbyterianism."

SOME NEW OBITUARIES have been discovered by the Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator, as follows:

"With little angels he will star,
His ravine when he was young,
He laid them down for aye,
"Come to meet his grandmothers."

The poet of the Philadelphia Ledger will undoubtedly go crayon with every artist reading these touching lines.

LONDON'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS.
London has had a school system which has been in the course of experiment during the past four years and which subdivides the work into ten school districts, viz: City of London, Chelsea, Finsbury, Greenwich, Hackney, Lambeth, Marylebone, Southwark, Tower Hamlets, and Westminster. A census taken one night in April, 1871, showed that there were in London 458,888 children. School accommodations are provided for 315,661 children, all of whom except about 29,000 pay an average of three pence per week for their tuition. An annual tax of a halfpenny per pound has produced $245,000 per annum towards the support of the new system, and 86 buildings have been constructed capable of accommodating 179,682 pupils, and at a cost (the money being borrowed) of $2,300,000. Every class has a distinct room and is under the charge of a certified teacher. From a recent report of the School Board, it is learned that two inspectors are appointed who organize and examine the schools. Music, drill and needlework are prescribed as essentials in all the schools. In these branches there are regular classes for teachers on certain evenings. An instructor in "Kindergarten" exercises is also employed for the benefit of teachers of infant schools. Ladies and gentlemen in the various districts are appointed managers by the School Board, who determine the character of the school in their several districts, the amount of fees, number and salaries of teachers, and text books and apparatus. Among these are seventy-four clergymen, divided equally between the Established Church and the other denominations.

The education set confers compulsory powers upon the London School Board, but it is given as the opinion of the Board that the country was not ripe for universal compulsion when the work was begun a few years ago. Latterly, however, the Board of Victoria has availed itself of the compulsory power in a limited manner, and an increase of 50,000 children in average attendance therefrom. The Board also has charge of the industrial school for vagrant children.

In concluding the report the Board states that "they have framed regulations for these schools which they believe, as time goes on, will tend to raise the standard of education throughout the country. They have organized a machinery for increasing gradually the regular attendance at school of all children of school age."

Postal Suggestions.

Monthly magazines, published weekly, must be charged letter postage when delivered daily. Powder magazines, except to regular subscribers, are permitted to frank their reports.

If no stamp is affixed to the mail as most cases, it is, however, the postage is corrected, letter tip.

If you feel any doubt about a paper going with a one-cent stamp, have two sent.

Books can go through the mail as most cases. The postmaster is cautioned against allowing any odd books to go through their mails, however.

Signs cannot be sent without paying letter postage; be three cents on every leaf.

Colico prints, any foreign prices, printed matter and footprints, all go as registered matter, and pay tax accordingly. Vaccine matter must be properly packed.

Poetry in its various stages, including the Edgar A. Poe stage, must be sent in its original form, and not in a ready-made form. Shirts may be mailed at the rate of two cents for every ounce of shirt. If the owner's name is on the shirt, letter postage must be charged. This rule is in force.

A subscriber residing in the county in which a paper is printed can take the paper, provided he pays in advance and notifies the publisher.

Postage on newspapers shall be paid or not, at the option of the publisher, and may be made at any time most convenient to either, and no objection shall be made to the payment of the postage on the part of the publisher, and the rate per ounce shall be determined by the post office, and shall not exceed four cents per ounce.

The Established Church (I speak of only as a political power) has no conally of a tyrannical monarchy, and throughout its history it has been equality of patronage against mercy,
