REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.
They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.
They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."
If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.
You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.
REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.
We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.
We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.
REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"Well, now you've met me, I hope you've made up your mind, Nita," he said, as ingratiatingly as he could. "I hope you see that the plan I proposed is the only one. We'll go to-morrow—I'll meet you in London."

She shook her head.

"No," she said, in a faint voice. "I have made up my mind. I will not do that."

His face darkened.

"Why not?" he asked, sharply.

"It would be of no use," she said, wearily. "Someone would be sure to recognize me, someone who knew me when we were living together, and the discovery that we had tried to deceive people would only set them talking all the more."

"But, don't you mean to tell me that I'm to own up to having been a married man?" He stopped and bit his lip as the pale face lit up with scorn.

"Yes, that is your great fear, Ralph," she said. "That is what you dread. You are ashamed of me. Wait; I know you; it is of no use your trying to deceive me. You are ashamed of me and the past. Oh, I don't blame you. It's what a man like you would feel; it's in your nature and you can't help it."

"If you've come to abuse and bully me—" he began, sullenly.

"No," she said, in a dull way, passing her hand over her brow; "I have come to make a bargain with you. Last night you offered, if I'd consent to a pretended marriage, to make a countess of me, to share your title and your money. I don't want them, Ralph. I shouldn't be happy if—if I came back to you. I should know all the time that you only lived with me because you could not help it, that you were regretting all the time that you'd married me."

"Nita, I swear—"

She shook her head and made a weary gesture with her hand.

"It's the truth, and you know it. No, I won't trouble you, Ralph. I'll go away, quite out of your life—as I have been ever since you deserted me—and I'll never come near you or claim you."

He watched her keenly, cunningly. "Sounds likely, doesn't it?" he said, with a sneer.

"I promise," she said; "and I keep my promises, Ralph. There is only one condition. I don't want any money—I've enough, can earn enough for myself, as I have done—all I want is that you should promise, on your part, to break off with—with the young lady you were going to deceive and betray."

He started, and thrust his hands in his pockets, glowing at her under his half-closed lids.

"Oh, that's it?" he said, with the twist of his under-lip.

"Yes," she said. "I can save her and any other girl you may attempt to lure into a false marriage. I can do that, and will do it. Give me your promise. But I don't need it. You'd break it if you could; but I'll take care you don't. While I'm alive I'll watch you."

His hand became conscious of its contact with the knife, and closed over it.

"I see," he said. "You'll play the spy on me—you'll dog me day by day, and perhaps change your mind and, when you're short of money, black-mail me."

She raised her head, her scorn of him glowing in her dark eyes.

"I would rather die than touch a penny of yours, Ralph," she said, quietly. "You may go your way, do what you please, so long as you relegate the poor unhappy girl you have trapped, God knows how! for she doesn't care for you; I saw it in her face as she drove by. I've made enquiries in the town. She doesn't care for you, Ralph; she will be glad to be free."

Mechanically he had got the knife open, and his hand was closing spasmodically on the hilt.

"I want to save her from you, and I will," Nita went on in a low but resolute voice. "Yes, even if I have to go to her and tell her the truth, as I will."

The blood rushed to his head, and the trees seemed to waver, the earth to rock in the madness of his passion.

"You will, will you?" he snarled, almost inarticulately. "You will?"

Warned by the terrible look in his bloodshot eyes, by the stealthy movement of his right hand, she recoiled and uttered a faint cry.

He sprang upon her, with the knife uplifted, and stabbed at her twice, blindly, but with terrible force. One stab would have been enough, but even as she threw up her arms and fell, he struck again with mad and brutish rage, and so wildly that, as she dropped at his feet, the knife flew from his hand.

He stood above her, panting, his teeth clenched, his eyes blazing, scarcely conscious for the moment of what had happened, what he had done. Then suddenly he realized it.

"Nita!" he cried, hoarsely. "Nita! Get up! I—I didn't mean— Why did you nag at me and raise the devil in me? I didn't mean—"

Then he dropped on his knees beside her, and felt for her heart.

As he did so his hands grew wet, and he shrank back and looked from the hand to the sightless eyes upturned to the sky as if mutely denouncing him, as if appealing to Him who has said vengeance is His.

He staggered to his feet, and leaning against a tree, tried not to look at the face again; but his eyes seemed drawn to it by some irresistible power. Presently he awoke to the deadly peril in which he stood. Every moment he remained there that peril increased. He must fly, and at once.

But it was some minutes before he could move, for the face held him by a loathsome fascination, and when at last he moved from the spot, he still looked over his shoulder at his victim. He had not got a dozen yards before he remembered the knife, and, with a start, pulled up. He forced himself to go back for it, and searched for it with shaking hands; but he failed to find it, and with the sweat breaking from every pore, he rose and fled into the thick darkness of the wood.

The flyman had told Rath to go straight through the wood. Now, "straight" meant straight to Rath, whether a path lay before him or not, and he took a bee-line with the ease and skill of a backwoodsman. As a result of his obeying the injunction too literally, he emerged from the wood at a little hamlet called Teem, which was in exactly the opposite direction to that which he should have taken for the Court.

He went to the small inn to enquire, was informed of his mistake, and hospitably invited to rest before setting out again. As it seemed to him that there was no particular hurry, he sat down on the settle beside the fire and talked to the innkeeper. The man, after a moment, brought a pasty and a mug of ale, and Rath, who was hungry, was glad enough to see them.

Absently, he took out the big knife which he had used on the island for years, and which he had brought with him as a matter of course; but as the innkeeper placed an ordinary knife and fork beside the plate, Rath shut up his knife again and put it in his pocket.

"That be a useful tool, sir," remarked the innkeeper, smilingly.

"Yes," said Rath, in his grave but pleasant fashion. "I have done a great deal of work with it."

"Have you now, sir?" commented the man, obviously surprised that a gentleman should need such a knife.

"Yes; it is an old friend, and I should be sorry to lose it."

He ate the excellent pasty and drank the ale, then rose—the innkeeper eyeing him admiringly—end having paid the small sum asked started for the Court again, not at all upset by his long and futile walk. Perhaps he thought that it would be better that Edward should reach the Court before him.

He resolved to leave the wood for the high road as soon as possible, but, oddly enough, he made rather a round of it. At last he struck the path when suddenly he heard a strange sound. For a moment he thought it must be the cry of an owl or some other night bird; but there was just a doubt in his mind whether it might not be that of a human being in distress, and, as a doubt was sufficient for him, he turned and walked quickly in the direction from which the cry had proceeded, going with the unerring instinct which his strange life on the island had brought to perfection.

He had not to go far; and his foot had almost touched the body lying amongst the bracken before he saw it.

He bent over the still form and raised it in his arms; it was wet with something more than dew, and he saw—felt, rather—that she had been stabbed. He set the body down gently and struck a light, looked round keenly, and saw that the bracken had been beaten down near the body and in a line from it. He was about to call for help when he heard footsteps approaching, and calmly and easily he returned to the body and waited.

Rath knelt beside the body and waited. There was no need for him to call out, for his quick ears had noticed that the footsteps were approaching, and in a minute or two a man came running through the wood. As he saw the two figures, the motionless one on the ground, and the almost as motionless one bending over it, he stopped short, as if puzzled, and struck a match.

Small as the light was, it permitted him to see the scene, and, with loud cries for help, he flung himself upon Rath.

Rath was overcome by the suddenness of the attack, but he sprang to his feet and seized his assailant, who, quite helpless in Rath's grip, shouted:

"Murder! Help!"

Almost immediately, certainly before Rath could recover from his amazement and put any question, two other men rushed in upon the scene, and, after a moment, joined in the attack upon him.

One of them carried a lantern, which he set upon the ground, and its lurid light lit up the extraordinary scene.

If Rath had been conversant with the English mode of procedure, he would have understood the peril in which he was placed, and the fact that his resistance to capture would prejudice him, he would have given in and asked for an explanation. But Rath understood nothing of what was happening, and only knew that he was being assailed, apparently without reason, by three men, and instead of submitting to capture, he set his back against a tree and fought with a cool and calm determination which discomfited his assailants.

He hurled the first man from him as if he were a bundle of straw, and struck the second so terrible a blow that the man reeled and staggered under it; the third, realising he had to deal with a Hercules in strength, and one whose eyes was as quick as his hand, drew back and blew a whistle.

Then he approached cautiously, and backed by his mate, who had recovered sufficiently to render assistance but Rath, who was not likely to remain content with mere defence, sprang upon the man, felled him with his left arm, and gripping the other oore him to the ground. As he fell, the man shouted:

The Russian Government report the enemy offensive continued on the front of the Grodek Lakes; also stubborn actions on the Dnieper front, where the Russians, at many points, inflicted great loss on the enemy, capturing in one village over 2,000 men and seven machine guns.

The Italian Government report further progress on the Isonzo.

BONAR LAW.

A MAMMOTH WAR LOAN.

LONDON, June 21.

The Commons, this afternoon, gave the National Government a blank cheque to be filled up in accordance with the expenditure of the year, 1915, asking this indefinite credit. Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna announced that he proposed to issue a war loan, to be terminated at the option of the Government, between 1925 and 1945, for a sum, the only limit of which is to be the excess of the national expenditures for war and other services for a year over the revenue. This loan will be put out at par, and bear interest at the rate of 4 1/2%. Holders of the first war loan and of consols annuities, will be given the privilege of converting the consols into the new loan on the specified terms. Facilities for subscription are so wide that the man who has only a dollar will be able to invest as easily as the millionaire. The first to come will be the first to be served, as allotments will be made and the application list close on or before July 20.

McKenna's announcement was made in the House of Commons. He said the State would have the right to repay the loan at par in 1925, but in any case it must be repaid within thirty years. He emphasized the fact that in addition to putting forward the appeal to the patriotism of the country to use its gigantic resources to carry on the war successfully against ourselves and our Allies, holders of both the old war loan and of consols will have the right to convert their securities into the new loan, the conversion of consols to be on the basis of 100 to 100.

War News.

Messages Received
Previous to 9 a.m.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, June 21. The Governor, Newfoundland, has received the following messages from the French Government: "The French Government reports the occupation, north of Hooge, of 250 yards of trenches abandoned by the enemy; 213 prisoners and three machine guns were captured. Last week the electric power station at La Bassee was successfully bombarded." "The French Government reports severe fighting north of Arras. In Labyrinth, Argonne and Lorraine progress is maintained and extended at various points. A considerable number of prisoners are being taken. The Russian Government report the enemy offensive continued on the front of the Grodek Lakes; also stubborn actions on the Dnieper front, where the Russians, at many points, inflicted great loss on the enemy, capturing in one village over 2,000 men and seven machine guns." "The Italian Government report further progress on the Isonzo. BONAR LAW.

A MAMMOTH WAR LOAN.
LONDON, June 21. The Commons, this afternoon gave the National Government a blank cheque to be filled up in accordance with the expenditure of the year. In asking this indefinite credit, Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna announced that he proposed to issue a war loan, to be terminated at the option of the Government, between 1925 and 1945, for a sum, the only limit of which is to be the excess of the national expenditures for war and other services for a year over the revenue. This loan will be put out at par, and bear interest at the rate of 4 1/2%. Holders of the first war loan and of consols annuity will be given the privilege of converting on specified terms. Facilities for subscriptions are so wide that the man who has only a dollar will be able to invest as easily as the millionaire. The first to come will be the first to be served, as allotments will be made and the application list close on or before July 20. McKenna's announcement was made in the House of Commons. He said the State would have the right to repay the loan at par in 1925, but in any case it must be repaid within thirty years. He emphasized the fact that in addition to putting forward a business transaction, he wished to appeal to the patriotism of the country to use its gigantic resources to carry on the war successfully for ourselves and our Allies. Holders of both the old war loan and of consols will have the right to convert their securities into the new loan, the conversion of consols to be on the basis of £75 consols for £50 of the new loan. The Chancellor stated that the total realized deficit between the revenue and expenditure up to last Saturday amounted to £518,000,000. The daily war expenditure now amounts to nearly £3,000,000, and is still rising. The loan will be issued in small bonds of from £5 to £25, which will be obtainable through the Post Office. McKenna said that if a higher rate of interest was offered for subsequent war loans, the holder of this new war loan would receive the higher rate. Lloyd George, as Chancellor, made the announcement in the Commons on May 24th on the basis of a six months' war; the net deficit would be over £500,000,000. On the basis of a twelve months' war he estimated the net deficit at something under £900,000,000.

AUSTRO-GERMAN ATTEMPT NOT YET SUCCESSFUL.
PETROGRAD, June 21. The Austro-German attempt to force their way through the Russian lines north and south of Grodek, in the battle for Lemberg, has not yet been successful. Regarding the approaching crisis in the Galician campaign, the Bourne Gazette says: "If in view of the continued German reinforcements, the Galician situation forces us to choose between retaining Lemberg and preserving the freedom of our operations, it is possible we may have to make a sentimental sacrifice and abandon the Galician capital."

GREY WARNS BRITISH SUBJECTS.
LONDON, June 21.—(Official.) In view of the existing state of affairs in Galicia, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs (Sir Edward Grey), desires to warn British subjects against visiting that country, unless absolutely obliged to do so by necessity.

BRITISH OFFICERS' CASUALTIES.
LONDON, June 21. The British Army casualty lists ending June 21st show that since the beginning of the war 3,372 officers were killed, 6,651 wounded, and 1,049 missing, making a total of 11,072. From May 1st to June 9th, 703 officers were killed, 1,407 wounded and 170 missing, 3,289 in all. During the last fortnight ending June 9th, the Canadian contingent lost 40 officers killed and 420 wounded; the Austrians, 107 killed, and 175 wounded; Indian troops, 48 killed, and 117 wounded, who, being officers, were included in the British list. The casualty list a certain number of officers and men are transferred from the missing to the killed list, owing to the finding of bodies. The number of dead is also constantly increased by those succumbing to wounds.

LONDON BUDGET.
LONDON, June 21. Rawka and Ruska, according to the Berlin official report, are the latest Russian positions in Galicia to fall into the hands of the Austro-Germans, and as the Teutons are also reported to be fighting east of this town, the investment of Lemberg must be so complete that the Russians either must withdraw from the Galician capital or leave a portion of their forces there to be besieged. The German General von Mackenzen, is reported to have seized the railway connecting Rawka and Ruska with Lemberg, thus cutting off the retreat of the Russians northward. According to the latest news from the Austrian headquarters, the Teutonic Allies are now within nine miles to the limits of Lemberg. Considerable wonder is expressed by the German military critics over the Austro-German advance of the last few days. They had expected the Russians to make a firm stand along the Grodek line. Instead, however, Grand Duke Nicholas, Commander-in-Chief of the Russians, not only retired quickly from this position, but evidently recognizing a very dangerous predicament, also ordered the withdrawal of the Russian forces from the south of the Dnieper River.

An official Turkish report indicates that there have been considerable activity in the Dardanelles, with the Allied battleships again battering away at the fort of Sredul Bashi. In the West, Paris continues to report French advances, especially in the region of Arras. Here, it is asserted, progress has been made in the direction of Sochez, and the capture of several trenches brought the attackers near the northwest of the village. Further progress is also reported in Lorraine district and in the Vosges. In the latter region the French claim to have made an advance beyond the cemetery at Metz, the loss of which town is now officially admitted by Berlin. The trial in South Africa, of General De Wet, one of the rebel leaders, ended in a verdict proclaiming him guilty of treason. It is not expected, however, that the death sentence will be imposed upon him. According to the South Wales Daily News, Bonar Law with the late Dr. Wm. Jacks, founded the Glasgow firm two members of which were sentenced the other day for trading with the enemy. When Law entered politics fourteen years ago, he entirely severed connection with the firm.

STEER BROTHERS.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The schr. Lena, Capt. Spencer, arrived in port on Saturday morning with a cargo of molasses.

The C.H.E. exams, commenced this morning at St. Paul's Hall.

Caplin made their appearance in the harbor this morning for the first time this year. Those fortunate enough to secure a quantity sold them at 5 cents per bucket.

Traps did fairly well about here today, and prospects are considered good.

Rev. C. A. Richie, of St. Andrew's, who was last week kept indoors through illness, was sufficiently recovered to conduct service yesterday.

The schr. Elizabeth, John Keefe, master, arrived from Trinity on Friday evening, after taking on board fishery supplies. She leaves for Corbett's Harbor, Labrador, to-morrow.

A number of workmen arrived from Bell Island on Saturday to spend Sunday at home. They left for the Island again last evening. From one of them we learned that while things were brightening up somewhat, it was a mistake to lead people to think that the supply of laborers was not equal to the demand. He said there were large numbers of men there unable to get work at present. It will be better later, he said.

Mr. George Davis, of Woodville Road, is remaining home this summer, the first summer in many years. We are sorry to hear Mr. Davis is laid up with a sore hand, but hope it will soon be better.

We were pleased to hear from the manager of the Archibald Boot & Shoe Factory, yesterday, that their business is now rushing, in fact the firm is finding business more brisk than is customary at this season. This will be good news to everyone.

Hr. Grace, June 21, '15.

Letter From the Front.

Mrs. Alfred Morgan, of Manuels, is in receipt of an interesting letter from her brother-in-law Private Joseph Morgan, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, who is now in active service in France. The letter is dated June 2nd, and Private Morgan tells with pride of his having fought with the brave Canadians at the battle of Neuve Chapelle, a battle of his good fortune in coming through the fight without a scratch. Owing to the strict censorship, the contents of the letter are of a personal nature. He asks his sister-in-law to write him a long letter soon, because, as he says, "a letter received in the trenches makes a fellow feel good." Private Morgan is, we understand, a driver on an artillery wagon, and was amongst the first of the Canadians to go to the front.

Here and There.

PERSONAL—Capt. E. Hartley who was chief officer of the S. M. Morganna when that ship was sunk by a German submarine off Milford Haven on the 26th of May last, arrived in the city by yesterday's express.

FISHING SCHOONERS OFF—Almost all the outport craft that came here for supplies have left for the home ports to get ready for fishing, most of them going to the Labrador coast. Advances to fishermen were curtailed considerably.

MANY TOURISTS COMING.—The Red Cross Liner Stepano is expected to get away from Halifax for this port some time this afternoon. She has on board a number of tourists from New York. By the s.s. Florizel, leaving New York to-morrow and coming via Charlottetown, a large number of American visitors are also due.

ST. BON'S L.A.—A meeting of the St. Bon's Ladies' Association was held yesterday afternoon, at which Mrs. P. C. O'Driscoll presided. It was decided that a special effort will be made this year to make the stalls at the college sports as attractive as possible. The sports will take place on Wednesday the 30th inst., and afternoon teas and refreshments will be served in aid of the fund, to remove the debt on the new wing.

SUNDAY'S COLLECTION.—The collection taken up on Sunday last for the upkeep of Belvidere and St. Carmel Cemeteries, amounted to $1,166.55. The committee beg to return their sincere thanks to the donors for their generous contributions. They also desire to thank the press for its assistance and kindly notices.

Amusements.

LARGE AUDIENCES AT THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

Yesterday's big show attracted large audiences to the Crescent Picture Palace and the same fine programme will be repeated to-day. "The Shadow of Tragedy," the special two reel Lubin feature, is a beautifully staged and well acted drama and tells a very interesting story. "The Long Lane" and "His Wedded Wife" are also very fine one reel dramas. Leah Baird features in the latter. "Sophie's Legacy" is one of the best comedies produced and the Essanay stars are immense in this release; be amongst the crowd to-night at the popular Crescent.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

The patrons of the popular Little Theatre enjoyed the good programme last night; the pictures are some of the best to be seen in the city, and the two little singers received great applause when they appeared dressed in charming costumes and sang well. There is always a good show at the cosy little house.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE BILL AT ROSSLEYS.

There was a good house at Rossley's again last night. The pictures are splendid. "The Day of Her Wedding" is a special Vitagraph feature, the costumes and scenery are magnificent. "Stocks and Bonds," another Vitagraph feature; in fact every picture was fine and there are no better pictures any where than at Rossleys. The Sunshine Girls gave some real good songs and dances. Until the arrival of the new company Rossleys will run good pictures with songs and comedy sketches. Look out for the big surprise contest on Friday night, this competition will make you laugh more than the others. Tickets on sale at the East End Theatre. Be in time and secure one if you want a seat.

WONDERFUL SINGER AT THE NICKEL.

Hundreds attended the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening and were highly delighted with the programme. The great attraction was, of course, the first appearance of Forbes Law Duguid, the great Canadian baritone. It is the first appearance of Mr. Duguid in St. John's and it is safe to say that no entertainer ever received a more cordial reception. He has a great powerful voice of wonderful range. He can take the extremely high and low notes with the greatest ease. The opinion of all was that no one like him had ever been heard at the Nickel before. The warmest applause was showered on him and repeatedly he was obliged to appear. In the afternoon he sang "Good-bye" and an encore rendered Annie Laurie in a manner which brought down the house. Everyone was delighted with it. At the night performance the Theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity, many being obliged to stand until the intermission. Mr. Duguid sang Toreador and the audience were most enthusiastic in their applause. He repeated Annie Laurie as an encore and made another big hit. Few soloists have won such popular approval and it is safe to say that Mr. Duguid's stay in St. John's will be a most successful one. Those who could not attend yesterday should go to-morrow. The pictures are also fine, especially "Our Mutual Girl." To-morrow there will be another episode of "The Million Dollar Mystery."

GEORGE ADE

known the world over as one of its greatest humorists and famous for his "Fables in Slang," also such well-known comic operas as "The C. Beke Widow," "The Sultan of Sulu," &c., fairly excelled himself last night in the favorite "British," in his high-class satirical comedy "The Fable of the Good Fairy." It is one continuous hot-pour of intensely clever humor from beginning to end. The two reel "feature" "Trapped by Wireless" proved a sensation! It is undoubtedly a most magnificent piece of work and demands strict attention from its commencement. The Lubin photoplay "Love's Lottery" and the Vitagraph offering "Hunger Knows no Law" were also exceptionally good. These beautiful films—with the addition of a comedy song by Arthur Priestman Cameron and the assistance of appropriate music, completed an entertainment of the highest standard imaginable.

The War Loan.

The decision of the British Government to raise money by the flotation of loans at 4 1/2 per cent., with the effect of the war on money. Considering the immensity of the war and the huge expenditure, the interest points to the confidence of the Government in the financial resources of the old land. The cost of money rose from 1897 to 1913. Consols in the former year yielded 2 3/8 per cent. while in 1913 the same stock yielded 4 3/8 per cent., showing an increase of one per cent. in those sixteen years. If we attribute the difference between 2 3/8 and 4 3/8 per cent. bonds wholly to the war, we see that the effect is 2 per cent. A few months ago both Canada, New Zealand and South Africa floated 4 1/2 per cent. bonds successfully, those of Canada being offered at 99. Last week, however, New South Wales floated a loan of £5,000,000 at 4 1/2 per cent., but 92 per cent. of it was left on the hands of the underwriters.

This naturally confirms our doubts as to the wisdom of the Newfoundland Government at the session just closed in authorizing the issue of a loan at four per cent. Mr. Lloyd asked the Prime Minister if the Government had consulted the financial agents of the Colony as to the terms of the loan contemplated and was informed that the Government had not done so. The unwisdom of financial foresight in these days is blindly apparent in the face of it. Now it is more apparent. If the British Government and the strongest of the Colonial Governments, such as Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand find it necessary to attract investors by floating loans at 4 1/2 per cent., the lack of financial foresight in putting through a loan at four per cent., and without the consulting of financial advisers in London even after attention had been directed to this aspect of the matter, almost passes belief and certainly passes understanding.

MCKENNA'S APPEAL FOR WAR LOAN.

To the holders of the old war loan, we say: If you bring one hundred pounds to invest in the new war loan, we will take over your old loan at par and offer you a new loan at half interest for four per cent. After explaining the proposal that if higher rate interest should be offered to subsequent loans, the holders of the forthcoming loan should receive a higher rate, McKenna continued: This is a great national appeal to every class for a great national purpose. The Chancellor then proceeded to explain the method by which he intended to let people utilize their savings. He said that while the minimum subscription through the Bank of England will be one hundred pounds, the Government had in view of these methods of issue to meet every class and purse, first through the Bank of England; second, the sale of £5 to £25 bonds through the Post Office; third, the sale of war loan vouchers for five shillings and multiples thereof. These vouchers will be offered for sale at Post Offices, Trade Union headquarters, etc. They will carry interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per annum for every complete calendar month. Vouchers when a total of £5 have been purchased, will be exchangeable at the Post Office for a £5 English note. This arrangement gives the working class every advantage accorded to others. Our requirements are great. Every effort made is an effort not only necessary to enable us to carry on the war, but to enable us to maintain our financial pre-eminence after the war. He who subscribes now is doing an act of mercy both for himself and his country. He who subscribes now and saves in order to subscribe, will be thankful for the efforts made to help himself, but still dearer to him must be the knowledge that every aid he gives himself will be multiplied for his country and his country will bless him for his providence and generosity.

SUBMARINES IN BLACK SEA.

PETROGRAD, To-day. It is officially announced that Russian submarines have sunk a large steamer and two sailing vessels belonging to the Turks in the Black Sea.

ITALIANS CAPTURE TWO PORTS.

GENEVA, To-day. The Tribune prints the following despatch from London: The Italians on the night of the 19th gained ground. 12 miles North of Gorizia, while Southeast of Piava they captured two forts and several trenches in which were found two machine guns. Along the Isonzo, the artillery duel seems to have turned to the advantage of the Italians and the Austrians are beginning to bring up heavy guns from the Eastern front.

OPERATIONS ON GALLIOLI PENINSULA.

PARIS, To-day. Although operations on the Galloli Peninsula have assumed of late the aspect of siege warfare, local attacks and counter attacks continue, says the Havas despatch from Athens, dated Monday. Fighting was particularly intense last Wednesday when the Italian forces broke through the Turkish trenches and took 700 prisoners. The allied trenches at the Southern extremity of the Peninsula, the despatch states, were held by the 1st and 2nd Divisions from the Square near Avl Burnu.

each settlement together to make warm clothes for our brave soldiers in the trenches, will cause her name to live forever in the hearts of the people of Newfoundland. Having been entertained previously at the home of Dr. Freebairn, the Vice-Regal party then called at the Parochial residence and were warmly welcomed by our venerable pastor Rev. L. Vereker, who is known far and near for his kindness and hospitality, and who entertained the distinguished visitors in his own inimitable style. The next place visited was the Convalescent Home, where a surprise awaited our worthy guests, viz., an Operetta preceded by a beautiful address from the children of the Convalescent School. His Excellency and party were deeply impressed by the talent displayed by the children in performing their several parts, and spoke in glowing terms of the good Sisters and the splendid training given the children by them.

Our honored guests then visited the Lighthouse and were warmly welcomed by the genial light-keeper, Mr. J. W. Costello, as Ferryland Head commandant and view of the harbor. His Excellency, Lady and Miss Davidson were forcibly struck by the beauty of the surrounding scenery. On returning from the Lighthouse a call was made at the residence of Mr. G. J. Tessler, where luncheon was partaken after which His Excellency drove to the railway station, and before boarding the special car to St. John's thanked the people for the reception given himself and party, saying it was the best he ever received anywhere outside of St. John's. Ferryland looks forward with pleasure to another visit from His Excellency before leaving Newfoundland. Ferryland, June 18th, 1915.

LONDON, To-morrow. The Prince of Wales will attain his majority to-morrow. At the request of the King there will be no public celebration of the event. The Prince will not come back to London for the occasion. Addresses of congratulation will be forwarded to him at the front.

REDEMPTION OF WORLD IN SHELLS.

LONDON, To-day. Lloyd George has returned from a week end visit to Boulogne, where he consulted King Albert. Thos. French, Under Secretary of War on the Munitions questions is forming committees in London as well as in all manufacturing towns to take advantage of every possibility for increasing the production of munitions which is the gravest problem confronting the Allies in all the theatres of war. The Times prints a despatch from its correspondent in Eastern France who asserts that if French troops are to drive home their offensive in overwhelming force, they must use a tremendous increased bulk of ammunition. The same lesson came for England from the front, he points out, while the retreat of the Russian armies in Galicia hammers it home again. The correspondent says the daily output of shells certainly is much larger than it was four months ago, and it is possible that a reserve of ammunition is being built up much more rapidly than is apparent at the front, but he adds what we have come to the redemption of the world by shells.

RUSSIA LOOKS TO HER ALLIES.

LONDON, To-day. Discussing the reception in Petrograd of bad news from the Galician front, the Daily Mail's correspondent in the Russian capital says: An appeal to the country to maintain calmness, signed by the Russian General Staff, is posted in public places throughout the city, giving assurances that the whole truth is given in official communications and that the wild rumors which are being circulated in Petrograd are unfounded. The military view the situation without alarm, although admitting it may be some time before the Russians again are able to resume the vigorous offensive. They assert that Russia has borne for ten months, the burden of war, suffering the greatest losses, and materially improving the situation in the west. While she is reforming for the renewal of the battle, Russia looks to the Allies to carry the war forward and give Germany no rest.

FINE ORATION BY REV. DR. BOYD UNVEILING OF TABLET BY THE GOVERNOR.

Gower Street Church was the scene of the Centenary celebration of the establishment of Methodism in St. John's last evening. The sacred edifice contained a thronged congregation. The presiding cleric was Rev. Dr. B. Matthews, B. A., President of the Methodist Conference. With him in the rostrum were His Excellency the Governor, Rev. Dr. Boyd, and Fenwick and the Rev. Mr. Heaton. Revs. Dr. Morton, Dr. Curtis, T. H. James and W. T. D. Dunlop occupied seats below the rostrum. Several other ministers from all parts of the Island were present. At 8 p.m. His Excellency accompanied by Lady Davidson, Miss Davidson and Mrs. Goodridge, A.D.C., arrived. Services commenced with an organ prelude. Miss Horwood, the church organist, followed by Responsive Readings by the Chairman, the Doxology and Invocation. The hymn "When I Survey the Lord beloved" was then rendered. THE ADDRESS.

Expectation was high that the oration of the soil, Rev. Dr. Boyd would rise to the occasion and prove worthy of the day on which St. John's Methodists were celebrating the founding of Methodism in the city and there was no disappointment. Pleasant tones, clear syllabification and a well modulated voice, characterized his response to the spacious days of which we live. From exordium to peroration his inspiring oration and apt words held the attention of the audience. His first words were the keynote of the oration. "Newfoundland first. The Crimea, Alaska, Canada, the New Found Land of overseas fishing fleet. The beginning of the British Supremacy on the Sea. A short distance from where we assembled was the spot where the first had read the Proclamation of the foundation of Newfoundland in the Crown. It was in the space of days of Queen Elizabeth, and those days St. John's was spoken as a populous place. When the New York, Montreal, Chicago, St. John's, Winnipeg? Excelled as St. John's was now in population, architectural beauty, in beauty of situation, in ranked high above the other cities none in her romantic story. Her report of historic misfortune, the derelict of the Colonies, the people of the growing nation. The country that she built. Her natural wealth kept her poor in those days. Many a family, many a baronet, whose wealth was founded on the wealth of her wealth, and her resident population had been kept inured in hardship and poverty that the merchant venturer could luxuriate at home at ease. But rough and ready rule of might, exercised by the Fishy Admiral, the corner of the season was granted to succeed by the Governor holding the rule of law and order. But even 150 years ago, when the Coughlan, an Irishman and a man of John Wesley first began his spiritual labours at Harbor Grace, moral and spiritual tone of the community was low. The people neglected, ditch, drinking and crime were more rife than spiritual poverty. In St. John's there was an Anglican mission, the Rev. Mr. Trinity, Conception Bay was left to Coughlan, who afterwards came an ordained minister of the Establishment. A Methodist and followed by John Wesley. One hundred years ago the first Methodist Church of the world was established on the island where they were now assembled in spite of persecution its spirit lived and thrived until Methodist power in Newfoundland was the Methodist Church established on the British Isles, and it had expanded that now Methodist was a pre-eminent position in the Missionary Society at home was from St. John's in 1816. It amounted to about $150. The latest contribution from St. John's was $100,000 of spiritual force which incalculable of country and its adherents upon the Old Land still as home of the British people were fighting the war of aggression, infatuation of the horrors of the Huns and the horrors of the sea wolves, but they were fighting for principles and rights, freedom of institutions and "Business as Usual" was the alistic cry of the day, but it was called for was spiritual eration. FINE ORATION BY REV. DR. BOND
—UNVEILING OF TABLET BY THE GOVERNOR.

Gower Street Church was the scene of the Centennial celebration of the establishment of Methodism in St. John's last evening. The sacred edifice contained a thronged congregation. The presiding cleric was the Rev. F. R. Matthews, B. A., President of the Methodist Conference. With him in the rostrum were His Excellency the Governor, Rev. D. S. Bond and Fenwick and the Rev. Service commenced with an organ prelude by Miss Horwood, the church organist, followed by Responsive Readings led by the Choir, the Doxology and the invocation. The hymn "When Israel of the Lord beloved," was then rendered. Next came the Scripture Lessons, read by the Rev. Dr. Fenwick and Prayer by the Rev. D. B. Hemmion, Pastor of the Church. Most inspiring was the singing of the Te Deum by the united choirs of the four churches. The choir had been trained by Mr. Arthur Mews, of Cochrane Street, who presided at the organ. The rendition of "O God of Bethel" by the entire congregation followed, Miss Horwood presiding at the organ. Then came

THE ADDRESS.
Expectation was high that the talented son of the soil, Rev. Dr. Bond, would rise to the occasion and prove worthy of the day on which St. John's Methodists were celebrating the founding of Methodism in the city, and there was no disappointment. In pleasant tones, with a well modulated and a well modulated voice, his theme was worthy of the occasion and responsive to the spacious days in which we live. From exhortations and exhortations and exhortations and apt words held the attention of the audience. His first words struck the keynote of the oration. "The founding of Methodism in this city," he said, "is the most ancient Colony of the Crown. That was in the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth, and in those days St. John's was spoken of as a populous place. Where then was New York, Montreal, Chicago and Winnipeg? Excelled as St. John's was now in population, architectural beauty, in beauty of situation she ranked high and was excelled by none in her romantic story. The sport of historic misfortune, the derelict of the Colonies, the exploiting ground of the West Country merchant. Her natural wealth kept her poor in those days. Many a household, many a baronetcy had been founded on the wealth of her waters, and her resident population had been kept inured to hardship and poverty that the merchant 'venturer' might luxuriate at home at ease. But the rough and ready rule of might, exercised by the Fishing Admiral, the first comer of the season, was gradually succeeded by the Governor holding a commission from the Crown and exercising the rule of law and order. But even 150 years ago, when Mr. Coughlan, an Irishman and a disciple of John Wesley first began his spiritual labours at Harbor Grace the moral and spiritual tone of the community was low. The people were neglected. Dicing, drinking and dancing were more life than spiritual devotions. In St. John's there was an Anglican minister and another at Trinity, Conception Bay was left solely to Coughlan, who afterwards became an ordained minister of the Establishment, but remained an avowed Methodist and follower of John Wesley. One hundred years ago the first Methodist Church of St. John's was established, and in the place where they were now assembled, and in spite of persecution its spirit had lived and thrived until Methodism was a power in the land. The Methodist Church in Newfoundland was the first Methodist Church established out of the British Isles, and it had so expanded that now Methodism occupied a pre-eminent position in the world of Protestantism. The first contribution from overseas to the Methodist Missionary Society at home was sent from St. John's in 1818, amounting to about $150. The latest contribution from St. John's was in the tens of thousands. Methodism was a spiritual force which incited love of country and its adherents looked upon the Old Land still as home, and to-day in the hour of need, the Newfoundland Methodists had not been backward in sending their best and bravest to serve in the trenches and fight for spiritual right. As of old, the British people were fighting the war of aggression, infamous by the horrors of the Huns and the savagery of the sea wolves, but they were fighting for principles and rights and the freedom of institutions and laws. "Business as Usual" was the materialistic cry of the day, but what the times called for was spiritual regeneration. The greatest of Welshmen, Lloyd George, now to the fore as Minister of Munitions, to break the back of German militarism, speaking of the greatest of dead Welshmen, the leading figure of the Methodism of his day, Hugh Price Hughes, said "He who can move Methodism can move the world." Our boys in the trenches took pride in doing their bit. What were they doing as Methodists. The soldier boys in doing their 'bit,' and all combining to do it would drive back the Huns from the devastated cities of France and Belgium. If every Methodist did his 'bit,' the combined effort would get a move on Methodism, which would strengthen the rule of right, establish the freedom of institution, and make a mighty uplift in the spiritual life of the people throughout the world.

UNVEILING OF TABLET.
The President of the Conference, then invited His Excellency the Governor, to unveil the Mural Tablet in honour of the occasion. In referring to Dr. Bond's oration he mentioned the ceremony, expressing his appreciation of the magnificent address and the eloquence of its delivery. He paid a tribute to the labours of John Wesley and the response made in Newfoundland to the national call for soldiers. He then drew the curtain from over the tablet and read the inscription which is as follows:—

This Tablet commemorates the founding of the Methodist Church of St. John's in the year 1815, by the Rev. John Pickavant, of Lancashire, England, and honours the Memory of those faithful Missionaries whose ministry has profoundly influenced the Religious life of this Island. Erected in connection with a centenary celebration in this Church on the 21st day of June in the year 1915.

The Celebration was brought to a close by the singing of "God Bless our Native Land," the National Anthem, the pronouncing of the Benediction by the Rev. Dr. Morton, a former pastor of the Church, and an Organ Postlude by Mr. Gordon Christian.

Information Wanted.
A letter to Mr. W. G. Gosling, Chairman of the Civic Commission, from Monsieur Napolion Argles, Solicitor at Paris, asks information concerning the whereabouts of one Frederick Bearer, an Englishman, who has not been heard from for over seven years. In the letter mention is made of an unclaimed estate of considerable value, which we presume is the reason for which the information is being sought. The only information given in the letter is as follows: Frederick Bearer is the son of John Bearer, of the North of England. He is infirm and wears an artificial leg. He was last heard of from Manitoba in 1907; at that time he was in ill-health. He is believed to have emigrated from there to Alaska, U.S.A., and possibly to have returned from there to Canada or to some part of the United States.

Wedding Bells.

MONTGOMERIE-STRANG.
A very pretty wedding took place at the Kirk this afternoon, when Mr. W. G. Montgomerie, accountant at the Bank of Montreal, Fredericton, N. B., and Miss Gertrude M. Strang, daughter of the late J. C. Strang and Mrs. Strang, this city, were made man and wife.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. S. Sutherland, Pastor of St. Andrew's, and the service was choral, Mr. F. J. King presiding at the organ. The bride was attired in white satin veiled with lace and orange blossoms and wore a beautiful wreath. She carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern and was attended by her sister Miss Jean Strang. The groom was supported by Mr. Donald McLeod. The bride was for many years a member of St. Andrew's choir, and the church was tastefully decorated for the occasion, as also is Waterford Hall where the reception is being held. After the reception the party will entrain by the evening express en route to Ottawa where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents including some exquisite pieces of silverware, cut glass as well as several cheques and a purse of gold presented by the St. Andrew's Ladies' of the Women's Patriotic Association. This latter gift was accompanied by a beautiful card suitably inscribed in letters of gold.

The Telegram extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Montgomerie, and wish them many happy years of wedded life. We understand they will take up residence at Fredericton, N. B., next month.

Archiepiscopal Consecration Ceremonies.

Dear Mr. Editor,
As a large number of people are interested in the Consecration Ceremonies to be held next Tuesday, including a large number of our non-Catholic friends, the idea has occurred to me, that possibly the Importers' Association could arrange to cancel the usual half holiday, and make Tuesday a general holiday instead.
In many stores and offices in the city, several of the employees would like to participate in this religious function, and all cannot do so of course, without impairing the efficiency of their respective departments. The ceremony is a rare one, and no doubt an interesting one to a large majority of people, and it would be an act of graciousness, if the Importers' Association would decide to give us all a chance to witness it.
I ask the use of your columns to bring the matter to the notice of the Association, and thanking you for same.
Yours very truly,
J. J. L.

Two Girls Killed and Drowned.

The Department of Justice were informed to-day that two girls, both 12 years old, children of Joseph and Mary Parsons, respectively, of Freshwater, Bell Island, while picking dandelion near the edge of a perpendicular cliff, about 100 feet high, on Saturday evening last, fell overboard and both children were drowned. The bodies were recovered. The only person near at the time was a Mrs. Parsons who was also picking dandelion who screamed but thinking that the children were playing, thought nothing of the matter until later on when she found the head dress of the children and a bucket, but there was no trace of the girls. Mrs. Parsons then gave an alarm.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.
"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that the mother and both children are drowned. The bodies were recovered. The only person near at the time was a Mrs. Parsons who was also picking dandelion who screamed but thinking that the children were playing, thought nothing of the matter until later on when she found the head dress of the children and a bucket, but there was no trace of the girls. Mrs. Parsons then gave an alarm.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance. Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what cost! Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and because it does not require the use of coal to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

The master of the house has hot showers and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Let us not forget that the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

How a Mother Was Repaid.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I read in a magazine the story of a girl who made a religion of the philosophy that one has a right and a duty to develop one's soul. She spent her father's money for expensive flowers while her mother wore shabby clothes, and did all sorts of things equally unthinkable.

I threw the magazine down in disgust. That's all made up, I thought. No girl would be or would be allowed to be as selfish as that.

A few hours later the postman brought me a letter, and after I had read it I knew I had judged the magazine article too hastily. For, if the letter was true (and it plainly was), the article might easily be.

No, the letter wasn't about another girl who fed her soul at the expense of everyone about her. But it was as unthinkable in its way.

Washes, Sews, and Cooks for Ten. Its writer was the mother of five children. "I take care of the little ones," she wrote, "I wash, sew, and cook for them all and for three men who help my husband do the work about the place. I have spent every cent I could get for them to give them a good education and a good start."

Now what do they do in return for all this?

Well, here are a few of the things they do:

They tell her that she doesn't know how to cook (because she hasn't time to make fancy cookies and cake).

They laugh at her, before outsiders, when she makes mistakes in grammar. They make fun of her friends if she brings them to the house.

Tell Her How Old She Looks. They tell her how old she begins to look.

They laugh at her voice when she sings in Church.

They say that her hands are a fright and ash her when she last manicured them.

They scold her when she forgets. These are just a few—not anywhere near all—of the ways that these children find to repay a mother for going down into the valley of the shadow to get them and for devoting every moment and every thought of her life to them.

But to me the most pathetic sentence of all was this: "When I am in the next room I can sometimes hear their talking of things I would love to have them tell me, or say in my presence, of the events of the day, the progress they are making in their work and things like that."

If your child ask for bread, will you give him a stone?

Parents Aren't Like That But Children Are.

No, parents aren't like that. But if the mother asks her child for bread she may easily get a stone.

My blood fairly boils when I read that letter and yet, indignant as I am, I pity those children almost more than the mother. For think what they are going to feel when they've killed that patient, long-suffering mother and they see her lying there white and still with the work-worn hands they made fun of crossed on her breast. And then, when they know that she can't hear the kind things they want to say nor see the pretty things they want to give her, the remorse they want to express to her will cut through their hearts like a knife and they'll give half a life to bring her back long enough to tell her, and they can't, they can't!

Oh, folks with mothers, you wouldn't do such terrible things as these I know; but if you don't want to feel like this look out for even the lesser slights, the minor selfishness, the little thoughtlessness.

MODERATELY GOOD.

A load of virtue will never hurt you, if modestly it's borne; the saintly rellie who's too angelic for week days, makes us mourn. The gloomy mortal who by chorle or joke is deeply vexed, the turgid person who's still disbur-sin's the precept and the text, is dull and dreary, he makes us weary, we hate to see him come; oh, gent so pious, please don't come nigh us — your creed is too blamed gum!

The saint who mumbles, when some one stumbles, "That man's forever lost," is but a fellow with streak of yellow, his words are full of frost. Not what we're saying, as we go straying adown this tinhorn globe, not words or phrases, though loud as blazes, will gain us harp and robe! let's what we're doing while we're pursuing our course with other skates, that will be counted when we have mounted the ladder to the Gates. A drink of water to tramps who totter with weakness in the sun will help us better than text and letter of sermons by the ton. So let each action give satisfaction, let words be few and wise, and, after dying, we'll all go flying and whopping through the skies.

By DINKY.
How confident were the Wanderers An hour before the scrap. They thought that they could wipe The Cubs right off the map. They were as frisky as the lamb That gambols in its gloe, Tim thought that King would be too strong So he pitched Britt you see.

Alas, alack, my tale is sad, The Cubs soon hit their stride, And when eight innings had been played, They found the score was tied. The Cubs now went to bat, Excitement was intense; When Peddigrew came home from third On Simms' hit to the fence.

The Wanderers were grim as death, And vainly tried to hit. But Hockens, Peters, O'Flaherty's flies Were glued in Ryall's mitt. It teaches us all a lesson That no chances should be taken, For fear the other ginks Might carry home the bacon.

How to Prevent Acid Stomachs and Fermentation

By a Stomach Specialist.
As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonsful of hisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

Successful Banker.

Capt. John Lewis, one of our most successful fish-killers, paid a flying visit to the city yesterday while his banking sch. Metamora was at Holyrood getting a caplin baiting. For 5 days fishing Capt. Lewis got 250 qts. of fish on a small baiting that he got at Fortune. Capt. Lewis was late in starting the winter fishery although he is now a good runner-up amongst the high-liners. So far he has over 2,500 quintals under salt and expects to reach the 4,000 mark by the time the season closes. This morning the Metamora sailed again for the Grand Banks to resume operations.

Submarines in First Battle.

Italian Boat Was Sunk in Encounter With Underwater Craft.

Venice, June 18, via Paris.—Details have been received here of the recent remarkable engagement between an Italian and an Austrian submarine in which the Italian boat was vanquished. This is the first time in the history of naval engagements that an encounter between under-sea boats has been recorded.

The Italian boat was the Medusa, with a displacement of 300 tons, a speed of 14 knots and a crew of fourteen men. She was lying submerged and the Austrian boat was not far away, also under water. Neither one had any intimation of the presence of the other.

The Medusa came to the surface first, swept the horizon with her periscope and finding the way clear, she emerged. Shortly after the Austrian boat decided to come up. She sent up her periscope and saw the Italian boat not far away. Recognizing an enemy she immediately attacked, and one shot from her torpedo was sufficient to send the Medusa to the bottom.

One report has it that an officer and four members of the crew of the Medusa escaped and were made prisoners by the Austrians.

Vessel Abandoned.

She was towed into Channel by William Bruce, of Main River. The Triton was partly loaded with bulk and barrelled herring from Bay of Islands.

Obituary.

CAPT. WILLIAM CROSS. There passed away this morning after a protracted illness, a well known master mariner in the person of Capt. William G. Cross. The deceased was born at Trinity in 1857, and at an early age went to sea, and climbed the nautical ladder with great rapidity. He soon obtained a master's certificate, and was given command of Duder's Mayflower, in which vessel he made a record for quick passages, which record he maintained when in charge of the Sunbeam and Galatea, in later years. Upon giving up sailing vessels he commanded the following steamers: Lucerne, Regulus, Strathaven and Bellaventure. While master of the s.s. Regulus in 1898, he became famous by successfully running the blockade to Havana during the Spanish-American war, and received many congratulatory references in the American press. During his career as master of shipping, the late Capt. Cross had the confidence of the owners and the admiration of his crews. He was of a very pleasing disposition and his many friends in the city and elsewhere will regret to hear of his passing. A widow, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Ellifsen, residing in Norway, four brothers, Capt. Charles, of the s.s. Bellaventure, Frank, in British Columbia, George and Fred in the city, and four sisters, Mesdames Tucker, Norcott, Williams and Winsor, are left to mourn, to whom the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. Capt. Cross was a member of Tasker Lodge, 454, A.F. & A.M., and Shannon Chapter, No. 9, of this city.

B.I.S. Defeat C.E.L.-Feildians.

In last night's football game the B.I.S. defeated the C.E.L.-Feildians by a score of one goal to nil. The game which was the most evenly contested since the opening of the season, opened with the B.I.S. defending the eastern goal. Play was evenly divided during the first half, though the B.I.S. pressed their opponents' goal during the last ten minutes of play, and lost many fine chances to score. When the teams crossed the line no scoring had been done. The second half opened rather briskly, and both teams gave a good exhibition. The ball was kept flying from goal to goal, and the excitement was intense. About ten minutes before full time, R. Jackson sent in a swift shot for the B.I.S., which was the only goal scored during the game. Mr. J. Condon acted as referee and the players were: B.I.S.—Goal, Walsh; backs, Kavanaugh, Thomas; halves, Kavanaugh, Duggan, T. Jackson; forwards, Simms, Constantine, Jackman, McGrath, Duffy. C.E.L.-Feildians—Goal, Long; backs, Hussey, Ryall; halves, Drover, M. Stick, Brooks; forwards, Adams, R. Stick, Winter, Bugden, Fox.

Heroic Lady Dorothea Feilding

DECORATED BY KING OF BELGIUM

"Her work in tending the Belgian wounded has won for her the affection of the whole Belgian army," said an English officer of Lady Dorothea Feilding, the pretty young daughter of the Earl of Denbigh, to whose unselfish bravery heroes themselves pay tribute. Lady Dorothea is attached to an ambulance party in Belgium, whose duty consists of driving motor cars into the firing line to pick up the wounded. Perilous journeys have to be made along narrow roads rendered veritable death-traps by gaping cavities torn in the surface by shells. On occasions pieces of metal discharged by projectiles bursting overhead have smashed the woodwork of Lady Dorothea's car, and once whilst she was driving in pitch darkness her vehicle crashed into a hole as big as a room.

and soldiers were required to lift it out.

The Belgian soldiers worship the young English aristocrat, who for their sakes has set aside the comforts of a dual home to face the dangers of the battlefield, and recently King Albert expressed the gratitude of his countrymen by decorating Lady Dorothea with the Order of Leopold. This is the highest military decoration in Belgium.

Lady Dorothea's "five o'clock teas" among the ruins of Pervyse have become famous, and the Belgian officers greatly appreciate this little touch of civilization amidst the ravages of war. She holds her receptions within range of the enemy's artillery nearly every day, for her ladyship possesses astonishing nerve and her coolness seldom deserts her. As is well known, the Germans have little respect for the sign of the Red Cross, and when making their way to and from the trenches the motor ambulances are subjected to heavy shell fire, whilst at times Taubes endeavor to annihilate the vehicles and their occupants with bombs. Yet for six months Lady Dorothea has withstood this terrible nerve strain, though daily she moves amidst the worst horrors of war, and frequently escapes death by a hair's breadth. The plucky young Englishwoman probably has the fighting blood of her father in her veins. Lieut.-Colonel the Earl of Denbigh, a seasoned soldier, who served in the Egyptian campaign in India, and is at present commanding the Honourable Artillery Company.

Making Shells.

London Daily Mail.—The manufacture of guns and shells is no more Lord Kitchener's task than making motor cars or mangles. Some of the best shells used by the French in this war have been turned out by American bedstead makers, firms having no connection with military affairs of an army. The Germans have complained bitterly of the efficiency of these particular American shells. Thousands of engineering firms, large and small, throughout Great Britain can, if they are asked, make exactly what is wanted. It is calculated that there are no fewer than seventeen thousand metal working businesses in the United States alone that could help us in the manufacture of munitions of war.
