Radio Patriotism In Wales Annoys Scotch Listeners

Peaceful Aberdeen Homes Are Thrown into Turmoil as Odd Words are Heard on Nightly Wave Lengths.

London, June 7.—(By Mail).—The Aberdonians are out of temper and the objects of their annoyance are the Gramplan Mountains, notes "The London Daily News."

The Gramplan Mountains rear their bleak heads in between Aberdeen and Glasgow and continually get in the way of the wireless waves broadcast from the western city.

When an artist steps over the wireless from Glasgow the Aberdeen broadcasters find that "Annie Laurie" has become benighted on Cairngorm and that "Loch Lomond" is wandering forlornly on the steep, step sides of Ben Creran.

For some time Aberdeen has been pondering over it. Broadcasters in the granite city, claiming that their native Highlands would not conform to modern requirements, turned up with the far distant stations and made shift with the Sassenach stuff.

But one night Cardiff, excited by an attack of national fervor, projected particularly energetic wave length, and into the peaceful, odd Aberdeen homes there burst a queer jargon:

This was followed by a series of other strange atmospheric disturbances of like nature, and the patriotic Aberdonians took action at once and called a business meeting of broadcast stations.

"This noise ye heard last night," said Elder McVain, who presided, "was a natural electrical disturbance. It was the people of Wales singing their air banks and brasses ere the bonniest in the world!" (up-roar.)

"All that blather," continued the elder, "was just their way of saying 'There's no place like Wales.'" (laughter.)

If they wanted to avoid disasters of this sort in the future, said the elder, they had four courses open to them: To move the Gramplan nearer Cape Wrath.

To lift Glasgow over the Gramplan. To move Aberdeen, or To have a broadcasting station in Aberdeen.

One thing he would ask them, said the elder, was to allow their crystals and valves to associate with low-down Welsh wave lengths. Otherwise, said the elder, they would be "sair forfochen" with their blatherers, and as he was sure none of them wanted that. (Guffaw.)

It was decidedly eventually that the city should ask for a broadcasting station to itself.

THOS. BELL IS NEW TREASURER

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Health Centre was held yesterday afternoon, with Hon. H. A. McKeown presiding. Thomas Bell was appointed treasurer, succeeding A. C. Skelton, who had resigned. It was reported that during the month of June 876 patients had been treated at the clinics, 265 of which were new. Great work was being done at the Lady Byng camp.

The clinics held included the Victorian Order of Nurses well baby clinic, at which 109 babies attended; the tuberculosis clinic, which had 410 cases; the pre-natal with two cases; the dental clinic with 208 cases which treated 189 children, the eye clinic at which twenty-two children were treated and glasses prescribed for fifteen, and the social hygiene clinic at which nine new cases were received, three discharged and ninety-six carried on.

Dr. Roberts spoke of this summary of the month's work as specially gratifying to him personally and amply repaying any of his effort to establish the Health Centre. Dr. William Warwick commented on the remarkable popularity of the dental clinic and if it assumed larger proportions it might be necessary to have a full time dentist. In the month there were 208 extractions, thirty fillings, eight treatments and forty-three examinations in the dental clinic.

The purchase of the winter's supply of coal for $274.78 was authorized. It was estimated that there would be $1,047.11 on hand to carry on the work and that this would last about four months. A tag day has been arranged for the second Saturday in October, and it is hoped to have a Health Centre benefit ball game.

Miss H. T. McKeljohn told of the opening of the Day Camp for under-nourished children which is established at Seaside Park and of Lady Byng's visit there. Mrs. G. Wilford, secretary of the National Geographic Society, showed how little we know about the world we live in.

"Asir is on the Arabian shore of the Red Sea and there are told the children of Israel traversed that shore," says the bulletin, "and he exists there with little change probably from the time of that interesting event. Phoenicians and Venetians and Portuguese have coasted alongside its barren, hot sands."

Asir is in most parts of Arabia, the people of Asir are Mahometans, and fanatical Mahometans at that. Travellers are not welcome, especially are "Christians" not wanted. But the intolerance of the people of Asir is not reserved for Christians alone. Those who are fellow Moslems and who were in addition representatives of the Caliph, make little headway in Asir. Nominally it was part of the Turkish Empire, as was most of the remainder of Arabia, but the United States rendered their independence.

"Along the Red Sea in Asir is a strip of lowlands, twenty to thirty miles wide, known as the 'tehamah,' barren, hot and fever ridden. In appearance it is not unlike the repellent Pacific Coast of Mexico's Lower California. Even in April the thermometer registered as high as 107 degrees in shade in the 'tehamah' and in midsummer it is almost as hot as America's famous Death Valley."

"The inner edge of the 'tehamah' is marked by low mountains, some 2,000 feet high. Further inland are the country's highest peaks, rising to 6,000 and even 8,000 feet. Still further inland the mountains give way to a high plateau that extends into central Arabia."

"Even the Emir of Asir, nominal ruler of the realm, is without authority in much of his wild country. He is not unlike the repellent Pacific lower mountains and a portion of the highest region. In much of the highlands the inhabitants do not acknowledge his authority. This is especially true of the nomads on the edge of the great central desert."

"When Italy was at war with Turkey in 1911-12 she subsidized the Emir of Asir, who was glad enough to make active his slumbering enmity toward Turkey. During the World War, the Emir was one of the numerous Arab chieftains who nominally joined the Allies against the Central Powers. He received supplies from Great Britain, but accomplished little, never even dislodging the few Turkish garrisons in Asir."

Names of 84,324 heroes who died in the World War repose in a vault in the Allied Memorial Centre, Oakland, Calif., says an "Associated Press" dispatch. The memorial, a majestic monument of steel and stone, was erected on the banks of Lake Merritt, in the heart of Oakland, for the purpose of holding the names of every allied soldier, sailor or nurse killed in the World War.

Dr. Leroy F. Herrick of Oakland, who created and maintains the memorial at his own expense, states that in time he hopes to have the names of every participant of the World War in the huge vault of the Allied Memorial Centre.

Dr. Herrick stated that the Canadian authorities have promised to have a complete list of the soldier and sailor dead of Canada in his hands soon. This, the memorial founder stated, would be a departure from the usual method of depositing the names.

"I planned and since 1919 have carried out my plan of holding patriotic services for the depositing of names on each Memorial Day and each Armistice Day," said Dr. Herrick. "However, I do not want to keep the entire Canadian list out of the vault until next November 11, and I am going to break the rule of procedure this once."

"I do not know how long it is going to take me to get the names of the Australian and New Zealand lists in time for next Armistice Day, but I do not know how long it will take to get complete lists from England, Belgium, Italy and other Allies. The names in the vault today are:

Asir, on Red Sea, Has Advanced But Little in Centuries

Few Have Traveled Overland in Arabia; People Retain Many Customs of Days of Ancient Past.

The Emir of Asir is dead, has been buried in his capital at Bahia and is now duly succeeded by his son. The Western world did not learn of the event until weeks after it happened.

The passing of the old ruler of a principate that probably not one person in a hundred could "place" on its proper continent will hardly cause a ripple on the surface of world affairs, but it serves excellently, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society, to show how little we know about the world we live in.

"Asir is on the Arabian shore of the Red Sea and there are told the children of Israel traversed that shore," says the bulletin, "and he exists there with little change probably from the time of that interesting event. Phoenicians and Venetians and Portuguese have coasted alongside its barren, hot sands."

Asir is in most parts of Arabia, the people of Asir are Mahometans, and fanatical Mahometans at that. Travellers are not welcome, especially are "Christians" not wanted. But the intolerance of the people of Asir is not reserved for Christians alone. Those who are fellow Moslems and who were in addition representatives of the Caliph, make little headway in Asir. Nominally it was part of the Turkish Empire, as was most of the remainder of Arabia, but the United States rendered their independence.

"Along the Red Sea in Asir is a strip of lowlands, twenty to thirty miles wide, known as the 'tehamah,' barren, hot and fever ridden. In appearance it is not unlike the repellent Pacific Coast of Mexico's Lower California. Even in April the thermometer registered as high as 107 degrees in shade in the 'tehamah' and in midsummer it is almost as hot as America's famous Death Valley."

"The inner edge of the 'tehamah' is marked by low mountains, some 2,000 feet high. Further inland are the country's highest peaks, rising to 6,000 and even 8,000 feet. Still further inland the mountains give way to a high plateau that extends into central Arabia."

"Even the Emir of Asir, nominal ruler of the realm, is without authority in much of his wild country. He is not unlike the repellent Pacific lower mountains and a portion of the highest region. In much of the highlands the inhabitants do not acknowledge his authority. This is especially true of the nomads on the edge of the great central desert."

"When Italy was at war with Turkey in 1911-12 she subsidized the Emir of Asir, who was glad enough to make active his slumbering enmity toward Turkey. During the World War, the Emir was one of the numerous Arab chieftains who nominally joined the Allies against the Central Powers. He received supplies from Great Britain, but accomplished little, never even dislodging the few Turkish garrisons in Asir."

Names of 84,324 heroes who died in the World War repose in a vault in the Allied Memorial Centre, Oakland, Calif., says an "Associated Press" dispatch. The memorial, a majestic monument of steel and stone, was erected on the banks of Lake Merritt, in the heart of Oakland, for the purpose of holding the names of every allied soldier, sailor or nurse killed in the World War.

Dr. Leroy F. Herrick of Oakland, who created and maintains the memorial at his own expense, states that in time he hopes to have the names of every participant of the World War in the huge vault of the Allied Memorial Centre.

Dr. Herrick stated that the Canadian authorities have promised to have a complete list of the soldier and sailor dead of Canada in his hands soon. This, the memorial founder stated, would be a departure from the usual method of depositing the names.

"I planned and since 1919 have carried out my plan of holding patriotic services for the depositing of names on each Memorial Day and each Armistice Day," said Dr. Herrick. "However, I do not want to keep the entire Canadian list out of the vault until next November 11, and I am going to break the rule of procedure this once."

"I do not know how long it is going to take me to get the names of the Australian and New Zealand lists in time for next Armistice Day, but I do not know how long it will take to get complete lists from England, Belgium, Italy and other Allies. The names in the vault today are:

How much a man is like old shoes? For instance, each a soul may lose, Both have been tanned; both are made tight. By cobblers; both get left and right; Both need a mate to be complete, And both are made to go on feet. They both need healing; oft are sold, And both in time turn all to mold. With shoes the last is first; with men The first shall be the last, and when The shoes wear out, they're mended new. When men wear out, they're mended too! They both are trod upon, and both Will tread on others—nothing loath; Both have their ties, and both incline; When polished, in the world to shine.

THE SOMETIMES REVERED SENATE

Out west they are talking about Senate reform as if the Upper Chamber could be abolished overnight. The Senate's hold on life is not so fragile as all that. Not by any means. As soon as a man is transplanted to the second chamber he is open to a severe attack of longevity. And it is so with the Senate. It is threatened much, but it remains not only serene but confident, and at times even a bit aggressive.

The Senate needs reforming to the extent that it shall not be able to kill any decision of the House of Commons, which is elective and so represents the power and the will of the people. In time the complete power of the House will be vindicated, but anyone who expects that to be done in a hurry, however desirable it may be, is going to be disappointed. There is no reason to be afraid of the House, yet some people are afraid of it particularly if they are opposed to the government of the day. There are men in the House, in all parties, who entertain the notion that they should be in the Senate and that some day they will be. Usually they say "Well, about it publicly but much about it to the powers that be or that are likely to be. These men are not yelling for the blood of the Senate. They want it to live. They may favor clipping wings, but they are not violent about it. They are not in a hurry. They want to find the old Red Chamber there of themselves when the right time comes—and for most of these aspirants the right time will never come. The vacancies are few and far between and the number of applicants is immense. There are never enough places to go round, but there is a brand of office seeker that never loses hope.

The Senate will remain, and it will neither have equality with the House nor power to defeat the popular will as expressed by the Commons. But the Senate cannot become a mere rubber stamp or there would be no excuse for its existence. The rights which may properly be exercised by the Senate are said to be the right to be consulted, the right to propose and discuss measures in the public interest, and the right to warn. In the end it will be found that the Commons cannot hurry through important legislation in order that the Senate may debate it at length, and perhaps hold it up at the last minute. In such cases the government through the blame on the Senate—and properly—both the country replies that it cannot punish the Senate in cases where punishment is deserved.

The Upper Chamber in a sense holds its future in its own hands. If it future so softly the character of the reform worked out will not be drastic; but if it gets into the habit of obstructing and trying to defeat the popular will, the government and the House of Commons may really proceed along lines such as would kill off a score of the older Senators from shock.

CANADIAN GOLD

New Brunswick does not yet appear in the gold-mining statistics—a mere case of pleasure deferred, doubtless. The Canadian gold mines produced gold to the tune of $20,116,050 in 1922, the highest on record with the exception of 1900 and an increase of thirty-six per cent. over 1921. The record made in 1900 was due to the fact that the Yukon that year reached its highest yield. Gold is reckoned at $20.67 per fine ounce, says the Bureau of Statistics which gives the 1922 returns by provinces. The Yukon has fallen from its once high place indeed, being now third on the list:

	Male	Female
Nova Scotia	92	—
New Brunswick	2	—
Prince Edward Island	2	—
Quebec	571	14
Ontario	2151	77
Manitoba	53	32
Saskatchewan	1773	38
Alberta	866	3
British Columbia	880	8
Total	6963	136

The Maritime Provinces have today more hunters and trappers than Mr. Gibbon's 1911 statistics indicate but the 1921 official figures were not available, he says, in his Canadian Forestry Magazine article. In this region the men have a monopoly of that sort of work and will have no trouble in retaining it. The New Brunswick woman would regard with some amazement the fact that seventy-seven of her Ontario sisters were hunters and trappers even before fur prices went to the high level.

London newspapers foreshadow the British reparations note. They surmise that Germany's ability to pay will be submitted to an international commission, that France will be asked to reduce the scope of its occupation of the Ruhr if Germany abandons passive resistance, and that Britain will offer to cancel the war debts due her from France, Italy and Belgium. If these indeed are the British proposals they will make it very difficult for France to refuse to come half way, though the French Premier has served notice that he will not budge an inch.

One of President Harding's advisers tells him that the country is not Democratic but is a Republican. He dare not believe it radical. For the moment his only hope of comfort lies in believing that his advisers don't know. And they don't. It is too far ahead of the draw.

Retail food prices are rising in the United States, and there are more signs that the industrial boom is on the wane. All of which should be noted carefully by Maritime Province people who have been thinking of crossing the border.

AS SAILS A SHIP.

(New York Sun.)
As foam that flowers on the bow
In tangled sprays of fairy bloom
Must break against the winds that blow,
And spill its loveliness in spume—
White petals of a moment's life
Scattered upon the steadfast blue,
A larges said to ocean strife,
And e'er before its beauty's through—
So dreams that pile their lacy crest
Before the mad rushing days,
Must break and sink in hopes unblest
Beneath the wake of traveled ways.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

Just One Way.
Mrs. A.—You say you kept a cook for a whole month? How in the world do you manage it?
Mrs. B.—We were cruising on a houseboat and the cook's swim.

Chaper On.
"Yes, we've changed the furniture around and imagine we are living in a new house."

Had a Real Attack.
Employer—I thought you were ill yesterday, Mr. Smith?
Smith—Well, I was. I had a real attack.

Lacked Restraint.
"Why, Bill, you're blushing!" said a boy to his chum as they watched a pathetic picture unfold on the screen.
"Well," replied Bill, "I'm not blushing. I like to see a person show a little feeling!"
"Really?" said the first boy.
"Well, all right, but you don't need to wash your face in it!"

BARNUM SAID IT.

(Boston Herald.)
A court is subdividing the further sale of stock in a film corporation brings out the fact that although the company had run into financial trouble and had little trouble in disposing of $750,000 of its securities to wildcat purchasers. For some time now wildcat film companies have been set up to do just what the name implies, and to do it in a hurry. The unthinking hunger for sudden wealth reads of "movie" and "film" companies in the papers, and if he ever reads about the failures in both the film and the oil industry he promptly forgets what he reads. The particular case with the greatest publicity that has been given to get-rich-quick concerns of the recent past is that of the film company which was formed in 1918, and which was supposed to be disposed of at public auction; they will be remembered as the "Gadsdill Place" when news comes that the famous homestead and grounds have been finally acquired in the name of a national memorial. Dickens visited some one in the year 1842, again in 1868, and once in the year 1892, again in 1908, and again in 1918. There are many still alive who saw him in his old days, and many who remember hearing him read there from his writings to an audience, having in his apartment an office and a study, though the greatest public honor ever done to his genius, either here or abroad, was that he should be named after the Gadsdill Place in 1892, when he was about thirty years old at the Dickens carnival in Mechanics hall, where the whole panorama of his life was made up of a background realistically occupied by the Americans still visit Gadsdill and are always impressed with the romance that comes out from Gadsdill Place. Whether the novelist knew of that story does not appear. But it is certain that Dickens lived in it if he came to be a man and should work hard enough. The auctioneer who will preside at the forthcoming sale describes it as "the Georgian residence, about 26 miles from London, two and a half miles from the city of Rochester, and containing four reception rooms, conservatory, ten bedrooms, bathroom, good offices, company's gas and water, stabling for five horses, and garage. When Dickens came into possession it had not been modernized. Soon after setting at Gadsdill Place in 1836 he wrote: "I am on my little Kentish freehold, looking on as pretty a view as I have seen in a long day's English ride. My little place is a grave red brick house—Cobham woods behind, the Medway, with Rochester and its old castle and cathedral, on one side."
It is true that all houses wherein men have lived and died are "haunted" with literary phantoms must be gliding in and out of Gadsdill Place. Crowds of them should be seen there, with no special "psychical" faculty needed in aid of vision. There one can see acquaintance, as nowhere else, with Micawber, sentimental grandmothers, ever ready for something to turn up with Mr. Pickwick, expert in the theory of littlebits, again playing his part in the court trial of Bardell vs. Pickwick; Sam Weller, with his minute knowledge of London; Mrs. Leo Hunter, who doted on poetry;

MR. DOOLEY ON "SWEARING"

By FINLEY PETER DUNNE.

"Did you see what the Judge said to the throlley man that bumped him?" asked Mr. Dooley.
"I did not," said Mr. Hennessy.
"What was it?"
"I can't tell you till I get mad," said Mr. Dooley. "Lave us into icicle street. Whispy. . . That was it! Ha, ha! He give it to him straight!"
"A good, honest, American blankety-blank. Rale language, like father used to make when he hit his thumb with a hammer. No 'With yer lave' or 'By yer lave', but a dacin' 'Dann ye, sir', an' a little more fr' the sake of Irishness!"
"What else wud ye have him do?"
"Was nather th' time nor th' occasion fr' wurrads that he well wurrad at a Chataqua. A throlley car had pushed him an' diplomatic relations was suspended."

"Now, Hennessy, no matter what a man may've been waded before, he was hit by a throlley car, a minnit after he's only a man. Th' throlley car plays no favrites. It bounces th' high an' th' low alike. Valentino to Have His 'Artistic Liberty'

(N. Y. Times) J. D. Williams, who until recently was general manager of Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and who now is President of the Ritz-Carlton Pictures, Inc., announced last night at a dinner in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel that Rudolph Valentino, who was present, had signed a long-term contract with his concern to appear exclusively under Mr. Williams' management.

It was stated that the contract and plans call for productions "commensurate with the actor's popularity," and that the arrangement becomes effective on the termination of Valentino's contract with Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Under the new agreement, declared Mr. Williams, "Valentino would enjoy the complete artistic liberty for which he has been fighting. He will be personally responsible to the public for the kind of pictures he makes—a responsibility he is eager to accept. I am confident, will fulfill with credit to himself, the public and the industry. During my connection as manager of Associated First National Pictures, it was my belief that the actor, whether it be a star or a producing director, should enjoy complete artistic freedom, guided and assisted by sympathetic, artistic and technical assistants of his own selection."

Pine Ridge, S. D., July 21.—Indian maidens of this Indian reservation are appearing in public wearing knickers, to the horror of the older squaws, who look at this attire with much disapproval. WOMEN'S HOTEL BANS SPOONING
(New York Sun)

It's hot weather to be carrying around an agitated heart, not to mention a ruffled temper, but to the several hundred guests of New York's model hotel for women, known as the Allerton House, Fifty-seventh street and Lexington avenue, there is ample justification for being not only agitated but horribly perturbed. Life, they say, is just one blue law after another.

With the pavements seething beneath one's feet and a breath of air as scarce now as an oyster, it is only natural that New Yorkers have grown accustomed to go as far as heavenward as they may for relief on these summer nights. And the "moonlight tete-a-tetes" on the roof of the Allerton House are no exception. So when the management announced the opening of the roof garden, elaborately decorated with chairs—and sofas for two—there was much rejoicing. But, alas! the rejoicing was short-lived. For there followed quickly the information that male guests, already prohibited above the mezzanine floor of this feminine sanctuary, were not eligible to get their summer breezes from the Allerton roof, nor might they hope to look at the moon from that advantageous point. There was an uproar, short, but somewhat effective. That is to say, the rule was slightly modified, namely, the guests and to the last, the element of the male callers and the amusement of everybody else.

A "Pass" for the Roof.
Reginald is no longer barred from the roof, but the alternative is hardly more inviting to Reginald, at least dressed in his best bib and tucker, as he presents himself at the desk of the hotel with all the confidence of an eighteen summer, politely inquires for Miss Sweet, the young lady on whom he is wishful of making an undying impression, much to the disgust of the younger element of the guests and to the lasting horror of their male callers and the amusement of everybody else.

Win Fight Over Smoking.
This fight is on. The women protest that such "boarding school" rules are hardly in keeping with the fact that they are all intelligent, self-supporting persons who have reached the age of discretion and that after all the reforms cast by such laws is on the hotel itself. It is rumored that the management is not at all averse to less stringent methods, but in back of it all looms that dreadful "bearded dozer," the inmates call that austere body, the board of directors. And the board is composed of men only.

HYDRO CURRENTS IN GREAT DEMAND IN SMALLER TOWNS

Many Applications Received By N. B. Electric Commission—Benefits of Hydro
Applications are pouring in to the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission for transmission line extensions to many small towns and villages along the St. John and Kennebecas rivers. The people of these smaller towns and villages have petitioned the commission to extend the line to them. S. R. Weston, acting chief engineer of the commission, said yesterday that these applications were being considered and it was hoped that a commission might be able to take some action in regard to them, but that there was such a deluge of applications from many places, it would be impossible for the commission to meet the wishes of the great majority. There are applications from Bellevue's Point and from Westford and Mr. Weston said that while it probably would be possible to carry the line as far as Westford, it would be impracticable to go any further. He said, however, that the line from the Moncton line into Hampton Village and to Hampton Station. The line now extends from the Moncton line for one-half mile, down to Fair Vale siding and down to Gondola Point.

The Benefits of Hydro
A lady in the Fair Vale-Gondola Point district, speaking of what the advent of electricity meant to her and probably to her neighbors as well, said: "Now, since the electric line has been laid, I can talk with some confidence as to what it has meant to me and to my household. We have all the lights we need—some thirty or forty—from cellar to attic and instead of from lanterns and candles, which we had to carry from room to room before we had electricity, we can now go to our work in the evening and we go. Of course this is nothing unusual to city people, but I never thought of the city before we came to the country as well as those who have never lived in the city. The electric line has meant to me and my household a great deal. I can't say that I am a great admirer of the benefits of the electric current since it has been provided for my household. I have enjoyed the luxury of electric lights and electric fixtures. The villagers of Clifton, Bel's Point, Moss Glen and even the Cedars also are living in hopes, but it is feared the cost of constructing transmission lines would make the extension in this direction out of the question."

Westfield Area
A resident of Westfield expressed his surprise that he had never seen a petunia. He said it was a great regret that he had never seen a petunia. He said it was a great regret that he had never seen a petunia. He said it was a great regret that he had never seen a petunia.

MUCH IMPRESSED WITH N. B. ROADS
RUN ERRANDS AND ELEVATORS AS THEY WAIT FOR $4,000,000

Colonel Smythe, of Ottawa, representing the Dominion Government, has been in New Brunswick inspecting the roads built under the Federal Aid scheme. He covered the northern and central parts of the province. His trips included from St. John to Musquash, St. John to Welsford and Fredericton to Woodville. The Colonel stated that he was much impressed with the New Brunswick roads and was surprised at the low cost of construction, but instead he found continuous stretches of splendid gravel roads at a low cost per mile. Colonel Smythe will leave tonight for Quebec where he will inspect the Quebec highways. He represented an Anglo-Conservative in the Conservative government.

DEATH ROLLS TO POUNCE ON BOLD ORCHID HUNTERS
Occupation Is One of Most Hazardous Known to Man.
"Fancy that plant being worth $1500! exclaimed visitors to the Chelsea Flower Show as they pause to glance for a moment at the new orchid, odonto crispum, with its stiff, snowy petals spotted with maroon. "Fancy paying all that money for it!" But orchids are paid for with human lives as well as with gold, writes an orchid hunter in The London Express. Of all occupations in the world orchid hunting is the most hazardous. It is a dangerous game, and one which has cost the lives of many men. The orchid hunter is a man who is willing to risk his life for a few dollars. He is a man who is willing to risk his life for a few dollars. IN UNORGANIZED DISTRICTS RATES WILL COVER COSTS

At a meeting of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission held yesterday afternoon, it was decided that the rates for electricity energy distributed by the Commission to unorganized districts would be based upon service charges, plus the cost of operation and power consumption. In other words, the rates will be made to cover the interest on the system and to provide for one year, will be scheduled for all districts which are being served by the Commission, although they were already established for one year's duration.

The employees of the Western Union held a picnic last evening at Ketepes and the entire party left the office at King street about 6 o'clock in automobiles. The members of the Ketepes Dining Club co-operated and they had everything in readiness for the picnic. An excellent supper was soon prepared and about fifty employees of the Western Union did full justice to the repast. After supper a baseball game was played and races were held. During the evening dancing was also enjoyed. The party returned by the late train after spending a very pleasant evening. F. M. Bailey and G. H. White were in charge of the affair.

SCOUTS' FAREWELL TO A. C. SKELTON

"I have been called upon to say 'good-bye' several times during the last week or two, but this is the hardest of the lot," said A. C. Skelton to a group of Boy Scouts and Scouters, gathered last evening in Trinity Church school room to give him a send off. "I have done my best," he said, "but I can assure you that I have got more from the Scout game than I have been able to put into it."

Mr. Skelton, who is president of the local district council of the Boy Scouts' Association, has been transferred to Hamilton, Ont., as manager of the branch of the Bank of Montreal there, and last night's event was called to present to him thanks, badge and testimonial from the Boy Scouts of St. John.

The card is artistically arranged and is a fine example of the work done by Percy N. Woodley. At the top of the centre piece is the representation of the "Smiling Scout," with a typical camping scene as background, and surrounded by the scout badge, the wolf cub badge and the monogram of the association. Underneath are inscribed the following words:

"To St. John's Chief Scout, A. C. Skelton, a testimonial in appreciation of the many 'Good Turns' to his credit as a 'Good Scout.' Good Luck and Good Camping. July, 1923. St. John, N. B."

Surrounding the decoration, members of the scout executive, of the scout committee and scout troops of the district appended their signatures. The testimonial was signed by T. E. Shannon, vice-president of the district council; Guy L. Short, district commissioner; V. C. Timberley, district secretary; E. H. J. Barber, assistant district commissioner; Robert Ingleton, ex-commissioner; E. H. Turnbull, honorary treasurer; B. S. Waring, ex-acting district commissioner; W. S. Allison, ex-member of the provincial executive; T. F. Drummond, ex-member of the provincial executive; and W. H. "Whitie" has been in poor health as a result of hard work and on the advice of his doctor is taking rest. For many years he was conceded one of the best ball players in these parts and at times this year showed flashes of his old time form. With a rest he should return home in the pink of condition and may be relied upon to assist his old team towards the close of the championship drive. His many friends will wish him a pleasant trip.

To Prolong Life of Tires. At the end of every 2,000 miles of service, a tire should be removed from the rim, deflated, and all soapstone and grit removed.

Important of Ample Lubrication. Cylinders that are not properly lubricated will cause the pistons to expand and lock.

Proper Placement of Battery. Extreme care should be exercised when dry cells are used for ignition purposes to keep them in a dry place.

Cleaning Spark Plugs. To clean spark plugs, soak them in a mixture of alcohol and kerosene overnight.

Rusty Rims Cause Leaky Tubes. Never permit the rim to rust. Particles of the rust will work inside the casing and cut the tube.

No Parking! No motor vehicle should be parked at the entrance to hotels, theatres, office buildings, large stores, and other buildings to which there is a great amount of coming and going.

Prompt Repair Saves More Trouble. A broken spring leaf should be replaced immediately. If there is any delay, an extra strain is thrown on the remaining leaves, causing the entire spring to break.

To Overcome Radiator Scale. Scale in the radiator can be overcome by mixing a little glycerine with the cooling water.

In Case of Accident. Every operator of an automobile should have some knowledge of first aid methods and carry as a part of his equipment a small case of first-aid materials.

To Reduce Carbon. Carbon in the cylinders can be reduced to a minimum if the mixture is set a little lean and the oil properly regulated.

If excessively high speeds are to be maintained for any length of time, it may be advisable to provide extra lubrication.

When the water runs slowly through the radiator, it suggests clogging at some place. It may be either sediment, slime, or dust and scale.

Crank or crankshaft misalignment will cause improper meshing of the teeth.

Generator brushes need no lubrication because the brushes contain all the oil that is necessary.

No amount of adjustment will remedy bad conditions if the moving parts of the carburetor are worn.

Because of the unbalanced condition, improper distribution of weight on a car will cause difficult steering.

When the brakes chatter or squeak when applied, it is a sign that the linings are glazed or the surface gritty.

Noises arising in the transmission are chiefly due to the gears.

Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood"

A MAGIC PICTORIAL TRIUMPH VIBRATING WITH INTENSE ART AND SHEER ENTHUSIASM

"The picture of 'Robin Hood'—he of infinite exploits—is here at last, and it is only superlatives that could describe the merits of the film. * * * Probably never before has a motion picture served such a wonderful purpose in re-stating the true basic principle of romance."—MONTREAL GAZETTE.

"All the romance of the Crusades, all the devil-may-care joyousness of the adventures of history, have somehow been captured and woven into a glowing tapestry for the screen."—CHICAGO EVENING POST.

"A panorama of fantasy, a magic pictorial procession, a gay, dashing pageant of daring exploits and chivalric deeds, seen through the mists of legends and lighted by the moonbeams of romance."—LOS ANGELES TIMES.

With a Notable Presentation

At all Night Performances—incidental solos by F. T. Hazel, popular St. John baritone, including special prologue song and "Just An Old Love Song," synchronized with a romantic scene in the film.

SOME OF THOSE WHO SAW FIRPO K. O. WILLARD

Just one section of the huge bowl at Jersey City, N. J., where 100,000 saw Luis Firpo knock out Jess Willard. It was the biggest crowd that ever witnessed a fight event. This picture was taken at sunset. A few bare patches are to be seen, but when the party started every seat was taken and thousands stood in the aisles and around the rim of the bowl.

HANEY OF DETROIT STANDS OUT AS MOST VALUABLE UTILITY MAN

Detroit—Most ball players of today are specialists. They learn to play one particular position. Ask them to shift to some other spot and they are lost. Back 15 years, or even less, practically every major league ball club boasted a utility man who could play any position and do a good job of it. Things are different now. Most major league clubs have a half dozen outfielders, three or four catchers and a dozen pitchers. Infielder Fred Haney of the Detroit club takes you back to the old days in baseball. Haney stands out as one of the very, very few high-class utility players in the big show.

Haney is a third baseman by trade, well able to hold his own at that position with the best the National and American Leagues can boast. But Haney can do other things equally well. Since joining the Detroit club Haney has played every position on the infield and starred in each instance. He has done his bit in the outfield and in a pinch could go behind the bat and swing away with it.

ST. PETERS TEAM AWAY TO MONCTON

Members of St. Peter's baseball team left this morning for Moncton where they will play two games today, one in the afternoon and the second in the evening. The result of these games will decide third and last position in the Two I League standing for the first series. Those who left this morning were—Killen, King, Stafford, Price, Strecker, McGovern, O'Connor, McCarthy, Sterling and Bonnell. It is understood that other members of the team will go to Moncton this afternoon to participate in the evening contest. This afternoon King will pitch and Strecker will play second base. In addition to this feature bout there will be a preliminary between "Machine Gun" Smith and Joe Irvine, and another between Jack Sullivan and "Battling" Mose. This card should prove attractive to local ring enthusiasts.

PROMISE GOOD MEET AT MOOSEPATH

What promises to be one of the best turf meets held in St. John in recent years, will take place August 1 and 2. Sixty horses are expected to start, and new track records may be made. One of the best drawing cards has been arranged and will include a Free-for-All, 2:16 Trot, 2:15 Trot and Pace, 2:30 Trot and Pace, 2:25 Trot and 2:18 Trot.

PECULIAR INJURY MAY FORCE UMPIRE ORMSBY OUT FOR REST OF SEASON

Chicago—Umpire Ormsby of the American League staff is probably out of the running for the remainder of the season, as a result of a very unusual accident. In a game at Boston several weeks ago, Ormsby while working the bases, turned to get a play at second, the runner on first attempted to steal that

RIFLE PRIZE MEET HERE THIS YEAR

The annual prize meeting of the New Brunswick Rifle Association is to be held in Sussex this year, starting July 31. One of the matches which opens the meet is the MacDonald's Brier match. The "Brier" match has become an annual event in the annual prize meetings of all the Canadian Provincial Rifle Associations. Its value—$500 annually—is the same in all provinces, the donors, W. C. MacDonald Reg'd Incorporated, tobacco manufacturers of Montreal, being the greatest supporters of rifle shooting in the Dominion. Every province has this year its own "Brier" match while there is a $1,000 Brier match for the Dominion Rifle Meet at Rockcliffe Ranges, Ottawa. In the New Brunswick meet the "Brier" match has the highest value of all the individual and team competitions.

FORGETS BRIDE'S NAME WHEN HE GOES FOR THE LICENSE

Brockton, July 21.—Alexander Hargrove, called the office of City Clerk J. Albert Sullivan for a marriage license. As he forgot the name of his intended bride the license was denied him. Later Hargrove reappeared, with the necessary information about his intended, but he did not have the required $102 this time and a third trip was necessary before he received the document he sought. The future Mrs. Hargrove is now Mrs. Sarah D. George. It is to be the second marriage for both.

MAKE USE OF THE AIR.

(Vancouver Sun.) Canada should not need to be threatened with war before taking full commercial advantage of the great opportunities in air transportation. This country could profitably have passenger lines, mail lines and aeroplanes doing all kinds of useful work. Government encouragement of such things would stimulate public interest in aviation to an extent where Canada could begin to catch up with other nations both in a public and private way.
