ENSILAGE.

In a late issue we showed the manner of planting the corn, building the silo, etc., we will now explain the manner of filling the silos and feeding out to the stock. The corn being ready for cutting, say about the 1st to the 15th September, when it should have attained the height of from 10 to 13 feet, and the stalks at their base will be almost as large as a man's wrist and will have to be cat with a short thick scytlie or sickle, or if the quantity to be cut moth barns, but low single story is very large, a reaper such as made by Bradley & Co., of Syracuse, N. age room above to receive straw for Y. It is then carted to the silo bedding for the cattle. You will have where it is cut into half inch pieces no loss from bad harvesting, weather by a Silver & Demming, No. 16, or such as we had this year as the corn a Baldwin, No. 14, fodder cutter,fall- is all the better for being cut while ing directly from the machine into it is raining. Now having made clear the silo where it is tramped down as we can, the immense benefits to be and spread evenly. One man with a derived from the system of ensilage. short scythe will cut as fast as two let some of our farmers try it and men will cart to the silo, one man to they will bless the day that they first tend the cutter, and two men to saw this article and be able to walk tramp. The cutter is run by a 2 horse the streets with their taxes paid and tread-mill power. Tramp, tramp, a pocketful of ready money and all unless she builds one into the Medittertramp, the harder the better, especially for a little courage and extra labour around the edges, filling up a foot or at first, for the whole can be done two every day till the silo is full, or by any man with any brains and a you have got in all your corn and you little ingenuity, except the fodder will be surprised what an amount of cutter, and that can be obtained for corn will go into a small bulk. When from $40 to $60, according to the size, you have all the corn in, fill up if and the cement which is not dear, but you like with clover and green grass, we are unable to give the exact cost. and tramp as you fill. Try it farmers, and plank, cut one inch shorter than the may success attend your efforts, for width of your silo, so that it will this is undoubtedly the greatest boon leave half an inch on each side and that has been offered to you for cencover it all up, laying battens over turies. the cracks and then fill on one and a half or two feet of loose stone, and your filling is done You will now leave it to settle for six weeks or two months, and then commence to by the Grit press, the public would feed about the 1st of December, by be almost induced to believe that the throwing some of the stones off one Party of Purity were solely contendend and raising the plank for two ing for great and important prin feet off one end and cutting down copies which were of vital imporyour ensilage with a spade as you tance to the well-being of the people. feed it out right to the bottom, thus From what we read and se every leaving the least possible surface day we have come to the conclusion exposed to the air. It you spread the that this is not the case. They are ensilage cut on the barn floor for 21 solely contending for place and hours before feeding, it will become a power, and to obtain that they little acid to the taste and the cattle are prepared to sacrifice their Free will eat it all the better. On opening Trade doctrines and swallow the the sile you will find the whole mass National Policy of the Conservative find the male famous, or in a little heated and the upper surface Government, now that they find it is famous, according as one looks at it from for an inch or so black, but the mass popular with the vast mass of the infor an inch or so black, but the mass underneath, of a light brown colour, and it will brighten up to a light brown to a ligh green on exposure, and after the first day or so the carriers at it greedily and futen on it. If you feed a nille meal with it, all the better. Cattle will hold flesh all winter and cows will milk as well as on June grass. The saving lies in this, that whereas under the old system it took three acres of hav to keep two cows, one acre of corn well ensilaged, will keep four or even more, and in a great deal better condition than formerly. www fed on ensilage, immediately on becoming dry are fit for the butcher, and the quantity of manure made from the surface of land cultivated is so much larger that you can afford to top-dress a large area of hay land and sell the hav, thus bringing in a large revenue where you only made a hare living before. Now as to the amount to feed out, there are 40 lbs. of ensilage to the square foot when packed in the silo, and 60 lbs a day will keep a cow in first rate condition without anything else, and if you add to this a little meal, shorts, carrots, beets, oats or anything you may have that they will eat, so much the better, but they will do well on that amount of ensilage along. Now I may give here some testimony as to its results. Geo. L. Clemence, of Southbridge, Mass., says: -

"I can raise corn fodder for 60 cents per ton, and the expense of son for the sudden change of mind is ensitaging is about 50 cents, making a total cost of $1.10 per ton, so you see after you have your sile built, the expense is really not great. Previous to the opening of the silo, I fed my milch cows, two todderings dry hay, fodder, per day, with one quart of three quarts shorts per cow. I then omitted the dry rowen and corn todder, and gave two eighth in their milk."

That speaks well for ensilage. He also savs:-

the winter on seven do best to feed her five tons and a halfof ensilage, 1,400 lbs. hay, and 500 lbs. corn meal. My cattle look better and appear more contented than when fed on dry fodder." Another advantage of ensilage is hat it will enable the farmer to make butter in winter just as well as in summer, and of as good a quality. Also he can winter his stock at half the object for which they had struggle the expense of dry fodder and be out and conspired. The Austrians. o larger stock of tion of having been beaten keep on the same a ated land a much lar

The best kind of land is light be fit for little else, and the crop does not exhaust the land as you would suppose, as it is one of those broad leaved plants, which take a large proportion of their nourishment from the air: and what if it did, have you not abundance of manure by this process to replace that deficiency. You can keep a much larger stock on your cultivated land, thus deriving a much larger profit from the same

WHAT IS GOING ON IN EUROPE

The meeting of the rulers of Austria and Italy has caused much comment among European politicians, for the reason that not long since the Emperor o Austria politely declined to receive visit from the King of Italy. His reathough probably it is simple—too simple indeed, to be accepted by those clever people who can see further through a m:lestone than their neighbours can. one of rowen, and one of dry corn There is no valid reason why Italy and Austria should not be on the most friend. been considered hitnerto a model of proly terms. I think a cow can be kept the hands of the Austrian populace tons at the hands of the Austrian populace showed that the bitter feelings that so recently existed between the two nations has almost died out. In 1875 the "mperor of Austria visited Venice, and was received most enthusiastically by the Venetians, who had every reason to hate him on account of the sufferings and indignities to which they had been subjected under Austrian rule. Yet the Venetians could afford to be generous to their former ruler, for they had gained

No one would expect to obtain very trustworthy-information about la haute politique from Athens. A good deal of ridicule has therefore been excited in Europe by a piece of intelligence given "on highly reliable a shority" by the Greek journal, Hora. Still, though highly improbable, it is not impossible that the information communicated to that newspaper may have some foundstion. It is to the effect that at the recent meeting of Bismarck and Gambetta it was agreed that France is to abstain at present from pressing her claims to Alsace and Lorraine, and is to observe a completely disinterested policy" towards Turkey. In return for this she is to be permitted to develop to the utmost her colonial interests in Algeria, Tanis, Cochin C ina, and the East Indies. The Greek kingdom is to obtain "a very im. nortant extension." Germany is to deal with Tarkey as she likes. Italy is to be reprimanded for her crooked policy in l'unis, and Austria is to be allowed to occupy Macedonia. This last clause throws a shadow of doubt over the reliability of the news, for, if Austria is to occupy Macedonia, where is Greece to obtain her "considerable extension." ranean?-an objection that a Greek newspaper surely ought to have appreciated. In disposing of the Ottoman empire to Germany, Bismarck and Gambetta must surely have forgotten that Austria, Russia, and probably England would expect to be consuited in the matter, and if the reprimand to Italy for her crooked policy in Tunis were too severe, she also might feel annoyed by the proposed rearrangement of the map of

COASTING TRADE.

There is a strong feeling among Brit ish shipowners thut a determined effort should be made by Government, in the course of negotiations for a new commercial treaty with France, to obtain for British versels liberty to engage at least in the larger coasting trade of France, on the ground that French vessels have for many years enjoyed the benefits of the English coasting trade. TheFrench divide their coasting trade into two categories, the greater and the lesser, the reater including trade between French ports on the Atlantic or on the Mediter ranean. The principal opposition to such a concession comes from the French railway companies, which at present control the business, Franch coasting tonnage being notoriously insufficient to meet the demands of the trade, and it remains to be seen whether the railway interest will be strong enough to prevent matter. Italy, which has recent'y thrown open its coasting trade to the French flag, has formally asked for riciprocity of the privilege, and should she obtain it the French Government will find it diffi- to 1,070 millions. DISAPPEARANCE OF Whom.
The way the wood disappears is wonwonderful. To make shoepers for the Yankee and Canadian portions of the continent requires the consumption of 100,000 cords of timber annually. 200,000 cubic feet of pine are needed for the annual supply of mat hes. Last and boot-trees need 500,000 cords of birch, beach and maple. To bricks used each year require lion cords of wood. The handles of tools each year demand 500,000 cords. The telegraph poles already in position represent 800,000 trees. Then there are packing boxes, the lumber used for making waggons and agricultural implements, fencing farms and railways, to say nothing of the quantity required for building operations.

DEPOSITS IN ENGLISH BANKS.

Deposits in the various banks of Great Britain are nearly stationary, and really stand at a somewhat lower point than they did three years ago. The London Economist states that the gross deposits in all the banks of the United Kingdom were, in the autumn of 1878, from £550,000.000 to £560,000,000; that the fluctuations since have been between 500 and 530 millions sterling, and that the estimate for the autumn of 1881 is from 520 to 530 millions sterling. In the United States, in 1877, there were 616 millions of dollars on deposit in the national banks; in 1878, 622 millions; in 1879. 873 millions; in 1880 and in 1881 it is stated that they will amount
