GOVERNMENT'S WAR POLICY

Great Meeting in old London, Where Resolution Expressing Entire Confidence in the Government was Enthusiastically Adopted

ing held at the Guildhall this afternoon in support of the Government's war policy. It was a great success. The idea originated on the stock bychange, and was intended as an offset to the recent pro-Boer gathering at Queen's Hall. The Lord Mayor, Frank Green, and the other city magnates, did their utmost to assure its success. and the result was the great hall of the Guildhall, having a capacity of 1,000 persons, did not suffice to contain the crowd, which necessitated an overflow meeting outside, where the Patriotic songs broke out at intervals, both within and without the building. The British generals were cheered, and the names of Henry Labouchere and other Boer sympathizers were hissed and hooted.

The Lord Mayor presided, surrounded by Conservative members of the House of Commons, bankers and others. (A resolution expressing complete confidence in the South African policy of the Government, and protesting against the unpatriotic attacks of the Opposition, was adopted in the midst of wild scenes of enthusiasm.

This heading may perhaps lead the reader to expect funnigrams suitable for the "silly season?" If so, he will be disappointed, agreeably or otherwise, according to his taste.

The matter is serious. Rats are the forerunners and cause of death. They have been proved, not only by scientists and experts, but by the experience of thousands of average people in widely separated cities, to be the precurson and distributors of the Bubonic Plague, the mortality from which :ranged from 18.2 for Europeans to 93.4 amid Chinese in Hong Kong, among those infected. 50 to 90 per cent, is the range of deaths, taking the world at large. Just how the rats carry the infection to men, is a moot point, but carry it they do. The theory that rat-fleas form the medium and go-between, is now scouted. The rats are the first to be affected by the plague, and then, as Homer somewhat, similarly wrote long before the Christian era about the epidemic round Troy, men fall victims. Rats affected by the plague became what the Chinese aptly call "tame." Losing most of their ferocity, they also lose their cunning and fear of man. They invade the kitchen and living rooms, sip at water pails and run over provisions. Finally they die perhaps in a sewer and they become dangerous after death since their bubonic baccilli get into water in wells. In laboratories and during their destruction bubonic rats are dangerous to handle dead or alive, with the naked hands and are moved with specially made tongs, while immune to the bubonic poison and cats only slightly responsive, rats not only convey the infection and receive it in advance of man, but sometimes the plague originates with the rat.

This latter fact is most significant, because it shows the uselessness of clean bills of health. Every passenger on board may be perfectly free from bubonic plague, and even run the prescribed ordeal of quarantine and yet the raits of the ship may be infected and spread the dread disease ashore through the teeming myriads of some mighty city. This danger comes home to us practically, since Detroit, in common with all other American lake ports, is liable any day to the bubonic outbreak, according to a statement given out by Surgeon-General Wyman last week, and endorsed by Dr. T. J. Kinyoun, surgeon of the Marine Hospital, who practiced during two bubonic epidemics in San Francisco. Both these experts are in thorough sympathy with the proposition of the Japanese government | for a world-wide camcampaign against rats.

The bubonic plague now exists in Australia, South Africa, Brazil, England and Scotland, Formosa, Japan, India, the Philippines, Russia, Turkey, and many other countries, so that the chances of vessels conveying it to U. S. ports are menacing. Dr. Kinyoun mentions some instances which prove conclusively that the plague breaks out first among rats, and thence spreads to man. One was on board the steamship Friary, 60 days out, from Montevideo to Hull, Eng.; another in a vessel from Rosario to Hamburg; a third from Hong Kong to San Diego, Cal.

Japan has started the anti-rat crucrusade in earnest, killing 30,000 in Kobe and 10,000 in Asaka. All countries are doing something on the same lines. At San Francisco, ships are compelled to clasp-tin funnels on their hawsers, shaped like megaphones. with the large end towards the shore. The holds of vessels are subjected to costly sulphur fumigation. In Sydney, Australia, they force vessels to use the same tin funnel arrangement, only reversed. There might be a combination of the two systems. Sydney paid 121-2 cents for each rat killed and got 130,000. The bubonic outbreak cost that city between five and six millions of dollars. Auckland, New Zealand, compels ships to anchor four miles from dock, to avoid influx of bubonic rats. In Astoria, Oregon, at the solicitation of the physicians, a citizens' lynching gang killed many thousands of rodents. The tracing up of the bubonic po son to rats, 1894, is due to Dr. Kitasato, a Japanese medical student in Koch's laboratory and pupil of the Pasteur institute. Rat-catching, for purposes of sport, is an old affair in England, where a professional rat-catcher will capture hundreds in a few hours.

Apart from danger of disease there is every motive for the wholesale extermination of rats owing to the provisions, grain, furniture, etc., destroyed by them. We commend this matter to our Board of Health in view of the frightful loss of life and financial damage which would follow an outbreak of EMPIRE BUILDING.

Mr. Chamberlain, signalized the birthday of our nation by holding out o the colonies an offer of closer relationship to the Empire, a thing which in itself and if it involved no burden, they would not be slow to respond to, seeing that the citizenship of what the British people call a colonist is only second rate or second hand, says the St. Thomas Times. Canadians have never been familiar with the phrase colorist as applied to themselves. Even before confederation which, in a way, raised us out of the category of mere colonies, our geographical divisions were spoken of as provinces, and not as colonies, and the word colonies was not heard among us, except as it reached us faintly and in our ears opprobriously, from across the sea. Still, whether we like the condition or not, we shall have to own to being essentially colonists as long as we have no say in the imperial policy. We may, from our position in the family, be able occasionally to force the parental hand on a tariff question, especially when the imperialism of our course makes it impossible to gainsay it. We may make a little dash into an imperial war and get us great glory. We may even assert our share in foreign diplomacy in matters entirely our own. Still, until we have a recognized say in the affairs of the empire of which

and our citizenship is second hand. We have long acquiesced in this econdary condition, and may do so, so long as we see ourselves in the nature of things gradually out of it. All wholesome evolution is gradual, and with a gradual progress towards full citizenship we can rest content, but failing constant progress in that direction we cannot rest content. What has made us so content to remain children instead of becoming full partners in the empire has been our privileged condition as children. We have enjoyed the full benefit of the imperial defences without paying anything for them. We have demanded the services of all the family servants just as the children in a great family do, with a full sense of right, while subscribing nothing towards their maintenance. We have recently, as just remarked, got us great glory by sending "colonials" to the veldt and shown the mother country of what stuff her offspring were, and how strongly we share the family burdens. But we have as yet done little or nothing to shoulder those burdens. Until we are ready to do this in proportion to our strength we must remain colonists, dependents and second-hand citizens. Mr. Chamberlain has told us much. His offer of a place in the imperial councils has, as we say, a string to it, in the hint that in assuming the position of partners in the business we would, of TORONTO DRESSED HOGS. Toronto, July 9 .- Dressed hogs nomDoctors not seldom give up a case, but a mother never does. While life lasts, while there is a spark of vitality which love's labor may fan into a flame, she toils untiringly for the child she brought into the world. And sometimes where the doctors fail the mother succeeds. She has no prejudices. Any means she will use which will save her child.

The mother's prescription given below is a case in point. Her daughter was given up by physicians as suffering from an incurable disease, called "wasting of the digestive organs." The mother prescribed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Pavorite Prescription," and had the happiness of seeing her daughter restored to perfect health.

Golden Medical Discovery cures stomach and other organs of di-gestion and nutrition. It is a nerve-nourishing, flesh-forming medicine— making new blood and new life. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics, It is a true temperance medicine. It is a true temperance medicine.

"My sister (of Arlington, Washington Co. Nebr.,) was taken very sick and had severa doctors," writes Mrs. C. L. Harrison, of Elk City, Douglas Co., Nebr. They could not do her any good, and told my mother they would not come any more, as no doctor could help her, that she could not get well. She had 'wasting of the digestive organs.' My mother said to my sister. 'Well, I almost know that Dr. Pierce's medicines will cure her.' So she bought six bottles—three of 'Golden Medical Discovery three of 'Favorite Prescription,' and some of the 'Pellets,' and now my sister is a well woman.

"We thank you for your medicine."

Montreal Bank Thief Arrested After Nine Years.

tole $20 000 From the City Distric Bank of Montreal, Where he was Engaged as Bookkeeper.

New York, July 11 .- After eluding the police of Montreal for nine years formerly a bank clerk, was arrested Detective-Sergeant Roche, of Brooklyn, in Manhattan, this afternoon, charged with stealing $2,000 from the City District Bank of Mont-

Levesque is now 34 years old. He has influential relatives in Montreal. has influential relatives in Montreal. In 1887, they got him a place in the City District Bank as messenger. Two years later he was made a bookkeeper. On December 1, 1891, he and another employe disappeared, and the bank examiners discovered that there was a shortage of nearly $20,000.

Levesque was followed by detectives to Buenos Ayres and other places in South America, but they did not catch him. Then they heard that he was

him. Then they heard that he was in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and hastened there only to learn that they were several days too late.

A few days ago, Capt. Reynolds, of the Detective Bureau in Brooklyn, was told by a friend that a man named Levesque, who formerly lived in Canada, was living in a furnished room at 4 Middaugh street. When Capt. Renolds was positive that he had found the thief he wired to Montreal, and Chief Carpenter and one of his captains, arrived in Brooklyn today with requisition papers. Detective-Sergeant Roche took the Montreal officers to a large restaurant in Manhattan, where Levesque was employed as a waiter. Chief Carpenter recognized him at once, although he has aged considerably. Levesque was arrested and taken to Brooklyn.

ADMITTED STEALING $20,000. Levesque acknowledged that he and his companion had stolen nearly $20,-000 from the bank. He said that he had believed the police had forgotten all about it. He said he kept track of his companion for five years, and then lost trace of him. The stolen money was divided between them, and Levesque spent his share years ago travelling around the country. He said he would go back to Montreal.

Levesque will be arraigned before Judge Thomas in the United States Circuit Cour' to-morrow, and if he does not put in any objections Judge Thomas will sign the necessary papers and Levesque will be on the way to Montreal before evening.

A SUSTAINING DIET. These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this med-icine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaining It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

"My Lord, Joe, I'd been a brute if I' hadn't done, it," Sim protested, "a plumb cowardly brute. You make too much over a little no 'count thing like but it doesn't to me, I can tell you. I guess it didn't seem so to the men who saw it either, judging from the way they cheered you. Why, even the ene

"I didn't hear it," Sim said. "No, you were too busy trying to get me out of that awful place. I guess you didn't even hear the bullets whizzing round your head like a swarm of

"I didn't." "Well, I heard them, you can just bet. It was just like a hailstorm broken loose. I know I thought every second we'd both be killed, and I can't understand why we weren't. I begged you to leave me and save yourself if you could, and you wouldn't do it." "Oh, waal, Joe, le's let that alone.

I'm plumb tired of hearin of that fool thing. It ain't worth kickin up so much fuss about." "Well, that's just your opinion, Sim. Other people see it differently. Ther. there is the way you looked after me for weeks while I was in hospital. No father, no brother, my own mother even, could not have been more careful of me. I remember it all, Sim, and I'll never forget it as long as I live." "Waal, that's all right, Joe," Sim said, "but I'm tired an hungry, so le's not say no more, but go along of Pap. I'll go to his house an rest a bit. Then I'll go an give myself up."

"You'll not give yourself up this day nor this night, Sim," Pap announced flatly. "You'll have one good rest first if I know myself, an I'm most shore I do, for if they git you into jail you won't have no rest thar."

"No, but it's all right, Pap. I'm resigned to take whatever comes, an I reckon it don't matter much what it is. I ain't got anything to live for no more nohow, an I'd jest as well be dead as not."

"But you'll never be hurt, Sim," the other said. "Don't you think it. Not a hair of your head shall be touched." Pap Sampson looked wonderingly at the speaker, saw something he had not observed before and in his astonishment unthoughtedly cried:

"My Lord, stranger, you're not goin to live long." Thompson smiled.

"I know it," he said, "but it is best. I only want to do one thing more, and then I'm done, and I'll live to do it; yes, I'll live to do it."

> CHAPTER XXII SIM'S ARREST.

Sim Banks secured one good night's rest, as Pap Sampson had said, or at least if he didn't it was not the fault of Pap and Mirandy. The two old people did everything in their power to add to the comfort of their guests. "It's been a long time." Pap remarked, "sence Sim's had any comfort, an he may never have any ag'in in this world, so we'll give him all we can while we have the chanst."

"Pore Sim!" Mrs. Sampson said, with a sigh. "Pore Sim!" Pap repeated, sighing

"I wish he'd go away." Mrs. Samp son said, "whar they couldn't never find him."

"I wish so, too," Pap agreed, "but he won't. Lord, he won't budge a inch. I've argyed an reasoned an begged, but it ain't done no good. He's got his pegs sot to stay, an stay he will." 'Yes, an I'm afeard, Pap, that they'll hang him." "I dunno, I'm shore. They may not do so bad as that, but they'll send him to prison anyhow." "That other man 'lows he can save him. But, Lord, Pap, he can't do it." "Co'se he can't. Lord a-massy, that feller can't do nothin for Sim. Guess he'd like to well enough, but likin to do thing an doin it are two different things. No, sir-ee! He can't lift a finger to save Sim."

"No, but he's pow'ful in earnest 'bout it, an I b'lieve he thinks he can." "My land, I can't see what he figgers that he'll do."

"Neither do I, but I reckon he thinks he'll do somethin." "Mebby he does. I been kinder thinkin, though, that he mought be jest a-talkin that a-way to sorter chirk Sim

"Lord, he mought jest as well save his breath, then, 'cause Sim ain't takin no hope from what he is a-promisin."

"Nary a grain, he ain't. I can see that jest as plain as the ears on "Wonder how that man happened to come home with Sim anyhow.'

"I dunno, except Sim said he wa jest sot an determined to come." "Waal, I guess it don't matter much whar he is, for he ain't got many more days in this world nohow. He was shot clean through that time Sim car-ried him off the battlefield, an his wound never got plumb well, an now it's opened fresh an tuck to bleedin. He 'lows it's liable to bleed in'ard jest any minute, an when it gits to doin that he's done."

"He is so. That was rale brave of Sim, the way he done, carryin that fel-ler way from the battle, wa'n't it?"
"My land, I'd sesso. Didn't hardly reckon it was in Sim to do that a-way." "Me nuther. But, Lord, you can't never tell what a waked up dog'll do by lookin at him when he's asleep." "That's so. An Sim jest begun to git sorter waked up 'fore he went away.

"Land of Goshen, Mirandy, I reckor I do. An that 'minds me. I wonder what Louesy'll think when she hears Sim's come back?" "I ain't no idea."

"I wish he hadn't never 'a' come." "Lord, Pap. so do I. I hate to think bout what may happen to him." "So do l. I'm goin to try ag'in in the mornin to git him to go away." Sim entered the room, and Pap and Mirandy lapsed into silence. Whether Pap would have succeeded the next morning in persuading Sim to go remains a matter of doubt, for he never had a chance to try. Before Sim had left his bed Sam

Morgan came with a state warrant to arrest him. Mary Mann had discovered in some way that Sim had returned and she reported it to Jim Thorn. The latter, overanxious to bring Sim to justice, had hurried before Squire Beeson and sworp out the warrant.

The squire's sympathies were with Sim, but he had his official duties to perform, no matter how disagreeable they might be. Sam Morgan, too, who still held the office of township constable, sympathized with Sim, although he believed him guilty. When he came to make the arrest, he said with an air

"All right, Pap, I'll send 'em." As Sam and Sim walked down the street the former said:

It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver and the kidneys. There is fullness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in the back and shoulders, flatulency and farming country like ours:—

"The call of 'Co' boss' is familiar to most of the inhabitants of our northern States and Canada. In fact, it has something poetic about it for many of us, reminding us of fields and lanes and woods and the mysterious suggestiveness of the coming on of night. And so it is not strange that the word boss has for most Americans an interest which other farm words lack, and that people often enquire as to its origin. Its practical identity in form and meaning with Latin bos, together with the improbability of farm hands dropping into Latin diction in halling cattie, has wrapped the etymology of the word in a tantalizing mystery. I have long tried to dispet this cloud and get at the plain facts of the origin of the word, and, now that I have succeeded, it seems to me that the general interest in the expression warrants me in publishing its history in a non-technical "Bartlett was probably the first to call Mr. Walter Booth, Consecutive Was troubled for some years with kidney and liver disease, and pains in my back, and my stomach was so bad I could not eat hearty food and had difficulty not eat hearty food and had difficulty in keeping any food in my stomach. I was so nervous that I could scarcely take a drink of water without spill ceeded. it seems to me that the general interest in the expression warrants me in publishing its bistory in a non-technical journal.

"Bartlett was, probably, the first to call attention to the word, which he presents in the diminutive form bossy, with reference to the Greek word for 'caif.' It then entered the larger dictionaries, and is referred to Latin bos in Webster, the Century and the so-called Standard. The first gleam of the truth is to be found in the Century, where the Icelandic call bas is referred to: 'cf. Icel. bas, bas, an exclamation used in driving cows into their stalis (bass, a stall, boose; see boose).'

"in America the word is rarely heard except in the call, where it has acquired almost the character of a name, and is often written with a capital, and sometimes confounded with Bess. The form of the call does not vary much, being come boss or bossy or co' boss in the morth, and sook boss or soo' boss in the midland. In England the word seems to be rare in calls; the only certain information that I have received comes from Somensetshire, where Mr. G. Sweetman of Wincanton reports Coop Bossey (that is, Come up, bossy, as a call to calves. Perhaps the call, Boosh, booshie, that Miss K. Irvine of Lerwick reports from the Sheiland Islands, as used in calling cows and calves, is the same, for the Old Norse call kus kus appears in northern England with sh: cush, cusha, cushy, etc. But the word is in frequent use in southern, or Saxon, England, as a common noun. It occurs in the forms bos or boss, bus or buss, bossy, bossy-calf, boss-calf, boss-calf, buss-calf and busk, with the meanings, 'young calf,' unweaned ealf,' 'calf too long unweaned,' 'spolit child,' milk-sop.'

"The use of boss or buss for boss calf or buss calf is parallel to the use of Jersey for Jersey cow, pug for pug dog, Shanghai for Shanghai chieken, canary for canary bird, etc. That what was originally a word for calf has come to designate a cow is to be observed in many similar cases. The animal grows up, but its owner continues cured my kidney and liver troubles. I then began Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my nervousness. It strengthened my stomach and whole system and I gained in flesh. I cannot speak in terms of too great praise for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food, for besides curing me they did my father, who is an old man, a great deal of good. I have every confidence in recommending these remedies." Mr. J. J. Ward, J. P., certifies that he knows Mr. Walter Booth and that this statement of his cure is per-their unusual medicinal value. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FUTURE OF BEEF.

It is Predicted That in Five Years the Quality of Cattle Will Greatly Improve. I predict that in five years the quality of cattle will have so improved as to be beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. In fact, the wonderful reformation is already shown in the young stock on the ranges, and is a revelation to those who have handled that class of cattle. By their fruits ye shall know them, and one has only to watch the shipment of cattle from the great breeding grounds of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona for the next three years to get an idea as to what the Shorthorn has done for the breed and for humanity. Some one has said that the literature of a people was an index to its character. The literature and press of a country may mould the character of its people, but he who provides the beef supplies the brain and culture of the author or editor. Give me the power to select

This estimate may for the time relieve us of any fear of the immediate exhaustion of our coal supplies; but it does not reassure us with respect to our position as colliery owners, and it must be recollected that this by no means represents the coal supplies of the world. It does not include the unknown but enormous resources of the Russian Empire, the laggest and most valuable of which will probably be opened up by the Trans-Siberian Railway, nor the deposits of India, China, Japan and Australasia, nor, again, those of America which can be supplied both to Europe and to the far east.

But there is another side of the question. Other nations are not so dependent upon us for coal as many people seem to think. The following table of the world's annual production reveals not only the possibilities of the future but one or two rather startling actualities of the present. They are the figures of the yearly coal crop of the world: vigor to the tiring brain, prepare for the crisis. A means of remarkable potency in the renewal of decreasing vigor is found in Ferrozone. It brightens up the whole being, imparts brightens up the whole being, imparts a sense of power and strength. By the use of Ferrozone, old age is pushed back twenty years. THE WESTERN FAIR.

ondon, September 5th to 14th, 1901.

The first Western Fair of the twentieth century promises to be a record-breaker in all the essential features that go to make up a varied exhibition of the products of the soil, the skill of dairymen, the judgment and knowledge of our breeders of thoroughbred stock, the skill of the artisan, and the general perfection to which agrarian operations and all that pertains thereto may be brought. It is only when such are concentrated and brought within the compass of a day or two of pleasurable sight-seeing that one is enabled to realize at a glance the richness of the sec-tion from which the Western draws its patronage and the western draws its patronage and the vast possibilities of the land we inherit.

At the Fair grounds all conveniences have been improved, and exhibitors will be pleased to know of such additions and alterations in the Prize List as are calculated to give the greatest amount of satisfaction the greatest amount of satisfaction to the exhibitors. The speeding in the ring, always a feature of the Western Fair, will this year, with enlarged purses, be more attractive than ever, while the incidental attractions are the highest-priced that could be secured. The gymnasts are all of the first-class in the vaudeville world to-day, and not the least interesting feature is a full troupe of performing elephants.

Prize Lists may be had on application to Mr. J. A. Nelles, Secretary.

Odd pairs of white duck, flannel, or porous unlined cloth. They are happy combinations of style and comfort, and every dressy man wants two or three pairs in his wardrobe at this time of the year.

In this class of wear the factory comes in with splendid helpfulness. Every store buyer soon learns how hard it is to get natty odd garments promptly in season and right in price. The customer knows what he wants, and the store knows what the customer wants, but getting it is an entirely different proposition. Here the customer gets suited because we make the garments to suit him. If there's a fault, your criticism goes to the right place and the fault disappears. It's almost like making things to order.

Greatly in the interest of good cloths is this close touch between maker and wearer.

The United States Lighthouse supply boat, the Haze, was waiting to lock through the canal, and the captain, becoming enamoured with the good looks of the Maple City yachtsmen, towed their craft through the lock. The American boat was ahead flying the Stars and Stripes, while the little Canadian yacht, hanging on the rear of the big United States setamer, had the biue ensign of the British navy proudly shaking its folds to the breeze. Some there were who to the breeze. Some there were who said that the Lion bad caught the Eagle by the tail feathers, while others claimed that the Eagle was towing the out in the Eau waiting for a wind that never came. Capt. Quite a blow struck the bar last night. The tent belonging to Wilton Ball and Alvin Moore, pitched on the Lake Shore next to Mr. Greening's cottage, blew down, and the boys sought shelter in the Greening cottage. Garnet Brackin was calling at the time and he too was buried in the debris when the tent went down. The boys had quite a time collecting their things, but they aroused Norman Harper from bed, secured a lantern, and rather enjoyed collecting their scattered flomicile and belongings.

When about half the distance was made, storms broke on all sides of the wacht, and while the yacht lay with her sails idly flapping, hurricanes were sweeping Lake Erie all around. Soon a heavy sea was running, but, the wind rising, the staunch little yacht ran along nicely, and made Port. Stanley, The lake was very rough and the Wincona tossed about like a cork. But safe came the ship to the harbor at Port Stanley, and then the run to the Eau was made successfully, but with some difficulty.
