Plebiscite Dispute.

It seems to be considered in some quarters a vitally important matter that the "responsibility" for the election of last week, which proved such an absurdity, should be clearly fixed and a scapegoat found somewhere. We cannot see the force of this view or what good purpose it can achieve. The election has been held and we know the result. And we have heard of more than $1600 being expended upon an object less justified than this has proved to be without arousing any outers at all ment, we cannot help agreeing fully with those who objected to the holding of both elections simultaneously, notwith those who objected to the holding of both elections simultaneously, not-withstanding the matter of the cost. Had they not succeeded in separating them, we know that every elector would have been too much occupied in discussing and weighing the merits of A and B to give anything like the thought which it deserved to the system on which either of them should be elected. It might not have appeared so, for the mere convenience of it would have ensured a far larger vote on the plebiscite than was registered last week, but that vote certainly have been given without much tainly have been given without much deliberation. Moreover, we have never heard of anything so extraordinary as the simultaneous holding of two dum whatever was necessary. They must have been persuaded that there was a considerable desire for a change from the present system to that of Ward election; if so, it would seem that they were greatly nightly a seem that they were greatly nightly that they were greatly mistaken.

In our opinion, if fault must be found, it is the city at large and no particular individuals that is to by a reader, and are a true, if quaint description of a busy mother's life: blame. A comparison of the two elections shows only too clearly how much more we are wont to be exercised over the question of men than cised over the question of men than over that of measures. In theory the latter should be more important, and it is often our sad experience to find that it is. St. John's was most careful whom it chose as its representa-tives; it did not care a fig how they should represent it. Thus, after stormy debate and a display of the liveliest interest, we elect an official, who, when he takes office, may well find himself circumscribed in the exercise of his functions by a law or set of rules, it may be redolent of mischief and capable of much harm, which we have allowed to be established hastily and almost without question. This seems to us the service of the control of the capable of much harm, which we have allowed to be established hastily and almost without question. This seems to us the capable of maid? maid?

Yet a Christian will hesitate to think that fellow Christians, though they be Prussians, could sink so low as to be guilty of the latest charge preferred against them, that of deliberately infecting prisoners of the product of the latest charge preferred against them. guilty of the latest charge preferred against them, that of deliberately infecting prisoners of war with tuber-culosis. Unfortunately, the certain knowledge possessed by the French authorities forbids any such hesitation on their part at least. Excluding the direct and circumstantial statements of returned prisoners that the tubercular serum was often hypoder-mically injected, there is indisputable proof that healthy and sound prisoners have been purposely housed and put in contact with other poor wretches in advanced stages of the disease. The abominable thing is the more likely in its being so difficult to prove. But there is one thing we may be sure of: the Allies will not trouble to convince their enemies of their guilt, or the world outside; when these charges are proved to their own satisfaction they are simply transferred to the account that is carried in from month to month, to be balanced in the end by the one entry—retribution! The balancing will be done cre the books are closed, and it will be a terrible and bitter one to Germany.

We can afford to ignore the Berlin claim that the invading Roumanians have been cut of from the Danube and their bridges destroyed behind them: all the German reports concerning this campaign have been a tissue of lies. The mighty stroke that was to have humbled Roumania has been held in the air and the arm that threatened it paralyzed. LONDON, To-day. Although the Roumanians continue to gain ground against the Austro-Germans at various points in Transylvania, the situation in Dobrudja, which has attained added interest since the cross of the Danube into Bulgaria by the Roumanian forces, remains uncertain. Bucharest says that violent fighting continues all along the line south of the railway running from Constanza to the Danube with the Teutonic Allies offering stubborn resistance to the Roumanian and Russian forces. Nothing is vouchsafed, however, concerning the troops which invaded Bulgaria. Sofia says that only several battalions of Roumanians made their way across the River, and Berlin reports the destruction behind them by German monitors of the pontoon bridges over which they made toon bridges over which they ma their passage. An unofficial despate from Rome asserts that Field-Marsha Von Mackensen ordered to evacuat the Dobrudja fortress of Silestri, and Turtukai recently captured by the Teutons for fear of their being en-veloped by the Roumanians Heavy Teutons for fear of their being enveloped by the Roumanians. Heavy rains are interferring with the actions of the British and French forces in the Somme region in France, but, nevertheless, Paris reports the capture of an important branch north of Rancourt, and the taking of additional prisoners, while London says that tighting at Eaucort-Labbaye is proceeding satisfactorily. Violent fighting has been in progress in Russia west of Lutsk and in Galicia in the region of the Zleta-Lipa River. Allied Losses in Somme Drive Less Than Was Expected.

This is Due to Perfect Co-operation Between Gunners and Infantry -Special Air Scouts Fly Just Over Advancing Troops.

London, Sept. 27.—The British and west of Lutsk and in Galicia in the region of the Zleta-Lipa River. In the latter region, according to Petrograd neither Russians nor Teutons have been able to gain any marked advantage. West of Lutsk, according to Petrograd, the Russians made an advance by the General Staffs of the price that would have to be paid for a highly desirable and a highly desirable.

Mathematical Precision.

It has been worked out with mathe matical precision how many shells are required per yard of wire entanglements. When it comes to the destruction of ground defensive works, experience has shown that the best way to deal with front line trenches, especially when they are not easy to observe, is to use exclusively against them an enormous number of trench mortars of all sizes.. Howitzers are only used at present against second and third line trenches. As it is their task is already a sufficiently heavy one, and it is assumed that every inch of ground must be plastered with

Once the work of preparation is ver the great problem was to safeguard the attacking troops, as they noved forward, by a protective curtain of shells, which had to be lifted ahead in accordance with the ground gained. Here, owing to the difficulty of keeping artillery exactly informed as to movements of infantry, the only solution which was found for a long time was to regulate exactly before hand the movements of the attacking roops and lengthening the artillery range by a clockwork schedule. This left a considerable margin for mistakes and miscalculations, as the advance of the infantry was not always

The entry of the British and French into Combles was not a more ominous sign for Germany than the false bulletins behind which she concealed the failure of the attempt to smash into the Dobrudja, or the great efforts she is making to mask the languid response to the appeal for a war loan. The last week has been an ominous week for Germany, a bitter week to those who are directing her exhausting fight against the inevitable. Her military effort has been a defensive on the west, with a smashing blow in the east. The eastern blow failed to smash anything, and a few days later mash anything, and a few days late er defensive in the west suffered an other disaster. Meanwhile Hinden burg's cry that he could not fight with ected as much toward the conceal-nent of the response as toward the innent of it.

Hindenburg intended to hold the British and French stationary while he shattered the Russian-Rumanian line and got in its rear. Mackensen struck hard in the Dobrudja, with momentary success, but the British and in the British and British a mentary success, but the Russians and Rumanians now hold him stationary, and their forces increase daily. The moment when the smashing tactics, so often successful, could win another victory, went by when Mackensen was stopped and forced to stand in the Do-brudja. The highest recognition of this failure was the German attempt to conceal it, the false bulletins from headquarters which announced it as a success. The German bulletins used to be truthful. It is a paralyzing disappointment and a great fear that have forced Berlin to resort to the subterfuges of Sofia and Constantinuals.

Close on the heels of this disaster-for, as it is the failure of Hindenburg's plan of campaign, it is nothing less even should Mackensen win some dramatic but minor victories—comes the capture of Combles, the blasting out of a rock that had made impassaole the road to Bapaume or to Per onne. The offensive failed, the defen sive is broken into again; failure to strike the blow in the east, failure to voluble in "counteracting certain ru-"mors calculated to influence unfav-'orably the war loan" and "stimula ting enthusiasm among the public.' Secretary Helfferich makes speeches combating the argument that "subscribing to the war loan lengthens the war," and calls it "infamous," "lying," and "treasonable" to say such things. Who is saying them? And why does the Cologne Gazette plead with small investors not to hang back, and belittle the large subscriptions of the few which are the only subscriptions the Government does not conceal? Meanwhile the German press clamors for the modification of the censorship, so hat it can tell the truth about the co Failure in the east, staggering blows in the west, loss of confidence at home. These last days of September are ominous days for Germany. Her descending arm is arrested and gripped in the n the west, and at home the mind of the people grows anxious and cau-tious. The loss of victory is the beginning of doubt .- N. Y. Times.

Gorgeous Spectacle of the Midnight Sun at Karungi.

I was glad I stopped at Karungi Sweden, for I saw the midnight sunthe almost midnight sun, to be exact, for although it was noonday bright all night the sun did make a bluff at set ting. It went down at twenty minutes to twelve and rose twenty minutes af ter twelve.

The sun went down blood red, an he sky was crimsoned almost to the zenith. It seemed as if all the north were on fire. The river burned in the slow, and the sky took on tints tha glow, and the sky took on tints that ranged from cardinal to pink. Just as the whole place seemed about to burst into flame, the sun dropped out of sight, and the glaring reds began to mellow into softer shades, the river lost its glow of fine and the sky dulled to mellow into softer shades, the river lost its glow of fire, and the sky dulled and dimmed until it looked like a great inverted dome that had been white hot and was cooling slowly. There were no other shades than the shades of fire—none of the usual maroons and cerises and garnets that come as the aftermath of mountain sunsets. Everything was carmine.

The air quivered redly, and the tree and the grass were rubescent. Al this softened gradually into a glowing one toned mass of color. Then, a one toned mass of color. Then, at twenty minutes past 12, at a point that seemed not more than half a mile along the horizon from the place where the sun disappeared, there came a golden glory that spread evenly over the reddened sky. The sun was rising and soon was above the horizon. It went down as red as fire. It came up bright, glittering, gleaming, as if during the forty minutes it had been below the horizon some titanic hand had polished it for another day's use.

At home every effort is being made to raise the money of which Hinden-burg tells the empire it is in such need. There have been other loans, and Germany has always announced the successive stages of their raising, the totals subscribed, because she had no object in concealing them; they were for her an object of pride. Now all she will give out is the amount of the largest contributions; the world is kept in the dark about the response of the people. Instead, in Germany itself the loan is an object of doubt, and even, it seems, of hostility, for the Government, silent on the totals, is woluble in "counteracting certain ru-"mors calculated to influence unfay-" This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

Working is Marvellous.

The way in which this new devic is worked on the Somme is marvellous. It is mainly due to the scientific system that the troops have been able to advance under a curtain of shells which mover continuously ahead of them at a distance of 200 or 00 yards.

These points explain why the French losses have been reduced so aterially in spite of the almost connous offensive. The main handi ip, which the Franch are still connding with, arises from the fact that ney have not been able to smash the eadly German long-range guns. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The Citizens' Committee has had under consideration the let-ter of Mayor Gosling to the Daily Star, in which he attempts to place responsibility on the Committee or its members, for the expense incurred by the city in connection with the "Plebiscite Election."

When the matter of the Ward System was debated by the Committee considerable difference of opinion was manifested and the debate was adjourned until the next meeting to enable members to consult with citizens generally. The matter of expense came up during the debate, and the Committee was of opinion that the only additional expense would be that entailed by the printing of a third ballot paper, matter of a few dollars.

The city has now been put to the xpense, on the advice of the Board of Commissioners, of some sixteen hundred dollars by reason of the election being held in September. The same would be true of an election next winter. The time was as much

Your Boys and Girls

Where is the mother of yesterday who understood her boys game of football, who encouraged him in his athletics and who was as enthusiastic as he along those lines? Where also could one find twenty years ago the woman who played tennis with her daughter, taught her to golf and swim as well as sew, and accompanied her to dances, not as a staid chaperon, bu as one who enjoyed dancing too?

And yet this type of modern mother exists in hordes to-day. She is no curiosity but a reality, who is gaining the companionship as well as the love of the children she has brought into the world. And who shall say that she has not made of motherhood a more humane, a more under standing profession than her dear old fashioned predecessors who rocked the cradle and darned socks?

Nothing, however, daunts Liebknecht, for he comes of fighting stock. His father, Wilhelm Liebknecht, fought for Bebel, the famous Socialist, almost precisely the same battle, during and after the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in a fortress for "treasonable intentions." Herr Liebknecht himself suffered confinement for 18 months in a fortress for refusing to stop what were regarded as 'seditious' speeches. There is a notable multiplication of domestic dramas of the type familiar through Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" and Balzac's. "Colonel Chabert," who, lost on a Napoleon battlefield, returned home to find his wife remarried to a nobleman of the Restoration.

Thus, a Madame D— of Arras was informed at the beginning of the war that her husband had been killed. Removing to Paris she waited some months, and then married her brother-in-law. The first husband is now on his way back from Germany, where he was a prisoner.

h his way back from Germany, where he was a prisoner.

Charles le Goffic cites other cases in La Liberte. He says: "In a small commune near the Channel two soldiers' wives remarried in this way.

The death of their first husbands was registered, and all the papers were in order. But these husbands reappeared one fine morning, both of them with amputated limbs."

"More curious is the tale of the Breton soldier, whose arm, cut off by misadventures was found in Switzer-land recently in one of the parties of seriously wounded soldiers returned from Germany. A French visitor stop ped before a man whose face was sidisfigured as to seem no longer human He asked if he could do anything for thesufferer, if he could see his family

The soldier had risen to the heroid delicacy of deciding that, rather than horrify those he loved, he would leave them to believe him dead.

There is a ray of light in this case, for the surgeons hold out hope of a great improvement, and if this is accomplished their patient will give up his name and come to life again. "But perhaps," adds M. le Goffic, "it may then be too late."

It is said there are 70,000 French prisoners in Germany who have not been able to communicate with their families. The French law requires ten months of widowhood before re-marriage. The question is being asked whether this delay should not be extended, and Henri Robert, the eminen pleader, is one of those who think tha soldiers' wives should not remarry be fore the end of the war.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp.

This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc. the incandescent lamp.

The World's Most Beautiful Queen.

Everybody in Roumania, from the highest to the lowest, has a good word for Queen Marie, the sweet-faced consort of our new Royal Ally.

A daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Victoria's second son, she is more or less, closely connected with most of the Royal families of Europe. Our own King George is her first cousin, and she bears a similar relation to the Tsar of Russia.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—july 13,eod

This year's style in Coats is distinctive. The Coat with the flare (or wide) skirt is the mode. Coats this year are either without belts or come with a half belt effect. This is quite different from last season's Military Coat, which had a belt all round and was much tighter in the skirt.

Despite increasing cost of Coats, through rising prices of materials, and the fashions demanding more cloth in each, we are enabled to offer you the NEWEST GOODS at the LOWEST PRICES. This we are enabled to do by our early contracts and also by our moderate margin of profit, which has built us up such a successful coat business, as it is well known our values are the best.
