An Absolute Cure for Rheumatism

If the skin or bowels are unhealthy, they won't throw off enough urea. This urea is changed into uric acid—carried by the blood to the nerves—and causes Rheumatism.

Fruit-a-tives surely cure Rheumatism and Sciatica because they act directly on bowels, kidneys and skin—and so strengthen and invigorate these organs that there is no urea and uric acid retained in the system to irritate the nerves and bring Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuralgia.

"Fruit-a-tives" are intensified fruit-juices with tonics and intestinal antiseptics added.

NEWS OF THE MONTH-LAND

"Messages from the sea!" There are two or three hundred waiting delivery in London at this moment, and the grey romance clinging about them is heightened by the knowledge that the greater part will never be called for.

The Burden of Remorse. The story of a terrible crime committed at Cropton, in Northeast Yorkshire, 34 years ago, is recalled by the confessor...

Charter was tried and sentenced to 20 years' penal servitude for the manslaughter of an old farmer, whose body was twice buried by him, and the crime was not discovered until six months after it had been perpetrated.

The same night as the old farmer, Robert Wood, was killed his illegitimate child also disappeared from the farm, and it was given to the pigs.

"That's 'im," says the wife, gulping down her sorrow; and the great bag is pulled down from its resting-place looking like a badly-packed Christmas parcel.

At the time of the committal of the case, nearly thirty days ago, Charter was committed for trial on a magistrate's warrant for murdering the boy.

The young officer is a perfect giant in stature, and his splendid carriage and Libby's splendid critical drill sergeants to turn an approving eye upon him.

His identity was discovered apparently on representations being made by the police to the constable who placed under guard in the castle, where he has received every attention and the best of treatment.

The Hastings refuses to give any information about himself. The men who have been his comrades for the past six weeks are, however, not so reticent.

A little further on is a sea-stained man, who, an optical druggist, sits on top (that is the scotchman, Ah Sing), and his epithet says he fell overboard somewhere in the Roaring Forties.

The new recruit turned out a hair. Smilingly he admitted that he and Lieut. Tryon were one. The men were engaged in a room, after dinner, the surprising thing. These stalwart boatsmen, having found a good man, had no idea of telling tales about him.

As strange a storehouse of strange things as any in the big city, it is an unclaimed property office of the docks, and if he goes to its grey corridors to search for traces of the missing, still fewer come away in talkative mood.

The Champion Estate. A Dewsbury man is said to own the largest appetite in the world.

Within the past few days he has consumed a meal at which a van horse would have jibbed in despair. He is already well known in the district in that he lives by reason of his past performances, but his latest feat surpasses all his previous conquests.

The conquest which has just concluded lasted fourteen hours. The condition was that he should eat two peals on the first day, double that number on the second, and continue to double it day after day for fourteen days.

During the first week the man simply swallowed them like pills, in the dry state; afterwards they were steeped and boiled. On the tenth day the number was 1,024; on the eleventh, 2,048; on the twelfth, 4,096; on the thirteenth, 8,192; and on the fourteenth 16,384.

Owing to a little hitch in the proceedings the total number of peals eaten on the last day; but on the thirteenth he disposed of 8,192, which is believed to be a world's record.

On the thirteenth day operations were commenced about three o'clock in the afternoon. He disposed of 500 without a meal, and then he ate him down until he rested until seven o'clock in the evening before recommencing operations.

Due, Black and Boe have been imported from Ghent, where dog-police are being employed during the last eight years. Dog-police are employed in a large number of German and Austrian cities, and are very cheap.

The dog-recruits have cost $30 each.

A most comfortable three-roomed kitchen, price $150, has been provided for them.

RUSHING WORK ON NEW ROAD

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC IS FORGING AHEAD

Will Probably Soon Start Laying Steel in Port Essington Region, Says a Resident.

Mr. J. D. Wells, of Port Essington, who is largely interested in mining and timber properties on the Copper Kettle and Skeena Rivers, recently returned north, accompanied by Mr. Muttter, Mr. Wells came down to Vancouver to close several deals the nature of which he did not care to disclose, says the Vancouver News-Advertiser.

When asked regarding the general development work now being carried out in this part of the province, Mr. Wells seemed very optimistic as to the great future in store for Northern British Columbia.

Through the Bulkley Valley some of the best farming land in the world is to be found. Settlers are going into the country rapidly and although there is room for thousands and thousands of people, it will soon be all taken up.

Land values are increasing rapidly, which goes to show that the district is being developed. The land is comparatively easy to clear and when the G. T. P. is completed the facilities for getting out farm produce will be excellent.

"When do you think the G.T.P. will start to lay rails in B. C.?" asked the reporter. "The company have kept their survey parties working away and the men are doing splendid work under severe conditions, judging by the rapidity with which the surveying is being prosecuted and by investments made in the district."

"Yes, there is a great deal of timber being cut and very large mills are being projected for the manufacturing of lumber, timber which will be in demand as the population increases."

"I think that an amendment to the Lands Act of the province providing for the removal of the tax of 50 cents a cord on ties which are to be utilized outside of B. C. would be a commendable one. If it were changed to read that the tax should be 25 cents it would give an impetus to the manufacture of ties in the province. At present the 50 cents imposed amounts to about 1 1/2 cents a tie, which seems to me to be quite a hindrance to the growth of trade in that finished product of the mill, with other provinces, of the Dominion."

"You might also mention that I have another suggestion to throw out," said the reporter. "It is the government were to open up a road between Fraser Canyon and the Kettle Falls, suitable for the bringing out of copper ore to the G. T. P. rails, it would open up a tremendously rich district. This would be about 65 miles southeast of Hazelton. Extensive deposits of native copper have been found in the country between the places mentioned."

Mr. Wells was asked if there was any likelihood of Kettle Falls becoming the terminus of the new trans-continental road instead of Prince Rupert.

"I think not," he said. "A branch will very likely run from Hazelton to Kettle Falls by virtue of the rights of the P. & O. charter which the G. T. P. has acquired." Mr. Wells says that the road will be put on the marked early in August.

Northwestern Shot Troublesome Dog and His Arrest Followed—As About to Leave City.

(From Saturday's Daily.) Attired in the regulation blue duck of the Northwest agriculturist, Jas. Anderson, late of Saltcoats, Sask., landed in Victoria yesterday on the Princess Victoria. He had in his pocket the cowboy's friend, viz., a heavy long-barrelled Colt revolver. As he was walking down Superior street to the outer wharf to board the Ararat for Australia, three dogs attacked him, and to defend himself he shot the dogs.

VIVID PICTURE OF 'FRISCO SCENES

London Correspondent Tells His Impressions Upon Visiting That City With its Four Square Miles of Ruins.

There are four square miles of the ruins of San Francisco. So it says in one of the many official reports. I have looked over every square foot of the four square miles of ruins, and the strongest impression that they have left on my mind is that there are four square miles of them.

Ruins are not really nearly so amusing as archaeologists pretend. They need extreme age to develop their qualities of interest. They have to be entitled to the use of adjectives such as venerable, hoary, and moss-grown, and to be seen by moonlight in agreeable company with ruins.

I rode on a tramway track laid through a big plot of waste ground in the city of San Francisco. The roadway was in an awful condition of mud, the flagged sidewalks were cracked and uneven.

To right and left ran other similar tracks through similar excavations, partly filled with heaps of brick and twisted scrap-iron.

Streets Mere Lines on a Plan. To right and left ran other similar tracks through similar excavations, partly filled with heaps of brick and twisted scrap-iron.

Like a Gigantic Canary Cage. A little farther along another facade, precariously balancing on edge like an advertising board, was once a great department store.

as well as wood, blot it out completely, raze it, wipe it off the map.

The central business part of San Francisco was as modern and well built as the central part of London. Splendid hotels, gold and marble adorned, many storied, absolutely fireproof, magnificent office buildings, skyscrapers of steel and stone and concrete, absolutely fireproof; gorgeous shops and stores of modern construction, absolutely fireproof.

There is one peculiarly striking fact about that debris-strewn area of destruction. It shows hardly a trace of fire. Every town which I have seen had any knowledge has left a black smudge behind. Charred beams and rafters, all black, and the remaining shell of the burned building dripping black ooze.

It is hard to believe that some of the bricks and iron were not consumed. So little seems to remain. Some kinds of stone, certainly, cracked and chipped and powdered in the extreme heat and disappeared in the mushroom of smoke which sprouted above the destruction of the city.

Even if they were burning acres for mixed farming, the object of discovering, if possible, some peculiarity that would enable us to distinguish twin-bearing ewes from others.

Upon examining the milk-bags of the sheep a peculiarity was observed that was thought might be significant. Normally, sheep have only two nipples upon the milk-bag, but in the case of several of the sheep examined, supplementary nipples were discovered which were embryonic in character and not in a functional condition.

REINFORCING THIS SPLENDID HUMOROUS LEADER. Henry Miller tells one of the best stories yet in "My Yesterdays."

THE NUMBER OF EYES, HOWEVER, OF THE MAMMALS COULD BE INCREASED BY SELECTION. It is of course impossible to predict, but it is worthy of note that one ewe has been born with four nipples on one side of the body and two on the other; and, as the super-nippled ewes have a tendency to appear in pairs, this probably foreshadows the possibility of an eight-nippled variety.

DEVELOPING A NEW SPECIES OF SHEEP. The public are so familiar with the work of Alexander Graham Bell in connection with the Bell telephone, the graphophone, aerial kites and other scientific discoveries that some of the by-paths of science which he has exploited are not known to the world.

On two former occasions, I have had the honor of presenting communications to the academy concerning the multi-nippled breed of sheep on my farm at Beinn Bhragh, near the town of Baddeck, Nova Scotia.

It will be remembered that in 1888, upon the purchase of some property at Beinn Bhragh I found myself in possession of a flock of sheep; and that in the spring of 1890, one half of the lambs born upon the place turned out to be twins.

Upon examining the milk-bags of the sheep a peculiarity was observed that was thought might be significant. Normally, sheep have only two nipples upon the milk-bag, but in the case of several of the sheep examined, supplementary nipples were discovered which were embryonic in character and not in a functional condition.

THE NUMBER OF EYES, HOWEVER, OF THE MAMMALS COULD BE INCREASED BY SELECTION. It is of course impossible to predict, but it is worthy of note that one ewe has been born with four nipples on one side of the body and two on the other; and, as the super-nippled ewes have a tendency to appear in pairs, this probably foreshadows the possibility of an eight-nippled variety.

DEVELOPING A NEW SPECIES OF SHEEP

The public are so familiar with the work of Alexander Graham Bell in connection with the Bell telephone, the graphophone, aerial kites and other scientific discoveries that some of the by-paths of science which he has exploited are not known to the world.

On two former occasions, I have had the honor of presenting communications to the academy concerning the multi-nippled breed of sheep on my farm at Beinn Bhragh, near the town of Baddeck, Nova Scotia.

It will be remembered that in 1888, upon the purchase of some property at Beinn Bhragh I found myself in possession of a flock of sheep; and that in the spring of 1890, one half of the lambs born upon the place turned out to be twins.

Twentieth Century Cottages.

The few warm days of the last few weeks have reminded a number that summer will soon be at hand, and in response to their requests this week a convenient little lake cottage is illustrated.

While for this cottage no artistic or picturesque qualities are claimed, it includes most of the necessary conveniences for an enjoyable summer outing. The large screened porch is one of the primary requisites for pleasure and comfort and furnishes an outdoor living room and dining room.

Interior living room from which the stairs start is made doubly attractive by a large open fire-place which provides ample protection from the discomfort of cool evenings or rainy weather.

Two good chambers are finished on the second floor, and, if necessary, at an extra expense the second story could be continued over the porch and a number of extra chambers provided.

This house will cost almost any price from $500 and up, depending on the finish and how substantial the house is built. We will illustrate next week a duplex house which is fast becoming one of the most popular forms of building on account of the good showing it makes, not only as a home, but also as an investment.

The many favorable letters and comments received since the 1907 edition of "Twentieth Century Cottages" has been published shows us that we have fulfilled a long felt want for a book that illustrates moderate priced houses. This will be sent post paid upon receipt of 25c. Address all letters to The Russell Co., 515 Century Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dobloons

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS and ARNOLD BENNETT.

CHAPTER I. The Watchman.

That monster, London, was just lying down to rest. The clocks of the Strand churches and the Strand hotels, keeping nocturnal vigil, showed a quarter to one under the February moon.

On the pavements between Aldwych and Charing Cross, there were perhaps not more than twenty pedestrians, instead of the twenty thousands of a few hours ago.

For Philip was at his final sixpence; he carried all that he possessed on earth in a little black bag; and no one was more surprised than Philip to find money came from it.

Philip could not tell a lie, so he told the truth. "Well," said the watchman, "in my cabin for three hours, and keep the boys' rooms, matey."

"Watch!" said the watchman, crossly; then he hurried off. Philip, his shoulders enveloped in a blanket, sat in the corner of the cabin, Kingway. He had his little house in the shape of a tea can and a red handkerchief certainly containing sustenance.

It might have been the sedative influence of half a pork pie, half a loaf and a pint of tea, or it might have been simply Philip's fatigue, but he did not keep up for more than thirty seconds the pretense of thought; instead, he went to sleep.

That was a fortnight ago. Therefore, he had sought in vain another profitable outlet for his talents; though he had as yet neither opened cabs at theater doors, nor sold evening papers, nor enlisted, nor done any of the approved things for a person in his predicament, he was rapidly acquiring a sort of philosophic desperation.

He passed into Kingway, the immense artery which London's surgeons have created, but through which the blood has not yet learned to flow. His double line of lamps stretched imposingly to Holborn, flanked on one side by the posters of every theatre and medicine in the metropolis, and on the other by the raw remains of habitations which the surgeon's knife had hacked out of the gutter.

Philip, who had not expected the trench to be full of infantry or anything else sufficiently conspicuous to catch the eye of a policeman, seized a lantern as soon as the constable was out of sight, and jumped into the broken section of pipe, and lodged by accident just in the mouth of the laid pipe, was a small fragment of the broken section. Philip picked it up and examined it. There was clearly stamped on it a single finger-mark printed in some dark substance. He carried it away; it might well be the impress of a workman's hand, but on the other hand, it might not. He saw nothing else of the slightest interest.

Before returning to the cabin, he ascertained that an alley named Little Girdlers Alley ran north out of Strange street nearly opposite the end of the trench. A single light burned in the entrance of the house at the angle of Strange street and the alley.

He was thus greeted on his arrival at the trench. The watchman, his employer, had come back breathless, and "I've eaten it," said Philip, "I'm awfully sorry."

"What a job!" he inquired of Philip, abruptly, after having scrutinized him. He had been a night-watchman in main thoroughfare for years, and the comparative richness of what remained of Philip's clothes did not deceive him for an instant; he judged a wanderer by his gait and his eyes.

"Leave me the sack," said Philip, "I'll eat it, as he flanked by the watchman, crossly; then he hurried off. Philip, his shoulders enveloped in a blanket, sat in the corner of the cabin, Kingway. He had his little house in the shape of a tea can and a red handkerchief certainly containing sustenance.

decide whether the form was that of a big dog, a lion escaped from the Hippodrome, or a human being on all fours. He gave forth an exclamation. "What's up?" muttered a deep voice. He jumped nimbly, it was a policeman who had been standing behind the cabin.

His first thought, on recovering his wits, was that the age of miracles had returned. He was a duke, he would have recoiled before this master-position in the greatest known art of self-defence. The navy, however, had never seen Jiu-Jitsu, and as a consequence of his rash ignorance, after getting a wrist ingeniously sprained, he was propelled in a graceful curve, by the aproned flat of Philip's left foot, clean into the street.

Philip, who had not expected the trench to be full of infantry or anything else sufficiently conspicuous to catch the eye of a policeman, seized a lantern as soon as the constable was out of sight, and jumped into the broken section of pipe, and lodged by accident just in the mouth of the laid pipe, was a small fragment of the broken section. CANADIAN TRADE WITH JAPAN

Hon. T. Nosse, Imperial Japanese Consul-General For Canada, in Monetary Times.

The article which follows was written for the Monetary Times by Mr. Nosse in response to a request for his views as to the prospects for commerce between Canada and the Orient. No man in Canada is so well qualified to discuss the question as Mr. Nosse, who has for several years represented the Japanese government at Vancouver and Ottawa.

transportation. It is also true that the Oriental trade has helped to a great extent the rapid growth of cities and towns along the lines. Seattle, for example, has outgrown the Canadian cities on the Pacific slopes. She had a population of only 26,000 in 1890. Now she is credited with 200,000. Spokane, a little cluster of miserable hamlets ten years ago, has now grown to be a very flourishing city of 60,000 inhabitants. It is also noteworthy that with the growth of Seattle, the Japanese trade was diverted from San Francisco to Seattle. San Francisco used to boast of being the only gateway of the American business with the East; but the growth of the Japanese trade resulted to a great extent in favor of Seattle and caused the constant falling off with San Francisco. San Francisco's export to Japan amounted to $234,000 in 1922, while Seattle's share was only $38,000. But in 1901 the latter handled $5,600,000 against the former's $3,400,000.

Table with columns: Total, From U.S., From Canada. Rows include Wheat, Oats, barley, Meat, Meats, Milk, condensed, Salmon, salt, Flour, Paper, Cardboard, Canned goods, Fertilizer, Leather, Butter, Margarine, Soap, Cotton goods, Woolen goods, Coal.

Of all these staple goods, which are exported from the United States, Canada is in a position to take a share, with equal advantage. Of course, the United States' export trade to Japan has a standing of over forty years. But it is only recently that their export trade has reached such a gigantic figure. In 1872, their export trade to Japan only amounted to $500,000; in 1883, to $1,500,000; and in 1890, to $3,000,000. In 1894 it reached $28,580,000, and in 1906, $38,460,000, being very nearly twenty-five per cent. of Japan's total imports from the foreign countries.

Some Telling Figures. Yet the Americans appear not to be fully satisfied with their remarkable success in Japan. As Mr. W. J. Ballard, of Schneidly, N. Y., said once in his report, "We have some success, however, in the fact that our sales to Japan increased 130 (150?) per cent. within the last ten years, while those from most European countries fell." He has further said, "Canada's sales to Japan at present are only one per cent. of the value of ours, but the showing made by Canada at the Osaka exhibition (which we so lamentably neglected), may do us greater damage later." Canada's chief export is flour. So far the United States has been furnishing about 96 per cent. of Japan's flour importations.

Mr. James Hill, of the Great Northern railroad, said once also in connection with his shipment of flour to Japan: "It is the want of American ships, which prevents our entire surplus wheat crop being shipped to and sold in the Orient mainly in the form of flour. Will congress please note that point? The winners, in the order named, in our last year's sales to Japan, were raw cotton, kerosene oil and wheat flour. All these remarks, seriously taken by the most prominent Americans, tend toward the aggressive extension of their flour trade with the Orient, especially to Japan, the largest consumer of this article among the Orientals. Among many evidences to prove the truth of these remarks, Mr. Hill, two years ago, had two twenty-six thousand ton steamers built to carry his cargoes across the Pacific.

This gigantic undertaking was regarded by many people to be a rather reckless and hazardous attempt; but when the steamers began to run there came such a constant flow of orders from all parts of the United States and also from Canada, that the company had often to refuse shipment.

History and a Moral. While Seattle had thus been reaping greatly from her Japan trade it is very regrettable to notice that both Vancouver and Victoria have not made any notable progress in the trade, their population not being very much greater than it was ten years ago. The population of Vancouver, which was 12,000 in 1891, is estimated at 45,000, and that of Victoria also estimated at only 26,000, against 16,000 in 1891. It is also rather regrettable to have to state that the Canadian farmers and manufacturers have been overlooking this important trade across the Pacific, and leaving it almost entirely a monopoly to the Americans. There is also a question as to whether a decade ago by the Canadians, as by the Americans, the export trade of Canada to Japan might by this time have been increased tenfold.

Canada having refused to become a party to the Anglo-Japanese Commercial Treaty in 1894, her products were for many years placed under serious drawbacks, as they could not enjoy the favor of the minimum tariffs in Japan. This advantage is now withdrawn since the Canadian government has made a treaty of trade, commerce and navigation with Japan. Canadian products by reason of the most favorable nation clause, which is contained in this treaty, can enjoy, not only the so-called conventional tariff treatment accorded by Japan to Great Britain, but also can enjoy the lowest tariff, given by Japan to France and Germany. Thus Canada, by simply adopting the British tariff, has obtained, without any compensation, the minimum tariff favors which Japan has been giving to Great Britain, France and Germany. There is also a question as to whether the Canadians ever privilege enjoyed by Japanese citizens, such as the patent right, trade marks, and various advantages which the Canadians used formerly to obtain in the name of either an Englishman or an American.

Quality of Aggressiveness. Now that the road is clear for more trade with Japan, the question arises will not the Canadians adopt the same aggressive policy as to trade with Japan, as their Southern neighbors have tried successfully? The simple plea is that they have not got the surplus to send. As they have an immense country with inexhaustible resources, they only need five million more population to open up the country. They are in need of cheap labor to open up their whole Northwest and British Columbia, which is very airy and seriously argued by Mr. Walker of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

You have the country and resources, and there is a market in Japan ready to buy your surplus. With the annual increase in population of Japan, but without proportionate increase in the crop of rice and other cereals, the Japanese will eventually become very large consumers of the imported foodstuffs. There is, therefore, a question as to whether the Japanese will have, in the next ten years, to import flour worth $15,000,000!

Canada Can Take One-Half. One-half of this amount at least should be the share of the Canadians. The country between Winnipeg and the Pacific coast, should enjoy this natural development of trade, and Winnipeg will, by that time, be able to compete with Minneapolis and St. Paul. Vancouver and Victoria will grow as important as Seattle and Tacoma on the other side of the boundary; while Regina, Calgary, Lethbridge, and Edmonton will share in this great commercial advance.

The Grand Trunk Pacific with its newly opened port of Prince Rupert must also depend upon its Oriental trade. There is a strong conviction that the Canadian territories, west of Winnipeg, as aforesaid, should naturally control the Oriental trade, many advantages being possible to them, such as wheat and flour from Manitoba, winter wheat flour, butter, milk, meat, hides and wool from Alberta and Saskatchewan, and lumber, paper, pulp, fish, meats, fruits, hops and mineral products from British Columbia, to say nothing of what more you can export from the undeveloped country, lying along the proposed road of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Once the Canadian Northwest and British Columbia, are fully developed with cheaper labor and there are greater transportation facilities, Canada will be in a position to compete with American goods in the markets, and Canadian goods in many instances, are identical with those of the Americans, always better in quality, therefore higher in price. It only requires united attention and vigorous advertising by Canadians of their country and its products, to develop the Japanese market.

Fruits of Thoughtfulness. Until Canada was represented at the Osaka exposition, 1903, she was not well-known in Japan. The mission of Hon. Sydney Fisher to Japan, resulted in a better understanding, and cemented closer intercourse between Japan and Canada. The contribution of $25,000 from San Francisco to the Japanese government to the famine-stricken millions in the northeastern parts in Japan was another factor in advertising Canada to the better extent of fish. The former's mind an everlasting memory of both gratitude and friendship. Another contribution of $40,000 from various sources of wheat-flour by the Dominion government to the famine-stricken millions in Japan, a better knowledge of Canada. Practical methods of advertising will tend to the growth of trade and commerce in favor of Canada.

The Japanese residents in British Columbia with their characteristic resourcefulness in industrial development have succeeded in many ways in turning their natural waste into valuable commodities. It was a Japanese who first started shipping to Japan the so-called dog salmon from British Columbia. This species of fish was left to decay in the Fraser river, to the great detriment of the better kind of fish. The total export of this "waste" now amounts from $150,000 to $250,000 per annum, and is engaged in by 650 Japanese fishermen who own 137 houses, 1,500 boats, with 1,800 nets, with an aggregate capital of $250,000.

Lessons in Enterprise. These enterprising people have also started on the Skeena river a factory for canning clams, which was never even talked of by the "white" fishermen. Sea slugs, fish roe and dog fish, are prepared by them for export to the Chinese market. There is also a guano and fertilizer factory, started by an enterprising Japanese, who converted the herrings, which, during the season, swarmed over the sea, and were left to a natural death, into a fertilizer and exported to Japan. However, this important industry was refused to the Japanese by the Dominion government in deference to the "white" people. A few Japanese have gone to the Queen Charlotte Islands in search of aquatic products for exportation to both Japan and China. Should British Columbia follow that wise and liberal policy of her southern neighbors across the boundary, and welcome the Japanese to come and develop their resources how great their Oriental trade would grow!

It is gratifying to see that of late the British Columbia people are turning their interest toward the development of their trade in Japan, instead of keeping up an agitation against a handful of Japanese in the province, whose presence, they would in vain interfere with the welfare of the "white" population. The Japanese in the province conduct themselves quietly and peacefully, always living up to their income, never trying to save any. It is their character, that they spend every cent they get, to make themselves merry and happy. Thus all that they get is spent in this country, in clothing, food and drink, to which they have adapted themselves since they came to this country.

How to Capture Oriental Trade. They have their own Christian church in Vancouver, and the missions in Victoria, Nanaimo, Steveston, and other places. They have their own hospital at Steveston, during summer, to attend to their fishermen. They have their own school for children, engaging English teachers. They contributed towards alleviating the distress caused by the great fire at Hull, Ont. They offered to the Dominion government to send a contingent of Japanese youth to South Africa, together with the Canadian boys. These and other facts prove that the Japanese do assimilate with the white people, and this the Japanese are patriotic in the cause of the country in which they reside.

It is not a question of time, but a question of policy, whether Canada can realize what her great statesmen and business men have been anticipating out of the Oriental trade. Should they insist upon the policy of the "closed door" on the Pacific coast the prosperity will never be forthcoming. Sir Willfrid Laurier has well said in the House of Commons, "I want our friends from British Columbia to remember this that if we are to trade with Japan we must treat Japan as a civilized nation." Let me ask, what value would be attached, without the Oriental trade, to the cities on the British Columbia coast?

GATEWAY TO THE EDEN OF SPORT

BRITISH WRITER REFERS TO VICTORIA CITY

Article in Country Life on "Wapiti and Wolves on Vancouver Island".

A beautifully illustrated article upon "Wapiti and Wolves on Vancouver Island," appears in the current number of Country Life, the illustrated British weekly. The article is by C. E. Radcliffe, and an extended reference is made to Victoria.

In the course of the article he remarks: "Although wapiti are found in the unmoiled valleys in the northern and central parts of Vancouver Island, they are seldom seen in the southern districts, and this is probably owing to the latter parts being the most thickly populated. The numerous bays and inlets on the West Coast are undoubtedly the best places in which to hunt to-day. The place at which a sportsman will probably first arrive on the island, and where he should finally outfit for an expedition will undoubtedly be Victoria. This charmingly situated, picturesque town with its excellent club and host of good sportsmen living there, will probably savor to a wanderer more of the old country than any other place which he may have visited in British dominions over the seas—a town which my friend Mr. Clive Phillips-Wolley, has recently so aptly described in the following words: 'Victoria is assuredly to-day the greatest gateway to the sportsman's Eden of the North and West, and in her club you will find the tracks of most of the Nimrods of our century.'"

The actual journey from London to Victoria is a mere nothing in these days of fast trips and luxurious transcontinental trains and occupies less than twelve days, during which time the traveller to whom this journey is a novelty will be rewarded with an endless panorama of great cities, vast prairies and lofty mountains as he traverses the great American continent. But many roads lead to Victoria, and the writer finally arrived there in October of the past year by way of the Bering Sea, and North Pacific ocean after having spent this spring and summer in the Arctic regions of Siberia and Alaska.

"Continuing he says: 'Imagine a vast inland arm of the sea, many miles long with several bays separated from each other by lofty timber-clad mountains. In at the head of each bay flows a river, coming in cascades and turbulent rapids from its source far back in the mountains. The river valleys are narrow with high, steep and densely-wooded sides. Here grow gigantic cedars or white pines thickly interspersed with majestic hemlock towering their vast bulk and height exciting the admiration of a spectator. 'Where windfalls have caused the forest giants to lie in tangled masses, endless labor and patience are needed to surmount the obstacles. The valleys are thickly overgrown with dense jungles of prickly devil's club or salmon berry bushes and clumps of alder mingled with dwarf willows, while here and there we come on some small open glades. In such places the wapiti are found. Here they wander for weeks by day and night alternately feeding or lying down to rest, but traversing a very small distance in a day if undisturbed. Hence when the hunter strikes fresh tracks, it behooves him henceforward to keep a sharp lookout as probably by following their tracks he will soon come upon a band of them either feeding or lying down.'"

INSURING AGAINST EARTHQUAKES

As the public seems to be rather "pushed" lately for the benefit of the insurance companies—what with workmen, domestic servants, earthquakes, and what not—I took occasion to re-visit my acquaintance with Professor Milne, the well-known seismologist, and to ask his opinion regarding the latest of these trifling developments—the alleged necessity for insuring against earthquakes. The result is to show that there should be discrimination.

"The idea is not at all new," remarked the professor, in reply to my question in his observatory. "It is certainly twenty years since we first heard about insuring against earthquakes. Of course, there is not only the earthquake itself to consider, but the fires which often arise from very small earthquakes. You have to cover the risks of what the earthquake does by actual shaking, and what it does indirectly by overturning a lamp. If you have an interest in an earthquake country any reasonable man would insure."

"Policies and Building Construction. 'But such policies as I have seen,' added the professor, 'have not been sufficiently comprehensive as regards risks. They don't seem to have information enough about earthquake effects. A small earthquake won't upset a city, but it may overturn a lamp, and so cause a fire in a very distant part of the city. And no regard whatever as to the construction of buildings from an earthquake point of view.'"

"I presume that has special reference to the countries where earthquakes are most common, and, as it appears that the British investor will be asked shortly to put his money into some of them, it would be interesting to know which they are in particular. What about Japan and British Columbia, since those countries are coming forward a good deal?" "Well, you can take, with a few exceptions, the whole short-line of the Pacific, east and west. WHERE JAPAN LAGS BEHIND THE WEST

The attached article, as well as the drawings accompanying it, is the work of B. R. Elliott, a Victoria boy, at present attending the Victoria High school. Mr. Elliott lately visited Japan. Although the Japanese have introduced up-to-date Western improvements into most of their institutions and industries, there are still some directions in which they have made little or no progress. For instance, their method of sawing lumber is still very crude. They have, as yet, introduced means of a narrow grooved piece of board the length of the blade. The sawyers may be seen at work either at regular lumber dealing establishments, or wherever any large building is being erected; for in the latter case most of the lumber used is sawed and planed right on the spot. And it is an interesting sight to see them, large squared timbers tilted high up at one end, with the men (clad in very little besides perspiration) standing on them, or beneath the tilted ends, and sawing away with the regularity of clockwork. It takes about three hours scarcely any of the high grade sawing and planing machinery of our great sawmills. A Japanese sawing machine consists of a tough little Jap, and his peculiar saw. As will be seen from the illustrations, the saw is comparatively wide, being over a foot in width near the joint, thus enabling the sawyer to keep the line easily. The instrument is about two feet long, has backward-pointing teeth an inch long, and is made of sufficiently thick steel to prevent it from bending easily. When carrying his saw to and from work the owner usually protects its teeth by sawing from one end to the other of an ordinary squared timber. Occasionally one of the men stops to have the other end of his log tilted up, or perhaps another finds that his saw needs sharpening, when he squats down on the ground, holds the saw steady between his knees, and is soon scraping away with his file and making noise enough to be heard a block away.

The life of these sawyers is a very hard one, but they make about ten cents a day, which is considered very high wages in Japan. Three years ago they did not receive more than half that amount.

Fees Will Replace Coast Until New Completed

The C. P. R. has set afoot a scheme of enterprise in the West and its development is perhaps not surprising. The big Canadian company is the pioneer in a ship which public anticipation for one of its rivals. It is understood that a fleet of the present month the packet Queen City, a vessel which will make regular trips to a new island with singular incidents, will be transferred to the Queen City. She will run to the Rupert. It is proposed out of that port to Island, which are to-day unsatisfactory. She launches and through the comparatively infrequent service of the Victoria-Vancouver line. In the years in which the ship the Willapa have on this run there has been a great measure to the great vigilance of the coast who remains on the route the West.

This latter, which is a set with good accommodation under the command of the will probably remain on the Coast route until the service intended for that service, the plans are now almost taken her place.

QUEEN CITY FOR PRINCE RUPERT WEST COAST BOAT TO BE TAKEN NORTH

tees Will Replace Her on West Coast Until New Steel Vessel Completed

The C. P. R. has given so many proofs of enterprise in connection with the West and its development, that it is perhaps not surprising to learn that the big Canadian company proposes to be the pioneers in a shipping territory which public imagination has reserved for one of its rivals.

It is understood that about the middle of the present month, the stout little packet Queen City, which has so long served the West Coast of this island with singular immunity from accident, will be transferred to northern waters, and will make her base at the new Grand Trunk metropolis of Prince Rupert. It is proposed to operate her out of that port to islands, and settlements, which are to-day reached only by unsatisfactory trips in small launches and through the medium of the comparatively infrequent coast service of the Victoria-Vancouver lines.

Her place on the West Coast run will be taken by the Queen City, which will make her farewell trip to a coast for which her accommodation is now inadequate, but to which for long she has been the only regular means of transportation. In the years in which she and her twin ship the Willada have been operated in this run, there has been a gratifying absence of serious accidents—due in a great measure to the caution, skill and sleepless vigilance of Capt. Townsend, who remains on the route in charge of the Tees.

This latter, which is a fine steel vessel with good accommodation, will pass under the command of that officer, and will probably remain on the West Coast route until the new steel vessel intended for that service, and for which the plans are now almost complete, takes her place.

DIED IN RESTAURANT. Orders a Dinner He Did Not Live to Eat.

On Saturday about 1.30, Peter Walmisley entered the Montreal restaurant and ordered lunch. While waiting for his order to be filled, those about him noticed that he seemed to go to sleep. A moment later he slid off his chair to the floor. Dr. Robertson was at once summoned, but arrived too late to be of any service. Mr. Walmisley was unconscious when he arrived and did not recover.

summoned, but arrived too late to be of any service. Mr. Walmisley was unconscious when he arrived and did not recover. The body was taken to Smith's undertaking parlors, where it remained for some time unidentified. Deceased was well-known about the city, having for the last few years kept a chicken ranch at Goldstream. He came to the city every week or ten days to dispose of his eggs and butter and was on one of these periodical trips when death overtook him. As far as known he had no relatives in the neighborhood, but lived alone in his little cabin. Deceased was about 73 years old. No inquest will be held as he was under medical attendance when he breathed his last.

WILLIAM ROAF DEAD. Well Known K. C. of Toronto Passed Away at Vancouver.

(From Monday's Daily.) William Roaf, K. C. of Toronto, passed away Saturday afternoon at the residence of his son, J. H. Roaf, corner Jarvis and Davis streets, Vancouver. The late Roaf came to the Coast about four months ago to regain his health which had become somewhat impaired. He was one of the most prominent Free Masons of Canada, having taken the 32nd degree in the Grand Chapter of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, and was a member of the Supreme Council, Past Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Canada, and an officer of the Grand Lodge of Canada. The late Mr. Roaf had visited the Coast on several occasions, not only in his official capacity as one of the heads of the Masonic order, but in the interests of private business.

NO WORK BEGUN. E. & N. Extension Has Not Yet Been Commenced.

(From Monday's Daily.) A report has been in circulation for some time that the C. P. R. had already begun construction on the extension of the E. & N. line from Wallington to Alberni and Comox. R. Marpole, general executive assistant, who is spending the Easter holidays in this city, says that there is no truth in this. The surveys in fact have not yet been completed. Until this work is carried out it will be impossible to begin actual construction. The past winter, owing to the unusually heavy fall of snow has not been the easiest for carrying on survey work. Doubtless this has interfered with the engineers and delayed the completion of the location of the line across the island.

RAILROAD STRIKE MAY BE AVERTED

Managers and Employees May Reach Agreement--Views of Canadian Northern Officials.

Chicago, March 30—Employees of the Western railroads and the general managers are nearer a settlement to-night than they have been since negotiations were broken off several days ago. As a result of conferences today, between Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Knapp and Labor Commissioner Neill and union and railroad officers, the employees announced their willingness to meet the managers, in an effort to bring about a peaceable adjustment of the trouble. A joint conference, it was said to-night would be held to-morrow between the opposing interests in the presence of the government officers. The belief was expressed by men on both sides of the controversy that a way out of the difficulty would be found.

Would Be Far Reaching. Winnipeg, March 30—Mr. A. E. James, general manager of the Canadian Northern Northern Ry., has returned to Winnipeg from Toronto. "I have been in Chicago, where I have been keeping in touch with the situation there. In Chicago all railroads interested are represented at the conference by a sub-committee of ten men. "With regard to the dispute that is now on, I really do not see how the men can refuse to arbitrate, and I am persuaded that they will eventually see the reasonableness of this course. I do not think there will be a strike, for I believe that an amicable settlement will be arrived at before such measures are considered necessary. If such a thing did occur it would be a serious calamity to the whole country, for some 41 roads would be tied up, which it is needless to say, would cause untold suffering, and the entire commercial life of the western country would be thrown into disorder. "It is my opinion that if the men refuse to arbitrate and go out on strike, they will find public sentiment strongly against them. Mr. James further said that if a strike occurred it would affect all Canadian roads west of Port William the same as across the line.

Maple Leaf Carried a Large Party as Far as Port Townsend on Saturday.

The yacht "Maple Leaf" belonging to Mr. McLaren of Vancouver, made a run from here Saturday with a party of about 32 on board, who were the guests of Mr. McLaren. Included in the party were Chief Justice Howell and W. S. Alloway and several other Winnipeg visitors who had come to the coast for the winter. The yacht made the run as far as Port Townsend under sail. The weather was rough enough to make a voyage exciting and was greatly enjoyed by all, none, according to the official log, being sick. The return trip was made under steam.

ROSSLAND CAMP. Preparing to Resume Work on the Jumbo-Ore Shipments.

Rossland, March 30—A force of men has been put to work on the Spitzes, getting it in shape for the thorough system of development that the Le Roi Company, which has the mine under bond, intends to carry out. The hotel is being put in position and the actual work of development will be commenced within the next week. Mr. R. Galusha has raised a considerable sum and will shortly resume work on the Jumbo. Work has been closed down on the Jumbo for several months. The Jumbo was operated for several years, and 10,000 tons of ore shipped from it. It has an immense showing, but needs to be developed on a larger scale, which it is promised will soon be done. Shipments for week follow: Centre Star, 2,320 tons; Le Roi, 2,555 tons; Le Roi No. 2, 225 tons; White bear, 80. Total for week 5,480 tons. Total for year 60,658 tons. The receipts of ore at the Consolidated Smelter at Trail for the week were 5,563 tons.

SMELTER RECEIPTS. Nelson, March 30—The following are the ore shipments and smelter receipts at South Eastern, Kootenai, for the past week and year to date in tons: Shipments—East of Columbia River, 224,828; Rossland—4,218; 42,089; Boundary—25,623; 220,690; Total 34,829, 331,428. Smelter receipts—Grand Forks, 15,330, 123,246; Greenwood, 5,470, 59,695; Boundary Falls, 4,584, 39,843; Nelson, 319, 5,005; Trail, 5,483, 37,115; Northport, 1,066, 17,024; Marysville, 600, 1,800. Total 33,902, 229,803.

PROBABLE ENDED LIFE. Letter Found at Niagara Falls Telling of Writer's Intention to Commit Suicide.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 30—An open letter was found on the Third Sisters Island just above the falls this morning and stated Tamai, 17 Concord street, Brooklyn, reading: "I will commit suicide in this fall." Other letters found are addressed to parties in New York and Indianapolis.

James Lialle, of Valleyfield, Que., a visitor here, reports having seen a man go down the upper rapids this morning. If the Brooklyn man carried out his threat to commit suicide this will make the third life lost by going over the falls since last night.

Disappeared From Brooklyn. New York, March 30—Townsend, who had written the note, lived at a Japanese mission at 17 Concord street, Brooklyn, disappeared suddenly two days ago. Nothing was heard from him until news came from Niagara Falls to-day of the finding of a letter bearing his name and address on the Third Sisters Island. It is believed that the mission that Tamai may have carried out his threat to end his life as he had been despondent for some time because of inability to obtain employment.

NEW SUBMARINES. Quincy, Ill., March 30—Two United States submarines, the Tarantula and Viper, were launched to-day at the yards of the Ford River Ship Building Company. They have been under construction for a year and a half and are the last of four submarines that the company has built. The Tarantula and Viper are each 80 feet in length and 13 foot beam. They are designed to carry a crew of ten men. The contract calls for a speed of ten knots an hour on the surface and eight knots when submerged.

MAY BE REVIVED. Home Secretary Advises the King to Commute Death Sentence on Rayner to Life Imprisonment.

London, March 30—It was announced today that as a result of the popular agitation in favor of a reprieve for Horace G. Rayner, who on January 14th killed Wm. Whitley, the well-known merchant of Westbourne Grove, the home secretary, Mr. Gladstone, has advised the King to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment at penal servitude. The King almost invariably acts on the home secretary's advice, and therefore Rayner's reprieve may be regarded as an accomplished fact. The exercise of mercy is by many considered to be only an additional argument in favor of the abolition of capital punishment.

NORTHERN EXPLORATION. Letter Received by Board of Trade Suggesting Plans.

The following letter from William Moore will be read at a meeting of the Board of Trade executive on Friday next: Victoria, B. C., March 28th, 1907. The President and Members of the Victorian Explorers' Club, I beg to inform you that I have received your letter of the 21st inst. regarding the proposed expedition to the Yukon. I would go from Victoria to Thibet's creek by way of the Stikine river and Dease lake trail, and make that point the base of my operations, as there is no communication for the transport of supplies, etc. From Thibet's creek I would proceed to the head of Dease creek, whence the height of land can be easily gained, and along which I would expect to find good bearing streams. I am interested in the headwaters of the Nisutlin (which never been explored) I would expect to find good bearing streams. The yacht "Maple Leaf" belonging to Mr. McLaren of Vancouver, made a run from here Saturday with a party of about 32 on board, who were the guests of Mr. McLaren. Included in the party were Chief Justice Howell and W. S. Alloway and several other Winnipeg visitors who had come to the coast for the winter. The yacht made the run as far as Port Townsend under sail. The weather was rough enough to make a voyage exciting and was greatly enjoyed by all, none, according to the official log, being sick. The return trip was made under steam.
