of 1902 will go down into history as one of the most successful in every respect in the history of that great institution. Yesterday's attendance was beyond the expectations of even the most sanguine among the directors. From far and near the crowds came. All day they poured into the exhibition grounds; and when nightfall came and the electric lights were turned on. transforming Queen's Park into a ver-Itable fairyland, the grounds were thronged woth thousands. Although the evening ring performance does not commence until nearly 8 o'clock. the stands were comfortably filled at 6, and an hour later both the long closed grand stand and the open stands were fammed full of people. There must have been fully 15,000 people about the stage and track, and as many more in other parts of the grounds. Not a single accident marred the day. The weather was ideal and the crowds were handled by the street cars in a most satisfactory manner.

Today is International Day, and the same programme of special attractions will be repeated, concluding in the evening with the ring performance and Prof. Hand's spectacular fireworks.

GREAT CROWDS IN STANCS

Special Attractions Wednesday Were Very Liberally Patronized.

It must have been an inspiring sight that met the gaze of the hard-working fair directors, as they stood yesterday on the platform and looked down at 10,000 faces in the large stands. The crowds were treated to one of the finest cards of attractions and the best farmers' races that were ever presented at the Western Fair. Four years ago there was probably as large a crowd as yesterday's, but never since. If the Western Fair of 1902 does not break all previous records in the matter of attendance it will not be the fault of the farmers of Western Ontario, who have most assuredly done their share towards the success of the exhibition. Yesterday's platform performance was quite as enjoyable as that of the pre-ceding day. The generous applause of the crowds seemed to serve as an inspiration to the different artists. The races were exceedingly well contested and showed a marked improvement over the races reserved for farmers' horses last year. No mistake was made by the attactions committee when they secured the services of the Four Famed Bard Bros., who are truly marvels in acrobatic work. Among the company of directors and others, who usually congregate about the judge's stand, they have been the subject of much comment. They are really the "top-liners" of the Their act differs largely from the usual run of acrebatic turns. All of their climbing work being done with the hands.

The lady cornetist, Miss Chrissie M. Jones, also contributes a bright feature to the programme. Her art carries a perfect mastery over her instrument, her tone being rich, full and clear. Yesterday she won enthusiastic recalls at both appearances.

Tom Eck's cycle whirl, one of the most daring and hair-raising acts ever put on in the city, was extremely well received. The lady member of the troupe in the afternoon went a halfmile round the race track in the remarkably fast time of 1:211/4. She was astonishing record-breaker. paced by a motor cycle. two, three or even five years before the conditions were just right, but believed that the time would come within three years. Part of the plan was to have the ship return each summer and try to reach the colony with fresh supplies, or to take them off in case their object had been accomplished. In case of failure one year, the ship was to try again the next, and the next, until the colony had been reached. This possibility of failure for a year or two necessitated the landing of a large quantity of supplies in the first instance. The outside cost of this expedition Lieut. Peary owned by the Llewellyn Company figured at about $150,000. The departure for this year's relief was made on the Windward in July. The Eric, which went last year, reported all hands well, though the

LIEUT. PEARY. Lieut. Peary is now over 46 years old, a graduate of Bowdoin College, where he won honors in natural sci-ence. Later he obtained a place as draughtsman in the geodetic survey, and, after a few years at that, passed a very stiff examination as a civil engineer in the United States naval service. He was successively an assistant and chief engineer in charge of surveys for the Nicaragua Canal. While at this task he obtained a short leave of absence in 1886, and, taking with him Matthew Henson, a Philadelphia colored man who had served with him in Nicaragua, he made a prelimin-ary study of the Greenland ice cap. Henson, it may be added, has since been his inseparable companion on all his expeditions. Other explorers had studied and attempted the Arctic problem, as explorers pure and simple, as seamen, as scientists, or even to gratify an adventurous spirit. Peary may be classed as the first engineer to attempt it. and true to his calling, went about it much as a man would build a bridge or dig a tunnel. Public men acknowledge there is a demand in sections of the west and northwest for a revision of the tariff along certain lines, notably in the cases of articles whose manufacture

SEES CHANGED CONDITIONS. In a letter to C. E. Albrook, chairman of the notification committee, announcing his withdrawal from the race for congress in Iowa, Mr. Henderson

Since my return to the district I have made a careful study as to the sentiment in the district and and I believe there is no little sentiment and a growing sentiment among Republicans I do not truly represent their views on the tariff question. Believing this condition to exist, and knowing that I do not agree with of my people that trusts, to which I am and have been opbenefited by free trade, in whole or in part. I must decline to accept nomination so generously and enthusiastically made. "I have devoted twenty of the best years of my life to the service of people and my country, and I fought for what I believed to be best for the farmer, the laborer and the business interests of this district and state."

OTHER REASONS GIVEN. It is believed that Henderson's attitude toward President Roosevelt during the fight in the 57th Congress on the question of Cuban reciprocity, which he was given credit for a share in the defeat of the measure, hurt him. This, it is held, would cost him many votes in the coming election. Another reason given for his withdrawal is the wonderful popularity of his epponent, Horace Boies, the Demo-

Congressman Corliss expressed surprise and regret upon learning of Speaker Henderson's declination to again be a candidate for Congress. He

"Gen. Henderson is among those who believe that the present prosper-ous conditions, under the Dingley law, too sacred to be affected by radical changes, and he foresees the danger to our country from the agitation of the tariff schedule by Congress. He knows how difficult it is to select a few items for modification and not involve the many."

Winnipeg, Sept. 17.-At a recent session of the Methodist General Conference, a further report for the committee on temperance and moral reform was presented by Rev. C. T. Scott, London. It provided for the establishment of a general board on this from the general and annual conferences, to have general supervision over that branch of the church work, with authority to make representations to parliament or the legislatures on matters of legislation respecting temperance and moral reform, circulate literature and co-operate with other bodies engaged in similar work. The vexed amusement question, which has agitated Methodist conferences for many years, has been disposed of. The church's highest court refused to make any change in the "foot-note," and added emphasis by refusing even to debate the subject. Conference has also affirmed the principle that the term of the general superintendent should be eight years. They gave authority for the appointof local superintendents of Sunday schools in various conferences, and decided that Sunday school committees of annual conference shall be standing committees.

Most Dreadful of Skin Diseases

A Chronic Case of Eczema of 30 Years Standing Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The demand for Dr. Chase's Ointment during the summer months is enormous. It is during the warm weather especially that there is such great-suffering from eczema and similar skin diseases. That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a thorough cure for this torturing disease is proven in hundreds of cases similar to the following: Mr. G. H. McConnell, engineer Fleury's Foundry, Aurora, Ont., states: "I believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold. For about 30 years I was troubled with eczema and could not obtain any cure. I was son, and this developed in eczema, the most dreadful of skin diseases. "I was so bad that I would get up at night and scratch myself until flesh was raw and flaming. The torture I endured is almost beyond description, and now I cannot say anything too good for Dr. Chase's Ointment, It has cured me, and I recommend it because I know there is nothing so good for itching skin."

Few people realize the suffering caused by eczema and other itching skin diseases. This is an example of what Dr. Chase's Ointment is doing in the way of relieving suffering mankind. Many of the cures it brings about are more like miracles than anyers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., To-

HE WANTS A REVISED TARIFF

Claims To Be the Exponent of the Public Mind and Charges Globe With Malice.

[Special to The Globe.] Montreal, Sept. 16.—Hon. J. Israel Tarte, continuing his investigation of manufacturing companies, with a view of giving them more protection, visited today the boot and shoe factories of Messrs. J. & I. Bell, and of the Ames, Holden Company. They all, of course, wanted more protection, and La Patrie, in concluding the report of these visits, adds. "One word prenounced by one of those present summarizes the whole situation. He is a Liberal, but a protectionist, and he was asked how he could vote for the Liberals with the programme of 1893. He replied: "If I ever believed that they had any intention of applying that tariff I would have voted against

REPLY TO THE GLOBE. Hon. J. I. Tarte, minister of public works, was at his office in the postoffice building when a reporter called, with a copy of today's Globe article about him. On reading the article he smiled. "I am not astonished at the Globe's language towards me," said Hon. Mr. Tarte. "As to the influence of that paper, however, you can see it in the result of its efforts. During the electoral campaign of 1900 it spoke in support of the Liberal cause. The elections came, and Hon. Mr. Mulock was the only Liberal candidate who was returned victorious out of fourteen seats in and around Toronto. Mr. Archibald Campbell, who succeeded Mr. N.Clarke Wallace, was elected after saying exactly what I said-not for the first timebut ten times before the prime minister and his colleagues. The Globe is absolutely free to say what it likes about me. I know it represents influences which have for a long time been hostile to me. It is astonishing to me to see how some people refuse to notice and accept the true condition of the

"What, I ask, what I sincerely believe the majority of the country de-mands, is a readjustment of the tariff in a truly Canadian sense. During the last session Hon. Mr. Fielding, speaking on behalf of the Government, announced a revision of the tariff for the next session

"The general situation vividly recalls to my mind the situation of the country in 1866, 1867 and 1868, at an earlier period just after confederation. group of young men, including Louis A. Jette, L. O. David, Cleophas Beausoliel, Wilfrid Laurier, Henry Joli, Hector Fabre and others, had founded the parti National, the National party, advocating the protection of national in-dustries. They stirred public opinion during two or three years. Sir John protection. What happened? The Conservative party took possession of the policy of the Liberals of Lower Canada, making of that policy their great arme de combat. You know the result of the elections in 1878.

"The Globe displays a willful malice in attacking me because I travel a great deal. With the exception of my trip to the great lakes, which I made for the purpose of studying the country, I have not made an official visit to any place in Ontario or Quebec, without having been invited and pressed to do so. On Sept. 19 I shall be at Orillia, on the invitation of the Liberal Association. Mr. Calvert, the chief Liberal whip, has invited me, on pehalf of the Middlesex Exposition Company, to be at Strathroy on Sept. 25. I have a dozen other invitations to visit Ontario. Shall I refuse them because it displeases the Globe?"

Thrifty Policeman Fired.

He was ed on trial at 2 p.m. on a charge of neglect of duty and at 6:15 his convicion was announced. Moynahan is a large property owner, having real esate valued at $500,000. One of the things brought out at the trial was that he detailed some of his patrolmen to do repairing in his apartment houses.

Has been responsible for much of human mortality. Men and women die by thousands in an Indian famine, not because of lack of food but because caste superstition prevents them from accepting it. Even In America there are still to be found those who believe that healing herbs lack virtue unless gathered during certain phases of the moon. The great foe of superstition is science. Every year science increases the territory of the natural at the expense of the supernatural. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery achieves its successful cures because it is a scientific preparation originated by a scientific man. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood and Farmer May Die From Blood Poisoning-Assailant Arrested.

Woodstock, Sept. 17. - Jacob Selby, 26 years of age, colored, was lodged in the county jail here today, charged with assaulting James Clark, a West Oxford farmer, who now lies at the point of death in his home, five miles west of here, as a result of blood poisoning setting in in a wound inflicted on the side of the head from a bottle, struck, it is alleged, by Selby, who had a row with the injured man at a hotel in Beachville. It is said Selby went out of the hotel and waited in the darkness for Clark. latter was struck as soon as he stepped outside the door. The wound required thirteen stitches, and now lockjaw is feared. Selby was locked up in the Stratford jail yesterday. He is a Woodstock boy and his parents reside here.

WABASH EXTENSION

The Company Being Insured Right of Way to New York.

Washington, Pa., Sept. 18.-Property holders and manufacturers of Greene and Washington Counties have agreed to insure the right of way through their counties for the Wabash, and each county has a committee obtaining the right of way and also freight contracts for the new railroad. On Wednesday a committee of seven, representing both counties, met here and agreed to turn over to the Wabash the right of way. Green County is to put up a bond of $100,000 to indemnify the Wabash against any possible loss through suits. Both counties will turn over contracts to the Wabash. giving that line 971/2 per cent of the total freight tonnage of the country for ten consecutive years as an inducement to have the line built. This means the vast coal and coke tonnage and the increasing manufacturing tonnage of both counties.

PUT UP THE SWORD

Lord Dundonald Makes an Important Change in Military Matters.

Ottawa, Sept. 18.-Lord Dundonald has lost no time in putting into operation the lessons of the Boer war. A militia order has been issued prohibiting the Canadian cavalry taking their swords into the field, and intimating that our mounted troops are to consider the rifle as their principal weapon. A programme of instruction for cavalry, based upon experiences in South Africa, is set forth in detail. The introductory paragraphs of the order are as follows: 'With reference to the memorandum on instruction to cavalry, the general officer commanding desires to call the attention of all ranks, who have hitherto looked upon the sword as their principal weapon, to the following ob- It Provides Ample Nutrition for Keepservations: Wire fencing, inclosures, smokeless powder, the increased range and accuracy of arms of precision, all tend to diminish the power of men who depend upon shock action for success. THE ROCHESTER TRAGEDY. Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 17 .- A letter found in the room at the Whitcomb House, occupied by Dr. L. D. Kent and Ethel Blanche Dingle, was made public at the coroner's inquest today. It is written on Whitcomb House paper, and is without a date. The letter follows:

"To the coroner of Rochester, N.Y.— Please mail these letters and send our bodies to Buffalo to be buried together at my expense at Forest Lawn. (Signed) Dr. Kent, E. B. Dingle." The body of the note compares with Kent's signature, but the signature of the woman does not resemble a fem-

He found blood in the watch pitcher and on a leather case in the room. Two witnessed swore that it was their impression that Kent had on his trousers and shirt when found beside the girl's dead body. The importance of this fact was shown when Mr. The vice-presidents for Manitoba Raines, counsel for Kent, began his standing on the floor partly dressed. Kent's body was covered with quilts when witness entered the room and these he did not disturb.

The Western Fair.

The Western Fair has passed what might be called the danger point, as the weather at this juncture holds no great terror for the directors. Rain may lower the financial surplus, but it cannot prevent one now. In another respect the Western, as well as the other great annual fairs in this Province, has passed the danger line. There was a widespread impression last year that these exhibitions had exhausted their usefulness and would die a natural death. There was no reason Whatever for this except that the attendance at the annual fairs fell off, because of the superior but ephemeral attraction of the Pan-American. The success of the Industrial and the Western this year shows that far from being on the wane they have taken a be made a convenient cloak for rasfresh lease of life, partly owing, no doubt, to the abounding prosperity in the country and favorable harvest conditions.

But the principals in this were not even Canadians. The Toohey case, which our contemporary overlooks, attracted an undesirable amount of attention on the other side through the arrest of some fifty peg-leg tramps in the United States, charged with the murder, which was committed by a Texas refugee. These crimes were no reflection on the character of this community, but gave it a notoriety far from pleasant. The Biddulph tragedy, which was widely commented on in the United States at the time, has almost passed out of memory. We quite agree with the Sentinel-Review that this neighborhood is not marked by any unusual amount of serious crime, but it has been unfortunate in being the scene of two or three murders which had too wide a celebrity.

Should Women Work? [Grand Rapids Press.]

The staid London Chronicle is solemnly discussing the question, "Should Women Work?" just as if women had not been doing the world's work since creation.

Man at the end of his day's work can count up the money he has made and measure the result. Woman's day's work has no end and no tangible profits. Her only payment as she goes weary-handed and empty-handed to rest is in the satisfaction of having done well a little more of her unending labor of love.

There is nothing more pathetic, were it not so common, than the sight-so often seen-of the hard-working, conout her life in unheralded toil, thankless and expecting no thanks. She has no eight-hour day." Even a twelve-hour day would be a boon to the wives who in the care of the house and children are always "doing overtime," without thought of extra pay.

Little Is Known About the New Combination.

Negotiations Have Been in Progress for Six Months Past.

London, Sept. 18 .- Information respecting the alleged British coal and iron trust remains meager and untrustworthy. Negotiations for the formation of a trust were in progress for nearly six months, and Mr. Arthur Keen, who is named as the master spirit of the new combination, was deeply concerned in these conferences, but there was no practical result. ject to my bills? Leading firms and corporations, instead of buying one another out and creating an anti-Morgan trust, are considering the expediency of forming a combination on German lines for the regulation of production, prices and export trade A powerful combination of coal, coke and pig iron owners and manufacturers has been created in Germany, and it has made arrangements for paying bonuses on exports equal to the difference between prices in the home market and prices abroad. It is not expected in the coal and iron trades that export bonuses will be paid here in competition with Germany and Belgium, but it is considered probable that an organization of some kind will be formed for regulating the operations of these allied industries.

CHICAGO. Chicago, Sept. 17.—The general tone in grains today was firm. Prediction of frosts to follow the recent mild weather was a potent factor. Judge Lount.

The Indian Charles Tells His Story to the Jury.

THURSDAY MORNING'S SESSION. The fourth day of the sitting of the court of assize opened before Judge Lount at the court house this morning. It was 10 o'clock before the empaneling of a jury to pass upon the evidence in the McArthur-Ninham manslaughter case was completed. By nelius Elm, an Indian, on the morning that time the court room was filled, a large proportion of ladies being present. The prisoner in the dock was guarded on either side by Constables Leonard Paisley and Ben Fisher. Mc-Arthur maintained the same calm demeanor as has marked his bearing all through the previous proceedings in the case. The fact that the grand jury had brought in a true bill for manslaughter against the prisoner, instead of one for murder, the crime with which he stood indicted, has robbed the case of some of the intense interest which it would have otherwise possessed, as now only the prisoner's liberty is in jeopardy and not his life. Another fact which tends to lessen that the man at the hotel said "You public interest is the recent occurrence | black Indians." of alleged crime, the space given to its description in the press at that time, and the very full evidence bearing on the case, presented both at the inquest before Coroner Ferguson and at the preliminary examination before J. B.

SECURING A JURY.

Half an hour was occupied in the selection of a jury. Thirty-four jurors were called before twelve were found who were satisfactory to both the crown and the defense. It was noticeable that most of the jurors challenged by the defense were elderly men, while those told to stand aside by the crown were nearly all young men.

The jury, as finally selected, was composed of the following "twelve good men and true": Neil McAlpine lot 21, con. 6, McGillivray; James Gilbert, lot 2, con. 1, Mosa, Peter Crawford, lot 11. cor 7, Lobo; Wesley Woodhull, Tal-bot road, Westminster; Thomas Colledge, lot 2, con. 4, Delaware; Robert | tions. All the petit jurors save those concerned in the McArthur case were dismissed from further attendance and paid off.

OPENING OF THE CASE.

He then gave a resume of the facts We also desire to thank your lordship in the case, as the crown witnesses for your able and lucid charge. would lay them before the jury. He commented on the fact that an Indian's life was of as much value in the eyes of the law as that of any other citizen. He closed by stating that the crown held that John McArthur had no right whatever to lay his nand or for periodical inspection of public inconsequences.

JOHN CHARLES' TESTIMONY.

John Charles, Ninham's companion on the night when the latter met his on the hight when the latter met his death, and the crown's principal with the grand jury for their references to loans, at which Stanley could have borness, was next called. He told practice from prosecutor and himself, and on the stand at both the inquest and manner in which they had discharged judge and argued that there was no of meeting Ninham at Springbank on further attendance. the night of Saturday, June 21, and of walking to Sharkey's hotel with him. Witness had been in London during the day, he said, and had had ten or twelve glasses of beer. He had none after 6 o'clock.

Witness knew that Ninham had been drinking during the day. His speech was thick, but his walk was all right. The prisoner had no hat on when he assaulted Ninham, said witness. Mr. Faulds then took the witness.

To Mr. Faulds the witness Charles said that he remembered meeting Corafter Ninham's death. He did not remember saying to Elm "I got bad luck. Gus Ninham dead. Two fellows came out and struck Gus. Gus fell down and never moved afterward.' Witness said he did not tell Elm that he did not know who struck Ninham. He had said that he did not know the man's name, but he would know him if he saw him. Charles said that on the Saturday night he was feeling the effects of the liquor he had drunk during the day. He could not remember anything that he saw at the show at Springbank. Witness could not say why he had not told at the previous proceedings that the man called them "You d-d Indians.' Mr. Faulds drew from the witness several contradictions of his previous evidence.

Witness said he was afraid to go to Ninham's defense, afraid to go back to the hotel, and afraid to yell for help. "Then do you know you are a coward?" asked Mr. Faulds. "I know I am," answered Charles frankly.

At 1 o'clock the court adjourned for one hour.

> PEOPLE'S LOAN AND BUILDING ASSOCIA-TION VS. ROBERT STANLEY.

At the conclusion of the Graham-Kilbourne case at the assizes yesterday afternoon the case of the Peoples' Building and Loan Association Robert Stanley was taken up by Judge Lount without a jury.

The action was one to recover balance alleged to be due on two concurrent covenants, one to pay interest at 16 per cent. and the other at 6 per cent, with a monthly premium, contained in two mortgages for $1,000 each. On the case being called, Bartram, counsel for the defendant. claimed the right to open the case. The pleadings, said Mr. Bartram, showed that defendant admitted his signing the mortgages, and it was having read them as calling only for 6 per cent. Mr. I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., counsel for plaintiffs, objected, and the judge ruled against Mr. Bantram. Day vs. Canadian Mutual, 3 O. L. R.,

The defendant, Robert Stanley, ther took the stand and swore that when he applied for a loan he told the plaintiff's manager that he could get money at 6 per cent. The manager represented that if he joined the association as a stockholder he could share in the profits—at least 9 per cent—and could borrow at 6 per cent. He accordingly became a stockholder and borrowed $2,000. When the mortgages were read to him by Mr. Campbell the manager, only 6 per cent interest was named; and the witness signed them. No papers of any kind were given him to show otherwise. He relied upon the honesty of Mr. Campbell's statements. He paid for five years, and only then found out that the mortgages were for 16 per cent. Mrs. Ellen Stanley, wife of the de fendant, corroborated his statement as to the reading of the mortgages when she signed them. This closed the decontract to pay 16 per cent or any interest higher than 6 per cent. The evidence of Stanley and his wife taken in connection with the known fact that 6 per cent was the current rate of inrest, showed that Mr. Campbell had falsely read the mortgage. He cited case to prove that in such cases the document was void, but the judge said he agreed to the propositions of law. Times Law Reports, 513, decided this year, that undue interest could not be collected. In that case, the plaintiff was only allowed 5 per cent interest on £300, although he got a note for £500. for the advances of £300. His lordship, without calling upon Mr. Hellmuth, gave judgment for plaintiff for $1,129 66, with costs, saying that he did not believe the evidence of Stanley and his wife, but he did that of Mr. Campbell. Her figure was very prim and extremely heat in her steel-gray traveling suit, which was cut in the fashion of twenty years previous; a bonnet whose shape must have borne the same date, and a mantle trimmed with that old builion fringe such as our grandmothers used to wear. She also wore a spotless kerchief about her Lock, pinned with a huge brooch with a great yellow stone, and black mitts without any fingers.

She wore her side hair in corkscrew curls, so small and flexible that they reminded one of alder tassels constantly waying in the wind; but she had, withal, a pleasant face, a genial smile and the kindest eyes in the world.

She was proverbially industrious, being constantly employed upon a blue woolen stocking, through which she made her bright steel needles click and fly as if her entire support depended upon her occupation.

Occupation.
This original couple were "out for a summer tower," as Mr. George Washington Starkey confidentially informed a chance acquaintance; while "Marthy to a confidential to the con chance acquaintance; while "Marthy Ann" was his hobby, and, according to his honest belief, the most wonderful woman the earth possessed.

"She an't so genteel, p'rhaps, as she might be," he remarked upon one occasion, but bending an affectionate glance upon the prim spinster, who was apparently oblivious to everything save her knitting, "nor so sweet and purty to look at as some of them young blossoms over yonder, with a half wondering, wholly delighted glance at Miss Grace Campbell, who was the acknowledged beauty of the whole company—"she never was; but," impressively, "she's good through and through. There an't nothing she don't know about sickness, and yarbs, and medicines, and nothing she wouldn't do for anybody that was sick. She's a great medicines, and nothing she wouldn't do for anybody that was sick. She's a great nand to give to the church and missions, and she'll cook and buy all manner of dainties for sick folks, and work till dainties for sick folks, and work till she's ready to drop for anybody in a tight place. I tell you, sir, when Marthy Ann dies the world'll lose a stunner."

"Have you and your sister always lived together?" he was asked, after one of these dissertations.

"Yes, When the old folks died we was all there was left, and it seemed kind o' natural for us to hang together. It's been a capital thing for me, and we've had quite a comfortable kind of a life. But it's been a pretty quiet one, and so we thought, as long as we could as well as not, we'd start out on a little tower for a change, and we mean to see considerable of the world before we die."

As may be supposed, this original couple, created no small 'amount of merrismall amount of merriment among the more worldly wise people into whose society they were thus

Miss Grace Campbell, who was a merry and thoughtless sprite, with two or three of her young friends, could not always be restrained, and they bubbled over with fun and jest at the quaint manners and sayings of their "down east" companions. One morning they were all assembled upon the deck of the steamer, and in a wonderfully merry mood.
Their arrows were flying thick and fast among themselves, when Miss Starkey came up from the saloon, knitting in hand, and immediately became a target for them to shoot at. She seated herself near the joyous group a quiet smile on her lips, a look of enjoyment in her mild eyes, as if the sight of such pretty young faces was a great pleasure to her.

"Now, we'll have such fun!" whispered

"Now, we'll have such fun!" whispered impulsive Grace Campbell. "Til quiz her unmercifully about those endless stockings, and it'll be as good as a play."

But Grace's efforts to create a laugh at the expense of the old maid only resulted in her own discomfiture. Every remark, which was intended to be so mirth-inspiring, was adroitly turned against the amazed girl, who soon retired from the field, abashed and regretful. The old maid, in a few well-chosen words, had administered a lesson which caused

Grace to resolve that she would not again drace to ridicule a person older than attempt to ridicule a person older than herself.

Half an hour passed, and Grace again made her appearance before Miss Starley, with the grave face of a penitent. She made a sincere apology, and was as to ridicule a person older than

"You were a trifle thoughtless, perhaps," said the old maid, "and Marthy Starkev never lays any ill-will against anybody; least of all against a pretty little innocent like you."

She put up her hand and patted Grace softly on the shoulder as she proken

She put up her hand and patted Graco softly on the shoulder as she snoke.

"Thank you, Miss Starkey," Grace returned, the shadows all gone from her lovely face now that the ordeal was so comfortably over: "and will you let me give you this?—it's a little silk burse that I crotcheted for mamma's birthday; but I can easily make another before that comes, and I would like you to have it. Not because," she added, hastily, and coloring, "I think it will make up for anything, but because I shall feel that you are really friendly with me if you will take and use it," and she put a lovely little seal-brown purse with silver clasps into Miss Starkey's hands as she clasps into Miss Starkey's hands as she formerly known as Severi, was pitted ceased speaking.
The woman's lips quivered. It was seldom that anyone had given her a keep-sake during her monotonous life; and this pretty little trifle, tendered so mod-estly by the beautiful girl, touched her to the heart.

"Of course I'll take it, dear, and thank you kindly too," she said, in a tone that was not exactly steady, "and—and I'll send you a pair of nice mittens, as soon as ever I can knit them."
CHAPTER XIV.

"Will you, truly?" Grace questioned, eagerly. "If you will, I promise to wear them when I so sleigh-riding, and I know. they will be just as comfortable as can shrewd smile hovered about the old maid's thin lips, and, bobbing her cork-screw curls back and forth, she said in

And let us add just here that before the first snow fell, there came to her Fifth avenue home a little box directed to Miss Grace Campbell, and postmarked "Starkeyville, Me."

"My mittens." she cried, with the merriest laugh in the world, as soon as her glance fell upon that postmark, while she expected, upon opening the box, to find a pair of coarse, clumsy ones like the stockings which she had seen the

But what was her astonishment to find instead a dainty pair made of the love-liest shade of blue silk, beautifully fine and even, such as only experienced fingers like Miss Starkey's could fashion.

like Miss Starkey's could fashion.

"I tell you mamma, there is more in that queer old maid than any of us imagined," said the delighted girl; "and I am going to write her a letter and tell her how pleased I am."

Rich, who had won her favor by his manly conduct, also received a pair of fine woolen hose, which he put away with his fishing-suir, to be ready for trouting the next summer.

About Christmas two boxes, containing some pretty reminders of the season, went flying-over the rails to Starkevville, to gladden the hearts of the quaint sister and brother, who scarcely knew what to gladden the hearts of the quaint sis-ter and brother, who scarcely knew what Christmas meant except in name. The morning after Grace Campbell's apology the steamer reached her destina-tion, and our New York friends turned tion, and our New York friends turne their faces toward the great metropolic while George Washington Starkey an his sister, with others, kent on to "do" all of the great lakes before returning te their homes. Then, after a six weeks' trib to Cali-fornia and the Yosemite with a tutor and two or three classmates, he returned to New York intending to spend a year abroad with Miss Waldemar before set-tling down to the real business of his life.

But here came a crash in the financial to 5, 3, Time, 1:10 2-5, affairs of the country about that time, which disarranged these plans, and which was to prove of what kind of stuff Richwas to brove of what kind of shift Richmond Waldemar was made, and to give him a chance to see what he could do for himself and the fair, sweet woman whom he loved as well as he could have loved his own mother.

Cowan's Cocoa

The Cowan Cocoa exhibit is undoubtedly one of the most attractive spots in the main building, if one may judge by the thousands of people who throng round it to get a cup of the most delicious beverage which is dispensed from it. The Cowan Cocoa booth is not only a delight to the eye, with its pretty and tasteful decorations and neatlygowned attendants, but is the source of much refreshment to the body, for one cup of Cowan's Cocoa removes the tired feeling from the most wearied body.

The Cowan booth will be found in the east end of the main building, and is always marked by the crowds around it. The courteous young ladies beverage.

Gammage's Beautiful Flowers.

The horticultural building owes most of its attractiveness to the beautiful exhibit of J. Gammage & Sons, which is, as usual, the handsomest and most prominent in the building, and one of the most beautiful in the whole exhibition, with its extensive and magnificent display of cut flowers, palms, flowering plants and made-up designs. Gammage & Sons have undoubtedly one of the largest floral trades in Ontario. Its growth surprises even those who know most about the unvarying excellence of the productions of the Gammage greenhouses. Nordheimer's Pianos Excel Every day brings fresh testimony to the fact that the Nordheimer piano is undoubtedly the best instrument on exhibition at the fair. Only two of the magnificent pianos they have in their exhibit are left unsold, and it is more than likely that these also will be sold before the fair is over. The Nordheimer piano embodies tone of peculiar vocal quality that easily voices every shade of motion and expression, while the powerful yet sympathetic quality of expression which it possesses has made it a great' favorite with musicians everywhere.

The action and general construction are of the best. But it is not alone in tonal beauty that the Nordheimer piano excels, but also in the artistic lines of its casework. It is an especially suitable piano for a drawing-room, because it is constructed always of the most beautiful, highly polished woods, of excellent design and finish. It is a piano which cannor fail to grace any drawing-room and will prove a lifelong source of Conduct of Case.

"If you disbelieve Mrs. Clark's evidence, you cannot do better than acquit the prisoners. You may make a mistake, but it is better to make a mistake than to take life unjustly," was the concluding sentence of Mr. Justice Lount's charge to the jury in the Graham-Kilbourne case yesterday afternoon. It evidently did not take the jury long to decide that they disbelieved in Mrs. Clark's story, for after retiring at 3:10 p.m. they returned at 3:35 p.m with their verdict.

The progress of the civil suit being heard was interrupted when the jury filed in. The two prisoners in their dock looked anxiously toward the men who had held the power of life and death over them, while the spectators evinced a greater degree of interest than they had yet shown in the case. "Gentlemen of the jury, have you arrived at a verdict?" asked Clerk Macbeth.

"We have," answered Foreman John A. Rose, of London.

"NOT GUILTY!"

"What is your verdict?" "Not guilty!" was the reply, and the look of satisfaction on the faces of the jurymen was quite noticeable. "Are there any other charges against the prisoners, Mr. Clute?" the judge asked of the crown prosecutor. Yes, my lord, there are three other indictments. One is a joint indictment, and the others are separate indictments, the charge being the perform-ance of an operation. The evidence, however, is practically the same as that already submitted in the present had already dealt with the higher and greater crime, the lesser charges necessarily fell through. He then asked if the prisoners had been arraigned upon the three indictments, and was told that they had, a plea of not guilty having been entered in each case. Then followed a proceeding which though a necessary part of the precision and formality which characterize the turning of the wheels of justice, yet nevertheless verge on the ludicrous > need for such precision and strict observance of formality.

MORE VERDICTS. The jury was again sworn in, and Deputy Sheriff Watterworth, entering the witness box, identified the prisoners as the two who had just been acquitted on the charge of murder. Crown Prosecutor Clute said that he had no further evidence to offer. Judge Lount accordingly directed that a verdict of not guilty be returned by the jury. The jury's part in the returning of the verdict consisted in the nodding of heads as the clerk commanded them to "hearken to your verdict as the court records it.'

Again the same proceeding was gone through—the swearing in of the jury, the identifying of Dr. Graham by the deputy sheriff, the crown prosecutor's statement that he had no other evidence, the judge's direction and the recording of the verdict.

Still again was the formality gone through this time on behalf of Mrs. With the recording of the fourth verdict of 'not guilty," returned by the one jury, ended the legal troubles of "Alexander Graham and Emma Agnes Mayo, stand up," commanded the

"Dr. Graham and Mrs. Mayo," said Judge Lount, "the jury has given a careful and patient investigation of the charge of murder against you, and they have found you not guilty. I need hardly say that I entirely concur in their finding. I now discharge you from custody, as you have likewise been found not guilty on the other charges preferred against you."

CONDUCT OF THE CASE. In few criminal cases tried in London have the relations between the bench have the relations between the bench and the opposing counsel been so pleasant and satisfactory, as in the present one. Judge Lount won golden opinions by the impartial and patient hearing he gave the case, and by his courtesy to counsel. Little Miss Mabel Morgan, niece of the bride, made a charming maid of honor, dress-ed in white organdy and carrying white roses. The page, a nephew of the bride, was Master Wellington Sceli, dressed in a Little Lord Fauntleroy suit. He carried the basket of flowers containing the ring. The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Mr. Wm. M. Prest. The ushers were the two brothers of the bride, Messrs. William and Wellington Sceli.

The church was beautifully decorated with white bunting and myrtle by some of the bride's friends. The flowers used were white and pink asters and sweet peas. The bridal party stood under

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and ansuspected to those who do not understand the

But the doctor knows; his wide experience has proven to him that so some systems coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health.
Ask the doctor if coffee is the cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

'I have been a coffee drinker all my life. I am now 42 years old, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration my doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee. I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading your advertisement of Postum Food Coffee I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be.

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and found in about two weeks' time I could sleep soundly at night and get up in the morning feeling fresh and well. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I only weighed 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age.

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were great coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Stewart M. And the learned profess Hall, Fairfield, W. Va.
