Y. M. C. A. REPORTS A BIG YEAR'S WORK

The Membership Increasing Rapidly and Much Expansion Work Undertaken.

Reports from the various committees affiliated with the local Y. M. C. A., as presented to the board of directors and a number of active members of the association last evening, indicated that the association, as a whole, was in a flourishing condition. General Secretary E. J. Jenkins, in a general report of the past year's work, said that it had been one of the most successful years the association has yet experienced. "The year closed has been characterized by rapid expansion both in the variety and volume of our work," he asserted. "The attendance at the gymnasium classes in 1926 was 12,872. During 1927, 21,372 took advantage of the facilities. "The growth of the boys' membership has now reached the point where we must pause to undertake our responsibility for the boys within our membership. The character of the membership has also changed, so that a very large percentage of our boys are what might be termed under-privileged. The year now before us is to put our boys' program into more perfect working order, and adapt it completely to this order of boy. Identification rather than expansion should be our motto for the year ahead."

Boys' Classes Increase.
"There has been a healthy growth in organized boys' classes in the churches during the year. There are now 26 Trail Ranger groups and 24 Tuxis squares. The Y. M. C. A., representing the united laymen of the churches, can undertake no more important work than to foster and encourage the growing boys' work of the churches."

He said that the most important needs were the development of denominational autonomy and responsibility for mid-gymnasium meetings in various parts of the city, so located as to serve churches living in the same district, and an adequate plan for finding and training mentors and leaders of boys' groups.

"Increased Membership.
"The association has been under severe criticism during the past two years. We have drawn some valuable information from them, although the criticisms have been directed to injure us. There has been an unprecedented growth in the number of young men joining the Y. M. C. A. in both Canada and the United States. We should continue to take these criticisms to heart. Every charge should be carefully and honestly investigated, and whatever they contain of helpful suggestions or direction should be used."

In closing he paid eloquent tribute to the Women's Auxiliary, the press, the spirit of the citizens in helping the association, the St. George's Society, Manx Society, Sons of England, St. Andrew's Society, the ministers of the Protestant churches, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs.

"In our work together for a common end we have to some extent realized that the motto of the Y. M. C. A. and the prayer of our God, recorded in John, xvii, 21, 'That they may all be one.'"

Much discussion on the report followed. The secretary was highly commended by all for his efficient work throughout the year.

trial, vocal and instrumental numbers by members of the Chalmers Presbyterian Church.

The orchestra, under the leadership of W. T. Weames, gave a number of excellently rendered selections. Songs were sung by H. Jolly and William Dunlop; piano duets, Messrs. Wamsley and Howe; cornet solo with orchestral accompaniment, S. Thompson; trombone solo, S. Thompson; violin solo, T. Potts; male quartet, Messrs. Wamsley, F. Dugald, A. Light, B. Brown. Mrs. W. T. Weames accompanied on the piano.

Major Graham acted as chairman.

BROTHERHOOD RALLY LARGEST YET HELD

Nineteen Organizations Represented At United Meeting in St. Andrew's Hall.

One of the largest gatherings of the United Brotherhood organizations of the city was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Hall on Thursday evening, when nineteen organizations were represented. This was the last meeting of the season, and the activities of the brotherhoods will be reopened in the fall with a banquet. A committee was appointed to make preparations for the fall program.

Rev. J. N. Norton of the Maitland Street Baptist Church gave a report on the growth of the brotherhoods of London and stated that London was the most strongly organized along the line of brotherhoods in proportion to the population of any city in America. Interesting statistics of the movement were given.

Rev. G. Q. Warner gave a paper on "The Christian Faith as a Basis for the Brotherhood of All Humanity." Mr. Warner, in his interesting paper, urged that greater respect be given to churches of other doctrine, and that the doctrine of brotherhood and fellowship be large enough to admit those of other doctrines.

The United Brotherhoods recorded last night the most successful year of work since organization. Ed Webster and Mr. Christian contributed musical numbers to the program. R. R. Smith of the Askin Street Methodist Church presided over the business meeting and U. A. Buchner, who was in charge of the program was chairman of the social meeting.

WANTS TO DISPOSE OF BUFFALO BULL

But P. U. C. Perplexed How To Capture and Transport Animal.

The problem of the "eternal triangle" has invaded the buffalo enclosure at Springfield Park, where at the present time there are two males and one female of the species, with the result that the public utility commission yesterday afternoon decided that one of the two male inhabitants must be transferred elsewhere.

But just how to best dispose of his lordship proved somewhat of a debatable point. Commissioner McFarlane advocated the shooting of the doomed one and the selling of the beef in the city. Other members of the commission were, however, of the opinion that the animal might be sold to some other city or town which is desirous of beginning the organization of a zoo.

In view of the pugnacious character of the doomed bull the problem was not quite so easily disposed of, however. The question of corraling the erstwhile monarch of the plains and herding him into a car for transportation did not appeal with any special strength to the hunting instincts of any member of the commission. It was suggested that the two cowboys who are at the present time giving exhibitions of handling the animal in the city might be engaged to lasso, throw and tie up the animal, so that he could be transported elsewhere pending a sale, but as there is at present no other enclosure to which he could be taken this plan was dropped.

Following a suggestion that the purchaser of the animal be responsible for the capture, loading and transporting of nearly a ton of live pugnacity and devilment, the sale being made for the buffalo enclosure, Springfield, the matter was left in the hands of General Manager E. V. Buchanan, who just previously in the kindest manner possible had suggested that the task of capturing the buffalo might be placed in the hands of the newspapermen.

COMMUNITY PICNIC HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Lobo Outing Will Be Held at Some Later Date

Lobo, May 20--The big community picnic and concert which was to have been held at Lobo on May 24, has been postponed, owing to the big U. F. O. picnic at Coldstream on that day.

The Lobo Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. D. Campbell on Wednesday afternoon, with a large crowd in attendance. Mrs. John W. Graham was in the chair, while Miss Gladys McIntyre took the secretary's place, which she has filled for three years. After the regular business meeting the election of officers took place. Mrs. H. D. Steele was elected president; Mrs. E. T. Caverhill, first vice; Mrs. A. C. Ferguson, second vice; Mrs. W. McIlvor, third vice; Miss Irene Challenor, secretary-treasurer; Miss Ruby McAvicar, assistant. Delegates were appointed to attend the convention at Alisa Craig on June 10. They decided to have their June meeting and big meeting combined on May 23 at Lobo hall. The lady speaker will be present, and a good program is being arranged.

The auditors' report given by Mrs. J. F. Edwards was found correct, and Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. (Dr.) Graham were appointed auditors for next year. Mrs. A. Fraser paid her official visit to the institute, and in her address she spoke of the splendid work which had been done by the other institutes of the district.

The program given by the grandmothers of the institute was splendid. A paper, "Wholesome Recreation," was given by Mrs. D. T. Gray, and Mrs. E. T. Caverhill took the question drawer. Mrs. G. F. Edwards led the community singing, while music was furnished by Mrs. (Dr.) Graham. A recitation by Mrs. Andrew Ferguson was much enjoyed. After the program lunch was served by the hostesses.

D. G. McGugan has leased the garage and will remove to London soon.

Verne Wilson is very ill at his home here.

Miss Mabel Singular visited in East Williams recently.

WILL REFUSE DELIVERY OF MILK SUNDAY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

TILLSONBURG, May 13--At a meeting held in the chamber of commerce rooms here tonight, and attended by more than 200 patrons of the Borden Milk Company, it was unanimously decided not to deliver milk to the firm on Sunday. The meeting was called to discuss the question of Sunday delivery, an order having been issued by the company requiring delivery on Sunday. There was a lively discussion over the matter, but when a test vote was taken those present were unanimous against delivering on the Sabbath. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for disposal of the milk in the best way possible. Mayor Dean presided over tonight's gathering.

STOMACH TROUBLES
ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief
 For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probability nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bismuthated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweet, harmless and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as bismuthated magnesia which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial stimulants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bismuthated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purposes—adv.

Inventions So Numerous
They're Never Perfected

Appliances in the Home Are Glaring Example of This Fact, As You Know To Your Sorrow.

MONTREAL, May 19.—The inefficiency of many things which we use constantly is appalling. Inventions have come so fast on the modern world in the last century or so, that there seems to have been no time to perfect anything. Something is invented for which there is crying need, and as soon as it is perfect enough to admit of easy manufacture in quantities, it is thrust on the market, bought and installed in millions of homes, and made the best of without further attempt to make it really workable.

We wake in the mornings to turn out of a bed which in many ways less comfortable and convenient than that from which our great-grandfather turned 100 years ago. We proceed to pull up our blind in order to look out of our window and see what the day is like, and are lucky if the blind, roller and all, does not come down on our head. At best it rolls up crooked and sticks.

We proceed to the bathroom and put the plug in the waste-pipe; the chain which holds the plug breaks from its moorings. We turn on the hot water tap, and it works perfectly, congratulating ourselves on the improvement that has been made in getting a bath since the days of Napoleon; but the tap generally leaks, or there is something wrong with the machine which is supposed to heat the water.

Razors That Won't Razor. We turn to our safety razor, only to find that this instrument has not yet been so perfected that it can be used by our wife for scraping paint off woodwork without impairing its ability to scrape whiskers off chins. It is true that the shaving instrument of our great-grandfather's day was sometimes used by the female members of his family for purposes other than those for which it was created; but those females cut themselves and desisted, whilst the safety instrument of our day is fool-proof against personal injury, except when used by the owner for the purpose for which it was intended.

We proceed to remove our night-clothes in order to take our bath, only to find that the quick, labor-saving device of the modern laundry have ruined the material of the garment, and that it tears when touched by human hands. Stepping, more or less gracefully into our bath, we find that a sudden spurt of energy on the part of the electric machine in the basement has started the water boiling, and we step out again, to waste a few minutes in adjusting the temperature of the water, and in saying things.

As we cannot pull out the plug without boiling a hand, we must turn on the cold water. As the safety apparatus never works, the bath threatens to overflow, and we have now wasted so much time that we decide to omit the bath and proceed to dress.

The modern laundry having shrunk most of our underclothing, we select, amid some profanity, a garment to cover us, and after some more difficulty decide to drive downtown, purchasing the necessary repairs to our wardrobe en route, and getting breakfast at some place near the office.

We approach the telephone with a determined air and ring for a taxi. The line is busy! We try again and are given the wrong number.

We arrive at the office and find that the elevator is working again. The first letter that we open contains a check that we had given up expecting, and the last state of our cigar is better than the first. We begin to think that perhaps, after all, the world has improved in the last hundred years.

SHATTERS MYTH
ABOUT COMPASS

Carnegie Institution Expedition Finds It Doesn't Point North Always.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—The Carnegie Institution of Washington has completed what might be termed an X-ray of the earth's atmosphere, and has forwarded from here all data in regard to the experiment, made through the use of the non-magnetic ship Carnegie, which arrived here recently.

The X-ray was in the form of observations of compass and other magnetic variations on all the earth's oceans, these variations being traced in the atmosphere by two specially designed instruments called a deflector and magnetometer. These tracings later will be shown on a chart, which might be likened to the X-ray plate. This chart will be made available to every navy and merchant marine on earth as a guide to navigation, as nearly exact as it is humanly possible to make such a guide.

So intensively and penetratingly did the instruments work, that by the utter absence of magnetic attraction by everything else on the vessel, that certain degrees of longitude in the Indian Ocean were found recently to be radically different from the best charts and projections available up to that time. In some instances these differences amounted to several minutes.

Play of Variations. There is a constant play of these variations over the magnetic fields, and the cause of this play of change, although exhaustively theorized on, never has been exactly explained, the Carnegie scientists said. These magnetic changes make the utilization of the non-magnetic ship and its instruments and the preparation of new charts constantly necessary.

For instance, a mariner using a magnetic chart prepared by the institution ten years ago could not steer as accurately as if he consulted a chart prepared only a year ago.

The non-magnetic ship made an absolute myth out of the general belief that the compass always points directly north. It added convincing proof to the scientific theory that there are only two logical lines, one of them extremely irregular, where such a thing occurs. Whenever a ship crosses one of these lines the compass will get the direct polar influence. Everywhere else it will point either east or west of north.

Not United States Enterprise. On the present voyage, which began in October, 1919, she touched at French West Africa, Buenos Aires, the Island of St. Helena, Cape Town, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, Papete, the Fanning Islands and San Francisco.

The Carnegie was equipped to use her auxiliary gas engines a number of times to take her out of equatorial calm belts and help her drive through storm-tossed seas where the sails were in danger of blowing away. This engine contains the only magnetic influence on board, but it is so far away from the recording instruments that it has absolutely no effect on them.

The Carnegie carries a complement of 23 persons. Capt. J. P. Ault, of Washington has full charge of both the navigation and the recording of the magnetic data. He is assisted by a second in command, Lieut. H. F. Johnston of the British navy, who resides at Toronto. Andrew Thompson, Toronto; Robert N. Mills, Washington, and H. R. Grummann, Lincoln, Neb., act as observers.

The Carnegie is not a government enterprise, but is solely under the direction of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution.

Genevieve Ward, Noted Tragedienne, Refuses To Yield To Burden of 84 Years.

LONDON, May 19.—This country of "grand old men" is indebted to the United States for its grandest old woman.

The title is given, by universal acclaim, to Genevieve Ward, Countess de Guébriant, famous tragedienne and opera singer, prima donna, believed to be the oldest living actress, and by nationality American.

Celebrates Birthday. Genevieve Ward celebrated her 84th birthday the other day, and King George marked the occasion by conferring on her the Order of a Dame Commander of the British Empire. In doing so his majesty gave expression to the national affection and admiration for one of the most extraordinary women of her time.

Dame Genevieve, as we shall have to call her henceforth, just refuses to be 84 years old. She declares to herself, so she told me: "I have passed the third anniversary of my coming of age, that is all. I will not admit any more. Why should I when I feel as alive and well as I did when I was 21?"

She almost looks it and certainly acts it. Every morning, astonishing as it seems, she does Sandoz exercises, and every day, rain or shine, she goes for a tramp of not less than four or five miles. She bustles about her house in Avenue road, St. John's Wood, and scores any help for her personal needs. Electric bells and Dame Genevieve seldom meet. When she wants her maid, she calls for her, to show that her voice, which once enchanted lovers of music the world over, remains full and carrying.

"Alice!" The calls travels from upper room to kitchen, through shut doors and along passages. And "Alice" hears and hastens lovingly.

Reverses Customary Habit. The countess reverses the customary habit of old age. She will not talk in the strain of, "I remember when," but rather of what she is doing, and what she intends to do in the future. And her memory is extraordinary. She knows every Shakespearean part she has played (and she has played many), "word perfect," and when, next month, she appears on the London stage again as Margaret of Anjou in "Richard III" for two weeks at the "Old Vic," she will not, she declared, have to turn to the book. Old as she is, her services as an actress are constantly in demand. "I don't think I shall ever really say farewell to the stage," she said.

No gathering of American women in London is complete without the presence of Dame Genevieve Ward, who never fails to take part in observance of July 4, Decoration Day, and other American festivals. It is a wonderful experience to hear her declaim such American classics as Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, and a delightful one to hear her give some scrap of transatlantic humor, which she does with inimitable roguishness.

Her Secret of Youth.

What is her secret for perennial youth and joyous spirits? "The first essential," she declared, "is to be careful in picking your friends. I have always worked hard—still do, in fact—it is the finest of all health-tonics, but I never have done what the actresses of today do—play after the theatre, go to parties and dances, and the like. I always went straight home after acting, took a bowl of bread and milk, and then went to bed.

I believe in plenty of open air recreation, riding, swimming, walking, anything to be out beneath the open sky.

"Our modern women never will be long-lived or really joyous-spirited. How can they be? They persistently abuse the body designed by the Almighty by wearing scarcely any clothes and walking in high-heeled shoes. Women today have little modesty and few manners. I tell them so when I meet them."

Genevieve Ward's achievement of making a second great career in a new field of art when capacity for the first one had failed her must be unique, having regard for the circumstances. Born in 1837, she was the daughter of Samuel Ward, a merchant, who was United States consul at Bristol, England, for some years. On her mother's side she is a grand-daughter of that Gideon Lee whose name is included among the fathers of New York.

On Operatic Stage. The countess then began her operatic career under the name of Signora Guébriant. She made her debut in Milan in 1854 and achieved an instant success. Later she appeared in Paris, where her voice aroused enthusiasm, and in 1861 she came to London, where her success was also marked.

When the season over she went to the United States, singing in New York and Philadelphia and afterwards in Havana. Her visit to Cuba proved fatal to her voice, which was disastrously affected by the climate. Nothing could restore it and the losses of her parents, owing to the civil war, compelled her to become a teacher of singing.

SHATTERS MYTH
ABOUT COMPASS

Carnegie Institution Expedition Finds It Doesn't Point North Always.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—The Carnegie Institution of Washington has completed what might be termed an X-ray of the earth's atmosphere, and has forwarded from here all data in regard to the experiment, made through the use of the non-magnetic ship Carnegie, which arrived here recently.

The X-ray was in the form of observations of compass and other magnetic variations on all the earth's oceans, these variations being traced in the atmosphere by two specially designed instruments called a deflector and magnetometer. These tracings later will be shown on a chart, which might be likened to the X-ray plate. This chart will be made available to every navy and merchant marine on earth as a guide to navigation, as nearly exact as it is humanly possible to make such a guide.

So intensively and penetratingly did the instruments work, that by the utter absence of magnetic attraction by everything else on the vessel, that certain degrees of longitude in the Indian Ocean were found recently to be radically different from the best charts and projections available up to that time. In some instances these differences amounted to several minutes.

Play of Variations. There is a constant play of these variations over the magnetic fields, and the cause of this play of change, although exhaustively theorized on, never has been exactly explained, the Carnegie scientists said. These magnetic changes make the utilization of the non-magnetic ship and its instruments and the preparation of new charts constantly necessary.

For instance, a mariner using a magnetic chart prepared by the institution ten years ago could not steer as accurately as if he consulted a chart prepared only a year ago.

The non-magnetic ship made an absolute myth out of the general belief that the compass always points directly north. It added convincing proof to the scientific theory that there are only two logical lines, one of them extremely irregular, where such a thing occurs. Whenever a ship crosses one of these lines the compass will get the direct polar influence. Everywhere else it will point either east or west of north.

Not United States Enterprise. On the present voyage, which began in October, 1919, she touched at French West Africa, Buenos Aires, the Island of St. Helena, Cape Town, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, Papete, the Fanning Islands and San Francisco.

The Carnegie was equipped to use her auxiliary gas engines a number of times to take her out of equatorial calm belts and help her drive through storm-tossed seas where the sails were in danger of blowing away. This engine contains the only magnetic influence on board, but it is so far away from the recording instruments that it has absolutely no effect on them.

The Carnegie carries a complement of 23 persons. Capt. J. P. Ault, of Washington has full charge of both the navigation and the recording of the magnetic data. He is assisted by a second in command, Lieut. H. F. Johnston of the British navy, who resides at Toronto. Andrew Thompson, Toronto; Robert N. Mills, Washington, and H. R. Grummann, Lincoln, Neb., act as observers.

The Carnegie is not a government enterprise, but is solely under the direction of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution.

FLAYS PROJECT TO KILL INSANE

Expert Over 5,600 Says Connecticut Plan Betrays Step Toward Medievalism.

CENTRAL ISLIP, L.I., May 19.—Giving as one of his chief arguments the commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," Dr. G. A. Smith, medical superintendent of the Central Islip State Hospital for the Insane, expressed his opposition to the execution of hopelessly-insane persons. Dr. Smith's statement was prompted by reports from Connecticut that legislators were discussing the legal executions of such patients.

Preceding an explanation of his opposition to the killing of the insane from a medical and scientific point of view, the veteran superintendent flatly denounced the proposition by the terse statement: "We cannot violate the Ten Commandments."

Two Kinds of Insane. Dr. Smith explained that there are two classes of insane considered hopeless. They are seniles and paretics. Seniles are of very advanced age, but harmless. He explained that paretics, though they are considered hopeless, have periods of remissions. He pointed out an instance where a patient of this class so far recovered that he was paroled to hold a position. He was able to remain away from the institution two years. There are now 300 patients on parole, according to Dr. Smith.

"The people whom the legislators in Connecticut would have executed," said Dr. Smith, "are those most contented." He said that recently a patient of the hospital wrote him a check for a billion dollars, confident that he possessed that much money and more. He said there were many who believed themselves to be kings and queens.

Dr. Smith commented at length on the dispatch from Hartford to the effect that in the State Insane Asylum was a person who was chained to a cot.

"That is going back to medieval times," he said, and added that since the construction of the State Hospital here there had been no such restraint on the inmates. He said there was not a padded cell in the institution.

Hopes For Recovery.

Patients inclined to be violent are treated by kindness and application of medicine," explained Dr. Smith. Another argument advanced by the superintendent against execution of the insane is that scientists may at any time make a discovery that will bring about the recovery of hopeless cases.

"Patients are here," he said, "to regain their health. We are hopeful of every case and every patient should be allowed to live."

The Islip hospital is the largest institution of its kind in New York State. It was built under the supervision of Dr. Smith, who has been superintendent for 27 years. He has been in the service 39 years. There is an average of 5,600 patients in the institution at all times.

London, Ontario, Friday, May 20, 1921.

A BURIED VIRTUE.

A trenchant attack on Meighen misrule has been made by Duncan Ross of West Middlesex, in the course of which he very appropriately asks: "Can there be harmony in a cabinet so constituted as the present cabinet is?" In such a heterogeneous combination as the present Government at Ottawa, harmony is the last thing that one would expect. Perhaps Mr. Meighen, acting on the principle that variety is the spice of good government, has concluded that consistency is not to be looked for among his Ministers; but the day when his administration will have to face the music of public opinion cannot much longer be delayed, although there are rumors that the opinion of the country will not be asked until next year. The putting off of the evil day will not save the situation, however, so far as the Meighenites are concerned; it will only render their extinction more complete.

As the member for West Middlesex so aptly says, Mr. Meighen has frequently mistaken vituperation for argument and declamation for logic, and in the course of one of these outbursts he accuses his opponents of inconsistency. The celebrated Mr. Pecksniff, in delivering one of his precious homilies on morality, could not have beaten this. If Mr. Meighen only take the trouble to pause for a moment and examine the record of some of the members of his cabinet, he will find that many moons ago they buried the virtue over whose demise he now pretends to mourn, and his sanctimonious attitude on this matter will deceive no one, not even his own followers.

G. M. Gordon, West Peterboro, has also made a telling contribution to the budget debate by calling attention to the effect that the sales tax would have in increasing the cost of living. "We are back to the days of the corn laws in England," is how Mr. Gordon sums up the taxation of small packages of milled products such as are most frequently used in the homes of the laboring men of the country. Is it any wonder that there is unrest in the country when a government blindly pursues a policy such as this?

ANNUAL AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

For the fourth successive year since 1918, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Provincial Departments of Agriculture will make next June their annual enumeration throughout Canada of the areas sown to field crops and of farm live stock. This enumeration will be effected, as before, by cardboard schedules distributed to individual farmers. When filled up and returned, the cards will be transmitted to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa for compilation into totals by adding machinery, except in Ontario and British Columbia, where the compilation will be undertaken by the provincial departments.

The collection of these statistics represents a national agricultural stock-taking, which is as important in the interests of farmers as are the conditions of other industries to those whose livelihood depends upon them. The trustworthiness and value of the statistics depend upon the co-operation of farmers in filling up and returning the simple schedule issued to them, because the greater the number of returns, the surer will be the estimates based thereon. It is the aim of the Dominion and provincial statistical authorities to secure ultimately an annual return from every individual farmer in the Dominion.

In filling up the forms, farmers are not only advancing their own individual interests, but also those of the greatest national industry in Canada. From a national and provincial standpoint, food merchants, transport companies, bankers, and all business men are keenly interested in obtaining the earliest possible information as to the quantity and value of the products of the soil. Agricultural operations depend largely upon credit, and credit cannot be given without security. The principal security of bankers in financing agricultural clients is the produce of the soil, early and accurate information as to which is essential.

Some farmers fail to return the schedules from a mistaken fear that their taxes will in consequence be increased. The fact is, however, that the collection of these statistics has no direct connection with taxation at all. The schedules are received and dealt with under the seal of absolute secrecy, and only the estimates of totals based upon the replies received are published. If the agricultural statistics, as published, may be considered as affording any guide to statesmen in proposing fiscal legislation, the interests of farmers are just as likely to suffer as not through statistical inaccuracy. They are as liable to be overtaxed as under-taxed if the country's agricultural production be not accurately estimated. No honest farmer desires to escape his fair share of liability for the national upkeep, and it is in his true interests that the annual statistics of agriculture should be as accurate and trustworthy as it is possible to make them.

ON COMMON GROUND.

"The invasion of Silesia by German troops would not be tolerated by France," says M. Briand. This attitude on the part of Britain's ally must not be construed as being unfriendly to Britain. Both M. Briand and Mr. Lloyd George are taking their stand by the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, and where there is such unanimity there should be little discord. Unfortunately it is the interpretation placed on the terms of any treaty which usually forms the bone of contention in international politics, and M. Briand says there is nothing in the treaty which stipulates that all the rich mining districts in Silesia must go to the Germans, while the Poles will get what is left.

It is a matter open to serious question whether a declaration such as this will help to remedy the present embroglio. As Mr. Lloyd George points out, the Poles must not be permitted to "smash crockery" in a manner calculated to disturb the peace of Europe. The preservation of peace is at present the principal aim of the allied nations, and the adjustment of affairs in Upper Silesia will doubtless be amicably settled. In this matter the French and British prime ministers are on common ground, and this, after all, is the best indication that a satisfactory solution of the difficulty will soon be reached.

NEW BUYING WILL END DEPRESSION.

"New buying will soon end the current business depression," declares Paul Clay, economist, in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.), discussing the depression in the United States. Says this authority, in a review of the present situation: "We are piling up our supply of goods ready for consumption. The former are accumulating while the latter are vanishing."

"Raw material prices are still going down at this writing, because the manufacturers do not dare to buy crude materials in large quantities; wholesale and retail dealers are ordering sparingly and slowly—paying still more slowly. Dealers are timid because the public has reduced its buying a few per cent, and money is tied up in some high-priced goods that do not sell readily. Public buying is no longer regardless of price, as it was a year ago."

"Before long the dealers' stocks, of staple goods at least, will be as low as to require additional buying; manufacturers, when they get the orders, will both purchase raw materials and reemploy labor; and both wage earners and sellers of raw materials will themselves begin buying more freely."

"There is nothing more contagious than buying, and when once it begins it will spread from industry to industry, and from section to section, until everybody is buying."

"We are bound to have a buying movement and to have it pretty soon."

"Surplus stocks of crude materials are irrelevant. The point is that the dearth of finished goods ready for consumption is becoming more and more pronounced. This is not contradicting the law of supply and demand, for one should remember that this law in its actual application to business is more complicated than the income tax."

"The buying movement, when it comes, will not start from the homes, because the homes never stopped buying. It will start in the stores and spread to the manufacturing companies and everywhere else. Poverty can't stop it, because poverty, if there is any, is in the homes. It is stores and manufacturing plants that will do the buying, and they can now get funds—if they need them—from the banks."

WELLS'S NEXT?

Not long ago it was suggested in these columns that some kind of school Bible might be drawn up by a committee representing all sorts of religious opinion. A correspondent wrote that the old Bible was good enough. But the point was that some canon of spiritual writings acceptable to all would be an advantage in these days.

There are more than one "old Bible," the "authorized," Douay, the "Revised," etc. And none of these goes nowadays without challenge. There is so much challenge in the air that the "old Bible" has apparently lost some of its quondam power over the minds of the young. This may be regrettable, but instead of merely moaning over it, educational leaders might just as well face facts and try to steer through them.

H. G. Wells, it seems, is putting up a plea for a new Bible. It may be a good guess that he contemplates making it or editing it himself! He suggests, for one thing, that for a passage in Leviticus dealing with leprosy there might reasonably be substituted a chapter on venereal disease. If public health was not thought beneath the dignity of the old Scripture, it may be accorded a place in the new. One is reminded of Wells's book on the west front during the war. He remarked that spurs were everywhere, an anachronism in a war without cavalry. When they dropped the spurs and took up with Wells's idea of tanks, the British won the war. The chapter on leprosy is as anachronistic in our religion as the spurs on the west front, and it is a symbol or supreme sample of much more of the same kind. There is some mumbo jumbo to be cut out.

Perhaps the spirit of humor might be judiciously admitted with some advantage. Primitive worship was of course solemn. It was thought no laughing matter to be "in the hands of thy Maker." He was not a Father with whom you could feel easy and play. The fear of the Lord was the beginning of wisdom. But this is not a sentiment that abounds, though it may occur as a vestige or echo, in the more modern New Testament. In many respects, in fact, the New Testament is rather ultra-modern, not yet quite caught up with even by steam and electricity, a "most unsettling book" as Robert Louis Stevenson called it.

Mr. Wells, like the kaiser in wartime, has a way of giving out hints of what he is going to do next. He talked of the value of history, the need of world history, in "The Undying Fire," and next came forth his own textbook of the subject. Now that he throws out suggestions for biblical reconstruction, we may imagine him forging the new sword of spiritual life in his prolific laboratory. A new bible would not presume to supersede the old, but have nevertheless its own use for the age.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"I am a rebel!" shrieks Armand Lavergne. All right, Armand. Nobody cares.

Is the short circuit which has overtaken the posties' bonus a forecast of the fate of the Federal Government?

The cut made by Jack Frost in the fruit crop must not be confused with those "cheaper cuts" we are hearing about.

Farmers' wives say that butter is not worth making at present prices, but the hens have not yet adopted a resolution on the low price of eggs.

The Russian Soviet Government has barred a party of Canadian Russians from Russia, because they did not have passports "issued by an agent of the Soviet Government." This is simply another move of the wily Lenin in his ceaseless efforts to have his administration recognized by other nations. He has failed to secure this privilege from Great Britain. Now he tries to secure it from Canada.

Poetry and Jest

THE CALL O' THE ROAD.
[Jean Knox.]

I ken a road, a bonnie road,
An' the like o' it's noo few—
Where the fairies dance to the Pipes
O' Pan.

An' sport in the mornin' dew;
Where the violet raises her modest head
In the lush-green grasses, as by I tread,
Ah! 'Twas built for me an' you.

I ken a path, a winding path,
Through the forest green and gay
Where "Jack-in-the-Pulpit" all in a row

May preach for you like a day;
There are emerald mosses, and lichens
fine,
Feathery ferns an' columbine;

Ah! It's grand in the month o' May.

I ken a path, a bonnie path,
Through a wavin' field o' grain,
Turning from green to mellow gold,
Washed sweet by the summer's rain;

With scarcely at all a weed in sight,
It fills the soul with a keen delight,
A and a grateful heart's refrain.

I ken a road, a bonnie road,
Awa' o' the ocean wide,
That stretches along by the heathery
hills

An' the lea where gowans hide;
Where the laverocks soar, and sweetly
sing,
An' the gay-hued foxgloves and blue-

bells ring
A message, "Come over wi' the tide."

I ken a path, a narrow path,
An' it leads to the Hills o' Home,
Sometimes it is smooth, an' sometimes rough,

Yet we'll reach there just the same;
For the beacon light shines bright and clear
As we journey on frae year to year—
Ah! to hear the "Welcome Home."

MARITAL RECIPROCITY.

Professor's Wife—I suppose you have forgotten that this is the anniversary of your wedding day?

Absent-Minded Husband (abstracting himself from the comic sections)—Eh! What? Dear me! Is it really? And when is yours, my dear?

SWEET SAPPHIRE BIRD.
[Rev. Laurence Tyler, Watertown, N. Y.]

(These lines were breathed in, as it were, from the lips of an American charm, equal to that of Thoreau, which fills the books of Burroughs. The author values the last kindly wish received from him, and offers this bit to the green woodland memory of John Burroughs, as a small elegiac of spring.)

Pause, in thy flight, sweet sapphire bird!
Drop me one darting blue feather:
Armor of blue, thy body dost gird,
Forged for Cereulean weather.

Artless as arrow, through azure sky,
Thou deep-tinted symbol of hope;
Sing to me, bird, just once ere I die!
Already the sun seems to stop.

Fan with thy lyre, my strong desire,
Yon indigo peak to attain,
Peak, like a spire, faint flaming with fire,
Proud piercing slate cloud through the rain.

There was an Oak in the forest of men,
Though it's felled by the Woodman's
blue blade,
Babbling bird in this golden glen

Drank deep from a brook 'neath its shade.

Bubbling brook of cold, cobalt blue,
Flowing free from a mystical pond,
Waters of Walden, surging anew,
Bound the bird to the tree by a bond.

Tender trilling of turquoise throat,
Told his love, to forget-me-blue,
From old oak bough, flutes one limpid note—
He "Accepted the Universe," too.

Blue-burgoned by honor of Yale,
Lies dead Burroughs, the stalwart of men,
"The strong sons of the sword shall fail,
Sore smitten by stroke of his pen."

THE SAVAGE MOTOR.

Redd—See that automobile standing across the street?

Greene—Yes, I see it.

Redd—Notice how it sort of jumps?

Greene—Sure, it's restless. It probably sees some people crossing the street, and it wants to get to 'em.

THE DAWN.
[Henry W. Longfellow.]

A wind came up out of the sea,
And said: "O mists, make room for me."

It hailed the ships and cried, "Still on,
Ye mariners, the night is gone."

And hurried landward far away,
Crying, "Awake, it is the day."

It said unto the forest, "Shout,
Hang all your leafy banners out."

It touched the wood-bird's folded wing,
And said, "O bird, awake and sing."

And o'er the farms, "O chanticler,
Your clarion blow; the day is near."

It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down, and hail the coming morn."

It shouted through the beffy tower,
"Awake, O bell, proclaim the hour."

It crossed the churchyard with a sigh,
And said, "Not yet, in quiet lie."

VISITORS.

Caller—Visitors, don't you think, always provide pleasure?

Hostess (brightening)—Yes—if not when they come, at least when they go.

LET ME BE REMEMBERED.
[J. C. Miller in Contemporary Verse.]

Let me be remembered, as a child's unfettered laughter.

Heard, beside a cottage when the robin wove its nest;

Or as words of lovers, on a night in summer.

When the scarlet moon goes to rest.

Let me be remembered, as an apple-blossom blowing.

Brimmed with earth's wild fragrance for a dreamer's thirsty brain;

Or as strong-thewed oaks that toss their towering arms at sunset.

While a thrush spills music with a rainbow after rain.

As a soft word spoken, let me be remembered!

On a blue-roofed morning when the hills are girt with gold;

As a mother's kiss, when her loyal arms grow weaker.

Let me be remembered as her babes that have grown old.

As a bell at twilight, tolling in a valley.

Listened to by old men there with beated breath;

Let me be remembered as a lad that oft made merry—

PRESBYTERIANS AND CHURCH UNION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
The Presbyterian Witness, the official weekly organ of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, in its issue of May 13 makes an editorial reference to "the situation regarding union," which is so incomplete as to be misleading. Any adequate statement of the position that confronts the assembly at its next meeting should include at least the following facts.

The assembly (St. John) of 1904, at the request of the Methodist Church, appointed a committee on union.

The assembly (Kingston) of 1915, adopting the report of the union committee, gave forth to the church, as a condition of union, that it "must carry the consent of the entire membership."

The assembly (Ottawa) of 1917 asked a vote of the people. This vote gave 113,000 for union, and more than 50,000 against union, in a total membership of practically 300,000.

The assembly (Edmonton) of 1912, "in view of the extent of the minority," halted the movement, but expressed the hope of "practically unanimous action within a reasonable time."

The assembly (Kingston) of 1915, after a pause of three years, asked the people for a second vote. This vote gave approximately 113,000 for union, and 73,000 against union, in a total membership of 338,000. In the three years' membership has increased by about 40,000, the votes against union had increased 23,000, the votes for union only 600!

The assembly (Winnipeg) of 1916, ignoring the increased opposition of the people, and disregarding the repeated assurances by the General Assembly as to necessary unanimity, resolved to proceed to union.

The assembly (Montreal) of 1917, on account of the opposition, unanimously resolved: "That the assembly express its sincere sympathy with the desire conveyed in many of the overtures to avoid disunion among the membership of our churches."

That inasmuch as the resolution of last assembly sets forth that further action will not be taken until the second assembly after the close of the war, to secure peace in the meantime, the assembly urges the controversy on the matter of organic union be dropped by all parties; that no attempt be made at the present time to set forth in detail the action appropriate to a future period, but that the church patiently await the new light which it may receive by divine guidance through the growing experience of the people and the lessons of the war."

The assembly (Hamilton) of 1919, resolving upon a forward movement, set before the church two financial objectives:

(1) The doubling of the church's budget for maintenance in the next five years; and

(2) A special peace thank offering as an equipment and extension fund.

Comment on this narrative is unnecessary. Yours sincerely,

DANIEL J. FRASER.

MAY 24 OPENS BASEBALL
SEASON AT BLENNHEIM

BLENNHEIM, May 19.—Baseball in Kent County League begins on May 24. The first game is to be played here when the Dresden team will try odds with the home team.

Blennheim boys are getting into shape for the fray. They are not over-stocked with players, and some new ones have to be gotten into line who have not had just as much experience as is best to play in league games, but in the able hands of Manager John McKay there is not much doubt but when play day comes all will be in shape. John has done baseball service some years ago in an eastern league, and Blennheim fans expect to see a considerable improvement in the home team under his direction. John has been living here several years, and has taken a great interest in the home team, but has not previously been persuaded to guide the baseball ship of state. Roy Gray, captain, has his job well in hand, and will see that there is nothing lacking in his line.

There is to be other attractions on the 24th, among others a kite flying contest and foot races. Full arrangements have not been completed.

Next Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. at a meeting of the arena committee in the Chamber of Commerce rooms the results of the preliminary canvass of the social clubs of the city will be made known.

There is nothing official to go by yet, but reports have it that the amount raised by the clubs will warrant the project being gone ahead with.

Chairman Ernie Dennis could give no information yesterday, beyond the fact that many of those who went around with subscription blanks started out lukewarm at first and came back piping hot with enthusiasm after a few days of canvassing.

The secretaries are requested to have their lists in shape, so that a definite amount may be totalled up, and thus give the big campaign a good, clean start.

'U' of Alabama a Good Place
From Which to Pick RecruitsSewell and Riggs Stephenson Were Among First Ten in the American To Get Over 20 Blows in First Month.

BY ERNEST J. LANIGAN.

More evidence that the University of Alabama is a good institution from which to recruit players is furnished by a peep at the American League batting trial balance dated April 30, for during the first month of the campaign two of the eight Johnsonites who then struck twenty or more blows came from the institution that has so aided the Cleveland Indians in their time of need. Joe Sewell, who has finished his course at the Southern college, got 24 hits during April, and Riggs Stephenson, who hasn't, got 23. Tied with the shortstop of the Tribe for the hitting honors in April is Harry Heilmann of the Tigers, who has always had an ambition to go to West Point, but never has gotten there.

Stephenson stood alone in making 23 hits during the month of showers. Sam Rice of the Nationals ranking behind him with 22. Nobody made 21 hits, but Tris Speaker of Cleveland, Ty Cobb of Detroit, Lawton Witt of Philadelphia, and Joe Judge of Washington, each got 20. Babe Ruth had to be content with 19. Nine of these barmen picked up his Hammering Honor, at the close of the month, held one honor—that of making more long hits than any of his rivals. Babe singled nine times in April and spread 10 long hits on the greens of the various ball parks in which he played. Four of these were doubles, one was a triple, and five were for the full distance.

Battling Ruth for the extra-base hit laurels last month were two Clevelanders—Manager Tris Speaker and Private Joe Sewell—and one Washingtonian—Edgar Samuel Rice. Each of these men peeled off nine long hits. Rice got six doubles and three homers. Speaker and Sewell six doubles, two triples and one homer. Bob Veatch of the Tigers came through with eight walkups for additional distance, of which six were doubles and two were triples.

Two American Leaguers releasing seven long blows were George Sisler of St. Louis and Bob Meusel of New York (three doubles). Sisler of the Browns has started yet. When he does, there will be three famous Georges instead of two to keep track of.

SARNIA, May 19.—Misfortune hit Winters in large doses in the tenth inning of this afternoon's battle at Watkins Park. Port Huron's three attempted sacrifices on the part of the Brants blossoming into hits when they took bad bounces, aided by two errors on the part of Kelly and one healthy hit resulting in five runs chasing across the pan before the side was retired. In the Hurons' half of the session O. Kelly, with two on bases, poked out the longest hit of the season over the center field fence for a home-run, the third of the season in this park. Winters, while he pitched a staid game than Harman, took over the reins when Bullard, who started, filled the sacks when the first four men up hit safely in the fourth. By some snappy work, the Hurons evened up the count, and went along the sticky till they struck the disastrous stump in the tenth. Brantford thus carries off one game of the series. The score:

BRITAIN SEEKS AIR RULERSHIP

Has 32 Squadrons Now and Program Calls For Giant Establishment Soon.

London, May 19.—To enrich and cultivate the national aptitude for flying as in the past she strove to breed seamanship, is the purpose of a complex program launched by Great Britain. Nearly two years have been spent, with the result that 32 squadrons are in being, and the carefully worked out program for a fighting air service is reported in advance of its schedule.

The complete plan contemplates an establishment, known as the Royal Air Force, of 2,000 officers, 25,000 men, with a certain number of civil assistants. Schools and training stations which taken together, comprise a great technical university for the nation, have been opened, designed to found and perpetuate an educational system for imparting practical skill and technical knowledge to the youth of every rank and class in Britain.

80 Millions for Year.
This year's budget for the work is $80,000,000, with a further sum of $50,000,000 for the development of civilian flying.

The complexity of the program was unfolded to the British House of Commons by Winston Spencer Churchill, that before the war a very elaborate ministry of war to the colonial office. His facts were drawn largely from the efforts of Sir Hugh Trenchard, chief of air staff.

The essential points on which the program is based are as follows: An air force will become a substitute to a very great extent both for soldiers and ships, relieving many garrisons. To fulfill this purpose a very elaborate preparation and training is required. Defence is the first consideration, because the task of fostering civilian aviation in the British Isles will be attended with much difficulty.

64 Trades Involved.
The program recognizes in the beginning the complexity of the desired organization with the statement that there are 64 trades, 30 of them highly skilled, involved in the production and in the repair of an aeroplane. Almost every known science and art practiced among men is involved in aeronautics. Then the navy and the army each can specify a large number of separate and particular functions, each requiring a special type of machine, each requiring a specially trained pilot. But the pilot, with all his skill in flying, would be of slight use unless he could fulfill, in addition at least one of the highly specialized functions of aerial war—gunnery, bombing, torpedology, photography, wireless telegraphy, spotting for artillery, observing and similar duties.

Quoting Mr. Churchill.
The picture of the curriculum is spread over the country, and of its thoroughness, was impressively stated by Mr. Churchill, in the following words:

"Now I will tell the House about some of these establishments, because it is necessary that they should realize the complexity of the air service, compared with the army, or even with the navy itself."

"At Halton we are going to train 3,000 boys to be skilled mechanics, with an eventual output of 1,000 a year, and here at Manston adult recruits are now undergoing an intensive course of technical training."

"At Cranwell we are training cadets to be officers, and simultaneously a large number of the boy mechanics who are eventually to be accommodated at Halton."

"At Upavon we are teaching men to be instructors in flying, and officers are also given a course of practical engineering."

"At Netheravon and five other training schools, one of which will be in Egypt, we are training officers to be—" come highly skilled pilots, not instructors, but pilots.

"At Andover a school will be opened to teach air pilotage and night flying. 'Eastchurch will be a station where armament, aerial gunnery, and bombing are taught."

"At Gosport they will learn torpedo dropping from aircraft, and experiments are being conducted to improve the methods of observation, for naval guns, and the wireless control of surface crafts that is to say, of self-propelled vessels which move without any man on them through the sea and are directed in their movement by an aeroplane in the air with wireless."

"At Farnborough there is an electrical and wireless school. I need scarcely say that each of the schools which I have mentioned is the head of an extremely elaborate, complicated, and mentally dominating study and art, which has its relation to the general purpose we have in hand."

"At Larkhill kite-balloon training is undertaken."

"Other Big Stations."

"At Uxbridge is the air force depot, and there we have a physical training school."

"At Salisbury and Farnborough artillery and infantry co-operation are taught to work with the aeroplanes of these two other forces."

"At Calshot, air navigation over the sea, long range flights by the stars or by other methods, and seaplane flying."

"At Felixstowe and Leuchars, in Scotland, are stations where the co-operation of the navy is carried on."

"Then there are the great experimental stations at Martlesham, Grain and Biggin Hill."

"Then there is the royal aircraft establishment at Farnborough an institution most vital for the general development of flying."

MADAGASCAR SEEN AS 'RADIUM MINT'

PARIS, May 19.—Following this Paris municipal council's intention of buying two grams of radium, Monsieur Lacroix, secretary of the French Academy of Sciences, says that the island of Madagascar, "little known to treasure seekers, if properly exploited, would yield annually a quantity of radium sufficient for the needs of France."

Lacroix discovered rich minerals in Madagascar years ago, and it is in these minerals, which he has named "betafites" on account of the proximity of the town of Betafo, that he first found radium.

On returning to Paris nobody would believe Lacroix's report on his discovery, and it was not until 1912 that the French government decided to extract minerals from the island.

In that year twenty-two pounds of minerals were extracted, and in 1917 the amount of mineral extracted totaled more than seven tons.

The quantity of radium found in these minerals is irregular, and taking the unity of a milligram per ton the radium extracted realized 200 francs per unit.

There are now in France factories which refine these minerals and each gram of the precious salt is today worth about 1,000 francs.

Interpretation service is to be started to interpret treasure seekers in the mineral wealth of France's island colony.

PICTURE FIGHTER IS MILD MANNERED

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—Down on the San Francisco waterfront, and aboard an old-time whaler cruising outside the Gate, Hobart Bosworth has been busy making the scenes of the first of the six photoplays he is to make as the Hobart Bosworth production.

Emery Johnson, a San Francisco writer, is collaborating with Bosworth in this first picture. The star has succeeded in gathering about him many of the company and technical staff who worked with him in former pictures, and the new enterprise is starting with an enthusiasm that promises great things.

On the very first day of "shooting," when scenes were made aboard the whaler lying alongside a wharf, 27 scenes were completed—a most unusual record for the first day of a new organization.

"I used to wonder why sea pictures were so popular," said Bosworth. "Then it occurred to me that to thousands of people who lived inland the sea stood for romance and adventure. Even those who live along the coast seldom know the life of the sea as I have portrayed it. Especially since steam has crowded sails off the seas is there a tinge of romance about the life of an old-time deep-water sailor."

"I have tried to portray the sailor as I knew him in my own sailor days. All that I learned in those days I have tried to put on the screen, so that the public may be given a truthful impression of sea life."

Bosworth is a pioneer in the making of "sea stuff." He began more than a year ago with "The Sea Wolf," the first picture production. Those were the days when famous authors were inclined to be very "up-stage" as regards the motion pictures. Jack London was really the first noted writer, said Bosworth, to have his stories visualized in the photoplay.

"After him, the deluge," said the star, with a twinkle in his eye. "Famous writers discovered that the pictures were not so artistically impossible as they had argued. Perhaps the size of the royalties they drew for their stories had something to do with it, but now it is a rare author who refuses to write for the screen, for we need all the good stories we can get."

There is a curious sharp separation between Bosworth's stage career and his work in pictures. Pictures know him as a two-fisted fighting man; on the stage he played entirely different roles. "When I started making pictures," said Bosworth, "explaining this divergence, 'everything was action.' Pictures were two reels long, with a fight every few hundred feet. Either you battled like the rest of them, or you didn't make pictures."

By the time that Bosworth had become known for his work in these strange affairs came the time that forced him to stop work for a long time.

"When I went back, everybody had forgotten all about me," he said, "and remembered me only as a fighter," he said; "consequently I couldn't persuade a director to cast me as anything else. If I made a picture without beating up half a dozen villains or spoiling somebody's good looks, the public complained. And, after all, I'm really a perfectly law-abiding and peaceful citizen. I have just finished a picture that I hope will prove it. I wore good clothes, and nobody went to the hospital after a scene with me. I admit it seemed when I got through that if we had been doing nothing at all, but when I saw the picture in the projecting room I was astonished at the results."

WOMAN IS GENIUS OF KEMAL'S HOLD OVER ASIA MINOR

Halidi Edib Hanum' Inspiration of Nationalist Cause
in Turkey.

BORN A MOHAMMEDAN

Leader of Pan-Turanian Ideas
She Would Like To See All Seljuks United.

Reval, May 19.—A powerful feminine mind is back of the Turkish Nationalist movement.

"Halidi Edib Hanum is one of the most remarkable women who has appeared in the Orient for many centuries," said Achmes Reouf, founder of a newspaper. "Halidi Hanum is the inspiration of the Nationalist Government, and how much Mustafa Kemal owes to her energy and enthusiasm it is difficult to exaggerate. When the British found that her patriotism in Constantinople was causing them trouble they sought to arrest her, but she took refuge in the Roberts College, and was hidden there until an opportunity occurred to smuggle her across the Bosphorus to the Asiatic side, where it was easy for her to make her way to Angora."

Poet and Politician.
As a writer of poetry and novels she will go down to history as the Madame de Staël of Turkey, as a politician and patriot she will be reckoned with Rosalie Montmasson, the friend of Crispien, who made the campaign of the Mille, and accompanied him into exile and acted as the messenger between him and Mazzini.

In the Nationalist Government and army her influence is supreme, and there are few questions on which she is not consulted. She is constantly with the army, riding with the troops on long marches, even into the Caucasus Mountains. She wears man's riding clothes and in the field only a veil over her hair, but in the city, in accordance with local prejudice, she wears a light tcharchash. She is not, as people think, a Disme or a Jewish Jewess, but was a Moslem. As soon as the Greeks landed at Smyrna in 1919 she raised the standard of protest in Constantinople. She received from the Sheikh-ul-Islam permission to address the male population of the city, and she addressed a mob of 150,000 outside the Mosque of Sultan Ahmed II., and so inspiring were her words that the mass fell to their knees and swore to fight the invader.

Inspirer of Pan-Islamites.
Halidi Edib Hanum at the time of the armistice with Turkey founded the Wilsonian Society in Constantinople and wished to head a deputation to the United States to insist on the territorial rights of Turkey being recognized. During the war she was the inspirer of Djemal Pasha and David Bey. She also wrote a famous book called "Pan-Turanism," of which the hero was the infamous Talaat Pasha. When the Allies conquered Gaza they found in the trenches thousands of copies of the book, which was freely distributed to the Turkish soldiers.

A fanatical Moslem, Halidi Hanum made the journey to Syria with Djemal Pasha, and organized the orphanage which were the result of the massacre of the Arabs by Djemal. Much will be heard of Halidi Hanum in her training in the American girls' school and as a professor at Roberts College, only a mild adaptation of western methods in the East. Previous to the war she was a strong propagandist for the greater liberty of women in the East. She has somewhat changed her opinions on this since the war, especially owing to the behavior of the Germans during their occupation of Turkey. She confessed herself that this had caused the downfall of Moslem women to the extent of 90 per cent.

As a leader of the Pan-Turanian ideas she would like to see not only the Moslem world linked up together, but also all nationalities which have Seljuk blood in their veins.

STOLE HIS LIQUOR.
BROCKVILLE, May 19.—While occupants of the house were sleeping, burglars last night forced an entrance through a window to the cellar of Frank E. Claves, residing near the waterfront, and stole a quantity of liquor. It is believed to have been taken by boat to the American side of the river.

OTTAWA, May 19.—Canadian Press.—The miscellaneous private bills committee of the House of Commons this morning approved 15 divorce bills, which will now be reported to the House.

HERBERT PUTNAM, UNCLE SAM'S LIBRARIAN.
Herbert Putnam is the superintendent of the Library of Congress, an institution which contains more books than any other in the world, except the British Museum at London, and National Bibliothèque in Paris. Mr. Putnam belongs to the celebrated Putnam family, publishers of books. He tried to be a lawyer and knows the law; but his fondness for books caused him to give up the legal profession, and he now presides over one of the greatest institutions in the United States, and is a better-known man than 90 per cent of the lawyers in the country.

Mr. Putnam takes as much pride in the collection of music in the library of Congress as he does in anything else connected with it. When he became librarian, in 1899, 250,000 pieces of music were catalogued. The collection has since grown to 800,000 pieces, and there is scarcely anything that has ever been written or published in the way of music in any part of the world of which there is not a copy in the library of Congress.

DISTILLERS ARE FIGHTING GOVT.

Call For Show-Down Regarding Their Rights in Quebec.

MONTREAL, May 19.—A struggle for supremacy has been begun between the Quebec Government liquor commission, empowered by act of the Legislature last session to take over the importing, wholesaling and retailing of spirituous and other alcoholic liquors in the province of Quebec, and the big British distillers. The distillers object to selling direct to the commission and insist that all buying must take place through their accredited agents in Quebec City or Montreal.

This the commission has declined to do. The agents have moved all their stocks to St. John so that the commission cannot confiscate them under powers granted by the Legislature. The commission has now placed a notice in all the retail liquor stores here that owing to the shortage of supplies certain brands of whiskey are liable to be unobtainable in the future. The notice promises that other brands just as good will be available. It is believed that the distillers have long prepared for the fight. A writ of injunction restraining the Government commission from dealing in liquor wholesale was applied for three months ago on behalf of their agents. It has not yet been argued.

FATALLY INJURED DURING QUARREL

Luigio De Angelo Shot by His Neighbor At Thorold.

ST. CATHARINES, May 19.—As the result of a quarrel, Luigio De Angelo, who lives on the boundary line between Merritt and Thorold, is in a dying condition today at the Welland Hospital, this city, and Kathleen Pecci, a young girl not connected with the quarrel, is suffering from a bullet wound in the hip.

The police are searching for Lorenzo Petroni, De Angelo's next-door neighbor, with whom he had an altercation this afternoon, when both men had revolvers.

Petroni is wounded in the left hand. De Angelo's injuries consist of a wound at the base of the neck in front and in the head. One lung is also penetrated.

An ante-mortem statement of De Angelo was taken by the police.

CONSTITUTIONALISTS TO HAVE BIG MAJORITY

Rome, May 19.—The Constitutional party will hold a large majority in the new chamber of deputies, members of which were chosen at the elections on Sunday. This element made up of Liberals, Liberal-Democrats, Nationalists, Fascists (Extreme Nationalists), and former soldiers, increased its representation in the chamber by 96, according to the Italian Nationalist.

The figures published by this newspaper show the party strengths in the new and old chambers as follows:

	New	Old
Constitutionalists	285	189
Socialists	120	170
Popularists (Catholics)	100	100
Columnists	15	26

There were 13 Republicans in the last chamber. The number of Republicans elected last Sunday has not yet been determined, but the party's representation will probably be reduced.

In the new chamber there will be a few Slav and German deputies.

U. S. CHIEF JUSTICE EXPIRES FOLLOWING CRITICAL OPERATION

Edward D. White Was 76 Years of Age at Time of Death.

WAS VETERAN JURIST

Simple Services Are Planned for Funeral Saturday.

Washington, May 19.—Edward Douglas White, chief justice of the United States supreme court, died early this morning at a hospital here, where he submitted to an operation last Friday. He was 76 years of age.

The chief justice had been unconscious since late Tuesday afternoon when acute dilation of the heart occurred. Up to that time the attending physicians had hoped for a rapid recovery after an operation for bladder trouble.

After the unexpected relapse, the physicians had not expected the chief justice to live through that night. The Rev. Father Cullen of Georgetown University administered the last sacrament during the early evening and members of the immediate family were summoned to the bedside.

Death was said to be due directly to complications which developed after the operation. Justice McKenna and the other United States national capital, where during the long years of service on the supreme bench he had grown in the admiration and esteem not only of his official associates but of the entire community. Although all hope for the chief justice's recovery had been abandoned, the news of his death, which occurred at 2 o'clock, came as a shock to friends and assistants.

At the bedside when death came, were the wife of the chief justice, his two nieces, Miss Ann Montgomery and Miss Mary Lee Broussard, and the Rev. Father Cullen of Georgetown University, who had administered the last sacrament during the early evening.

According to tentative funeral arrangements announced today by Frank K. Green, marshal of the supreme court, who has taken charge, interment will take place here in Oak Hill Cemetery following simple services, under the Catholic ritual to be held at St. Matthew's Church at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. The body of the late chief justice was removed to his local residence today from the hospital where he died.

CAMERA'S SIGHT DIFFERS FROM EYES

Why does a photographer have to retouch his negatives before his customer is satisfied with the picture? asks the Popular Science Monthly, and answers as follows: The eye of the camera sees things differently from the human eye, although there are some lenses that so diffuse the image that the harsh details are eliminated. These are the so-called "soft-focus" lenses, and photographs made with them generally need no extensive retouching.

It is the difference in "seeing color" between the lens and the eye that is largely responsible for retouching. The sunny complexion so suggestive of good health, under the relentless eye of the camera may turn into dark blotches, for red photographs dark.

The penetrating blue-violet rays are those chiefly used in photography, and these rays furnish the delicate "modeling" of form. The surface of the skin reflects these rays into the camera, and as irregularities, such as wrinkles, become more noticeable when they are looked at with the hummer of the camera, which is mostly by the red and orange, instead of the blue-violet rays caught by the eye of the camera.

POLICE SEIZE 70 CASES OF LIQUOR

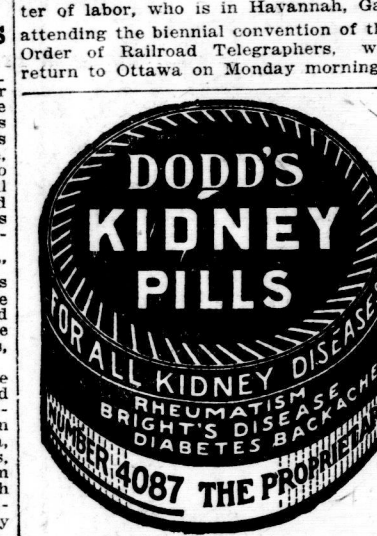

Proprietor of the Petite Cote Hotel Released On $3,000 Bail.

WINDSOR, May 19.—Over 70 cases of liquor were seized by Windsor police officers in a raid on the Wellington Hotel, Petite Cote, Sandwich West, Township, early this morning. Appearing in time police court today, Fredrick Holm, proprietor, pleaded guilty to having liquor illegally, and was remanded for sentence until Monday. He has been allowed liberty on bail of $3,000. The liquor was confiscated, and the police claim it was stolen goods.

The seized liquor is said to have been addressed to W. H. McDonald, Marquette avenue. Police are now searching for McDonald, who, according to the police, was a passenger in a car chased by the officers early this morning. The driver of which, Douglas Simser, 90 London street west, was arrested. McDonald is said to have escaped in an alleyway. Simser was driving without light along the riverfront. The police claim a gun was found on the seat in the car. Simser was fined $100 for reckless driving on court today, and was released on bail of $200 to appear on Monday on a charge of having a gun.

ROBERTSON TO RETURN MONDAY

OTTAWA, May 19.—Canadian Press.—Senator G. D. Robertson, the minister of labor, who is in Havannah, Ga., attending the biennial convention of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, will return to Ottawa on Monday morning.

LLOYD GEORGE'S SALARY $25,000

Premier's Official Residence Dingy and Drab On Cheerless Downing Street.

London, May 19.—There has been a good deal of talk, some of it at an official investigation, about the salary of the prime minister of England. As a matter of fact, that salary seems a little absurd when one considers the importance to the world of the office, as is indicated by the events of the world war. The prime minister gets a salary, which, translated into dollars (normal exchange rates) would amount to about $25,000.

The president of the United States used to draw just twice as much till the salary was increased to $75,000. There cannot be the slightest comparison between the quarters of the prime minister in England (that official residence) and the White House. The former is on Downing street, a narrow, dingy thoroughfare (no, not a thoroughfare, for it opens only at one end for vehicles), which turns off Whitehall at the foot of the office, a dingy, stone pile of awful architecture. The official residence is as dingy as the street.

Dingy House and Street. The dingy house, which is a narrow, dingy thoroughfare, is a narrow, dingy thoroughfare, which turns off Whitehall at the foot of the office, a dingy, stone pile of awful architecture. The official residence is as dingy as the street.

In the whole world there are few lawns more beautiful than that which surrounds the White House in Washington. "No. 10" opens flat upon the street, and even the dingy "garden," which used to be a sort of backyard breathing space, was almost entirely filled up with temporary office structures built during the war. These are beyond belief cheap and utilitarian. The American climate is very dry, and the dingy "garden" is very dry.

They are down a story below the level of the street entrance to the building, but are on the level of the exit at the back, which leads from the space they occupy, and which is used to be the prime minister's garden, into the Horse Guards' Parade, an utterly bare and cheerless square of beaten earth.

Furnishings Accord. The living quarters of Lloyd George occupy the upper stories of the dingy old house, and are inconvenient, old-fashioned, and would make an American congressman's wife gasp with horror, not to speak of an American "first lady of the land." They are furnished principally by the crown and the furnishings are rather awful, too.

At the investigation of ministers' pay by the select committee of the House of Commons, Mr. Asquith, for so many years the privileged tenant of No. 10, spoke of the old building with scant respect, saying that it "certainly does not add to what one may call the sweets of the spolia of office."

BABES' LIVES SAVED BY DRIED SPINACH

Dehydrated Vegetable Ideal Food For Infants.

Salem, Ore., May 18.—Spinach farmers of the Willamette valley will this year greatly increase the planted acreage, as the result of the announcement by Dr. J. F. McClendon of the University of Minnesota, after six years of research, that powdered spinach is highly beneficial in the feeding of infants and children, as well as adults.

As a result of the announcement of Dr. McClendon, one local dehydration plant is preparing greatly to increase its capacity in the production of powdered spinach, which is not subject to botulism, the recently discovered poison which has proved fatal in so many cases. Agents of the dehydration company are advising farmers to increase their spinach acreage. Growers in other states are expected to follow the lead of the Oregon farmers.

Seeking to solve the mysteries of the high mortality rate among infants and children, Dr. McClendon's experiments with dehydrated spinach showed such remarkable results that he has announced the outcome of his experiments. In the Jean Martin Brown home, in St. Paul, the final tests showed that powdered spinach, in combination with orange juice, was an ideal food, the spinach containing iron and other elements necessary to the building of bone and tissue.

Reporting the result of his final test, Dr. McClendon writes: "Infants in the home were largely orphans and underfed. By feeding them two teaspoonfuls of powdered spinach and one-tenth of an ounce of orange juice, we increased their growth rate to about three or four times what it had been previously. The prize baby gained twenty-three ounces in one week. Even a baby marked with rickets gained in weight."

TENDERS TOO HIGH WORK IS HELD OVER

Figures Exceeded City Engineer's Estimates by About $4,000.

ST. THOMAS, May 19.—Tenders for the construction of an addition to the old traction company's barn for the use of the Metal Sign Company were opened today by the special committee of the council, but the figures given by the several contractors were away above the estimate submitted by the city engineer. The total cost as the contractors would have it was about $15,000. The amount decided upon by the engineer did not exceed $11,000. Some of the aldermen suggested that tenders be asked from the trades in London, or that the work on the annex be done by day labor. As the rental be charged to the company was based on the original estimate, the committee delayed accepting any tender until a conference be held with the executive of the company.

LIQUOR THEFTS IN WINDSOR SERIOUS

Wet Goods Stolen Recently From Homes Worth Many Thousands.

WINDSOR, May 19.—Thousands of dollars worth of liquor has been stolen from homes in the border cities recently by liquor bandits. Apparently an organized band is at work. Several houses in a block are usually attacked with varying success. Residences on Oak and Cameron avenues have so far been the favorite objects of loot. Last night bandits again visited the home of J. M. McKenzie on Oak avenue. Liquor, valued at $500, was removed from this house on Sunday night. An attempt was made to break into the cellar by the rear door, but when the police arrived after a phone call, the robbers had disappeared. When the officers were investigating this attempted housebreaking they were summoned to the residence of Thomas J. Jones, 38 Cameron avenue, where bandits also attempted to break through a cellar door. Occupants of the house frightened them away.

The epidemic of robberies was discussed at a meeting of the police committee today. The matter will likely come before a meeting of the city council next Monday night.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH IS JURY'S VERDICT

Chauffeur Who Was Held On Bail Will Be Released.

[Special to The Advertiser.] WINDSOR, May 19.—A verdict of accidental death was returned by a jury sitting at Tecumseh tonight investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Frederick Rohm and Mrs. Myrtle Stevens, both of Detroit. Rohm and Mrs. Stevens were killed when an auto in which they were passengers was overturned on Riverside Drive near Tecumseh. Both were pinned beneath the machine and drowned in a ditch before they could be released. Four other passengers escaped. The driver of the auto, Louis R. Koch, was held on $5,000 bail, but it is understood he will be released being held blameless by the jury.

DRUGGIST ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Mistake in Filling Prescription Resulted in Woman's Death.

TORONTO, May 19.—Frank Caswell, druggist, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Ethel Rosnick, through the filling of a prescription for barium sulphate with barium sulphate, was placed on trial at the assizes before Justice Logle and a jury here today. The trial was unfinished and will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Besides Dr. M. Pollock, who issued the prescription to the deceased, Dr. G. Silverthorn, Dr. C. H. Adams, and hospital doctors testified. Dr. Pollock stated that he had written the prescription "Barium Sulphate, chemically pure, use as directed." Explicit instructions for its use had been given at the time, he said.

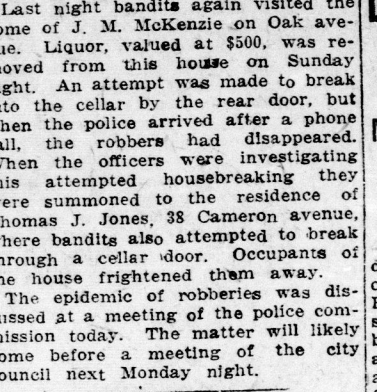

Dr. Silverthorn, who had performed the post-mortem examination, said he did not know what had caused the death, other than that there had been poisoning.

Dr. Adams said that barium sulphate was not a drug which druggists would generally be called upon to dispense.

WAITRESS BECOMES HOTEL CHATELAINE

Owner of Celebrated Fashionable Newport Hotel Weds Servant.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 19.—Coming from Sweden six months ago, with no knowledge of English, and seeking a job as a servant in this country, today Miss Martha Josefine Ekberg, the old maid, finds herself the chateleine of the Muenchinger King Hotel, the most ultra-fashionable and conservative establishment in this country, and the home at intervals of the most prominent people, socially, in the United States. She was married at noon today to Burton J. Baldwin, owner and manager of the celebrated establishment. Miss Ekberg, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Carl Ekberg of Gustafberg, Sweden, obtained a place as waitress in the Muenchinger King soon after her arrival in this country while staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. E. Ekberg. The late Mrs. Muenchinger, who died a few months ago, left all her property, both real estate and personal, to her manager, Mr. Baldwin, a former professor in Columbia University, and a versatile scholar.

Since that time the will has been contested by her niece, Miss Irene Huelbe of Boston, her only blood relative in this country. The trial is assigned before the superior court here in June.

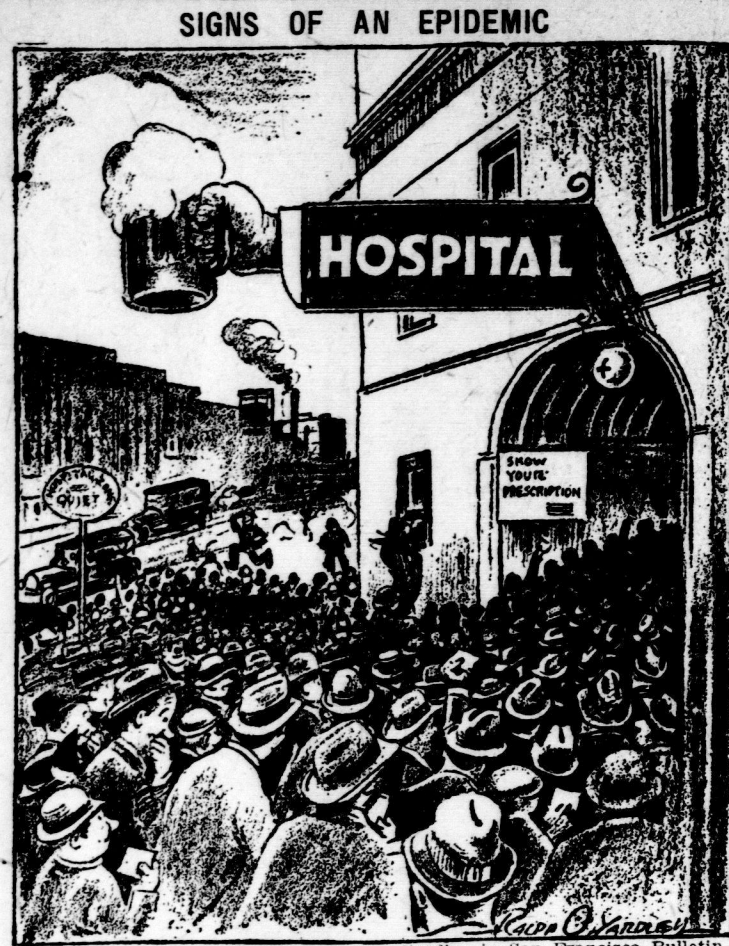

The ceremony today was performed by the Rev. Harold S. Capron at the United Congregational Church. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin left first this afternoon, and upon their return will reside at their hotel. In taking out their license she gave her age at 19 and as she 44. There was a notation on the application stating that he had no parent or guardian in the State of Rhode Island.

TURCO-ITALIAN SECRET TREATY

Denials of Secrecy Ineffective
Since Text Has Not Yet Been Published.

PARIS, May 19.—American news papers which have reached Paris publish from Italian sources denials of the Paris dispatch printed in the New York Times of April 13, to the effect that while Greece was fighting the Turkish Nationalists to secure the rights given her in the Treaty of Sevres, her ally, Italy, was bound by the secret treaty with Athens to use her influence to oust the Greeks from Thrace and Smyrna, and stating that this promise was made by Italy as part of a treaty by which Italy would gain economic privileges in Anatolia. The dispatch gave a summary of the terms of the agreement.

The most important details were published by the Presses Italia-Americana of April 14, and by the Christian Science Monitor of April 16. Neither of these articles disputes the fact that a treaty was negotiated between Count Sforza, Italian foreign minister, and Bekir Samy, representing Mustafa Kemal, in London in March. Neither denies the statement that one of the provisions of the agreement was that the Italian Government would do its utmost to get the allied powers to agree to the Turkish Nationalists' claim for revision of the Sevres Treaty, and especially their claim for Thrace and Smyrna. The gist of these details is that the correspondent erred in saying that the treaty was secret. It is stated that everyone knew that the Italians and Kemalists were making a treaty and that the contents of the treaty were published. The knowledge of the existence of a treaty cannot prevent its being a secret treaty until its text is publicly known. Another Italian secret treaty, the Treaty of London, dealing with the Adriatic, was known to exist and was discussed for several years before its contents were published. Until it was published the Treaty of London was a secret treaty.

DENVER BOY, 10, CHARGE WOMEN WITH ASSAULT

Plays All Popular Works by Master Composers Before
Seventh Birthday.

DENVER, May 19.—Another youngster entitled to a place on Denver's roll of prodigies is 10-year-old Rinaldo Subry. Rinaldo's specialty is the piano. He holds the distinction of having played every popular work of all of the acknowledged master composers when he was 7 years old. He has studied under many of the greater pianists this country has produced, and two years ago his parents took him to Italy to work with renowned Italian and French tutors. While in Italy, he conducted an orchestra of 30 players, at one of the largest houses at Turin. He also conducted a chorus of more than 200 voices during the same year.

Gets Big Reception.
Turin is Rinaldo's native city, and his sojourn there was marked by enthusiastic receptions tendered him by the townspeople and musicians of the town, at which visitors from many neighboring cities came to attend and hear the boy pianist play. He was heralded throughout the country as one of Turin's most widely known residents. He made his debut in Denver last year at an entertainment of the Italian-American Society. His playing met with such instant success and favor upon this occasion that he has been in continual demand at both children's and adults' musicales ever since.

Rinaldo, in spite of his marvelous musical ability, is not a frail hot-house plant. He is every inch a lively, virile, and thoroughly noisy boy, with the hearty indifference to all school work common to every 10-year-old youngster of the city.

Would Be Policeman.
According to Rinaldo, he would rather be a good pitcher on the school baseball team than a famous pianist. His avowed greatest ambition at the present time is to be a policeman. "If my dad didn't make me practice so much, I would have been the pitcher on our class team," he said. "The kid that beat me out hasn't got half the stuff I have, but he is always out on the lot, and every time I get on the box, it is time for another music lesson downtown."

His pride in his athletic prowess is superior only to the regard in which he holds his dog. "This is the best dog I ever had," he said, pointing to an awkward, big-footed Airedale, who shambled around, vigorously manipulating an inadequate stub tail at his receiving pleasant recognition on the part of his master. "He is the best dog in the neighborhood, too," he said. "I am going to make a hunting dog out of him. He already knows enough to run after birds and chickens, but he is still afraid of a gun shot."

His school teachers say he is extremely proficient in his studies, and he speaks both Italian and English with equal fluency. Neither of his parents is a musician.

NEW WARS FOR OLD.

[Alfred Noyes]
Peace? When have we prayed for peace? Over us burns a star Bright, beautiful, red for strife! Yours are only the drum and the fife And the golden braid and the surface of life! Ours is the white-hot war!

Peace? When have we prayed for peace? Ours are the weapons of men! Time changes the face of the world! Therefore your ancient flags are unfurled, And ours are the unseen legions hurled Up to the heights again!

Peace? When have we prayed for peace? Is there no wrong to right? Wrong crying to God on high Here where the weak and the helpless die, And the homeless hordes of the city go by, The ranks are rallied tonight!

Peace? When have we prayed for peace? Are we so dazed with words? Earth, heaven shall pass away Ere for your passionless peace we pray! Are ye deaf to the trumpets that call us today, Blind to the blazing swords?

MORNING CAR SERVICE FOR CHURCH GOERS

Suggestion of Minister Is Adopted by Street Railway Manager.

ST. THOMAS, May 19.—Consenting to the suggestion of a local minister that all residents be served with Sunday street car accommodation, Manager Johns will introduce a morning schedule for churchgoers, on Sabbath day next. Completion was made that the service was given over solely to park visitors in the afternoon, and a large part of the population was neglected who would patronize the cars in order to reach the several churches at the morning service.

To accommodate those who would travel to church on the street railway, the cars will run, starting at 10 o'clock to be followed by a quarter of an hour run up to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Three women from the Township of Malahide, who had been knocked out by a concussion of hard cider, were fined $15 each and costs today, and a local resident drank three-quarters of a bottle of Florida water after tea last evening and offered no resistance.

Visit Chatham R. A. M.
Several members of Palestine Chapter, R. A. M., went to Chatham to visit the Royal Arch Masons there. Ethel Freeman, the second wife of Norman Lambert, who was sent down yesterday for bigamy, denies she was a married woman before she met Norman. Mrs. Freeman confessed to have made a prior venture once only, but the bonds of matrimony were afterwards legally and permanently annulled.

FRENCH BOY RUNS WILD IN WOODS

Mayor of Bayac Offers Reward For Capture of Elusive
Unclothed Urchin.

Paris, May 19.—The mayor of Bayac, a little town near Bordeaux, has offered a reward to anyone who can catch a small boy who has been running wild in the woods in that district for the last month.

The boy is 13 years old and when last seen was nearly without clothes, his feet bare and his hair hanging down to his shoulders. Whoever catches him, it is evident, will deserve the reward, for already he has defeated the efforts of the population of Bayac, who, with the police of other communes, have organized a pursuit.

Casse is the urchin's name. Two months ago he and his elder brother were held by the police and accused of having rifled a cafe and stolen 500 francs. Because there was no proof the boys were released. Some weeks later the younger boy, it is charged, was discovered by a woman in the act of helping himself to anything he fancied in her house. When she gave the alarm he escaped and, seizing a revolver, took refuge in the woods. There he has lived a wild life, obtaining food from farm yards at night and occasionally taking blankets and other civilized comforts.

Once when chased by the police he dived into a river, swam across it and taunted his pursuers as he disappeared among the trees on the other side. Another time the police drew a cord across the woods in which he was cornered him on top of a 30-foot cliff along a ravine. The boy saw that he must take a risk, calmly dropped the 30 feet and got away.

After the whole village and the police of the district turned out in automobiles, on horseback or on bicycles, and scoured and beat the wood until it was thought that a rabbit could not have escaped. These efforts were all in vain. Casse is in real danger of capture now with all the district trying to earn the mayor's reward.

First Annual Meeting of the Shareholders Held in Toronto.

TORONTO, May 19.—Shareholders of the defunct Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation came from all parts of the province this afternoon for the first annual meeting since the formation of the Standard Reliance Assets, Ltd., the object of which was to realize as much as possible for the hundreds of investors.

In a statement to the shareholders, the directors of Standard Reliance Assets, Ltd., state that the progress made in the past year has been satisfactory. "When all conditions are considered," the statement of Mr. G. T. Clarkson, who was formerly permanent liquidator and is now president of the new company, shows that since the investigation before the official referee, a sum in excess of $150,000 has been recovered for the benefit of creditors of the Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation. The cost of reorganization amounted to $24,429, and the cost of investigation was $14,437. These expenses will be paid out of recoveries which are assured, the president's statement adds, and goes on "Further recoveries will also be made and the investigation will be continued in respect of certain matters yet to be dealt with when it shall appear in the interest of the creditors of the old company that such shall be done."

Following is the board of directors, re-elected:
T. W. Ralph, North Augusta; Edward Merner, New Hamburg; P. C. Meyer, Elmira; Thomas Hall, Ayr; A. S. Maynard, Chatham; J. A. Walker, Chatham, and G. T. Clarkson, Toronto.

WOODSTOCK TO ENTER O. B. A.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA URGES AMENDMENT

Would Have League of Nations Arrange "Regional Understandings."

GENEVA, May 19.—Czecho-Slovakia's proposed amendment to Article 21 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, under which the league would be permitted to call regional conferences with a view better to maintain world peace, will come up for consideration, when the full amendments committee of the league reconvenes in May.

The sub-committee considering proposed amendments has just received from the Czecho-Slovakian representative an explanation of that Government's plan.

In the view of Czecho-Slovakia, the present Article 21 the league has been able to move toward the preservation of peace only by drawing up universal conventions on general principles and for restricted objects, or to intervene only after disputes have actually arisen.

The Czecho-Slovakians regard it as essential that the league be given power to promote regional agreements permitting groups of states to bring about better international understandings.

The effect of this, in the belief of some league experts, would be to increase the importance of the smaller states, particularly the offshoots from the old Austro-Hungarian Empire, in settling quarrels in Eastern Europe.

Under the universal system in force as the article now stands, the Czecho-Slovakian Government says, the more complex questions that arise between nations are necessarily avoided, and the most acute difficulties—local in character—affecting only a certain number of countries, are not in shape to be handled by the league.

"Regional understandings," the official announcement regarding the Czecho-Slovakian proposal says, "for the formation of groups aiming at fostering a closer and more real co-operation between countries facing common problems, are declared to be essential to the preservation of peace, but should be arrived at only with the assured support of the league, and in accordance with its principles."

RAW ONIONS GREAT
AID TO DIGESTION

By experimenting on dogs, Dr. E. Wilbrand of Munich has proved that raw onions have a most favorable effect upon digestion. Reporting on his experiments to the Muenchener Medizinische Wochenschrift, he says the onions markedly retard digestion and increase the acidity of the gastric juice.

From these facts he deduces that if, in a normally functioning stomach the food is subjected for a long period to a markedly acid gastric juice it enters the intestines in a more thoroughly digested condition, and we may assume that no portion of the chyme entering the intestine has escaped contact with the gastric juice. Consequently bacteria that have entered the stomach with the food are more likely to be killed.

Aside from the direct effect of the raw onion juice on the bacterial flora, its action as a prophylactic against intestinal diseases of bacterial origin is thus established, since it is well known that gastric acid constitutes the main obstacle to the development of certain bacteria that enter the body by way of the gastro-intestinal tract.

He adds that onions must likewise exert a curative effect on existing intestinal affections as owing to their action food leaves the stomach in a well digested condition, so that no extra work falls on the intestine, since undigested food enters the intestines and becomes decomposed, thus aggravating the already catarrhal condition.

Raw onions are therefore to be recommended for persons with hypo-acidity of the gastric secretion, but are contra-indicated in hyper-acidity.

RECRUITING IN QUEEN ANNE'S DAY.

Serve your Queen or find work! That, in brief, was the rough and ready sentence passed on able-bodied unemployed men in the days of Queen Anne—a period of almost incessant warfare. When the recruiting officer—described at the time as a compound of "canting, lying, impudence, bullying, swearing, drinking and a halberd"—failed to beat up recruits fast enough for Marlborough's wars, an act was passed to enable justices to compel all able-bodied men "as have not any lawful means for their own maintenance" to join the army. Parish officers were encouraged to hunt up food for powder and received $5 for every man sentenced to be a soldier, but the result was disappointing. Thousands deserted, and England relied mainly on volunteers. These were offered the bait of a twenty-dollar bounty and a discharge after three years—"if they deserved it."—London Mirror.

knowledge of what the budget contained, I say it is somewhat significant that this company should purchase largely and then hold in bond."

Mr. Crerar: "Do I understand the honorable gentleman to state that the company with which I was connected profited by my knowledge of the budget? If that is his statement I wish to give it an unequivocal denial. He is making a statement that is absolutely contrary to fact."

Mr. Sutherland: "I am not the authority for the statement. I quoted as my authority the general manager of a company of which the honorable gentleman is president."

Mr. Crerar: "Does the honorable gentleman find anywhere in the evidence of Mr. Rice a statement that I used my knowledge of the budget to the advantage of the company with which I was connected?"

Mr. Sutherland: "I pointed out that the budget was brought down on June 6th that the honorable gentleman resigned on June 5, and that his claim was that he could not remain in the Government on account of a difference on the tariff."

Mr. Crerar: "That is not the point."

Mr. Sutherland: "And I quoted the evidence of the general manager of the company of which he was president, in which the general manager claimed that they did not suffer loss by reason of the fact that they anticipated a reduction of the tariff and had their machinery in bond."

Mr. Crerar did not pursue the subject further and the incident closed.

Mr. Sutherland: "I have no evidence to prove that, even while Mr. Crerar was a member of the Government, he was untrue to the Government."

Mr. Crerar interrupted that Mr. Sutherland must go further or retract his statement.

Mr. Sutherland said his authority was an article appearing in the Country Gentleman which stated that the grain growers of the west had assisted in the formation of the United Farmers of Ontario, and that Mr. Crerar had also gone his part to help.

The Liberal platform of 1919 scored the Government because of lack of facilities for handling ocean-borne freight, yet today the Opposition were condemning the Government, because it had entered the shipbuilding program.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, said that when Parliament assembled, members were given to understand that at least one subject of the first importance would be dealt with: a revision of the customs tariff.

This announcement of the Government's intention was a surprise, because it was a declaration of mature policy conveyed to the country in the speech from the throne.

Not Practicable. In his budget speech of June 5, 1919, Sir Thomas White stated that a general revision of the tariff was long overdue, but that owing to the war condition of international trade and exchange conditions, it would not be practicable to make a general revision of the tariff at that time.

Sir Thomas White stated that a thorough inquiry should be conducted in the fall of that year, and this pronouncement served the purpose of avoiding a tariff revision during the session of 1919. The inquiry which was to precede it, in the fall of 1919 Sir Henry Drayton, the present minister of finance, further postponed the revision and the proposed inquiry which was to precede it.

The excuse on this occasion was that international and economic conditions were worse than they were six months previously, or at any time during the war. Later the Government announced its intention of asking interested parties present their views in the form of written statements which could be used as a basis for the general public inquiry to be held throughout the country. Those written statements were to do duty for the session of 1920, and in his budget speech of that year the minister of finance stated that public spirit for tariff investigation would be held after prorogation.

After the tariff commission had made its "somewhat pretentious" journey from the ocean to the ocean, the speech from the throne announced that the tariff commission had made its "somewhat pretentious" journey from the ocean to the ocean.

thrown at the opening of the present session again announced that the Government was "convinced" of the "necessity" of tariff revision, and this was the attitude of the Government right up to the day the finance minister made his statement. Sir Henry Drayton had then given his reason why there were no general revisions of the tariff the conditions within the United States regarding tariff revision and the existing situation regarding international exchange. How could any of these reasons be taken seriously?

Sinister Influences. "There were other and more subtle influences at work," Mr. King declared. "That they can be shown to be more sinister influences is, I fear, only too true."

"But one of the alternatives is possible: Either the Government has never had any real intention of revising the tariff, or, having had such intention, it has been frustrated in the carrying out of its intention the moment advance action became necessary. If the latter is the case, the Government is not a free agent in the matter of either inaction or action, even more than in truth do not constitute the real Government of Canada today. In word and act, it is but the visible expression of influences and forces which dictate the policies, aims, and in large measure are controlling the destiny of Canada today. Were I to adopt the language of the prime minister, I would speak of him as 'the servant' of the 'sinister influences and forces.'"

Thwarting Trade. "The failure of the Government at this time of high living costs and much needed increase in production to give any relief from burdensome taxation to consumers or producers is not due to any circumstance so much as a matter of chance as the present emergency legislation necessary. It matters little due to a deliberate and determined effort to thwart trade and to restrict competition in every direction, with the mother country and sister dominions, even more than with the United States, in order that a few wealthy men and their immediate friends and associates may reach still larger fortunes through obtaining not a much-needed home market as they would have us believe, but a monopoly of the Canadian market, in addition to the markets abroad secured for them through Government action at enormous public expense."

In support of this assertion, Mr. King analyzed the policy of the National Liberal and Conservative party, as announced on July 1, 1920, and compared it with the statement of that policy made by Sir Henry Drayton on May 18 of the same year.

Was Stricken Out. "What," continued the Opposition leader, "is the policy of the Government, as set forth in the speech of the minister of finance in May, 1920, which it was found necessary to delete from the platform of the party as framed some six weeks later? It has passed unobserved; the House and the country will be astounded, I think, when I read it. Here it is: 'To specially promote and increase trade with the mother country, the sister dominions and colonies and crown dependencies.'"

"These words were struck out by gentlemen who call themselves empire builders, by the party that claims to have arrogated to its ranks all the patriots; that parades and boasts of its loyalty; that talks of the empire united, of the family of nations comprising the British Commonwealth. And as if this were not enough—unkindest cut of all—to choose for the occasion of this stab at the heart of our inter-imperial trade, July 1, the birthday of our Dominion, the anniversary of the day on which the mother country gave us our status as a self-governing dominion within the beginning of our nationhood within the British Empire. Was there ever like ingratitude or baser treachery?"

Why Had It Done? "Why had the policy of promoting increased trade within the empire been erased from the Government platform? The prime minister had given the reason. 'It is due to dictation,' said Mr. King. 'Of the few wealthy men whose powerful interests are alone responsible for his being where he is today, the interests that demand what he calls 'protection,' but who, for their own selfish ends and personal aggrandizement, wish to control and monopolize the trade of this Dominion.'"

During the war it was inevitable that there should be the closest kind of association between certain of the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests and between the several interests and the Government and its members. With the termination of the war the association between the financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests, prepared, in return for a continuation of favor and of special privilege, to use their wealth and influence to keep the administration in power and thereby constituting in a very true sense the real though invisible government of this country.

Self Interest. "Canada," built up a political autocracy on the one hand and a plutocracy on the other, united by a bond of self-interest. The former was the visible symbol of authority, and the latter the directing and governing power which dictated the policy of the Government. A few wealthy men thus decided Canada's policy and members opposite were willing to stay in power by health and of power had not been of this class. Certain members of the financial and business interests continued to look to the Government for special favors and special privileges.

Members of the Government, proceeded Mr. King, "who read their obligation to the country in terms of disinterested public service and who were retired from the ministry. Others of their colleagues, for reasons best known to themselves, continued in office. There were among the financial and business interests those who were in close touch with the situation, and, further, I may say, that a certain other cabinet minister also wrote to this same person. It is scarcely necessary to add that the party which made the overtures is a strong and influential Conservative."

"I never sought the position, and my reply, dated January 11, 1921, can be produced to prove this when the proper time arrives."

In the House tonight a charge by Mr. Stevens created an uproar. He accused Mr. Crerar of having changed the Hansard report of his budget speech. Mr. Crerar, so declared Mr. Stevens, had made the direct statement that he prime minister or some members of his Government had approached P. J. Veniot, minister of public works in New Brunswick, with a view to Mr. Veniot entering the federal cabinet. But in Hansard the statement appeared as a question.

Mr. Crerar protested against the charge. The House was a hubbub. Mr. Crerar claimed that he had made no change in substance, that, owing to the disturbance in the House at the time, the Hansard reporter did not get what he said.

"If there was no change," Mr. Crerar insisted, "and my reputation and position in this House should tell my honorable friend that I do not do that sort of thing."

Near midnight there was a sequel. When Hon. Charles Murphy read a St. John dispatch, quoting Mr. Veniot as saying that overtures had been made to him by a person presenting a letter signed by Premier Meighen.

Meighen Has Not One Thought For the Rights of the People

The Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, in his terrific arraignment of the Meighen autocracy, said yesterday during his budget speech:

"Premier Meighen in his speech has not made a single expression or revealed any human feeling or sympathy with the needs of the people of Canada. From beginning to end his policy was one long plea for protection, not protection for the consumer, which is what is needed, but more and more protection for the wealthy few and intervenor financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests with which they are associated."

"The budget this year again takes no account of profiteering. Why, instead of the removal of any duties that bear on the masses, have the business profits and luxury taxes been abolished? The prime minister says we are all for protection. Let him have it so, but let me tell him that the protection for which we stand is the protection of the consumer against the exactions of combines, monopolies and super-organizations of associated business, not the protection of these specially favored organizations against the interest of the people."

"Thus," Mr. King added, "we have come to have in Canada, on the one hand a prime minister and a ministry to whom usurpation of office and the exercise of autocratic methods in government belong as a sort of natural right and on the other, a small circle, a sort of little oligarchy of intervenor financial, manufacturing, transportation and distributing interests, prepared, in return for a continuation of favor and of special privilege, to use their wealth and influence to keep the administration in power and thereby constituting in a very true sense the real though invisible government of this country."

SMALLEST DETAIL OF INDIAN DURBAR FIXED BY CUSTOM

Ceremonial Varied According to Rank of Visiting Native Potentate.

SOLID SILVER ARMCHAIR

Surly Rajah's Monosyllables Are Extended Into Flowery Orations by Loquacious Interpreter.

London, May 12.—"The particular occasion I have in mind was long after Lord Lansdowne's time, when a certain rajah, notoriously ill-disposed towards the British Raj, had been given the strongest of hints that unless he mended his ways he might find another ruler placed on the throne of his state," relates Lord Frederic Hamilton in "The Days Before Yesterday."

"He was also recommended to come to Calcutta and to pay his respects to the viceroy there, when, of course, he would be received with the number of guns to which he was entitled. The Indian princes attach the utmost importance to the number of guns they are given as a salute, a number which varies from twenty-one in the case of the Nizam of Hyderabad, who alone ranks as a sovereign, to nine for the smaller princes. Should the British Government wish to mark its strong displeasure with any native ruler it sometimes does so by reducing the number of guns of his salute, and correspondingly to have the number increased is a high honor."

Everything in the way of ceremonial in India is done strictly by rule. The precise number of steps the viceroy would descend in greeting the rajah is all laid down in a little book. The Nizam of Hyderabad is met by the viceroy with all his staff at the state entrance of Government House, and he is accompanied through all the rooms, both on his arrival and on his departure; but, as I said before, the Nizam ranks as a sovereign. In the case of lesser lights the viceroy advances anything from three to twenty steps. These points are arranged very trivial to Europeans, but to Orientals they assume great importance, and, after all, India is a part of Asia."

For a durbar, many the "Toshia" Khans or treasury; the viceroy's silver-gilt throne; an armchair of solid silver for the visiting rajah; great silver-gilt naces bearing a crown and "V. R. I." and, above all, the beautiful durbar carpets of woven gold wire. The making of these carpets is, I believe, a hereditary trade in a Benares family; they are woven of red gold wire, heavily embroidered in gold afterwards, and are immensely expensive. The visiting rajah announces beforehand the number of the suite he is bringing with him, and the viceroy has a precisely similar number, so two or three rows of cane arm-chairs are placed opposite each other, at right angles to the throne. Behind the chairs twelve resplendent red-and-gold-coated servants with blue-and-silver turbans and holts the gilt maces aloft, while behind the throne eight more gorgeously appareled natives hold two long-handled fans made of peacock feathers, all these being the eastern emblems of sovereignty."

Nine-Gun Three-Step Man. "We will suppose this particular rajah to be a 'nine-gun' and a 'three-step' man. Bang go the cannon from Fort William nine times, and the viceroy, in full uniform, with decorations, duly advances three steps on the gold carpet to greet his visitor. The viceroy seats himself on his silver-gilt throne and the rajah, with his suite, follows him to the top of three steps, the visiting rajah in his silver chair being one step lower. The two suites seat themselves facing each other in dead silence; we Europeans assuming an absolutely Oriental impassivity of countenance. The rajah, though he smokes

English perfectly, had insisted on bringing his own interpreter with him. A long pause in conformity with Oriental etiquette follows, then the viceroy puts the first invariable question: 'I trust that your highness is in the enjoyment of good health,' which is duly repeated in Urdu by the official white interpreter. The sulky rajah grunts something that sounds like 'Bhur Whirr,' which the native interpreter renders, in clipped staccato English as 'His highness declares that by your excellency's favor his health is excellent. As Swan of Avon long pause, and the second invariable question: 'I trust that your highness' army is in its usual efficient state.' The rajah, 'Khurr Vurr.' The native interpreter, 'Without doubt his highness' army has never yet been so efficient. Should trouble arise, or a pretty kettle of fish unfortunately occur, his highness places his entire army at your excellency's disposal, as Swan of Avon says, "Come the three corners of the world in arms, and we shall shock them." A third question, 'I trust that the crops in your highness' dominion are satisfactory.' The rajah, 'Ghur Whirr.' The interpreter, 'Stimulated without doubt by your excellency's auspicious visit to neighboring state, the soil in his highness' dominions has been terminated to bear record as never before. Crops tenfold ordinary capacity are springing from the ground everywhere. One has seen a conjurer produce a half a roomful of paper flowers from a hat, or even from a no less person in it with that interpreter, who from the two sulky monosyllabic grunts evolved a perfect garland of choice Oriental flowers of speech. It is minded me of the process known in gram. When the customary number of formal questions have been put, the viceroy makes a sign to his military secretary, who brings him a gold tray on which stands a little gold flask and a small box; the traditional 'atta' and 'pan.' The viceroy sprinkles a few drops of attar of roses on the rajah's clothing from the gold flask, and hands him a piece of betel-nut wrapped in gold paper, known as 'pan.' This is the courteous eastern fashion of saying, 'Now I bid you good-bye.'"

Irreconcilables Were Stunned At Harding's Action

Had Felt Certain U. S. President Had Ceased Trying To Modify Treaty.

SENATORS PUZZLED

Are Wondering What the Next Move in Foreign Relations Will Be—Amazement Created.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Those senators who are advocates of a policy of isolation for America are wondering what the next move of the Harding Administration will be in carrying out its foreign program. President Harding has already demonstrated that he has a mind of his own with reference to the conduct of international relations, and irrespective of what his personal attitude may have been, who he was a member of the Senate, he is now convinced that the United States cannot remain aloof from world affairs without seriously jeopardizing American economic and political interests.

Irreconcilable Republican senators are said in current comment to have been stunned or shocked by last Friday's official announcement that the president had accepted the invitation to have American representatives participate in the sessions of the supreme council, the council of ambassadors and the reparations commission. Mr. Harding's course created amazement among the best informed Republicans of the Senate who are on the closest personal terms with the president, their old legislative associates and friends.

Some of them make admissions that are tantamount to saying that the president's way of doing things has made them nervous. They believed that the president, after going off in what they regarded as the wrong direction, had come back to what they consider a normal state in international affairs. A week ago irreconcilables made no bones of saying that the president had abandoned any idea of trying to modify the Versailles treaty so as to permit its submission to the Senate for ratification. Their whole conception of the president's international program was shattered by the announcement on Friday that the United States had determined to return to participation in the allied conferences.

The irreconcilables do not hold the president responsible for the change, but blame Secretaries Hughes and Hoover for convincing him that it was necessary.

The president, however, has shown no disposition to evade responsibility for what has been done. All the international measures announced through the state department have been taken in his name and he has let it be known personally that they have his sanction. So President Harding appears to be in hearty accord with Secretaries Hughes and Hoover and the policy of the three of them seems to be working out through a demonstration of administration teamwork.

REGINA, May 12.—Mr. Justice E. L. Elwood, of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, died here this morning, following an illness extending over several months.

Mr. Justice Elwood was elected to the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal in 1918. Previous to that period he was a member of the supreme court of Saskatchewan.

He was born in Goderich, Ont., January 13, 1868, and was called to the Ontario bar in 1890, and later practiced in the State of Washington. Late in 1890 Mr. Elwood came to Regina, where he practiced for several years. In 1912 he came to Regina. Mrs. Elwood died a little over a year ago. He is survived by four sons and a daughter.

MISUSED LEISURE CAUSE OF CRIME

Detroit Judge Would Supervise Young People's Recreation More.

WINDSOR, May 12.—Ninety per cent of present day crime is due to the misuse of leisure time on the part of the younger generation, Judge Ira W. Jayne, Wayne County court, told members of the Border Chamber of Commerce today. In his opinion the situation can only be remedied by proper civic interest in recreation.

"Fathers today are lucky to see their children in daylight, whereas in their previous generation they had them under constant supervision," he said. "They are not required to work. Lax laws prevent them taking permanent positions until they are a certain age, yet in many instances nothing is done to give them something for them to do in their spare time."

"That is the reason of the crime wave today and the disrespect for law and order."

BIBLICAL CITY OF BETH-SHAN TO BE EXCAVATED

Relics of Nine Successive Civilizations Are Expected To Be Unearthed.

ATTACKED BY CRUSADERS

Strategic Point of Value To Ancient Military Leaders Aspiring To World Domination.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—Relics of seven or more cities which successively stood on the same site, and of nine different civilizations, are expected to be uncovered by the excavation of the biblical city Bethshan, in Palestine, which is to be undertaken in June. The work will be done under the direction of Clarence S. Fisher, curator of the Egyptian section of the museum of the University of Pennsylvania. Official permission to undertake this work has been received from the Government of Palestine.

Bethshan is now known as Beisan. It is situated in the valley of Jezreel, just west of the Jordan and not far south of the Sea of Galilee. More than 2,000 years ago, it was a great city. It was believed to have been taken place within eight of this city than, perhaps, on any other spot known to history. The investigators hope to find there the keys to the whole history of that section of the world written either on marble slabs containing the laws, decrees, treaties and other information, or on bronze tablets, or written in clay with cuneiform characters.

Bethshan was a strategic point of value to any of the great military leaders of ancient times who aspired to try his hand at world domination. It was on the route of all the builders of ancient empires.

Beginning 5,000 years ago, it suffered the blows of the armies of Sargon, Abraham, Hammurabi, Sennacherib, Nebuchadnezzar, Thothmes, Saul, David, Alexander, Pompey and Napoleon. Joshua led his troops against Bethshan, but could not take it, because its defenders used iron chariots—foreshadowers of the tanks of the world war.

The Crusaders made Bethshan a point of attack in their vain efforts to conquer Damascus. When the Assyrians came down down a wolf on the fold, Bethshan was one of the places they took, and it has been dominated in turn by the Greeks, Romans and Arabs.

The investigators expect to find there the strata of perhaps more than seven cities, each built upon the ruins of the other, as successive waves of invasion swept over and destroyed it. It is within sight of the Mount of Transfiguration, and scene of battles between David and Saul, and the Witch of Endor, who recalled the shade of the Prophet Samuel to enlighten Saul, had her home near this ancient city, whose secrets now are sought.

HERE'S ANOTHER TREASURE ISLAND

And Pirates and Gunmen and Boats 'Neverything.

Papeete, Tahiti, May 19.—Interest has once more been aroused in the treasure reported to be buried in the island of Pinaki, one of the coral islands to the eastward of Tahiti, and a new association has been formed in Tahiti to search for it.

The story is that, during the confusion of a revolution in Peru, some 60 or more years ago, a church was looted of a rich treasure of gold and precious stones by four men, who took it to the coast, where they buried it, later making their way to Panama.

Having secured a schooner there, they returned to Peru, recovered the treasure and sailed to the eastward intending to make Australia their destination. The fact that they possessed no papers presented an insurmountable obstacle to their gaining entrance to any port without rigid investigation. So they determined to bury the treasure on an uninhabited island in the Paumotu until such time as they could charter in Sydney a schooner for the coast of Australia, they sought an unfrequented part of the coast, scuttled the schooner, and coming ashore in the guise of shipwrecked sailors, endeavored to make their way to Sydney overland. Two only, by name, Kilrain and Brown, arrived in Sydney, the other two having been killed in a fight with bush natives.

Such is the story of the burial of the treasure.

WHO WILL BUILD CAR FOR MOTOR CAMPING?

DETROIT, May 19.—These are the days when Mr. and Mrs. Motorist are scanning over the maps in quest of this summer's tour they will take in the car.

This year is likely to see the fraternity of motor campers multiplying on the roads from Maine to California as never before. Highway fares will have a great deal to do with it, but more than anything else, the natural desire to "see the country" that is inborn in every American will be the moving impulse.

Around this part of Michigan we see these folk passing through in July and August. We haven't found it necessary yet to locate and establish municipal camps for them like they have in the Upper Peninsula, in Florida, Colorado, Iowa, California and several other states, whose fine roads, scenic and historical attractions draw their increasing thousands of tourists each summer, but we will have to do it soon.

Throughout the United States there are dozens, perhaps hundreds of these camps, municipally maintained that afford convenient stopping places for the party who would otherwise park the car and mount the tent for a night's lodging by the roadside.

The number of this species of tourist who is in a class by himself as distinct from those who use the hotels, is increasing faster than those who manufacture the motor cars realize. Here is a special use for the motor car that the factory designers sooner or later must recognize—the man who wants to make the long tour with his family at the minimum expense. His kind is growing up by the thousands every summer. Usually, he is the new car owner who tries out the Sunday picnic a few miles away for a few times. Then gets the fever and off he goes for two weeks or a month, provisioning and sleeping himself and dictating his own itinerary according to his own sweet will. Seventy-five to a hundred miles a day is a mere nothing. The mileage he can make in two weeks is amazing when it is totalled up.

The majority of cars that carry these parties have the suitcases strapped on the running-board with the tent and the camp beds trussed up and fastened on at the most convenient place somewhere about the car. Some of them who figure on making two-day or three-day stops adopt the trailer, but these are in the minority. The average American likes compact traveling equipment. He cuts his kit of everything down to the limit. Therefore a car that will be built specially for his needs, must have a strong appeal for him.

It is true that the most used type of automobile is commonly referred to as a "touring car," but it was designed at a time when the motor camper had not come into existence. He is here now and waiting for the car that will suit his needs. Somebody in some motor car factory is going to give it to him, for he will have it sooner or later even if he has to build it himself. The camps where he can stop are dotted the map with dozens of new stopping places where he can put up for the night in security and as much comfort as he wants to give himself. These camp sites vary in kind and in the accommodations they offer the touring motorist. All of them are free. Some merely furnish running water, comfort stations, and picnic grounds. Others have electric lights as an added convenience, while still others furnish every degree of convenience imaginable for the comfort of the motorist. The average American likes compact traveling equipment. He cuts his kit of everything down to the limit. Therefore a car that will be built specially for his needs, must have a strong appeal for him.

Probably one of the most complete equipments is found at the Free Auto Camp at Ashland, Oregon. It is located in the heart of Lithia Park a municipal park of 100 acres of natural beauty. Three kinds of mineral waters—sulphur, soda, and lithia—are found in springs and caverns near the camp, and there are children's playgrounds, wading pools, tennis courts, and other features for the use of the tourist. Others have electric lights as an added convenience, while still others furnish every degree of convenience imaginable for the comfort of the motorist. The average American likes compact traveling equipment. He cuts his kit of everything down to the limit. Therefore a car that will be built specially for his needs, must have a strong appeal for him.

A big campfire, for sociability, is an added attraction, helping the campers get together for an evening of wholesome fun. The fire is in charge of an attendant, to avoid the danger of fire spreading to the heavily timbered hillsides of the park. Hundreds of electric lights are strung through the trees and give a fairy-like aspect. As many campers have no shelters over them, and the lights would prevent sleep, switches have been installed on trees so that the campers themselves can turn out the lights in their own section of the grounds as they retire.

A large comfort station of the most modern type is provided in a central location, and there are two large sulphur baths and a natatorium available, so that ample means for bathing are afforded. Cement incinerators are placed in handy spots for the disposition of rubbish. A laundry wagon calls every morning, with a one-day service for those who stop over and mail service for the laundry of those hurrying through. A store just outside the grounds provides certain necessities, and milk is delivered by dairymen to the campers direct.

A commercial club secretary spends two or three hours nightly greeting the campers, gathering and disseminating road information, and doing any service he can.

A rule applying to most automobile camp sites is that each camper is given an allotted space. This prevents a great deal of trouble, especially among those campers who would be apt to take more than their share of room. A certain area of ground is marked by four posts, enough for a car and camping outfit. This space is numbered, and there is a corresponding number for locker and gas plate. All Mr. Motorist has to do is drive up to the entrance, get his lot number, and set up his camp. A road is usually kept of the number of persons in each party, and the license number is entered on the register. Very often this has proved a valuable clue for the recovery of stolen cars, and it also keeps a certain check on undesirable motorists. It has been the means of keeping accurate statistics concerning the "gypsy motorists," and especially from whence they come. Every state in the union has been represented at most of the camps, and foreign cars have been noted from time to time.

There is hardly a place in the west, however small, where some sort of established camp site for automobile tourists may not be found. They are always maintained by the municipality in which they are located. Aside from aggregating the campers, they have been found a very profitable investment from a commercial standpoint. St. Louis, Denver, Los Angeles, and many of the large western cities have discovered that the farmer "gypsy motorist" alone represents a huge purchasing power. The farmer has always been a little embarrassed and awed by hotels. With the advent of inexpensive automobiles, and the establishment of camp sites, Mr. Farmer can bring his camping outfit and settle down in comfort for a couple of weeks, or even months, stay; for in most of the camps there is no time limit set. Provided for in this way, he usually takes the opportunity to stop for his supplies. It is more satisfactory than the old mail-order method of buying. It has been found that over 50 per cent of the automobile campers who use the sites are farmers who spend thousands of dollars for farming implements, clothing and essentials.

Baseball-Loving Barber Couldn't Keep to His Task

Eyes Wandered to the Score Board and Hapless Customer Quaked With Fear.

DETROIT, May 19.—There are many disadvantages in being shaved by a barber baseball fan, one citizen, who recently went through a hair-raising experience in a Detroit barber shop, is willing to swear.

He had just taken his seat in the chair when the barber, who was a zero for Detroit on the scoreboard, the tonsorial artist, armed with a razor, let the chair slide back until the customer's head caressed the floor and the ceiling tickled his toes. Assured that his victim was in a comfortable position, the barber rushed out to learn who the batteries were.

Satisfied with the information, he returned. "Whetaway?" he inquired. "Give you nice haircutshavemassage."

After being instructed, the razor wielder began the operation. After missing his victim's nose by a hair, he proceeded to slice off the lobe of the left ear.

"O, I beg your pardon," said the barber fan. "I got excited when the Tigers scored those two runs. Think Detroit will win the pennant this year?"

"I don't know and I don't care," replied the perturbed customer. "Shave me quick. I came in here to be groomed, not dissected."

There was a lull of conversation for several minutes while the tonsorial artist made frequent visits to the scoreboard. He worked industriously with the razor on the victim's forehead, then sprinkled it with alum.

"What'll you be slicing my forehead up for?" the now irate customer howled.

"Oh, I beg your pardon. I was only keeping the score by innings on your head," was the reply.

"Want anything else. Give you nice mud massage."

"Give me my hat quick, before my body is taken to the morgue," the victim yelled, as he leaped from the chair. As the customer dashed out, the barber shouted, "Come again. I always like to have a customer that likes baseball."

He then took a chair, carried it outside, sat down, and watched the scoreboard for the remainder of the game, will visit the wonderful cities of Italy."

ITALY IS EXPECTING A TOURIST INFUX

Auto Touring To Be Brought Back To Peace Time Basis This Year, Says Report.

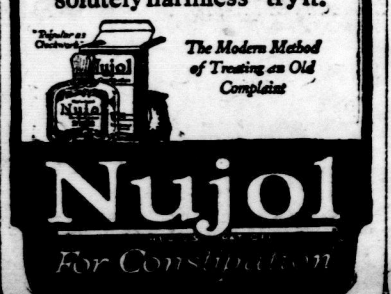

Italy has now fully regained the favorite position she occupied before the war in the estimation of tourists. This is shown by official statistics concerning the number of holiday-makers, both native and foreign, who visited the better known resorts in various parts of Italy last year. During the month of August, for instance, the region of Venice received an average of 40,000 visitors a day. Although this month is not the most agreeable for touring, the number of foreign tourists was high in all the resorts appealing to travelers. Thus, Florence received 2,833 tourists, of which 32 per cent were foreigners, comprising 574 Americans, 107 English, 114 French, 92 Belgians and Scandinavians and 77 South Americans.

There is every indication that during the present year the number of foreign tourists to Italy will be higher than ever, and that Americans will come in particularly big numbers. This is not surprising in view of the magnificent natural beauty of the Italian Alps, the equable climate, and the historic and artistic wealth of the country.

The touring movement is encouraged by the wonderful road system covering not only the plains, but penetrating into the Alps and the Apennines, regions which have not suffered by the destruction of war, and thus opening up some of nature's most cherished treasures. Touring parties will be interested to learn that in general the road surfaces are good, and supplies of petrol can always be found, so that now there is no reason to hesitate on bringing a car into Italy for fear of not being able to make full use of it.

Railroads always being expensive to construct in a mountainous country, Italy has thoroughly developed public motor transport services, and regular passenger-carrying lines operate all over the country, from the snow-clad slopes of Mont Blanc and the Stelvio to the golden-tinted hills above Syracuse and Palermo. Considering the most important lines only, which are maintained by Fiat vehicles, there were last year practically 10,000 miles of these passenger-carrying motor services in regular operation throughout Italy.

Foreign visitors can be assured of a cordial and courteous reception from all those with whom they will have to come in contact in Italy. In this connection the declaration made by Robert Underwood Johnson before he retired from the position of United States ambassador to Rome, are of interest.

MORAL PERMIT AS LIQUOR RULE

Bill in South Dakota Would Legalize "Cup That Cheers, But Not Inebriates."

PIERRE, S.D., May 19.—Personal liberty, which includes a way whereby those who are temperate and good citizens as the term "good citizen" is defined, can manufacture, buy and sell liquors that are termed "stimulating," is the keynote of a bill introduced in the Legislature here by Rep. Fred C. Ohman, at the request of R. O. Richards or Mitchell, S. D. The bill follows the platform on which Richards ran for governor in the primary last year.

The word stimulant is defined in the bill as "any pure vinous malt, brewed, fermented or distilled pure liquors containing the pure spirit of wheat from fruits and seeds—not to be rectified, poisonous or impure, and not used in a drunkard's way for beverage purposes; but in a temperate way for stimulating purposes."

The term "intoxicating liquors" is defined in the bill as "any rectified poisonous, impure liquor, such as moonshine, poisonous home brew and immature wine."

The bill would declare immoral and prohibit the saloon or any form of public place for the sale of intoxicating liquor or stimulants by the glass or individual drink for beverage, medicinal or stimulating purposes. The bill says, however, that "no person, active manager of any firm, business, club, association or corporation within this state shall manufacture, import or aid in importing, for sale, barter or trade, any spirituous, or vinous liquors, except on issuance of a 'municipal moral permit.'"

To obtain this permit, the bill provides for an application in writing to be published by the clerk or auditor in three issues of the daily or weekly newspaper with the largest circulation, giving the date and hour of the meeting of the commissioners to decide on the application. At this time the public must have opportunity to object to or endorse the granting of the application. If the application is granted a bond of $5,000 must be filed for faithful performance and compliance with the act and with the federal statutes.

TERROR UNKNOWN ON LAND FOUND IN SEA FIGHTS

Thousand Deaths in One Shell Blast.

London, May 19.—The modern naval battle is different from everything else in the world in this, that nowhere else do men, banded together in such numbers and wielding such powers, contend with one another so to extreme a peril to themselves. It is more ringed with terror than any other human experience. Each man commits himself with a thousand others to a vulnerable shell, and launches it into an arena sheeted and bolted with flame and concussion. He can do nothing for his own safety, but only for the common purpose.

In addition to the ordinary risk of destruction to the human unit, there is the almost equal risk of destruction to the naval unit, and a single stroke of a single weapon might wipe out a thousand lives. This is warfare at the point to which civilization has so far exceeded in bringing it; and no more hellish than this—that man's floating home and citadel can in a second be turned into a weapon to destroy him by the thousand.

For if his floating tabernacle be dissolved it is not to a hospital or dressing station that he passes, but into the cold sea; hospitals, patients and surgeons in the very act of operating are tumbled into it, too; the light sweeps on in ten minutes it is three miles away, and there are no stretcher-bearers in the sea. He may die by a blow, by asphyxiation, by faying, by boiling, by mutilation, by drowning, or may be instantaneously consumed in a glory of mauve flame, accompanied by the thunder of a detonation which he never hears.

With all these varieties of death in visible and audible demonstration around him, and instantly menacing himself, he has to continue quietly and coolly doing the exact work for which he has been trained—work, perhaps, with delicate and scientific instruments such as other men handle in the calm of a laboratory or observatory. And often he has to continue this work in what he knows is the last minute of his existence, for the light of the world is extinguished in the very act of his career in the navy depended on it.

Seamen as Heroes.

It is the supreme glory of the naval training that thousands and thousands of men are always ready to do this as a matter of course; do it easily, desire to do it. There is no one to whom life is sweeter than to the average sailor, whose mental habit it is always to be looking forward to pleasure; and there is no one who can so utterly put aside the preoccupation of safety and lose himself in his immediate duty.

How else, indeed, would such events

HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

NOT LEEDS DOLLAR FOR GREEK PRINCE

Princess Anastasia Going To Paris for Operation.

WEEPS OVER HER SON

Heartbroken, She Says, as She Opposes His Marriage to Princess.

Athens, May 19.—Princess Anastasia, who before her marriage to Prince Christopher of Greece was Mrs. William R. Leeds of New York, her son, William R. Leeds, and the latter's two daughters, one of whom is engaged to young Leeds, will leave here today for Paris. Princess Anastasia will go to the American Hospital in the French capital for a second operation.

When she recovers entirely the princess intends to go to America, but if Prince Christopher goes to the fighting front in Asia Minor she will return to Greece. Princess Anastasia is endeavoring to postpone indefinitely the marriage of her son and Princess Xenia because of their youth.

Not one dollar did she settle on Prince Christopher, the princess added. They were married under the Swiss law by which each keeps his or her own money and property and one is not responsible for the debts of the other.

Princess Anastasia today appeared extremely weak and much thinner than before her recent illness. She sat in an invalid's chair, being still too weak to stand. The engagement of her son, she declared, had broken her heart, and on learning of it she wept three days and three nights, refusing to see him.

The objections of the princess to the match, she said, were based on the youth and inexperience of the couple, but she finally yielded to her boy's persuasion.

Princess Anastasia denied that her son would adopt the Greek Orthodox religion or receive a title from the king. She said the young couple, probably living in America, Newspaper statements that young Leeds was the richest boy in the world the princess declared to be absurd, stating that his father's will provides that he shall receive only $500,000 when he reaches the age of 25. For the present, she said, he is entirely dependent upon what she allows him. On his marriage the princess intended to arrange for the trustees of the estate to give him a moderate sum.

Princess Anastasia said her will specified that upon her death her son would draw her interest, and she said she would be unable to touch the principal. If her son or his wife should die, she declared, the entire Leeds fortune of $40,000,000 will go to their offspring as a trust fund, which will cease with the third generation. If they have no issue the fortune, she said, would go to the living in hospital in New York.

ARGENTINA NOW HAS OIL BOOM

Good Producers Are Brought In—English Operators After First Leases.

Buenos Aires, May 19.—Experts in oil production say that, as a result of the rich discoveries of oil in the Comodoro Rivadavia field, Argentina may become one of the world's great sources of fuel. The well No. 128, which came in on February 28 with an initial production of about 1,200 barrels an hour, is continuing to flow at approximately the same amount.

The Comodoro oil producing area is located in the territory of Chubut, in the region called Patagonia, and is more than 600 miles southwest of Buenos Aires. It was discovered in 1907 when a deep test was being made in an effort to locate a water supply. The Government, exercising its ownership of mineral rights, set aside 12,500 acres of land in the district and began the work of exploiting the field. Later another 12,500 acres was reserved.

Since that time 128 wells have been sunk and production has gradually increased up to the present. In 1920 the total production was more than 1,000,000 barrels. The oil is heavy with small kerosene and gasoline content and is used principally as fuel oil, being sold to a number of industries in the country. Drilling depths are between 1,500 and 1,800 feet.

Until well No. 128 was brought in, all the wells had shown small production, although several of them were producers and had an initial production that passed the 1,000-barrel mark. Practically every well drilled found oil in paying quantities.

Outside of the Government's reserved areas there is some production by private companies. Several Argentine railroads that plan to burn oil instead of wood or coal recently made a contract with one of three companies and have undertaken an extensive campaign of explorations.

The completion of the big well has served to call attention once more to the other districts where oil production is ranked as favorable for oil production.

England After Leases.

An American oil engineer who is familiar with prospects from the northern border of the country to Tierra del Fuego told the correspondent that he looked for Argentina to develop into one of the producing centers of the world. He regarded especially the area about some of the provinces of Neuquen and Santa Cruz.

Whether these prove to be producing areas or not, it is known that English and American companies, together with other companies representing other nations, are actively at work trying to get a foothold in the country.

"At the present time," said an authority, "English interests are much more largely represented in Argentina than American. For several years they have been quietly scouting and studying the country. I look for Argentina within the next few years to become a large oil producing region. American companies should not hold back because of the impossibility of securing large concessions unless they are content to find Argentina's best oil lands in the hands of the British if the country is proved to be an oil reservoir."

MADE SENSATIONAL DROP.
RANTOUL, Ill., May 19.—"Bing," a foxterrier, made a descent of 1,500 feet in a parachute from an aeroplane at Chautauque Field today. When "Bing" landed he worked his way free from his harness, overcame another dog set to prevent his onward journey and ran to headquarters with a message carried in a pouch suspended from his neck.

PARK CHAIR PRICE JUMPS IN LONDON

Twopence a Day Now Asked For Former Penny Tickets.

London, May 19.—The only pennyworth that remained true through the rising tide of the high cost of everything has at last disappeared, vanishing when price charged for the use of a chair in any London park was advanced twopence a day. Hundreds of thousands of persons in London will be affected by the advance, since so early in the season as last Sunday 1,800 penny chair tickets were sold in Green Park alone, most of them between 1 o'clock and 10 o'clock in the evening. The advance became effective on April 1. It is an increase of 100 per cent.

Chairs in London parks are rented by companies which obtain concessions from the office of works, and the increase in price which they have just ordered will represent in the course of a season a considerable amount of money. The companies, however, have to pay a percentage of their receipts to the office of works, and also to contribute towards the cost of music in the parks. They must pay wages to ticket-takers and for the cartage of chairs to and from the parks. The advance in the charge to twopence a chair has resulted in a few protests being forwarded to the office of works, while some persons who frequent the parks have decided to sit on the grass for nothing rather than pay twopence a chair.

TEXTILE TRADE LOOMS BRIGHT

English Mills Are Planning Big Operations When Coal Strike Ends.

MANCHESTER, May 19.—Lancashire County is optimistic as far as the textile trade is concerned. All the trade experts with whom I talked were convinced that once the miners returned to work there would be a big boom in the cotton trade. This opinion was strongly maintained by Sir Edwin Stockton, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

"I believe a revival of the demand for textiles has already shown itself," said Sir Edwin. "The coal stoppage momentarily dominates the situation, otherwise an upward trend of values is clearly perceptible. I am informed that a majority of the American mills are working full time, in some instances even day and night shifts. This proves that conditions in the United States are much improved."

"Certain markets are showing definite signs of a shortage, demonstrating that the purchasers have held off so long that they cannot delay buying much longer. Buying is infectious. When business in one market picks up, others soon follow, with the result that there is a general scramble for goods."

"I am firmly convinced that when the miners start working, there will be no 'short time' for any Lancashire mill. The world cannot get along without Lancashire goods for any length of time. For the last six months there has not been 50 per cent of the Lancashire machinery running. This has unquestionably resulted in a shortage of cotton goods abroad and Lancashire mills alone can make up this deficiency. Settle the coal strike and we shall get busy."

Other experts are confident that trade will boom not more than two months after there has been a favorable settlement of the coal dispute. Prices are already hardening and inquiries from foreign markets are numerous. It was pointed out that recently a number of orders came from China, India and Egypt waiving this clause, thus indicating that those markets are depleted of goods.

PARIS "ART CRUSTS" ENJOYING A REVIVAL

PARIS, May 19.—The fantastic free commune of Montmartre at last has an artistic victory to its credit by the re-inauguration of an open air display of so-called "art crusts" after a hiatus of more than a century.

Back in the eighteenth century the penniless artists exposed their wares on certain days of each year on the bridges of the Seine, and it was thus that on the Pont Neuf were discovered the famous works of Chardin, now in the Louvre.

This week under the guidance of Montmartre's "spiritual" mayor, the young artists were invited to send their worst canvases to the central square. Thousands were attracted by the novelty and it is reported that purchasers actually found French paintings which certainly lacked the talent of the Chardin type.

The paintings were hung at subway entrances or on boulevard chairs, but the majority simply were placed in long lines face upward on the ground. The most suggestive signs used in connection with the exhibition kept the spectators in good humor even when spring showers played havoc with the water colors.

But the chief sensation of the exhibit was a new caricature of the actress Cecile Sorel, more hideous than anything by "Bib," which so aroused the indignation of that lady. But this artist was careful to surround his caricature with barb wire and iron bars to prevent a repetition of the onslaught by Mme. Sorel which proved the sensation of the humorists' salon this year.

Personal Health Service

(By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D., Noted Physician and Author.)

Autobiography. X.—Something Just as Good.
If castor oil is unfit to inflict on a fellow when he has been to the circus with Uncle Harry and overlaid a square meal of peanuts with a couple of ice cream sodas and a bag of candy, then what shall he have to clear out the overload? Is there any other physic just as good as castor oil for a baby or a boy, or even a child?

Something just as good! That phrase seems to make Dad grieve. He says it is in bad odor, because it is usually employed by merchants for the thing a customer wants. And, furthermore, father has suffered a couple of terrible disappointments in his early life—my two sisters. It seems that father ordered boys, and in both cases Nature sent girls, with a little note explaining that the stock of boys was temporarily exhausted, and she was sending a child which she assured father was just as good as a boy. A child is all very well, but in father's judgment she is no substitute at all for a boy.

Dad doesn't pretend to be inspired, or anything like that. He has no second sight. He believes thoroughly in giving medicines, but he gives medicines to produce a particular effect which he deems desirable, and not because somebody else has blindly given the medicine, and the patient happened to get better afterward. In short, father administers medicines which are still prescribed by many physicians in a purely empirical way—on faith alone or because some old-timer reported that John Jones got over his liver complaint after a course of calomel.

Once in a while a fellow must take some thorough physic to dispose of some such overload of food as I mentioned a moment ago. Instead of inflicting castor oil on him, Dad recommended something rather better, called Aromatic Syrup of Rhubarb. This is given in the same doses and for the same purposes as castor oil, and will tell the world a fellow doesn't mind taking this candy medicine whenever it may be necessary. As I say, Dad isn't the only good doctor in the world, but I'll take his candy medicine rather than the castor oil of any other doctor that ever prescribed for a sick kid.

If any fellow has a mother or a father or grandfather or a doctor who thinks castor oil is just the stuff for whatever ails him, let me suggest that he call the attention of the misguided one to this chapter and see if it that the family medicine chest is provided with a bottle of Aromatic Syrup of Rhubarb for emergencies, and the castor oil is marked: "Not To Be Used Internally."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Dorothy's Bed Hour.
I am 18 years old and very healthy. My father thinks I should go to bed at half-past 8. Don't you think 9 o'clock would be early enough for me now—DOROTHY W. F.

Ans.—Yes, in the good old summer-time.

Floyd's Sweet Tooth.
I am a boy 15 years of age, 63½ inches tall, and weigh 110 pounds. My father tells me I eat too much candy. I never did make me sick. I eat mostly home-made candy. What I want to know, is it injurious to me? I would like for you to answer me through your column.—FLOYD D. W.

Ans.—No, not if you play as hard as the average boy of your age, and take the candy following regular meals. It is injurious if you eat the candy at irregular hours in the day, for that impairs your natural appetite for other essential foods. Good candy in itself is not only wholesome, but healthful, for active growing girls and boys, even though it may not be good for inactive adults.

On faith alone that might be taken to mean that calomel does something to the liver, but in fact calomel has no particular effect on the liver. Likewise on faith alone castor oil is endowed with some mysterious "healing" influence, on the fact it is as irritating as any other familiar physic. Dad therefore believes that castor oil should accompany calomel into the discard.

Once in a while a fellow must take some thorough physic to dispose of some such overload of food as I mentioned a moment ago. Instead of inflicting castor oil on him, Dad recommended something rather better, called Aromatic Syrup of Rhubarb. This is given in the same doses and for the same purposes as castor oil, and will tell the world a fellow doesn't mind taking this candy medicine whenever it may be necessary. As I say, Dad isn't the only good doctor in the world, but I'll take his candy medicine rather than the castor oil of any other doctor that ever prescribed for a sick kid.

If any fellow has a mother or a father or grandfather or a doctor who thinks castor oil is just the stuff for whatever ails him, let me suggest that he call the attention of the misguided one to this chapter and see if it that the family medicine chest is provided with a bottle of Aromatic Syrup of Rhubarb for emergencies, and the castor oil is marked: "Not To Be Used Internally."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Dorothy's Bed Hour.
I am 18 years old and very healthy. My father thinks I should go to bed at half-past 8. Don't you think 9 o'clock would be early enough for me now—DOROTHY W. F.

Ans.—Yes, in the good old summer-time.

Floyd's Sweet Tooth.
I am a boy 15 years of age, 63½ inches tall, and weigh 110 pounds. My father tells me I eat too much candy. I never did make me sick. I eat mostly home-made candy. What I want to know, is it injurious to me? I would like for you to answer me through your column.—FLOYD D. W.

Ans.—No, not if you play as hard as the average boy of your age, and take the candy following regular meals. It is injurious if you eat the candy at irregular hours in the day, for that impairs your natural appetite for other essential foods. Good candy in itself is not only wholesome, but healthful, for active growing girls and boys, even though it may not be good for inactive adults.

HYATT BROTHERS WILL ERECT EAST END SUB-STATION

Lowest Tender For $30,477 Accepted by Public Utilities Commission.

Local contractors were yesterday afternoon awarded the contract for the construction of the east end sub-station by the Public Utilities Commission after consideration had been given to about half a dozen tenders submitted.

The successful tenderers were Hyatt Brothers, their tender for the work being the lowest at $30,477. The highest tender came from an outside firm the price being $45,700. General Manager E. V. Buchanan was authorized to sign the contract.

Attention was called by Commissioner P. Toocok to the large amounts charged for garbage collection in the city tax bills submitted to the P. U. C. for payment for the two large city parks. The taxes claimed by the city for Queen's Park total $1,078.89 inclusive of an item of $451.56 for garbage collection. The Victoria Park tax bill is $2,499.71 with a garbage charge of $91.15 for the total garbage collection charged against the two parks is $743.22, or nearly 21 per cent of the total taxes.

Some discussion arose over the extension of the lighting system on Dundas and Richmond streets, but no action was taken.

The offer of George Wardroppe of Wardroppe, Northern Ontario, of a young bull moose for the zoo on the understanding that the P. U. C. pay the freight charges was accepted. The transportation from Wardroppe to London will cost about $60.

Subject to the call of the chairman, the commissioners decided to follow the example of the city council, and will take a three-months' vacation.

BIRD NOTES

(Contributed by McIlwraith Ornithological Club.)

The 12th yielded only one bird new for the year, Wilson's Warbler. This little bird is nearly uniform in color, yellow beneath and greenish yellow above, but the top of the head in the male is jet black, hence the name, often used, of Black-Cap Warbler.

The arrival of the Nighthawk on the 14th has not yet been chronicled. It was seen flying over the city by one of our younger members. This bird has made a curious change in its habits, and many of them have located in the city, and rear their young on the gravel roofs. But it seems to the writer that this city-loving race is likely to die out, for what chance for survival is there for a young Nighthawk, whose first flight lands him on the ground in the midst of a city full of dogs, cats and boys? For whatever reason, this bird is very much less numerous than in former years, and this change in breeding habits may be one of the prime causes.

At the pond a Hummer was seen doing the "pendulum play." This is a curious antic, doubtless connected with the courtship, in which the male describes the arc of a huge pendulum, going over the route for ten, twenty or fifty times. The female is sometimes to be found sitting in a bush nearby, but finding a sitting Hummer is a little harder than the proverbial needle in the haystack. Dwellers in the outskirts of the city could do much worse than to plant freely such shrubs as are particularly favorite with the Hummer, as there is no more dainty and enjoyable sight than one of these nates of the bird world flitting from spring to spray in search of food, and perhaps, who knows, the planter might be rewarded by the breeding of a pair in one of his trees!

Bush honeysuckles, and especially Caragana (Siberian Pea Tree) are prime favorites.—W. E. Saunders.

A Thimbleful of Radium Costs $108,000

A gram of radium is a thimbleful. There are 140 grams of radium in the whole world, and the total supply is worth $14,000,000—that's about four ounces. Radium is surely valuable, almost as precious as the Perfect Diamonds sold by John A. Nash, My Jeweller, whose new store is 183 Dundas street, "where you will eventually buy."

SLEEPING SICKNESS CURED

A month or two ago a gentleman found that every evening after reading his paper he went to sleep in his chair. A few weeks later he found himself going to sleep before he had half read the paper. This annoyed his wife very much, and he became very concerned and wondered vaguely if this was the commencement of the sleeping sickness. However, a friend suggested that he should see a first-class optician and have his eyes examined. After visiting Mr. F. Steele, 219 Dundas street, and procuring an inexpensive pair of reading glasses, he is able to read his paper with ease and comfort, and without becoming drowsy. Mr. F. Steele is an expert optometrist.

UNIDENTIFIED SAILOR MAY BE CLAIR FLETCHER

Former Komoka Young Man Feared Lost in Wreck.

ONLY RECENTLY MARRIED

Wife Believes He Sailed From Port Huron On Lost Barge.

The unidentified sailor, who went down in Lake Superior when the barge Miztec sank in the big storm last Saturday, may be Claire Fletcher, formerly of Komoka, but recently a resident of Sarnia and Port Huron. Until laid off last January he had been a fireman on the Grand Trunk. Fletcher was 28 years old and had only been married a year.

The day before the Miztec cleared from Port Huron Mrs. Fletcher, who resides in Sarnia, was notified of a long distance call for her from Port Huron. It was her husband's habit to call her up from Port Huron whenever he had an opportunity. Mrs. Fletcher feels sure that he was in Port Huron that day, having come there from Battle Creek, where he stopped on his way from a trip west.

LATE GEO. SIMPSON CAME FROM PARKHILL

The death of George Simpson, a well-known resident of Parkhill, took place at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. E. Campbell, 115 Maple street, this city, on Thursday morning, in his 85th year. He was born in Carleton County, but came to McGillivray Township in the early 50's. He was a man of strong constitution, and took part in the pioneer work of which there was so much to be done in those days. After several years' residence in McGillivray Township he moved to Parkhill. He is survived by one daughter and three sons, Mrs. A. E. Campbell, city; J. W. Simpson, Sarnia; H. E. Simpson, Niagara Falls, and R. A. Simpson, Winnipeg. The funeral service will be held from his late residence at noon on Sunday to St. James' Church, Parkhill, where services will be held. Interment at Parkhill Cemetery.

COMMISSION HOPES TO SELL HOUSES

Fifteen Actual Sales Confirmed At Meeting—Two Applications Laid Over.

Optimism regarding the disposal of houses erected by the London Housing Commission on Garfield avenue and Pine Lawn sites, pervaded the regular meeting of that body held Thursday night, thirteen actual sales being confirmed at the meeting, while two more applications for houses were laid over. The above sales bring the total of houses on these two sites up to twenty. Following advice received from J. A. Ellis, provincial housing director at Toronto, urging the local commission to seriously consider discontinuing individual loans to persons desiring to construct homes, the members decided that no more applications for loans will be considered for a period of two months. This does not apply to applications now on file before the commission, which will be disposed of, ten individual loans being passed at the meeting.
