Splendid Liberal Victory in Lancashire.

Gladstone Challenges the Government to Go Before the People.

Eighteen Men Saved from Drowning in Mid-Ocean.

Reception in Honor of O'Brien and Dillon at Paris—A Farmer Poisons His Entire Family and Himself.

Reception in Honor of O'Brien and Dillon.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—A reception was given last night by M. Raffalovitch, William O'Brien's father-in-law, in honor of Messrs. Dilion and O'Brien. Among the guests were MM. Joseph Ernest Renan and Hector Henri Malot, the authors, and MM. Burdeau Pressenz and Lanezsan.

Herbert Bismarck's Engagement.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Count Herbert Bismarck became engaged to the Countess Anne Conradine Berthe Platen, aged 17, while he was visiting at Riga lately. The Count is 41. The Countess Platen belongs to a Hanoverian family of some renown.

Grand Trunk Report.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Grand Trunk report, issued last night, shows for the half year a net revenue balance of £115,738. It announces dividends of 2 per cent. on the 4 per cent. guarantees and 7s per cent. on the first preference stock. The directors consider the result as satisfactory as was expected and regard the outlook as hopeful.

Cautioned.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The Hamburg Nachrichten, in an editorial supposed to have been inspired by Prince Bismarck, points out the danger of ignoring the second clause of the Frankfort treaty in connection with the customs union with Austria. It concludes: "It is imperative to dictate a policy which will avoid sowing the germ of differences with France in agreements with Austria. If a dispute is once kindled on account of the treaty of Frankfort, we cannot forsee the consequences."

Poisoned Them All.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—A retired farmer name Gast, gave his children to-day some sweetmeats, in which he had previously placed a quantity of poison. He had partook of the poisoned candy himself. After suffering great agony for some time the murderer and his children were relieved by death from their sufferings. Two other of the children who also ate of the sweetmeats, are in a dying condition and physicians say there is no possible chance of saving them. No reason is given for the crime.

A Tardy Explanation.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The Berlin Reichsanzeiger publishes an explanation of the origin of the recent report that the German Administration at Bagamoyo has issued a decree authorizing slavery. It says Arabs sent a petition to Germans asking that facilities be granted for the sale of slaves on the ground that otherwise they would be unable to cultivate their devasted lands. In some way a copy of the petition became posted as a proclamation, and upon this were basted the false accusations against the Germans. The British Consul at Zanzibar, though knowing the persons responsible for the charges, declined to disclose their names.

A Gladstonian Gain.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The Parliamentary elections in the Eccles division of Lancashire to-day resulted in a victory for the Gladstonian. Mr. Roby, the Liberal candidate, received 4,901 votes, and Mr. Egerton, Conservative, 4,696. In the preceding election the Liberal candidate received 3,985 and the Conservative 4,277.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The News says the result of the Eccles election will make the demand for a dissolution of Parliament louder than ever.

The Chronicle says the election was fought on the eight-hour and not on the Irish question, and that the result is a great triumph for the new unionism.

The Post says that when the real movement for a national decision is reached the double issue by which Eccles was won will be a very small item in the general result.

The Times admits that the result was due to the return of the Gladstonians to the allegiance, coupled with Mr. Roby's acceptance of the eight-hour and teetotal vote.

Gladstone at Edinburgh.

The following fuller sketch of Gladstone's Edinburgh speech (some points of which have already appeared in the ADVERTISER) will prove interesting to many readers.

In opening his address Mr. Gladstone remarked that though many questions of importance were before the public, the problem which continued to eclipse all others and to demand the almost undivided attention of those who strove to promote the well-being of the nation, was the Irish problem. The country had come to recognize the fact that this question must be settled before other questions could be dealt with. It was one which affected the health and vitality of the State so intimately that in truth, no other questions could be properly considered while this remained a menace. The opponents of home rule had hoodwinked and deluded their constituencies before the election by pledging themselves not to rely on brute force the government of Ireland. They had promised to provide an effective system of local self-govenment for that part of the kingdom. They had put themselves on record as opposed to any advances by the British Treasury for the purpose of buying estates from landlords in Ireland. How had these pledges, on which the people had granted them the reins of Government been adhered to in the actual history of their administration? The very first important measure proposed by the present Government on its accession to power was a measure for the government of the Irish people by coercion. This had been the favorite bantling of the Tory fathers. The a local government bill had been brought in, but it was a feeble offspring, poorly nourished, and so badly neglected that it was rapidly dwindling into nothingness. As to the third pledge, it had apparently been wholly forgotten, for in the present pending before Parliament in regard to the appropriation of Irish estates there was a provision by which £40,000,000 collected from the British people by taxation would pass into the pockets of holders of land in Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone proceeded to discuss the of the Land Purchase Bill, and the measures to asevere criticism, his well-known skill in financial was exhibited so strikingly as to ad after round of applause from his attentive audience. Recurring to ct of coercive methods of the Gov- he remarked that the Conserva- it upon themselves to set Ireland means of a firm and resolute gov- But so poorly had they earned to make such a boast that it might said that defective though the law administration of it was worse than itself. He would not sanction laweven though the Irish had conbefore them an eminently bad exof lawlessness in quarters which be the fountain-head of legality. vernment of Ireland was itself ct pattern of unlawfulness; and hods were such as could not provoke among the people feelings of le resentment. It was hardly necesmention particular instances of legal methods, for such instances had been conspicuously impressed upon lic mind. It was grossly illegal to e court room against the people of ry. One of the rights of every subject was that if tried, he should d openly and in public view. The ment of Mr. Shannon as one of the agistrates to sit in judgment upon Dillon, O'Brien and other accused alists was, while perhaps not ally illegal, a gross scandal, not because he had been previously on to act as an executive officer in with the people now brouget bem in his judicial capacity, but also in the case of Mr. Dillon particuere was a personal quarrel between n, which it was only fair to assume reate a bias in the mind of the magis-ther than this, the systematic bru- of the police was crowded by the in- f chronic absenteeism on the part of nsible officials. Mr. Balfour, the of the Irish Government, seemed to hat it was no part of the business of a ter for Ireland to reside for any h of time in the country which has e and demands he was supposed to be liar with. It was absenteeism that ed one of the most significant signs of owest degradation reached by Ireland e last century, and this practice had been made the constant habit of the f Secretary, who had fairly flaunted absence in the face of the people. t was the condition of the country the result of such brutality and ne- t? The Government had the au- ity to boast that Ireland had wn peaceable under its administration; it kept six-fold more armed policemen reland than in the whole of England and tland. The British people were forced ay £1,600,000 annually to support the ce in Ireland for the purpose of assistthe landlords to collect their rents; at this was apparently the chief function the constabulary. The English and tish landlords, who maintained fair and itable relations with their tenants, did ask the aid of the police in collecting ir rents. Yet their occasional losses ted up more than those of the Irish llords, thanks to the merciless severity a land system backed by the batons and es of the police. Meanwhile, what had ome of the promises for Irish local self-ernment?

Mr. Gladstone challenged the Governnt to grant a general election, and asred with confidence that should an apl to the country be allowed, the result uld prove that the people had been won er by Conservative misgovernment to the pproval of the experiment of home rule. ith this great question settled on terms, morable alike to England and Ireland, the st fortresses of bigotry and oppression ould succumb to the attack of Liberal rinciples. Justice to Ireland would rid e Empire of an intolerable nuisance and isgrace, and would gild with a brighter low than any former period the closing ears of Victoria's glorious reign.

Mr. Gladstone's address was frequently nterrupted by applause, and its close was as followed by long continued cheering. he auditors were carried away with adiration and enthusiasm. Never was any rediction more thoroughly belied than hat of the Times, which had predicted a old reception for Mr. Gladstone's criticisms on Lord Salisbury's conduct of affairs. The Liberal campaign in Scotland has been opened under the brightest auspices, and the leaders of the party in London are in high feather to-night as the news of the day's proceedings drifts into the clubs.

After a brief rest Mr. Gladstone, with his wife and a few intimate friends, attended the concert of Mme. Patti. A dense crowd gathered outside the building and wildly cheered the ex-Premier as he passed in. His appearance in the hall was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm. After the concert he had a long interview with Mme. Patti, and at its conclusion the famous singer presented the great statesman with a box of voice lozenges, which he accepted with evident pleasure.

BAPTIST MISSION WORK.

Meeting of the Women's Societies at Brantford.

The Delegates—Last Year's Work—The Telugu Mission.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 22.—The annual meeting of the Baptist Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies opened here this morning in the Park Baptist Church. The Foreign and Home Missionary Societies are two distinct societies—that is, each has its own officers, with largely the same membership. To-day has been foreign mission day. Among the delegates from the Western section are:

Mrs. Jeffreys, Mrs. White, Miss Tanton, Brantford; Miss Iler, Western Association; Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Forest, Atwood; Mrs. McPhee, Mrs. Shenk, Guelph; Mrs. Farthing, Mrs. Hambridge, Mrs. Huffman, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Campbell, Aylmer; Misses Buckreen and Muir, East Oxford; Mrs. Elliott, Woodstock; Miss Harris, Brant Association; Mrs. Emerson, Mrs. Van Sickle, Onondaga; Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Smith, St. Marys; Mrs. Wilbee, Elgin Association; Miss Yeo, South London; Mrs. Weld, Middlesex Association; Mrs. Buck, First Church, city; Miss Murdock, St. George; Mrs. London, Parkhill; Miss Abel, Norwich; Mrs. Crawford, Brantford; Mrs. Smith, Strathroy; Mrs. James Cox, Brantford; Mrs. Bates, Woodstock; Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Bickert, London; Miss Munro, St. Thomas; Mrs. Davidson, Chatham; Mrs. McLeod, London; Mrs. H. Campbell and Mrs. Sawtelle, Woodstock; Miss Cahoon, Bayham; Miss Sowerly, Aylmer; Mrs. Smythe, St. Thomas; Miss Frith, returned missionary, Woodstock; Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. McLaurin, returned missionaries.

The table in front of the president was decorated with flowers and photos of the lady missionaries of the society. The first half-hour, from 9:30 to 10, was given to a consecration service, followed by public devotional exercises. Mrs. Booker, of Hamilton, president of the society, was in the chair, and conducted the exercises.

Miss Moyle, of Brantford, read an address of welcome to the gathering on behalf of the ladies of Brantford.

Mrs. Booker complimented Miss Moyle on the unusual thoughtfulness of the words of welcome and had kind words to say for the valuable work always done by ladies of Brantford. She followed with an annual president's address full of suggestion and inspiration. The great loss suffered by the departure of their late president, Mrs. Dr. Castle, was sadly acknowledged, and the need of the heathen world for missionary aid was strongly emphasized. They had six young ladies now on the foreign field in India, four of whom were already proficient in the language. These laborers were doing much and were greatly lelped of God, but it remained with them at home to furnish the supplies.

Associational reports were read by the secretaries of the various associations as follows: Brant, Miss Annie Harris, Brantford; Elgin, Mrs. Emily Welter, St. Thomas; Middlesex and Lambton, Mrs. Weld, London; Midland counties, Mrs. Lillie, Toronto; Niagara, Mrs. Wm. Forbes, Grimsby; Norfolk, Mrs. Lutas, Waterford; Owen Sound, Miss Buchan, Toronto; Peterboro' and Belleville, Mrs. Wm. Peer, Norwood; Toronto, Mrs. Wells, Toronto; Walkerton, Miss Annie V. Bradin, Teeswater; Whitby and Lindsay, Miss A. E. Dryden, Greenbank; Western, Miss Florence M. Iler, Ridgetown; Northern, Mrs. V. M. Taylor, Collingwood. The reports were on the whole encouraging, the funds showing a healthy increase and the organization of a number of new circles and bands being reported from all sides.

Mrs. J. J. Baker, of Walkerton, read a careful paper on "Mothers and Missions." Christian people, she said, must be ready not only to send their children to the Lord, but to prepare them for his work.

Miss Ellen Davies of Toronto, recording secretary, read a concise report of the year's work done by the Board.

Miss Violet Elliott of Toronto, treasurer, presented her annual statement.

Balance in bank	2,952
Total	$7,471

In the preparation of this report 169 circles and 81 bands were heard from.

In the afternoon the opening prayer was led by Mrs. Weld, of London.

Miss Buchan, of Toronto, corresponding secretary, read an interesting report of the work of the society among the Telugus. It recorded an awakening among the home circles and bands. Twenty-one new circles have been formed, three reorganized and seven have become extinct. There are now 173 circles; 75 of these have increased their subscriptions and 55 have fallen off. It was complained that out of the more than 300 Baptists churches in Western Ontario only about half have mission circles, and the suggestion was made that as so many circles have students at the Samulcotta Seminary, it would be well if the society would take the work over altogether. The cry from Telugu for a medical lady missionary was echoed. In the Telugu land, India, the society has five lady missionaries, three zenana workers and 26 Bible women in the field. Miss Rogers, the new missionary, has reached Cocanada and is now learning the language.

Mrs. Dr. Newman, of Toronto, had an encouraging report of the Link—the organ of the society.

Rev. T. S. Johnston, of Brantford, presented the greetings of the Baptist Convention to the societies, and asked that they assist the Foreign Mission Board in its efforts to add $5,000 to its income for the coming year.

Rev. Alex. Grant, of Winnipeg, was given twenty minutes to talk of the needs of Manitoba and the Territories for men and money. He wanted the ladies to undertake to raise $600 for the work in his Province.

The revision of the constitution of the society was then taken up. One change adds to the objects of the society, "the evangelization of the children of heathendom."

Another proposes to make membership in the society contingent on the payment of $1 to the funds of this (the foreign) society, Mrs. Baker, of Walkerton, made a strong plea for their poorer members, and moved that members only be required to pay $1 to the circle, or that they be members of a circle whose average income be $1 per member. Another clause proposes to constitute an annual convention of two delegates from each circle of twenty or under, with one delegate for each additional twenty members. This matter, together with Mrs. Baker's proposal, was referred back to the committee to report next year.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Booker, Hamilton; first vice-president, Mrs. Freeland, Toronto; second vice-president, Mrs. McLaren, Woodstock; recording secretary, Miss Davies, Toronto. The corresponding secretary and treasurer are nominated by the Central Board. The Board of Directors was re-elected, with the exception of five members who resigned. In place of these five Mrs. Sinclair, Mrs. S. J. Moore, Mrs. Hastings, Toronto; Miss Palmer, Dundas, and Mrs. Chandler, Hamilton, were elected.

The public meeting in the evening was attended by an audience that crowded the church. Rev. D. Hutchinson, pastor of the church, presided, and addresses were made by Mrs. Archibald, a returned missionary, and Rev. T. Luckens.

Stephen Rosso, a G. T. R. employe working at coaling the cars near the Union station, Toronto, swallowed about a pint of liquid used in preparing the copper for the generating of electricity for the Pullmans in mistake for water on Tuesday night. Mr. Auguste Pilon had prepared a pail of sal ammoniac in which to dip the metal. He placed it on a shelf in the west end baggage-room and warned the men not to mistake it for water. Rosso, however, was not aware of the fact. After getting warmed up heating the cars, Rosso stepped into the baggage room to look for a drink. He saw the pail of sal ammoniac, and thinking it was ice water, got away with almost a pint of it before he discovered his mistake.

He went down to the church last evening with the intention of conducting the usual prayer meeting and was surprised to find not a prayer meeting but a welcome social to receive him back to his people and his work.

TO BE TESTED.

The Constitutionality of the McKinley Tariff Doubted—A Strong Legal Protest in Preparation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The Times says: "The protest against the operation of the McKinley tariff law is being prepared by counsel acting for a large number of the most prominent merchants of this city. They have been in correspondence with Senator McPherson, Senator Carlisle and the best legal talent of the country, the result of which is that they have determined to fight the bill on the following grounds:

1. That by the passage of the McKinley Bill the old tariff law of 1883 was not repealed.

2. That the alleged act, entitled "An act to relieve the revenue and equalize duties on imports and for other purposes," purporting to have been approved Oct. 1, 1890, never passed the House of Representatives and the Senate.

3. That the bill which did pass the House of Representatives and the Senate has never been presented to the President, according to the constitution, and has never been approved or signed by him.

This determination was arrived at after a careful comparison of the law as alleged to have been passed and the law as it left the hands of the Conference Committee. It is claimed by the merchants who are preparing the protest that the restored clause of section 30, relating to drawbacks constituted an essential part of the bill as finally adopted by the Conference Committee, and that the document signed by the president of the McKinley Bill was not in fact the bill as it passed the House and Senate, and consequently the act is null and void.

In a Bad Place.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Two members of the British Iron and Steel Institute had an experience here they will never forget. They were walking over a trestle on the summit of the mountain and were caught by an approaching train. On one side was a rock wall, 100 feet high, on the other a precipice of 100 feet, and the ties were too short to stand on without being struck by the cars. In their fearful dilemma they lay down as far out as they could get, but by the merest chance the engine was stopped just before it reached them.

Sudden Death at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 23.—A young man named Joseph Sabin, employed on the farm of Mr. Hugh McColl, dropped dead Tuesday evening after having unhitched his horses from the plow. He was found between the pump, where he had watered his horses, and the barn, and was then quite dead. He was known to have had fits in his younger days, and the doctor called pronounced it a case of heart disease, and declared that an inquest was not necessary.

Sandwich Assizes.

SANDWICH, Oct. 23.—It was nearly 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Judge MacMahon finished his address to the jury in the case of Watt vs. Dunn. Verdict for defendant. The prisoners, Stewart, Askin and Phillips, were then brought out to stand their trial for robbing Joseph Ouellette of a sum of money. Sol White, who represented the prisoners, read an affidavit signed by Stewart, stating that in consequence of bail being not granted it was impossible for him to secure a couple of important witnesses, and asked that the case be postponed. After argument the judge decided to postpone the case until the sessions. The grand jury brought in true bills against Daniel Mayhew, Herbert Brush and Melville Wright for stealing timber in Colchester, and as Brush did not put in an appearance a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

VOICES OF THE PEOPLE.

South London and the Tax Rate.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Numerous questions show that there is misunderstanding as to how the rate for Ward No. 6 is only 12 mills whilst the city rate is 22.4 for the year 1890. The fact is simply this: Under the Act of Amalgamation (which we struggled so long to get in proper shape for London South) Ward 6 only pays taxes since May 1, 1890, plus whatever sum the Towaship Council had expended between Jan. 1 and May 1, 1890, in the ward. In other words Ward 6 only pays two-thirds the amount of taxes it would have had to pay if amalgamation had taken place Jan. 1, 1890, instead of May 1, 1890, together with whatever sum the Township Council had expended prior to May 1, 1890. The Township Council, expecting amalgamation, did not expend very much; therefore our taxes in Ward 6 for 1890 will be light. Thanks to those who worked for the good of the suburb as a whole, 12 mills will do its thus:

City rate	22.4
Off by the act	...
Rate for full year	16.4
Two-thirds of a year	10.94
To cover Township Council	1.6
To be paid	12 Mills

The year 1890 is a broken year and is no criterion.

Those who held the rabid-amalgamationists and the City Council in check last winter and spring, saved the suburb 4.4 mills taxes which equals over $5,000 distributed amongst the people of South London.

Sir, I crave a little more space to compliment the Water Commissioners on the manly and conscientious way in which they are living up to the bargain made with South London. Their action towards Ward 6 since amalgamation, has been all that could be desired. They have set an example to the Council, which will, I hope, be appreciated by the Council and the people. The Water Commissioners are well up to their work, but I fear the Council will be frozen in the mud before they get the electric light and fire alarm poles set. I congratulate the residents of South London that the act of Parliament containing the bargain between the city and suburb, is working out well in favor of the suburb (Ward 6). It is enforcable. Yours truly, WM. J. CLARK.

LONDON'S LIGHTS.

The Tender of the Ball Electric Company—A Report Submitted to the Council.

The meeting of No. 3 Committee last evening was attended by Ald. Boyd (chairman), Bartlett, Shaw, Wallace, Fitzgerald, Heaman, Mayor Taylor, City Engineer Tracy, Chief Roe, Secretary Graydon and a number of interested spectators. An account from the City Gas Company of $315 was received for eighteen lights, which the company claimed to be due on account of that number not being reported in the Engineer's office. The committee disputed two of the lights and the matter was referred to the Engineer.

Market Clerk Wilson's report suggested some arrangement should be made to put the hay and straw somewhere else while King street was being torn up. Referred to Engineer.

It was decided to advertise for coal, the tenders to be in by 4 o'clock Monday.

A letter was received from the City Solicitor regarding the dray license question, stating that the regulation of that matter rested with the Chief of Police. The committee decided to recommend that the Chief of Police attend to the collection of licenses.

The Chairman and Ald. Wallace, were delegated to act with the Engineer and Chief Roe on the question of locating the Central Fire Hall and report back.

Tenders for a good hot-air furnace for the new South London Fire Hall will be called for.

The electric light business was next taken up. The Ball Electric Light Company offered to sell their present plant at the foot of Hill street, and everything connected, including poles, wires, etc., with a capacity of 125 lamps, for $26,500, and for an extension to the present plan of 184 lamps, for $35,740. They guaranteed to keep the dynamos in working order for four years and two months for the sum of $375 per year. The company also guaranteed the cost of running the above would not exceed $9,500 a year, and offered to run the plant themselves for four years and two months at $10,000 per annum. At the end of that time the company further guaranteed to hand the plant over to the city in good running order, and keep it in repair for four years more for $400 per year. This would be a saving of $8,600 a year to the city, which would pay for the plant in four years and two months.

It was calculated that this would be an average cost of $54 64 for each lamp for one year. The Secretary, at the wish of the committee, drafted the following report to be submitted to the Council:

In the matter of electric lighting your committee find on interviewing the electric light companies that they refuse to submit to the six months' clause, but are willing that it be inserted, provided a clause be also inserted to the effect that if the city desire to avail themselves of said six months' clause, during the first three years of the contract the city shall be required to purchase the new line circuit at a valuation made by the companies, by a valuation to be made by arbitration, one of the arbitrators to be appointed by the city, one by each company and the third by the other two arbitrators, the decision of the majority of said arbitrators to be accepted by the city and companies as final.

BIRCHALL.

The Prisoner Indulges in Practical Joking.

His Guard Resigns His Post—An Appeal from Mrs. Birchall—The Doomed Man's Defense of Himself.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 23.—Birchall, although he is near the point of death, has not lost the use of his humorous faculties. Ever since the appointment of John Magee as guard Birchall has complained that he did not enjoy John's society, and Tuesday John carried home with him a card deftly pinned on his back and announcing the price of rotten eggs. Magee did not know that he was being made an advertising agent until he reached home, and was naturally very indignant at the use that had been made of him. He has given up his job, and it will be necessary to appoint a man to take his place.

Tom Midgley continues to watch over the prisoner during the night, and appears to be well enough contented. The petition for the commutation of Birchall's sentence is not receiving the number of signatures that was expected, and Mrs. Birchall has written a letter, which is being sent to the more stubborn ones, pleading with them to sign the petition and endeavor to save her husband from the awful fate that is awaiting him.

HIS LIFE.

The history of the prisoner's life has been completed by himself. It makes 100 pages of foolscap, with 40 illustrations. The manuscript will be sold to the highest bidder. So far only $1,000 has been offered, but this price includes the confession which Birchall has promised to furnish to the publisher who buys his autobiography. The money will all go to his wife. The prisoner had hoped to receive $2,000 for it.

HIS DEFENSE OF HIMSELF.

It is apparent from his written papers that Birchall did not know how strong a case the Crown had against him until Mr. Osler laid it before the jury. The typewriter letter to Col. Benwell haunted him a good deal. He had evidently failed to carry its contents in his mind, but nevertheless felt that it was damaging. He was quite positive that "it bore no date." He says:

I don't fancy the Crown are going to make Col. Benwell's letter from me their attributed motive for the crime, but they will likely say that I was trying to avoid exposure. Of course I could not be held here for a swindle committed in England.

It was to minimise the effect of the typewriter letter that he concocted the story that young Benwell was in with him in the plot to rob the colonel. It dawned on him however that if this story was true the other story that he and Benwell went to Eastwood and beyond to price farms as a pure make-believe would scarcely hold water. His written suggestions and arguments against the Crown theory that he murdered Benwell are ingenious. Here are some of them:

To kill Benwell was decidedly to kill the goose that laid the golden egg. Anyone must see that. Because if he had refused to stop there ion the farm to which he was sent on Feb. 17—he and Mellerish would have been liable to an action for loss of time and damages, etc., as there were other men who were ready to pay money down, and it was only because I preferred Benwell personally that I accepted his offer, and he knew this well.

Was it likely if I had intent to murder that I should choose Eastwood, a station where I was known, to get off and return to? Again, if I had known the locality of the swamp where he was found and knew my way to it I should have known my way back: why, therefore, should I ask Buck the way to Gobles, Woodstock or Eastwood if I had come from there in the morning? Not only this, but I should be courting identification also, which I do not think a man about to commit murder would do. Again, is it likely that a man who had committed murder would go and return by the same road openly, where everyone would see him who happened to be traveling on the road? I think not.

How would a man know that there might not be men working around the spot where the body was found? It must have been a work of time to despoil the body of all that was on it, and men might have been attracted by the sound of shots so near them. Again, if Miss Fallon's house was so near the place as it is said to be, would a man in his senses be likely to pass right in front of it and thus court identification? Would a sensible or cunning man risk all these things?

Take any bulk weighing 150 pounds and try to drag it through a thick bush, and I imagine it would be a matter of some time.

At the time he started out there was every sign of fair weather, and no need for a man to wear a coat, which only would have impeded his walking. In the evening and next day it rained, and therefore he would naturally be wearing a coat. If the body had been out in the rain of course the shirt front would show it, and even if the sleet had frozen on it when the sleet melted it would have soaked into it.

The cigar case did not appear to have been lying out in the rain or on the ground long, as it was dry when found, and leather takes water, especially light leather, and shows wet very much.

When Buck was asked what time he met me, according to the paper, he said 2 o'clock; now the train left at 3:40, and it wouldn't have taken me an hour and 40 minutes to walk about a mile, according to all accounts of the distance where the body was found. I could not have walked the distance and been at the spot where Buck was at 2 o'clock, the time he gave.

I registered the names at Banfield's Hotel (at the Falls), and took care to register them rightly. This I need not have done had I wished to conceal anything.

I was anxious that Benwell should call upon his friend in Wall street, New York, and went with him and Pelly to call upon him, and told Benwell to say he was going to the Falls, which he did. Did this look like concealment?

In what condition were Benwell's clothes and boots when found? Were they muddy and splashed or wet? Which way did the tracks which were found in the snow lead? and how can two tracks, a large and a small one, be accounted for? and were both of them in the same direction?

Was there snow enough on the Monday to make these tracks visible? There certainly was no snow on the road that would leave a track. Later in the week it did snow. On the Monday there was hardly any snow about at all.

If this swamp is such a desolate place and is known around to people living near as being so, what brought the men there who found the body?

What prevented the body being robbed by those who found it or by tramps, even after the man was killed? Was a walking stick found? as Benwell never went out without one, and had one when starting out.

Would it not take considerable time to convey the body to the spot where found and to remove all marks, etc., on the clothing and valuables, etc., if the place is so dense as is described?

It was said in the medical testimony that the stomach was quite empty. Now we both ate a hearty breakfast at Hamilton refreshment rooms Benwell ate very well indeed, and besides that we ate some figs, fruit, etc., bought on the train. They said he had evidently eaten nothing when he was killed.

Birchall forgets that he told Pelly on his return to Buffalo that Benwell had been sulky all day and had eaten nothing.]

"ONE OF THE GENTRY."

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—Mr. J. F. Waters, M.A., of the State Department, writes an account of a visit he paid last Saturday to Birchall in Woodstock jail. It fills two columns, but of the visit itself and what Birchall said there are only a dozen or two lines. Mr. Waters objects to Dr. Bessey's estimate of Birchall as a plebian, and maintains that he is "one of the gentry." Mr. Waters talks of Birchall's "honest book." He says. "I conversed quite long enough with Birchall to satisfy myself that he is an educated man, and that he has far more genuine human feeling than he is generally credited with.

AN ACQUAINTANCE SKIPS.

On Saturday night the firm of Head & Wheeler, gents' furnishings, made an assignment. Mr. Wheeler, a junior partner, had just received from the old country a sum of money in the neighborhood of $1,500. This the firm thought would help them over their difficulty, but instead of putting it into the business he put it into his pocket and left the town. On Thursday he checked out all the money in the Molsons Bank to the credit of the firm, and took the 5:18 train that afternoon for Toronto, stating to Mr. Head that he would be back in a day or two. One of the creditors is now after Mr. Wheeler with a capias. Wheeler was a warm admirer of Birchall. They both came out here as farm pupils through Ford, Rathbone & Co. He did not find farming congenial to his tastes, and Wheeler, after spending a year or two on a farm near Woodstock, came to town to live. At cricket Wheeler excelled. He is a native of Portsmouth, England, and came to Canada the same year that Birchall did.

WESTERN ONTARIO.

A couple of laborers employed by the Michigan Central Railway exploring party got into a quarrel Tuesday and one of them named Dederichs, of Detroit, was hit on the head with a coupling pin, making an ugly cut.

Martin Doxtater, an Elgin county Indian, who fought in the American rebellion, being wounded on the leg at Savannah, has received notice that he has been granted a pension from the date of his application, some three years ago.

Superintendent of Fish Culture Wilmot has finished an inspection of the Sandwich hatchery and will recommend that the plant be enlarged to twice its present capacity. Two years ago only 50,000,000 fish eggs were hatched, but this year it is hoped to hatch 100,000,000 eggs.

DORCHESTER.

Mr. Dunn, a farmer living about one mile south of this place is selling out his stock, and will remove to the village in a short time.

The Methodists of Dorchester and vicinity are busily engaged in making preparations for their first church anniversary, which is to come off Nov. 2 and 3. On Sunday, Nov. 2, Rev. G. R. Sanderson, D.D., of London, will preach morning and evening, and Rev. E. H. Sawers, of Westminster, in the afternoon: on Monday evening, Nov. 3, the anniversary tea meeting will be held in the basement, after which Rev. G. N. Hazen, Lambeth; Rev. E. H. Sawers, Wilton Grove; Rev. S. Bond, London, and Rev. James Kennedy, of Lyons, will deliver addresses. First rate music is promised by the excellent choir of the church.

On Sunday morning Mrs. Coates, of Mossley, was seriously injured by a vicious cow. Her arms were almost broken and her body terribly bruised. She will be laid up for some time.

R. Venning, J.P., Mossley, is very ill with an attack of jaundice and is under Dr. Walker's case.

Rev. James Vinning, pastor of the M. E. Church, Ypsilanti, Mich., is at present renewing friendship in and about Harriettsville. The reverend gentleman is said to be one of the most successful ministers in the Detroit Conference.

The village of Putnam and vicinity is being visited at the present time by a great religious revival. The church is crowded every night, and during the two weeks the meetings have been in progress over 30 persons have publicly professed faith. The meetings are conducted by Rev. J. E. Moore and Rev. J. A. Ayearest, who are earnest workers.

The North Dorchester Sabbath school convention will be held at Nilestown Oct. 28, commencing at 10 a.m.

DELAWARE.

Messrs. Mavor and Rockey returned Monday from a successful hunt to Rond Eau. They experienced great difficulty in conveying their game to the station, and their chagrin and dismay can scarcely be realized when they were informed that the overcrowded condition of the train would prevent them from bringing their game with them. They consider it advisable the next time they go off on a shooting expedition to charter a car.

Miss Drought, from London, is visiting at the home of Miss Ladd for a few days.

A grand literary and musical entertainment will be given Monday evening next in the Whitehead school house under the auspices of the Union Sabbath school under the able management of Rev. W. D. Hughson, assisted by the whole neighborhood. This school has developed into one of the largest and best attended in this vicinity. It is needless to say that there will be a first-class programme provided. Favorable weather is all that is necessary to make this closing entertainment the event of the season.

Harry Hammond, who has been absent in Manitoba and the Northwest for the last eight months prospecting, returned home Monday morning. Harry is a good fellow, and many are glad to see his affable face again. He speaks very favorably of the crops and country, but says in all his travels he has not found a country to compare with Ontario.

Mrs. James Stewart, who has been suffering with a cancer for some time, is gradually sinking and her death is hourly expected.

Mrs. Charles Harris, of Walkerton, arrived in this vicinity on Saturday evening. She intends remaining for several weeks visiting relatives and friends.

The trustees of St. Andrew's Church intend providing additional shed accommodation at once. They are also going to meet this week to make arrangements for the purchase of a new site for a manse. The offer made by Mr. Bennett, tailor, is likely to be accepted. If so the work in connection with the building will soon be pushed to a completion. The Methodists are also negotiating for a new church and site. The present structure is far too small. This village will then be able to boast of having three of the finest edifices for worship in any Western Ontario village.

Wedding bells are the order of the day here at present. There are to be two weddings here this week and others are expected soon to follow.

On Wednesday, at the residence of Mrs. Kennedy, con. 2, the marriage of her niece, Miss Simpson, to Mr. Benson Hughson, son of Rev. W. D. Hughson, took place. The knot was tied by the Rev. J. M. Thompson, assisted by the Rev. W. D. Hughson. The bride was attended by Miss M. Colvin, while Mr. Fred. Kennedy assisted the groom. The bride looked charming and was beautifully attired. The happy pair left on the evening train for the West on an extended wedding trip. Mr. Hughson is to be congratulated on securing such a popular and estimable young lady. The wedding presents were many and costly.

SLEEPING ON FEATHER BEDS.

It Is Nice and Easy, but Not Conducive to Good Health.

"Do you sleep on feathers?" asked a reporter of a professor of the Ohio Medical College.

"I did when I was a boy," replied the solemn M.D., "but I haven't done it since."

"Why not?"

"Well, I do not think it is conducive to health to do so. You see, there are apt to be so many bumps and depressions in the surface of a feather tick, and that alone is enough to condemn it. Through the day the body is in so many positions and the joints are bended so often that at night one's limbs should be perfectly straight, so as to give the blood a chance to circulate freely. The body cannot lie perfectly straight on a feather bed, and besides, the soft, downy couch enervates one and tends to make one yawn, stretch and lie with doubled up limbs.

"Thus he gets too warm, and soon a coverlet is thrown back, and very likely a cold results. Then the head sinks into the feather pillow, and often the side buried thus will perspire. This is uncomfortable and the sleeper turns over. The moist skin is exposed to the night air and a cold results. Then it is so hard to wake up when sleeping on feathers. It makes one lazy. Sleep seems to be the chief end of existence, and when one is forced to leave the bed by the cares of the day he leaves it with a yawn; he yawns and stretches himself for hours afterward and the ennui follows him all day, and when at evening he retires to his chamber filled with the determination to study or read, the sight of the billowy bed tempts him to stretch upon it at full length for a moment, and before he knows it he is too drowsy for anything but sleep. A person does not need as much sleep as people who use feather beds generally take, and the same persons, when they lie on a spring mattress or a straw tick for a few weeks are surprised at their own freshness and vigor. The Germans use feathers almost universally, and they claim to be a hardy race, but anyone with ordinary observant powers can see that Germans age much earlier in life than other people."

"Yes," said a mattress maker, when the reporter informed him of the doctor's opinion, "and we sell very few feathers to any but Germans. I agree with the doctor in every particular; and speaking of beds, you would be surprised to see what I do every day in the houses of wealthy people. They may have magnificent residences, fitted up with sumptuous furniture and costly bedsteads, but the beds are shocking, as a rule. These are made of topsy-turvy mattresses; they are not level, and probably they smell badly. The proper way to have a bed is with a padded spring mattress for a foundation, and a sheet over this is all that need be under the body, then coverlids to suit the occupant and weather.

"Of all the people, and I have customers among all classes, the Hebrews have the most comfortable beds. I advertise extensively in a Jewish paper, because I know they, of all people, like a good bed. And really this careful attention to the beds is a great gain, for with how much more vigor could a man go forth to his daily work if he has enjoyed a good night's rest."—[Cincinnati Times-Star.

WHAT IS IT?

The Influence that Sometimes Guides Us Against Our Will.

"No, I do not believe in ghosts," said an old lady of great experience, "but I do believe in the ministration of spirits."

This is not the age, nor the country, in which the supernatural flourishes. Interest centers about the practical. Haunted houses are rented without great difficulty if the landlord is willing to knock off a portion of the rent.

There are many, however, who will admit the exertion, at times, of some peculiar influence swaying our actions. We are led to do things we should not do of our own volition, the wisdom of which we do not appreciate until afterwards, then we wonder how we came to do them. We are forced to learn that worldly wisdom is not always that which guides into the wisest courses.

In this practical age results are what people are looking after. They believe in what they see; the "evidence of things not seen" is to be weighed in the future. When a man is sick he wants to get well; he cares little what medical method is employed if it cures. But if it does not cure, he soon begins to doubt the skill of the physician and inquire into his methods of medication. A happy thing it is sometimes if some influence induces investigation before it is too late.

W. O. Higgins, 65 Ferry street, Fair Haven, Conn., writes, June 30, 1890: "One year ago I was taken with terrible pains in my side and back, suffering more than pen can describe. I am confident that no one suffered more and lived. I tried several physicians, who informed me I had a bad case of kidney and liver trouble and could not live. At this time a friend of mine urged me to try Warner's Safe Cure. After using only four bottles of the Safe Cure and two boxes of Safe Pills, I am to-day a well and sound man, nearing my 60th year. I am foreman in the Fair Haven Clock Works, and will verify this statement at any time."

FARM AND FACTORY JOINTLY INJURED.

Mr. Stewart Brown, of Prince Edward county, is a Conservative and representative Ontario farmer. He was interviewed recently on the trade question, and gave strong evidence in support of the contention that unrestricted reciprocity would benefit the Canadian agriculturist. The result of the McKinley Bill, he said, would be to render barley-growing and horse-raising—the staple industries in his locality—unprofitable, and he was not at all certain that the alleged new markets would be very beneficial to our farmers. "What the country now needs," said Mr. Brown, "is free trade. It looks like a question whether certain manufacturers are going to be made rich at our expense, or whether we are going to have a fair chance to carry on our business. I believe we have quite as much to offer the people of the United States as they have to offer us. They need the products of our mines and would come in and develop them if opportunity were afforded them."

It is only justice to many of the most enterprising manufacturers of Canada not to put them in the class once addressed by Sir John Macdonald, when he told them they were so many hogs waiting below the tree till he shook them down the nuts, and invited them to contribute to his election funds that he might be placed in a position to continue to reciprocate—at the expense of the taxpayers. There are manufacturers who are "protected" against their will—some have been protected to death—and in every city and town in this Province there are manufacturers who refuse to join in the cry for special privileges. Naturally enough, as we in London know, these manufacturers are among our most enterprising citizens, and only await the removal of all unnecessary taxation on their industry and that of their customers to still further increase their trade and add to their importance as employers of labor. Such a firm is that of G. M. Cossitt & Bros., agricultural implement makers, of Brockville, the chief partner of which was interviewed by the Globe correspondent. Mr. Cossitt said that since the firm first began business in Smith's Falls, 32 years ago, it had never suffered from United States competition. It had never sought "protection" from the Government, and the present tariff was an injury rather than a help to the business. This is how he works it out:

> Our material would be cheaper than it is now; our plant is as good as any, and our labor is as skilful and as productive. We are not afraid to go into the open market. I believe that unrestricted trade would be a good thing for the country at large as well as a good thing for us.

The implement makers are not the only manufacturers who are handicapped by the taxation of their raw materials. The carriage builders, stove manufacturers, confectioners and other leading industries are similarly "protected" to their injury, unless they are in a combine.

Mr. Cossitt makes one strong statement, which is worthy of notice. He says that if we had unrestricted reciprocity he would make bigger profits by selling his products in the adjoining States instead of shipping them hundreds of miles to the Maritime Provinces. His firm, he say, could meet any competitors in those counties and hold their own against them. On this point he says:

> It is quite true there is a duty of 35 per cent. on the finished goods, but the taxes on our raw material are a complete offset to this duty. Bar iron and pig iron are cheaper in the United States than with us, so much so that our last lot of pig was brought in from the United States, we paying the duty on it. This paid us better than to buy Londonderry iron. We use a great deal of malleable iron and it is important that this material should be of the best quality. The price here for malleable castings is from 5 cents to 8½ cents a pound. In the United States the price is about 4 cents. We buy in Canada, of course, but that means simply that the founders get the benefit of the Canadian duty at our expense. We would prefer the American goods if the price for each was the same, because we can depend upon the American castings being all of one quality. I see that nails are quoted in New York at $3 a keg in store in round lots. Here would be a shade higher in smaller lots. The price here is $2 65 a keg, a very considerable difference. These are examples; other articles bear about the same proportion.

This is no doubt a correct view. But Mr. Cossitt does not rest his advocacy of unrestricted reciprocity on his own account alone. He holds that it would be of immense advantage to the farmers of Canada to trade as freely as they desire with their neighbors. It would add to their prosperity, and anything that brings them more money is helpful to the men who make their supplies. This is sound doctrine, and should be reflected on by those manufacturers who would incline rather to stand in with the combines than to rely on their own industry and enterprise and the prosperity of their best customers.

How is unrestricted trade to be brought about? By being honestly worked for by all those who favor it, irrespective of past political leanings. No great reform could ever be effected if men did not change their opinions. The reforms of the past could never have been brought about if. when political leaders in power declined to act, or placed stumbling blocks in the way of those who were willing to go forward, the whole of their old-time supporters backed them up. Unrestricted commerce and reduction in taxation can only be procured by one of two courses: either the pressure of his own supporters must compel Sir John Macdonald to forsake the "combines," and that at once, or Conservatives like Mr. Stewart Brown—there are thousands of them in the Province—will cast their vote and influence with others who will. So far, it is not apparent that the Conservative managers at Ottawa mean to give up the combines. Rather is it made evident that they mean to try the old dodge of denouncing the opponents of class legislation as disloyal for sustaining the views so ably set forth by Farmer Brown and Manufacturer Cossitt, and under cover of the "loyalty" cry keep hold of the corruption fund provided by the sugar lords and their associates and the offices as well. If that is their intention, independent, self-respecting Conservatives, who have everything to gain from a progressive trade policy, can surely no longer support them.

LORD ABERDEEN ON IRELAND.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen appear to have thoroughly enjoyed their trip to the Pacific coast. They have made friends wherever they have gone, and when they come to leave Canada in a few days the best wishes of the people of the Dominion will go with the distinguished statesman and his philanthropic helpmeet. While at Vancouver, Lord Aberdeen was presented with addresses from leading Scotchmen and Irishmen, both of which referred in the most complimentary terms to the wisdom displayed by him while Viceroy of Ireland during a critical period in its history. On this subject, the address from natives of Ireland said:

> We are mindful of the distinguished services you have rendered our common country and of the brilliant record you made as the best beloved Viceroy of Ireland in modern times. The unflinching support which you have ever given to the cause of home rule as enunciated by that great English statesman, the Right Honorable William Ewart Gladstone, has endeared you to the hearts of Irishmen throughout the world, and has led us to hope that the day is not far distant when justice shall be meted out to that unhappy land, tending, as we believe, to the true unity of the great Empire of which we are proud to form a part. Living as we do under a constitutional government that is not excelled in any part of the globe—in which home rule in its widest sense predominates—the children of Erin have here risen to high places and yield to none in loyalty to the British Crown.

Lord Aberdeen made a happy reply. He disclaimed any intention to make a political speech, though tempted by some of the sentiments which had been addressed to him to do so; but he stated that the policy of the Government which he represented in Ireland had been such that when he came to leave the island people of all classes joined in a spontaneous demonstration of its approval, because it represented the general feeling of the Irish people. On that occasion the Catholic and the Protestant clergy stood side by side to present him with addresses. He believed that Mr. Gladstone's policy would secure the well-being of the Irish and promote peace and prosperity in Great Britain. He could not think for a moment that it would lead to the dismemberment of the empire or to disloyalty. Nor does any other sensible man.

The cry of disloyalty is raised by Tory politicians, who desire to keep themselves in power by appealing to the prejudices of the people. They raised the same alarm when the Irish Episcopal Church was disestablished by the Gladstone Government. Then they said that if the special privileges which this Church enjoyed at the expense of the whole Irish people were taken away, Protestantism was doomed, and British connection would receive a violent shock. That was the outcry in 1867-68, but the history of the Irish Episcopal Church since that time has been one of steady progress, and people laugh at the idea of it being regarded as necessary to force an unwilling population to support a preacher on whose ministrations they have never waited.

So will it be when other disabilities under which the Irish lie are removed. They will be removed if the British democracy continue to exist and to retain such leaders as Gladstone, Rosebery, Aberdeen, Granville, Morley and Spencer. On that no one who has been watching the trend of vents can have any misgivings.

A MACHINE FOR MILKING COWS.

Of labor-saving inventions there seems to be no end. The latest is a machine for milking cows, which has been in operation for some time past on the English estate of the Duke of Portland and has proved a great success. An ordinary iron pipe, one inch in diameter, is carried round the cow house at a convenient height above the shoulders of the cows. It communicates with a hand pump, whereby the air is drawn from the pipe, a circular tank connected with a shallow well of water serving as a regulator of the vacuum. From the iron pipe project connections, one opposite the space between every pair of animals, each connection being furnished with a stop cock. To any one of these connections is fitted a length of India rubber tubing, the other end being attached to a nozzle near the top of the milk pail which is of special construction. The pail is cylindrical in form, with a truncated conical top. Its opening, which is four inches wide, is closed by means of a thick glass disk, which rests inside flush with the outer rim of the pail, supported by a thick rubber band, held in place by a projecting ledge underneath. On one side of the shoulder of the pail is the nozzle which has been referred to and on the opposite side are four similar nozzles, all of which are like the small connections upon the iron pipe. The solitary nozzle is for attachment to the long flexible tube from the iron pipe; the other four are for short lengths of tubing connected in their turn with specially constructed teat cups, each of which receives a teat of the cow under operation. The cups, like the pail, are made of tinned iron, and each one is provided with a tap or stop cock. The milk pail has, in addition to its handle, a couple of hooks, by means of which it is suspended a little in front of the cow's udder, a broad band of girthing being laid across the animal's loins for the purpose. The method of operating is very simple. When all is ready, the pump is worked by a lad, and the air is thus exhausted from the iron pipe. Then a pail, with its cups attached, is adjusted under the cow, the long tube is joined to one of the connections overhead, the stopcock is opened and a partial vacuum is established within the pail. Next one of the cups is moistened and placed so as to embrace a teat; the stop cock of the cup is then opened, the teat is thus brought under the influence of the vacuum, and the greater external atmospheric pressure at once causes the milk to begin to flow. After all four cups have thus been adjusted, four jets of milk can be seen flowing into the can immediately beneath the glass cover. In from eight to ten minutes the cow is milked "dry." An expert who has thoroughly tested the merits of the apparatus says that the animals submit very quietly to the novel method of milking, and appear to be scarcely conscious that they are being deprived of their milk. While relieving cows of much of the distress that has hitherto been regarded as inevitable under existing circumstances, especially in the case of animals with chapped or swollen teats, the employment of the machine will insure much greater cleanliness in the operation of milking, a benefit of at least as much importance to the consumer as to the producer. On large dairy farms, it will be invaluable, as one attendant can conveniently keep half a dozen cows going. By the time the adjustment has been made for the sixth cow the first cow will about have finished milking, and her pail can be taken for the seventh cow, and so on.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—In a recent address, Principal Grant, of Kingston, speaking of the early settlers in Canada, said: "These men yearned and prayed for the country." The monopolists and timber-limit beneficiaries under the wing of the present Administration, have reversed all that. They "yearn and prey on the country."

—There is one drawback to Mr. Gladstone's triumphant visit to Edinburghshire upon the present occasion, and no one is more disappointed because of it than Lord Rosebery. The intention, as on former visits, was to entertain the Liberal leader as guest at Dalmeny, Lord Rosebery's Scottish residence, but Lady Rosebery's unfortunate illness from fever prevents that. Mr. Gladstone is therefore the guest of the Right Hon. J. B. Balfour, late Lord Advocate for Scotland, but no relation to the Irish Chief Secretary. A report from Edinburgh says the masses are more enthusiastically in favor of the Grand Old Man than ever.

—Give the hackman his due. In the heart of many a jehu there is genuine feeling, which only needs opportunity to show itself. A Detroit hackman, the other day, rescued Minnie Graham, of St. Thomas, from the clutches of a disreputable woman named Catharine Cook, and a fate worse than death. The girl had been hired to go to Grayling, Mich., where the woman Cook lives, and did not at first know that she was in the clutches of a vampire. When she did discover it, Hackman Welsh came to her rescue, and had the woman Cook arrested. He acted the part of a gentleman.

—The Liberals have captured Eccles, a Lancashire constituency which has hitherto been represented in the Imperial Parliament by a Conservative, and once again it is demonstrated that the electoral tide flows in favor of Gladstone. Government promises of local advantages to constituencies do not have an influence in Imperial elections as they too often have in by-elections in Canada. Thus the people get a pretty fair chance of deciding on the policy of the administration when an opportunity is presented to them, and the fact that Gladstone and his friends have in the bye-elections captured seat after seat held by the Tories in 1886 is good proof that the combination which now enables the Tories to hold the Government would be hopelessly beaten in a general appeal to the country. Apart from the great questions now before the people, the result in this typical Lancashire constituency shows that the majority of the miners are in favor of a legal eight-hour day and indorse liquor law reform.

A MAN'S LIFE SAVED

I WOULD not be doing justice to the afflicted if I withheld a statement of my experience with Jaundice, and how I was completely cured by using Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. No one can tell what I suffered for nine weeks, one-third of which I was confined to my bed, with the best medical skill I could obtain in the city trying to remove my affliction, but without even giving me temporary relief. My body was so sore that it was painful for me to walk. I could not bear my clothes tight around me, my bowels only operated when taking purgative medicines, my appetite was gone, nothing would remain on my stomach, and my eyes and body were as yellow as a guinea. When I ventured on the street I was stared at or turned from with a repulsive feeling by the passer-by. The doctors said there was no cure for me. I made up my mind to die, AS LIFE HAD LOST ALL ITS CHARMS. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I thought if the doctors could not cure me, what is the use of trying the Discovery, but after deliberating for a time I concluded to give it a trial, so I procured a bottle and commenced taking it three times a day. JUDGE OF MY SURPRISE at the expiration of the third day to find my appetite returning. Despair gave place to Hope, and I persevered in following the directions and taking Hot Baths two or three times a week until I had used the fifth bottle. I then had no further need for the medicine that had SAVED MY LIFE—that had restored me to health—as I was radically cured. The natural color had replaced the dingy yellow, I could eat three meals a day, in fact the trouble was to get enough to eat. When I commenced taking the Discovery my weight was only 132½ lbs, when I finished the fifth bottle it was 172½ lbs, or an increase of about half a pound per day, and I never felt better in my life. No one can tell how thankful I am for what this wonderful medicine has done for me. It has rooted out of my system every vestige of the worst type of Jaundice, and I don't believe there is a case of Jaundice, Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia that it will not cure.

(Signed) W. LEE, Toronto.

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

What is Scrofula

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors." It is a more formidable enemy than consumption or cancer alone, for scrofula combines the worst possible features of both. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How can it be cured? By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. For all affections of the blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled, and some of the cures it has effected are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula in any of its various forms, be sure to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

THE TURF.

Dr. Bierman, of Berlin, Germany, has bought of B. J. Tracey, of Lexington, Ky., the bay stallion Macy's Hambletonian, by Edward Everett, dam Ruth, by Rysdyke, Hambletonian, for $10,000.

The yearling colt, Monbars, that last week trotted two quarters in 38⅗ seconds to a road cart, has been sold by the Fashion Stud Farm to Richfield & Leathers, of Lexington, for $8,500, the highest price ever paid in Kentucky for a yearling.

The Stratford Times speaks of the visit of the London Hunt as follows: Many took them for the advance guard of the Agatha Singleton Opera Company, billed to play here next week. The parade afforded lots of amusement for the street gamin, who stared in round-eyed wonderment at the prancing aggregation of huntsmen. Windows were thrown up and bareheaded women ran out upon the street to feast their eyes upon a sight so charming. Dogs barked and ran howling under the sidewalks, engines tooted, while an Italian with a wheezy old organ played "Annie Rooney." Several of the gallant riders as they held up their high-mettled steeds took side glances as much as to say, "Are you looking, girls?" Those fond of horse-back exercise should turn out and form a club here.

NELSON'S FAST TIME.

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Oct. 23.—Nelson, the great stallion who trotted a mile here in 2:10¾, lowering his own record half a second, repeated the performance again yesterday under very unfavorable circumstances. His mile in 2:10¾ was his sixth in 2:12 or better in a few weeks.

ATHLETICS.

Duncan C. Ross, the athlete, was fined £7 in a Melbourne court last month for assaulting with a walking stick two men who had collided with him in running to catch a tram car.

The Guelph Amateur Athletic Association has elected officers as follow: President, John J. Hackney; vice-president, Wm. Naismith; treasurer, Richard Readwin; secretary, John A. Naismith; auditors, V. BASEBALL.

The double-umpire system will be dropped next year.

Robert Elmslie, American Association umpire, has returned to St. Thomas to spend the winter.

Pitcher William Calihan, of the Rochester Club, has entered suit against General Brinker, as president of the Rochesters, for $1,000 back salary. He claims that he was suspended and fined $200 for his offense, and that after this suspension he began playing again at the request of some of the directors. Then he claims he was suspended again and paid no salary from the time he was first suspended and fined.

In the Washington Court general term on Tuesday Judge Hagner delivered the opinion of the court in the case of A. H. Potts against the Washington National Baseball Club. This is a suit for damages received by plaintiff, having his nose broken by a ball in the baseball grounds during the progress of a game. On the trial below the defense claimed that the plaintiff not being on the stand and being at the time in a portion of the ground not set aside for spectators he could not recover. The case was taken from the jury and the plaintiff appealed. The court decides that the club is responsible for the safety of its patrons, and remands the case for trial.

FAILED TO AGREE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Conference Committee appointed to settle the baseball difficulty began work soon after 1 o'clock. Besides three delegates from the Players' League, three from the National and three from the American Association, there were also three other gentlemen, Ward, Hanlon and Irwin, on hand to represent the Players'. Mr. Thurman, who presided, refused to call the meeting to order unless they retired. It was explained that the Players' had increased their delegation, and Mr. Johnston said the committee was not ready to proceed unless the whole delegation was present. A lively discussion followed, and as a result the Players' orginal committee of three and the Brotherhood Committee retired. These gentlemen talked over the situation, and the Players' original committees returned to the meeting room. Mr. Thurman then called the meeting to order, and a letter from the directors of Players' League, explaining the appointment of the additional members of the committe was read. Al. Johnson moved that the Players' delegation be increased by three. The motion was lost—5 to 3, the National League and the Association voting together. The Players' League delegates then withdrew and the conference was adjourned subject to the call of the chairman. A meeting of the National Baseball League was held here to-night, but those present declined to state what was done, declaring that no conclusion had been reached.

FOOTBALL.

AN ASSOCIATION LEAGUE IN LONDON.

At a meeting held in Victoria Hall on Monday evening, it was decided to form an Association Football League in London, and to play a series of twenty matches for the championship. Lieut.-Col. Smith was elected honorary president; R. A. Little, B.A., principal Collegiate Institute, was elected president; Dr. Beemer, of the asylum, first vice-president; J. W. Westervelt, F. C. B. C., second vice-president; executive committee, Messrs. A. Sippi, J. C. Plewes, B. Dunlevey, J. W. Westervelt, jun., W. Lind; secretary and treasurer, H. T. B. Millie. The winning team will be presented with medals for each member. The first match in the league series takes place Thursday, Oct. 23, at the Military Grounds, the teams being "D" Company against Collegiate Institute. Game called at 3:30 p.m. There will be two matches on Saturday, "D" Company vs. Asylum and London City Team vs. High School.

THE OAR.

John D. Ryan, the stroke oar of the Bradford Boat Club, charged with throwing Nelson G. Innes, a Boston Herald reporter, into the Charles River, was on Tuesday sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. Ryan appealed, and was held in $800 bail for the Supreme Court.

THE WHEEL.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—Judge McDougall heard a case of great interest to wheelmen in the County Court Chambers yesterday afternoon. During June, Mr. Harry English, a well-known bicyclist, was riding up Sherbourne street on his wheel, when he was overtaken by an express cart driven by John McCuaig. The vehicle ran into Mr. English, smashing his wheel and seriously injuring him. The Toronto Bicycle Club, of which Mr. English is a member, determined to proceed against the expressman, not so much with the object of making the "punishment fit the crime" in this particular case as to establish, so far as they could before the county judge, a bicyclist's rights on the Queen's highway. Mr. English, accordingly, entered a suit against Expressman McCuaig for $200 damages. Defendant admitted having had a few glasses of liquor during the day of the accident and said he never turned out of his way for a bicycle. The judge awarded the plaintiff $100 damages and costs.

RECIPROCITY VS. RESTRICTION.

Sir Richard Cartwright at Pembroke and Merrickville.

PEMBROKE, Oct. 22.—The second of Sir Richard Cartwright's series of meetings was held here last evening, and proved one of the most successful political gatherings ever held it this riding. The meeting was held in the Town Hall, every seat in which was taken long before the speaker of the evening appeared, and the hall was crowded to the doors soon after the speaking began. Sir Richard Cartwright on entering was received with loud applause by the great audience, the ladies, of whom many were present, taking part in thus giving him welcome.

The chair was taken by Dr. M. M. McKay, M.A., president of the Reform Association of North Pembroke. Sir Richard Cartwright spoke at considerable length, but there was not a moment when the attention of the great audience flagged. The speaker, by his earnestness and by his complete mastery of the subject, carried with him the attention and sympathy of the audience. His clear presentation of the advantages to flow from the removal of the double tariff wall between the two countries called forth loud applause, and the appeal to the people with which he closed, asking for fair and full consideration of the question and a decision free from party, has evidently had no little effect upon the hearers.

AT MERRICKVILLE.

MERRICKVILLE, Oct. 22.—Sir Richard Cartwright addressed a meeting of the electors here for the first time to-day. There was a splendid attendance, made up of the best people of the district, many of them farmers who had driven long distances to hear the speaker of the day. Many Conservatives were present. Mr. Angus Buchanan, of Kemptville, who led the Liberals of the riding in the struggle the last election, was called to the chair, and Mr. Gordon R. Putnam, of Merrickville, was appointed secretary of the meeting. Sir Richard was received with applause. His address was on the same general line as he followed in the previous meetings of this series. It was clear and thoroughly practical throughout, and the audience listened with the closest attention, and the readiness with which applause greeted every good point was proof sufficient that every word was thoroughly understood and appreciated.

Following Sir Richard, Mr. Frost spoke briefly. He is a popular man in this district, as shown by the hearty cheers with which he was greeted. His remarks were all the more significant because he is a member of the firm of Frost & Wood, one of the largest manufacturing houses in agricultural implements now carrying on business in the Province. He declared himself to be still what he had always been, a free trader, and ridiculed the N. P., declaring that it had not given employment to 30,000 extra hands, and it had driven a 250,000 people out of the country. The object to be promoted was the welfare of the great producing classes, notably the farmers, for unless these were prosperous manufacturers and others could not live. He declared himself ready as a manufacturer to meet in a fair and open market any competition that could be brought against him. The farmers did not yet realize that the McKinley Bill was in force, but when they missed the familiar faces of American buyers on the line throughout the country they would see by contrast what advantage it would be to them and to all the people to have free access to the markets of the United States.

What is Doing in British Columbia.

The Crosby Mission—French Work—A Greeting to the Sisterhood in Session at Brantford.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

With characteristic punctuality, the afternoon session of the Women's Methodist Missionary Society, commenced promptly at 2:30 o'clock. A large number of spectators were present, and appeared to be much interested in the proceedings, which were opened with the customary devotional services, followed by the reading of the minutes.

The Secretary read a letter from Dr. Sutherland, of Toronto, referring to the request of the society for more space in the Outlook, and holding out no hope of complying, unless at some future date the paper be enlarged.

Mrs. (Dr.) Burns, of St. Thomas, read the report of the Committee on the Constitution on the recommended changes. That of article 5, sections 1 and 2, were not entertained and the remainder approved with slight alterations.

The Committee on Courtesies reported a motion by Mrs. Crosby, seconded by Mrs. McRossie, that greetings be sent to the Baptist Women's Mission Society now in convention at Brantford, and that they be composed of verses 3, 4 and 5, of the first chapter of first Corinthians. A telegram was sent to that effect.

Mrs. E. S. Strachan read the report of the Crosby Home, showing three new children to have been taken in, with a total of 22 inmates. The receipts were also larger than for the previous year. Several communications were read from members in British Columbia regarding the site of the proposed new home, and it was decided to hear the remainder to-morrow afternoon.

The report on French work, read by Mrs. W. E. Ross, of Montreal, described the prospect as hopeful in the first year of the new institute. The statement prepared by the efficient teacher, Miss Master, showed 43 pupils had been in attendance, with three teachers. The east and west end schools in Montreal were successful in their efforts. The receipts for the year were $3,551 and the disbursements the same, less the amount on hand by $202.

Mrs. Tate, of Chilliwhack, B. C., read the report of the college there, which was of an exceedingly hopeful tone. The number of pupils went as high as 30. The financial statement showed the receipts from the Missionary Society for the past year had been $2,052 50, and from donations and other sources, $267 07, making a total of $2,319 57. The expenditure was $2,318 23, leaving a balance of $1 34. The estimate for the building fund was placed at $5,220. Mrs. Tate made a few interesting remarks on the mission work in British Columbia. There were 3,500 Indians there, only half of whom were brought under Christian influence. Since the Missionary Society had commenced operations there two schools were established at Fort Simpson and Chilliwhack respectively. It often happened when they had taught the Indians to read and write, they would be met by men with infidel literature. Whisky was also a terrible influence for evil. Another thing practiced by the parents was pressing the heads of infants by a board, thus making them flat on top, whence they derived their name—"Flat-Heads." But this treatment had been done away with where the missionaries were. It was hoped to establish more schools in the future in districts where the Roman Catholics had settled. The latter system, she thought, was worse than heathenism as it bound its subjects in their own superstition. On the whole the mission situation was promising.

Mrs. Large answered a few questions put relative to work and life in Japan. She described their daily course in the mission school, the work of the teachers and the habits of the people, together with the furnishings of the school, the necessity of having the best food, and other similar matters.

The meeting adjourned at 5:30 p.m. to this morning, when committees will meet.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Devotional exercises led by Mrs. (Dr.) Burns, of St. Thomas, opened the proceedings promptly at 7:30 o'clock with all delegates present.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. S. Strachan, of Hamilton, read the reports left over from the previous afternoon.

The report of the McDougall Orphanage proved the receipts for the year to have been $2,410 95, of which the Government had granted $1,000 and the Women's Missionary Society $1,200. The expenditure had been $1,887 61. The number of pupils at last annual report was 24, and during the year 5 were discharged, and 3 had absconded, leaving in residence at date 9. The average attendance had been 16½. A debt of $1,565 36 still remained. The Government were erecting an addition which would make accommodation for 40 pupils. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. McDougall for his detailed report.

The report of the Chinese Home in Victoria set forth the beneficent influence which the institution was gradually inspiring in the Chinese residents. The number of inmates was ten; the receipts for the year $1,525 75 and the disbursements $1,461 65.

A letter was read from the president of the Methodist College, St. Johns, Nfld., explaining the objects and working of the Newfoundland Orphanage, and appealing to the society for aid by a regular grant. The establishment had commenced in 1888 with three inmates and was now sheltering twenty orphans, and at present it was found difficult to pay expenses. The sum of $14,000 had been bequeathed for the erection of a new orphanage, which would be carried out in the near future.

At the suggestion of the president the financial statements of the above reports were referred to the Appropriation Committee.

The session then adjourned to allow the committees to meet in their several apartments.

Bricks Were Scarce.

"Jimmy," said a visitor at the Jaysmiths', "how is your papa going to build his house? There are no bricks coming to the city now."

"Oh," replied Jimmy, "mamma says papa brings home a brick in his hat every night."

Baby's Looks.

Fond Father—Which side of the house do you think the baby looks like, Jim?

Jim—I dunno, Fred, but 'pears to me he looks 'bout as much like the outside as he does like the inside.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when, by th timely use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed and the dangor avoided? This Syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.

HAPPILY WED.

Occurrences of Interest to Many Londoners.

A Brilliant Marriage in South London—The Nuptials of Dr. J. W. Fraser and Miss Margaret Mills—Mr. William Turnbull's Wedding at St. Thomas.

One of the most brilliant home weddings of the season was that of Miss Margaret Mills, eldest daughter of the Hon. David Mills, and Dr. J. W. Fraser, which was celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents yesterday afternoon.

The drawing-rooms were profusely decorated for the occasion, the mantels banked with trailing myrtle and purple wisteria, and the bay windows transformed into alcoves of smilax and flowers.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the bride entered, leaning on the arm of her father, and followed by the bridesmaids, Miss May Fraser, sister of her groom, Miss Alice Maude Mills, sister of the bride, little 3-year-old Alice Archer Watts as flower girl, and tiny Ronald Fraser, the groom's youngest brother, as page.

The groom was supported by Mr. Geo. C. Gunn, barrister, as best man. Rev. W. J. McKay, of the South London Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Jas. Ballantyne, of Knox Church, performed the brief ceremony in an impressive manner.

The bride looked very stately and beautiful in a rich costume of ivory white satin made with long court train, and trimmed with a flounce and bertha of wide Duchesse lace. Sprays of snowdrops caught up the costly lace on one side of the skirt and fastened the long tulle veil. Her large bouquet, tied with white ribbons, was of the same pure flowers.

Miss May Fraser was costumed in Bouton d'or surah silk, made with square neck and trimmed with Valenciennes lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow tea roses tied with ribbon of the same shade. Miss Alice Mills wore shrimp pink silk with embroidered crepe lisse, and carried Bou Silene roses. The little flower girl was in a quaint gown of white cashmere and lace, and the little boy in a page's costume of black velvet with white silk sash, lace collar and cuffs.

A reception followed, only the invited guests who had witnessed the ceremony being present. The wedding breakfast was served by Fysh on an elaborately decorated table, and Dr. and Mrs. Fraser left on the 7:20 train for their future home in Ogden, Utah, followed by showers of rice and good wishes.

Among the many handsome toilettes were: Mrs. David Mills, mother of the bride, in silver plush, combined with blue and silver silk, long train and gold ornaments; Mrs. J. M. Fraser, a trained gown of mahogany velvet and satin; Mrs. (Judge) Bell, moss green pean de soie; Mrs. E. J. Parke, blue and brown oriental brocade; Mrs. J. Marshall, black faille and jets, white ostrich feathers and white roses; Mrs. Macfie, black and white silk, black bear fur trimmings and huge bouquet of American Beauty roses; Mrs. S. J. Watts, sister of the bride, shrimp pink pongee silk trimmed with embroidered lisse; Mrs. Walter Mills, blue silk, V-shaped corsage trimmed with mousseline de soie; Mrs. Nelson Mills, grey faille with black brussels net; Miss Marguerite Mills (Michigan), black faille, decollete, trimmed with brussels net, spangled with gold and yellow roses; Miss Emmeline Mills, white and green challie, with American Beauty roses; Miss Hannah Mills, peach-blow silk and Sunset roses; Miss A. M. Fraser, blue silk; Mrs. McKay, brown silk and velvet; Mrs. Ballantyne, French grey faille; Miss Eva H. Brodlique, shell-pink brocade and silver gauze, silver-gray ostrich boa and bouquet of Katherine Mermet roses; Mrs. J. D. Fraser, dove-gray and old rose faille, with long train, and steel and old rose passementerie; Miss M. J. McCully, gold-colored surah and yellow roses; Miss Belle Fraser, pale pink surah, appliqued with black velvet, pink roses and smilax; Miss Cassie Jeffrey, white cashmere and gold galloon, Marechal Neil roses; Miss Eberle, Vieux roses, satin and velvet; Miss Jean Fraser, cream cashmere and lace; Mrs. Daniel Mills, heavy black faille and jets; Miss M. Fraser, black gros grain and white roses.

The guests included: Judge and Mrs. Bell, Chatham; Dr. Samuel Fraser, Fort McLeod, N. W. T.; Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Watts, Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Mills, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Mills, St. Clair, Mich.; Dr. and Miss McCully, Blenheim; Mr. Hiram and Mrs. Daniel Mills, Bothwell; Miss Oberle, Owen Sound; Miss Eva H. Brodlique, Chicago; Misses Marguerite Hannah and Emily Mills, St. Clair, Mich.; Dr. McCullough, Blenheim; and Mr. J. B. Smallman, Misses Jean, M. and A. M. Fraser, Principal Little, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Macfie, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Wilson, Dr. George H. Wilson, Miss Cassie Jeffery, Miss Belle Wilson, Mrs (Rev.) Jas. Ballantyne and Mrs. (Rev.) W. J. McKay, of this city.

The going-away dress of the bride was of brown cheviot, with brown velvet toque trimmed with silver and marabout aigrette. She is well-known in London for her accomplishments and charm of manner and person. The groom is the eldest son of Dr. J. M. Fraser, of this city, and is successfully practicing his profession at Ogden, Utah.

TURNBULL—ROBERTSON.

The St. Thomas Journal says: "The marriage of Mr. William Turnbull, of London, and Miss Eleanor S. Robertson, of this city, in Knox Church last night, was an event which had been looked forward to for some time by the friends of the happy couple, especially by those of the fair sex, whose interest in the ceremony which binds heart to heart seems never to wane. As a consequence of this perennial interest, and of the popularity of the prospective bride and groom in many circles, the sacred edifice was crowded to the doors long before the hour set for the wedding. The ceremony was a remarkably pretty one, and many were the words of admiration and of good wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull that found expression. The services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Murray, of St. Andrew's Church, London, Mr. J. H. Jones, of Trinity Church, presiding at the organ. Miss Robertson, who was given away by her father, Mr. M. Robertson, was supported by her sister, Miss Frances M. M. Robertson, as maid of honor, and by Miss Catharine Turnbull, of Hamilton, Miss Mary A. Heulsart, of St. Louis, Mo., Miss Elizabeth M. Perkins, of Ottawa, and Miss Florence A. B. Chandler, of Springfield, as maids. The groomsman was Mr. James Turnbull, of Hamilton, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Geo. Carrie and Mr. Jas. Begg, St. Thomas, and Mr. Albert Neighood, London.

After brief greetings at the church a reception was tendered to a few intimate friends at the family residence of the bride's parents, Erie street. The guests from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Poustie and Miss Titus, of Aylmer; Miss Heulsart, of St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Perkins, of Ottawa; Miss Chandler, of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Taylor, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. A. Neighood, and Mr. A. T. Cleghorn, London. Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull left amid a shower of rice and the heartiest of good wishes on the midnight train for New York. After their eastern trip they will be at home at No. 321 King street, London.

Mr. Turnbull is well and favorably known throughout Western Ontario, especially among the mercantile community, having been for many years the representative of the wholesale grocery firm of Edward Adams & Co., of London. Mrs. Turnbull graduated in art from Alma College at the last commencement exercises, and leaves a host of friends in college and city, who will extend to her their warmest congratulations and good wishes.

Sing a song of sixpence,

That please the ladies' eyes;
They happy make each mother,
Each wife and daughter true;
And all tell one another,
What "Diamond Dyes" can do
So sing a song of sixpence
For what these dyes have done,
In giving glorious colors,
That hold in rain or sun.

—"There's more perjury committed in liquor cases than in anything else," said the Police Magistrate this morning as he finished the hearing of the charges against Henry Brinsmead. A Pleasant Social Gathering.

The usual monthly "at home" of the Epworth League of the Colborne Street Methodist Church, held in the lecture hall of that church, was a decided success. Judging from the well filled hall this organization must not only have a large membership but a large number of friends and patrons. The programme was a musical treat and one of the best prepared by the entertainment department of the league. The programme consisted of a number of interesting selections as follows: Organ solo, Mr. Charles Manness; song, Miss Garner; harmonica solo, Miss Lulu Smith, accompanied by the Epworth League Harmonica Band; solo, Mr. James Jury; trio (flute, violin and organ), Messrs. Penn, sen., George Winterbottom and E. J. Forsyth; instrumental selection, Miss M. Fortner; recitations, Mrs. Barker, of Cobourg; selection, Epworth League Harmonica Band, accompanied by Miss L. Jury, Mr. E. Forsyth and Mr. C. Manness. A principle strongly emphasized by quite a number identified with this organization is the abolition of all contributions towards social gatherings except in the form of voluntary offerings. The report of the treasurer as presented showed a very creditable balance on hand.

Masonic Visit to Thamesford.

Last night quite a number of members of the Masonic Order in this city left by special car on the C. P. R. for Thamesford to accompany Rt. Wor. Bro. A. B. Munson, D. D. G. M. of London District No. 3, upon his official visit to King Solomon Lodge, No. 394. The visitors were met at the station by a number of the brethren and escorted to the town. After the exemplification of the third degree by Wor. Bro. E. A. Dundas, short speeches were made by Rt. Wor. Bro. Munson, London; Wor. Bros. Ford, Stratfold, Bridle, Toll, Jas. Sutherland, M.P. The Worshipful Master invited the members present to the Grand Central Hotel, where a dinner had been prepared by Mr. James Armstrong, the proprietor, which would have been a credit to any hotel in Ontario. After justice had been done to it, a very pleasant hour was spent in social singing and speech-making, the brethren returning to London about midnight. Among those present were: Rt. Wor. Bro. A. B. Munson, D.D.G.M., London District No. 3; Wor. Bros. H. T. Ford, of St. John's, No. 20; C. C. Reed, P.M., Kilwinning, No. 64; W. H. Murphy, Madison county, Ind., slight. The passengers all were able to walk over the hill to the train and resume their journey.

THE TRIGGER.

A Clarence street hotel-keeper together with a couple of city sports went out for a day's shooting one day last week. While the trio were sitting down to rest on a log, a sparrow flew up from among the brush. The sports followed in hot pursuit, forgetting that they had left their lunch on the log. The hounds were missed, when one of the number suddenly thought of the lunch basket. The party retraced their steps to the log only to find that the basket had been relieved of its chicken, ham sandwiches and other edibles. The party returned home at a late hour without any game, hungry and footsore. The dogs, however, looked well-fed and happy. The only reason given for not having any birds was that all the farmers had locked up their poultry.

Desperate Remedies

By Thomas Hardy,

AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "THE TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

It is both painful and satisfactory to think how often these antitheses are to be observed in the individual most open to our observation—ourselves. We pass the evening with faces lit up by some flaring illumination or other; we get up the next morning—the fiery jets have all gone out, and nothing confronts us but a few crinkled pipes and sooty wirework, hardly even recalling the outline of the blazing picture that arrested our eyes before bedtime.

Emotions would be half starved if there were no candle light. Probably nine-tenths of the gushing letters of indiscreet confidences are written after 9 or 10 o'clock in the evening, and sent off before day returns to leer invidiously upon them. Few that remain open to catch our glance as we rise in the morning, survive the rigid criticism of dressing-time.

The subject uppermost in the minds of the two women who had thus cooled from their fires, were not the visionary ones of the later hours, but the hard facts of their earlier conversation. After a remark that Cytherea need not assist her in dressing unless she wished to, Miss Aldclyffe said abruptly:

"I can tell you that young man's name." She looked keenly at Cytherea. "It is Edward Springrove, my tenant's son."

The inundation of color upon the younger lady at hearing a name, which to her was a world, handled as if it were only an atom, told Miss Aldclyffe that she had divined the truth at last.

"Ah—it is he, is it?" she continued. "Well I wanted to know for practical reasons. His example shows that I was not so far wrong in my estimate of men after all, though I only generalized, and had no thought of him." This was perfectly true.

"What do you mean!" said Cytherea, visibly alarmed.

"Mean? Why all the world knows him to be engaged to be married, and that the wedding is soon to take place." She made the remark bluntly and supercilliously, as if to obtain absolution at the hands of her family pride for the weak confidences of the night.

But even the frigidity of Miss Aldclyffe's morning mood was overcome by the look of sick and blank despair which the carelessly uttered words had produce upon Cytherea's face. She sank back into a chair, and buried her face in her hands.

"Don't be so foolish," said Miss Aldclyffe. "Come, make the best of it. I cannot upset the fact I have told you of, unfortunately. But I believe the match can be broken off."

"Oh, no, no."

"Nonsense. I liked him much as as a youth, and I like him now. I'll help you to captivate and chain him down. I have got over my absurd feeling of last night in not wanting you ever to go away from me—of course, I could not expect you to do such a thing as that. There now, I have said I'll help you, and that's enough. He is tired of his first choice now that he's been away from home for a while. The love which no outer attack can frighten away quails before its idol's own homely ways; it is always so. Come, finish what you are doing if you are going to, and don't be a little goose about such an affair as that."

"Who—is he engaged to?" Cytherea inquired by a movement of her lips but no sound of her voice. But Miss Aldclyffe did not answer. It mattered not, Cytherea thought. Another woman—that was enough for her; her curiosity was stunned.

She applied herself to the work of dressing, scarcely knowing how. Miss Aldclyffe went on:

"You were too easily won. I'd have made him or any one else speak out before he should have kissed my face for his pleasure. But you are one of those precipitantly fond things who are yearning to throw away their hearts upon the first worthless fellow who says good-morning. In the first place, you shouldn't have loved him so quickly; in the next place, if you must have loved him off-hand, you should have concealed it. It tickled his vanity; 'By Jove, that girl's in love with me already,' he thought."

To hasten away at the end of the toilet, and to tell Mrs. Morris—who stood waiting in a little room prepared for her, with tea poured out, bread-and-butter cut into diaphanous slices, and eggs arranged—that she wanted no breakfast; then to shut herself alone in her bedroom, was her only thought. She was followed thither by the well-intentioned matron with a cup of tea and one piece of bread-and-butter on a tray cheerfully insisting that she should eat it.

To those who grieve, innocent cheerfulness seems heartless levity. "No, thank you, Mrs. Morris," she said, keeping the door closed. Despite the incivility of her actions, Cytherea could not bear to let a pleasant person see her face then.

Immediate revocation—even if the revocation would be more effective by postponement—is the impulse of young wounded natures. Cytherea went to her blotting-book, took out the long letter so carefully written so full of gushing remarks and tender hints, and sealed up so neatly with a little seal bearing "Good Faith" as its motto, tore the missive into fifty pieces, and threw them into the grate. It was then that the bitterest of anguishes to look upon some of the words she had so lovingly written, and see them existing only in mutilated forms without meaning—to feel that his eye would never read them, nobody ever know how ardently she had penned them.

Pity one's self for being wasted is mostly present in these mood of abnegation.

The meaning of all his allusions, his abruptness in telling her of his love, his constraint at first, then his desperate manner of speaking, was clear. They must have been the last flickerings of a conscience not quite dead to all sense of perfidiousness and fickleness. Now he had gone to London; she would be dismissed from his memory, in the same way as Miss Aldclyffe had said. And here she was in Edward's own parish, reminded continually of him by what she saw and heard. The landscape yesterday so much and so beautiful to her, was now but as the banquet-room deserted—all gone but herself.

Miss Aldclyffe had wormed the secret out of her, and would now be continually mocking her for her trusting simplicity in believing him. It was altogether unbearable: she would not stay there.

She went downstairs and found that Miss Aldclyffe had gone into the breakfast-room, but that Captain Aldclyffe, who rose later with increasing infirmities, had not yet made his appearance. Cytherea entered. Miss Aldclyffe was looking out off the window, watching a trail of white smoke along the distant landscape—signifying a passing train. At Cytherea's entry she turned and looked inquiry.

"I must tell you now," began Cytherea, in a tremulous voice.

"Well, what?" Miss Aldclyffe said.

"I am not going to stay with you. I must go away, a very long way. I am very sorry but indeed I can't remain."

"Pooh—what shall we hear next?" Miss Aldclyffe surveyed Cytherea's face with leisureiy criticism. You are breaking you heart again about that worthless young Springrove. I knew how in would be. It is as Hallam says of Juliet—what little reason you may have possessed originally has all been whirled away by this love. I shan't take this notice, mind."

"Do let me go."

Miss Aldclyffe took her new pet's hand, and said with severity, "As to hindering you, if you are determined to go, of course, that's absurd. But you are not now in a state of mind fit for deciding upon any such proceeding, and I shall not listen to what you have to say. Now, Cythie, come with me; we'll let this volcano burst and spend itself, and after that we'll see what had better be done." She took Cytherea down into her workroom, opened a drawer, and drew forth a roll of linen.

"This is some embroidery I began one day, and now I should like it finished."

She then preceeded the maiden, upstairs to Cytherea's own room. "There," she said, "now sit down here, and go on with this work, and remember one thing, that you are not to leave the room on any pretext whatever for two hours unless I send for you, I insist kindly, dear. Whilst you stitch—you are to stitch—you are to stitch, recollect, and not go mooning out of the window—think over the whole matter and get cooled; don't let the foolish love-affair prevent your thinking as a woman of the world. If at the end of that time you still say you must leave me, you may. I will have no more to say in the matter. Come, sit down, and promise to sit here the time I name."

To hearts in a despairing mood, compulsion seems a relief; and docility was at all times natural to Cytherea. She promised, and sat down. Miss Aldclyffe shut the door upon her and retired.

She sewed, stopped to think, shed a tear or two, recollected the articles of the treaty and sewed again; and at length fell into a reveric which took no account whatever of the lapse of time.

§ 4. Ten to twelve o'clock, a.m.

A quarter of an hour might have passed when her thoughts became attracted from the past to the present by unwonted movements downstairs. She opened the door and listened.

There were hurryings along passages, opening and shutting of doors, trampling in the stable-yard. She went across into another bedroom, from which a view of the stable-yard could be obtained, and arrived there just in time to see the figure of the man who had driven her from the station vanishing down the coach road on a black horse—galloping at the top of the animal's speed.

Another man went off in the direction of the village.

Whatever had occured, it did not seem to be her duty to inquire or meddle with it, stranger and dependant as she was, unless she were requested to, especially after Miss Aldclyffe's strict charge to her. She sat down again, determined to let no idle curiosity influence her movements.

Her window commanded the front of the house; and the next thing she saw was a clergyman walk up and enter the door.

All was silent again till, a long time after the first man had left, he returned again on the same horse, now matted with sweat and trotting behind a carriage in which sat an elderly gentleman driven by a lad in livery. These came to the house, entered, and all was again the same as before.

A most horrible murder occurred on Saturday about three miles from Perry. It seems that a man named William Fillinger and his wife have lately become crazed with religion. They have a child, a babe in arms. Fillinger's mother, who lived with them, was an aged lady, and has been sick for some time. Saturday it occurred to this crazy couple that the old lady should be baptized, whereupon Fillinger's wife secured a bucket of water, and while he sat on the old lady's feet, holding the child, his wife pured the water into her face, and she expired in a few minutes. When outsiders arrived they found that Fillinger's wife was throwing water on him and the baby. It was only by the greatest effort that the two men and the servant succeeded in saving the babe. The couple were held for trial and sent to the county jail at Corunna. The perpetrators of the deed have been respectable farmers.

The audience was very well entertained, and the people went away at the end on very good terms with themselves, the company and the composer."

Strathroy Items.

Rosina Vokes Coming.

Monday evening the play-goers of London will have an opportunity of welcoming the return of that charming, sprightly and vivacious little comedienne, Rosina Vokes, who never fails in her annual tour to visit the namesake of her native city—London. She comes for a one night's visit only, bringing with her her admirable company of English comedians, and one of her delightful triple bills. The plays selected for presentation here are all new to London theater-goers. The performance will begin with "Percy Pendragon," a one-act comedy taken from H. J. Byron's "Married in Haste," to be followed by F. W. Sidney's delightful comedietta "Wig and Gown," in which Miss Vokes scored a marked success at Daly's Theater, New York, last spring, and "A Double Lesson," a comedietta from the pen of B. C. Stephenson. The plan opens to-morrow morning.

Gambled for Twenty-Four Hours.

James James was charged at the Police Court this morning with allowing gambling in his hotel. The prosecuting attorney, Mr. McKillop, stated that John McGregor, a hard-working man, who is a butcher on the market, went to James' hotel on the afternoon of Oct. 7 with about $130 in his pocket, and with two other men gambled until 5 o'clock the following afternoon, a whole 24 hours, when McGregor ran out of funds. The wife of the latter informed the court that when she went for her husband to take him home she found him drunk, while the others with him were sober. Persons representing the defendant had come to her asking her to sign a paper and offering her $10, but she had refused. Her husband had not been seen since the summons was issued, although she expected him to-morrow. James acknowledged the men were in the hotel, but denied being a participant in the affair. A charge of breaking the Liquor License Act was registered against him, to which he pleaded not guilty. Both cases were enlarged until Monday.

Danced at the Waterloo Ball.

[London Daily Telegraph.]

A venerable lady completes to-day her 95th year—Georgina, Dowager Baroness de Ros. It was she—then in her 20th year—who on the eve of the battle of Waterloo danced at the ball given by her father, the Duke of Richmond, at Brussels. Her ladyship was born on Sept. 30, 1795, being the third daughter of Charles, fourth Duke of Richmond, who was a general in the army and colonel of the 35th Regiment. Her mother was Lady Charlotte Gordon, daughter of Alexander, fourth Duke of Gordon—a title which was revived in 1876 in favor of her grandson, the present Duke of Richmond. Lady de Ros married, on June 7, 1824, William Lennox Lascelles, twenty-third Baron de Ros, who died in January, 1874, when he was succeeded by his son, General Lord de Ros, who formerly commanded the First Life Guards, and is a Lord in Waiting for the Queen and the Premier Baron of England. Two of Lady de Ros's sisters also survive—Lady Louisa Tighe, who will be 87 on Oct. 2, and Lady Sophia Georgiana Cecil, widow of the late Lord Thomas Cecil, who is in her 82 year.

News from High Latitudes.

Sir James Grant, of Ottawa, says: "To secure health in our Canadian climate pure wool undervests are very necessary, and I feel confident you have accomplished a good work in the production of the 'Health' brand, which cannot fail to meet the requirements of our people. Wishing you every possible degree of success in this line of manufacture so scientific and practical. Yours, etc." The above speaks for itself, and every lady who desires a light, luxurious and comfortable undervest will find all these qualities combined in the Health brand for sale by Thomas Beattie & Co.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite. w

Smokers Should Read.

London is well known throughout Canada, particularly as the city from which the celebrated "Highland Lassie" cigar is shipped to all parts of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Messrs. H. McKay & Co., the manufacturers, take a special pride in this 5-cent cigar. It has been completely tested by the majority of the smokers of the country, who pronounce it the choicest article on the market. Nothing but the best fillers and wrappers are allowed in its composition, and, when once tried, it convinces the most sceptical of its superiority. Messrs. H. McKay & Co.'s immense establishment, with its products, is a credit to the city.
