Bloodshed in Brussels.

Brussels, April 14.—Police made a vain attempt this evening to disperse an enormous crowd outside the people's hall. The crowd resisted stubbornly and many workingmen were wounded. Great crowds afterwards gathered in various parts of the city. Tradesmen became panic-stricken and closed their shops. Mounted gendarmes made repeated charges on the crowds in front of the town hall and old Corn Exchange. Many persons were seriously injured by being trampled under the horses' feet. A mob in the Rue la Violette extinguished all the street amps and attacked the police in the dark. A number of shots ware exchanged and nome blood was shed. Alexander's Coup. Belgrade, April 14 .- A grand banquet was given at the palace last night to cele-brate King Alexander's success in passing the examination prescribed for Servian students. M. Klosticus and M. Berki-video, the Regents, and all the Ministers of students. M. Klosticus and M. Berkivideo, the Regents, and all the Ministers of video, the Regents, as were a large number of the friends and supporters of the Regents. For many months past the situation in Servia has been critical owing to the abuse of their power by the Regents and State officials. Affairs had become so bad that the King determined to take the reins in his own hands, and plans were laid by means of which the Regents and the Ministry would be ousted without opposition. Unsuspectingly the Regents and the Ministry would be ousted without opposition. Unsuspectingly the Regents and defice took possession of the Ministers' houses and occupied the Government buildings. King Alexander proclaimed that he had attained his majority, and that he had assumed, with the Skuptschina, the government of the country.

As a matter of fact the King had not attained his majority. According to the Servian law he does not become of age until he is 18 years old, and as he was born on Aug. 14, 1876, he will not be 18 for considerably over a year.

The proclamation declares that the constitution has been lately in sore jeopardy, the rights of the citizens imperiled and the constitution of Parliament so abased that the King must end the unhappy condition of affairs. Hethefore declares that he has become of age and assumed kingly power. The Regents have been deposed, the Cabinet dismissed and a new Ministry appointed. M. Dokitch is the new Premier.

Mr. Campbell-Bannerman said that the duty of preserving national order in Ireland under a home rule administration would rest upon the Irish executive. If the civil force should at any time prove inadequate requisition could be made upon the military to preserve order at the discretion of the viceroy.

Here, interrupting, Mr. Balfour asked: "Would the viceroy be under the orders of the Irish Government in giving the service of the troops?"

Mr. Gladstone intimated a desire to close the debate on the second reading of the hill on Tuesday night.

Mr. Balfour protested against such an early termination of the discussion and suggested Friday next as a reasonable date for closing debate.

Home Secretary Asquith delivered an earnest address in behalf of the bill, which was listened to with deep interest.

Sad Accident at St. Marys.

St. Marys, April 14.—J. Audy, about 18 years of age, a college student here, and a nephew of Dr. Johnston, of Millbank, met with a serious accident at the G. T. R. junction last night. He had accompanied a friend to the junction station and remained in the passenger coach after seeing his friend, seated until the train was moving. In attempting to get off he was thrown down and had one of his arms so badly crushed that it had to be amputated

Modus Operandi of a Clairvoyant in the City.

What Madame Janeschka Told an "Advertiser" Reporter.

Quite a "Fast" Young Man, She Inform Him - Some Remarkable Guessing-Enterprising Matrimonial Prospects A Doubtful Future-Madame Doing s Good Business.

The following sign is tacked near the main entrance of the City Hotel, and has been there for some months past:

Not with so much a desire to know the future or hear the past as to know the modus operandi of a modern fortune teller, an ADVERTISER reporter called at the hote the other afternoon. Various visions of the other atternoon. Various visions of wierd-looking creatures, such as are depicted in romance, went with him, and the was not disagreeably disappointed to find madame a woman of engaging presence, suave manners and ample dimensions. She was fat and perhaps 40, but not fair. She is dark enough to suggest foreign extraction—maybe Polish, though her accent is native enough.

dark enough to suggest foreign extraction—
I maybe Polish, though her accent is native enough.

A pleasantry or two about the weather commenced the conversation, and then the madame settled down to business. One dollar was the price of the half hour sitting, and by the time the money was forthcoming, the lady's watch was lying open on the table to time by. The next inquiry was as to the nature of the affair on which enlightement was asked. Was it love; or was it business? As the reporter did not feel especially love sick, and as he was not losing any sleep over business affairs, he was obliged to inform her that he had simply called to see whether or not it was true that a clairvoyant could recall the past and foretell the future.

The sitting commenced with palm reading. Placing a 50-cent piece on the right hand, madame gozed at it intently, first telling the sitter that any replies must be of a monosyllabic nature and nothing more must be said than yes or no.

"Young man, yourself and hard work have been strangers for a number of years.
Is it notso?"

The scribe was shocked. A stranger to Well an Englishman then?" The latter often wished to travel, but had not yet succeeded in being elected alderman, and as that was the only method of traveling cheaply except "humming" it on freight trains, he had had to stay at home. Seeing some hesitation the clairvoyant continued with, "Well, you have been doing some traveling lately, have you not?" Ah, he had forgotten. Yes, he had traveled lately; he had attended a convention at Delaware last month. This had altogether slipped his memory. Then the madame conceived the idea that the sitter before her was a railroad man.

"I see cars on your hand. You work around a railway, What, no! Well now that's strange." Then the reporter voluntered the information that it might perhaps be a near relative. Yes, to be sure, one connected with the street mass work around them. That explained it satisfactorily—to madame.

The next information rather pricked the fine moral sensibilities of the visitor.

"Now young man, don't getmad, will you?"
Why, no the young man wouldn't get mad not he. "Well you have been 'fast' ever since you'were about 5 years old." Taking smile and silence for content, the same line was followed up with, "And you have a great fondness for poker."

This capped the climax and the reporter laughed heartily. The madame, thinking she had hit it about right, joined cheerily in. To vindicate his hitherto excellent reputation in the cycs of the public, it is only fair to state that he never played any-last untagers for a number of years. Is it notes?"

The scribe was shocked. A stranger to hard work, indeed! Hadn't he attended Port Stanley Railway wrangles until he felt competent to run the road, and tried to give everything the mayor said, too? And hadn't he ast through free library discussions until he was nearly daft; not to mention midnight sessions of the council over gravel contracts and equally interesting items of business. No; madame was decidedly wrong there.

Seeing his pained look, she added: "Well, what I mean is that you are not engaged in hard labor. You are quick with the pen, are you not?" As the reporter did a little in that line he answered "Yes" to this question. His appearance may have suggested a clerical occupation.

"I see water on your hand; you have crossed the ocean lately, have you not?"

The followed the question as to who had got the present lately. Was it a sister, and did she not get a diamond. No; her subject wasn't giving diamonds away just then. This did not satisfy madame, who passed on with the information that the sittle was to be married twice and have six children.

This false and she then started on an entirely different tack. "Who is Frank?"
she asked. The sitter had to give it up, nor did he know who Charnes and get were and several other names suggested by the one of those names, and he is away and will do well. Who is the dark girl that is jealous of someone and cries a great deal about you? "This was another mystery that had to be given up.

Then followed the question as to who had got the present lately. Was it a sister, and did she not get a diamond. No; her subject wasn't giving diamonds away just then. This did not satisfy madame, who passed on with the information that the sittle was to be married twice and have six children. The cards underwent a rapid shuffling at

This news almost caused a collapse, but

The clairvoyant then dropped the cards and after rapidly blinking her even she

The claiv cyant then dropped the cards, and, after rapidly blinking her eyes, she went into a "trance." Did the sitter have a little brother that died? Yes. Well, he was his guardian angel, and had been ever since death. Who was ——? The reporter replied that that was his name, and then received the information that the clair-voyant knew it was; the guardian angel had whispered it to her. Did the sitter ever receive a blow on the back of his head? No. Well he must have because she felt one on the back of her own. She advised him to beware of strong drink or the alleged blow on the head would trouble him after he had attained mature years. This was promised, and then the clairvoyant startled him with the news that he would lose a leg in after years in a railway accident. She reassured him by saying the accident could be avoided with due care in jumping on and off cars.

The half hour was now up, and as the ed with due care in jumping on and off cars.

The half hour was now up, and as the madame conducted her business on strictly business principles the trance ended sharp on time. A little general conversation followed, in which the madame gave Cleveland, Ohio, as her home, and announced that business had been especially good in her line during her stay in the city. She had been here eight months and had previous to that time spent fifteen weeks here. "I could not stay here that long unless what I tell the people is correct," said she. "The Canadian people are not so easily gulled as that." Just then a knock came to the door, and after offering the dollar back unless the sitter was entirely satisfied, she unless the sitter was entirely satisfied, she opened the door, and as the reporter stepped out another customer walked in.

stepped out another customer walked in.
The reporter went out into the street again with his pocket lightened of a dollar and his mind burdened in perspective with two wives, six children and a wooden leg.
He had also received the appalling conviction that he had heen a scamp from his youth up and was an inveterate poker fiend.
All for the small sum of $1. It is such guessing at the past, present and future at this that only tends to confirm in the minds of level-headed men the fact that:

Heaven from all creatures hides the book of fate, All but the page prescribed their present state; From brutes what men, from men what spirits know; Or who could suffer being here below.

The snow evidently drove an extra large number to drink last night, and it was almost necessary to hang out the "standing room only" sign on the cage this morning. John Joy came from Petrolea yesterday, and his cups had evidently not been filled to the brim with sorrow. Death of David Preston.

Death of David Preston. David Preston, of Montreal, the mechanical superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, is dead. The cause of his death Reifroad, is dead. The cause of his death was a curious one. Some time ago he bought a solution for the purpose of curing corns. He placed some of it on a bad corn. Soon after this blood poisoning ensued, and to save his life for the time being it was necessary to amputate his foot. This, however, did not much improve his condition and after a few days it was found that his leg would also have to come of. The exhaustion from these operations caused his death. His story was that he and his partner had stolen the valies in Detroit and had taken it to St. Thomas. When his partner went out one day he (Johnston), forgetting the old adage of honor among thieves, stole the valies again and broughs it up to London. He wanted to be taken back to Detroit for trial, but the judge held that the offense he was charged with had occurred in St. Thomas, and went on with the trial. The prisoner pleaded guilty and was remanded for a week for sentence.

spoil a solo or song if the voice is rough and husky from cold. Science has kindly provided for the singer by giving us the celebrated Harvard Bronchial Syrup, which clears the voice and gives atrength to every chord and muscle of the throat.

Mr. Charles C. Hampshire, organist of the Eastern M. E. Church, Ottawa, writes as follows about Harvard Syrup: "I take great pleasure in testifying to the merits of Harvard Bronchial Syrup. We have in our family derived so much benefit from it that we do not feel safe without it in the house. For singers and public speakers it is invaluable; and I can truthfully say it is the best cough syrup we have ever used, and recommend it for all it is claimed to be."

A Scene on St. Catherine Street, Montreal, Before "RIGBY" Waterproof Garments Were in Vogue.

PROBABLY no invention of the present century has contributed so much to the comfort and convenience of the public as the Rigby process of rendering ordinary cloth waterproof without affecting the porosity, texture, feeling, or appearance of the fabric in any way.

Rubber Coats are a thing of the past, and Umbrellas are gradually going into disuse. Men and women can now walk the streets in their Rigby Coats or Wraps during the heaviest rainstorm without the least discomfort, and the beauty of a Righy is that it is just as good for fine weather as any other coat. Nearly everyone you see wears a "Rigby," but you would not know it was waterproof from its appearance. Be sure you ask for "Rigby." Write the name down in your hat so that you won't forget it. Every dealer handles "Rigby."

A SOCIAL REVOLUTION.

Probably the most important bill brought before the Ontario Legislature at its present sitting is that providing for the prevention of cruelty to and better protection of children. The act provides for the infliction of a heavy fine or imprisonment or both on any person over 16 years of age who, having charge of a boy under 14 years of age or a girl under 16, willfully ill-treats, neglects, abandons, or causes suffering to such child. As long a sentence as nine months' imprisonment can be inflicted at the option of the magistrate.

Persons causing children under the ages named to beg, whether by pretending to sing, perform, or by offering anything for sale, or to sing or play in tavorns between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m., or to perform in public places when under 10 years of age, are subjected to similar severe penalties. The municipal authorities may, however, change the hours, and may grant license to children over 7 years of age to perform in circus and other entertainments, and the municipal officers are empowered to see that the provisions of the license are

Where a person is convicted of ill-treating a child, or of causing a child to coning a child, or of causing a child to con-travene the law, anyone can bring the child before a judge, who, if satisfied that it is so expedient, may order the child to be taken out of the custody of the effender and placed in the hands of a relative until. if a boy, he attains the age of 14, and if a girl the age of 16, provided that a parent of the child is privy to the offense charged.

Any person or society to whom the child so so committed shall practically have parental control over the child, and any parental control over the child, and any judge can order the parent of the child to contribute to its support. That there may he no injustice done to anyone, the Lieutenant-Governor in council is em.

Lieutenant-Governor in council is empowered at any time to discharge a child from custody, or to alter or revoke the regulations relating to these children.

A most important new departure is the provision for the appointment of a superintendent of neglected and dependent children. intendent of neglected and dependent children, whose salary shall be voted by the Legislature. His duty will be to encourage and assist the organization of children's aid societies for the protection of children from cruelty, and for the due care of neglected and dependent children in temporary homes or shelters and the placing of such children in properly selected homes. This officer will also visit and inspect industrial schools and temporand inspect industrial schools and temporary homes or shelters, and when so directed the place of abode of any child boarded out under this act. He will see that a record is kept of all committals under the act and of full particulars in each case, and shall prepare an annual report of the matters dealt with. Provision is further made for the establishment of shelters for young children, who are proved to be neglected, in every city and town having a population of over oity and town harms. Existing orphan 10,000 inhabitants. Existing orphan asylums may be used for such asylums, with the consent of the trustees of these institutions, or the children may be placed institutions, or the children may be placed in the children may be used for the children may be used for such as the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be used for such as placed in the children may be placed in the childr in desirable private families, but in no instance is the home or shelter to be under the same management as a poor house or refuge or any penal establishment. When a children's aid society is established in any municipality it will have the management of these children, and the corpora-tion will pay the necessary expenses.

In each electoral district a citizens'

In each electric district a cluzens visiting committee will be appointed, and it is most satisfactory to note that the Provincial Secretary has taken cognizance of woman's interest in the great work by providing that three out of the six mem-bers must be women. This committee will co-operate with the children's aid societies, and shall be what their name applies. If properly selected, the careful supervision of the children will be insured. This committee is to be appointed by the county judge, the sheriff and the M. P. P. for the district, and will hold office for three years. The committee, in selecting homes, wil endeavor to secure places of abode for the children, where they may be cared for with-out remuneration, and they will aim at promoting a philanthropic sentiment on behalf of neglected, abandoned or destitute children. Towards the necessary expenses of sup porting these children-boys until they ar porting these children—boys until they are 12 years of age and girls until 14—the municipality to which they belong, by virtue of a year's residence, must pay $1 a week. The placing of a child with the lowest bidder is absolutely prohibited. Officers of children's aid societies are given Officers of children's all scientists are wide powers to take charge of and bring before a magistrate for disposal all children either neglected or found in the custody of persons incapable of properly rearing them. It is provided that Prot-

Ps., judges and justices of the peace may visit children placed in homes and shelters, and may enter in a book any observations he may desire on the subject of his visit, to be subsequently considered by the inspectors.

When children are charged with crime, the magistrate may hand them over to the children's aid societies, who in turn may apprentice them to any suitable trade or calling. No child under sixteen will in future be allowed to be locked up or to consort with an adult prisoner while awaiting trial. Children apparently under the age of twelve awaiting trial may be kept in custody by the children's aid society, and any judge may hold a preliminary trial under a charge of cruelty against a parent in the residence of such parent. No one but counsel, witnesses, law officers, friends of the family or members of the children's aid society shall be allowed to be present while a child under sixteen or an tion of cruelty against a parent is being

Another important enactment is that enabling municipal councils in cities, towns and villages to pass bylaws to prevent boys and girls from remaining on the streets, without proper guardianship, after a certain hour. The council may cause a bell to be rung as a warning, to be called the "cur-few bell," after which every unattended child shall be at home. Constables finding children on streets shall warn them, and if they are afterwards found loitering a con-stable shall take them home. Parents or guardians may be summoned and fined for permitting a child to habitually break this

Such are the main provisions in this proposed new law. They are said to embrace the best portions of all recent laws regarding neglected children passed by other civilized nations. It is apparent that the Minister has devoted much study to the subject, and we doubt not that the fruits of his labor will be indorsed by the Legislature and by all citizens who take an interest in this most important subject. It is certainly better to devote public money to properly rear our own neglected popula-tion than to devote taxes to augment our waif and stray population, as has been the habit of the Dominion Government.

A TELLING COMPARISON.

A TELLING COMPARISON.
The Montreal Gazette is a strong Conservative journal, but it sees much to admire in the management of the affairs of Ontario by the Mowat Government, and in a frecent issue it makes some telling comparisons between this Province and that of Quebec. Here is its statement of the items of expenditure for the year 1892 which are common to the two Provinces:

Civil government. $23,769 $263,524 Legislation. $132,607 $282,265 Justice. $20,168 $282,265 Lucited. $20,168 $282,265 Institutions. $30,867 $20,86 which are common to the two Provinces:

Ontar'o.	Quebec. $266,324
Civil government$235,760	282,264
Legislation 391,689	538,305

Institutions	142,764
Agriculture 151,574	52,825 155,167
	258,400
Crown lands	750,968

The contrast is still more marked when we remember that last year the population of Ontario was 2,112,989, whereas that of Quelec was 1,488,586.

John Elliott & Son applied for lower assessment. In September, 1890, a bylaw was passed limiting their assessment at $45,000—$30,000 on the Bathurst street establishment and $15,000 on the Ridout streetproperty. The latterhad been sold to the Hobbs Hardware Company. The assessors assessed the Bathurst street property at $50,000. Mr. T. H. Purdom spoke on behalf of the applicant, and urged the assessment be lowered to $10,000. He did not not think the place would sell for more than that amount.

Mayor Essery—Are the societies who hold the mortgage throwing off anything?

Mr. Purdom—Yes; they are throwing off a good deal more. They will never get the principal. There are good hopes of the Elliott firm reviving, but they cannot do so with such heavy taxes to pay. The council will be recommended to lower the assessment to $25,000.

THE FLAG HAULED DOWN.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Up to the hour of closing the Department of State no information had been received there regarding the action of commissioner Blount in ordering the United States flag removed from the Government buildings in Honolulu. Mr. Carter, the annexation commissioner from Hawaii, had an interview with Segretary Greshen in the afternoon, which ment that the Provisional Government could protect itself against assault within, the necessity for the presence of United States marines on shore and the flying of the United States flap has passed, and that, therefore, Mr. Blount was correct in ordering the marines to their boats and the flag to be hauled down, especially if the presence of the flag over the Government buildings in Honolaul, as stated, tended to impede diplomatic relations between the two countries and to embarrass negotiations.

The letter is dated 1591, and is written when her husband had left her to go to France whence he wrote to tell her of his arrival. "I thank you," she says, "for your kind sending, which does satisfy me for that unkindness which I took for your going without taking leave of me. My mother told me it was her advice, but I did not give so great credit to her speech as I do to your letter. CALL ATTENTION TO THEIR

SMALLWARE DEPARTMENT.

The little things, the small purchase, the 25-cent article, often demands more time, and attention, and hunting up, than the larger purchase of a hat, a suit, a mantle or a dress. Chapman's smallwear department is one of the most complete in the city.

Take for instance laces, ribbons, kid gloves, corsets, handkerchiefs, Windsor ties, embroideries, hosiery (small and large), gloves, collars, spools, knitting cotton—all these things and many more you will find with us. And the prices are the best part of the story. Buying in large quantities and in the best markets of the world enables us to do as well for our customers as can be done in this part of the country.

KID GLOVES.

You are interested in having the best. We draw your attention to our $1 line; every pair guaranteed. This is a beautiful glove; tans, and grays, and black. The tans and grays have colored bands to match the new shades in dress goods. We have the cheaper lines at 75c and 50c, as good as the money get.

CORSETS.

Very special value in corsets. Prices commence at 30c, 45c, 50c, 60c, 75, $1 and $1 25. Our stock is assorted with the new and popular brands. Ask to see our 75c and $1 brands.

PARASOLS.

The time is coming when this article will be greatly in demand. Where to get the best value is a problem with many. We say: See Chapman's stock first. Beautiful handles in colored and black. 'Tis a great surprise the handsome names also you can now purpose for $1.51.65 parasols you can now purchase for $1, $1 25 and $1 50, and of course up higher as you like.

WASH GOODS.

Let us tell you a little about our wash goods, such as ginghams, chambrays, zephyrs, crepon effects. Beautiful goods; must be seen; we cannot describe them here; look like silk. Large checks and small checks, and plain colors. Handsome goods. Price, only 25c; color war-ranted in every particular.

MILLINERY.

Tis well to know where the best millinery can be purchased for the least money. We say again Chapman's. You want quantity to select from, quality, becoming shapes, style, new goods. We don't know where you could get these things outside of Chapman's. Try and be convinced. We have sold more millinery to date than any previous season. These must be a reason for it. We any previous season. There must be a reason for it. We explain it in the following sentence: "Millinery at drygoods prices."

MANTLES.

Here again you want the best for the money. We claim to have it for you. The quantity we sell convinces us that our styles and prices are all that the most fastidious could desire. Two first-class cutters are employed; none better in London. Any style desired can be made on a few hours' notice. Do not forget that we keep a choice stock of ready-made garments—mantles, wraps, capes—purchased direct from the best German makers; $3 and upwards will buy one of our new spring capes or

How a Scrap of Paper Saved a Lady's

The following is clipped from the To-

The following is clipped from the re-ronto Star:

Passing by this quaint, old-fashioned house nestling among the tall filac bushes, one would scarce dream of the interesting history related to a Star reporter by Miss Lottle Booth, a young lady who resides there. Miss B.'s bright and happy way of telling the story lent an added charm to its interest.

Seated in the cosy parlor Miss Booth told me a story of an experience she had had that fairly outrivaled anything I had ever heard. I thought the quaint old building had its romanee, and I was not mistaken. Listen, and I will tell it to you, for I did not promise secreey, and I am sure Miss Booth will not care.

promise secrecy, and I am sure Miss Booth will not care.

A SCRAP OF PAPER saved Miss Booth's life. To a little scrap of paper she owes the pleasures of many happy days. This is how it happened:

Miss Booth formerly lived in the city of Winnipeg. She is well-known there, and people who live on Ross street will smile when they read this incident, because they know it's true. Eight months ago she was a bright happy girl. She is now, but there was an interval between then and now that Miss Booth never recalls without a shudder.

was all interval between then and now that Miss Booth never recalls without a sindder.

From health and happiness, Miss Booth foll into a languid, spiritless state. Rapidly her health declined, and friends saw with pained eyes that there was something radically wrong with her constitution. Day by day she faded away until no one would recognize her thin sickly-looking self as the one-time healthy, rosy girl. Doctors were consulted time and again. "It's your heart," they said, and wrote out prescription after prescription accordingly. For three long, weary, miserable months Miss Booth took their medicine, but the months were not longer than the medical bill that was presented and paid regularly every month.

Said Miss Booth: "My condition was a most deplorable one. I really thought my heart was affected, for it almost stopped beating at times, and I would have faintbeating at times, and I would have fainting spells that left me weak and helpless.
Day by day I grew weaker. I could eat nothing that I relished. Food was really distasteful to me, Oh, how weary and tired of life I was. At night I might have slept had it not been for horrible dreams and visions that flitted through my brain.
Often I would awake screaming and crying."

One day Miss Booth sent to the drug One day Miss Booth sent to the drug store to have a prescription filled. The clerk wrapped the bottle up with a circular. When she undid the wrapper Miss Booth picked up the circular and read it. It opened her eyes. I told her oftentimes heart troubles were caused by that dread disease, dyspepsia. "I believed that circular," said Miss Booth, "and I stopped taking the doctor's medicine at once. The circular said take Burdock Blood Bitters for dyspepsia. I did so. One half bottle was all I used before I began to get well. I took eleven bottles altogether. Now I am well and sound. The scrap of paper and Burdock Blood Bitters saved my life."
"Let me publish your story," I said to "Let me publish your story," I said to Miss Booth. She did not exactly like the

MICROBE KILLER

MICROBB KILL BE.

The antiseptic tonic water for the sick, known as the Radam Mierobe Killer, is unique original and exceptional among all health drinks and amorg all active and powerful remedies. According to the best scientific authority of our time, the theory of its action gives the first true solution of the problem of killing disease germs within the the body without harm or violence to the body itself. This purely scientific view is abundantly confirmed by experience. The testimony of the sick who drink it is that it corrects bodily disorders and cures the most subtle, seated and malignant diseases without injuring the stomach or impoverishing the blood. It is not a drug. It does not reprosent the wild curature a drug. It does not reprosent the wild curature a drug. It does not reprosent the wild curature in the seates of the seates of the seates of the seates. Therein Hes its distinctive virtue, its distinctive excellence. The microscope shows that all sickness is caused by live animal parasites, poisoning and consuming the lifedrops and life-atoms of the body. There are drugs that may rout and scatter the microbes, but they do it indirectly and inefficiently by a poisonous medication of the blood, in order that the blood, thus medicated and thus poisoned, may in turn counter-poison the disease. In other words, Microbe Killer penetrates the system with a life principle of the principle of the second of the second

A case of local interest and importance—Butler vs. City of London—came up at Osgoode Hall yesterday. Hellmuth (London), for Francis H. Butler, the plaintiff, who sues on behalf of himself and all other ratepayers of the city of London, moved to continue an injunction restraining the Corporation of the City of London, the defendants, from voting upon or passing any bylaw ratifying and confirming an agreement between the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the defendants as adopted at the meeting of the municipal council of the defendants held on the 6th March last. W. R. Meredith, Q.C., for the defendants, contra. Judgment was reserved. It is understood the move was taken on behalf of the Automatic Telephone Company, who wish a franchise to do-business here. Similar action was taken against the city of St. Thomas. Similar action was taken agains the city of St. Thomas.

RIVER HERBERT,
CUMBERLAND COUNTY, N. S.
March, 29,1893.

Charles Cluthe, Esq.,—With great pleasure I forward you the following testimony: When 3 years old my son hurthis knee, it grew worse and worse, becoming weak, the cords contracting, and muscles shrinking. After years of suffering the doctor advised him to use crutches, which he did for five years. His leg from his hip shrank and I was pained to believe he would be a cripple for life. A friend sent me one of your pamphlets, in which I saw a testimonial of a similar case as my son's being cured by your mechanical treatment. Learning that you were in Monoton N. B., he went to be examined. On his return he said, "Pa, Mr. Cluthe says that he can cure me." Following your directions I ordered the instrument; it came, he put it on the same night, and walked without crutches, and has never used them since. After wearing the instrument twoyears his leg is as long as the other, his knee has its natural state and size, and the muscles well developed. The instrument worked as you said it would, and the results are beyond my most sanguine expectations. The cure wrought for my son after fifteen years suffering, is of more value to him than thousands of dollars. Unsolicited I give this statement, leaving out many important particulars, in gratitude to you, and for the benefit of afflicted humanity. I remain, dear sir, yours respectfully, yours respectfully,

Wonderful Recovery of an Ingersoll Gentleman.

Twenty Years of Suffering.

Terminated by a Few Days' Treatment.

"MARVELS" AT HOME.

The Story Told by Those Most Interested in Their Own Words.

From Oxford Tribune, April 3, 1893.

On account of a desire on the part of those most interested to avoid publicity, only a comparative few of our citizens are aware of the remarkable results in a case of more than usual severity which has happened in our town. A gentleman, well known both socially and in business life, who, after suffering for years from what had been led to believe was an incurable form of that most painful of all diseases, rheumatism, has been restored to complete health and is again as active in all his limbs as he was in the days of his boyhood. Twenty years of suffering, during which time he squandered large sums for treatment at the hands of the medical profession and for every known remedy, have at last terminated, and while his natural reticence has prevented this remarkable case from coming prominently before the public at an earlier date, he has at last consented to allow the public to know of the marvelous From Oxford Tribune, April 3, 1893. earlier date, he has at last consented to allow the public to know of the marvelous change which has been wrought in his own person by a remedy which, although not widely advertised, is still doing much toward the alleviation of the sufferings of humanity, recommended as it is by everyone who has had the good fortune to use it. The gentleman referred to had been at various times for the past twenty years the victim of rheumatism in one of its most severe forms, and the most recent attack, which lasted for over a year and seemed to have permanently crippled him, was con-SOUTH AS PARRAYUDO

POE IN A PET.

Thomas Temdrow, the oldest of New York reporters, once received a visit from Edgar Alian Poe, who expressed a desire to learn shorthand, and casually remarked that he supposed Mr. Towndrow had read his peem, "The Raven." On being informed to the contrary the poet became so indignant that he refused to go on with the lessons. Mr. Towndrow is the inventor of a system of shorthand and the author of a book on the subject.—[New York Tribune. ook on the subject .- [ New York Tribune.

PUSSY'S DREAM FEAST.

The other day when kitty lay sound askep in the cushioned chair she uses for a bed I put a small piece of fresh beef on the end of a toothpick and held it within half end of a toothpick and held it within half an inch of her nose. After a few seconds the muscles of the throat twitched slightly, the mouth opened, the jaws began to work and every detail of chewing and swallowing followed, after which she licked her lips, but slept right on, and she did not awake for some time afterward.—[Forest ed Streams and Stream.

A WISE AND WHOLESOME THING. A WISE AND WHOLESOME THING.
The Supreme Court of Colorado has done a wise and wholesome thing in disbarring a lawyer who advertised that he would obtain legal divorces, "good everywhere,"
"very quietly." Why should not lawyers who do the same thing in this part of the an advertisement is prima facie evidence of fraud, for legal divorces "good everywhere," cannot be honestly obtained "very quietly," as every judge and every lawyer knows.—

A Soudanese chieftain whom Prof. Hagerbeck (the German Barnum) had brought to Berlin, was introduced to some representative of the Ethnological Society, who asked him how he had enjoyed his trip, and which of all the wonders of the German metropolis had impressed him the most. FASHION IN DOGS.

FASHION IN DOGS.

Les chiens a la mode. Even fashions change in the way of dogs, as everything else in this world. This year the dogs which are all the go here are the barzoi, a species of Russian greyhound. A few years ago it was bon ton to be followed by a German basset, or what is more generally called a turnpit, as once upon a time these animals performed this menial office. Then came the pugs, and of late the caniche or Freuch poodle, the black ones being particularly chie. The barzoi is truly aristocratic looking, in build something like a greyhound, but with a long, if y coat. His every movement is graceful, his temper docile, and he soon gets attached to his master.

FUNNY PARAPHRASES.

Oliver Hereford, the talented illustrator and son of Rev. Brooke Hereford, is noted for his droll variations upon old-fashioned proverbs, and a few recent examples are worth repeating. Who that has ever been biotographed, with all that it implies, could fail to appreciate this: "You may lead a man to the photographer's, but you can't make him smile." And what heart-fell ascent will be given by many a mancat't make him smile." And what heartfelt assent will be given by many a man—and perhaps some women—to: "A little in the same vein was his characterization on

KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT.

A noted specialist connected with one of the largest English hospitals devoted to the treatment of throat diseases renews attention to the risks attendant upon the practice of breathing through the mouth. That the natural method of respiration is through the masul organs is a fact which many people studiously ignore, and this to their great detriment, as Dr. Smith conclusively shows. WILHELM'S VIOLIN.

A friend of Wilhelm tells this story about the great violinist: "He paid 30,000 frances for an old violin, took it home very tenderoly, strung it up and played an air or two to toe how itsounded. Nothing could have been sweeter, and he was delighted. In another room was a piece of music that he wanted to try, so, laying the instrument on a chair, he went to find the composition. Pretty seen he was horrified to see his little bory galloping down upon him with the violin for a horse. The youngster had evidently been riding the precious instrument all over the house. Wilhelm didn't dare to look anxious or wrathful, He was afraid the boy would get frightened and drop the violin. He aimply began to laugh, then he chuckled to the horse, and the boy laughed to. 'Now, ride him up to me, 'he's and, softly. 'Steady, sir, steady there! That's a good, gentle horse. Don't hurry him, let him take his time. He might throw you. There? He is going all right now. Good fellow! Let me try him a moment.' At last the boy and his horse were within reach, and Wilhelm quietly took both in his lap. Then, after placing the instrument out of the way, he turned that boy over his knee and gave him the worst thrashing he ever got in his life. The violin was not hurt. Wilhelm played on it in this country."

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley Ind., asys: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervous-ness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. The winds wailed wild, the wilder billows

The tempest raged in all its mighty wrath,

The winds howled on.

All hope seemed gone,

And darker waves surged round the bark's lone path.

The sleeper woke! He gazed upon the deep—
He whispered, "Peace!
Winds, wild waves, cease!
Be still!" The tempest fled—the ocean fell

IS IT?

Is it any wonder the shop girl is sometimes impatient? You wonder why she is tired at 11 o'clock, so early in the day. Early in your day, nothers. It is a good four hour or more since she breakfasted, and the hour before that was busy fasted, and the hour before that was busy enough for any two; no last naps here and not much wasted time before 8 o'clock. Think of the steady drain on her tact and patience, and request, not demand, attention. If she and Kitty persist in discussing last evening's revels, it is perhaps necessary then to back your gentle request with a floor walker, otherwise you run a chance of missing your train.—[Sara Spy, in Boston Traveller.

EYOTA'S PRETTY LAMPLIGHTERS.

The young women of Eyota, Minn., are taking care of the street lamps of that town. Each lamp has been assigned to a young lady, who keeps it filled with oil, lights it at dusk, and gets out of bed too late in the morning to extinguish it at dawn. This arrangement has been brought about by an anti-liquor crusade. The women wanted the saloons of Eyota closed, and the liquor men said it didn't make an iota of difference to them, but they hated to see the town invested with Cimmerian gloom every night, and this would be the case if the saloon license money, which was used for street lighting, was diverted from the town treasury. Thereupon the women said they would look after the street lamps themselves, and they are doing it so well that Eyota is a brighter place by night now than ever before. The young men of Eyota may feel lonesome without their customary "nips" and "nightcaps," but the pretty lamplighters ought to more than atone for the loss of the other exhibarants. One would think that any young man who was dead sure that he had a heart and enjoyed an occasional flutter of it would be willing to forego a few beers or two or three fingers of sangleigot for the bewildering pleasure EYOTA'S PRETTY LAMPLIGHTERS. an occasional nutter of it would be willing to forego a few beers or two or three fingers of tanglefoot for the bewildering pleasure of seeing an Eyota belle shin up a lamp post and scratch a match on her empire kirt.—[From the Pine Plains Register.

Stomach Liver Cure The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthner of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a Lroken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy, ever used on this continent. It is a marylans cure for newremedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous de-

Tangement.

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

WHY SHOULD IT BE TOLERATED.

"Upon what does the success of the liquor traffic depend? Upon debased manhood, wronged womanhood, defrauded childhood. It holds a mortgage over every cradle; a deed written in heart's blood over every human life."—[New York Tribune. Why then is the whisky traffic tolerated? If such language were used with reference to any other public evil the whole population would be up in arms to overthrow it. We have laws in this land to protect the fish in the rivers, the fowls of the air and the wild beasts of the forest, but we have no laws to protect helpless women and innocent children. We make it lawful to strike the baby in the cradle, to devour young men by the thousands and to send weeping widows to the poorhouse. #### THE PULPIT AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

A chain of linked logic as strong as that which binds the universe together, binds our subject upon the conscience of the church and the pulpit.

1. The first link in the chain is the incontrovertible fact that the liquor traffic is the greatest curse of Christendom, and a stupendous obstacle in the way of the Christian Church.

2. Link second, This greatest enemy of man and deadly foe of Christ's kingdom will be conquered only by the agency of the Christian Church. It is vain to expect the devil to strike down his strongest ally.

If it be said, that the pulpit should preach temperance, but leave unrebuked the traffic, reform the drunkard, but spare the drunkreform the drunkard, but spare the drunkard-maker, then you ask the pulpit to belittle its own work in the eyes of all manly men by openly confessing its puerility and pusillanimity. Since the saloon is the central source of the crimes and curses and woes of mankind, if the pulpit cannot, or will not antagonize this evil it may as well will not antagonize this evil, it may as well abandon its calling and cease its high pre-

Job replies that his longing is to do so. According to the testimony of God Himself, Job was a perfect and upright man, fearing God and eschewing evil (i, 8; ii, 3), the word "perfect" nearing in this case simple or sincers. Before his friends came, even. word "perfect" healing in this case simple or sincere. Before his friends came, even under overwheiming affliction, he was patient and did not sin nor charge God foolishly (i, 22; it, 10), because he felt himself face to face with God and that God was dealing with him. But these men seem to have come between him and God, and he, in replying to them and dealing, with them, loses sight of God and gropes in the darkness of his own wisdom.

with them, loses sight of God and gropes in the darkness of his own wisdom.

4. "I would order my cause before Him and fill my mouth with arguments." So it seemed to Job in his blindness, but it is evident that he lacks the broken and contrite spirit which only is acceptable to God. In the story of the two men who went up to the temple to pray (Luke xviii, 20-14) it was the man who would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, "God be mereiful to me, a sinner," who went down to his house justified rather than the other who thanked God that he was better than other men. It is only when our mouths are stopped as to our own righteousness that we can enjoy the free jastification of the grace of God through his righteousness (Rom. iii, 19).

5. "I would know the words which he 5. "I would know the words which he would answer me and understand what he would say unto me." He cannot understand these friends, and it is very clear that they do not understand him but he thinks he could understand God and he would like to know what God would say to him. No doubt there are many who think they can sympathize with Job in his being so misunderstood. Well, there is great comfort in looking unto Him who knew us thoroughly from the beginning and can so misunderstood. Well, make we us thoroughly from the beginning and can never find out anything new about us. He never can or will misunderstand us. "O Lord, thou has searched me and known me" (Ps. exxxix, 1).

6. "Will He plead against me with His great power? No, but He would put strength in me." A very little thing will often bring the sout into such a place that everything will look distorted, as when one sees things in a fog or with blurred vision. Our eyes need constant anointing with leavenly eye salve (Rev. iii, 18) that we may be clearly. The Holy Spirit can do this, beavenly eye salve (Rev. iii, 18) that we may be clearly. The Holy Spirit can do this, and inasmuch as we have Him in a sense that Job had him not we are more guilty san Job if we allow our vision to become so dim. God pleads not against the sinner, but against sin, which He hates. He who sought Adam and Eve and redeemed them and restored them to a measure of fellowship with promise of future glory is ever the same and is pleading with the sinner to come to Him, however sinful he may be, and with the erring to return to Him, however far off he may have wandered. See Isa i, 18; 1v, 6, 7; Jer. iii, 12-14; Hos. xiv, 1, 2.

"There the righteous might dispute

Isa. i.18; lv.6,7; Jer. iii,12.14; Hos.xiv,1,2.

7. "There the righteous might dispute with Him; so should I be delivered forever from my judge." Perhaps we cannot tell just what was in the mind of Job when he uttered these words, but this wedo know—that there is only one righteous person whose righteousness can stand before God, and He also has been ordained to be the judge of quick and dead (II Cor. v. 21; Acts xvii, 31). However sinful we may be, if only we come with true penitence to Him who came into the world to save sinners, He will not only not cast us out (John vi, 37), but He will become our righteousness, wisdom, sanctification and redemption, and we shall have great cause to glory in Him (I Cor. i, 30, 31). The Judge being our friend, our Redeemer, our substitute, who died in our stead, what bodleness we may have in the day of judgment (I John iv, 17).

8 "Behold, I go forward, but He is not there, and backward, but I cannot perceive Him." He reminds us of the bride in the Song of Songs who, because she had been self occupied and had not properly heed-ed the voice of her beloved, is compelled to seek Him very carnestly before she found Him again. She says, "I sought Him, but I could not find Him; I called Him, but he gave me no answer" (Song v, 6). Many a Christian is walking in darkness, out of fellowship with God, because of some thing or person which has been allowed to come nearer to them than the Lord Himself. He is not far off, nor hard to find, when we seek Him with the whole heart (Rom. x, 8, 9; Jer. xxix, 13), and if we would walk continually with Him, esteeming His fellowship more than all else, we would never walk in darkness.

9. "On the left hand, where He doth work, but I cannot behold Him. He hideth Himself on the right hand that I cannot seek Him." The remarks on the last verse are also applicable here, and yet there is another side of the truth. We may walk with Him in peace and quetness and yet not know why He do th this or that. He may say to us as to Peter, "What I do thou knowst 7. "There the righteous might dispute with Him; so should I be delivered forever not know why He dooth this or that. He may say to us as to Peter, "What I do thou knowest not now, but then shalt know hereafter." And it will always be true until "the morning" that we know only in part, but then shall we know even as also we are known (I Cor. till, 9, 12).

10. "But He knoweth the way that I take." Here is our comfort, "He knoweth." Jeremiah's comfort was, "Thou, O Lord, knowest me" (Jer. xii, 3). "The Lord Jesus taught us to find comfort in these words, "Your Heavenly Father knoweth" (Math. vi, 32). Therefore we can sing: So I go on not knowing; I would not if I might; I'd rather walk in the dark with God than walk alone in the light.
"When He hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold." Therefore he could also say, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in Him" (Job xiii, 13, 15).

A Novel Episode for a Ball Room Society in Honolulu.

Saturday evening I had the pleasure of attending one of the unique entertainments—a swiming party—that are a feature of Honolulu, and are probably known nowhere the new result. It was given by Mr. Honolulu, and are probably known nowhere else in the world. It was given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Nilson, formerly residents of Kenwood, now of San Francisco. It was given at Waikiki, a seaside annex of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel. The apartment known as the ianal looks directly upon the sea, the waves breaking beneath the windows and against the steps of the piazzas. In the rear of the lanai is a large apartment for dancing, and opening from this an immense dining-room. The masculine guests were, with a few exceptions, officers from our own men-of-war and from officers from our own men-of-war and from the English corvette Garnett, now in the harbor—handsome young fellows, who cleared their throats a great deal, curtailed their r's piteously, and danced with much muscular vigor. They did not possess the ease of manner peculiar to their American fellow officers.

ease of manner peculiar to their American fellow officers.

There was first a waltz or two, then the party separated, disappeared, and reappeared ed ed in bathing suits. The guests then moved in procession across the long pier, and the young girls, clasping their hands above their heads, leaped into the surf, accompanied by their escorts. They swam and dived in the clear water like mermen and merinaids. The southern cross rose above the horizon; palms were outlined in the moonlight against the clear sky; the surf dashed its white foam against the reefs beyond the lagoon; the air was filled with the fragrance of a thousand flowers; the singing boys sat upon the pier, and their wild music made a fitting accompanyment to one of the strangest seens I ever ment to one of the strangest scenes I ever

After a time the swimmers repaired to their rooms, redonned their evening dress, and the ball went on as if it had never been interrupted. It was difficult to realize the young women in their white gowns, sashes, and French-heeled shoes were the same whose white arms and bare feet had been battling with the breakers half an hour before. The dancing was followed by supper, then the waltzing and singing were resumed, and the morning was well on its way before the guests made their adieus and took their departure.—Chicago Inter-Ocean. respondent savs, due to the desire of the Princess of Wales, rather, than as is generally surmised, to any objection on the part of the Queen.

Already it is said that settlements for the future Lady Rosebery are being discussed, though it is not at all likely that there will be any hitch upon this score.

Lord Rosebery on his first marriage had a sum of £30,000 pounds settled upon him, absolutely out of his (Rothschild) wife's estate, and a life interest subject to certain provisions for the children in the remaider. Now that his own estates are comparatively clear, I understand they bring in another probable £25,000 pounds, while his honorarium of £5000 pounds as Minister to the Crown is something in addition. Lord Rosebery will be forty-six in a few weeks while the Princess is about half his age.

It appears from a contribution by Professor W. F. Willcox to the Political Science Quarterly for March, that the marriage rate is decreasing, in certain portions at least, of the United States, while divorce Science Quarterly for March, that we have a science Quarterly for March, that we have at least, of the United States, while divorce is on the increase. Trustworthy statistics regarding marriages are available only for Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Ohio, Illinois and the District of Columbia. They show a fall in the marriage rate between the years 1867 and 1886 ranging from 2.2 per cent. in Vermont to 12.6 per cent. in the District of Columbia. Professor Willox declares that the downward tendency was, on the whole, unmistakable, and that it was most marked in the years of industrial depression.

As to divorce, the average number of couples in every 190,000 of the population who are annually freed from the conjugal bond is given as 88.71 for the United States. Of the nine other countries included in the investigation only Japan, which has 608.45 divorces yearly to each 100,000 of inhabitants, exceeds the country's divorce rate. Switzerland is the only European country which even measureably approaches the U. S. divorce rate, with 64.49 to each 100,000.

France has only 32.51 divorces to each 100,000 of the people. Germany's rate is 25.97, Canada's 4,81, England's 3.79, Italy's 3.75 and Ireland's, by far the lowest of all, 28 per cent.

A piece of information that will cause universal surprise is that, not Chicago, but San Francisco is the city most prolific in divorces compared to population. Chicago comes second, it is true, but Cleveland is a very close third.

Fashior Fads of the Hour.

As we are just entering upon the days when driving in the parks and on the boulevards is not only especially delightful, but the swagger thing to do, our women may like to know that French ladies complete the driving toilettes with a specially-made skirt; it has two openings, each but toning at the side, so that it can be slipped to or off with ease. The headgear for driving is a little toque of cloth with a puffing of velvet where it touches the hair and a bird's plumage for trimming. Tirconne hats also are especially stylish this season. They are trimmed with breichwantz, a sort of astrachan, with a few tolds of velvet and a stiff straight plume.

A New York belle, renowned as a "coach-woman," has just made a paletot for driving of thick waterproof cloth, rather large and tull, lined with fur and mother-of-pearl buttons. Buttons of this kind are de rigueur for those who wish to have this sort of garment "up to date," and they should be always engraved, either with the name of the coach or with arms or cipher of the owner. They are almost precisely of the same cut for men as for women.

SOCIAL LIFE IN THE CAPITAL OF THE BRITISH COLONY.

Intensely English-The Governor and His House-The City's Center of Culture-Consumption Loses All Its Terrors-Water Lilies That Weigh Four Pounds

Water Lilies That Weigh Four Pounds Apiece.

Notwithstanding the fact that the swarming "colored" population of British Guiana far outnumbers the white, and in walking about Georgetown you meet a dozen representatives of Hindoo, Chinese, Negro and Indian race to one of the Anglo-Saxon, there is no place in England more intensely English than this. All trace of the old "Demerara" we used to read about in days gone by, with its wild, rough life of which the chief divertisement seemed to be the torturing of slaves—by such playful processes, for example, as driving a small wedge under the nail of each finger and too, or suspending a fellow in mid-air by a strong iron hook thrust under a couple of ribs—and the occasional rising up of the slaves to massacre their masters, has entirely disappeared. In its stead is a clean, handsome, orderly and highly conservative city, abounding in evidences of wealth, and culture, where we may enjoy all the elegancies of any other metropolis, including refined and even fashionable society. But as there is no "back country" to speak of, and only one other town of consequence—Berbice—everything in the line of luxury is massed at the capital.

The "Government House," where the Governor and his family reside, is a very plain three-story structure, with a few stained-glass windows and a portecochire, not unlike the British Legation at Washington. It is set in the midst of extensive lawns, with ornamental shrubs and plats of flowers, its gates guarded by soldiers in souave uniform. The Governor manages to worry along on a solary of $25,000 per annum, and besides numberless other perquisities has $12,000 yearly additional for "contingencies," which are no more clearly defined than the United States Congressmen's "stationery" fund.

About as thoroughly English as anything in the place is the theatre, named Philharmonic Hall. The center of its proseculum arch is adorned by the British coat-of-arms, in which "the lion and the unicorn, a-fighting for the crown," are carved in wood and gorgeously colored; and below it appears in big letters the trite quotations, "The world's a stage, the men and women merely players." Facing this, in straight lines, are the 600 seats, and in the center of the front row are a few arm-chairs, upholstered in blue velvet, for the use of the Governor and his family. The whole is illuminated by crystal chandeliers, that rival those in the East Room of the White House, and the walls are decorated with scores of busts and names of famous poets and musicians.

For amusements there are a number of fashionable drives and promenades which the local world patronize largely in the cool of the morning and evening. Georgatown is only 7 degrees removed from the equator, you know, and therefore its climate is hot as the hottest; yet it is not unhealthful, barring occasional sweeping epidemics. It is said to be a perfect paradise for consumptives, tuburcular diseases being unknown. Though the thermometer never falls below 75 degrees Fahr., it never rises above 90 degrees. The days are generally freshened by sea-breezes and the nights cooled by landward winds, so that with thin clothing, frequent baths and refraining from exercise in the middle of the day one can manage to keep pretty comfortable. It is the fashionable thing in the early morning and late afternoon to drive out to the esplanade, where at a certain point on certain days, a military band is stationed—Samboes, black as the ace of spades—which renders enchanting music. The seawall extends two miles along the coast and its top is cemented and provided with benches, where one may promenade or sit at ease enjoying the cool breezes and a wide view of the ocean.

Nearer the city is an extensive park known as the Promenade Garden, where fashionable drives and promenades which the local world patronize largely in the cool benches, where one may promenade or sit at ease enjoying the cool breezes and a wide view of the ocean.

Nearer the city is an extensive park known as the Promenade Garden, where another military band plays two or three afternoons of every week. The garden is laid out in beds, bordered by rough stones and paths strewn with broken shells, all radiating from the band stand, a central octagonal pavilion. Shrubs and flowers are so closely set in the beds and plots that, with the luxuriance of a tropical growth, little can be distinguished by a wild tangle of verdure, except the ever-striking palms and orchids. There is also a botanical garden of 150 acres, at the eastern end of the eity, which is well worth a visit. But if wonderful flowers and foliage is what you care to see, you will find them at their best in one of nature's wild gardens. An hour's drive from the city is a long-disused canal, which, for the space of three or four miles, is completely filled up with those gigantic water-lilies of the Victoria Regua variety. Those famous flies were first discovered in British Guiana, you know, up the Berbice River, about 50 years ago, and created a furor among botanists that has never subsided. And truly they are a wonder. Without the slightest exaggeration, the dark green leaves, tinted rosy wine color at the edges, average five feet across with curling rims four inches high, and many are much larger. They are held down by knotty stalks as thick as a ship's cable and form an impenetrable carpet upon which hundreds of birds trot at ease, sure of a firm foundation. And what shall we say of the splendid flowers—the samellest not less than two teet in diameter, weighing from three to four pounds—shaped like a rose, the outside petals creamy white, pale pink within, shading to violet in the center.

WOMAN'S DRESS SESSION

THE MOST IMPORTANT FEATURE OF THE CHICAGO CONGRESS IN MAY.

Ideas of Everyday Dress for Women "Suitable for Business Hours, for Shopping, Marketing, Housework, Walking and Other Forms of Exercise"-Illustrated.

When the national committee of women decided to hold a dress session in Chicage during May, during the World's Congress of Representative Women, they struck a keynote interesting, practical and significant to the entire sex.

The idea of the dress session grew out of the invitation extended by the committee of arrangements of the woman's branch of the World's Congress Auxiliary.

The National Council of Women accepted this invitation and the work of preparing a very attractive programme for the occasion was immediately begun. The council decided to devote one of the two sessions to be held in the morning and afternoon at the Woman's Building to its work in dress improvement and the presentation and discourse of the general subject from all standpoints. In compliance with a suggestion of this council many of the women interested in the subject will wear on the occasion of the dress session costumes designed for comfort as well as beauty, practically showing what results have been attained in the direction of more healthful, artistic and serviceable dress for women.

THE SYRIAM COSTUME. One of the duties assigned to the committee on dress, composed of Frances E. Russell, Annie Jenness Miller, Frank Stuart Parker and Anna W. Bates, Ph. D., was to report to the meeting held last December, an idea of on everyday dress for women "suitable for business hours, for shopping, marketing, housework, walking and other forms of exercise."

In offering their report the committee deprecated anything in the nature of a "uniform." "Our hope," said they, "is to deliver women from certain hard and fast lines within which fashion has so long con-

"It has been customary to clothe the head regardless of comfort. Our recommendation is to relieve the head from unnecessary weight and furnish a proper protection from sunshine and cold."

The next recommendation was on the structure and arrangement of the inner clothing. The union underwear of varying texture, price and style, the equestrian trousers, and any properly adjusted waist, or none, as forming a very perfect system of underclothing, which is a necessary condition of freedom and comfort.

The dressing of the neck should be loose and easy, whatever style of collar may be preferred, and the sleeves, however cut, should give the greatest possible freedom to the arms. The best authorities agree that the hands and feet require as much freedom as any other parts of the body: therefore, easy fitting gloves and shoes loose across the balls, with room for the toes and with low broad heels, are recommended. The outside wrap should be loose enough to permit unrestrained motion to every member of the body. The outside enough to permit unrestrained motion to every member of the body. The outside an essential element, demand freedom of outline.

Numerous designs, including some with the short Empire waist, were submitted to the committee by artists and others. Among these were three costumes, in which the principles named are applied, the Syrirn dress which comes from England; the gymnasium dress and the Armeman costume.

The Syrian costume comes from England.
The waist is of a loose or full style, with a skirt, dual at the bottom, and plaited, or gathered full directly in front, fuller behind and more scant over the hips. When made to wear under a dress less fullness may be used.

The American costume consists of a short skirted gown with leggings, which should be made of material the same color as the gown.

be made of material the same color as the gown.

The street costume also illustrated was worn by Bertha Morris Smith upon the platform at a noon meeting of the National W.C.T.U. at Denver, in November, 1892, and was very much admired. The whole suit is made of navy-blue serge, but any firm material suitable.

The committee believes that women visiting the Columbian Exposition, where the costumes of foreign nations will show so much that is unconventional to American eyes, need not fear to attract unpleasant Botice by wearing there the short street dress, which will add greatly to their comtort in viewing the Fair.

ABOUT PARASOLS.

No Marked Changes This Season—Som Stylish Parasols Illustrated. There are no very marked changes apparent this season, in these important adjuncts to feminine toilet. Invention has been concentrated upon a slight flattening of the shape, in the novelty of accessories, and in the material and workmanship of handles.

Quite the swellest creation of the manufacturers, this year, is the Club Coaching parasol in the Empire case. This case is distinctly new, and is made of the same material as the top, finished at either end with a puff confined with ribbons, wherein is concealed a dainty sachet. Plan bengalines, brocades in light tints, and failles with piain or flowered satin stripes, are the materials used. One of white faille striped with Nile green is made up in a ten-inch length on a short, natural Malacca stick. Two gilt rings are attached to the handle and through these a doubled loop of narrow white ribbon, finished with a flat passementeric tassel, is slipped. This is intended for suspension from the arm when not in use. Such parasols range from $3.50 to $10 in price. The plain bengalines of petunia, heliotrope, gold, white, sage green, or alternate cords of Gobelin blue and shrimp pink, will prove exceedingly acceptable for the Club Coaching designs. They have Dresden handles on white enameled sticks, tight cases to match the furled tops, ivory tips, covered ribs, and a bow of hemmed bengaline ornaments the handle.

Others, without cases, are shown in deep violet, daffodil, or rose, having the crook of the white handle enameled in color to match the top, and charmingly vignetted with Watteau scenes. These are obtainable for from $8.75 to $35. The "Rain or Shine" coaching parasols will be greatly in demand this summer for tourists to Chicago. cago.

Her Newest Tea Gown.

Her Newest Tea Gown.

The charming tea gown in the plate, signed by M. Vallet and shown on page 7, is in pale lime green brocade shot with white, the apple blossom design of which is copied from a silk of the 1830 period. It is worn over a corsage and skirt of apple blossom pink China silk, platted very closely and hanging in soft lines to the ground. The corsage is simply crossed in front, and the outer dress is trimmed with a fichu of pale green mousseline de soie, hanging in a deep frill over the puffed sleeves and ending in a jabot, which continues below the waist line and forms a trimming on each side of the gown. The sleeves are mane of the brocade and are finished by a deep ruffle of mousseline de soie. There is a slight train to the gown, which is lined with bright apple bloson satin, and the narrow girdle and bands areund the sleeves are made of lime green velvet.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

THE LATEST STYLES IN BONNETS, HATS AND GOWNS.

Widows' Pretty Headgear-An Accome dating Brim-A Black and Yellow Chip

It may be a dispensation of Provideace,

It may be a dispensation of Provideace, and then again it may be an especially grievous wile of the Devil, but at any rate that particular species of headgear known as a widow's bonnet is full of the most irresistible fascination.

In the first place there is the shape, the alluring curve of the brim as it rests upon the hair with that delicious little droop in front, so sad and so tender. The two bonnets shown here are masterpieces in their line. One is composed entirely of heavy crape, arranged in folds and bows falling in a heavy veil at the back and tied in a modest bow under the chim. This is suitable for an earlier period of mourning than the other bonnet.

The latter seems, in various ways, to indicate the dawn of a new interest in life. The crape is arranged in formal folds; there is no more abandon of grief there. The veil is less full; the bow under the chin is coquettishly masculine, displaying imitation, the sincerest admiration; while above the little droop in front a jet ornament in the shape of a crescent moon rises like the promise of a new light of happiness. The whole aspect is discreetly significant.

In Black and Yellow.

Here is an effective hat which owes its chief charm to the accommodating bend of its brim. It is of chip, in two colors, black on one side and yellow on the other. At the front the brim inclines toward a slight poke- At the side it flares straight up as though it delighted in showing every wave of the basis. In the back it has a tendency In the back it has a te to roll over, giving a glimpse of the yellow side of the chip.

The crown is covered with broad loops of yellow watered ribbon, which appear to be held in place by long pins of black jet.

Playing at hide and seek with the ribbon loops are three-quarter length ostrich teathers. Those which rest against the ribbon are in black and the one which falls over the brim in front is of pale yellow. This hat would go well with a blank lace dress.

This early spring costume is from a London designer, and represents the latest style in a walking suit. The material of the gown is a silk and wool novelty goods, in shades of pink and green. The skirt is lined with silk. Each seam is outlined with a vertical row of iridescent bead gimp

The waist has a yoke of green satin, covered with guipura lace. The deep reverse which pass over the shoulders to the waist which pass over the shoulders to the waist are edged with a piping of the green satin, headed with a row of the bead gimp. From the waist up to the lace folds of the satin are disposed over the front to form a vest. Double waistbands in metal, steel and gold, with large clasp. Gigot sleeves. The bonnet is of black lace, with cut jet front. Butterfly bows of green satin, velvet tlowers of deep pink, shirred lace bow at the back.

So Like a Woman.

"And so that is Shakespeare's skull at the time of his death?"

"Yes, ma'am; very hinteresting, ma'am."

"Indeed it is. Have you on exhibition his skull at earlier periods?"

"Unkind of Her.

"Yes," said Trivet to Dicer, "I understand that Miss Gadd has bee making remarks about me. Among other things she has been kicking about my mustache."

"She ought not to be so cruel as to kick a thing when it's down," replied Dicet.

A consented on the following conditions: That the house, which is in a dilapitated state, be thoroughly repaired as soon so possible. The building, which has been put up at two or three different times, is separating one part from another a distance of from one to four inches, which has is separating one part from another a d tance of from one to four inches, which has made it impossible during winter to keep it warm, the wind and frost having free access; besides the roof in wet weather leaks in every room. The agreement made for this year is only verbal, no lease or writing of any kind having been drawn up. The landlord up to the present time has made no repairs, and nearly six months of the term has expired. Can A leave the house at any time by paying rent up to time of leaving, or will he be compelled to stay the full year? If he can leave, what proportion of rent ought he to pay, as on account of winter season he has had no use of the land since commencing this year? The house formerly rented for $36 per year without land. Ans.—The facts stated would justify the tenant in leaving the premises, and when such by the landlord for rent he could counterclaim for damages, to be deducted from or paid in addition to the rent. The amounts of the rent and damages can only be ascertained by means of the trial of an action if the parties cannot agree. Legally, the tenant must pay rent for the whole term, but at the same time the landlord is legally liable to the tenant for damages sustained in consequence of the landlord failing to make the repairs. made it impossible during winter to keep
