ed propaganda in this territory, during the year, which would intervene before the plebiscite, also would be demanded. The sea and other terms of peace, which are believed to have been formulated for submission at the first meeting between Soviet and Polish emissaries, were received here yesterday in official circles.

BIG WOOLEN ORDER FOR CANADA.

TORONTO, Aug. 15. Orders aggregating seven and a half million dollars for Canadian textile manufacturers, have been brought by F. H. Rapp, of the Canadian Woolen Manufacturers Association, just returned from England. The goods will be shipped direct to Roumania.

Heavy rain washed out the railroad at one of the culverts, resulting in the engine of the train leaving the track. That there was not a serious loss of life is probably due to the fact that the engine became detached from the train, which remained on the tracks.

yesterday, had instructions to report to General Wrangel at Sebastopol.

Some Civic Comment.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I am glad to see that the Waterford Bridge Road is being widened, presumably because of the accident that happened there a short while ago to the Bowring Park Bus.

A lady resident of the city, and there are thousands who hold a similar opinion, says that the watering car now being used by the Commissioners is a terrible thing, and the only name by which it can be known is "Dustdriver," and no good whatever for the purpose for which it is used. If the Commissioners will please put this contraption in cold storage and bring out the old local made watering carts it will be ever so much better.

I heard that the Council refused to give the merchants who subscribed to a fund to water the streets, any water from the city pipes. Surely they are paying taxes enough; but this is the most unkind cut of all, especially after the Board of Trade pleading with the Government to have the present Council reinstated, to refuse them the water to keep down the dust that they refuse to attend to.

Who has given the people of Galley's Range, near the Gas Works, permission to repair those old shacks? Let the Housing Commission take them down at once and build homes for the working people there. It will not cost much, as the sewerage and water is at the door. Shacks could be put up on the Park ground near the Gas Works to house those people, while the new houses are being built. Gentlemen, give your attention and stop building houses at Quidi Viçi and Merrymeeting Road that poor people cannot reach.

Let the Health Inspector visit the Slaughter House on the Cockpit Road and he will see a sight to make him weep.

Yours truly, VOTER.

Lincoln

The raising of the statue of Abraham Lincoln in front of Westminster Abbey and its unveiling yesterday are not just passing compliments to another people or expressions of a temporary admiration. Lincoln belongs to English-speaking people as the Abbot does, as Shakespeare does. His phrases are part and parcel of the language; and yet more his thoughts, his overwhelming faith in liberty, and the will of the community whose servant he was, even in his most autocratic moments. Even his immortal decree banning slavery is not greater than his work in emancipating all of us from slavery of thought and idea. Did anyone ever better express the straight sense of the race? And on this head alone the more we have of statue or drama or book to remind us of Lincoln the better for all of us.—Daily Mail.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHICH IS THE BEST SPORT.

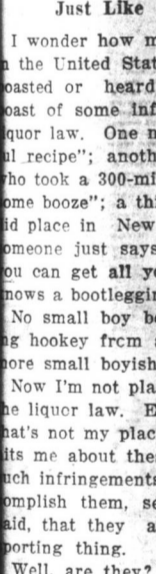

We fell to talking about law breaking the other day. I don't mean big offenses, murder and theft and that sort of thing, but the breaking of little laws, city ordinances, small infractions of liquor laws, and so forth.

The thing that interested me was the way most of those who spoke seemed to look upon any infringement that they could achieve and get away with as something clever, something to be proud of, something sporting.

They say that woman fears the law, but does not respect it. Men may have less fear of the law, but I cannot seem to see that they have any more respect.

Just Like Small Boys. I wonder how many men there are in the United States who have not boasted or heard an acquaintance boast of some infringement of the liquor law. One man has "a wonderful recipe"; another knows a man who took a 300-mile auto trip "to get some booze"; a third tells of a splendid place in New York where "if someone just says you are all right you can get all you want"; a fourth knows a bootlegging doctor, etc., etc.

No small boy boasting about playing hooky from school ever seemed more small boyish than these men. Now I'm not planning to talk about the liquor law. Even if I wanted to, that's not my place. But here's what I think about these and all other such infractions—the men who accomplish them, seem to think, as I said, that they are doing a very sporting thing.

Well, are they? Ten On a Desert Island. Suppose ten men were wrecked on a desert island and had banded together and made certain rules for the common good, which would be the better sport, the man who transgresses every chance he could get, or the man who kept them as long as they remained an agreement? And what is all law and all civil-

Premier and Poland.

"Poland is the lynch-pin of the Treaty of Versailles," as Mr. Churchill said picturesquely in an article in yesterday's London Evening News. Yet if the armistice terms which the Bolsheviks have proposed to Poland are correctly reported, Lenin and Trotsky are attempting, in collusion with their secret allies, the Germans, to smash that "lynch-pin."

This is not a manoeuvre which the British Government can tolerate for a moment. In the Note of July 11, to Lenin, the British Government stated:

"If Soviet Russia, despite its repeated declarations . . . intends to take action hostile to Poland in its own territory, the British Government and its Allies would feel bound to assist the Polish nation with all the means at their disposal."

By this declaration the British Government assumed a heavy responsibility, and incurred special obligations to Poland which it can by no possibility evade. It has bound itself, if the Bolshevik terms are as reported, to give the Poles all the aid in its power. It has bound itself, that is to say, to help them with arms, munitions, and aircraft, for it has no troops to send. The destruction of Poland would mean that the Treaty of Versailles had been torn up and that Germany had won the peace. There never was a moment which demanded wiser statesmanship. Yet in face of Mr. Bonar Law's declaration in the House of Commons on Tuesday, that "negotiations with the Soviet Government must be futile" unless the British prisoners in Russia and at Baku are released, it is reported that the Bolshevik trade mission is about to return to London though those prisoners are still in misery. If this news is true, then our Government has been guilty of the most lamentable weakness, and has disgracefully failed in its duty to the British victims in Bolshevik hands.—Daily Mail, July 29.

EVIL TIMES. Oh, these are crucial times, my friends; each day presents its warning; and every time the night descends we think there'll be no morning. Our statesmen rag us from the stump, until they're in a lather, and say we're going to the dump, where all the bow-wows gather. Our sacred rights are trodden flat, our bulwarks badly shaken, and if we don't do this or that we're bound to lose our bacon. It is the bogie, gray and old, of Presidential seasons, the wrath that makes our feet grow cold, and undermines our reasons. At other times we do not think of chaos, in our hurry; our bulwarks may be on the blink, but we don't pause to worry. The country seems to slide along, and nothing yet has wrecked it, and if its works are badly wrong, we simply don't detect it. And then we put up candidates to cop the White House honor, and these potential magistrates, insist the land's a goner. If 't'other fellow wins the prize, becomes the nation's master, then we'll confront, with startled eyes, all kinds of black disaster. Once in four years we get this scare, when candidates assemble; we walk the edges of despair, and wring our hands and tremble.

All prices are marked in plain figures at Smallwood's Big Shoe Sale.—August 16

LONDON GOSSIP.

THE KING AND QUEEN.

LONDON, July 10th, 1920.
The departure of the King and Queen and Princess Mary from Euston Station on their journey to Edinburgh was marked by a number of unrehearsed incidents. The King and Queen were at the station fully ten minutes before time, and took great interest in the impromptu reception given them by several hundred youngsters who were waiting for a train which was to take them for a country excursion. Some waved cricket stumps and bats, others their butterfly nets. All cheered their best, and the King and Queen were obviously delighted. The Court will be away from London for a fortnight, and in the meantime Edinburgh, the Clyde, the Isle of Man, and Wales will be visited in turn. Most of the time after Edinburgh will be spent on the Royal yacht, which is already off the Scottish coast.

RE-OPENING OF THE TATE.

At last the Tate Gallery, which is situated not very far from Westminster Abbey, is to be re-opened to the public after having been closed since the early days of the war. Many changes will be discerned by those whose memories take them back to the gallery in 1915. The gallery is being gradually converted from a place exclusively given to modern British art to a gallery of British art in which the development of the national school from the time of Hogarth can be studied up to the present day. The finest example of the British masters, however, will be shown at Trafalgar Square (the National Gallery), but on the other hand, the Tate has received many pictures that were formerly at the National Gallery. Thus we shall be able to study the eighteenth century in gallery 1, Blake and early English water colors in gallery 2, Constable, Crome, Cotman, Wilkie, and Ward, and artists up to 1850 in gallery 3, the Pre-Raphaelites in galleries 4 and 5, and the Turners in the Turner wing. Since the closing of the gallery a remarkable number of important new pictures have been acquired by the Tate, chiefly examples by Alfred Stevens and the Pre-Raphaelites, some of which have not been exhibited for fifty years.

THE NEW SILLY STORY.

Like the story of the German government with the bombs in her trunk, the silly story comes in the first instance from the Garden Suburb, but other versions of it reach me from other parts. A lady in the Garden Suburb who had forgotten to take the poker out of the fire until it was red-hot had just noticed it and drawn it out when she heard a sound behind her and found a man in a mask in the room. She was alone in the house. As the man came towards her she pushed at him instinctively with the poker, which struck him on the wrist and burnt him. The robber, with a cry, dashed away and disappeared. Much shaken, the lady went to the nearest house and asked the lady if her husband could come, as a burglar had been in the house. The lady said that her husband could not come just now, as he had just burnt his wrist rather badly. The poker lady, after thinking it over, telephoned to the police. The man was arrested, and the swag of five other burglaries, in the district was discovered. Of the other versions the one I like best comes from Fulham, a south-western suburb of London. Three maiden ladies lived in a flat, and the couple next door became friendly, the man offering assistance at any time they might need it. One of the sisters was alone in the house, and had over-heated her curling-tongs when she heard a sound. She went to the door and saw a hand coming through the letter box and groping for the handle of the door. The lady pressed the hot tongs on the wrist of the intruder, and the hand disappeared. After that she fainted away, and on recovery she remembered the kind people in the next flat and rushed to their door. When it was opened she went in, and then saw the man binding up his wrist. Then there is a Finchley variety of the story, where the robber fell through the skylight and cut his wrist and ran away. The story in its main lines is, of course, quite an old one, but it has got new life and has taken the place of the various circumstantial and convincing stories about the letter from a survivor of the Hampshire, then a prisoner in Germany, saying that Lord Kitchener was in the same prison camp.

AUSTRALIAN COAL FOR EUROPE.

I have had a talk with an Australian official who is intimately acquainted with the export trade of the Commonwealth in coal regarding the transaction made by a Middlesbrough firm, whereby vast quantities of coal are to be shipped from Australia to Sweden within the next six months. My informant has grave doubts as to the permanent economic possibility of fetching coal from Australia to any part of Europe at a reduction in cost as compared with British prices for export of coal to Sweden or any other country in Europe. The merchant vessels belonging to the Commonwealth Government are more than fully occupied with the other and normal branches of Australia's export trade to Europe, and they are not likely at any time to be available for the transport of coal. Special steamers will require to be chartered for the coal trade, and the time taken to cover the voyage, which, it is said, could hardly be less regularly than two and a half months, would greatly increase the cost. Officially in Commonwealth circles the proposal is characterized as utopian. But the supply of Australia's coal is relatively unlimited, and developments in the direction of export are anticipated, especially by the Queensland Government. In the past coal has been exported to countries within conveniently economic range of the Australian coal-fields and seaports.

ENGLISH HORSEMANSHIP.

Walter Winans stated publicly the other day that "the knowledge and love of horses is extinct in England nowadays," and that "with the exception of a few of our cavalrymen riding is deteriorating in this country." This is his considered opinion; given after watching the brilliant performances of the foreign officers who were winning all before them at the International Horse Show, and it is challenged by a large number of Englishmen who have some authority to speak. While the great skill of the Continental officers at Olympia is admitted, it is pointed out that show-racing riding is an art in itself which has never been practised to any great extent by Englishmen, who prefer to hunt or play polo. On the other hand, Continental officers have always specialised in it. They have no facilities to hunt, they do not play much polo, and it is their greatest recreation. This show-racing riding, which demands long training of both man and horse, is a feature of the training of all the Continental cavalry schools. It is, in fact, a drill. It is not specialised in at the British cavalry schools or with the Royal Horse Artillery, and officers do not get the same facilities to become as perfect as the Continental rivals to whom they have had to give best at Olympia. Englishmen regard the true test of horsemanship as the ability to pilot a horse safely and without unduly distressing him over a severe hunting country. If Mr. Winans wants an object-lesson, let him go abroad and watch an amateur rider's steeplechase, and then compare the horsemanship shown with that displayed at an English race meeting.

JAPAN IN THE MELTING POT.

Japanese opinion in London is very concerned with the scant but disturbing news received during the past few weeks from Eastern Siberia. The military censorship in Japan is very stringent, and there is more than a suspicion that it is being used by the army chiefs to propagate their own views to the exclusion of political and civilian opinion generally which, I am told, is energetically opposed to the desire of the militarists for the permanent occupation of Russian or ex-Russian territory. The average Japanese now thinks in terms of commercial rather than of territorial expansion. The country is becoming the world's carrier in all the Eastern seas, even as Germany just before the war, and regards military adventures as unremunerative work. There is, in fact going on in the Japan of to-day very much the same struggle as was being waged between the German militarists and peaceful penetrators during the quarter of a century prior to the cataclysm of 1914. Such, at least, is the opinion of a very distinguished Japanese personality now in London.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

CODFISH.—There is nothing doing this week in dried codfish. There are only five or six cargoes more of old to go out from St. John's, chiefly Brazil, and West Indies fish. There is as yet nothing absolutely definite as regards the price of new fish Shore or Labrador. The exact figure will depend on the size of the catch, although $11 and $9 are spoken of for Shore. The small quantity of new that has so far come has not taken these values, as the quantity was very small.

The Shore catch, it is said, is so far less than half of an average year, and this should run up the price later on. The fishery, however, is being followed up in most places by hook and line men, and the catch will no doubt show up much better in October. The Labrador fishery from Battle Harbor down to Helton inclusive is very good, but there is no news yet from the flotilla north of Cape Harrison.

COD OIL.—There are very few transactions to record. Some small lots have been sold during the past week at $225 per ton, but the general opinion seems to be that it would not be wise to reckon upon a value of over $200 per ton, except for small lots marketed immediately. There is no certainty that even this price can be maintained when the bulk of the new oil is ready.

COD LIVER OIL.—The new catch of cod liver oil is coming in at lower figures, and is said to be of the highest quality. Norwegian oil is held at $70.00 @ $72 per barrel and Newfoundland at $65.00 @ $70.00 per barrel. Newfoundland cod oil continues steady at $115 per gallon with limited demand.

Prices are lower on larger supplies. As a result of the bigger catch and yield of oils, Newfoundland oil is down to $55.00 a barrel on the spot, while $70.00 can be done for Norwegian.—Dry Trade Weekly.

LOBSTERS.—This week there were 52 cases of new pack lobsters shipped by the S.S. Rosalind, equal to about $30,000 in value. The fishery is about over in Newfoundland and the catch is about 12,000 cases. The price is at a standstill of $25 per case since June. Dealers here do not think the price will advance this season. Some of the shipments that went in the Rosalind will be sold in Bond at New York for France and other continental parts. Most of the Bonne Bay catch is still held for better prices.

PORK.—The immense stock of pork products, which through lack of export demand, are still accumulating in the American Packing plants, and distribution points are having the inevitable result of forcing declines to new low levels. In fact last figures show that American stocks are of record proportion. The great falling off in the export movement has not been offset by corresponding increase in the domestic distribution. The outlook indicates further decline unless by development abroad occur in the nature of an export demand, which is present seems unlikely. The following local quotations are now ruling: Ham Butt $56.00, Short Cut near $46, Mess Pork (to arrive) about $40.

BEEF.—Recent market advice shows that the absorption of Beef, both for export and domestic consumption, reflects a better demand than in the case of Pork products. For the year ending June 30th, the total slaughter shows a shortage of 1,500,000 cattle, compared with the dull in sympathy with Pork, but prices are unchanged. Local prices are for Boneless $27.50 to $30.00, according to quality, Packet $32.00, Plate $27, Special Family $35.00.

SUGAR.—The local situation regarding sugar can show no change, as fluctuations are rendered impossible by the fixed prices arranged by the Food Control Board. While the intentions of the Board in speculating on a six months supply were laudable still even experts will frequently make mistakes. The fixed wholesale price of granulated is now 28 1/2 cents per pound, and to-day, according to dealers, it can be imported and sold here for 23 cents.

FLOUR.—During the week a stiffening of grain prices generally, was called here from Chicago. This reversal of conditions is attributed to war rumors in Eastern Europe. Throughout July the tendency of wheat was downward, and declines as low as 40 cents a bushel were registered. The future of the market will be governed by political developments in Europe. If the war clouds roll away, it is reasonable to expect a resumption of conditions favorable to the consumer. Prices in the local market are: Best grades $17.00 wholesale; other qualities $17.25.

MOLASSES.—The "Madeline Constance" arrived from Barbados this week to Job Bros., Ltd., with 780 puncheons and 34 barrels of molasses for different consignees. This puts the total so far, up to 6,515 puncheons, and the few other cargoes to arrive should make the total about 7,000 puncheons. This will be 35 per cent. short of normal. Fancy molasses in the puncheon is selling wholesale for $1.70 per gallon. Special sales and cash transactions have been made this week at $1.60 per gallon.

POTATOES.—No new potatoes in yet; some are due from New York next week. Local grown will not be in the market till the first of September in any quantity. The old are practically exhausted, and this week were rushed out at $10.00 per barrel. The local crop will be good, and to-day they never looked better at this season.

Britain is Ready.

So much has been written during the last six years of the war that was to end all wars that it is difficult to realize that once again, after less than two years of peace, Britain and France stand at the brink of another great conflict. There is bustle and activity at the British War Office and at the Admiralty these days, and the comforting messages are flashed across to us that the fleet is ready and the army awaits orders for the despatch of its divisions.

To-day Premier Millerand and Lloyd George meet in conference again at Boulogne, and if Soviet Russia persists in its attitude of insincerity and defiance the war clouds will burst over Europe once more. Against such a contingency the world fervently hopes, for after the destruction and suffering of the Great Armageddon the Allies have little stomach for more fighting.

Yet of the justness of the Allied cause there can be no doubt. The Allies are pledged to support Poland not only in honor, but because a devastated and a dispirited Poland would let in the floods of Bolshevism and the seeds of discontent would find a fertile soil. Poland demands the right to national existence in return for the crimes that were committed by greedy politicians against her one hundred and fifty years ago. If self-determination means anything, Poland surely has the right to self-expression. For centuries she was a powerful state, founded on ideals of democracy which were far in advance of the aims of her neighbors. She had her own language and her own literature, her own customs and her own culture, and the oppression of an autocratic state could not quench her national spirit. After a century and a half of such oppression Poland saw her opportunity and her state was recreated at the conference table at Paris. The Allies who made such a recreation possible cannot leave her in the lurch in the hour of her tribulation.

I may be that the storm clouds will pass and that the silver lining of peace will be visible in the next few days. If they are to vanish, Soviet Russia will have to abandon the attitude of hypocrisy and of insincerity which has marked her conduct since the suggestion of armistice negotiations were first mooted two weeks ago.

Soviet Russia has used every subterfuge to enable her to continue the war. She wants to see Warsaw in the dust in order that she may reward the patriots who have flocked to the banner of Russia under the call of invasion.

A beaten and humbled Poland would give Soviet Russia, a new lease of life. France sees this clearly and is in favor of the strongest measures. On Britain rests the chief responsibility and the message comes that "Britain is ready."—Montreal Daily Star.

Why Brides Wear Veils.

CUSTOMS BLENDING IN MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

Even in this dull, materialistic age there are few to whom a wedding will not conjure up some memories, sweet or bitter, and intermingled with superstition and romance.

The time is far distant when even the most matter-of-fact bride would resent the disappearance of certain marriage customs, for, if superstition be justifiable at all, it is at weddings.

Take the wedding-rings, for instance, which is always worn on the third finger of the left hand, because, according to superstition, a certain small artery proceeds straight from the heart to the termination of that finger.

Another explanation is that at one time the custom was for the bridegroom to place the ring on the thumb of the bride with the words: "In the name of the Father," changing it to the first finger with "and of the Son," to the second finger with "and of the Holy Ghost," and then to the third, where he let it remain, with an "Amen."

The First Cake.

The custom of wearing a wedding-veil is one of the most widely adopted in the world. Long years ago a bride went to the marriage ceremony with her hair hanging over her face, and it is from this custom that the wedding-veil is supposed to have originated.

Eating a special cake at weddings is a custom that is very ancient. The early Romans broke a cake over the bride's head as a symbol of plentifulness. In the Middle Ages hundreds of guests were entertained at wedding-feasts, which lasted several days. A huge pile of small, richly-flavoured cakes were heaped at the head of the table before the bride and groom.

After kissing each other over them for luck, these cakes were broken into squares over the bride's head, and were then scrambled for by the guests and carried away to bring luck. After a time the idea was conceived of making the cakes in one mass and icing them, and that was the first wedding-cake.

The custom of throwing a shoe after the bride for luck is a survival of an old Bible custom, when a shoe was taken off as a token that certain rights of possession were surrendered. At one time women were considered the property of their father or nearest male relative, and a Saxon husband hung a slipper—then a symbol of authority—in a prominent place in the bride's home.

Where the "Best Man" Came In.
In the East, still, a Jewish father, on the marriage of his daughter, presents a shoe to the bridegroom as a token that he yields up his rights in her.

In early days when force reigned supreme, the Anglo-Saxon lover procured his bride by simply lying in wait for her, clubbing her, and dragging her off. As the lady sometimes was pursued by her friends, the lover would generally have a friend to help him draw them off in another direction, or to fight them. This friend is probably the origin of "best man."

Though a bride's attire may be varied, in some rural districts in Yorkshire neither blue nor green must be worn by her, both colours being considered particularly unlucky. The saying goes:

"If dressed in blue,
She's sure to rue."

There, too, the custom prevails of presenting the bride on her arrival on the threshold of her house with a cake on a plate. A piece of this she will eat, throwing the remainder over her shoulder as typical of the hope that they would always have plenty with something to spare.

Races used to be run for ribbons after a wedding ceremony in some villages—the proud winner receiving his trophy, with a kiss as an additional reward, from the bride.

Nowadays this is generally claimed by the best man after the marriage service.—Answers.

Five Meals Not Enough For Him, Says Wm. Mercer

Appetite is Fine And He Does Three Times As Much Work Since Taking Tanlac, States N. F. Farmer.

"Now that Tanlac has put me into such good shape, I can do more work in one day than I used to be able to do 'in three,' recently declared William Mercer, well-known farmer, living on the Thorburn Road, near St. John's, Nfld.

"I was troubled with indigestion for fifteen years; and of late it got so bad I couldn't eat any sort of solid food without being doubled up with pain afterwards. I was always having headaches that almost drove me distracted and at times became so dizzy that I actually staggered. If I tried to walk up a hill like Prescott Street, my heart would beat like a trip-hammer and my breath come in short gasps and I would have to stop every few yards and have a rest. I had such pains across the back I couldn't do anything but light work around the farm, and also had a lot of rheumatism in my arms and legs. I often went all night without getting a wink of sleep and just felt tired and worn-out all the time.

"A friend of mine seeing the awful fix I was in, urged me to try Tanlac, so I went down to Connors' drug store and bought a bottle. Well, sir, it surely was surprising the way that medicine took hold of my troubles. In a short time I had such an appetite I couldn't get enough to eat even with five meals a day, and all trouble from indigestion disappeared. I no longer have pains in my back, arms and legs, and sleep so well at night that I get up in the mornings feeling just fine. I can work all day without getting tired and can honestly say I haven't had such good health in years. I want to recommend Tanlac to all who suffer as I did, for I'm sure it will do them good."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv't

He Didn't.

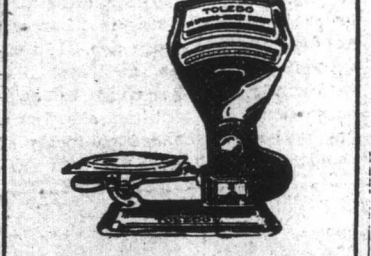

It was a scrubby little room in a scrubby little part of a scrubby little city's suburbs, and the London traveler didn't approve at all. When he went to wash he found that there was no water for the basin, no soap to wash with, and no towel to dry himself with. So he rang. Five minutes' interim bringing no answer, he rang again and then again and again, until his arm ached. At the end of twenty minutes a waiter of forbidding aspect opened the door. "Did you ring?" he inquired in a bass rumbling voice. "Of course I did!" snapped the London visitor. "Well," snaped the waiter, as he withdrew, "don't do it again! You'll wake the missis."

Naturally!

It was a hot afternoon, and the people in the park were more inclined to sit in shady nooks than listen to the orator. But he persevered. "We are on the downward path!" he shouted, anarily. "We are spending beyond our income! Soon we shall be bankrupt! What will you do then?"

Dramatic pause, broken by a few snores. "I warn you, you will be like the Prodigal Son—glad to eat the food that the swine did eat. But"—he gazed about him, furiously—"that will come to an end! And what will you do then?"

A sleepy voice from the shade of the tree answered his question. "Eat the pigs!" it said.

In Memoriam.

MRS. MARK CHAPLIN.

The passing of Mrs. Amelia Jane Chaplin whilst on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Chetwynd, at Ocean Park, Maine, U.S.A., has inspired genuine sorrow. Mrs. Chaplin was a lady whose influence was uniformly for good. Quietly and unobtrusively she was ever foremost in good works. With large sympathies her generous heart responded to all calls. Nor did she wait these. It was sufficient for her to know that there was need for her to supply it in full measure. Only those whose great privilege it was to know her, can adequately estimate the good she accomplished in church and philanthropic work. A devoted wife and mother, her sympathies extended beyond the family circle. Kindness and benevolence were her most prominent traits. During recent years she was called to pass through deep waters. Her eldest son, one of the most popular and admired of the professional men of the city, Dr. Herbert Chaplin, was called away in early manhood. Then came the war, and the first of the Regiment to answer the summons was her youngest son, Jack. Later the third son, Dr. Hal, Chaplin, found sepulture with Lord Kitchener at the waters of the Scotch Coast. With breaking heart but splendid courage Mrs. Chaplin faced the future, but her health was undermined. For some months it was feared that recovery might not be, but she rallied and so regained her strength as to be able to visit her daughter in the States. Only a few weeks ago her husband left to rejoin her. But it was not long, and her beautiful and truly Christian life is now merged in the larger life beyond. She leaves to mourn their irreparable loss, her husband, one of St. John's most deservedly popular and generous citizens, one son, Mr. Lloyd Chaplin, and four daughters, Mrs. Mabel Chetwynd, Mrs. Driscoll and the Misses Miriam and Kathleen Chaplin. In their great sorrow a host of relatives and friends here. To Mr. Chaplin and his family we voice the sympathy of the thousands whose privilege and joy it was to know and admire the eldest lady. Mrs. Chaplin was a daughter of the late George Bowden. Mrs. H. Y. Mott is a sister and Mr. W. H. Bowden of Little Bay, are brothers, to whom also sympathy is extended.

B. I. S. Outing.

The first B.I.S. outing in several years will be held at Donovan's on Wednesday next, and the affair is expected to surpass any held previously. A special train will leave town at 3 p.m. and return at midnight. During the afternoon, sports for which valuable prizes will be awarded, will be held, including 100 and 20 yards and quarter mile races, football five and a game of baseball between past and present B.I.S. players. A supper followed by a dance at which the C.C.C. orchestra will furnish the music, will make up an extra good programme. The Sydney baseball players will be amongst the visitors.

INSTANT POSTUM
"There's a Reason"

Through Canadian Eyes.

(By J. R. Smallwood, Halifax Herald.)

FOR ONCE THEY AGREE.

For once, at least, the coal operators and miners of Nova Scotia stand on a subject upon which they can stand with common feeling. These inherently antagonistic forces are as one breath in declaring that Hon. F. B. Carvell's, the fuel commissioner of Canada, statement that there is a shortage of coal in Canada is incorrect and without foundation. Little over a week ago Carvell, making this declaration, imposed an export embargo on coal. The coal operators of Nova Scotia immediately raised a chorus of protestation and the miners joined in with a unanimity which is decidedly unusual. Both declare that there is plenty of coal in Nova Scotia and that, as a result of the embargo, the miners will henceforth have employment for only three and four days a week with the consequent depreciation in pay envelopes. The men are holding protest meetings, and there are ominous mutterings of discontent. Union officials state that there may be a general strike within a very few days. For once, amazing to behold, the operators hardly blame them! Carvell, indeed, seems to have put his foot right into it. A royal commission makes its first sitting on Monday (to-morrow) and all sides of the controversy will give evidence.

RECORD HARVESTER EXCURSIONS.

Record harvester excursions are leaving Nova Scotia for the West this year. One finds nothing to wonder at, either. The pay which they will receive out on the prairies is from $5.00 to $8.00 a day, and their passage out by special trains, costs them $25.00 to Winnipeg. The wheat and other grain crops of Canada are this year well above the average, and from 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels of wheat will be the output. The world cereal output for 1920 will, from all indications and according to reliable estimates, be above the average. In Europe the crops are reported to be very promising, and although it looks at the moment of writing that the world is not to have the enormous stocks of Russian wheat, the crops for the rest of the continent will go a long way toward filling the hole. The American output will be 809,000,000 bushels. That with the Canadian, gives a total of 1,109,000,000 bushels for the North American Continent. With so much wheat it does not appear as if flour will this fall be fetching the fancy prices which the past few years have seen.

CONSERVATISM'S LAST LEGS.

Conservatism seems to be on its last legs in Canada. The Unionist Government at Ottawa is feeling pretty empty around the region of the pit of the stomach, and it will take but slight shaking of their party sloop to send them scurrying to the rails. The truth is, conservatism has been at sea for some time, now, and the trip has not done them any good. Their next tussle with the elements will likely swamp them altogether. On September 21 two bye-elections will be fought—one in Colchester, N.S., and the other in St. John, N.B. For the Federal Government Hon. R. W. Wilmot will contest St. John and Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Colchester. These are the very strongest conservative districts and that is why they were picked. It is not proposed to let them go by acclamation. Both Liberals and Labor-Farmer group will oppose the conservatives, and that there will be hair-tying no one doubts. If the Ottawa Government loses these two seats, it will probably mean a general election. Otherwise the Unionists will likely remain in office until the last moment—1922. The September elections are being looked forward to with great interest.

PROHIBITION IN CANADA.

The result of the referendum in New Brunswick by which overwhelming majorities were recorded against a return to pre-war conditions, and even against the re-establishment of the sale of beer and light wines, may be taken as an indication of the state of public opinion throughout Canada on this important question. Halifax, Aug. 8, 1920.

Keep fish away from other foods if you do not wish them to have a fishy taste.

He hated having his photograph taken, but his wife indirectly, and forced him to undergo the much-dreaded ordeal. When she saw the photograph she cried out in horror, "Oh, George, you have only one button on your coat!" "Thank heavens," replied friend husband, "you've noticed it at last. That's why I had the photograph taken."

Got Busy.
A pessimist and an optimist were discussing life from their different view-points. "I really believe," said the former, "that I could make a better world myself."
"Sure!" returned the optimist; "that's what we are here for. Now let us get to work and do it."

An Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—One of the chief points of interest to the tourist in St. John's is the Museum. One can find there relics of the earliest history of Newfoundland—such as the skeleton of the Red Indian—as well as more recent signs of Newfoundland's aerial ventures like the wheels cast off by Hawker in his trans-Atlantic flight. The person interested in geology can find stones of many kinds from different parts of the world, while the botanist is delighted with a book filled with specimens of plants growing on the island. A valuable museum like this could be very helpful in school work. Days could be appointed for specially conducted parties at children so that they might be instructed about the exhibits of their own land. For instance, there could be forestry days, when trees might be discussed, specimens shown and the uses of the different kinds of wood explained. This would lead up to paper making when the model of Grand Falls could be exhibited. If specimens of the flora of the island were shown to the school children, they might easily be taught to recognize the flowers and to classify them in a few main families. This study of plants would keep the children from picking uselessly the wild flowers, which add so much to the beauty of the scenery near St. John's.

The historiographer of the Museum, Mr. H. F. Shortis, is busy collecting data and is writing the almost forgotten legends of Newfoundland, which will necessarily be more and more interesting to those who study the history of the island. Mr. Shortis is glad to show and to explain the chief features of the Museum, which deserves many visits from the tourists, as well as from the inhabitants of St. John's.

Yours truly,
CELINDA B. ABBOTT.

Household Notes.

Never use a punctured jar rubber. New turnip tops are a tempting salad green. Dainty dryness is an essential of a perfect salad. Serve hollow-handled glass spoons with fruity drinks. In canning, each jar should be thoroughly sterilized. In making an egg-nog, beat white separately until frothy. Never allow meat to stand in water even for a minute. Use a discarded thermometer case for baskins and darners. Novel slip covers are of Turkish towelling, calico and linen. To ripen fruits a little green, wrap in paper separately. Gelatinized fish and fowl are delicious food for midsummer. Fanned chicken is delicious served with currant jelly sauce. Keep flour in a dry place and watch for the little brown weevil. A bit of onion or a sprig of mint gives a delicious flavor to hot peas. Fruit preserved with honey keeps better and retains its bright color. To keep fruits, spread out on shelf so that each stands by itself. Mold tuna fish in ring form and fill the center with a vegetable salad. Stockings will be as smooth as though ironed if shaken while damp. Halve cucumbers lengthwise, boil until tender and fill with creamed fish. For canning, peaches and apricots should be prime ripe, yet not too ripe. After washing peaches, put them carefully so as not to take the bloom off. A cupful of broken walnut meats makes a delicious addition to potato salad. Five to ten minutes should be devoted each morning to cleaning the oil stove. Light salads should be dressed at the table by the hostess with French dressing. Always wash the outside of the milk bottle and keep milk in bottle until used. A delicious filling for tea sandwiches is honey mixed with chopped nut meats. Sweeten fresh sliced pineapple with honey rather than sugar. Flavor with vanilla.
