French Rout Moors In Three Hours' Battle

Casablanca, Thursday, Aug. 29. - During the fighting between the French and the Moors yesterday near the French camp, the Moors at first retreated, and it was believed that the engagement was over, when suddenly the enemy reappeared in great force in two directions. The Spahis and irregular Algerian cavalry found themselves almost surrounded, but formed a square and slowly fell back, until reinforced. In the meantime the warships showered shells among the hills sheltering the enemy.

The engagement lasted three hours, the line of the battle extended over three miles, and it is estimated that 12,000 Moors were engaged. The loss of the latter is not known, but it is believed to have been heavy, as French officers counted the bodies of twenty Moors in one roadway. The French loss was fifteen men killed or wounded.

The cruisers Gloire and Guydeon today bombarded the beach beyond Casablanca, where a force of Moorish cavalry gathered, but was soon dispersed by the warships' fire.

THE PROPOSED WATER BYLAWS.

The water commissioners, by their action yesterday, recognize more distinctly than they seem to have done hitherto, that the problem with which they have to deal is a two-fold one.

Supplementing the water supply is only one side of the question. The other side, a scarcely less important diseases, the inspector will promptly one, is that of fire protection.

The water commissioners propos to separate the two for the consideration of the ratepayers. The first bylaw will provide for the extension of the water supply without regard to the question of increased pressure for the purposes of fire protection. This is done by eliminating from the original ises must be provided the inspector for Komoka scheme the 20,000,000 gallon storage reservoir, the second dam and other details which were designed to increase the pressure for fire-fighting.

The commissioners would have been better advised if they had decided in favor of an independent high-pressure system, using river water, as a substitute for the Komoka reservoir and other fire-fighting features of the Komoka scheme. If the independent system were installed it would not be necessary, under the Komoka scheme, to lay a 24-inch main from Springbank to the city limits. An 18-inch main would suffice to carry the extra water and a considerable saving would be effected. Again, in the first bylaw which the commissioners ask the council to submit to the people the sum of $45,000 is set apart for additional mains in the city. These mains are needed in the business district for increased water pressure and they are provided for in the independent system outlined by Engineer Chipman. The cost of the Komoka scheme might be easily brought down to $300,000 if the independent system, the expense of which would be largely borne by propertyowners directly benefitted, were incorporated with it Perhans if the second bylaw to be submitted is defeated the commissioners will see the logic of this proposition as clearly as they see that the people of London wish to preserve spring water for drinking purposes.

DISTRIBUTING IMMIGRANTS. The proper distribution of immigrants is a matter that has been given considerable attention by the department at Ottawa, agents having beer appointed at seaports and in various sections of the Dominion to look after the new arrivals and give them assistance and advice. At Washington, too, the matter has not been overlooked, and a new division of information has been established in conection with the immigration bureau, its duties beirg along similar lines. By this means Information is obtained in regard to the need of labor, the wages paid, the availability and cost of land, etc., in different parts of the country, and an as in Opposition he will "do." endeavor is made to adjust supply to demand by taking immigrants immedlately after landing, and directing them to points where they will be certain of employment.

The result thus far has been most gratifying in this country and is seen In the superior class of immigrants who come to London. The manager of minstration. the London district of the Ontario labor bureau declares that the men who are directed to this city are a splendid lot - strapping, vigorous fellows farm laborers and mechanics, all of whom display an intense desire to get to work as speedily as possible. The result is that no difficulty is experienced in finding employment either In the workshops of the city or on the farms surrounding, for every applicant. By this means a large number of employers of labor hereabouts have during the past few months been able to secure help that was much needed.

Of course very many of the fresh arrivals have as their objective point the great Canadain West, where the competition for labor among railroads. contractors and others is so brisk that one proposes two sets of mains for this common labor is quoted at $3 a day. The West never saw such conditions as prevail today among the grading camps, for with mining, timber claims, homestead opportunities and railroad building the immigrant hardly knows which of the offers to choose and his pay goes up steadily.

The more of these type of new citigens we get the better; but while the securing of a goodly share of the immigration is an important matter, it is scarcely less important that congestion in the eastern cities of the Dominion should be avoided, and in endeavoring to prevent conditions which would surely cause misery amongs new comers the Dominion Government is deserving of commendation,

INSPECTION OF MEATS.

The objects aimed at by the new relations governing the inspection meats and canned foods, which go into effect on Tuesday next, are purity, they are of the most stringent charac-

In order that the new rules may be properly enforced, some forty Canadians have been taking a course of training in the Chicago packing houses and stockyards, so that when they assume the duties of inspectors in varlous parts of the Dominion, they will be equipped with the necessary knowl-

It is the intention to make the inspection as thorough as possible. Before being slaughtered, and in order that the raw material for the packing house may contain nothing that is diseased, cattle, swine, sheep, goats or poultry, as the case may be, will be examined by an inspector, and where an animal is found to be affected with any one of a list of twenty specifica order its destruction. Animals-or carcasses in which the existence of disease is suspected-will be held until the inspector is satisfied to the contrary. and that official will have possession of the keys of suspected and condemned pens in all packing houses. Necessary accommodation on the premthe proper prosecution of his duties.

A crown, with the words, "Canada-Approved," will form the Government stamp, which will mark all meats that pass the inspection, so that no diseased meats can be sent out of the country. Steamship and railway companies are prohibited from carrying for export any of these meats that do not bear the Government stamp. A certificate that the goods he is exporting from Canada have been duly inspected and stamped is required of the shipper. Absolute cleanliness and perfect sanitation in and around all packing houses are also required by the regulations, and persons affected with tuberculosis or other communicable diseases are debarred from working in such places. The inspectors are given extensive powers, and they must see to it that cases are plainly marked. The regulations also call for the re-inspection in Canada of imported meats, and no carcass or portion thereof which has not already passed inspection will be allowed to enter the premises. The stamp must appear on carcasses from which sausages, canned meats and portions intended for curing are taken. The inspector will have supervision such goods, and he must not allow the I have another eye left." use of any fixture, appliance or receptacle in the production of food prod-

An important and most necessary provision is the prohibition of the use of deleterious substances, drugs, dyes or preservatives in the preparation of vent the substitution of the "embalming" for the curing process. The new regulations are certainly in the public interest, as purity of food is a most vital matter, and there seems no reason why packers and others engaged in the meat business should not welcome them, seeing that their enforcement means the improving of th reputation of Canadian food products abroad, and will be the means of preventing American packers from passing off their goods as Canadian in the old country markets.

Engineer Moore is credited with reporting that the flow in the north branch is 10,000,000 gallons daily at this time. Engineer Maury reported daily minimum flow of 27,000,000 gallons. The north branch is shrinking, but is it shrinking as fast as that? There must be a mistake somewhere.

Our local contemporary misunderstands or misrepresents us in its first editorial today. It was never stated in these columns that all the lawn services of the city would be supplied by river water if the independent system were adopted. Citizens living along or near the eight or nine miles of highpressure mains might find it cheaper to use river water for lawns, but no purpose. Our neighbor the other claimed a present shortage of 1,350,000 gallons of water, which could be supplied for railways, factories, street sprinkling and lawn sprinkling, if it were available. The amount required for lawns is only 350,000 gallons daily. but the whole of the remaining million gallons could be supplied by the in-

The British nation adores Mark Twain for his old things—particularly for "The Jumping Frog," which is easy to under-stand; for "Huckleberry Finn," in which the humor is enacted, and is not subtle; for 'The Prince and the Pauper," and "A Yankee at the Court of King Arthur," which are pure literature. It also respects' him for the quality of mystery that his humor bears. To tell the hopest truth, there is something of that feeling about Twain even among his own countrymen, who know him best. Generally we Americans understand him, but not always. thing is getting away, and we set our with at work lively to prevent it from escaping. Twain is always being suspected of some-thing better than he really says. This helped his reputation immensely.

The Duke of Northumberland is the largest landowner in England. His estates stretch almost from sea to sea, and he can ride a hundred miles and not once leave his own domain. In appearance he is tall and thin, with reddish hair and flowing whiskers. He is cld-fashioned in manner and shows many of the attributes of a grand seigneur. And he has all the pride of the Percys and keeps up to the full their Olympian traditions. He was once heard to say: "You will have to go a long way back in our record to find a Percy who was either idle or a spend-thrift." In religion he is an fryingite, like his father, and he has sonverted the duchess to his own belief. Woodcocks abound on the Alawick estates, and, by the duke's orders, his keepers put a nickel ring on the leg of each bird that they can capture. On these rings appear a square mark, with a letter "N" and the date of the year. Birds so adorned have been found in Scotland and in Somersetshire.

MIDDLEMISS MATTERS

Opening of a New Church-Successful Union School Picnie.

Middlemiss, Aug. 30. - A union picnic of Middlemiss and Riverside schools was held in Mr. Duncan Graham's grove last week. The day was all that could be desired, and many people gathered from far and near to enjoy a good time and renew old acquaintances. Besides the people of the vicinity, who were well represented, visitors were present from Detroit, London, Montreal, St. Thomas, Shedden, Glencoe, Oakville, Mount Brydges, Melbourne, Iona, Lawrence and other

The first part of the afternoon was spent in children's games, for which prizes were awarded, and which were joyed by young and old alike. One of the most interesting features of the afternoon was a baby show, when the babies under one year were taken to the platform by their mothers, and viewed by six grave judges, who, after much consideration, awarded first prize to little Marie McArthur, and second to little Margaret Murray. The chair was then taken by the Rev. T. R. Shearer, of Melbourne, and an excellent programme followed. Addresses were given by Rev. A. Clarke, of Melbourne; Rev. G. C. Lamont, of Iona; Dr. McNair, of Oakville, and Rev. E.

McGouggan, of Montreal. Miss B. Wyatt, of Mount Brydges, and Mr. W. N. Sexsmith, of Deseronto, sang several solos, which were very much appreciated by the audience. The Bell quilt was sold by auction, and Mr. Stanley, the lucky purchaser, was well pleased with his bargain.After the programme a bountiful supper was spread, and all partook of the good things provided. Senior games were then enjoyed until nightfall, and all went home feeling well satisfied with their afternoon's pleasure.

The new Baptist Church of Middlemiss is to be opened Sept. 8 and a lecture is to be given in it the following Monday evening. Mrs. Darville and her daughter Claire have returned home after a month's holidays.

Mr. Charles Lucas and family are now settled in their new home. Miss Agnes Campbell is visiting friends in Cleveland.

AGE MEMORIAL TOWER

Paris, Aug. 29.-A great monumen intended as a permanent expression of the age we live in, has been designed by the famous sculptor, Rodin. A committee, headed by Armand Dayot, has been formed with the view of putting the project into execution. An appeal for funds will be issued in Europe and America in the belief that all progressive nations will contribute Great Project to Connect the Baltio and Black Seas.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The Rusisan minis try of ways of communication has begun the preparation of a plan for a gigantic canal to connect the Baltic and Black Seas. This engineering feat has been discussed and contemplated for many years In a report to the bureau of manufactures, the American consul at Riga sava that the total length of the waterway is to be about 2,310 versts (1,525 miles), the estimated cost of the work 55,000,000 roubles, or about $27,500,000, and among the many benefits will be relief to the chronic con gestion on the southwestern railway sysalone is able to further freight during the navigation season to the amount of 180. 000,000 poods, or 2,900,000 tons. The expense nection with the utilization of the falls of the rivers for electrical purposes is calculated at 185,000,000 roubles, or $92,500,000 more, so that the estimated outlay on the new project is 240,000,000 roubles, or about $120,000,000. The work of preparing the plans for the onstruction of the canal has been intrusted to M. S. J. Maxinovitch, an engineer of the ministry of ways of communication.

The new project will utilize the energy contained in the falls of the Western Dwina and Dnieper for the generation of electric power. The depth of the water-way to the sea will allow for the passage to to 70 cartoads. A system of locks will be constructed on the Western Dwina, beginning at the Island of Dahlen, near Riga, to the town of Vtebsk, a distance of 540 versts (350 miles). A canal will join the two rivers, the Western Dwina and Dnieper.

Girl, Parents, and Injunction Fail to Daunt Obstinate Suitor.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. /.- News of the marriage of Miss Katherine Homan and James Peyton at Manitou. Col. yesterday, which reached the family of the girl here today, furnishes the sequel to the most exciting courtship ago, and he made up his mind on the position of the girl, her parents, and the efforts of half a dozen judges, who love to the girl.

For a long time after he first met Miss Homan Peyton loved her in silence and discreetly. Just about a year ago he first told her of his intention to make her his wife, and Miss Homan promptly swore out a warrant for his arrest, alleging his attentions annoyed her. That was the official beginning of Peyton's courtship. He was brought before Judge Mathais in police court and tried, but the charge against him was dismissed because the judge did not feel at liberty to interfere in his courtship, so

Arrested for Insanity Once. Encouraged by this, Peyton returned to the attack, and it was not a week until he was arrested again, this time on charges filed before the commissioners in lunacy. The commissioners looked him over and decided that he was insanely in love with Miss Homan but otherwise sane, and dismissed

Peyton defied the injunction, proposed again, and was promptly arrested for contempt. He was released on a promise to quit proposing to the girl, but inside of two days forgot his promise and was arrested again. This time he was charged with stopping the girl on the street and asking her to be his wife. Then another injunction was issued prohibiting Peyton from talking to the girl on the street, and he was released

Peyton wasn't discouraged. Within a week he had proposed to the girl three times over the telephone. Another injunction was issued, this time by Judge Howe, preventing him from doing that.

The judge was as much mystified as ever until Peyton returned to the stand and produced a bundle of letters written to him by Miss Homan. These told him not to despair and that all would come out all right.

Judge Howe finally ordered Peyton placed under $500 bonds to keep 'the terms of the injunction, and threatened him with a jail sentence if he ever molested the girl again. Since then Peyton has not been heard from until today's message announcing that finally he had succeeded in marrying the girl. The girl's relatives claim that Peyton had hypnotized Miss Homan. Proceedings for contempt of court and for annulment

Fanners Talk of Nature Fakirs

"Some of these later-day baseball writers are as bad as those fellows President Roosevelt has placed in the error column and dubbed "nature fakirs," for if they do not know anything about the pioneer days of the Chicago greatest outdoor sport, then they ought to pass it up and continue to hew out the doings of Joe Cantillon, Muggsy McGraw and Ban Johnson, of the pres-

"What do you think of such a wild statement as this that appeared in St. Louis of the 'esteemed contemporaries' of last Sunday? Ever hear a baseball player making ten runs in one game? That's what Creighton, of the Excelsiors, did against the Hudson Rivers of Newburgh. It was some time ago, to be sure, so long ago that the Wagners and Lajoies and Keelers and Lumleys were unborn. The score was 59 to 14 in favor of the Excelsiors and the game was played in July, 1860.

"Now, that kind of writing is enough to make us old players turn green with scorn, for it was rather common for that old National team of this city back in 1866 to run their scores up beyond the 80 mark, and many of the players often scored ten and more runs in a single game, so the pointing out of Creighton making a lone ten runs in one game is amusing.

"I wonder if our present readers of baseball news can conjure up in their minds such wild statements of a team making more than 30 runs in one inning? Wild as this statement may appear, it was accomplished time Cusack. and again by the old National club in the palmy days of 1866.

"Why," said the old historian, "it was the greatest batting game I ever witnessed in my life, or, as one of the spectators said at the contest. 'Richmond is being bombarded again,' and as for Creighton's record of ten runs in one game, every player on the Nationals made ten or more scores, Studly making an even ten, which he would have increased had he not retired from the game because of an injury, the Nationals playing with only eight men the last three innings."

"Glory be!" said Martin Cowan, who manages Celtic Park in New York: "I thought I had heard some swearing when I used to boss a car depot in the days of the horses, but Alfred Shrubb has the old-time street car driver beaten a mile. 'Doc.' McCue convinced me that eating too much meat was bad for this kind o' weather, and you should hear Shrubb cut loose. It was stated this morning by one of the survivors of the wreck that there had been signs of a collapse for some time, but that they had not been regarded as serious owing to the enormous apparent strength of the steel

Several expert engineers visited the scene this morning, and they were unanimous in the belief that the whole fault of the catastrophe lay with the designers of the bridge.

It was evident, so the experts say, that the engineers had miscalculated the tensile strength in some spot, so that the weak spot had given way under the terrific strain of hundreds of thousands of tons of steel

The whole bridge has cost, as far as It has gone, something over $4,000,000 and was to cost, when finished, in the neighborhood of eight millions.

Too Much Hurry. The only explanation that Mr. Parent

can give of the collapse is that in the rushing of the work the rivetting may not have followed up the extension of the steel as fast as it should, and that the drop was due to the weight of the load of steel which was being taken out on it.

Cable Was Twisted

The day before vesterday it was reported to Mr. Parent that one of the large steel cables of the bridges had been twisted, which seemed to show the presence of some undue strain, but little importance was attached to this occurrence.

A message to the marine denartment from Capt. Kenny of Quebec makes it quite clear that there is no interference with the ship channel, the steel having dropped into 140 feet of water and at a point much nearer the south shore than the vessels need to go.

Had Another Accident.

The Phoenix Bridge Company of Phoenixville, contractors for the steel work in this case, was the same concern as built the New York and Ot-at Cornwall, which collapsed a few years ago, although it is but fair to the contractors to say that this Cornwall disaster was not due to any fault on their part, but to the shifting of the bed of the river.

The Pickle.

Put together over the fire four quarts of vinegar, a cupful of sugar, three dozen, each, of whole black peppers and cloves, a dozen and a half whole allspice, and a dozen blades of mace. Boil these for five minutes.

The crisp, green gherkins, well drained, may be then put into jars, the boiling pickle poured over them. The tars are closed and kept in the cool dark for two or three months. By that time the pickles will be ready for use. String beans and onions, as I have intimated, may be greened like the gherkins and pickled in the same way, and cauliflower, prepared as I have directed may also be thus pickled.

English Mixed Pickles.

These resemble the American pickles in many respects, but are not "greened," and are thus more easily,

For this pickle a small cauliflower cut into sprays, a half pint of tiny gherkins, as many small peeled onions, a couple of medium-sized cucumbers, half a dozen green tomatoes, sliced, and half a pint of string beans, the strings removed and the beans cut into lengths, are arranged in layers in a wide-mouthed crock. Each layer of vegetables should be thickly sprinkled with salt, and when the vegetables are used up, cold water may be poured over all and a weighted plate laid on top to keep them from floating. For three days they lie in the brine, then they are uncovered, drained, washed in fresh water and allowed to lie in water, unsalted, for twentyfour hours.

The pickle for this differs a little from the American mixture. One and a half cupfuls of brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls of English mustard, a teaspoonful, each, of white mustard seed, grated horseradish, whole mace, whole cloves, whole black peppers, celery seed and two teaspoonfuls of turmeric are stirred into a gallon of vinegar, this is brought to a boil and the pickles dropped into them.

Watch must be kept that none of them are soft or spoiled. After five minutes' simmering the pickles may be taken out with a skimmer, put into stone jars and the spiced vinegar poured over them.

Forty-eight hours later the vinegar is poured off, again brought to a boil and a tablespoonful of curry powder added. The scalding vinegar is turned over the pickles again, and when it in alternate layers in a preserving is cold the pickles are put into widemouthed jars and sealed. Four weeks' ripening make pickle ready for the table.

Sweet Pickles, Peaches and Pears.

Prepare the fruit in both cases in the same manner. Peel and weigh, and to each pound of the fruit allow half

Tomato Catsup.

Boil together until soft a peck of tomatoes and four onions, mix a dozen sprigs of parsley, two bay leaves, half spoonful of whole celery seed tied up in a bit of thin muslin and a tablespoonful, each, of ground black pepper, cloves, mace, salt and sugar.

Put the tomatoes and onions through a press, strain the liquid through a fine sieve and put it over the fire with the seasoning. Boil five hours, stirring up well from time to time.

The liquid should be reduced about one-half by the end of the time and thick. Take out the bag of celery seed and add a pint of vinegar. Bottle and seal the catsup when cold.

Grape Catsup.

After washing and stemming tha grapes put them over the fire with enough water to keep them from burning and cook until soft. Ruh through a colander, measure the pulp, having rejected seeds and skins, and to three quarts of it allow a pint of good cider vinegar, a heaping tablespoonful, each, of ground allspice, salt, cinnamon, cloves and black pepper, a small teaspoonful of cayenne and two pounds of brown sugar.

Boil all together until reduced about one-half and very thick, skim, cool bottle and seal.

Suffer an amendment to your motion on the milk-and-tomato question. If the saleratus-I use baking soda-were put into the milk instead of into the tomatoes and a little sugar be added to the latter, you will have no curdling.

And I use but half as much alkali as you advise. The sugar takes off the sharp acid of the cooked tomatoes, and less soda is required. The onful must affect the flavoror so I should think.

We never cook tomatoes in any way elthout the addition of sugar. They ose sweetness and are sharpened by heat. The sugar restores the mellow Recipe for Home-Made Soap I note frequent requests for recipes for home-made soap. I am offering one which home-made soap. I am offering one which I know to be good. It is hard soap and is quickly and easily made.

My cook saves all the fat she cannot utilize in her cooking. She tries it cut, puts it while warm into tin cans and keeps it in a cool place until there is enough for a making of soap.

I may mention that it should be strained from the saucepan in which it is "tried" through a flannel bag previously wet with boiling water. This is to get rid of impurities that will affect the color of the soap.

boiling water. This is to get rid of linpurities that will affect the color of the soap.

When we have accumulated sufficient to warrant the task the fat is turned from the cans into a kettle, water is added in abundance and it is boiled slowly for an hour.
Then it is set by to get perfectly cold.

All foreign matter that has escaped the straining sinks to the bottom under the water, and there remains on the surface a solid cake of pure fat. This I weigh, and proceed with according to the printed directions on the cans of patented lye.

Of course I have my preference in the matter of brands of lye, but I suppose any one will do in making hard soap without boiling. It takes the lye a long time to dissolve, so I put it on in a pot at the back of the range over night.

Before beginning the soap making I line the box or boxes in which it is to be put up, with very wet muslin, They must be all ready to receive it, for when it "comes" it comes quickly.

I use wooden boxes in which layer raisins come. They hold five pounds each. As soon as the soap "comes"—that is, when the lye and grease have united into a smooth, soft cake—I pour it into the lined boxes.

As it hardens slightly, I mark it deeply smooth, soft cake—I pour it into the lined boxes.

As it hardens slightly, I mark it deeply with a thin sharp knite into squares of the size I wish. When it is solid it may be taken from the box by lifting the muslin at the four corners. Then the squares are spread on a board in the sun to dry and "ripen."

Do your members know that kerosene poured upon a cloth and applied to painted woodwork will remove grease at once?

Asks Cause of Failure

The following recipe I clipped from the Exchange some time ago. I have tried it three times, and it has always proved a failure.

Please tell me if the recipe is correct. I've tried my best to make it right, and as I generally have excellent luck with my cakes I thought I may have copied it wrong and so was working at a disadvantage.

to meet the difficulty. If I had written the recipe, I should have worded it differently, I think. I should sift the soda twice with the flour, and specify in measure how much chocolate to use. Then I should order that the frothed whites and flour be added alternately. I see nothing in the proportions of the batter that is wrong unless it be that a little more flour might hinder the cake from falling when baked.

A Much-Wanted Recipe Will you tell me if there is such a thing as Lady Baltimore cake? If so, please give a recipe for it in the Housemothers' Exchange.

E. C. R. (Whitinsville, Mass.) That there is such a cake, also that it is a delicious compound. I testify gratefully, having been the pleased recipient of a loaf of it sent from the home of "Lady Baltimore," namely, the Woman's Exchange in Charleston. S. C.

The readers of Owen Wister's charming book will comprehend the allusion. I am in receipt of several formulas for the now famous delicacy. All have a family resemblance. I select the following as simple and brief:

Lady Baltimore Cake. Rub a cupful of butter to a cream with two cups of powdered sugar; add a cupful of milk; when well mixed stir in juice of a lemon and whip very light; then stir in alternately the stiffened whites of six egrs and four ever cupfuls of flour sifted twice with a rounded teaspoonful of baking pow-der. COTTON. It will surprise many to know that the cotton crop of Egypt is not fed by the rich mud of Abyssinia, which comes down the waters of the Nile at the time of the floods. That mud is brought to Egypt by the Atbara and the Blue Nile and is poured over the land during the seasons when the cotton fields and sprinkled over the land during the seasons when the cotton fields and sprinkled over the ground, and the result is an extraordinary increase in the yield.

The most of the waters of the Nile at thousand years, comes a kind of earth. Out of these mounds, made of the rubbish of a thousand years, comes a kind of earth containing a large percentage of soda, ammonia and other salts. This stuff is carried by the peasants out to the cotton fields and sprinkled over the ground, and the result is an extraordinary increase in the yield.

The Government has been helping the farmers in other ways. It has an agricultural department which is working much as ours. Last year i sent out selected seed for planting 10,-000 acres in cotton, contracting with each farmer who took it that it would buy his seed at a price above that of the market. The seed which has come in from that venture is enough to plant 75,000 acres this year, and this is to be distributed at cost price to such farmers as want it.

The Government is trying to induce the farmers to use artificial fertilizers. It began this six years ago, when it was able to distribute $30,000 worth of chemical manure. The demand had so increased for such fertilizers that more than ten times as much was distributed last season. With our knowledge of the Nile lands it seems a queer thing to talk of their artificial fertilization, but there is no soil on earth where manuring pays better. HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dande

One ownee Compound Salatone; Four ounces Compound Syrup

Sareaparilla; Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary affictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expols these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular ssues or joints, and cause the untold be placed upon the services of every woman who is a wife, a mother, and husband ought to pay his wife a living wage in addition to her food and clothing. The amount of this living wage ought to be regulated by husband's income. I would pass a law compelling every husband to allow to his wife a certain proportion of his income, not as a gift, but as payment for work done. The wages of the wife would be absolutely her own to be used by her as she pleases. In this way she would be relieved from the bondage of gratitude and the slavery of subservience. The longer she lived with a man the less dependent upon him she would become, and if he ventured to treat her with less than the respect due from one partner to another she would be able to withdraw into a position of greater freedom and less responsibility without being forced to face the prospect of starvation at a time of life when her charms have ceased to command a price in the marriage market. It may be said that this sordid arrangement would destroy the romance of marriage, but the answer to that objection is the retort that if romance can survive the existing conditions of marriage it can survive anything. What we have to take precautions against is the decay of romance which sets in at the critical period when love is passing out of idolatry into partnership. There is no doubt that perfect friendship is the culmination of perfect love, but human nature is mutable, and the culmination of love oftener is never obtained. In those cases where it is attained it will not be affected by the enforcement of a minimum wage for the wife. Where it is not attained the wife will not be asked to sacrifice her liberty as well as her love, her of marriage is the difference between the status of a woman before she marsue marries. Before marriage a woman is a divinity; after marriage she is a long, the woman has the worst of the bargain. What we want is to take a little of the pre-nuptial honey and spread it over the post-nuptial bread Woman would be glad to exchange some of the romantic homage she receives before marriage for a little honest companionship after it.-James Douglass, in Chicago Tribune.

As for the theory of physical testimony which purported to show the utmost veneration and regard until decline, are English athletic records that Alexander Fraser was working in the day of their death, on an island and performances as a rule poorer than those of ten or twenty years ago" Not at all. The average is higher. Then there is no deterioration. The factor that is overlooked is that while in former times England had a sort of monopoly of these athletic games, nowadays foreigners have gone in for them with all the enthusiasm NOTHING LOOKS MORE UGLY than to of newcomers, and in some instances see a person whose hands are covered over have improved on old methods and with warts. Why have these disfigure surpassed their teachers. One English journal shows a light to the croakers when it argues, "the improvement in our neighbors is no proof whatever of our own decline." It is as unreasonable to suppose that it is a proof of it as is would be to argue that because Japan has rapidly improved in western arts and methods, the western world has deteriorated and gone back.

In the field of sport England now has a swarm of foreign competitors where she formerly had none, and that is a sufficient explanation for an occasional string of defeats, without having recourse to the dismal theory of "physical deterioration in the nation."
