OUR SMALL SHEET

is the caption of the salutary article of the Thornhill Review, No. 1, published in Thornhill village by Mr. S. E. Horne, formerly well known in Guelph. It is a good-looking little paper, weekly, of twenty columns.

If perseverance can ensure success, the editor and proprietor of the "Review" should have it, for he says, "This is the third time that we have embarked in the publication of a Local Newspaper within the short period of nine years, but unfortunately as yet, with anything but success;" and he quotes the old saying,

"There's luck in odd numbers."

BLACKWASH AND WHITEWASH.

By way of comment on the direful threatening prophecies which have greeted some of his late efforts, Gripes comes out with a cartoon more lively than ever this week.

In the centre foreground is a large bust of Sir

John, on one side are Mr. Geo. Brown,

Mr. Blake, and Mr. Mackenzie, assiduously engaged in blackening the solemn looking image, whilst Mr. E. B. Wood is kneeling on the ground mixing paint with the black stuff. On the other side Sir

John, in judicial wig and robes, is as busily engaged in whitewashing the bust.

Patterson of the Mail and Beatty of the Leader are holding the tub of whitewash, and threatens him with imprisonment if he offends again. All the figures are spiritifully drawn and the likenesses are as good as ever.

INDICATIONS of the coming change of

Guelph Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 28, 1873

Parliament Called.

The Mail says:—
We are authorized to state that Parliament has been called to meet on Thursday, 23rd October. The Governor-General expressed to the deputation who waited upon him on 12th August the hope that the Royal Commission would have performed its work in time to enable him to summon Parliament within ten weeks. The work of the Commission is not yet ended; but it is drawing so near to a close that Ministers have felt justified in advising his Excellency to call Parliament together for the despatch of business on the day stated.

Self Convicted.

Bit by bit we are getting at the truth. It comes slowly, but gradually accumulates. Beaubien contributes a little, Campbell adds a little more, Langevin gives his mite, Sir John yields something, and Sir Hugh is most generous of all. Mr. Huntington stands justified before the people. From the mouths of Sir John and Sir Hugh is his charge sustained: by the very defence of the accused do they stand condemned. Two great facts are already proved. The Ministry demanded and received enormous amounts from Sir Hugh; while Sir Hugh demanded and received the Charter, the Presidency of the Company, and his full conditions of thirty millions of money and fifty millions of acres. Glossed over as these facts may be by the plausibility of Sir Hugh and the assumed candor of Sir Hugh, there is no escape from the position that Sir Hugh paid down large sums to the Ministers, and took up the coveted control of the Pacific Railway, while Sir John and Sir George disbursed the cash they had received from Sir Hugh in attempts to control the elections in Ontario and Quebec. How is it possible to escape the inevitable inference that there was a close connection between these transactions? We pointed out when Sir Hugh's letters were published that there was no actual need to show the existence of a formal bargain in order to prove the truth of Mr. Huntington's charges; and we repeat it now. Is any one so innocent, so simple, as to suppose that there is nothing but a remarkable coincidence in the fact that Sir Hugh gave money to the Ministers, and the Ministers gave the Charter to Sir Hugh? By just such a remarkable coincidence we have seen a passer-by give two cents to a newsboy, and the generous newsboy shortly afterwards present the passer-by with a copy of the daily MERCURY. A Parliamentary Committee will get at more details, show to whom the thousands were handed over by the leaders of the Ministerial party, and ascertain how the balance of Sir Hugh's $360,000 was expended; but it cannot more firmly fix the guilt of systematic political debauchery than do Sir John's own confessions. He admits the "Send me another ten thousand" telegram. In his impudent and damning declaration that he received $45,000 from Sir Hugh for use in the election contests in Ontario, in addition to large amounts raised by western friends—including the Ontario Directors of the Pacific Company, we presume—and that he expended it all in bribery, he clearly established the truth of Mr. Huntington's accusation. Had no other evidence been taken before the Commission, enough was disclosed by the Premier alone to convince honest men of every class and party that the Ministry had sold their official influence and power for an electioneering fund, that the representative of Royalty has been made a cat's paw, and that the virtual control of the affairs of Canada has been handed over to Allan the millionaire for a "monetary consideration." But Sir John does not stand alone in these disclosures. Mr. Campbell, his colleague, endorses his statements, and tells how $45,000 came and went. Mr. Beaubien candidly confesses to an indefinite loan, never to be repaid, of $7,000 from Sir Hugh towards payment of his election expenses, and to the receipt of $1,000 for an unnamed friend. Mr. Langevin, with sanctimonious modesty, admits that he received $42,500 from Sir Hugh, for which, however—and he takes credit to himself—if for this—he refused a compromising receipt! Sir Hugh himself squarely tells how he bled, for the good of his country, to the extent of $162,600, paid to Ministers Macdonald, Cartier, and Langevin, with $17,000 more to Beaubien and others. He adds, too, that the full amount of his outlay was $350,000, but neglected to say—and, of course, was not asked by the Commissioners—how the unexplained sum of about $170,000 was "invested." That it was used with the admitted advances to the Ministry and their supporters of about $180,000, for the purpose of directly or indirectly corrupting constituents, there can be little doubt. Inferior members of the administration were approached and "made right," as we find stated in the McMullen correspondence; the press was bought over, and other machinery was set in motion for the purpose of influencing the elections. How nobody knows better than Sir

Hugh, but upon this point he has not condescended to give particulars. The public has a right to know, and will not rest satisfied until it does know how the unaccounted for $170,000, spent to secure the Charter, was laid out. Parliament owes it to itself and the country to leave no means untried for the purpose of obtaining this information, and will not have properly discharged its duty until it has used every possible effort to ascertain whether any of its members, and if so how many, owe their election to the opening of Sir Hugh Allan's money bags. It must purge itself of the foul disgrace, and by its determined and persistent action in this direction prove that it is really worthy of the confidence of the people. Let the Commission report how and what it may, its work has been done so obviously with desire to conceal the truth and lessen the force of the blow impending over the Ministry, that its labours must be supplemented by those of the Committee. Unintentionally, it has supplied the groundwork for further action, and the whole country now looks to Parliament to inaugurate that fuller investigation immediately after its re-assembling. Canada has its foot upon Public Corruption and through its representatives will stamp it out.

The Intercolonial Railway Loan.

The Mail says that the Finance Minister, Hon. Mr. TILLEY, has successfully placed on the London market a five per cent. loan of two millions sterling. The bids amounted to four millions sterling, and the average premium was four and a half per cent. Interest begins from the first of October.

It is announced that the House of Assembly of Newfoundland has been dissolved, and that the writs for a new election have been issued. The Local Government makes its appeal to the Islanders on the question of Confederation.

The Fire on Saturday.

To the Editor of The Mercury.
Sir: In reading your paper last evening, I noticed an article headed "A Warning." In speaking of the fire on Saturday evening, and noticing the time that elapsed between the first sounding of the alarm and the first jet of water being thrown on the fire, it states that twenty minutes elapsed. To the best of my knowledge, from the time the alarm sounded till the engine began to play was just fifteen minutes. The article states that no doubt excuses will be made for the delay, and says that the best of excuses will be of no avail. When we assembled at the engine house to take out our reels, which ought to have been all in readiness, we found only part of the hose on the reels, some of them being down in the tank in the engine house. If they had been all on the reels, as they ought to have been, half the time would not have elapsed before we would have had them laid down ready for work.

Hoping you will throw the blame on those who deserve it, and not on us,

I remain sir, yours,

A FIREMAN.

Guelph, Sept. 23, 1873.

We think our correspondent is mistaken in saying that only fifteen minutes elapsed. Our time was taken from the town-hall clock.—En.]

The Guelph Fire Company.

To the Editor of The Evening Mercury.

SIR: I notice in your issue of yesterday that you again allude to the way in which our fire company go about their work. Well, sir, I don't wonder at it, for the fact is too glaring to pass unnoticed.

The writer has seen to his sorrow some very large fires, but he has never yet witnessed as much commotion or absence of discipline and order at any fire yet as he did at the one on Saturday last. In the first place, sir, the very man that sounds the alarm seems to be so excited that he can hardly ring the bell fast enough; and although our Wards are divided into fire districts and numbered, none of the inhabitants can tell where the fire is until they hear from some of the company, or run hither and thither until they see for themselves. Now this is wrong, and causes every one interested to be uneasy. It is a very simple matter to sound a rapid alarm for a few moments and then give plainly and distinctly the number of the Ward before repeating the alarm, as only a few seconds can elapse in any case before some one is on the move.

Next, there seems to be all absence of that professional coolness which is so much needed at a time of this kind, which is so admirably carried out in the cities, and which illustrates the correctness of the saying "the more haste the less speed"—as under good management not a moment is lost.

In the next place, sir, in a town like Guelph, where fires are so few, it would be a very good idea for your authorities to raise a false alarm occasionally. The mere idea of a lot of men leisurely getting out a fire-engine—"for practice" is a downright farce, and has a bad effect when necessity for earnest action does arrive. A fire-engine should never be handled unless it can be rattled along at the quietest pace possible. It is expressly constructed and intended for this sort of handling. The writer has seen good results from these false alarms in other places.

The Guelph Fire Company seem to be composed or a fine lot of men, all willing to do their best, but the fact is evident to all that they have too little of that real practice which makes perfect.

I will conclude with hoping that I shall see before long a good sharp fire alarm, which will put every one of the company to their mettle. The cost would be very trifling, and all would be amply in the end.

CHAPTER XI.
WHICH ENDS THE STORY IN SUNSHINE AND PROSPERITY.

Beyond the pure and tender communion of soul and heart which we may take it for granted, characterised their intercourse at this time, we can understand its nature otherwise—the interesting subjects of conversation which inevitably presented themselves, for how much had they to tell each other, especially Philip to Annabel, of the exciting adventures of himself and Jim Potts in America in search of Jerry Just, with the all-important result which had been obtained—information of the marriage, and possession of the marriage certificate. We shall not say how eloquently Annabel thanked him for thus removing the stain which it had been sought to cast upon her parent's memory. That was a service which no words could describe, and no generosity reward.

He had to tell her, likewise, of the providential way in which he had been led to her discovery and deliverance—how it had all come to pass from the insignificant and accidental circumstance of a kitten playing with a ball of wool in Mrs. Langton's room. But for that seemingly trifling occurrence he could never have learned the dreadful fraud that had been practised, and she had been left to die in her despair in the old house at Dugdeton, while the shadow of his grief had never been removed or his mourning turned into joy.

The most painful thing to both of them was the effect which the discovery of the diabolical conspiracy had on Mr. Langton. To the honourable and upright mind of the merchant it was utterly overwhelming. The scene which took place in his private room in Mo'sey Street, when Philip with all possible gentleness broke it to him, was beyond description agonizing. He was prostrated in the dust with horror and shame, one hour of which had upon him the effect of years. The suffering which the fear of bankruptcy had caused him was as nothing to this; and it made Philip's heart bleed to see him bowed to the earth under a weight of woe, which he well knew would never be cast off till he reached the grave.

He sought his wife, but only to tell her that he and she must be strangers for evermore. The guilty woman was made to realize now the enormity of her sin—her unparalleled crime. At first she strove to palliate her conduct by representing the greatness of the temptation, that it was to save him she had done it, to save him as much as much as to secure a husband for herself. It was the old excuse that came faltering from her lips. "The serpent beguiled me and I did eat." But vain and useless was her plea to the untarnished mind of the husband. To him no temptation, however strong, could weigh a feather's weight against a fall so deep, and in the stern and inexorable sentence of excommunication which he pronounced on her, she found the bitterness of the forbidden fruit which she had plucked.

It was Annabel who prevailed to mollify in some degree the husband's curse. The loving forgiving Annabel pleaded for her, and succeeded so far that she was not expelled from her husband's roof and made a spectacle to the world. But while he consented that to save appearances she should remain there, it was to be outside the husband's heart whose affection she had forfeited for ever. And his decree was unalterable that she should be entirely secluded from the world, and from that vain luxurious society in which she had her delight. In this lay the essence of her punishment, for it was to enjoy this splendor that she had concocted her hellish scheme, and yielded to the temptation which had resulted in her sin.

She and her brother Barnard Hayes, the companion and sharer of her guilt, and crime, never met again. Shortly after his flight with Dick Mattocks from Porsley, he departed with his family for Australia; but the ship in which he sailed never reached its destination. In some storm on the central sea the ship must have founders, but where or how will never be known till the day when the sea gives up its dead, and the records of its disasters are fully disclosed. 'Twas thus Barnard Hayes perished, and thus was ended a life which had forsaken the ways of righteousness for the downward path of ever thickening darkness.

The fate of Dick Mattocks was not a whit more enviable. He never more returned to the neighborhood of Porsley or Dugdeton. Learning doubtless of the burning of the old house, and the horrible death which had then overtaken his companion Moll, he took care not to show himself where he would be exposed to the fury of an outraged populace. But he did not abandon the career of vice and crime which he had so long pursued. For a time he led the desperate life of a thief and burglar in Liverpool, but he was taken at last, and escaped the gallows only to be condemned to transportation for life.

HEFFERNAN BROTHERS

Beg to announce that their stock of goods for the Fall and Winter Trade is now complete in every Department. Our importations which are unusually heavy this season, have been carefully selected by Mr. Thomas Heffernan, who has just returned from Europe, where he has purchased extensively from the leading manufacturers of Great Britain and Ireland, France and Germany. DRESS GOODS — We direct particular attention to our display of Dress Goods, which for quantity, quality, and price surpasses anything ever before seen in Guelph. Over one thousand SHAWLS — We are prepared to show over one thousand Shawls of every variety, pattern and color. English Cloths, Scotch and Canadian Tweeds, Gents Furnishings. We show more goods in this department than any three houses in Guelph, and we sell a better Tweed at 75c per yard than can be had at any other establishment at one dollar. In Ready-Made Clothing, Carpets, Blankets and General House Furnishings, our stock is simply immense, completely overshadowing the pretensions of other houses. MILLINERY & MANTLES — Our Show Rooms will be open during the week of the Exhibition. Everything that is novel and fashionable can be seen. Pattern Bonnets, Hats and JACKETS direct from Paris, London and New York.

Noted for Cheap Dry Goods.

The twenty-eighth annual exhibition of the Provincial Agricultural Association opened on Monday in London, under anything but favourable circumstances.

Morning dawned during a thick fog,
which about eleven o'clock formed itself into a drizzling rain. There is a large display of exhibits, and visitors are rapidly arriving in the city.

SAD LOST EX—On the 28th ult., as the wife of Thomas Gibson, M. P., was going out of the door a gust of wind drove it violently against her, throwing her down and fracturing the upper end of the thigh bone. Mrs. Gibson lies in a very precarious state.

The Reason Why.
The reason why the magnificent Retail Grocery Establishments in the Alma Block and on Lower Wyndham Street, belonging to John A. Wood, are so very popular with the intelligent public:—

Because the Goods are all of the best quality.

Because the Prices are invariably the lowest.

Because the Clerks are courteous and obliging.

Because the Stock is the largest to select from.

Because the goods are always clean.

Because the Weights and Measures are always correct.

Because, in fact, the proprietor understands his business, desires to please his customers, makes good use of his capital,
and buys for cash in the best markets,

and always deals liberally with those who honor his stores with their custom:—

These and many other weighty reasons have contributed very largely to make the name of John A. Wood, as connected with the Grocery trade of Guelph, so well known, and his stores so very popular.
