circles that Sir Cheles Tupper was the moving spirit in pronoting the late dissolution of Parliament. He had learned the condition of Sir John Macdonald's health and caused pressure to be put on the Old Man to bring on an election. His active agents in the Cabinst were his son, the Minister of Fisherie, Mr. Foster and Sir John Thompson. They saw that if the Old Man's Health quite broke down and they had to go to the country under other than he old leader defeat was inevitable, and so they subjected Sir John to the stress and fatigue of a campaign, notwithstanding the perilous state of his health, in order to achieve a victory for Tupper; and narrow as the victory was, the strength of the stress and fatigue of a campaign, notwithstanding the perilous state of his health, in order to achieve a victory for Tupper; and narrow as the victory was, of his health, in order to achieve a victory of Tupper; and narrow as the victory was, never did man swagger more oscentatiously and offensively over the result or more completely seize all the glory of the triumph than this same Tupper. Still, it is known that without contributed bribery money he has little influence outside his own Nove Section buildwick. own Nova Scotian ballwick.

MARCH WEATHER IN MAY. Killing Frosts in Ohio and Michigan Untimely Snowfalls Elsewhere.

Untimely Snowfalls Elsewhore.

Washington, D. C., May 18.—The Signal Office furnishes the following: The weather reports show the occurrence on Sunday morning of unusually low temperature for the season throughout Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Western New York. At Parkersburg, Columbus, Erie, Port Huron and Ministee the temperatures were from 2° to 4° lower than any previously recorded for this service during the second, decade of May. Killing frosts occurred generally throughout Michigan and Northern Ohio, and light frosts in the other districts named. No frosts were reported by observers from the Middle Atlantic States and New England.

Report of the Transatlantic Committon the Cattle Trade. Report of the Transatantice on the Cattle Trade.

London, May 18.—The Transatlantic Cattle Trade Committee have completed their report. The report approves of the United States regulations for the inspection and shipment of cattle. Ocean steamships which are occasionally chartered for the ocean cattle trade have in some instances an unsatisfactory class of officers, without experience in this particular trade. The fittings and ventilation of such ships are also frequently unadapted to the uses to which they are put, and the men employed attend to the cattle while traveling across the Atlantic are generally unskilled and often totally unable physically to endure the hardships of a rough voyage. The difficult and dangerous duty of attending cattle in shipment to Europe is badly paid, and the cattlemen are frequently compelled to work ces of the Noted Election in Which the Late Senator Leonard Was Elected.

The death of Senator Leonard removes another of the very small group of men who of late years have sat in the Canadian Senate as the choice of the people, not as the puppets of a political leader. It was in 1862 that Mr. Leonard was elected to what was then the Legislative Council of the United Parliament of Upper and Lower Canada, being the first and only councilor elected from the Malahide division under the short-lived elective system. Yet his election proved the wisdom of the system by proving that men of ability and high standing in the community would considered, under such a mode of selection, an honorable and dignified position. To-day, appointment to the Senate is considered of small value, except to decaying politicians with a childish pride in a high-sounding title, and but a passing ripple of interest is manifested by the public in the announcement that a vacancy in the Senate is to be filled, or has been filled. How different

LAMBTON.

A telegram on May 17 from Petrolea says that Chief Jackson was notified at 11 a.m. by A. & D. Campbell that their barn on lot 9, con 2, Brooke, had been entered and 60 bushels of oats stolen. The distance from Petrolea was seventeen miles. Within two hours the oats were located in the stable of Thomas Maylor, who was arrested, and A. Luke and Thos. King were then arrested as the parties who stole the oats. The grain and bags were all recovered, and Luke and King confessed their crime.

This system of assembling for an hour or two a day, and then going off to dances and suppers, has continued long enough. It is really no excuse to say that Sir John It is really no excuse to say that nothing can Macdonald is sick, and that nothing can to the House. The be done till he returns to the House. system of delaying all important Government business till the last week of the ession, and then rushing it through by sheer force, has lasted long enough.

SIZING HIM UP.

Herepath's Railway Journal, in noticing Sir Charles Tupper's attacks on the Grand Trunk Railway and its men, commends the managers for refusing to intimidate the workmen into voting against their interests, as was desired by the blustering High Commissioner, and adds that Sir Charles Tupper has backed down from his Charles Tupper has backed down from his original charge that the present G. T. R. management is corrupt, and merely blames the management of 40 years ago! The London Railway News goes further. It prints Tupper's original and amended charge in parallel columns and says: "Sir Charles will have much yet to do before he can influence, for his own political ends, either the employes in Canada or the proprietors in England of the Grand Trunk Railway." It goes on to say that he is "the highly paid ambassador from the Dominion to the mother country, paid out of the taxation of Canada, and the proprietors of the grand Trunk Railway." It goes on the grand of the grand trunk Railway." It goes on the grand trunk Railway. The goes of the grand trunk to be paid till six months after her Majesty's decease, certain months after her Majesty's decease, original charge that the present G. T. his duties as a servant of the State, and to engage in a fierce and undignified ad-vocacy of one set of politicians over another." It is made apparent that Tup-per's conduct is being sized up pretty fairly STREETS AND BOULEVARDS. Asphalt has taken first place as pave-ment in Montreal. The authorities have just appropriated $711,880 for street paying, and of this sum nearly $400,000 goes for asphalt, $240,000 for wooden blocks and the remainder, $70,000, for granite blocks. Montreal has no use for macadam. The last-named is a most unprofitable pavement where traffic is con-siderable and the road metal is soft, as in the majority of Canadian cities. The system gives rise to a great deal of work for laborers, but it is very expensive and nor laborers, but it is very expensive and unsatisfactory. In early summer the broken stones, "gravel," and plowed-up roadway are compounded. Before fall the whole is almost reduced to dust, to the serious annoyance of residents. In early winter and in spring, before and after the frost, it takes the form of liquid mud, and has to be removed at the earliest opportunity to give place to a similar coating that goes the way of all such pavements in the following twelve months.

The man who can invent a suitable substitute for macadam that will be lasting and comparatively inexpensive will be voted a public benefactor, and at the same time well paid for his pains.

Hamilton land speculators are trying to get corporation sanction to a scheme make streets in a new survey but 50 feet in width, and the Times opposes the applica-tion, on the ground that it is not in the publict interest. It shows that in old cities like Montreal and Quebec the streets were at first narrow, and have cost a great deal to widen. Our contemporary points to this city as an example of what can be done for the public benefit by wide streets. "London, Ont.," says the Times, "has the widest and most handsome streets of any Canadian city." That is a truth. We are the large majority of instances with beautifully boulevarded lot fronts. Wide streets are certainly a protection in case of fires, and they are healthy; but if our Hamilton friends would profit by the experience of London they will see to it that the establishment of wide streets and boulevarding are arranged for simultaneously. London had its wide streets for many years before the authorities reached the conclusion that the whole of the magnificent thoroughfares were not required for traffic, and that a large portion on either side could be better utilized by the lot owners as boulevard plots. When the movement for reform once set in, however, it came to stay, and now the city can justly lay claim to the enviable characteristics bestowed upon it by the Hamilton journal. There is, of course, room for further improvement. We trust that a spirit of enterprise and of love of beautiful surroundings will be aroused mong property owners on the broad thoroughfares of the city yet unboule-varded, or, where boulevarded, left in a slovenly condition. Surely, where so much can be effected at comparatively small expense, the lot owners on these neglected streets could be aroused from their lethargy. We may be told that the houses are small and the owners and occu-"The Advertiser" advocates Obligatory pants too busy making a living to find time or money to improve their surroundings.

-One hundred thousand dollars are paid out in civil service salaries at Ottawa every month. Though the employes are well paid for their work, a local journal asserts that many of them treat the local tradesmen shamefully. Credit is the curse the civil servant who looks to a pension for support in his old age.

-What privations war brings! Two actions of the people of Chili have been inlulging in the luxury of a civil conflict for many months, and the country is devastated by their operations. All industry is practically suspended, and the price of necessaries of life has risen to a fabulous extent. At the best of times food is dear in Chili, because so much of the country is not agricultural, and now that supplies can no longer be brought in from abroad, prices are so tremendous that distress prevails Think of paying $5 for a small chicken, $10 per pound for tough beef, $20 a can for con densed milk, $50 a sack for flour and $400 for a half-grown hog. There is no set standard of prices, but they range according to the necessities of the people, and the above figures have actually been paid in Chili within the past fortnight.

-A remarkable case of heroism in humble life is reported from Huddersfield, something in that excuse, as well England. Five years ago the Board of R. F. LACEY & CO. Guardians gave relief to the extent of $20 to a man named Matthew Messenger. Since his death his daughter, who follows the occupation of a charwoman, with maximum wages of 8s. a week, has denied herself all but the barest necessaries of life in order to repay to the guardians the in trim would well repay a resident. If to money her father received from the parish. this could be added a spirit of emulation that would move every one to maintain his home, however small, in a condition of cleanliness and tidiness, it is wonderful how savings the guardians were unwilling to take the entire sum; but no persuasion would induce her to take one penny pack. It was pointed out to her that illnes might come upon her and find her badly prepared, but she was so much in earnest in her desire to wipe off the pauper taint in her desire to wipe off the pauper taint from the family that at length the guardians decided to keep the money and to invest it in the name of the chairman, treasurer and clerk of the union for the time being, to be used on her behalf should it be necessary, and at her death to pay any balance into the funds of the union, as she has no known relatives. If as she has no known relatives. If every recipient of parochial relief had the independent spirit of this noble Englishvoman, the poor rates would soon be normously reduced. She deserves a better fate than the privations incident to her Death-Dealing Wires.

Lowell, Mass., May 18.—Electric light and telegraph wires became crossed on Merrimac street Saturday. A lineman cut the telegraph wire and it fell on a horse, killing him. The street car tracks became charged with the current. Frank Burns got two shocks from the tracks and fell helpless. All along the street fire flashed from the track and several horses almost fell from shocks. The street was crowded and escapes of people from death seemed miraculous. Burns was taken to the hospital unconscious.

STRATFORD, May 18.—The case of Wanless vs. Wanless for alimony was tried in the Chancery Court Saturday before defendant, is a sewing machine dealer in the town of Waterloo. His wife, the plaint life, is decidedly a prepossessing young woman, who was married to him on Jan, 5, 1857. The honeymoon was scarcely spent when the husband began to illtreat his young wife and commenced a course of persecution which finally drove her to the courts for protection and support. Her cidence, which was given in a straightforward, candid manner, drew forth a compliment from the bench. It was shown that the husband not only subjected the wife to personal violence on several occasions but had applied to her at various time epithets of the most insulting character. He continually found fault with the way in which she performed her household to leave him, but the signed a promise to amend, and she therefore decided to give him another trial. He, however, din on show any genuine reformation. The defense endeavored to show that the wife was as bad tempered as the husband. In this they failed, and the judge decided in favor of plaintiff, with full coats, the amount of alimony to be fixed by the master in chancery at Berlin.

Powell's Great Bankrupt Sale.

You will find the reading of our advertisement just about as interesting as Rider Haggard's best, as on Monday and Tuesday we intend to give the readers of our advertisement a genuine surprise. The drygodis and millinery at Powell's old stand will be pubaway down in price for Monday and Tuesday's sales. Nobedy can afford te miss the wonderful bargaina. Remember, the best makes of goods will be sold for about half price. Since we started this sale in Powell's old stand we have never protended to get anything like regular prices. Our prices have been so low that hundreds of dollars have been saved to the purchasing people of London and surrounding towns. A mighty saving will be made for Monday and Tuesday. You will be able to get about $19 worth of goods for $5 at Powell's old stand on Monday and Tuesday. Read carefully the list of prices. Don't fail to let your friends and neighbors know what you can get for a little money at.

A medical writer of note says: "When we advance in years, the bones harden, the muscles become stiff, the cartilages are converted into bones, the membranes into cartilages, the stomach and bowels lose their tone, and the whole fabric, instead of being soft, flexible and obedient to the inclinations, or even the commands of the mind, becomes rigid, inactive and feeble.

Paine's Celery Compound has done much for the old. It has given them renewed feelings of activity, and taken away the rigidness and signless of old age, and lent great elasticity and servinity to every muscle. It strengeless the nervous system, and is a reorganizer of the digestive organism, keeping it in perfect and harmonious working. We know of hundreds of aged men and women in Canada, who have renewed life, and have added years to it from the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

The May number of WIVES AND DAUGHTERS is the last that will be supplied gratuitously to subscribers to the Daily Advertiser. On the first of June next the subscription rate of that popular monthly publication will be advanced to 50 cents per annum. Meantime the old rate (25 cents per annum) will hold good. Now is the time to order, if advantage is to be taken of the 25 cent offer. It is admitted on every hand that WIVES AND DAUGHTERS is the most readable and complete, as it certainly is the cheapest, publication for women to be found on the continent. Postage stamps will be accepted for subscriptions outside London. When ordering try and get one or more neighbors to join. Address all communications-

CHAPTER XXVII.

AMATEURHAYMAKERS.

The long sloping lay-field was quite deserted. The hay, nt yet raked into rows, lay scattered over all the field, scenting the warm fresh air of mening with its delicious odor. In one core of the field was a pond, with trees shding it on one side, and for this spot Dora instinctively made, the sun being alreary of a very sensible warmth. Trencharl and she had parted without further words, he going no to the corn-field. It was a day, an hour, and a scene to make one ream of words of love, if one had ever listened to such. Dora had listened to such words of the little soft musicle sounds of the September morning—the sounds of bees, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of bees, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of bees, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of bees, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves rustling in the boreas, and of leaves rustling in the boreas, and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves and the faint twittering of larks high overhead—seemed in the sounds of leaves and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves and the faint twittering of larks high overhead—seemed in the sounds of leaves and the little soft musicle sounds of the September morning—the sounds of leaves and the little soft musicle sounds of leaves r seene to make one seam of words of love, if one had ever listed to such Dora had listened to such words often; to Trenchard's the lest. What te hink of Trenchard's words? They humsed in Dora's ears, and the little soft musical sounds of the September morning—the sands of bees, and of leaves rustling in the breeze, and the faint wittering of larks high overhead—seemed so many different eighes of them. Perhaps these words of his testhed some chord in her that no words the like had smitten before. Had not Dora lored her husband then, Yes, for she was set one to give herself away unless it were fove that moved her. But her married life had been the saddest lailure; it had drawn her through some and way was and some parts of her nature had not escaped a surch. She had learned to know, even while her husband lived, that the love she had given him was wasted; and lookin: back now upon those anxious and feverel days that had made a full three-quarter of her married life, she wondered whether it were not fasoination rather than love that had enchance her first, and that had held her blindly faithfulton him until the sky of his death. Trenshard's power to please was not of the assentive kind; it was rather the absence of its quality which gave him his principal-parm. A certain gentleness, which is always gracious and captivating in a manly man, was the character uppermost in his relations with women. But perhaps too much of this quality is not good in a man, at least lif the evidence of any lack of inward strength. Not that there was any aspecion of weakness in Trenchard in his outward life; he had proved himself an excellent officer, assiduous in the discharge of all duties, and never tempted to careless, ness or stohrluness by the knowledge that he was in no way dependent on the salary which the Government paid him under the providence of any lack of inward strength. Not that there was any supplement the providence of any lack of inward strength. Not that there was any supplement the providence of any lack of inward st as she sat beside the pond waiting for the hay-forks to arrive.

Joe, a short, sturdy, handsome youth, had a very sheepish air when he caught sight of Dora, not knowing how much of his gallantry she might have overheard. But pretty Norah's countenance was as innocent as milk as she offered Dora a pitchfork and a courtesy.

"An' how are ye goin' to use it, my lady?" asked Norah, with reference to that rather formidable implement. "Tis the smallest myself and Joe could diskiver."

"I don't know, I'm sure," said Dora; "you'll have to teach me, Norah, or Joe, perhaps."

But were not Trenchard's words the equivalent of a delaration of love? Note much less than his, indeed. Did Dora accept them as suc! Had she done so, she must have rebuffel him somewhat. She did not do this. She let Trenchard tell there, by suggestion, that he cared for her; for she had begun to care for him. Their relations were thust once transformed.

They walked through the boreen, talking little. One is well forward when one can walk thus in a country land, and know that there is no necessity of inventing descriptive observations or the sun and the convolvulus. "The would is no longer troublesome, I hope?" said Dora.

"Scarcely at all hanks; only in the sun sometimes. By the way we are going to have a hot sun to-say: please not be toorash in your hay-mying."

"I shall remember your counsel. Are you going to remainfor the day?

"I cannot. I have a duty meeting ten miles away this aftenoon."

"You will leave an at the mercy of the neighborhood?"

"Oh! you nee have no fear. If I thought you in danger—well, I think you large first the result of the sentiment common to the sun for the day? "The word is no longer troubles one that the mercy of the neighborhood?"

Whether this were intended as a form of repreach to Dora, or merely an innocent expression of the sentiment common to expression of the sentime nie Doon' and 'The March of the Cameron Men' by the company were very taking, and 'Will Ye No' Come Back Again,' with 'Auld Laug Syne,' brought one of the finest and most satisfactory Scottish representations ever given in our midst to a most successful finale. The orchestra during the evening discoursed some very fine selections, and wee Miss Zella Frank gave a couple of well-rendered dialectic recitals. Clan Stewart is to be congratulated on this their first effort, and may it in its other connected with the firm or Edward Adams

The firemen have been invited to assist in the "Hoisting of the Flag" and Foresters' demonstrations on July 1. As the boys have no uniforms and are too modest to think that they would be any great attraction in every-day clothes, they have declined. "And yet the Council have roted a sum towards togging-out a nontheir first effort, and may it in its other musical embarkments be as equally fortu-

The St. Thomas Journal among other things says: "Last night was a gala one, not only for Scotchmen, but for all who were desirous of witnessing an entertainment which, for its novelty, pleasing traits and beauty, was never surpassed in the city of St. Thomas. For three nights Prof. Walker and his clever performers delighted the citizens of London, and Clan Stewart believed that if they could persuade him to bring his company here, it would reflect credit, not only upon them, but serve as a good initial entertainment for the clans, and they were not disappointed. It is safe to say that no entertainment was ever received in St. Thomas with as much thorough appreciation and genuine enjoyment as this one." The Journal considered the sailer's hornpipe of Messrs. Rattray, Templeton and Hodgins the gem of the evening. the gem of the evening.

—South London, Colborne street and Talbot street schools paraded at Westminster Rink at 5:30 Saturday afternoon and were put through a few battalion movements by Mr. Coo, who was assisted by Principal McQueen, of Askin street school, Sergt. Hanna, 30th Rifles, and Pte. Harding, 7th Battalion. The boys made a very creditable showing. They were marched out of the rink and performed several movements on the Wortley road. South London school was 45 strong, Colborne street 40 and Talbot street 30. During the present week Princess avenue, Lorne avenue and Hamilton road schools will be visited, and it is expected the full battalion will parade week Princess avenue, Lorne avenue and Hamilton road schools will be visited, and it is expected the full battalion will parade next Saturday.

The Anti-Huckstering Bylaw.

The adjourned hucksters' cases came up at the Police Court yesterday. Ed. Meredith appeared for the defendants and T. G. Meredith appeared for the defendants and T. G. Meredith for the city. The charge against John Eggett, sen., was withdrawn, as John, jun., is the man wanted. Ed. Ross denied being an offender against the bylaw, and said he had neither bought nor solid anything illegally since its passage. His transactions on the market consisted in buying chickens for Gatecliffe, the butcher, for which he received an additional 8 cents a pair for picking and cleaning. The case was adjourned at the request of the city solicitor, who wished to ascertain in the meantime the feeling of the aldertemen in regard to this especial matter. Mrs. Fannie McCarthy admitted that she had bought produce on the market, but said she had taken it to her own home in the country to sell.
