Poetry.

Sea-Mews in Winter Time.

BY JEAN INGELLOW.

"I walked beside a dark gray sea,
And said, 'O world, how cold thou art;
Thou poor white world, I pity thee,
For joy and warmth from thee depart."
You rising wave licks off the snow,
Winds on the crag each other chase,
In little powdery whirls they blow
The misty fragments down its face.
The sea is cold, and dark its rim,
Winter sits covering on the wold,
And I, beside this watery brim,
Am also lonely, also cold."
I spoke, and drew toward a rock,
Where many mews were twittering sweet;
Their wings appeared, the clustering flock
Did part the sea-grass with their feet.

Miscellany.

BORROWED PLUMES.

"An old Colonial" writes to the London Times about an unfounded pretension of the colonial bishops. In intercourse with each other they use such titles as "my lord" and "your lordship" very freely, and thus to some extent exact these titles from the interior clergy and from laymen. The Bishop of Cape Town was announced lately in the London papers as "His Grace" the Metropolitan of South Africa.

The old colonial argues that his bishop is more of a lord in reality than he himself is. The case of the English bishops is different. They sit in the House of Lords, and as peers of the realm take precedence of all below the rank of baron. Whether there is any propriety in present investing clergymen with a clerical dignities and titles may be fairly questioned, but the law of the land does it. The colonial bishops, however, are not peers of the realm nor are they a jot more noble after their consecration than before it. Yet they arrogate titles which are properly given only to the nobility.

This writer says the sentiment of the colonies condemns this conduct. "There is no order of nobility among them, and it is therefore generally an offence to the colonists that they should be obliged in courtesy to adopt a form of address and apply titles to the bishops which rest on no kind of authority but their own assumption, or on the obtention of these titles upon them by certain lay members of the church in the civil service, who foolishly imagine that they are necessary to the dignity of the office."

It seems to the colonial an excellent topic for the discussion of the Synod of Lambeth. The American bishops are quite as much respected as they would be if they belittled each other and signed their letters with the names of their diocese. It is to be hoped that the colonial bishops will see the propriety of following this example. If, however, they are determined to masquerade as peacocks the home authorities should devise some way to convince them that they are, after all, plain daws.

A Touching Story.

A lady had two children,—both girls; the elder a fair child, the younger a beauty, and the mother's pet. Her whole love centered in it. The elder was neglected; while 'Sweet' (the pet name of her younger) received every attention that love could bestow. One day after a severe illness, the mother was sitting in the parlour, when she heard a childish step on the stairs, and her thoughts were instantly with the favorite.
'Is that you, 'Sweet?' she inquired.
'No mamma,' was the sad and touching reply; 'it is 'Sweet'—its only me.'
The mother's heart smote her; and from that hour 'Only me' was restored to an equal place in her affections.

—A "loyal" young minister at Rock Island Ill., has occasioned a great deal of scandal at that place, in reference to his popularity with the gushing damsels of his congregation. The Montreal Gazette says that the whole of the volunteer force has now been armed with the best breach loading weapon which is as yet in existence. 30,000 Snider Enfield rifles have been distributed among the volunteer battalions of Ontario and Quebec.

—A new hotel, called the "Gibson House," has been opened in Woodstock.
—Mr. Pickard, one of the contractors for the construction of the Fredericton Branch Railway, hopes to have the line running by December, '68.

A French Boy Murderer.
An extraordinary murder by a boy recently took place at Madulac, France. The victim is a farmer in good circumstances, named Le-marie. Eloi, one of the sons of the latter, although aged fourteen years only, had already given proofs of a most perverse disposition, and had committed several robberies, quite recently he had stolen a small sum of money from M. Delbos, who had severely reproached him, and threatened to send him to prison. This menace inspired the boy with a desire for vengeance. With this intention he procured a billhook, and then took his station in a loft over the apartment occupied by M. Delbos, having previously loosed a plank of the flooring which formed the ceiling to the room below.
M. Delbos at length returned, and after supper remained sitting up reading for some hours, the boy all the time watching him through a crevice between the boards. At one moment M. Delbos, hearing a slight noise made by the movement of the boy overhead, cast his eyes to the ceiling, and observing that one of the planks appeared badly fastened, got on to a chair to examine it. The boy, with remarkable presence of mind, immediately laid down on it, thinking that his weight would prevent M. Delbos from raising it.
As he had expected M. Delbos, feeling that the plank offered a certain resistance, thought it was sufficiently fast. He shortly afterward went to bed, and Eloi presently, hearing from the regularity of his breathing that he was asleep, took his weapon, descended by the aid of the table which was beneath the opening he had made, and commenced striking M. Delbos with the billhook on the face and breast. A struggle ensued, but soon M. Delbos, whose hand had been nearly severed from his wrist, fell heavily on the ground.
Before entering the loft the boy had left his clothes near a pond close by; he now went and washed the stains of blood from his hands and body, dressed himself, and then went to the bed in which his elder brother was sleeping, and slept soundly. In the meantime the cries of M. Delbos had been heard, and an entry into his apartment having been made he was found expiring; he was, however, just able to name Eloi as his murderer. The boy has been arrested and has confessed his guilt, relating all the details of the crime with horrible coolness.

Strange Vicissitudes in the Life of a British Nobleman's Son.

[From the Debater (Millions) Magnet.]
Most, if not nearly all, of our citizens have noticed a dissipated wretch, some what resembling a circus wagon, located on a vacant lot on North Main street, in which resided an old and poverty stricken man. Some time in the spring the wagon, propelled by a couple of attenuated horses, arrived in this city, and the old man pitched his tent in the place mentioned. He has since been permitted to dwell. Here he has lived ever since, eking out an existence by the donations of our benevolent citizens, he, having disposed of the horses for a small sum.

Yesterday, F. S. Murphy, Esq., one of our prominent lawyers, received a call from a Scotch gentleman named McGregor, who, after a long and weary search, had found the individual we have thus described, and who identifies as the youngest son of the late Earl of Clancarrig, of one the wealthiest and most influential noblemen in Scotland.

The story related by Mr. McGregor is almost marvellous in its details, and would furnish the materials for a first class three volume novel. Some forty years since, the poor old man who has attracted the compassion of our citizens, was a dashing and stylish officer in the Life Guards; becoming enamored of a beautiful girl of humble origin he married her in opposition to the command of his proud father and remonstrances of his equally proud elder brother. Being disinherited and thrown upon the world, he sold his commission, and with his wife came to this country. After five years of vicissitudes upon a rugged farm in the Western wilds, his wife died, and broken, in spirit, and sore in heart, he relinquished his claim and roamed without aim or purpose over the country.

During the Mexican war he enlisted as a private soldier, and served until the close of hostilities. Since then he has been the companion of roving Indians; a deck hand on steamboats; a peddler &c., until his arrival in this city. By the death of his elder brother, which occurred about four months since, he has become the possessor of estates to the value of $3,000 per annum. His good fortune—as has come to late, prostrate in mind and enfeebled in body, he cannot realize, nor can he long enjoy the princely fortune to which he has fallen heir. Yesterday evening in care of Mr. McGregor, he embarked on the Eastern train, en route for his lordly mansion in Inverness, Scotland.

APPOINTMENTS.—A Toronto journal states that Rev. C. B. Bliss, of Sussex, has been appointed, Private Secretary to Hon. M. Tilly and the Telegraph, has the following: "Three Clerks in the House of Commons are assigned to New Brunswick. These we understand, have filled by the appointment of Mr. J. E. B. McCready of Penobscot. Mr. Samuel Watt, Editor of the Carleton Sentinel, and Mr. Peter Mill Miller, Barrister, of Chatham."

—The Court Journal says: "It is said that a Scotch lady has died and left young Riccotti Garibaldi $40,000."

COULDN'T TELL.—A negro witness was examined in the Mayors court, to prove the identity of a white man, the other day.
Mayor.—Did you see the Man?
"Yes sar, I seed him."
"Was he a white man?"
"Don't know, sar."
"Do you tell me you saw the man, and can't say whether he was white or black?"
"Yes sar, I seed him, but dere's so many white folks callin' themselves niggers round here I can't tell one from 'oder'!"
Witness dismissed— explanation satisfactory.

Anatomists do not state the fact, but is so nevertheless, that women love two skeletons. One is covered by flesh and other— isn't.

A NEW ENGLAND SETTLEMENT IN NEW JERSEY.
THE HAMMONTON TRACT OF LAND IN NEW JERSEY
Has become the central point of an extensive migration from the New England States, and from the British Colonies, and is now being settled by a large number of emigrants. The tract is situated in the beautiful and fertile State of New Jersey, and is bounded on the north by the Hudson River, on the east by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south by the Delaware River, and on the west by the State of Pennsylvania. The tract is divided into several large tracts, each of which is capable of supporting a large population. The soil is fertile, and the climate is healthy. The water is pure, and the air is fresh. The tract is well watered, and is capable of producing a large quantity of food and other necessaries of life. The tract is now being settled by a large number of emigrants, and is becoming a very desirable place of residence.
