Here is More Proof of Quick Cure for All Folks That are Weak, Ailing, Nervous.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea." writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active demy liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon who had been cured of blood and skin trouble. I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they ing weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all: they seemed to go right not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I began to put on weight until withcondition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

The latest is to the effect that ships have ceased running to Antwerp from Tilsbury. Another is to the effect that an official communication was issued last night at Antwerp advising the people that bombardment is imminent and that those who wish to leave are requested to who wish to leave are requested to who wish to leave are requested to the coughs and colds so prevalent do so. If Germany could seize and during the next few months. Price retain Antwerp it would be the great- $1.00 a bottle. est coup of the war and Germany would be well satisfied to make peace on such terms. Over a century ago, Napoleon seized Antwerp and spent two million pounds on it, on the ground that it was a loaded pistol which he held at the head of England. It will also be noticed that the British are said to be in Antwerp forts.

A fisherman of the Battery, who was on remand, was fined $10 for assaulting Bailiffs Roil and English, and $10 or 30 days for assaulting the police. The defendant was represented by Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C. Napoleon seized Antwerp and spent are said to be in Antwerp forts. This, no doubt, refers to garrison artillerymen who have probably been transferred from such places as Gib-raltar and Malta. Some time ago we saw a picture in one of the illustrated journals of British cavalry on the streets of Antwerp. There are in all likelihood large forces of British marines and other troops there. Britain must hold Antwerp at all costs, and we have no doubt the Belgians and British will be able to do so. Name mur and Liege fell not so much from the great howitzers which smashed some of the forts, but from the fact that the fortified lines between the forts were not ready and could not be manned by sufficient troops to prevent the German hordes breaking p.m. yesterday, inward. through the lines into the city proper. In addition to a large number of modern forts, the country in the front of these forts can be flooded, and we have no doubt that sufficient Belgian and British troops will be available to hold out against any attack. A strong movement against Antwerp would in all probability mean a weak-ening in France, and should the Ger-mans be driven from France and still on the other hand capture Antwerp, they would be glad to call a halt in

So well he had done that he was sent to Pontarlier to assist with the defences. "This is all very well, ' he said, "but I don't want to make fortifications all my ife. I want to command troops.'

LEARNED IN THE FIELD.

In Tonkin (French Indo-China) his opportunity came. He was sent into the field and he returned victorious every time. After this he won distinction in Formosa, in Madagascar, in Dohomey, and then in Timbuctoo, whither he led the remains of the broken column of Col. Bonnier after he had put new spirit into the men. Thus by seizing every chance of foreign service he learned his profession in the field. Now, in the middle of 'nineties he returned to France and went steadily upwards, working hard all the time until he was in 1911, asked to take command. He maintains that the warlike genius of the French is as strong as ever. He will not admit that the incrase of luxury resulting from the greater complication of life. growth of huge cities has weakened the dash and vigor of French troops. During the three years that he has been in supreme command of the army the latter has had time to take his measure, with the result that i has accorded to him its unbounded confidence and believes in him as a leader who can be trusted to lead it to victory. He is liked and respect-ed by the officers, and above all by the rank and file, the soldiers de-cribing him as the finest of chiens de garde (watch dogs), calm, but always ready to bite. He in turn has had during these three years of command in time of peace the op-portunity of forming a correct estimate of the officers and men upon whom he now has to depend for his carefully matured plans against the enemy, and if they are enthusiastic about him, he is equally enthusiastic about them. tic about them.

FAREWELL.

Farewell! Farewell! My gallant lads Who sail across the sea To battle in a righteous cause

Those whom you love, those who love Will think of you alway; They, while asleep, will dream of yo And on awakening, pray.

Go where you will, do what you may, Their thoughts will be on you; Great is their faith; belie it not; Be strong, courageous, true.

The honour of your country now,
You hold within your hand;
Protect it well! Shed lustre on
The name of Newfoundland!

'Tis true you are a mere handful; But quality 's the test; Go forth and win a place beside Earth's bravest, and earth's best! It may be some of you will lie Beneath a foreign sod; Heroic souls through death receive The stamp and seal of God!

And all souls are heroic who In times of peace, or strife, On Duty's sacred alter lay The offering of their life.

Farewell my lads! A safe return! And when the victory 's won, May Good King George exclaim t you,

Bravo, my lads! Well done!

It is well worth your while, for it is a delightful story. Cloth, 50c.; if mailed, 52c. KENNEDY SQUARE

By F. Hopkinson Smith. Kennedy Square, a place of "birds and trees and flowers," is both abiding place and symbol of that small and charmingly select coterie of aristocracy in the old South. St. George Wilmot Temple, "a perfect embodiment of all that blood had bequeathed him," is the center of the group portrayed in this story and at his invitation enters also Poe at the beginning of the Poet's also Poe at the beginning of the Poet's prominence. The love of a tempestuous youth, born a gentleman, for "the proudest and loveliest girl on earth," furnishes the theme of the tale—a love tested by pride by a duel by hospitality and by the devotion of faithful blacks; a love in the evolution of which character is deepened and chastened and strengthened.
