DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

In Reply to the Speech From the Throne.

Policy of the Government Regarding South Africa Attacked and Defended.

Promised Autonomy - Rosebery Favors a Passive Policy of Peace-John Redmond Heard From.

London, Jan. 16.-The scene in the gilded chamber of the House of Peers when the King opened parliament was very brilliant. State officers, ambassadors and ministers in handsome uniforms, and peers and peresses in varicolored robes, filled every nook. The King, beneath his robes, wore a field marshal's uniform. The Queen's dress was of black velvet, surmounted by way. a robe trimmed with ermine. The peeresses all wore ostrich feathers in their hair, and were richly clad in evening robes of the most varied colors, white satin, however, predominating. The display of jewels was unusually dazzling. The only departure from the ex-tremely decorous character of the proceedings occurred when the King referred to the humanity of the British troops in South Africa. This led to an unprecedented scene in the House of adoption of the most liberal pro-Lords. Peers and peeresses and high gramme toward Ireland. officers of state broke out into a proof his majesty, but to the apparent dismay of the officials of the house.

Their majestles then retired fanfare of trumpets and attended by the same regal ceremony as accompanied their entry into the house. gate the matter. They were greeted enthusiastically. The King and Queen both looked extremely well. The House of Lords.

The lord chancellor, Earl Halsbury, formally read the King's speech. The Earl of Harrowby (Conservative), in moving the address in reply to the speech from the throne, referred to the non-interference of foreign powers in the South African war, as being evidence of their friendly rela-

The Earl of Lytton, who seconded the motion, congratulated the govern-ment on their more than friendly reations with the United States and the South African republics, and added that, though affairs in Ireland were considered critical, they might safely be left in the hands of the government.

Earl Spencer (Liberal), criticising the address, said that while he recognized the impossibility of granting the Boer demands for independence, yet he deprecated insisting on unconditional surrender. His lordship urged the government to promise the Boers aunomy similar to the governments of ustralia and Canada. THE PREMIER'S REMARKS. Lord Salisbury, whose entrance into the house was greeted with hearty applause, said he was glad to hear Earl Spencer vent an utter-ance, for which he, the premier, had been frequently and unsparingly condemned. It was quite true that there was no possibility of granting the Boers independence. Neither was it the government's business after being gratuitously attacked, to inform the Boers on what terms they would be forgiven, especially since the Boers had not yet expressed a wish to be Lord Salisbury continued forgiven. by defending the martial law in South Africa and urged the opposition to remember they were not dealing with the question whether they could make them forget the issue whether or no Great Britain should be victor in the war. He reminded the opposition that a wrong settlement now would impose grave difficulties and embarrassments upon the nation for many years to Replying to the premier. Lord Rosebery said he favored a passive policy of peace which would receive overtures when these were made, and that in this connection he wished to know the truth of the rumors concerning the visit to London of Dr. Kuyper, the premier of Holland. Had Dr. Kuyper brought such overtures? "Not so far as I know," answered

Lord Salisbury. "Have any overtures been received from the Boer leaders in Europe?" asked Lord Rosebery.

To this question Lord Salisbury answered "No."

LORD ROSEBERY. Lord Rosebery opened an extended criticism by describing King Edward's speech as the most jejune ever placed on the lips of any monarch. The speaker expressed his skepticism as to the motives of the visit to London of Dr. Kuypers, and said: "I do not suppose he came to see the old masters." He twitted Mr. Chamberlain for "trailing his diplomatic coat and inviting anybody to tread upon it," and contended that the name of Great Britain was greater than now, at a time when the now held in hostility abroad compared to which all previous records faded into insignificance. Lord Rosebery commended the words and the spirit of Mr. Chamberlain's reply to the im-perial chancellor of Germany, Count Von Buelow, but expressed his anxiety concerning the constant controversies with Germany and other powers which Mr. Chamberlain's dialectics had excited, and wanted to know where it was going to stop. Lord Rosebery said indulgences in the present methods city and identified as that of James Gallagher, who represented a St. Louis advertising firm.

ed to deem eminently desirable, but to maintain which they would do well to have an overpowering fleet and an efficient army, for other powers were also building fleets. During the course of Lord Rosebery's speech, Lord Salisbury constantly rose to his feet to make corrections or objections thereto, until finally Lord Rosebery said he would not further touch upon topics which seemed to irritate the premier. Lord Lansdowne, foreign secretary, briefly replied to Lord Rosebery, combriefly replied to Lord Rosebery, com-bating the view that Great Britain was hated abroad. Lord Lytton, son of the poet-diplo-matist, seconded the address in reply to the speech from the throne in an able speech, which drew high praise from Lord Rosebery, as "by far the ablest he had ever heard upon such an occasion." After the speech from the throne had been formally read, and the address in reply had been moved and seconded, the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, spoke in general terms against the course of the government in South Africa urging conciliation in place of brute force. The Irish members held their usual decided to move amendments to the throne. Several amendments to essional meeting this afternoon and address in reply to the speech from the address were finally adopted. These included a petition for the revision of the Irish land and taxation laws, protests against the enforcement of the Crimes Act and the operation of certain courts and against the concentration camps in South Africa. Another amendment contained an appeal for the relief of the congested districts and the better housing of the working classes in Ireland.

Are Quick to See THE ONTARIO Good Doctors Are Quick to See and Appreciate Real Merit in New Medicines.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a discovery of great value to the medical profession and the public. They are an unfailing specific in all cases of dyspepsia and disordered digestion. Almost everybody's digestion is disordered more or less, and the commonest thing they do is to take some one of the many so-called blood purifiers, which in many cases are merely strong cathartics. Such things are not needed. If the organs are in a clogged condition, they need only a little help and they will right themselves. Cathartics irritate the sensitive linings of the stomach and bowels and often do more harm than good.

Purging is not what is needed. The thing to do is to put the food in condition to be readily digested and assimilated. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this perfectly. They partly digest what is eaten and give the stomach just the help it needs. They stimulate the secretion and excretion of the digestive fluids and relieve the congested condition of the glands and membranes. They put the whole digestive system in condition to do its work. When that is done you need take no more tablets, unless you eat what does not agree with you. Then take one or two tablets—give them needed help and you will have no trouble.

It's a common sense medicine and a common sense treatment and it will it in a perfectly sensible and scientific way.

We have testimonials enough to fill a book, but we don't publish many of them. However-Mrs. E. M. Faith, of Byrd's Creek, Wis., says: "I have taken all the tablets I got of you and they have done their work well in my case, for I feel like a different person alto-gether. I don't doubt if I had not got them I should have been at rest

H. E. Willard, Onslow, Ia., says:
"Mr. White, of Canton, was telling me of your Dyspepsia Tablets curing him of Dyspepsia, from which he had suf-fered for eight years. As I am a sufferer myself I wish you to send me a tween Rat Portage and Keewatin, also package by return mail."

LEGISLATURE.

Bill to Save Expense Where There Are No Prisoners.

Budget for Next Wednesday-Interim Vote of $450,000 Passed.

Toronto, Jan. 17 .- Yesterday's session of the legislature was brief, and developed no business of great importance. The estimates, in skeleton form, were laid on the table, and Hon. Mr. Gibson introduced a measure to amend the jurors' act. The bill contains some of the clauses of his law reform measure of last session, which was not then passed. Forty petitions from individual Methodist churches and from circuits of the same body, asking for a prohibitory liquor law, were presented.

Hon. Mr. Gibson introduced an act to amend the jurors' act. The bill gives power to the county selectors of jurors to determine that the county courts shall be held at the same time as the high courts, the same jurors to serve for both courts. This, wherever circumstances admitted of its being carried out, would result in considerable saving in fees and mileage allowance. Another clause which will also tend to a reduction of expendi-ture in the administration of justice provides for the rescinding of summonses to jurors, if the cierk of court is satisfied, five clear days before the time for court to sit, that there is no business for the court. The clerk must satisfy himself that there are no prisoners in jail on charges which would necessitate criminal trials. Jurors attending court after receiving such notification will not be paid fees or mileage. Jurors who satisfy the sheriff that they did not receive notification and attend court in good faith will receive mileage allowance and pay for one day.

The premier laid on the table a skeleton copy of the estimates. The house went into committee, with Mr. Graham (Brockville) in the chair, and passed an interim appropriation of $450,000 to meet current expenditure.

The premier said he hoped the esticure every time. Not only cure the mates and the public accounts would disease but cure the cause. Goes about be laid on the table on Monday, in which event he would deliver the budget speech on Wednesday. If they were not presented on Monday the budget speech would be held until Thursday. Col. Matheson (South Lanark) said all he wanted was a couple of days in which to consider the public accounts. The house adjourned at 3:30 p.m. NOTES.

A deputation, headed by Mr. Conmee, and consisting of Mayor Cameron, and W. J. Moran, of Rat Portage, and Mr. N. W. Rowell, of Toronto, waited on Hon. J. M. A Stirring Adventure on the Canton River in China. /

Chinese Attacked Houseboat Manned by a Yankee, an Englishman and a Dutchman.

[San Francisco Chronicle.] C. A. Burckhardt, a sufferer from oullet wounds inflicted by Chinese pirates on the Canton River, is at the Occidental Hotel. He is on his way to Indianapolis, where he has relatives, to undergo surgical treatment for his injuries. Burckhardt, though a young man, has long been a resident of Canton, where he was employed as an inspector and special buyer of silks for a large European house. In July last he and three companions-M. Spalinger, a Swiss; G. E. Hujigen, a Hollander, and V. Hogg, an Englishmen-were bound up the Canton River to Shun Tack in a houseboat owned by Burckhardt. The Canton River houseboat is of peculiar construction. It is much like one of the stern-wheel river steamers so familiar on the shallow streams of America, but the wheel, instead of being turned by a steam engine, is operated by a crew of coolies, who stand watches turning a series of cranks arranged after the manner of a treadmill. For this work on Burckhardt's boat a crew of eighteen Chinese were carried. They were in charge of a boatman, who acted as captain of the craft. Besides there were several servants. All went well until the second night of the journey, when the boat was about 30 miles above Canton, and almost opposite San Young Kee. Burckhardt and his guests had retired soon after midnight, when they were awakened by a shot being fired. A bullet pass-ed through the side of the house on the boat and struck Burckhardt in the left foot as he lay in his bunk. An artery was cut and he bled profusely. All four men at once seized their rifles, but by that time bullets were flying about the boat.

"I was fast losing strength from the wound, and I tore a strip from a blanket and bound it up as best I could," said Burckhardt, in telling the story of the attack. "Before I had my foot bound a stink-pot had been thrown on the roof of the house, and it threatened to set fire to our craft. I climbed up to where it was, but as I reached the place I met the boatman. fumes from the thing were awful, but the defunct German National Bank at Louisville, Ky, who was convicted of embezzling the benkle finds. minutes later from the wound. My companions did good work with their rifles, and after about half an hour they succeeded in driving in a hospital there, and then was sent through the left arm soon after the fight began. The bullet barely missed the bone, but he tied a handkerchief about it and kept in the fight to the last. The Chinese of the crew jump-

our assailants off. Spalinger was shot ed into the water, and most of them clung to the paddles of the wheel. After the pirates had been driven away they reappeared, and with their help we turned the boat back down the river, and about daylight anchor-

"The Chinese government paid Mr. Spalinger and reviself $10,000 each, and also gave the others of the party some indemnity. They also gave the widow of the Chinese boatman that was killed a pension.'

Irritable or Sore Throat

For Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Etc., Catarrhozone Is of Inestimable Value--Relieves Instantly and Cures Permanently.

Public speakers and singers know how useless and sickening are cough mixtures, sprays, lozenges, etc., and state that no remedy compares with Catarrhozone, the advantage of which is that the inhaler is convenient to carry about with you at all times, and is suitable to use in public places.

Catarrhozone's soothing vapor is breathed right to the parts that are affected. It quickly allays irritation and congestion of the mucous membrane, clears the throat, stops coughing and removes soreness more effectually than can be told.

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure bronchial and throat troubles as Catarrhozone. In fact they can't exist but a few hours where it is used, and as a preventive of consumption and pneumonia Catarrhozone has no equal. The following testimonials from well-known ministers furnish abundant proof of the merits of Catarrhozone. Read them and be convinced:

NOW IS YOUR

DISCUSSION

Mr. Foy Evidently "Playing to the Gallery."

Sound Reasons Why the Bill Was Not Railroaded Through the Legislature-The Premier's View of the Crse.

Toronto, Jan. 16. - When Mr. Foy (South Toronto) introduced his "scrap iron" bill in the house on Wednesday, he said he would ask to have it read a first, second and third time, and made law immediately. The bill was intended to declare the meaning of the act, chapter 29, of last session. That act was passed with the express intention of doing away with what was known as the scrap iron method of valuing property for assessment purposes. Mr. Foy read the principal clause of the bill as follows: "Provided that the said property extending over more than one ward shall be valued for the purposes of assessment as real estate of the incorporated company liable to assessment therefor at the actual value thereof estimated at the cost of reproducing and replacing the same for the purpose for which the same is owned, operated or used, and regard being had to the then state of repair and any circumstance affecting such value." Provision was made in the bill to enable assessors to make allowances where different circumstances might impair the value of the plants.

THE PREMIER'S VIEW. The premier said his honorable friend had introduced a most important bill. but had introduced it in a most extraordinary way. He had received on entering the house a copy of what purorted to be the bill, but it had no indorsation upon it, and was not typographically correct. Mr. Whitney-It is not a blank bill, anyway.

Mr. Ross went on to say his honorable friend had spoken for an hour and a quarter in Goderich on the rascality and duplicity of introducing a bill in the house which purported to amend the assessment act in this particular, and which entirely failed of its pur-pose. The government had been held to scorn and ridicule by the honorable gentlemen opposite for their fail-ure to accomplish what they appeared have intended to accomplish. He was very glad to have had such a COMPLETE VINDICATION as he had heard from the member for South Toronto (Mr. Foy). It appeared that the government's good intentions had been misunderstood by the judges of the county court at Toronto and a Ottawa. The city of Toronto had, however, carried the case to the court of appeal for adjudication, where it now remained. It might be argued any day now. The bill was, herefore, really subjudice. They did not know what the decision might e. To pass the bill would be practically taking the matter out of their fidence in them. The government had declared their intention last session, and everybody knew their intention, to amend the act. He had stated repeatedly that if it were found that the bill of last session did not amend the act as it had been intended, they would introduce another bill declaring their intention. His honorable friend was anxious to anticipate the action of the government by asking the house to put through at one sitting the first, second and third readings of a bill only printed a short time ago, and which the members had not had time to consider. Was that thoughtful and care ful legislation? The law officers of the government had not had an opportunity to consider a bill for which the government would have to assume the responsibility. The oppo-sition had complained of railroading legislation through the house in the early hours of the morning. It was just as bad to railroad legislation through in the early hours of the afternoon. If the bill was as important as Mr. Foy said it was, they would give it the ordinary attention they gave to all legislation; in fact, it would receive more than ordinary attention. Mr. Lucas (Center Grey) said they accepted the explanation of the pre-mier that the legislation of last session was introduced in good faith, and that the government really intended it should abolish the iniquity and the gross injustice of the scrap-iron de-

Mr. Gross (Welland) said he was not prepared to support any bill which he had not had time to read or study. MR. WHITNEY.

Mr. Whitney thought it rather remarkable and discouraging that the only objections the premier brought against one of the most important measures which would come before the house this session were that it had no indorsation, had not been printed by the authorized printer, and had a few technical errors. The premier's only other objection was that no harm could come from delay. In regard to the remarks of the honorable gentleman from Welland, he would say that he (Mr. Gross) had voted in the house for more than one bill which he had not read. As Mr. Foy had said, all parties interested had received no-tice, by the plainly expressed declara-tion of the leader of the government and members of the house, as to what the intention had been last session. and no one need be taken by surprise The premier had said that the member for South Toronto was actuated by the desire to obtain cheap popularity. That was a cheap argument. Mr. Foy pleaded guilty to one of the premier's charges in regard to the bill, namely, that nine or ten words were struck out and six inserted. He act as a stimulant to whip up the had not thought of having it printed tired nerves into exhausting action, until that morning, and had then placed it in the hands of a private printer in order to facilitate matters. There was no reason why the bill should have to remain long before the mem-bers. The question had been thoroughly discussed by the house. The intention of the house was well known, and strength. all that remained was to put it into AN OUTRAGEOUS PROPOSITION. Hon. Mr. Garrow (West Huron) said it happened that certain corporations and a large and wealthy municipality were in question. A decision had been Toronto. given, rightly or wrongly, and an appeal was pending. Much of the sympathy and argument deduced had been based on those circumstances. Sup-posing that an ordinary individual, a merchant, the gentleman who had just sat down, for instance (Mr. Crawford), had recovered a judgment on some law of the legislature, and the other side were not satisfied and made an ap-of the house think it would be a proper exercise for the legislature to pass such a bill in that case as the one sought in the situation now confronting them? It seemed to him that a more outrageous proposition had never been submitted to the legislature. It might be hard for the time being on the city of Toronto, but an important principle was involved and it would be a regretable thing if the house permitted the bill to be railroaded through while the appeal was before the court. The better way for the house and for the administration of justice would be to allow the court of appeal to hear and decide on the case before them.

PLAYING TO THE GALLERY. Hon. Mr. Gibson said that the honorable gentleman (Mr. Foy) was, of course, playing to the gallery.
Mr. Foy-I would ask if the honorable gentleman's language is in order. Hon. Mr. Gibson—It is used often on the floor of the house. Mr. Foy-It is ungentlemanly and unworthy of the honorable genue

The Speaker-The expression is often used in the house and out of it as a metaphor. There is nothing unparlia mentary in it.

Hon. Mr. Gibson, continuing, said the extraordinary step taken in introducing the bill was pure fireworks-(government applause and laughter)and nothing else. There was no other object to be attained than the achievement of a little political popularity or capital. No one complained about the introduction of the bill, and no one thought it extraordinary that a gentleman introducing a bill, which he believed to be one of great importance, should give a few words of explanation. But the honorable gentleman' method in this case was most unusual In its present shape the bill was out of order, and almost every rule of the house would be violated if the proposed action as to second and third readings were adopted. The whole course of the honorable gentleman was out of order, and no real, solid reason had been advanced in support of it. (Government applause.)
Mr. Crawford (West Toronto), said the charge of playing to the gallery could never apply, in fairness, to Mr SECOND READING IRREGULAR.

Mr. Foy moved the second reading of his bill. The premier said he must object, as it was contrary to the rules of the

The speaker said the motion for the second reading of the bill was not only unusual in practice, but also irregular and contrary to the well-established rules of the house.

PAN-AMERICAN ARBITRATION. Mexico City, Jan. 16 .- The plan for the adherence of the nations represented at the Pan-American Congress to The Hague convention was introduced by the Chilian delegation yesterday after a statement tending to show the advantages of The Hague convention and the impracticability of compulsor arbitration. From the obstructive tactics of Chili, which were clearly revealed at yesterday's sessions, it begins to be apparent that it will be practically impossible ever to bring either of the arbitration projects to a vote unless some rule resembling the closure the British Parliament is adopted, as the Chilians will continue to talk indefinitely. After attacking throughout the afternoon session the plan of general acceptance of The Hague articles as partly adopted, they finally changed front, dropped their own plan of ac ceptance, and gave their assent to the general plan, but insisted that instead of merely passing through the confer ence it be submitted thereto for debate. They know, it is claimed, that if it is only debated they will be able to delay matters indefinitely, and in the meantime work for the withdrawal of more Central and South American delegations.

With Good Health for Capital-The Great Majority of Canadians Rely on Brain and Muscle for a Livelihood - With Ill-Health All Is Lost.

Canada is a nation of workers. The few who have acquired positions of wealth and leisure have done so through hard work, and the vast mafind it necessary to toil after day, and year after year, to sup port themselves and those depending on them. Their capital is good health. So long as this lasts they are happy and contented, but, alas! too many are robbed of this capital, and find themselves unable to keep up the struggle With no earnings coming in, their small savings are soon exhausted, and want as well as disease stares them in the face. Disease is humanity's most deadly foe. Silently, gradually, it steals upon one, until at length it closes its fangs on its victim, and secretly robs him of energy, ambition and strength. In this age of keen competition, strenuous work and ceasless struggle, it is the nervous system that most readily feels the strain. Nights of sleeplessness, days of tired, languid feelings, depression, discouragement and despondency, neuralgic pains, shattered nerves, weakness and irregularities of bodily organs. These are some of the warn ings of the approach of such serious and fatal diseases as nervous prostration, paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity. Maintaining good health is to the majority of people the most vital question in the world, and nature affords no more efficient strengthener for the system and restorative of the nerves than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Naturally, gradually and certainly it forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, creates new, healthy nerve cells, and puts into the system the snap, energy and vitality that defy the disease.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unlike any treatment you ever used. It does not act as a stimulant to whip up the nor, on the other hand, does it deaden and destroy the feeble nerve tissues, but by filling the shriveled arteries with rich, red, life-sustaining blood, it repairs the waste, and revitalizes and restores the body to health and As a permanent cure for nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, irritability and the weakness and irregularities which accompany an exhausted nervous system, Dr Chase's Nerve Food is unapproached: 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2 50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co.,

The Toronto World is edited by W. F. Maclean, M.P. The World had not much to say yesterday respecting the result of the Dominion bye-elections on Wednesday, but what it did say is not without significance to those who can read between the lines. We quote: "From an Ontario standpoint, the Conservatives can say that they sustained a loss of two seats. One of them West York, a banner Conservative riding, if there was one in the Province. Perhaps it is just as well to let the people, and especially the Conservatives, do their own thinking stand a lot of thinking

The Census, Representation and Redistribution.

According to the figures, the result of the census will be certain changes in the relative number of parliamentary representatives from each Province in the Dominion Parliament. If Ontario is to have six members less than at present, Nova Scotia loses two New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island one each. British Columbia will gain one member; Manithe beginning of that shifting of the center of population to the westward, which in the United States has been increasingly marked with every decennial census, and which must inevitably be the case also in the Dominion. in proportion as the illimitable areas of Canada's Far West become set-

As to Ontario's representation in the Dominion Parliament, we have a good deal of confidence that the development now going on in New Ontario will have a satisfactory tale to tell in the next census.

A most important matter, as growing out of the census returns and results, will be the redistribution of seats. If that matter be not dealt with during this session, it is difficult to see how it can be conveniently delayed longer than the session of next

The New Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

The appointment of Hon. James Sutherland to the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries cannot but give satisfaction to his numerous friends throughout Western Ontario and the Dominion. Mr. Sutherland has been since August, 1899, a member of the Cabinet without portfolio. His altered position, involving, as it does, the acceptance of a salary, will mean a byeelection for North Oxford. Doubtless the formality of election will be by acclamation.

Hon. James Sutherland is of Scotch descent, and was born in the township of Ancaster, Wentworth County, on July 17, 1849. He received his education at the Grammar School of Woodstock, in which town he entered on a markedly successful business career. For some years he devoted himself to municipal affairs and thus received a preliminary training for the broader field of Dominion politics. He was for several years a member of the town council, occupying the office of reeve from 1877 to 1879, and that of mayor for one term in 1880. The death of the sitting Dominion member for North Oxford opened the way for his entrance to the House of Commons, and in December, 1880, he was elected to represent the constituency. He has continued to represent North Oxford ever since, being re-elected at every contest by large majorities. From 1891 to 1900 Mr. Sutherland discharged the duties of chief Liberal whip with marked success. The direction of the Liberal organization in federal politics terial to make good settlers. was created a member of the Cabinet many thousands of men and women without portfolio. Mr. Sutherland had possessed of their temperament and Dr. Chase's Ointment franchisement of that part of the community most keenly allied to the charge of the Department of the In- predilections. They not only work for terior from April to August, 1900, during Hon. Mr. Sifton's absence, and was acting Postmaster-General during several months of last year while Mr. Mulock was representing Canada in Australia. In both capacities his work was carefully and conscientiously performed. Mr. Sutherland has always taken a keen interest in the Canadian militia and enjoys the rank of major in the 22nd Battalion, Oxford Rifles. He is connected with several commercial companies.

Prohibition — Tempering Zeal

With Wisdom. The most prominent and responsible leaders in the Methodist Church approach the question of prohibition in a spirit in which zeal is tempered with the wisdom born of experience. These men of light and leading are agreed that the enactment of a prohibitory law not clearly backed by an overwhelming public opinion, would ultimately injure, rather than advance, the temperance cause. The Christian Guardian of this week says: "Temperance zeal should be tempered with wisdom, supported with facts, and made patent by the steady and sure progress of our cause. Intemperate language from temperance speakers, and impatient haste on the part of temperance workers, are elements of weakness always and everywhere. The world and the church are both learning that 'total abstinence' from intoxicating liquor, as a general rule of life, is not a cranky notion or a dreamy wisdom and strength. The railroads dence, and keep your powder dry." and electric tramways have learned it at the cost of many serious accidents; the factories are learning it in the keen field of competition, the absolutely sober workman surpassing all others; the insurance companies are discerning it in their statistics as to health and longevity. The organized and intelligent ranks of artisans are discerning that the highly-painted privilege of convenient and cheap drinks is a delusion and a snare-a plot against the workman and against his family. Practical prohibition has been cautiously but firmly, gradually and successfully introduced into the management of many railroads. Practical prohibition has been increasing its area and effectiveness gradually throughout Canada, and, if it is not unwisely rushed or unfairly treated,

In all great questions, moral or economic, there are generally, and necessarily, to be found three types: (1) The fiery agitator, who usually goes beyond that which is practicable, and yet does real good by presenting vivtoba, three; the Northwest, two; and idly the most radical point of view; reform, who compels consideration; (3) the great intermediate mass of men and women of moderate opinions. Whichever of the two sides first mentioned can bring over to itself the great intermediate class mentioned, can measureably attain its will and desire. But to impress this large intermediate element, it is necessary, as the Christian Guardian hints, to temper zeal with wisdom.

it will win the whole Dominion."

Mr. W. S. Calvert, M.P., in West York.

Among those who took an active and influential part in the West York election was Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P. for West Middlesex. The newspapers compliment him highly on the ability of his platform presentations of the Liberal side of the argument before the electors. In one address, as illustrating the broadmindedness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, we observe that Mr. Calvert pointed out that out of the three ministers with portfolio, whom he called to his cabinet from Quebec, one was a French Catholic, another a French Protestant and a third an English-speaking Protestant. Replying to Mr. Foster's criticisms of the government for not sending the contingent sooner, Mr. Calvert said that within eighteen days after Mr. Kruger declared war the contingent was on the Atlantic, and reminded the audience that the Conservative Government had private dwellings, and the legality of not sent a contingent to assist the mother country when there was necessity for assistance in the Soudan. Mr. Calvert, as chief Liberal whip in the Dominion Parliament, must feel much gratified with the sum total of Wednesday's pollings.

It is expected that at an early day there will be a large influx of Swedes into Northwestern Ontario, where much good land is yet waiting to be cultivated, and into the Northwest. A leading citizen of New York-a Swedish nobleman by birth-is acting for a large number of Swedish and Norwegian people, now resident in New York State, who, judging by the success of farming under the new order of things in Canada, believe they could greatly improve their condition by coming to the Dominion. The new comers will be heartily welcome. They are the right kind of ma- of the household? The Manitoba Liquor Act.

[Toronto Globe.] A careful reading of the Manitoba liquor act reveals it to be a sincere and honest effort to deal with the liquor traffic to the full extent of the constitutional powers of the province. It is a misnomer, however, to call it a prohibition law, unless that phrase could be applied to all of the legislation intended to restrict the liquor traffic. The existing license law, for example, 'prohibits" the sale of liquor except in the prescribed places. Similarly, the Manitoba law prohibits the sale of liquor except in prescribed places and under prescribed circumstances. The difference is in the extent of the phonibition. Roughly stated, the act prohibits the wholesale or retail sale of liquor within the Province of Manitoba as a beverage. The bar and the club, as a drinking-place, are both in effect declared illegal, and every man who deplores the evils wrought by intemperance would hail this gladly if there were more confidence that something equally, as bad did not take their Whether this is to be feared will doubtless cause a difference of opinion, but at all events it will tend to clearer thinking on the subject if it is kept steadily in view that the act, while it suppresses the bar and the drinking-club, would not interfere with the drinking of intoxicants in the Province of Manitoba. The act expressly recognizes the legality of keeping liquor in obtaining such liquor from points outside the province. Any resident of Manitoba could have his cellar stocked with all the intoxicants known to the trade and be strictly within the law. The only restriction is that he must not sell any of them. The liquor dealer outside the province could legally send in all the liquor for which he could find purchasers. Indeed, it is arguable that he could send travelers to solicit orders without breaking the provisions of the law. This is a defect in the law which is unavoidable, because the impositions of restrictions on any mercantile transaction between citizens of two different provinces would be an interference within the sphere of federal authority. This weakness in the act is therefore inherent, and must characterize any such act enacted by a provincial legislature. Whatever view may be taken of the enforcibility of the act, no one will deny that this unrestricted ingress of liquor from outside would greatly inrease the difficulties and introduce elements into the problem that would the press that the referendum is naturally occasion much discussion. de-legalizing it in the tavern? THE CONSTITUTION.

The committee on organization retired and reported as follows: The followconstitution was unanimously adopted: 1. This organization shall be known as the London Prohibition League. 2. The object of this organization shall be to secure united action on the part of all temperance workers along national, provincial or municipal lines for the total prohibition of the liquor traffic. 3. The following officers and representatives shall constitute the executive of this society: President, three vice-presidents, secretary, and treasurer; one representative from each temperance society, church and young people's organization in the city.

The following are the officers: President, Prof. James H. Bowman; first vice-president, Rev. Dr. Johnston; second vice, Rev. D. S. Hamilton; third Rev. T. S. Johnson: secretary Mr. D. A. McDermid; treasurer, F. H.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows: 1. That inasmuch as the people of Ontario have by their votes on two occasions decided overwhelmingly in favor of the prohibition of the li quor traffic, and that the gov ernment, by repeated pledges extending over a period of eight years, has stated it to be its policy to give prohibition to such extent as is within its power to grant, and that prohibition of the liquor traffic is in accordance with the principles of righteousness and truth, and that the recent decision of the privy council recognizes the right and power of the legislature to enact laws prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor within the province; therebe it resolved that this convention urge upon the government the redemption of those pledges forthwith, and enactment in accordance with those pledges of such prohibitory legislation as is within its jurisdiction. "Recognizing the fact that on two occasions the sentiment of the country has been unmistakably recorded in favor of prohibition of the liquor of the question to the people is both inadvisable and unnecessary.

Mr. Gordon Wright, speaking on the attitude of the public press, accused The Advertiser of handling the subject of prohibition in an unfair way, referring particularly to a short editorial which appeared recently, which he was good enough to state that he considered absurd in the extreme. Rev. C. T. Scott expressed the belief that editors had a right to control their papers as they pleased. He had seen statements in the three local papers, from which he found it necessary to dissent. He thought, however, it would be well to secure the co-operation of the newspapers as far as possible. He advised his audience, when addressing letters to the public through the medium of the press, to always sign their names. Anonymous letters are not ikely to receive any attention, shelvng as they do the responsibility of their contents on the editor and removing it from the shoulders of the > Authorities Acted With Commendable Energy When the Disease Was Discovered.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ailsa Craig, Jan. 17.-The two cases of smallpox that developed last week are causing much talk, and a few nervous people are almost prostrated at the appearance of a stranger in the village, but the sensible folk have obeyed the proclamation and have been vaccinated, and trust to the board of health to prevent the disease spreading. Both Atkinson and Cassidy are doing very well. There is not the least cause for fear. Business is going on the same as ever, and the board of health deserve praise for the feeling of confidence that prevails. The action of the board might be copied with profit by other municipalities. On Jan. 9, at 9:45 p.m., W. E. Atkinson was discovered with the disease, and at 10:30 p.m. the house was quarantined; at 11 p.m. the house was placarded and Dr. Bryce asked to send Dr. Hodgetts for advice. On Jan. 10 the schools were closed. Dr. Hutchinson visited the place on this date and confirmed local physicians' diagnosis, and vaccinated all inmates of the house, while the council was requested to enforce section 15 of the vaccination act and arrange for policing the house. At 8 p.m. the proclamation for compulsory free vaccination was issued. On Jan. 11 at 16:30 the board of health met and decided to close churches and Sunday schools, and in the afternoon bills were posted ordering residents to submit to vaccination.

At 2 p.m. Clifford Cassidy, of McGillivray, was discovered in the village by the medical health officer with every symptom of smallpox, and ordered to return home. At 3 p.m. Dr. Sutton pronounced on the case, quarantined the family and appointed N. McAlpine special sanitary policeman, who immediately entered on the discharge of his duties. Three hundred persons were vaccinated between Jan. 11 and 16. The school children vaccinated last year

AMERICAN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The grain pits went "margin mad" today. Ever since the raid on Phillips last Monday, brokers have been demanding the margins to the limit, for fear they might be caught in other failures. Rumors that several firms were in dire straits were circulated late yesterday on the curb, some say with a view to depressing prices. The bears seized these rumors today as cudgels to beat down the weaklings, and succeeded in raiding prices. The bulls, however, jumped at the opportunity to buy in at the low prices, and with heavy covering by the shorts, supported the market to a fairly steady tone. May wheat closed unchanged, March corn %c lower, and May oats 4c down; provisions lost a shade to 20c. Local receipts of wheat were 4l cars; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 440 cars, making a total wheat were 41 cars; Minneapons and Duluth reported 440 cars, making a total for the three points of 481 cars, against 523 cars last week and 371 cars a year ago. MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Robert. B. Mantell as "Richelieu" at the Grand.

Mr. Robert B. Mantell brought his company to the New Grand last night for a return engagement. The bill presented was Bulwer Lytton's classic "Richelieu," a play which has probably furnished more popular quotations than any other save one of Shakespeare's. The audience was a rather small one, due probably to the profusion of attractions for the week. Mr. Mantell compared favorably in his conception of the indomitable and crafty old statesman who, in spite of the machinations of enemies and the encroachment of age and weakness, rises triumphant above the tangle of plot and counterplot, and resumes his firm grasp upon the helm of state. He was particularly effective in the scene where he simulates death in the third act, and in the closing scene, receiving repeated curtain calls. Miss Marie Booth Russell, as Julie de Mortimer, shared with Mr. Mantell the favor of the audience. Others worthy of men-tion were W. J. Bowen as De Mauprat, Mark Price as Baradas, A. H. Hastings as Joseph, Ella Harmon as Marion De Lorne, and Mary McGregor

SARAH COWELL LEMOYNE

TONIGHT. Patrons of the drama in this city will tonight have the opportunity of witnessing at the New Grand a presensation of Mrs. LeMoyne's new play, "The First Duchess of Marlborough," whose name should be a guarantee of excellency. That Messrs. Liebler & Co. have confidence in "The First Duchess of Marlborough" is evidenced by the fact that they have selected it from among the number of plays written for her as the one for her season's opening. The good opinion of the management was confirmed at the very first rehearsal of the play, it is claimed, and each successive rehearsal but added to it, which it is but fair to say can be safely accounted a compliment to the cast as well as a tribute to the play. The title of the new play is a sufficient indication of its character, for the period in which lived, flourished and fell John Churchill, the first duke of Marlborough, and in which schemed and ruled his imperious wife, Sarah Jennings, is perhaps the most interesting in English history. "THE DAIRY FARM" TOMORROW. "The Dairy Farm," the successful pastoral play, will be presented at the New Grand tomorrow matinee and evening. (Over 1,000 reserved seats are offered at the matinee for 25 cents.) This charming work is from the pen of Miss Eleanor Merron, and brings with it the remarkable record of having been presented at 109 performances in New York (being the longest run ever accorded to an American author's first play), 137 consecutive performances in Philadelphia (the only play ever produced in that city that

The costumes are of the same time, and will no doubt be remembered by the older theater-goers. Miss Merron has introduced many characters familiar to village life, including the country squire, the village postmaster, the miser, the country peddler, the plowboy hero, and the poorhouse girl hero-

A BIG DRAWING CARD. In cities where Thomas P, Kelly's Big Lady Minstrels have appeared the press have been generous in their praise of this company. The Philadelphia Times says: "Thos. P. Kelly's big beauty show, the famous Lady Minstrels, was the card that packed the big Grand Opera House to the doors last night, and a better pleased audience never left the building. Every feature on the bill was clean, bright and original, the comedians were real fun-makers, the singing away above the average, the costumes gorgeous, the climaxes and situations up-roariously funny, while the show car-ries, without doubt, the youngest and prettiest chorus girls on the stage." This company comes to the London Opera House for matinee and evening

THE BYE-ELECTIONS

Opposition Candidate Elected in Laval, Que. -- Campbell's Majority in West York, 147.

Kingston, Jan. 17 .- Mr. Harty's majority was 732. The official announcement occurs on Saturday. Montreal, Que., Jan. 16.-It now turns out that Mr. Leonard, the Conservative candidate in Laval county, is elected by a majority of eighteen. Such is the statement given by the returning officer, M. Paquet, who explains that the error giving Mr. Wilson, the government candidate, a majority was caused by a verbal report of the voting in St. Rose, accepted at first as correct, and found to be erroneous after the officer had himself verified the count. The vote was: Leonard, 1,671; 1,653-majority for Leonard over Wilson, 18.

DISBANDING IRREGULARS

Menne's Scouts No More-Other Natal Corps to Follow Suit.

Thrilling Scenes Mark the Departure of the Guards' Reinforcements En Route to South Atrica.

London, Jan. 16 .- A Maritzburg dispatch to the Daily Mail reports that Menne's Scouts have been disbanded there, and other irregular corps are expected to follow suit shortly. THRILLING SCENES.

at an early hour this morning to unrestrained enthusiasm, when the Guards' reinforcements left their barracks en men tramped through the dark streets of the metropolis at 6 o'clock in the morning, accompanied by an uproar-ious mob of civilian friends, singing songs to the accompaniment of bands. The songs and music, however, did not drown the crying of women, who clung to the necks and arms of almost every man of the contingent. It is announced here that Lord Kitchener has been authorized to expend £835,000 for the extension of railroads in South Africa, Lord Kitchener having arrived at the conclusion that this course would materially aid in the subjugation of the Boers.

TALK OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS. A strong belief prevailed in financial circles here late today that negotiations for peace had been reopened between the leading Boers and the British Government. South African stocks rose in sympathy with the reports.

"No National Bank."

From the New York Times.] One of those thoughtful women who present a $10 bill on a street car for their five-cent fare received a lesson the other day which she is not apt to forget. She handed the bill to the conductor with an air of innocent unconcern which was just a little too pronounced to be natural. The conductor, a young fellow, unlike most of his kind, made no protest. The wo-man looked relieved, in spite of herself, as he accepted the money and retreated to the rear platform of the car to make change. It was fully ten minutes later before the young man strode into the car, holding both hands before him, so as to form a cup. "Here you are, Madam," he announced in a loud voice, which attracted the attention of the other passengers. 'Here's the change for that $10 bill.

I'd advise you to count it, and make sure it's all right." Saying this he opened his hands and poured a stream of dimes, nickles and cents into the woman's lap. "Oh, oh!" gasped the woman, as she gathered up her dress to prevent the coins falling on the floor. "Why, this is dreadful. I can't get all this money in my purse. Haven't you larger change than this " "No, mam," responded the conductor promptly. "That's the best I can do."

"But I thought you would give me bills," protested the woman.
"I'm sorry, Madam," said the conductor, "but you had no right to think so. I ain't no national bank."

The variety of furs offered at this sale are very expensive, and at the opening sales yesterday the bidding was very spirited. Many of the excellent furs sold at bargain prices. Seal jackets sold from $138 to $153, and Persian lamb jackets from $70 to $98. The furs are all guaranteed by Messrs. Cummings & Sellars. The auction roms were crowded with bidders, and will probably continue until the end of the sale

THE IMPERIAL LIFE

Another Most Successful Year Added to the Company's Record.

Substantial Increases in Every Department Mark the Opening Year of the Twentieth Century.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—The annual meeting of the Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada was held today, its president, Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat, lieutenant-governor, in the chair. A few days ago, at the opening of the legislature, his honor congratulated the province upon the abundant evidences of prosperity throughout the land. In his presidential address today he stated that he had the gratification of congratulating the Imperial The populace of London gave vent Life Assurance Company upon its marked and substantial progress. The report submitted evidenced that the company had again added another successful year to its unexcelled recroute to South Africa. The Guards- ord. New life insurance applications, amounting to $3,974,000 were received. The number of policies issued exceeded that of any previous year, and the amount thereof was considerably in excess of that for 1900. The more important items in the statement, comlows:

The fact that the number of applications rejected was unusually large, and that the death losses have been less than were expected, show that much care has been exercised by the medical department in the selection of lives. The company's funds, now amounting to $1,339,804, have been carefully invested by the executive, as attested by the fact that the company has never lost a dollar through an investment; that no investment causes the company the least anxiety and that the average rate of interest earned during 1901 was 5.39 per cent. The net addition of over $2,000,000 to the total assurances increases that item to the $11,236,700 in force on Dec. 31, 1901, and proves the satisfactory character of the business secured by the com-pany. The method employed in determining the reserves is an index that company's motto: "First and Paramount-Absolute Security holders" shall be a reality. I am, therefore, confidently enabled to say, in moving the adoption of the report, that all essentials to the upbuilding of a strong, progressive and substantial company are embodies in the Imperial Life." The first vice-president, Mr. A. E. Ames, who followed, said: perial's progress would best be gathered from the following comparisons taken from recent annual reports:

the Imperial Life has made rapid and steady progress. In every one of the above six cardinal items each year pecially with respect to reserves for policies and annuities." Mr. Geo. R. Hamilton, of this city, whose offices are in the Huron and Erie Building, upstairs, is manager for Children and Newspapers. deals with ancient and medieval times.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.] In a recent article in a current magazine there is a protest against the newspaper-reading child. "It is a deplorable fact that of late years a number of excellent magazines for children have been discontinued," says the writer, who goes on to show that the vogue of the newspaper has shortened the term of childhood and made it impossible to maintain juvenile periodicals.

It is impossible to prevent a boy or a girl from learning the facts of life. They come, prematurely perhaps, in a hundred ways outside the columns of the ordinary newspaper. Much premature knowledge is gathered at school. The streets, the theater, the public conveyances—all furnish sights and scenes that reveal much to the inquiring youthful mind. While it is to be regretted that the accounts of crimes and murders must be printed, these are actualities and cannot be ignored. The child that is old enough to read about what is happening in the world is old enough to begin to understand something of the many-sided phases of humanity. The ephemeral contents of the daily paper present much that is instructive. Indeed, in some schools, the lessons in current events are as important as any not less instructive than that which Instead of forbidding children to read newspapers, parents should choose the best journals and teach their children to read about matters of general interest. Critics may sound the alarm, but it is vain to prevent the newspaper-reading child from existing. Since he has been evolved, it is well to respect his existence and to supply him with the best intellectual food for his twentieth century mind.

LATE LOCAL ITEMS

-The Hon. F. R. Latchford was in the city today and spent three or four hours on business with Mr. S. R. Brown.

-Telford Parkinson, Thedford, has left for Chatham, where he intends to take a thorough course in shorthand in the Canada Business College. -Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Climie, of Winnipeg, Man, have been spending a few days in the city, the guests of Mrs. Kirk, 392 Adelaide street. -Miss Ella Bartlett, of Stanley street, would like it understood she is connection with yesterday morning's police court proceedings.

-The scheduled meeting of No. 2 committee was not held last night, Ald. Cooper having business interests to attend to. The meeting will be held before the council meeting on Monday. -The Evening Waltz Club entertained their many friends to a very pleasant dance at the Palace Academy last evening. Over a hundred young peo-ple were in attendance and all enjoyed a choice programme of the latest music. -Detective Ward, acting on instructions from High Constable McLoud.

yesterday arrested Albert Summers, of fects. Squire Lacey remanded him for a week.

OFF TO WATFORD.

The hockey team of St. John's Athletic Club leave tonight for Watford, where they expect to procure a new scalp for their collection. The train will leave the Grand Trunk depot at 7:55 p.m., and all members of the team are requested to be at the depot not later than 7:30.

FINED FOR SUNDAY WORK. In police court this morning D. Frezell and C. Lewis, barbers, were charged with following their avocation on the Lord's day. The latter pleaded guilty and the former was found guilty. Both were fined $20 and $1 85 costs.

AN ATTRACTIVE SALE. The big graniteware sale at Woods' Fair has been a pronounced success. The buying has been going on steadily all this week, and many lines have entirely disappeared. For particulars regarding the bargains for Saturday, see their two-column advertisement in tonight's paper. ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY. On Wednesday morning last Mrs. Edward Byrne, of 280 Thames street, was walking down stairs with a lighted lamp in her hand, when she fell, dropping the lamp. Prompt action on the part of members of the family saved her from being seriously burned, and she escaped with bruises on the face and body. She will be confined to her bed for several days. RETURNED TO LONDON. Mr. Adam Scott, son of Mr. Thos. Scott, and formerly employed in the freight department of the G. T. R. here, arrived home from California Tuesday night. Mr. Scott left for California some time ago to accept a lucrative position there, but was compelled, by a serious illness, to return home. He sailed from San Francisco for Vancouver on the Umatilla, a sister ship of the ill-fated Walla Walla, which left a week later on her disastrous voyage. At Vancouver he visited relatives for a time, and later, in crossing the Rockies, encountered, at Glacier House, a snowslide which moved the C. P. R. bridge fully eight feet from its original position, and all but carried it away. At Winnipeg Mr. Scott stopped for a time with

AN ANNUAL DIFFICULTY

Tardy Taxpayers Cause Collector Trouble.

Is Threatening Legal Action to Force Payments.

McMechan Charges To Be Investigated Next Week-The Pocock Protest.

Tax Collector Hayes is learning that in the matter of tardy taxpayers, this Every year he finds it necessary, because of willful neglect of duty on the part of many citizens, to hold his books open for months after they should be closed. He institutes a course of dunning that entails an immense amount of extra work, and is, in all respects, a thankless occupation. Mr. H yes has evolved a system which in the past has been worked successfully -he finally gets the money, but at a loss of considerable time and energy. It embraces a series of notifications, the tone of which ranges from the mildly authoritative to the extremely irate. He first lets the delinquent know how very glad the collector would be if he would kindly condescend to comply with the regulations, which say that men who will persist in owning property must decrease their store of filthy lucre at certain intervals. The last communications speak very positively about bailiffs and much unpleasantness. Just now Mr. Hayes is at the happy medium in the matter of not the Ella Bartlett mentioned in style. He is telling the people who are still indebted to the city that they must pay, and reminds them that if they don't pay, they are subject to distraint without further notification. past years the promise of legal action has been remarkably efficacious, and doubtless will be this year. The peculiar thing about these arrears is that it the men who are supposed to be in affluent circumstances whose names form the major part of the list. The total unpaid now amounts to $30,000. Both sides interested in the coming investigation into the McMechan charges are confident that when it is concluded they will receive the verdict. The gossip about the city hall is frequently upon this subject. The talk Westminster, charged by his wife with generally is to the effect that Ald. Mcdestroying a quantity of household ef- | Mechan is not the man to talk rashly, and that the investigation may discover some interesting situations. City Engineer Graydon, on the other hand, is sure as can be that Ald. McMechan will not be able to make his charges good. The matter is now in the hands of No. 1 committee, which meets tonight, but it is improbable that this matter will be considered, further than to decide to meet in special session for this purpose. In all likelihood the investigation will be begun next week. It is said that both parties would pre-fer that the evidence were taken under oath, but this, according to law, is out of the question. City Engineer Graydon said this morning that he "would not believe McMechan even if he were under oath." Ald.McMechan said, when spoken to on the subject, that he had nothing to say about it. The engineer. he said, was the aggressor, and with No. 1 committee would have to take first action. He will not attend tonight's meeting.

The manufacturing committee will organize tomorrow night. The meeting will be interesting, as it will mark the resuscitation of the beet sugar question. Another effort will be made to arouse a positive interest in it. Ald. McMechan is one of the prime movers in the work of revivication. Since the project of a sugar beet factory first became locally prominent he has shown much interest in it, and he does not intend, after all that has been done in regard to it, to allow the idea of a factory to be entirely lest. The season for manufacturing sugar from beets is now nearly over. Ald. McMechan's opinion is that before it closes, a visit should paid to Michigan to study the situation there. It is for the purpose of considering the advisability of sending deputation to Michigan that the meeting is being called. Mr. John W. Pocock was asked today if he intended to press his protest against Mr. J. W. Little's election as water commissioner. "I prefer to say nothing about it,"

Mr. Pocock replied. "Have you dropped it?" he was ask-

"MONKEYS I HAVE MET." Prof. R. L. Garner, the American professor of the Simian language, is again in England on his way back to America after a long visit to the African jungle, where he has been studying again the habits of the ape. The professor has been lecturing at West Kirby, near Liverpool, to small audiences. His hearers say he gave them no real examples of Simian oratory, but told them that he had recorded some apish utterances on a phonograph cylinder and had tabulated them. Garner predicts that he will yet appear on the lecture platform along with two apes, all three speaking English.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT. London, Jan. 17.—The action of Miss Portia Knight against the Duke of Manchester for breach of promise of marriage has been settled for $15,000, exclusive of £3,000 costs. Miss Knight venge. Her solicitors, however, considering the duke's bankrupt condition, persuaded her to settle the case out of court. The Mail and Empire is informed that the case hinged on verbal promises. The witnesses included a hotel-keeper and a doctor. The duke met Miss Knight soon after her arrival in London, and their friendship was ripened by Miss Knight's serious illness in her Westminster flat, the result of a fall in the Hotel Cecil. The duke, protesting good intentions, insisted upon nursing her. He proved apt and assiduous. His nursing resulted in mutual affection, and the first promise of marriage was made, After her recovery Miss Knight entered a convent connected with the Brompton Oratory. The duke followed her, and brought her out, under promise of marriage, and engaged rooms for her at St. Ermin's Hotel, as his flance. He then went to Paris, and the next thing she heard about him was that he had married Miss Zimmerman. There is no insinuation of any misbehavior on the part of the duke beyond his breaking his word.

Mr. Ephraim Ellwood Passed Away at Byron Yesterday Noon.

One of the oldest pioneers of Middlesex passed away yesterday at noon in the person of Mr. Ephraim Eilwood, of Byron, father of Mr. Oliver Ellwood, of the London waterworks department. Mr. Ellwood was born in Lexington, New York State, and moved with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Ellwood, to Lambeth, when a small boy. The family resided there for some years, after which they moved to Byron, of which place Mr. Ellwood had been a resident for over 50 years. He was the oldest surviving member of a family of twelve children. He was 78 years of age, and had been married three times. He is survived by his wife and three of her children, two sons known the county over than Ephraim Ellwood. He was a member of the Methodist Church and a staunch Liberal in politics.

The funeral takes place on Sunday at Byron. Rev. T. Wesley Cosens, of Westminster, will conduct the services.

Disqualified by Reason of Extreme Old Age.

Suffering From Deafness and Mental Incapacity-Parliament May Be Asked to Consider the Advisability of Their Removal.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawwa, Ont., Jan. 16.-It is understood that it is the intention of some members of the House of Commons and the Senate to present an address for the removal of certain judges who ought to have had sufficient sense of responsibility and good taste long ago to have retired. CHAPTER III.

Hugh rose from his seat and passed his fingers through his hair. Miss Raymond entered the drawing-room through the glass door that open-ed upon the terrace; and her old playmate saw at once that his presentiment had turned out to be correct; and that she was something very nice indeed.

But descriptions of people, though they are to a certain extent unavoidable, are always tedious, and never quite satisfactory. No one ever learned to know a person from the best description. And a person from the best description. And yet, on the other hand, without some amount of personal description, character would be unintelligible altogether. Fortunately, however, Miss Raymond belonged to a large and easily described type. She was young-just of age, according to Miss Clare—and with her tall but well-developed and graceful figure, bright, but not too clear complexion, gray hazel eyes, brown hair and not too regular features; and, best of all, with her bright and open expression and ready her bright and open expression and ready smile, was in appearance all that a young English girl ought to be, and still is sometimes. It need only be added that one who is not an amateur of this style of beauty might, with some reason, have asked for a little more warmth and richness, in expression as well as in coloring. But this is a matter wholly of individual taste. After all, if freshness and purity suggest coldness, it only follows that a certain amount of coldness is not to be despised. It is absurd to quarrel with England because it has not at the same time both green fields and a her bright and open expression and ready at the same time both green fields and a

"I hope your solitary stroll has not tired you," said Miss Clare. "Let me introduce my nephew to you—Hugh, you "I hope Miss Raymond will not need an introduction," said the latter, politely. "I can assure you, Miss Raymond, that I have not forgotten our old acquaintance, which is, after all, not so excessively old."

"Nor have I, and I am delighted to renew it." She had a very sweet voice, with an honest ring about it, as though she used it only to say the whole of what she meant, and never a word more or less.

"Which, after all, is the great use of travel, is it not?" said Miss Clare.
And so the three dropped into a pleasant, ordinary sort of chat, in which, however, Miss Clare did little but listen.
How penhew—he may as well 'e called however, Miss Clare did little but listen. Her nephew—he may as well 'e called what he was called by every ody—and her guest found plenty to say to one another, for neither was of a silent nature, and Hugh passed altogether a very much more lively evening than he had expected, for, with his out-of-door nature, he could not help finding his aunt's quiet and usually solitary evenings a little wearisome. If he had to give up the rest of the London season, as now seemed probable, the presence of the young lady, he thought, would render his canvass much less dull, especially as she had declared herself to be passionately fond of riding. She was now, as she had declared herself to be pas-sionately fond of riding. She was now, he learned, living in London with a dis-tant relation who had been one of her guardians during her minority; but that she hated town—so she said, at least— and fully intended that New Court, of which she was mistress in her own right, heald for the future see a great deal of uld for the future see a great deal of should for the future see a great deal of her. Altogether their tastes seemed to match in a most remarkable manner, except with regard to the pleasure of town. Even had he not seen that she was something much better, he would have given her a high place in his good opinion, as "a girl with no nonsense about her."

about her."

Was Miss Clare a match-maker? It was not her way to do anything unusual without some definite purpose, and the presense of a guest at Earl's Dene was something very unusual. But Hugh was not given to speculation; and it can only be said that, if she had any plan in her head about him and Alice Raymond, and if she succeeded in carrying it out, it would be all the better for Hugh. Wives like the mistress of New Court are not found every day—no, nor often in a lifelike the mistress of New Court are not found every day—no, nor often in a lifetime, seeing that she was young, pretty, amiable, lively, accomplished, of good birth, rich, with no relations, and completely mistress of herself and of her purse. But this by the way.

At last the evening drew to a close, and the two ladies retired, leaving Hugh to stroll about and enjoy his cigar in the pleasant night air: for, since he had been in London, he had fallen into a habit of crowning the day in a manner which was by no means universal in times when a

Madam Clare was ignorant of this habit of his, for she had never mentioned it to him, and it is very certain that she would have objected to so foreign an innovation most strongly.

In spite of his long conversation with his aunt upon the subject, his head was by no means overflowing with politics as he enjoyed this gift of a Peninsular friend of his. He was in that pleasant frame of mind that is caused by the influence of a good dinner, a pleasant evening, bodily fatigue, and the exchange of the noise of town for country evening, bodily fatigue, and the ex-change of the noise of town for country quietness. Earl's Dene was simply the quietest place in the whole world—just fit, in fact to be the dwelling-place of the very old and the very young; and though its heir was not of an age to ap-preciate perfect repose for long together, atill there is no time of life at which a sudden plunge into a bath of silence is not refreshing, and, for a few hours, the most delightful thing in the world. And so he found it, while, in that most pleasant of all mental conditions which is called thinking of nothing, he looked from the terrace over the broad green park, over the spire of the little church of Graylford, over the silver Grayl itself. of Graylford, over the silver Grayl fixel, now in the moonlight more silver than ever, and over the tall woods, which had but just exchanged the green of spring for that of summer, to the low, faintly purple hills that marked the border of the Wold country.

While thus engaged one of Miss. while thus engaged, one of Miss Clare's keepers came up to him.
"Glad to see you down here again, sir." he said, touching his cap.
"I'm always glad to be down here, Roberts," he answered, with the inconsistency of honesty. "And how are things?"

The youths of the locality soon showed a decided preference for the crisp peanut, and the single oven venture being a most successful one, the firm decided to start other stalls, and in several parts of the East End hot peanuts were dispensed in large quantities.

There have been beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, by curing the womanly diseases which undermine the health and sap the strength. "Favorite Pre-scription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weak-

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y. "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, then I began taking your medicine. After taking the first bottle I began to feel better. I took four botles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

The Woman Who Works and Doss Not Feel Well.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND IS HER BEST HELPER.

It Gives Her Energy, Vigor and Strength When Brain and Nerves Are Tired and When She Feels Exhausted.

From the great cities and towns of Canada come thousands of thankful letters from women and girls, testifying to the marvelous effects of Paine's Celery Compound.

Women in their homes, in stores, offices and workshops, suffering from in-somnia, headache, backache, languidness, nervous debility, neuralgia, liver complaint and kidney disease have been made strong, vigorous and happy through the use of Dr. Phelps' wonderful prescription, Paine's Celery Compound. This heaven-sent blessing to women is the only guaranteed medicine in the world for the ills of females. Mrs. A. H, Watson, Creemore, Ont., says:

"For many years I was sorely troubled with violent headaches, so that at times I was completely prostrated and unable to attend to household duties. I started to use Paine's Celery Compound, and experienced immediate relief; and since using it I have not had a recurrence of the trouble. I consider Paine's Celery Compound an invaluable remedy, and will always be pleased to say a word for it."

Bismarck's Diplomacy.

Bismarck's diplomacy was confessed by himself to be wholly unscrupulous, and it was often so tortuous, so subterranean, so fertile in alternative expedients that one can never be sure that his avowed aims were his real ones. A very remarkable letter of his to the emperor, now first published, betrays his moral point of view, and his method. It related to the charges of double-dealing brought against him by the Italian Gen. La Marmora, in connection with the events of 1866. Why, said the hon-est Bismarck, who "feared nothing but God," the "only way in which I could thwart the policy of Napoleon was to make it clear to Benedetti and the Italians, who kept nothing from Napoleon, that I was perfectly willing to NEW YORK wander from the path of virtue, and only needed time to win over your ma-jesty." This maneuver, he adds, was an old French proverb-"A pirate and a half to catch a pirate"—which his antagonists should have had in mind. From the whole body of Bismarck letters in the two volumes, in fact, one bears away a deepened impression of the man's extraordinary force, of his unrivaled intellectual power, and of his relentless grinding on his way to his goal with the rush, and with about the morality, of an avalanche. His greatness, the immense role which he play ed in history, no man can doubt; but his lack of the finer personal and moral qualities, above all a certain want of magnanimity in his attitude towards the U. E. Loyalists.

Excellent Lecture by Sir John Bourinot Before London Historical Society.

Not often has London been privileged to listen to so distinguished a scholar and so eminent an authority on Canadian history as Sir John Bourinot, who for over an hour last evening entertained a large and cultured audience at the city hall with an address on the United Empire Loyalists. Sir John's excerpts from a new book, which, he has in course of preparation, and the publication of which students of North American history will await with eager interest.

No other man in the British Empire, perhaps, is so peculiarly qualified to speak of one of the most remarkable St. Mary's Court, No. 454, Catholic migrations in history. Himself a native of Nova Scotia, whose secluded valleys received the first party of the persecuted Loyalists, Sir John has devoted the major part of a long and busy life to the study of its early records, and by his painstaking work has done much to refute the too-frequently quoted assertion that Canada has no

Sir John was introduced by Dr. Cl. T. Campbell, president of the London Historical Society. On the platform with the chairman and the speaker of the evening were Sir John Carling, Judge Elliott, Dr. Moorhouse, Mayor Beck, Rev. Robert Johnston, R. Shaw-Wood, Rev. Dean Innes and Dr.

with applause when he arose to speak. Without any preliminary words he plunged at once into his subject, a timely in these days of growing imperial sentiment than ever before. Going back to the tragic event which marked the last years of the eighteenth century, he contrasted it with the impressive pageant in old London on the memorable June day in 1897. it would be difficult to imagine, yet they were analogous, or, rather, the spirit that prompted the first was the spirit that made possible the second. On the very shores the unfortunate Acadians had been compelled to leave but a few years before, the United Empire Loyalists landed, and on the fertile meadows won from the sea by Acadian farmers, they built their homes under the shadow of Britain's flag. What this influx of sturdy, conservative British blood meant to the struggling colonies in Canada, time is only now beginning to reveal. Today three-quarters of a million Canadians trace their descent directly to these men and women, who sacrificed home and all things that men and women hold most dear for a right principle. Among these three-quarters of a million Canadians are men and women eminent in every walk of life-in religion, science, art and politics. There can no longer exist any doubt that the incoming of the United Empire Loyalists at a critical moment in the history of British North America had a steadying effect of the utmost import-ance. The conservative habits and the moral stability of these people completely changed the aspect of affairs. young and old; it is relished when all They were tried and true; they had sacrificed more than their fellow-colonists ciple, the fruit of which is the un-swerving loyalty to Britain now so manifest in Canada. LOYALIST VS. REPUBLICAN. By what standard shall the student of history compare the Loyalist of '76 to the Republican of '76? Quoting Prof. Tyler, of Cornell University, the speaker said without reflecting upon the patriotism of the Republicans, that of the Loyalists might be said to have finer sort. The great majority of them were men of substance, men who had something to lose by steadfastly adhering to an unpopular principle. They were of the conservative class in the colonies. Their estates were the fairest, their farms the besttilled, their cattle the most numerous and the fattest, and their granaries the best filled. Yet they did not hesitate to forsake the life of comparative opulence for the hardships attendant upon the settlement of a new country. They crowded into ships and the doors of their homes were closed to them forever. Undoubtedly their patriotism was as sound and fervent as that of George Washington, the one great Republican figure of the revolution. They frankly admitted that their fellowcolonists had grievances, that there were wrongs to be righted, but they believed the method to bring about the desired result was to be found in the spirit of mutual compromise. Unhappily the British statesmen of those days were hopelessly ignorant of conditions in the colonies, and their ig-norance gave to Samuel Adams and other dangerous persons the chance they sought. One thinks and speaks of the imperialistic idea as something  new and the outcome of recent circumstances. As a matter of history the United Empire Loyalists were cham-

knew for the motherland; and it was they who sowed broadcast over half a continent the seed of devotion to prin-pions of a united British Empire in the eighteenth century. History has paid but scant tribute to their memory. Their ideal may have been a dream, but it was at least a noble dream. Sir John repeated some memorable words of Goldwin Smith, who, referring to the great wrong done the Loyalists by the revolted colonies, remarked that if ever a great empire should arise north of the United States, an empire that would be a menace to it, the United Staters would have only their ancestors to blame. THE LOYALISTS' INFLUENCE. The speaker dwelt at some length on the advent of the Loyalists and its far-reaching influence in the coming Dominion of Canada. The immediate effect was the formation of two British provinces. Nova Scotia, which included New Brunswick, contained about 12,000 souls at the time the Loyalists arrived, while the valley of the St. Lawrence contained 100,000 Frenchmen. There were no English west of Lake St. Louis. Ontario was an unbroken wilderness, except for the few inhabitants who huddled about the fortified posts at Niagara and along the banks of the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair. What inhabitants there were in Nova Scotia were of doubtful character; and it is probable that had the revolutionists seized Quebec, the smouldering disloyalty would have burst into flame. Thus, the coming of these thousands of sturdy, clear-headed Loyalists was a most fortuitous event; their migration decided the future of half a continent. When the thirteen colonies revolted they unconsciously laid the cornerstone of a new British Empire, a new empire greater than the old.

Sir John described graphically the part played by the U. E. Loyalists in the war of 1812, and went into the various battles of the war in some de-Books, Scribblers and other It Was Firmly Laid in Canada by tail. He referred to the wonderful march of the 104th Regiment, composed who marched from Fredericton to Quebec 350 miles, in the dead of winter, with the loss of but one man. He touched upon the exploit of Captain John Jenkins at Ogdensburg, and referred to many other events of the war in which Loyalists figured heroically. Coming down to the present time, he pointed out that one-seventh of all classes in Canada were descendants of United Empire Loyalists and that one-fifth of the country's English-speaking inhabitants were the same—a proportion about equal to the Puritans in the United States. named many prominent Canadians who have earned success in various walks of life and who trace their descent to the United Empire Loyalists. The spectacle of Canada sending men to fight in the mother country's batlecture consisted for the most part of tles abroad is one which very naturally recalls the spirit of the Loyalists. This is an example of imperial unity never imagined by Chatham or Burke.

In replying to a vote of thanks, mov-ed by Sir John Carling and seconded by Rev. Robt. Johnston, Sir John took occasion to express the kindly interest he feels in London's new historical society, and the hope that youths should be directed to the field of local history rather than to fiction. At the close the chairman announce a lecture of Mr. Coyne, president of the Ontario Historical Society, to be delivered in London on the third Tues-

No Dead Line at 60.

[Montreal Witness.] Should the rule, recently adopted by a large life insurance company in New York, of retiring all their employes at the age of 60 years, be generally followed, the world would lose the services of some of its best and ablest men. This may be the age of young men, as someone has said, but there never was an age of the world, and there never will be, when experience and the wisdom it confers, had less value than youth in the management of affairs. Some of the greatest names in history are those of men who performed their best work after they had passed the 60th milestone. Among living contemporaries several brilliant instances could be cited. Pope Leo, Lord Roberts, President Loubet, Mr. J. P. Morgan, the giant of finance, and several others foremost in the moving forces of the affairs of the world on both sides of the Atlantic. But in these days of increasing longevity a man of 60 years cannot be considered old. He may be-come incapacitated from any cause, like younger men, but in all walks of life there are men beyond that age who are better able than ever they were to manage their business and to act with promptness and decision founded on the prescience arising from experience and knowledge of world. This, of course, applies to those who have won a secure position. With the far larger class of men occupying inferior positions, there may be the difficulty that they find it harde to get along with younger men placed over them, and that the latter do not feel free to order them about as they

Gentlemen,-I am not much of a letter writer, but having seen how very useful Kelpion was to us on our long march, I think you are deserving of all the praise you can get. I am thankful to say that I never had much use for it myself, but when I did have occasion I must say it was the best thing I had ever tried for sore feet and insect bites. Its praises were sung all over the camp. No matter what was wrong with a fellow he was ad-vised by his chums to apply "Kelpion" and he would soon be all right. Our water bottles and our Kelpion were the two things treasured above all others in our marching kit. (Signed)
