

EPISODE AT BRIDGE COSTS ALD. BOTTRILL $3

Four Kings March In Funeral Procession of Late Queen

COURT SAYS BOTTRILL'S ACTION WAS ILL-ADVISED

Magistrate Dismisses Charge of Obstructing Traffic, But Assesses Costs.

OPEN COURT HEARING

Defendant Claims He Closed
Ridout Street Bridge For Good of Public.

A private parley, an explanation, a formal arraignment in court, a wave of the hand, and Ald. Harry Bottrill was acquitted by Magistrate A. H. Graydon this morning on a charge of unlawfully obstructing traffic at Ridout street bridge.

But, financially, Ald. Bottrill did not get off scot free. Upon Mr. Graydon's request he willingly paid the sum of $3 as court costs and remuneration for a number of witnesses who came to court to tell how they were inconvenienced on Tuesday when the alderman barricaded the condemned bridge by closing the motor car at one end and himself at the other.

"Pro bono publico," Mr. Bottrill forcefully explained, when Mr. Graydon called his name in court this morning. "I did it for the public good," said Ald. Bottrill. "I believed the bridge was unsafe, and if so it should have been closed."

"It was an ill-adviced action," the court replied. "But considering the good intent, I'll dismiss the case. You should pay the court costs, however."

Ald. Bottrill was present at police station this morning some time before court opened. Rushing his way through a large crowd surrounding the court-house, he sought out the magistrate in his private office, and there, according to Mr. Graydon, volunteered to plead guilty, and have done with the case by prompt payment of a fine.

Mr. Graydon counselled, however, that in fairness to Mr. Bottrill himself, circumstances of the case should be heard in open court.

Gets Pass in Latin.
Mr. Bottrill's Latin declaration, of "pro bono publico," rattled off with a schoolboy's speed of conjugating "hic, haec, hoc," satisfied Mr. Graydon that the public-spirited interest behind Mr. Bottrill's action, in temporarily closing ancient Ridout street bridge, compensated any inconvenience which motorists had been put to.

"Don't do it again," Mr. Graydon remarked as the freed defendant waited at the court clerk's desk for $3 change of a $10 bill.

CAPT. CORT. C. IRWIN PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Veterans' Bandmaster and President of Symphony Orchestra Dies in 56th Year

Captain "Cort" C. Irwin, well-known war veteran, and prominent in musical circles, died this morning after an illness of two weeks. His death is a distinct loss to the city, especially from the musical standpoint as he was the bandmaster of the local Veterans' band and president of the Symphony orchestra. He was in his 56th year.

He was born in Aurora, and moved to London 33 years ago. When war broke out he enlisted with the 135th Battalion and saw active service in France as captain of a machine gun company. He was the leader of the Veterans' band since it was organized and his splendid leadership has developed a powerful musical organization.

President Harry Wray of the Veterans' band paid great tribute to the deceased and expressed sympathy on behalf of the Veterans to the family of the deceased.

He will be buried with full military honors on Sunday afternoon, with the local machine gun corps and the Veterans' band in attendance, as well as representatives of the veterans' association. Interment will take place at Woodland cemetery.

Capt. Irwin is survived by his wife and two sisters, Mrs. A. Wells of Toronto and Mrs. P. Hamell of Beaton, and one brother.

MISS MACPHAIL TERMED FARMER IN ELECTION WRIT

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Sixty-five more members of Canada's fifteenth parliament will be gazetted on Saturday next. This will leave but 37 out of the 245 members ungazetted. It has been found necessary to return a few of the writs received because of errors by returning officers. Miss Agnes C. Macphail, Progressive member-elect for Southeast Grey, is returned as a Farmer.

Buses Must Stop At All Crossings

Case Against Metropolitan Company Being Prepared by Police Chief.

PRESIDENT IN CITY

Second Bus Has Narrow Escape
At Same Crossing On Adelaide Street.

Witnesses of Wednesday night's collision between a crowded autobus of the Metropolitan Bus Company and a C. N. R. yard engine at an Adelaide street back-way track, were sought today by police in an investigation of the accident now under way.

Evidence will be secured by Chief of Police Robert Birrell, and it is found that too many passengers were on board at the time of the collision, a violation of the bus licenses regulations for operation in London, police court action against operators of the Metropolitan Company will be taken.

Individual bus licenses call for a seating capacity with a maximum load of 29 passengers. Twenty-eight persons were on the bus and narrowly escaped when struck by the yard engine, according to a statement made by the driver, Miles Neilson.

Chief Birrell would make no statement today regarding the probability of the case coming to court, nor would he say what penalty could be imposed on the bus owners for overloading.

"I am looking into the matter and action will certainly be taken if evidence of negligence or license violation can be found," he stated.

Bus is Destroyed.
The Metropolitan bus, struck by a C. N. R. engine Wednesday night and valued at $8,000 a year ago when it was put into commission, will never be operated again in London, President Kamm of the bus company stated today.

"It might be repaired so that it would look as good as new, but some little thing would be happening all the time to put it out of commission. We can't afford to take any chances," he said.

While the bus company has a $15,000 accident policy on their fleet, the bus struck by the C. N. R. engine does not carry a cent of damage insurance. This is the claim of the bus company officials, who claim to have a strong case against the C. N. R. If the railroad does not settle all their claims and those of the passengers injured, a law suit will result, Mr. Kamm stated.

Stop Orders Received.
"All our buses have received orders to stop at the Adelaide street crossing of the C. N. R.," said Mr. Kamm. "If this hadn't been done last night a similar accident might have occurred. An engine went rolling over the crossing with no person on the rear of the tender as required by law. I am going to see the chief of police and see if the C. N. R. cannot be made to live up to law requirements."

"Witnesses of the accident tell me that the C. N. R. was to blame. I feel quite certain that the railroad will settle with the passengers and ourselves for the damage caused by their carelessness."

It was pointed out at the city hall this morning that when a city fire truck was smashed by a C. N. R. engine several years ago the insurance company involved paid all claims and were successful in their law suit against the Grand Trunk of those days.

MORO OUTLAWS TORTURE
FRENCH SCHOOL TEACHER

Associated Press Despatch.
Marrakech, Nov. 27.—A Filipino school teacher named Nazarete was captured by Moro outlaws near Lake Lanao, in the Lanao province today. After torturing the man, the outlaws cut off his head with a bolo knife. Later the head was hoisted upon a pole and exposed to the public view. The outlaws have not been captured.

Retiring President of Teachers
Scores Attitude Toward Study.

J. A. Dickinson, commercial specialist and head of the technical department at the technical and commercial high school, was chosen by the London teachers' institute, meeting in the Central college this morning, as its president for the ensuing year.

Mr. Dickinson will succeed John R. Littleproud, assistant principal of Simcoe street public school, who delivered an address this morning on the subject, "Some weaknesses in modern educational practices."

Other officials elected are: Vice-president, Miss Eliza Yeates, Alexandra public school; secretary-treasurer, Miss Emily A. Knott, Wortley road public school; executive committee, Administrator G. A. Wheable, B.A., M.C., Inspector J. C. Stothers, M.A., B.Ed., and Brother Philip, principal of De La Salle school, Miss Gertrude Buttrey, Lord Roberts' public school, and William Wallis, principal of Simcoe street public school.

E. Silverwood, divisional commander in the local campaign for the Beck memorial endowment fund, addressed the institute on behalf of the trustees of the fund, Mr. Silverwood stressed the fact that the fund constitutes a memorial to Sir Adam, and as well assist a deserving individual whose service was closest to Sir Adam's heart.

Opening exercises were conducted by Rev. J. H. Simmon, Adelaide street Baptist church, who in a brief address, emphasized the fact that education has come to mean the development of personality and character, and not alone the development of the mind.

Mr. Littleproud, in his address, cited three weaknesses in modern educational practice, as follows: That the pupil of today does not concentrate his whole mind on his studies; that the school is too large; and that the curriculum is too broad.

FRENCH ACE KILLED.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—Conservative headquarters announce that Right Hon. Arthur Meighen is to brave the hostility of Quebec for an entire week in the Bagot by-election campaign. He goes to present plans, he is to be put up by the party as a candidate in Ontario for the next six days in an effort to convince the French-Canadian voters that he is not as bad as painted.

Right Hon. MacKenzie King will also participate in the campaign, taking the stump in behalf of the Liberal candidate.

Manning Doherty's resignation from the Ontario legislature in order to lend his support to the Conservative party in federal politics is noticed here with interest. Mr. Doherty did not take this action without an understanding with Conservative leaders. According to present plans, he is to be put up by the party as a candidate in Ontario as soon as a seat is opened in this province.

It is believed here that if J. C. Elliott, Liberal member-elect for West Middlesex, is taken into the cabinet or resigns his seat in the legislature, as he minister, Mr. Doherty will be put into that riding. Conservative party managers feel that having been a member of the former government in Ontario, Mr. Doherty would make a strong appeal in a rural constituency.

Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Nov. 27.—The resignation of Hon. Manning Doherty as Progressive member for East Kent in the House of Commons, supports the Conservative party federally, is the chief topic of discussion at Queen's park today. The announcement of the steps Mr. Doherty has taken came as complete surprise, though it has been no secret that he contemplated severing his connection with the legislature when the next provincial general election came.

The feeling in unofficial quarters at parliament buildings is that Mr. Doherty's withdrawal will be a decided blow to the Progressive party, and that (Continued on Page 4, Col. 3)

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, Nov. 27.—A hope that an embargo would soon be placed on the export of asbestos, of which 80 per cent of the world's supply is in Quebec, was expressed last night by Premier L. A. Taschereau, addressing a Liberal meeting at Lachine in the interests of Victor Marchand, candidate for Jacques Cartier in the forthcoming provincial by-election.

Premier Taschereau desired that the raw material be manufactured in this province rather than that it should be sent out of the country.

Marking London's Hour of Sorrow

Minute-Guns Boom at Hour Of Queen Mother's Funeral

Firing Party of 12th Field Battery Marks Time of Sorrow For City as Cortege Passes Along Streets of Old London to Abbey.

At the official hour of the funeral of her late majesty the Queen Mother Alexandra at 11 o'clock this morning a thousand guns throughout the empire boomed out a last farewell.

While the cortege was passing through the streets of old London to the beloved dowager's resting place in Westminster Abbey, the guns of every British garrison town tolled off the minutes. For 40 minutes the guns were fired at minute intervals in honor of the dead queen.

In London, in the shadow of the Victoria park monument to the memory of the soldiers who gave their lives in the South African war, two 18-pounder field pieces joined the mighty chorus. The men of the 12th Battery fired the salute under the command of Major Kenneth Ingram, while staff officers from the R. C. R. looked on with silent respect. Among these were Lieut.-Col. F. Gilman, Col. C. H. Dean, Capt. E. C. Chambers, and others.

On each gun crew there were five men, and when the terse order, "No. 1, fire," was issued the men moved with silent precision and the first gun broke the silence of the morning to bring to memory the passing of one of England's queens, and the mother of the present monarch.

Sorrowing Britishers Visit Bier

Long Procession of People File

SERVICE IS SIMPLE

Snow Falls Gently as Thousands
Watch Funeral Thread
London Streets.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 27.—Winter, reaching an icy hand, laid a tribute on the bier of the gentle Alexandra, Britain's queen-mother, today, covering her casket with a fleecy mantle of snow as it was trundled on a gun carriage from the Chapel Royal, in St. James's Palace, to Westminster Abbey, where the simplest of funeral services was held.

Thus the sea king's daughter departed from the capital of her adopted empire as she had entered it, for the snow was also falling on that distant day, 62 years ago, when she came from Denmark to be the bride of Edward VII.

Close behind the casket, walking alone and with bowed head, came her son, the King of England, muffled in great coat and wearing the plumed hat of field marshal, which also received a coating of white flakes before the procession had gone far. Ahead, behind this solitary figure, came the monarchs of Belgium, Norway, Denmark, and back of them the Prince of Wales and his brothers, and the crown princes of Rumania, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Belgium, with Lord and other nobles who have married into the royal family.

Royal Standard Floats.
Under gray coats these royal figures wore the dress uniforms of the ranks they hold either in the army or navy of Great Britain. But of the uniforms only the gold-braided hats relieved the austere shades of the funeral procession. There was but a single other spot of color—Alexandra's own royal standard, with which the casket was draped.

At the boom of a gun marking 11 o'clock, the casket was brought out of the Chapel Royal and placed on the same gun carriage used at the funerals of Queen Victoria and Edward VII. The equestrian of her majesty took their places in the carriage, and at a word of command the escorting companies of guards fell into step; King George emerged from the palace, and the procession began its measured march through the Mall, Trafalgar Square and Whitehall.

Handkerchiefs found the eyes of many and some wept in the ranks of the thousands who had waited for hours in the cold and wet, for among them were some who had seen Alexandra pass up the Mall, and some who had seen her in happier circumstances.

Placed in Abbey.
The soft, slow music, to the cadence of which the procession moved, reached the entrance of the abbey, and the coffin was carried into the darkened building on the broad shoulders of eight guardsmen, and so placed upon a catafalque before the high altar.

In the abbey, waiting for the arrival of the procession, was Queen Mary, dressed in black, her face covered with a heavy veil, and around her were the queens of Spain, Norway, and Belgium, Princess Mary, the Duchess of York, and some scores of relatives. The queen and her party had driven directly from the palace, arriving more than a half-hour before the funeral procession.

Queen Mary was visibly affected throughout the service. She raised her handkerchief to her eyes when the casket was brought into the abbey, and (Continued on Page 2, Column 5)

GOVERNMENT PROFITS FROM TRUST ESTATES

Province Makes More Than
$110,000 on Property
Owned by Lunatics.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 26.—Arising from the trial and conviction of W. W. Dunlop, former inspector of prisons and public charities, on a charge of stealing $30,000 from the province, the government has submitted to Attorney-General Nicksie the question of the rights of lunatics to surplus profits earned upon their estates while in the hands of the public trustee. In the Dunlop trial evidence was given that $110,000 in excess of bank interest had been earned by the estates of insane persons as a result of their investment by the government.

The right, if any, of the estate of the insane persons to this surplus money is the point which the government is now raising and which Hon. Mr. Nicksie is being called upon to decide.

New Series by Queen Marie Starts In Advertiser, Monday

The Advertiser takes pleasure in announcing that beginning Monday it will publish daily from the pen of Queen Marie of Rumania a new feature under the heading "Queen's Counsel."

In this daily feature, Queen Marie will discuss helpfully and humanely the problems of everyday life.

Queen Marie, like her predecessor, "Carmen Sylva," has found her best expression through her pen, having already a dozen volumes to her credit. These range from interesting fairy-tales for children to grown-up fiction with a deep philosophy of life.

Her majesty writes easily and simply, with humor, understanding and often an almost startling frankness. Beneath it all runs a little minor note that somehow tells of tears unshed and griefs that have been valiantly turned to good experience.

Every aspect of life and love will be dealt with by one whose writings have made a mark in the world of literature.

CAUSE OF SERVICE LAMP FIRE AND LOSS OF $15,000 UNKNOWN

Firemen Prevent Spread of Early Morning Blaze to Apartments, Wray Factory and Martyn's Garage
on Talbot Street.

Investigation into the cause of fire which swept the plant of the Service Lamp Company, 218 Talbot street, at an early hour this morning, was started today by Fire Chief John Aitken.

The building, a three-story brick structure, occupied by James Twitchee, four and feed merchant on the part floor, and the Service Lamp Company on the second, was badly gutted. The loss is approximated by Fire Chief Aitken at $15,000.

It was not until the flames had swept the interior and windows broke with the intense heat that a passing policeman attracted by the noise, turned in an alarm to the fire department at 2:55 o'clock this morning. It was little time before the building was lost with flames spreading through every room.

Firemen practically confined their efforts to preventing spread of the blaze to the neighboring buildings of the Massey Harris Company, boarding houses and apartments to the south, the Wray Overall Company and Martyn's garage in the rear.

Cause a Mystery.
Chief Aitken was unable to trace the origin of the fire when the flames were subdued sufficiently to permit entrance to the building at 5 o'clock this morning. The cause will probably never be known, he stated today, owing to the great headway the fire made before arrival of the fire department and the consequent internal damage.

Firemen worked from the roof of the sheetmetal works of Fleming & Houghton, south of the lamp works. More than a dozen lines of hose were laid. Members of the department climbed the fire escape at the rear of the burning building and worked there under difficulty.

From the nearby boarding houses and apartments, men and women, hastily dressed, ran to the street. Some commenced to remove furniture in anticipation of spread of the fire, but Chief Aitken's assurance at 3:30 o'clock that the fire was under control dissipated their alarm.

The loss will be covered by insurance, according to Chief Aitken.

FEWER CITIZENS APPLY FOR RELIEF

Inspector Sanders Finds Farm Work Unpopular With Men Seeking Aid.

Citizens applying for relief are not as numerous this fall as they were last year, Richard Sanders of the city relief department stated today.

"A peculiar thing in connection with relief work at the present time is the fact that those applying are mostly young men between 20 and 35 years of age," said Mr. Sanders. "They all have families of at least 3 or 4 children."

"Two men who called on me recently asking for help were sent to the office of John Farrell. They told me they would work at anything, even farm work, so I sent them to Mr. Farrell."

"I got a report from him stating that he had offered these men $25 a month and board on the farm, but they had refused. Presumably sending them to the immigration officer, I told them that if they got jobs in the country, the city would help to keep their families here. However, they apparently wouldn't do that, and they haven't been back to see me since that time."

Mr. Sanders then told of a pathetic case brought to his attention today. A young married woman with five children had been deserted by her husband, and the little bit of money she had was now exhausted.

"She has every confidence that he hasn't left her for good, and some day will come back and send her some money. She even thinks that he may have met with an accident, and is positive that he wouldn't abandon his family. She asked me to mention her case to the paper in the hope that her husband would see the story and return to her. I hope he does, but I have my doubts. In the meantime we are trying to get her work and help keep the home intact."

Mayor Wenlock also knows of a woman who is a good worker and desirous of employment by the household cleaning, etc. A telephone call to the mayor's office will bring further information to citizens who have such work in their homes for a needy woman who is about to be put on the street if the rent is not paid.

MEDAL WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Collegiate Pupils To Be Rewarded For Proficiency in Many Subjects.

PRESENTED TONIGHT

Wossa Debaters Also To Hold
First Tilt at South Collegiate.

A very important function in the school year of the South London Collegiate Institute will take place this evening in the Victoria public school auditorium, under the joint auspices of the Collegiate Parents' association and the Collegiate Institute Literary society. The important features of the meeting are: The first debate of the W. O. S. S. A. debating series and the presentation of medals won in the June examinations of 1925.

At present the W. O. S. S. A. debating series is held by the South London Collegiate Institute, having been won in the 1924-25 debating series, along with the four championship gold medals won by Arthur Hill, Archie Knapp, Leslie Pickles and Allan Riddell. This year, although none of these boys is available, the L. S. C. A. hopes to maintain its splendid reputation in this field of activity.

Strathroy boys, Cameron Corrigan and Ernest Wright, will uphold the affirmative of the subject, "Resolved, that the Dominion government should place an embargo on the export of wood." The negative will be taken up by Frank Mallory and Fraser Rowland of the South London Collegiate Institute. The judges for this debate will be Mr. Cuddy of Strathroy, Mr. J. G. E. Eachus of the London normal school, and Mr. A. R. Walker of the University of Western Ontario.

Through the splendid assistance of the South London Collegiate Parents' association and the generosity of a group of interested citizens, a splendid list of medals is available each year for the encouragement and recognition of good scholarship. There is no doubt that the awarding of these medals has had considerable influence in the high school average standing of the last year, and it is hoped that in this field the school may be able to maintain its splendid reputation also. Although it was but the first year for upper school work to be handled in the south collegiate institute, last year's class established a record of 100 per cent in the examination of the others. Arthur Hill won a Western university general proficiency scholarship for English, mathematics, history, languages and science, valued at $200, ranking also for five others, which he could not be awarded, owing to his having obtained the highest award. Frances Stone won a special tuition scholarship valued at $100, ranking also for two others, and Archie Knapp won the scholarship for highest standing in French, valued at $75.

It has also recently been announced that Arthur Hill won the second Carter scholarship for Middlesex county, valued at $50, the first central collegiate institute. The gold medal presented by Mr. G. F. Copeland for highest standing in upper school English goes to Edith Sutcliffe, while the gold medal presented by Mr. A. R. Ford for second highest standing in upper school English goes to Frances Stone. The gold medal presented by Mr. J. G. Orchard for fourth-year general proficiency goes to Beatrice Cook.

The gold medal presented by Mr. C. B. Churches for third-year general proficiency goes to Annie Ormond. The gold medal presented by Mr. Rowland Hill for second-year general proficiency goes to Genevieve Smith. The gold medal presented by Mr. Edgar Jeffery for first-year general proficiency goes to Walter Blakeley. The gold medal presented by Mr. E. R. Dennis for lower school art goes to Marion Brown. The gold medal presented by Mr. Howard Harry for highest standing in lower school biology goes to Vernon Funks. The gold medal presented by Mr. A. R. Cairncross for the greatest improvement in second year over first year, goes to Norman Cameron.

YOUNG MEN OF Y.M.C.A.
HEAR TALK ON INDIA

The young men's section of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening. Eighteen members were present, with Leslie Gray in the chair.

J. D. Omond of the London Life Insurance Company, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke on conditions in India and told of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in doing its work with rural life in India as well as in the great commercial centers of the country. He asked the boys to do their part in sending over Y. M. C. A. secretaries. His talk was illustrated with photos and curios characteristic of India.

The discussion of the evening on the duties of a citizen was led by W. F. Sherwin of the Y. M. C. A.

Tonight the men's section will hold their monthly social event and will attend the Capitol theatre, accompanied by lady friends, and will return to the Y. M. C. A. for entertainment and refreshments.

"Keynote" Meeting at Talbot Street School Tonight Is Only One On List.

The big guns of the municipal campaign will be fired at the gathering in Talbot street school tonight, according to individuals well versed in municipal politics.

They declare that in past years the tenor of the meeting in Talbot street school has shown which way the election wind blows.

To paraphrase Andy Gump, "As ward two goes, so goes the city of London."

It will be the only meeting of the evening. It was proposed to hold a second gathering at Ryerson school, but the auditorium is being used there tonight for a pageant.

Citizens in general have not been attending the meetings. To date the larger portion of the crowds have been made up of the candidates themselves and newspaper men.

Interest on the street, in the majority of cases, has been the betting stage and wagers, some of them for large amounts are being made by supporters of both candidates.

"George Wenlock has no life tenure on the mayor's job and he will find that out on Dec. 7," declared a red-hot supporter of Mr. Moore. "I'm betting real."

If you can find any man that has money he will be licked.

devoted or will devote any more time to city than George Wenlock, you'll have to show me," replied one of the mayor's supporters reaching for his bank roll. An even money bet of $100 was the result and thus it goes in store and factory and street corners. Each candidate has his supporters and they won't know how many until City Clerk Barker closes up shop on the evening of Dec. 7, the day of the election.

Several times found it impossible to continue the singing of the hymns.

The archbishop of Canterbury read the service, the lessons and the collect, between which the hymns were sung. A short blessing, as the whole congregation knelt, followed the last hymn, and the quiet funeral rites were ended with "God Save the King."

Casket Left Alone.
The king left his place, followed by the queen and other royalties, to the service of the city this morning. After their withdrawal the congregation departed silently, leaving the casket on the catafalque alone before the altar of the great hall.

As the building was emptied the sun suddenly shone forth, its rays streaming through the windows and playing over the bier.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the doors of the abbey were again opened and a long procession began of those of the general public who wished to pay tribute to the dead queen for the last time. The coffin of the queen after lying in the abbey all night tonight will be carried to Windsor for burial in the private royal chapel.

Copenhagen, Nov. 26.—Tribute to the late Queen Mother Alexandra, an English daughter of the royal house of Denmark, was paid by John D. Prince, the United States minister at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American club this evening.

"Before the address tonight in connection with the Thanksgiving festival," said Minister Prince, "I wish to express the deepest sympathy for the Danish people in the passing of that splendid woman, Queen Mother Alexandra. She was known and beloved throughout the world as a mother, a friend, a daughter, wife and mother, and her name is honored and revered throughout the whole world, and nowhere more than in the United States."

FLOWERS FILL BALLROOM.
Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 26.—The first stage of the transfer of the body of the late Queen Mother Alexandra from her country home at Sandringham to the last resting place of the body at Windsor was made today.

After a short service this morning in the Sandringham church, where the body had lain since the queen mother's death, the coffin was placed on a gun carriage drawn by four horses for the journey of nearly three miles to the Wolferton railway station, King George, Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Prince Henry, and a few of the other male relatives of the late queen, walked behind the gun carriage. They were followed by carriages containing Queen Mary, the daughters of Queen Alexandra and other ladies of the royal entourage.

There were no troops in attendance with the exception of a handful in charge of the gun carriage, but a long line of villagers and neighbors followed the royal mourning party, while others showed their sympathy by lining the route of the procession.

Upon the arrival of the body at the Wolferton station the coffin was placed on board a train which bore it and the attendant royal party to London, where the coffin was taken to the chapel of the royal St. James' palace for use tonight.

An immense number of wreaths from all parts of the country that had arrived since the queen mother's death at Sandringham and which literally filled the ballroom of the palace were taken thence to Wolferton by wagon and placed on the train for transfer to London.

CARS IN COLLISION.
A serious accident was narrowly avoided at 11 o'clock this morning when two cars collided at the corner of York and Richmond streets. One car was proceeding north on Richmond street when a small car that was coming from the west on York street cut across in front. The front of the north-bound car was badly damaged, but the other car was only slightly touched.

THE BECK MEMORIAL POSTCARD.

Appeal Being Sent to 416,000 Consumers in 400 Ontario Towns,

Cities and Villages Benefitted by Creation of Hydro

Scheme by Late Sir Adam Beck.

Believing that those who benefit directly from Sir Adam Beck's great hydro-electric undertakings will be ready to show their appreciation, the hydro-electric power commission has brought forward an ingenious method of testing public gratitude. As a means of "mopping up" in the Beck memorial endowment campaign to raise $500,000 in aid of Queen Alexandra sanatorium and its province-wide war against tuberculosis, a postcard appeal is being sent to every hydro consumer. There are more than 416,000 in all in about 400 Ontario cities, towns and villages now served by this titanic creation of the late hydro knight.

The postcard message emphasizes that "in founding that great public service—the Hydro—Beck had endeared his name to every household in Ontario. Through his efforts in bringing hydro into every home, emancipation from drudgery of the Ontario housewife is a realization; and, too, countless millions are annually saved to the people—hydro users—through rates of about one-third of those in force before his great work began. This appeal is now made to turn part of these tremendous savings into a memorial endowment, immortalizing the name of this great benefactor."

There is a return section, illustrated above, by means of which any hydro consumer may give tangible expression to his appreciation of this service. Simply place an "X" mark in the space opposite the amount you desire to give. If it is more than $10, fill in the amount in the blank space on the top. If it is less than 50 cents, fill in on the lower line with the number of months desired. The card may then be signed with the name and address of the donor and mailed back to Hydro. By this authority the sum will then be added to the consumers' hydro bill for the period authorized. Everyone is expected by the committee to make some contribution, big or little. If everyone responds, Sir Adam's memory will be honored in precisely that manner he most desired. The fund subscribed will not be expended but will be invested by a dependable and representative committee in government bonds. The revenue will be used for all time to come, in the care of Ontario men, women and children under the double affliction of tuberculosis and poverty.

Commenting on the telegram, an official of the L. & P. S. stated that should the rate be cancelled it would mean the abolition of the "Buffalo rate" of $1.40 per ton on coal from Buffalo to Western Ontario and higher freight rates dictated by the two big railroads. The L. & P. S. had not been notified of any meeting in Toronto and consequently would not have a representative there.

Chairman.

W. P. NEAR.

Ald. Harry Bottrell's "bridge" party yesterday afternoon, composed of members of No. 2 committee, was not much of a success as far as Mr. Bottrell was concerned. The genial alderman from West London, who called the meeting for the expressed purpose of either closing the Ridout street bridge or leaving it open without any restrictions, was "cuchred" handsomely by Aldermen Linnell and Kilbourne, the only other members present until the session was almost over. The gathering ended with a vote of confidence in the engineer and his action of restricting the load and speed limit on the bridge.

Ald. McCormick arrived when there was but a slight "sizzle" left to the fireworks uncracked by Ald. Linnell and the answering display produced by Ald. Bottrell. Ald. Ashton arrived just in time to walk right out again. The mayor and Ald. Homer Neely did not grace the party with their presence.

A Lamp That Burns 94% Air

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig street west, Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. notoriety last Tuesday by closing the Ridout street bridge to traffic at the noon hour, exercised his privilege as chairman of No. 2 committee and called a meeting to "discuss the Ridout street bridge."

The chairman stated that there had been considerable criticism as to his action, but he contended if the bridge was safe it didn't need any police to guard it and if it wasn't it should be closed.

He quickly found out, however, that he was playing a lone hand in the little bridge game, despite the fact that he had dealt the cards himself. The bridge was adjudged dangerous in 1920, according to a report given the legislature, and it must still be dangerous.

Ald. Linnell wanted to know if the report had been made by a bridge company wanting a job and why was the report being brought up at this particular time?

"My contention is that, if all the precautions we have now are necessary, the bridge should be closed," declared Ald. Bottrell.

Suggests the Lock-up.

"Yes, and if a policeman had been there at 12 o'clock last Tuesday when you were there, he would have been justified in locking you up for obstructing traffic, in my opinion," declared Ald. Linnell in disgusted tones.

"Your opinion doesn't carry any weight with me," shot back the chairman. The balloon then proceeded to go up and by the time the ascension was over some high voltage remarks had been passed between the two aldermen. The discussion threatened to proceed outside of the committee room, but died a quiet and peaceful death.

City Engineer W. P. Near patiently explained that the 4-ton load limit for the bridge meant a single load and "you couldn't get more two 4-ton loads on one bridge panel at a time." A whole string of motor cars wouldn't hurt the bridge any more than such a load, he declared.

"Then it is safe?" asked Ald. Bottrell.

Safe—With Limitations.

"It is safe for a limit of load placed on it. The weakest spots are at the panel points," replied Mr. Near. "Would a speed of eight miles an hour be harmful?" asked Ald. Kilbourne.

"It would be for a truck but not for a Ford," replied the engineer, "but we must have the same speed for all vehicles and five miles an hour would be the limit for trucks. That is why we named that speed."

"There is no use in continuing this discussion," said Ald. Kilbourne wearily.

"Well, it's up to you. I still think I'm right," stoutly declared Ald. Bottrell.

"I move a vote of confidence in the city engineer as to his control of the bridge," came back Ald. Kilbourne.

"Well, if there's an accident you'll be sorry," darkly declared the chairman.

Mr. Near then explained that the panel points were where the floor beams were suspended, and more than two trucks at a time couldn't possibly be on a panel.

Would Be Suicidal.

"If you removed the signs from the bridge and left it open to all traffic, it would be bridge suicide," said the engineer.

"The police can't control traffic on the bridge," flatly declared Ald. Bot-trill.

"Try going over the bridge at an excessive rate and see if they can't," suggested Ald. McCormick.

After a little more talk, in which

Ald. Kilbourne moved adjournment,

Ald. Bottrell's bridge party then broke up, with Ald. Linnell and Ald. Kilbourne carrying off the big prizes.

NEED MORE FICTION WRITERS IN CANADA

Editor of McLean's Tells the Kiwanians of Efforts To Develop Canadian Literature.

"A Canadian national magazine can do several things of national import," J. Vernon McLean, editor of McLean's, told the Kiwanians club today in a talk on "Editorial Ups and Downs."

"A Canadian magazine can develop a Canadian literature by giving encouragement to and furnishing a market for the works of Canadian writers of ability. McLean's Magazine accepts no contributions except those dealing with Canadian or written by Canadian writers. This may seem like provincialism, but we have plenty of other publications devoted to the interests of other countries than our own, and not enough information being disseminated about our own country."

"There are two things I demand of writers," said Mr. McLean. "First, that they should have a national perspective, so that readers in British Columbia will be as interested as those in Prince Edward Island; and in the second place, that their stories have a maximum of human interest. Without human interest a story or article is no good."

"Information is not enough for a story to possess, it must be interesting or people will not read it. Someone has asked me if all the stories we use have been voluntarily contributed. There are only two classes of writers, those who pursue editors and those whom editors pursue. We can only use about one in a hundred voluntary contributions. In Canada we have plenty of things to write about and not enough writers to tell about them."

"We have many splendid news writers in this country but not enough who write fiction. For one thing, Canada's population is not large enough to furnish sufficient circulation to enable a magazine to pay a writer what he deserves for a story or an article. In Canada we can pay only $100 for articles for which an author would receive possibly $1,000 in the United States. As a result, many of our best writers drift to the States."

Mr. McLean told the Kiwanians of many humorous contributions he had received and mentioned the pathetic

Nursing Staff Has Trebled, Accommodation Needed

Ald. Frank McKay Makes Logical Appeal on Behalf of Nurses' Home Bylaw, Stressing Saving That Will Be Effected.

Ald. Frank McKay, feeling that the citizens of London should pass the by-law for a new nurses' home for Victoria hospital by an overwhelming majority, is speaking in favor of it at the various municipal meetings.

"There are a number of reasons why the city should build a new home for the nurses," said Ald. McKay. "During the past five years the number of patients per year at the hospital has more than doubled, while the nursing staff has been trebled since 1904. There is accommodation for but 60 of the 180 nurses."

"These other nurses are housed in seven different buildings, and twenty are using rooms that could be occupied by patients. The hospital is losing $5,000 a year by being forced to do this, and it costs $3,500 to rent and heat the old Colborne street school and the McClary home. The total cost is $11,500, which is almost enough to take care of the debt issue and interest for a new home.

"Right now there are some of the nurses housed over the contagious wards and others are shut away in a dismal attic. The nurses see enough misery and suffering while on duty, and should come back to bright, cheerful quarters when their work is over for the day."

"It is under these conditions that they do their work. They get $5 a month for their services the first two years, and hardly enough to keep them in shoe leather."

"These girls come out of homes where it is not necessary for them to work and earn their living. They feel it is their duty to lead a useful rather than an entirely social life. It is the duty of the citizens to see that the first two years of their service is not a hardship. I am asking the people of London to support the bylaw and vote yes for the nurses' home."

MIDDLESEX IS SEEN AS DOHERTY'S AIM

when the next battle of the polls comes it will be largely a case of the two old parties fighting it out.

Since the legislature met the Progressives have lost three members, Col. Carmichael and G. D. Sewell, who ran in the federal election and were beaten.

He told of a letter he had from a minister in a little village in the West: "Dear Sir—The financial page of your magazine is well worth reading. I am sorry that I am not in a position to use it."

One of the thrills that comes to a magazine editor, Mr. McKenzie said, was the thought that some day he might say of a famous writer: "Hat I discovered him."

and Mr. Doherty, who has just resigned. With Beniah Bowman and Leslie Oke, who last session took a stand independent of the Progressive party, excluded, the Progressive party in the legislature is now reduced to a dozen.

Mr. Doherty led the Progressives the first session after the provincial election in 1923, but he afterwards relinquished the position, and Hon. W. F. Raney led the party last session.

The expectation of many political observers is that before next election there will be a realignment of parties in provincial politics.

Hon. J. F. Thompson, speaker of the legislature, this morning received Mr. Doherty's letter of resignation, this being of a formal nature.

ALWAYS CONSERVATIVE.
Special To The Advertiser.
By Staff Reporter.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture under the Drury regime, and former Progressive leader in the provincial house in 1924, has resigned from his seat at Queen's Park, where he represented East Kent as a Progressive in order that he may support the Conservatives in federal politics.

In a long statement issued to his electors, Hon. Mr. Doherty says his favoring of co-operative marketing of farm products and of protection, leads him to support Hon. Arthur Meighen, who also favors these points.

In connection with Mr. Doherty's change of political party, it must be remembered that he was originally a supporter of the Conservative party, and even under the Progressives, he always favored protection.

Drury Not Surprised.
"The action of Mr. Doherty at the present time comes as no very great surprise," says Hon. E. C. Drury, former premier of Ontario, in which province Mr. Doherty was minister of agriculture.

"It is well-known that he never supported the anti-protectionist policy of the Progressive party, and it is only natural that that question becoming acute in federal politics, that he should assert himself as he has done on this point."

"In doing so I have no doubt of his absolute sincerity. It is well to remember, however, that whatever are his private views in this question, he is the platform of the Progressive party and of the farmers' organizations from which this party originated, has for many years been uncompromisingly hostile to the principle of protection. Mr. Doherty's action in no way affects the attitude of the Progressive party, nor of the farmers' organizations."

Hon. W. E. Raney, former attorney-general when Mr. Doherty was in the provincial cabinet and leader of the provincial Progressives since Mr. Doherty relinquished the reins after the 1924 session, said: "Mr. Doherty's resignation is not a complete surprise to me, because he told me about it yesterday. I had no inkling of it before that."

He adds: "I have no doubt of Mr. Doherty's absolute sincerity and that with his views he shows a high sense of his responsibilities to his electors by declining to sit as their representative when his views on federal questions may differ from theirs."

News of Interest About Salesmen and Their City Organization.

FRED S. OAKDEN.

One of the prime factors in the development and the success of the local council of the U. C. T. is the outstanding work which has been accomplished by the senior councillor, Fred S. Oakden. With the inception of the local organization, which is affiliated with the U. C. T. of America, in 1921, Mr. Oakden was one of the sixteen charter members. During the four years which have passed since that time, his greatest interest has been in the promotion of the council activities, and he is today one of the prime movers in the campaign for a new travellers' home in London.

Realizing the benefit to be derived from residing in the "hub" of his field of business, Mr. Oakden, formerly of Toronto, and Western Ontario representative of the J. & P. Coates Company, thread manufacturers, took up his residence in London some six years ago.

If more travellers could only experience the advantages of living in this city while working the Western Ontario territory, our drummer population would be considerably increased," stated Mr. Oakden, "London is a splendid commercial center, and in my opinion this district cannot produce an equal."

Served in Artillery.
During the great war Mr. Oakden served for four years with the Canadian Field Artillery in England and France, after joining the 48th Battery of Toronto. He has for many years been a member of the Commercial Travellers Association, and is known throughout his territory as a "go-getter," with abundance of ability and initiative.

According to Mr. Oakden any success which he may have attained as a commercial traveller is due to the story which he keeps continually before him, that of the pawnbroker and the fur coat, which he received by close contact with a skunk, the owner was successful in selling it to a pawnbroker of some repute. Shortly afterward a proper, speculative customer, on looking the coat over, was favorably impressed with the appearance, price and fit, and was on the point of purchasing it when he detected the disagreeable odor. On mentioning this fact to the salesman, the pawnbroker, visioning a lost sale, excitedly offered the following: "No, no, the coat's all right, the coat's all right. It's not the coat that smells—it's me!"

Ballots are now being distributed among the Ontario commercial travellers for the election of the new executive. A record vote is expected to be polled, and an interesting election is anticipated.

Every traveller has the privilege of using the advance poll for municipal elections if necessary, and the local officials are anxious that as many as possible make use of it, and prove that it is a necessity.

W. Bendie, a popular young traveller, had the misfortune to break his wrist while cranking his car recently.

The ladies auxiliary, which was recently organized in connection with the London Council of the U. C. T., is holding its first meeting on Saturday, Dec. 5.

(This column will be devoted each Friday to activities of the Commercial Travellers Association.)

GLEANNERS CLUB.
The first meeting of the Gleanners club of Centennial United church was held recently, when the following officers were elected: Honorary president, Mrs. Dowdell; president, Miss Leona Patton; secretary-treasurer, Miss Anna Dean; press reporter, Miss Margaret Thompson. It was decided to hold the regular meetings of the club on the first Monday of each month. There was a large attendance.

Planets Venus and Jupiter Coincide Tonight In Vision of Londoners

With a clear sky tonight Londoners will have the opportunity of seeing a very interesting and somewhat unusual sight. Venus and Jupiter, two of the brightest planets, will come into such positions in their respective orbits around the sun that they will appear to be on a direct line in the heavens. Venus, which is far the more rapid in the covering of its course around the attention on the problem in hand; that the pupil of today does not know how to study, and that the pupil of today is not efficient in the use of the English language.

"One of the difficulties in preventing the pupils from devoting their whole attention to the problem in hand," declared Mr. Littleproud, "is the spirit of the age, the daze of the movies, the whirl of the automobile, the clamor of the dance hall, and the thrill of constant pleasure."

"I am not condemning the movie, the automobile, the pleasure-seeking on 'block,' pursued Mr. Littleproud, 'but I would bespeak temperance in all things. With an imagination constantly tickled by the unreal, stimulated with excitement, and too often unhampered by parental control, such a child finds it rather disagreeable to tune in on a different wave length in the school room."

Hard to Adjust.
"Division of decimals, the conjugation of a Latin verb, or the one hundred years' war, become equally unwelcome. And, if the aim of education is the adjustment of the individual to the life in which he must participate, then our problem is certainly no light one."

"Our pupils do not know how to speak the English language fluently, nor to write it accurately, nor always to interpret it accurately. It is given place in our elementary school classes in speaking, reading, grammar, composition, and literature, and this is enlarged upon in the secondary schools, and yet we find the primary school lamentably decrepit in the king's English, and from the secondary schools with results that are pitiful in the extreme."

The world today is looking to the English-speaking part of the world not only for leadership, but for a solution of its pressing economic, social, and industrial problems. The culture, refinement, genius, ideals and aspirations of the English-speaking world form a constraining appeal and a hopeful vision for the rest of mankind.

"Yet these can spread among our own people and reach our neighbors only through the English language, and that well spoken, and well understood, to appeal to the teachers to increase our efforts, to multiply our earnestness, and to intensify our activities, that the pupils of today may be able to do so."

Not only obtain an acquaintance with, but also a love for, the best treasures, the choicest gems of the English language, and these, in turn, are to be the world possessing a vitalizing consciousness of the contributions and relationship of the past and a deep appreciation of the choicest wheat in the fields today.

"Our pupils do not know how to study, and thus study hours yield but limited results. Spare periods, wasted, and home studies, are often futile. But it is not merely this loss of time, the vital point is that these people will not study when they leave school. They will bid adieu to books of learning, they will close their doors to the processes of investigation, and they will drift into the mercantile, industrial, and the social, world, never to rise above the mediocre."

Big Advance.
"As the limousine has surpassed the buckboard in vehicular progression," concluded Mr. Littleproud, "so the educational process of today is a wonderful advancement over that in vogue in the little red schoolhouse 40 years ago. Yet we must not be deceived by the splendor of a glorious sunrise. There is a brighter meridian ahead, a non-tide of achievement, to which we must advance, because the present, as I have outlined, is so marred by weaknesses and serious limitations."

E. E. Gibbs, Chesley avenue school, and Edward Wyatt, St. George's school, proposed A. O'Neill, B.A., principal of the east collegiate and the new Sir Adam Beck collegiate institute, as the president of the institute, but Mr. O'Neill asked to have his name withdrawn, and the institute finally acquiesced in his request.

The executive committee will name an advisory committee to consist of four members to assist in the conduct of the institute's affairs during the coming year.

The institute adopted by a standing vote a resolution proposed by Miss Sarah Lawrence, Empress avenue school, of condolence with the families of three teachers who had died during the past year.

The institute then resolved itself into departments for primary schools, secondary schools and for primary and kindergarten, and discussed problems peculiar to their own departments.

ELMWOOD THANKOFFERING.
The thankoffering meeting of the W. M. S. and Kilmour girls' auxiliary of Elmwood avenue Presbyterian church was held this week in the church home, with Mrs. W. E. Kelly presiding. The scripture was read by Mrs. M. J. Maitland, and Miss Gladys Stewart was in charge of the music. Mrs. Soutar contributed a very pleasing vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Margaret McLeish. Rev. F. W. Gilmore gave an address on "The Untended Mission Fields." The speaker emphasized the fact that the Presbyterian church is a missionary church, and enlarged upon the work of evangelists waiting to be done and that the church of today has a great cause for preaching the gospel. Mrs. Gilmore gave a missionary story in answer to an appeal from northern Ontario, the last service in the church home, and warm clothing to be sent there. The thankoffering amounted to $50 for the mission fund of the London presbytery.

Legal Status Of Humane Society Doubted In Suit Over Three Dogs

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.
Toronto, Nov. 26.—In the county court today, Judge O'Connell reserved judgment on a claim made by Miss Barbara Willson for damages suffered by her over the loss of three Saint Bernard dogs, Quenee, Duchess and Prince Leo, which she alleges were taken from her by illegal seizure and were illegally detained in the possession of the Toronto Humane society.

Judge O'Connell said he would be compelled to reserve judgment on the case. He would give both counsel opportunity to make their pleas to him in writing.
"Who is the Toronto Humane society?" Judge O'Connell asked counsel for the plaintiff. "What legal status have they?"
"They have no legal status as far as I can see. They may have no legal existence at all. I know of no such thing as the Toronto Humane society." John McNab Wilson, manager of the Sir Adam Beck and Mr. E. S. Little.

Recently the Toronto Telegram printed from a staff correspondent in this city an article attacking Mr. E. S. Little, representing him in particular as an enemy of the late Sir Adam Beck, a party to "plots" and "tricks" and "political jobbery" against him.

It was the kind of an article that nearly every one in London will wish to be dissociated from and will resent, although some person here either wrote the article or supplied the misinformation on which it was based.

Anyone familiar with the business and social relations that existed between Sir Adam Beck and Mr. Little will appreciate what a travesty the Telegram article makes of the truth. The fact is that both as mayor and as a private citizen no one co-operated with Sir Adam more usefully in promoting the interests of London than did Mr. Little. They had their differences of opinion, but it is a matter of knowledge that as the years passed Sir Adam had a growing regard for the value of Mr. Little's judgment and co-operation and made on them frequent requisitions.

As for the suggestion that Mr. Little bears responsibility for the defeat in 1919 of Sir Adam, it is recognized that the reverse on that occasion was caused chiefly by the disloyalty and defection of Sir Adam's political associates.

In a purely personal way it is doubtful if Sir Adam had a closer friend than Mr. Little. That the one who survives should now be represented as an enemy and a plotter against the one who is dead is grotesque but characteristic of a certain brand of propagandist.

Several times Sir Adam asked Mr. Little to join the board of the London Health Association, administrator of the Byron sanatorium, the project, as it now appears, that was closest to Sir Adam's heart. After Sir Adam's death the invitation was repeated and as, with Sir Adam gone, the need is greater, Mr. Little has joined the board, of which Mr. A. T. Little has for many years been a member.

Such facts overwhelmingly demonstrate the untruthfulness and maliciousness of the article in the Telegram, which under certain circumstances might have provoked mischief—was, perhaps, designed to do so. The generous tribute paid by Mr. Little to Sir Adam at Wednesday night's meeting of the Beck Memorial Fund workers and his warm co-operation in the campaign indicate that the anonymously inspired attack failed in its purpose. Malice, fortunately, is no match for magnanimity and public spirit.

Public Service.

For those who have the time and inclination such a position as member of the hospital trust affords full scope for the finest kind of public service. It is not as spectacular as work on the city council nor yet as much in the limelight as the board of education, but it is great in the call for a combination of human qualities and business ability.

London came into existence in 1826 and in 1847 the first attempt at anything approaching a hospital found shape in the form of a crude shed on the market square, where sick and indigent immigrants from Scotland were cared for. In 1855 there was a hospital on Hamilton road with four wards with ten beds each. Today Victoria hospital, managed by the hospital trust, is an institution with an annual expenditure of over $350,000, caring for over 4,000 patients a year, with a similar number of out-patients.

Col. William Gartshore has been a member of the trust for eighteen years; James Gray for six, and he has been named for another two-year term by acclamation. County Clerk John Stuart, James Granger, two appointed members, and the mayor of London make up the board. The mayor attends the business sessions regularly but other public duties make it impossible for him to devote the time to it that the other members do. If one were to look over the calendar of Col. Gartshore or James Gray it would be seen that every Sunday afternoon is marked off for the hospital. These are not occasions for business sessions, but evidence of a keen personal interest in everything that is going on there, the progress of the patients, the welfare of the staff. They believe it is a wise way in which to invest their time, and the same is true in the case of John Stuart and Mr. Granger.

Scarcely less notable in length of service is the record of Philip Pocock on the public utilities commission, now completing sixteen years; Jared Vining, who with Mr. Pocock stands for re-election, is completing eight years; Thomas McFarland has served on the commission eleven years and Robert Webster three. These gentlemen are responsible for a business that has receipts of well over a million a year. The board has been able to keep on securing a supply of the purest spring water for London, which in itself is a notable accomplishment. It is responsible for the distribution of hydro for light and power, for the development of Springbank park and the extensive playgrounds system of the city.

The public has been well served by these boards. The gentlemen comprising them have given unsparingly of their time and with no thought of recompense other than the knowledge that they have been able to help in the performance of useful work in their own city. It is unfortunately no public way in which citizens can express appreciation for work thus carried on. Acclamations or success at the polls means an expression of confidence, but the men who are engaged in these forms of public service should know that their work has been and is appreciated.

Back to the Farm.

Mr. Greenfield resigned the premiership of Alberta to go back to the farm. There may have been internal troubles in the government that prompted the decision, but the fact remains that he made a good showing during the short time he was in public life.

Here was a man who was never in public life before. When Premier Stewart's government was defeated in 1921 there was a call for a leader for the new government. Two leaders of the U. F. A. refused it, and it was not until this took place that Mr. Greenfield went in. He found the government committed to large outlays, so great that while receipts amounted to $11,086,000, expenditure was $13,109,000.

New to government methods, Mr. Greenfield's administration reduced expenditure, made changes that strengthened sinking funds, and seemed in a fair way to practice economy, something that seldom makes a government popular. His short change from the farm to the premiership showed him to be a man of character and courage just about the kind Canada needs in places of trust.

Hardly a Criminal.

C. V. Combe of Winnipeg was on his way home with $227, the proceeds of a concert for a Christmas fund for poor children, when he was held up and robbed.

News of the robbery was published and next day the amount was returned with a note saying "Sorry we did the job. Did not know whose money it was."

The man who "did the job" may be outside the law, but he's not in the hopeless class. Some place in his make-up there's a streak of human marrow in his bones.

Looks Different Now.

Necessity has jumped over tariff bars before or else knocked them down, and it may do so again.

United States has so much corn that the markets are glutted. There is not enough stock on the farms to convert it into meat, so the proposal is made to import feeding cattle from Canada to help eat up the surplus.

United States has built a tariff to keep Canadian cattle out. Up to 1921 they went in free; then a charge of 30 per cent, and now a duty of from 1½ to 2 cents per pound. When the U. S. farmer sees Canadian cattle as one means of saving his corn crop he may begin to realize the folly of the tariff he asked for to keep them out.

By Way of Explanation.

The Ottawa Journal and the Toronto Globe are engaged in some sort of a battle. We don't know what it's all about, but the last fling of the Globe at something the Journal said about it is: "There's an ugly Anglo-Saxon word that describes that utterance."

There are a number of ugly Anglo-Saxon words; a neighbor used some once when our cat assimilated his canary; others are frequently employed when a chap is around looking for a loan to tide him over until a pay-day which everyone knows never arrives.

But none of these seems to fit. The Globe apparently wants to convey the impression that the Journal has said something that's not so. It has uttered a prevarication, as it were, or in real forceful Anglo-Saxon, it has told a brass-lunged lie.

We hope the Ottawa Journal realizes that this is what the Globe is trying to say about it. This dipping of the editorial pen in weak tea and writing on soft paper may not have carried the full force of the blow to Ottawa.

Off to the Desert.

Toronto Tories will countenance no rebels in the ranks. In the general election there were two Conservative candidates in several ridings. One bore the stamp "official" and the other was a renegade.

Now those who worked for rebel Conservative candidates are to be tried, and that is the equivalent to being found guilty. Found guilty, they will be expelled.

All of which is quite right and proper. What's the use of building up a great Conservative machine that does all the thinking, acting and speaking, if some of the more venturesome spirits insist on thinking for themselves?

The flight of these outlawed Conservatives will be scarcely more dignified than that of Elijah of old when he ran to escape the wrath of Jezebel.

Note and Comment.

Los Angeles has a cosmopolitan hotel for men only. Sort of stagnation affair.

Milk cows are reported scarce with the closing of the shooting season up north.

A motorist in Toronto knocked down and killed a pedestrian, then sped away. That's plain murder.

A train near Port Arthur ran into a telephone pole, thus invading a field that has been the exclusive property of the motor car.

Some men are clumsy in their manners. Here's one chap who shot at his wife because she got her hair bobbed, and all he intended to do was express his disapproval.

T. A. Crerar has issued a statement denying that he's carrying on some sort of a plot with Premier King. Mr. Crerar hasn't been in Ottawa, hasn't written to or heard from Mr. King directly or indirectly. That being disposed of, leaves the way clear for the next asinine report of another plot.

Post Holes

By ARK.

I started in the other day to dig some post holes in the yard, not reckonin' how a chore like that would take me long or tax me hard.

I'd seen men dig post holes before, it seemed a simple trick to do, and they just dug and dug some more until their post hole work was through. I got a spade, a shovel too, a pickaxe and a garden hoe, and ere I turned the sod at all I laid these trinkets in a row.

I dug one hole as best I could, it looked much like the village well, and then I felt like sittin' down, and so I did to rest a spell.

So after while I dug again and when 'twas sunk three feet or more, I felt a kink upon my spine, my joints was startin' to get sore. But I kept on the post hole job until I got the darned thing through, and I was certain by this time my frame would bust and part in two.

For I had aches upon my knees, my back was twisted in a knot, and I caught cold from sittin' down when I was all perspirin' hot.

There's room for some day yet to find a scheme that won't be half as hard, some plan by which you'll simply go and buy your post holes by the yard. There'd be a market for this stuff in Timbuctoo and in Hong Kow, if he can get a post hole scheme that's better than I know of now.

The Once-Over

London is to have a third candidate for mayor.

Hoax N. Spoozus, well-known student of municipal politics, announced today that he was a candidate, despite the fact that he was not nominated.

It appears that he was prepared to toss his hat into the ring last week, but was unable to find his spare headpiece. When it developed that his wife had sent it to a rummage sale, it took nearly four days to trace the purchaser, and by this time nomination day had come and gone.

When the circumstances were explained at the city hall, officials took the view that throwing a hat into the ring was only a formality anyway, as the ring has now been abolished along with the city hall circles.

The new candidate opened committee rooms downtown this morning, and announcement of his platform is eagerly awaited.

A STRONG CANDIDATE.

"Candidate For Boy Parliament Carries Six Planks. Represents the Olympics"—Headline. A future Olympic champion, probably.

A church bazaar announces a baby booth. Great bargains are looked for. Every purchase fully guaranteed.

Wallaceburg comes to bat with the following: "While a herd of cattle were being driven down the main street a steer ran into the doorway of a harness shop and had time to turn round backed into the large plate glass window, which was completely demolished."

The King of Siam died on hearing that a daughter had been born to him. It's awful to think what would have happened had the nurse announced Siamese twins.

GOLD-DIGGERS WEAR DAGGERS.

New York girls now wear daggers on their shins as a protection against maulers. And they can't be convicted of carrying concealed weapons either.

Isn't It the Truth?

You can judge a man by the size of those whose criticism gets his goat.

The opening of the nut season finds the usual number clamoring for more laws.

At times it is impossible to distinguish between a cool head and cold feet.

"The wife and I" may be a vulgarity, but it shows a nice regard for rank.

Youth is that wonderful time when criticism and the weather don't matter.

A stock exchange seat sells for $130,000 but you can get a sucker list for $10.

Aw, let's don't do away with crop estimates. The boys must have something to bet on.

Among the handicaps are a weak brain, a weak body, and the prospect of inheriting a fortune.

An air service is helpful. Think how many people now know how to pronounce "dirigible."

When the theatres become cool enough and the seats comfortable enough, perhaps they can dispense with the pictures altogether.

The arrangement works automatically. Where overpopulation is threatened, grade crossings are more numerous.

Correct this sentence: "The garage man kept my car a week," said he, "and never once used it to ride about in."

Editorial Opinion

BETTER STICK AROUND.

LEGAL advisers of Mrs. Ambrose Small have submitted a bill of $90,000 to their client for services rendered. To the high cost of living and the high cost of dying must now be added the high cost of disappearing.

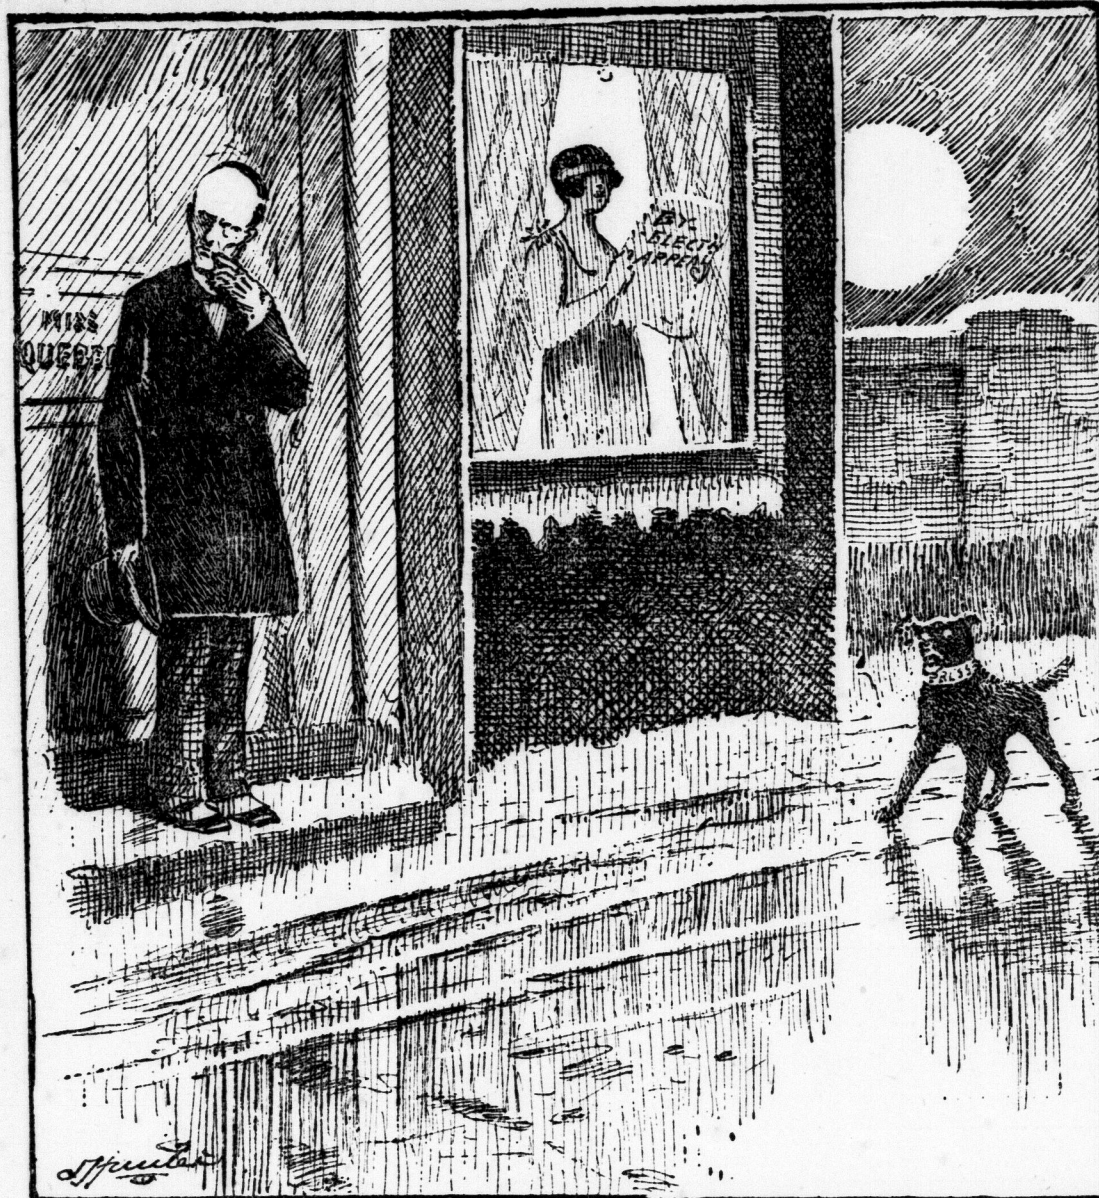

A DIFFERENCE IN METHODS.

AN ENGLISH jury has accepted the plea of insanity in the case of the murderer of the commander of the Melita, but the difference between such a verdict in England and in the United States is that in the former country the guilty man will be kept permanently where he will not be a menace to his fellows, instead of being let loose when the public has lost interest in the case.

A CURIOSITY OF ELECTIONS.

WHEN the popular vote is compiled, it will be found that in most of the provinces the ballots cast for the different parties are out of all proportion to the seats obtained by them. There is nothing like the preponderance of Liberals in Quebec, or Conservatives in Ontario that the bare returns indicate. In Saskatchewan no Conservative candidates have been elected, but the candidates of that party polled over 45,000 votes, only about 1,000 less than did the Progressive nominees, six of whom have been elected. The Liberal total was placed at 72,658, and that party has won 15 seats.

He Wasn't Worthless

By "OBSERVER"

PUBLIC attention has been focused on a case at Oshawa where a Harbardo boy was sent down on a four-year term because he had changed to say as to his conduct. He tried to arouse his sense of home duty on the plea that the father was a soldier at the front, and it was the duty of his son to carry on at home. He seemed to have no course open but to send the boy back to the reformatory.

A lawyer who was present in court on another case asked the magistrate if he could address him, and after securing permission, said he had a proposal to make, whereby he would become entirely responsible for his conduct. Addressing the boy, he explained what he meant by the offer; if he broke into a store he (the lawyer) would be responsible; if he stole anything else he would pay for it. The only condition was that the boy should go home and help his mother, and report at the lawyer's office every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

THE magistrate agreed to do as the lawyer requested, and the legal experimenter at once signed a statement to the effect that he was responsible for anything the boy did, good, bad or indifferent. His last word to the boy was: "Remember this, son, I trust you implicitly, and I'm going to have reason to be proud of you."

It would not be fair or desirable to state where that boy is today. Three months after the experiment was started I met the boy's mother in the lawyer's office one morning, and I heard her testimony that a mother couldn't wish for a better boy around the house. I heard the teacher in the collegiate where he went say that he was one of the hardest workers and most capable scholars in the school. Today he's established in a home of his own, and holds a position of responsibility, and has been promoted several times because he has earned it. I don't suppose there are half a dozen people who ever heard anything about the case; the lawyer never told even the members of his own family. He never had to put up a dollar for the boy to make up for any wrongdoing. His expression of confidence in what seemed to be a worthless boy had been the turning point in his career. The boy wasn't worthless, and the lawyer proved it.

Hits the Port

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)
THE news that the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific railways have agreed to cut off the freight rates on coal shipped via Port Stanley and Erieau and place coal on the ordinary commodity basis is as disagreeable as any that has ever been heard in Western Ontario. The effects of the proposed change are stupendous, over a wide area that it seems almost incredible that two big companies could have seriously considered what they were about when they struck this, to Western Ontario, felon's blow. Briefly, the result would be that But Erieau as the coal port, not only for points east of Woodstock, which is nominally the purport of the order, but for all coal brought into Ontario, before it would not be worth while to run the ferry over from Conneaut for the coal supplies needed for this immediate district. That would mean that the million and half dollar coal plant at Port Stanley would be closed down, the London & Port Stanley railway, which is already, as everyone knows, a million and half dollar loss, would be paid 50 cents a ton more for their coal, and Port Stanley and the L. & P. S. railway would become derelict.

If this is an example of the co-operation between the railway companies which was spoken about so much during the election Western Ontario won't be much enamored of it.

In this case it would seem that the advantage to the big companies is negligible compared with the damaging effect of their move on a large section of the people. One might think that the big brothers would have given more serious consideration to the possible result on a little brother, and not plow their way ruthlessly through the domains of a struggling line, which has not been their competitor but their feeder.

To the Editor

Traveller Protests.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir,—In your sublime wisdom can you suggest a way in which railroad day coaches may be aired occasionally when used on a several-hour run?

Recently I boarded at London a train from Montreal to the border. From the fresh air outside I walked into a coach and found the atmosphere most nauseating. Divers unpleasant fumes were horribly blended and I nearly suffocated before I became acclimated.

Surely some way can be found to remedy this condition. If not the railroads should change cars occasionally as well as locomotives. Yours for pure air.

necessary; but the country can nevertheless be congratulated upon this evidence that one more question passes out of the field of controversy and becomes part of the accepted and unchallenged policy of the country. BEST BURLESQUE YET IS AT GRAND

Erin Jackson and Her Girl
Friend Delight Grand Audiences.

Burlesque is receiving deserving patronage in London. It is a fact that since this type of musical revue was first shown at the Grand theatre several months ago, each week has seen better shows and each improved production has merited larger audiences. And so the best show so far this season, The Girl Friends, drew large crowds at two performances yesterday.

The reason for the attractiveness and popularity of The Girl Friends is not hard to find. In the first few scenes it is glaringly evident that a successful attempt has been made to get away from the humdrum of burlesque, to inject something new that pleasing novelty might be offered.

The Girl Friends is a "pick me up" from the ordinary run. It constitutes pleasing entertainment, appealing through a freshness and gaiety that only the higher type of musical comedy is generally believed to possess. Miss Erin Jackson, a charmingly versatile performer, is a pivot for an extravagant production which can justifiably be called a worth-while, peppy show.

Burlesque as Miss Jackson presents it is exhilarating. There is fun in every line, entertainment in every scene. Ab-

Chicago, Nov. 26.—The booze business—the manufacture and distribution of prohibition Pilsener and moonshine—has resulted in thirty-one Chicago bootleggers biting the dust in the eleven months of 1925.

Coroner Oscar Wolff reported today on this impressive record to let the nation's booze drinkers get an idea of the difficulties that beset the industry which now engages in satisfying their unlawful appetite.

Every one of the thirty-one murdered bootleg leaders was killed by an enemy—not by prohibition agents. About half of them were taken for a ride. They were enticed into an automobile of the supposed friend, driven out into the country and suddenly ridled with bullets.

DANCING CONTEST IS HELD AT GRAND

Doris Mitchell and Bill Farquharson Winners of Charleston Tournament.

The first night of the Charleston contest held at the Grand last night to determine the best Charleston dancers in London was a huge success. Five teams of Charleston steppers showed the large audience the popular dance as it should be done. Miss Doris Mitchell and Bill Farquharson being declared winners.

They will not be allowed to compete in the contest tonight, but will meet the winners of tonight's contest and compete with each other for a silver cup to be donated by Manager J. R. Minihinnick. The finals will be danced tonight, and Mayor Wenlock will present the winning team with the cup, suitably engraved, tomorrow night.

Manager Minihinnick announced a similar contest to be held next Thursday and Friday.

Although Miss Mitchell and Bill Farquharson were declared the winners by popular applause of the audience, the other teams were not far behind and will undoubtedly compete again tonight. They were Violet Gilmore and Ted White, Ruth Fitzgerald and Mel Forbes, Olive Bowling and "Sneeze" Graham and Miss Pee Wee Phillips and Leon Fields, the latter members of Erin Jackson and her Girl Friend company playing the band for the balance of the week.

MANY TIMES we are asked, "How can Grafton clothing be so much better than ordinary clothing when the price is even less?" The answer is very simple: Grafton & Co. are clothing manufacturers, but sell direct to the wearer. For nearly seventy-five years Grafton & Co. have devoted their energies to making the best class of clothing in Canada, using only thoroughly reliable worsteds and serges and carefully selected, dependable tweeds. Grafton & Co. own and operate the seven largest clothing stores in Canada, giving them an enormous output.

GRAFTON CLOTHING is superior in style and workmanship, yet their "maker-to-wearer" prices are lower than asked for ordinary clothing.

WOULD FORM ENTENTE.
Associated Press Despatch.
Geneva, Nov. 26.—The Mohammedan newspaper Tribune Orientale, which is published in Switzerland, says that pourparlers were recently begun in Switzerland for a Franco-Syrian entente. The Syrians demand suppression of the mandate, recognition of Syrian independence and unity, and the entrance of Syria into the League of Nations. The future form of government would be decided by a constituent assembly with immediate elections. In return the Syrians are said to be ready to conclude a treaty of alliance with France for from twenty to thirty years whereby France will have a naval base at Beirut and a garrison at Lebanon. If Lebanon is agreed. Furthermore, Syria, in the event of war, would furnish France with Syrian contingents, with the understanding that France assume the defence of Syria in case of aggression. Unfiled Syria, it is declared, should include Syria proper, Djebel Druse and also Beirut and Tripoli, if the inhabitants of the latter consented.

ROBINSON CRUSOE ALLEGORY OF LIFE

Prof. J. A. Spencely, M.A., Addresses London Teachers' Institute On Book.

"Daniel Defoe's book, Robinson Crusoe, is a kind of history of us all, because it shows us the way we do things."

Thus did Prof. J. A. Spencely, M.A., teacher of English at the University of Western Ontario, describe and account for the popularity of that great book to the London teachers' institute, gathered in Empress avenue public school last night.

"Robinson Crusoe is an allegory," declared Prof. Spencely, "not written designedly by Defoe as an allegory, but nevertheless, in my opinion, an unconscious allegory. It is, to my mind, a story of our forefathers, unwittingly told as an allegory. Defoe was a great journalist, greater than he thought, and I believe that he prefaced the story of our ancestors in Great Britain and Ireland."

"As a story, Robinson Crusoe depicts the individuality of the Englishman," continued Prof. Spencely, "because, you know, the Englishman always wants to do things for himself he never wants, and runs to the government to have things done for him. The French spent hundreds of years developing 'the gentleman,' but England developed 'the Roger de Coverly type,' the man who is 'on his own,' so to speak."

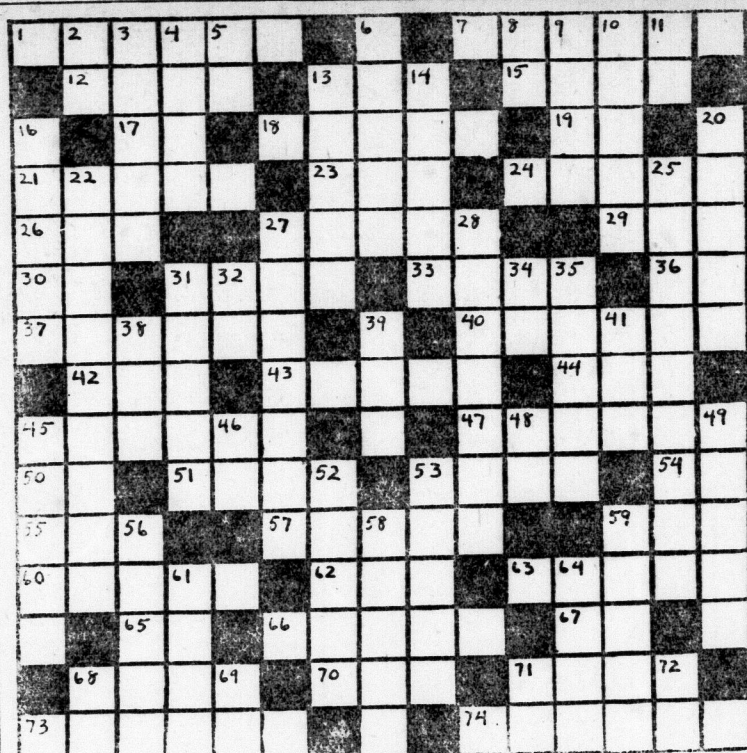

Prof. Spencely pointed out that Robinson Crusoe, which was written by Defoe in 1719, was immensely popular from the beginning, and that five editions were printed in the first year. Within the 40 years subsequent 50 imitations were published with the name Robinson in the title, while 15 other imitations were published without the name Robinson being used.

The book was translated into Chinese, Japanese, Latin and Greek.

Is World Figure.

"Robinson Crusoe is a hero. With his goat-skin cap, his parrot and his umbrella, he is a figure that time cannot assail. With his calendar, notches, his field of barley, his flock of goats and his instruction of Friday, he has become, not the mariner of York, but a world figure."

Defoe found that the first book of Robinson Crusoe had made so much money for him that he wrote a part two," concluded Prof. Spencely, "taking Crusoe back to his island in the West Indies and then bringing him back to England by way of China, Japan and Siberia. And then, when he was charged with writing the book as an allegory of his own life, he accepted it."

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The announcement tonight that D. M. Kennedy, Progressive, was elected in Peace River, Alta., reduced the Conservative group in the federal house to 117 and increases the Progressives to 24. Peace River had been placed in the Conservative column as a result of earlier reports.

R. C. R. BAND TO PLAY IN ST. THOMAS CONCERT

Donate Services For Sunday Concert in Aid of Beck Memorial Fund.

By kind permission of district headquarters and the regimental commanding officer, the crack band of the Royal Canadian Regiment, which is now stationed with the permanent troops in London, will play a benefit concert in aid of the Beck memorial fund at the Tivoli theatre, St. Thomas, on Sunday evening at 8:30.

The use of the theatre and the services of the band have been donated, the concert being arranged as a special feature of the St. Thomas campaign, which is to be waged in an intensive two-day drive next Tuesday and Wednesday, with teams representing all the service organizations of the Flower City. There will be a couple of brief addresses at the Sunday evening concert, for the purpose of acquainting the people of St. Thomas with a few of the special features of the appeal in Elgin county.

Unattended children will not be admitted, and a voluntary collection will be taken by the ladies at the door. This collection is not intended as a substitute for the canvass itself.

DEATH OF MISS ROBINSON.

County Council Urges Highway Minister To Make Plan Compulsory.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 26.—The Elgin county council will support legislation making it compulsory for all vehicles to carry rear and front lights on county roads.

A petition was framed to the minister of highways asking that legislation be framed making it compulsory for the lights to be carried. Yesterday the council voted down a resolution requiring the revision of a county bylaw covering the same ground.

The council also unanimously endorsed a resolution to the government, protesting the revision of freight rates for coal to points beyond Woodstock. The final sessions of the council will be held on Friday evening at 9:30 with a meeting of the finance committee.

MASONIC FUNCTIONS HELD

Scottish Rite and Royal Arch Masons Meet in Chatham.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Nov. 26.—Two important Masonic functions were held here this evening. The annual banquet of members of the Kent County Scottish Rite association was held at the Brisco hotel, with many members of the order from Windsor present. The Wellington chapter, Royal Arch Masons, greeted Grand Superintendent J. L. Rutherford of Blenheim on his official visit.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

WOMEN and THE HOME

Over 250 Guests Attend Brilliant Tuscan Ball

Flowers, Ferns and Palms Are Used Effectively As Decorations Against a Background of Rose Curtains and Pale Gray Walls.

The annual Tuscan ball, held last night in the Masonic temple, was a brilliant function, attended by over two hundred and fifty guests. The newly-decorated hall lent itself beautifully to floral decorations, the feature of which was a gigantic fernery in the center of the dance floor. Tall palms and ferns were effectively combined with gold and bronze mums and rose-colored azaleas in the creation of this very attractive centerpiece. In fact, the ball was a rose and gold ball.

New rose curtains, caught with bands of gold, stood out prettily against the pale blue-gray walls, and on each window-dresser had been placed a graceful fern. An orchestra, with a piano, was on the stage, backed with palms, ferns, golden mums and azaleas, against a background of crimson velvet curtains.

Sitting-Out Places.
Special sitting-out places had been arranged at the corners of the hall, comfortable wicker chairs, rugs, palms and tall lamps having been placed for the convenience of the guests. Down stairs pretty tables, centered with gold and bronze baby mums awaited the supper hour.

Mr. C. B. King, as master of the Tuscan lodge, welcomed the guests, assisted by the dance committee and their wives, including Mr. Frank Ashplant and Mrs. Ashplant, the latter wearing a lovely gown of black lace over cloth of gold; Mr. Norman Keene and Mrs. Keene, Mrs. Keene in cloth of gold effectively combined with black georgette; Mr. Emerson Nichols and Mrs. Nichols, the latter in modish gown of blue cut velvet; Mr. Howard Higgins and Mrs. Higgins, Mrs. Higgins wearing orchid-shaded crepe, handsomely beaded in crystal; Prof. C. N. Hart, Subscribers To Dance.

Subscribers to the dance included W.

MISS DOROTHY MCPHEE.

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex McPhee, St. James street, who is playing the role of the King in The Sleeping Princess, to be presented at the Ryerson school tonight.

Billie says: "Gee! Uh Wah! Ger! Blub! Ga-zook!"

"What kind of talk is that?" chattered Johnnie. "I couldn't answer! He couldn't talk. He had taken such a big bite of the apple that he couldn't close his jaws on it. He couldn't chew and he couldn't get it out of his mouth, though he tried to push with his paws. Oh, poor Billie was in great trouble because of his big bite."

"I'll go get Uncle Wiggily to help you," kindly offered Johnnie. And when the rabbit gentleman arrived, looking pale, he took a knife and very gently cut the piece of apple out of Billie's mouth.

"Gee—wuh—ker—!" began Billie, talking in a queer way because he felt as though the piece of apple was still wedged between his teeth. Then he remembered that it was out and he said: "Thank you, Uncle Wiggily. I'll never again take such a big bite!"

And he never did. So now, if the hand on the rag doll's head, which plays a jolly little music song for the tea kettle to sing with, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the poor mouse."

ELGIN COUNTY WARDEN CANED BY COLLEAGUES

About 60 Guests Gather For Warden's Banquet, Where Venison Is Served.

Special To The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Nov. 26.—The county council banquets Warden Anderson, county officials, and ex-wardens of Elgin county at the county home of Clerk Kenneth W. McKay, this evening. The gathering was the largest of its kind ever held.

Roast venison, cooked as only an old hunter can cook it, baked potatoes, pumpkin pie, and other delicacies were enjoyed by the 60 guests. The venison was brought from the north woods by Mr. McKay's party this fall.

A program was provided by Duncan Turner, of Sheddin, a son of a recent varden of Elgin county, and Robert Holmes, of the county court house.

After the dinner, the company gathered around the big open fireplace in the Seldon sitting-room to exchange reminiscences. Hugh McKillop, M.P., school inspector, J. A. Kennedy, William Jackson, ex-M.P., and present collector of customs at Port Stanley, John J. Stalker, Ernie McKay, Alex Anderson, Harry Drexler, Arthur Burrows of Springfield, and Reeve John R. Gow were speakers. Mr. Gow first entered the Elgin county council in 1881, and is now representative of Dutton, Squirr Hunt in a very eloquent address presented Warden Anderson with the cane, a customary formality which he has capably performed for some years. Warden Anderson, in his own genial way, made a suitable reply.

ST. PAUL'S UNITED CHURCH HEARS SPLENDID CONCERT

The anniversary concert of St. Paul's United church, West London, held this week, was one of pleasing excellence. The artists in music and elocution were very generous with their numbers, and their selections were keenly enjoyed. B. Christian furnished a special treat with his splendid tenor, as did M. Morgan with his deep bass. Mrs. Wyatt's beautiful soprano was even more pleasing than usual in her happy selections. Miss Rapson and Miss Holt deservedly received hearty applause. The soloists were ably assisted by the piano by Miss Irvine, the organist of the church, and by Miss Anderson. A pleasing variety in the program was furnished by Miss Hyatt, a youthful concertist of promise, who showed herself equally capable in humor and pathos.

WIRELESS STRIKE PERILS SHIPPING

Operators in Britain Decide to Cease Work When Wages Are Cut.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 27.—The strike of wireless operators on British vessels which was called yesterday threatens seriously to affect shipping in the course of a few days. The strike was ordered as a protest against a proposed cut in the salaries of the operators of about $5 a month.

Although some 5,000 members of the wireless telegraphers' union are involved by the strike, cessation of work if there is no settlement of the dispute, will be gradual, as it is understood existing contracts will not be broken and the men who signed for voyages before Nov. 26 will fulfill their engagements. No further contracts by the operators are to be signed, however, and it is estimated that 600 of them will leave their posts before the end of the present week.

The dispute between the shipping companies and the operators arose over the decision of the former to reduce the wages of the operators 22s. 6d. monthly, beginning Dec. 1. They justified the cut by the contention that ships' officers already have accepted a similar reduction. The wages of the operators start at about $40 per month and rise to about $100 monthly.

There is some uncertainty as to how far the strike will hold up shipping even if it becomes general. All ships above 1,800 tons are required to carry operators, but during the strikes of 1924 and 1922 the regulations were waived, in some cases on condition that passengers be informed that there was no radio operator on board the vessel on which they sailed.

RUSSIANS AND FRENCH OPEN DEBT DISCUSSION

Visit of Tchitcherin Takes On Significance—Continued in Two Weeks.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Nov. 27.—The visit here of the Soviet foreign minister, M. Tchitcherin, was made the occasion of informal conversations with leading French statesmen on the questions pending between the two countries, notably that of the Russian debts.

M. Tchitcherin left this morning for the Riviera. It had been announced that he was coming to France for his health, but he found time in his short stay in the capital to interview the premier-designate, Aristide Briand, former Premier Painleve, Herriot and others.

Upon his return from the south, in ten days or so, by which time the French cabinet crisis will presumably have been settled, it is hoped the conversations will be resumed in a more formal manner, with the prospect of definite results.

The Petit Parisien declares the talk will blossom into full dress official negotiations. There are indications, it adds, that the Moscow government is genuinely desirous of an early settlement of the debt question, realizing that it has an important bearing on the Soviet's international relations.

ONE KILLED, 3 CAUGHT AS BOMBERS TRAPPED

Two Men and Girl Walk Into Police Trap—Store
Is Destroyed.

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Nov. 26.—Two men and a girl were captured after another man was believed to have been killed to day when scores of policemen ambushed a gang just as a bomb exploded and wrecked a hardware store.

Miss Lee McCellan, Columbus, Ohio, Fred Walquist and Joseph Aveni were those arrested. The supposed dead man was believed to have been thrown from the bombers' automobile before it was overtaken by pursuing detective squads.

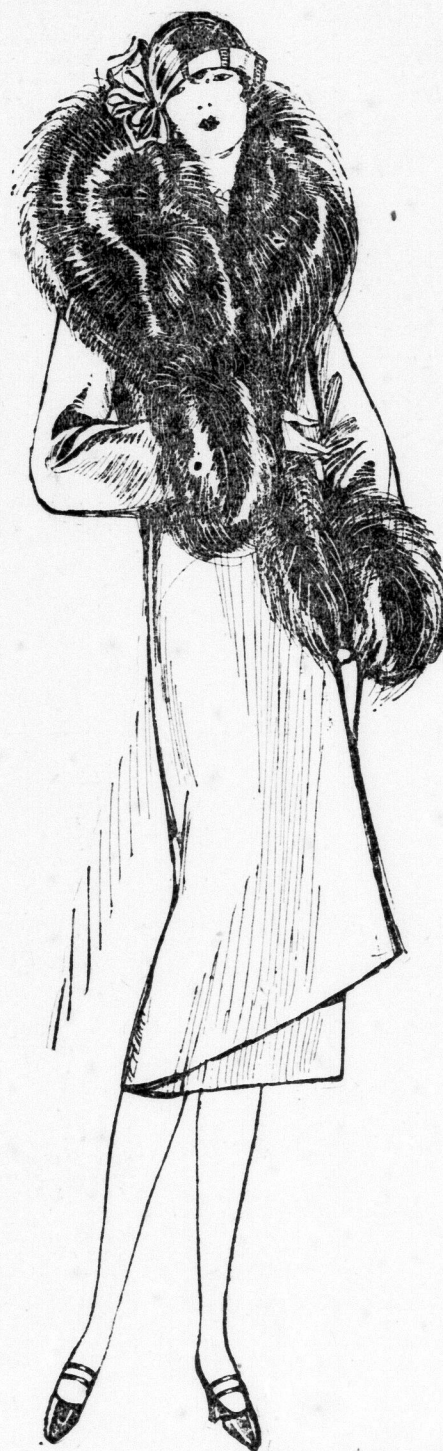

Tipped that the store was to be bombed because its owner refused to close on Sunday, the trap was laid. A man and a woman, later found to be Miss McCellan and Walquist, alighted from an automobile and laid a package on the threshold. Two men remained in the car.

The waiting detectives swooped down on them. Walquist and the girl were captured after he had been shot. Aveni drove off in the car, which was riddled by bullets. His companion slumped in his seat. But only Aveni remained in the car after it had been halted.

The girl said she had been invited for a ride and was ignorant of the plans of her companions. Walquist said he had asked her to go along "to see the fun."

WATFORD CITIZENS HEAR FINE ORGAN RECITAL

Special To The Advertiser.
Watford, Nov. 26.—A delightful organ recital and concert was given in St. Andrew's United church Wednesday night by artists from London. Charles E. Wheeler, F.C.C.O., organist of St. Andrew's United church, and St. Andrew's quartet, Mrs. Eric Graham, now of Watford, soprano; Mrs. Luta Lamon Durst, contralto; A. Lois Christian, tenor; and Edward A. Webster, bass, assisted by Miss Jean Walker, educationist.

Rev. H. V. Workman, pastor of the church, presided, and expressed the appreciation of the audience to the artists for their splendid work and to the Mason & Risch Co., which sponsored the concert in connection with the installation of the new organ in St. Andrew's church.

MIZPAH CONCLAVE, NO. 1.

At the close of the regular meeting of Mizpah Conclave, No. 1, held last night in Moose hall, the draw was made for a lovely evening quilt donated by Mrs. Percy Dewar. The lucky number was 1716, held by James Weir, Euclid avenue.

At the regular session it was brothers' night and worthy officers presided. The men of the convocation exemplified the work. The officers in charge were: Fred Simmons, commander; R. B. Bannan, past commander; Dr. U. E. Patterson, councillor; J. T. May, vice-commander; E. J. Walker, advisor; Brother Kennedy, deputy advisor; B. Brigham, custodian; F. Fitzgerald, organist; T. Welch, senior deacon; R. Mercer, junior deacon; J. C. Dodge, high priest; W. H. Ham, falshaw, chaplain; A. Nichols, inner guard; S. Moffatt, outer guard; J. Weir, secretary; D. Gilpin, treasurer; W. Prouse, lecturer.

Guests of honor for the evening were Mrs. Jeffry Hannah, past worthy grand commander of Michigan; Mrs. Stalsen, past commander of Mizpah Conclave and Mrs. Stalser.

CHAPTER IV

As we drove the village street, in the car which Grimsby had taken upon the gates of one of the last cottages a tall, white-haired old man was leaning. His clear-cut, handsome features were an expression of haggard sorrow.

"There he is!" rapped Grimsby. "Hadden! I better make the arrest at once!"

"Ah, no," my friend protested. "But stop! I have something to say to him!"

The car stopping, Morris Klaw descended and approached the old man, who preceptually paled at sight of us.

"Good day, Mr. Ryder!" Klaw courteously saluted the ex-burglar.

"Good day to you, sir," replied the old man, civilly.

Whereupon Morris Klaw said a simple thing, which had an astounding effect.

"How is he today?" he inquired.

Ryder's face became convulsed. His eyes started forth. He made a choking sound, starting, as one possessed, at the question.

"What—what—do you mean?" he gasped.

"Never mind, Mr. Ryder—never mind!" rumbled Klaw. "I am your friend, and I am your enemy."

"I am your friend, and I am your enemy," he said. "I am your friend, and I am your enemy."

"I am your friend, and I am your enemy," he said. "I am your friend, and I am your enemy."

after all, he able to save my old home from an ignominious fate. Herein may have since been realized, for I learnt today that the mine has made rich men of us all; and I assume that some ill-advised remark upon the part of Ryder, regarding Heidelberg's possible expulsion, gave rise to the idea that the old man contemplated a violent deed.

"It therefore came about that he made an appointment with Heidelberg, an appointment which he duly kept; and it was solely due to my anxiety on Ryder's behalf, and lest he should meet with some ill-treatment from the Jew—whom I knew for a man of most brutal disposition—that I took certain steps which, indirectly, brought about the tragedy.

"In common with most old mansions of the period, the Hall has its hidden entrances and exits—though, in accordance with certain ancient traditions, the secret of their existence is strictly preserved among the family. With a view, therefore, to becoming an unseen witness of the transactions between Ryder and Heidelberg, I made use of a passage that opens into a shrubbery some fifty yards from the west wing. Entering, and mounting the steps at whose foot the tunnel terminates, I found myself at the back of an old painting in the banquet hall. The frame of this picture forms a door, which opens upon pressing a spring. But the apparatus, owing to its great age, works very stiffly. From this position, then, I could hear all that took place in the hall, where, I had anticipated, the negotiations would be conducted, as my mother's picture hangs there.

"This proved to be the case; for I had but just gained the top of the stairs when I heard the two enter the hall. Heidelberg spoke first.

HYGIENE EXHIBIT CLOSING SATURDAY

Juvenile Court Officials Attend and Are Impressed by Display.

Mrs. J. J. Roach and the Catholic Women's league will act as hostesses for the social hygiene exhibit in the Royal Bank building this afternoon.

This exhibit, which is being held by the provincial council of social hygiene, is under the direction of Miss Hewson of Toronto.

The afternoon's program will begin at 2:30 o'clock, with an address by Dr. Edwin Seaborn and the showing of films. St. Joseph's hospital nurses will be in charge of the medical room. Tonight, Dean Norman Tucker, a member of the London social hygiene council, will be the speaker. Mrs. A. E. Miller and the I.O.D.E. will act as hostesses. On Saturday afternoon Dr. Nelson George will be the speaker.

Major A. G. N. Bradshaw's talk on juvenile delinquency yesterday was exceptionally appropriate. He stressed the need of more parental responsibility and urged that the work of the juvenile court should be supported. Judge G. Q. Warner also attended the exhibit.

Richard Crouch, public librarian, has been much impressed with the exhibit, and hopes to follow it up with a "good reading" week at the public library, and by the social hygiene council. Saturday will close the exhibit in the Royal Bank building.

Paddy Beaver Becomes Engineer and Seeks a Place To Build a Dam

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Having found the trees he wanted for a food supply, Paddy returned to his home in the pond he had made in the Green Forest, and told the good news to Mrs. Paddy and to his nearly grown children.

"How near water are they?" was Mrs. Paddy's first question.

"Not as near as I wish they were," replied Paddy.

"Can we dig a canal to them?" asked Mrs. Paddy.

"I don't know yet," replied Paddy. "We'll go down there together some day soon and look the ground over. If we can take the water to them by a canal it will make the work easier. But if we can't we'll have to—"

"I know," interrupted Mrs. Paddy. "We'll have to build a new dam down the Laughing Brook and make a new pond down there so that the water will reach the trees and we can work in comfort and safety."

Paddy nodded. "Quite right, my dear. Quite right," said he.

"I hope it won't have to be a big dam," said Mrs. Paddy. "A big dam is a lot of work. It would keep us busy most of the summer. Do you think it will have to be a big dam?"

"I haven't said there will have to be a dam at all yet, my dear," replied Paddy.

A few days later the whole family went down the Laughing Brook. It was sort of a picnic for the young Beavers. But Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were quite serious. The young Beavers were not thinking so far ahead as next winter, but Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were. They knew that their welfare next winter depended on what they did this summer, and they were a little anxious about it. So, leaving the young Beavers to play in and around the Laughing Brook, Paddy led Mrs. Paddy to the little grove of poplar trees Peter Rabbit had found for him. The eyes of Mrs. Paddy sparkled as she saw them. "My, these are nice trees!" said she, nibbling a bit of bark from one. "I don't think we ever have had finer trees. It is too bad that they are so far from the water. But we must get them somehow."

"We will," declared Paddy. "But only a little distance when they came to

is a sure thing that we can't bring the water up here by a canal. The land is too high. Yes, sir, the land is too high. This means that we must build a dam. The question is, where is the dam to be built? We'll have to go down the Laughing Brook and see if we can find a place where we can build a dam the easiest, yet be sure that there will be water enough for our purpose."

Paddy led the way back to the Laughing Brook, where they rejoined the two young Beavers and all four started down the Laughing Brook. The young Beavers were told that their father was going to look for a place to build a new dam and make a new pond, so as to be able to get plenty of food for next winter.

"Huh!" exclaimed one of the young Beavers. "What is the use of worrying about next winter now?"

"Live and learn, my son," replied Paddy. "When you are older you never will ask such a silly question as that. Then he led the way down the Laughing Brook.

They travelled slowly, for Paddy was examining the bank on both sides, and often went some distance away from the water on either side. They had gone only a little distance when they came to place that looked as if it was meant for a dam. It did so. There was plenty of material to build it of. It would not have to be very long in order to make a nice, deep pond. The work of building it would be easy. Mrs. Paddy ventured to say as much to Paddy.

"But Paddy shook his head. 'My dear,' said he, 'a dam here wouldn't back the water up far enough to reach those trees. It will have to be farther down than this, quite a bit farther down.'"

At last Paddy called a halt. He spent much time in looking over the land on both sides of the Laughing Brook, and then he said to Mrs. Paddy, "I think this is the place," said he at last. (Copyright, 1925 by T. W. Burgess.)

FARMER WILL BE HANGED

Crime Committed Four Years Ago Brings Capital Sentence on Westerner.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—For a crime committed four years ago, John Kooting, a Shovel Lake district farmer, was this morning sentenced to be hanged on February 19. The judgment was pronounced by Mr. Justice Curran.

Kooting was yesterday convicted of the murder of Dymtro Czayka on Nov. 5, 1921.

During the trial, alleged confessions of the convicted man were submitted to the court, stating that Czayka had been killed with an axe and robbed. The body was discovered underneath a pig-pen.

Kooting was in poor circumstances at the time of the murder. In his confession he declared he took the money to help his wife, who was without food.

In bigger quarters, with a much larger stock, and with a variety of new styles that fairly sparkle with beauty, the London Silk Shop is finding a large place in the hearts of London women shoppers.

The store, at 265 Dundas, is commodious and well arranged and the goods displayed are of fairly lowliness.

Max W. Grafstein is the manager of the local branch which is one of a chain of six such shops of the Graf-stein & Cooper Company. The store's anniversary celebration, now on, takes the form of an anniversary sale, for, as Mr. Grafstein says, the people are more interested in the goods within than they are in the exact day the store opened. So while he looks back on a year of ever-growing values his customers may enjoy the realization of purchasing silks at remarkably low prices.

The London Silk Shop occupies a unique position. It is a shop devoted to the sale of silks only. The members of the firm are specialists and aim to serve well in their chosen field.

The management is in constant touch with designers and manufacturers and as soon as the market offers something new it is on its way to London. Thus it is that many advance styles are found at 265 Dundas.

Canada has made great strides in the business of silks, says Mr. Graf-stein. During the last six years the dominion has shown a marked increase in silk production. It is believed by the trade that the quality of the silk will be far superior to that of the United States.

From Many Countries.

However, the goods at the London
Silk Shop are not the product of one country or two. They come from all over the world. The countries which have the newest and the best are drawn upon. In the Dundas street store are goods from England, France, Switzerland and Japan. This makes possible a wide selection of materials.

The firm set quite a record in the first year by selling 1,000,000 yards of silks and woollens. Present indications are that the next year will greatly exceed this for the business is prospering and the customers are increasing.

The firm handles McCall patterns and it is arranging to have a McCall designer in attendance all the time.
In the meantime McCall designs, magazines and the McCall needlework publications are on hand.

Second Anniversary Sale of the London Silk Shoppe

The Silk and Woolen Sale of the London Silk Shop of one year ago still lingers as a pleasant memory in the minds of those thousands of women who secured silks and woollens at less than cost.

AGAIN WE CELEBRATE OUR BIRTHDAY.

and the offerings for this, our second anniversary, surpass in value, quality and beauty of colors even the offerings of a year ago.

WE ARE NOW PREPARED

with greater stock, a more commodious store and better facilities, but in spite of these, we say, come early (particularly to those who did not get in last year). Do not be late and then regret it.

THIS IS THE GREATEST SILK AND WOOLEN OFFERING EVER IN LONDON.

Grange Gets Cheers of 40,000, $20,000, Black Eye In Pro Debut

Red Respects Expert Opposition and Says He Enjoyed First Game of Pro Football Immensely, Though Opponents Tried To Keep Ball From Him.

MADE BUT SIX-YARD GAIN FROM FORMATION

Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Nov. 26.—Harold "Red" Grange today stepped from a college hero into business life as a professional football player, gained the hearty applause of a crowd of over 40,000, some $20,000 as his share of the receipts, and a black eye. His team, the Chicago Bears, played a scoreless tie with the Chicago Cardinals, their bitter rivals of the south side.

"I never played against a more expert team of football players," said Grange after the game. "I don't remember how I got the black eye, but I never saw a bit of intentional roughness, and I enjoyed my first professional game immensely. I did my best, but was able to practice with the team only a few days."

The Cardinals made every effort to keep their points out of Grange's hands, but he managed to get hold of three which he ran back 14, 25 and 20 yards. His longest gain from formation was but six yards, and that was the next to the longest of the game for either side. He made one of the two first downs for his team.

Paddy Driscoll, former Northwestern star, made the only first down for the Cardinals, and the famous Red Head stopped him then with a six-yard gain. Grange's only tackle of the game. The Cardinals only tried that one time around Grange's end. Driscoll once at-

PEG AMATEUR FLASH IS WITH CANADIENS

McKinnon, Formerly of Hornets, Was One of Leading Scorers in U.S.H.A. Last Year.

Canadian Press Despatch. Montreal, Nov. 26.—Johnny McKinnon, former Winnipeg amateur hockey star, the latest addition to the local Canadiens, while playing with Pittsburgh Hornets last year was one of the leading goal scorers in the United States Amateur Hockey association, displacing Stewart, the Cleveland center player, who is this year with the Montreal Maroons in the National Hockey league.

The newly-signed player is 25 years and weighs 175 pounds. Besides being a goalgetter he is a fast skater, a good stickhandler and a generally rugged player. McKinnon's roster is now at an even dozen players. The team opens at the arena Saturday night against Odie Cleghorn's Pittsburgh sextet.

HELEN WILLS TAKES TRAIL OF LENGLEN IN JANUARY

Associated Press Despatch. Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 26.—Miss Helen Wills, national and olympic tennis champion, accompanied by her mother, plans to leave for France in January and hopes to meet Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis champion, on the courts there.

Miss Wills is making the trip to France independent of the United States Lawn Tennis association. After playing through tournaments in southern France she will go to England for the Wimbledon championships and then return to the United States in time to defend her national title.

PIRATES VICTORS IN FIRST PRO TILT

More-Seasoned Bostonians Go Down 2 to 1 Before Pittsburgh Six.

Associated Press Despatch. Boston, Nov. 26.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, now calling themselves the Pirates, stepped from the ranks of amateur hockey tonight to defeat the Bruins of Boston in the opening game of the National Hockey league season, the score being 2 to 1.

The Boston arena was jammed with a holiday crowd to see Pittsburgh's first appearance as professionals, and the former western club of the amateur association proved themselves a far stronger offensive team than the more seasoned Bostonians.

Stewart of Boston scored the first goal of the game when he outskated the defense in the second period. His score was followed less than ten minutes later by an easy slide into the Boston net from Conacher's stick.

In the third period Darragh on a pass from Drury scored the winning goal after nine minutes and 20 seconds of play. Hitchman previously had landed the puck in the net for Boston, but the play was offside.

Line-up:
Boston: Stewart, goal; Hitchman, defense; Cleghorn, center; Darragh, wing; Herbert, left wing; Brackenbrough, right wing; McCarty, left wing; Mitchell, right wing; Spring, sub; Gerau, sub; Jackson, sub; White, sub; Copper, sub; Stuart, sub.

Summary:
First period—No score.
Second period—Stewart, Boston, 1; 2-0, Cleghorn, Pittsburgh, 2.
Third period—3, Darragh, Pittsburgh, 3; 2-0.

Referees—O'Leary and Bell.

JUNIOR PRO LEAGUE IS MOGULS' NEW IDEA

Loop Would Act As Feeder To N. H. L. Squads—Boston Plan.

Special to The Advertiser. Boston, Nov. 26.—Boston, New York and Chicago are planning to form a junior professional hockey league, which will act as a feeder for the National Hockey league.

The international pro organization, in which these three American cities hold membership, with Montreal, represented by two clubs, Ottawa and Toronto, announced today that all details have been completed.

The backers of the professional clubs in Boston, New York and Pittsburgh initiated the movement, and Canadian cities will enter teams. Cleveland and Chicago may see the need for admission into the junior pro league by membership in this body.

ATTABOY!

Hughie Jennings has contributed at least one expression to the American language and that is the popular "Attaboy."

When the dynamic Jennings assumed the managership of the Detroit Tigers in the spring of 1907, he coached his players in a number of plays that they had never before used. It was hard work. Most of them were veterans, but Jennings did not become discouraged. He used to stand in the field and direct the rehearsals.

When the play went well he shouted, "That's the boy!" He began getting results and continued the yell as an expression of approval.

After the season started he was still yelling but he had abbreviated the expression. He was now yelling "At's th' boy!" But even that was too long and so "At's th' boy" was reduced to "Attaboy," and it gradually became popularized and has been part of baseball expressions for a number of years with no hint of wearing out.

Jennings is the most picturesque figure that ever stood on a coaching line. He is still remembered as he coached his players in those pennant-winning days, nervously pulling grass and yelling.

No one has ever successfully copied the Jennings' coaching style, although a number have tried. He was original and unique. The style was suited to Jennings and somehow or other never fitted imitators. In those early days of American league leadership he would jump about the coaching box at first or third and yell "That's the way." Later he drew it out into a long "That's the way-ah." Then it became "That's Swaya." After a time he abbreviated it to "Swaaa-ah." And then "Whee-ah." But there was still another change. It was slight, but it converted the phrase into "Eeyah" or "Ee-yah."

The "Ee-yah," unlike Jennings' "Attaboy," never became popularized. It belonged to Jennings always and he alone could make it fit into situations. He carried the nickname of "Ee-yah" for nearly two decades, and will continue to carry it as long as he is identified with baseball.

Will You Help?

THIS little girl is appealing to you. She is one of the many thin, sorrowful little girls of this province suffering from tuberculosis.

The Queen Alexandra Sanatorium ministers to little girls like this—little boys too, and men and women from all over Ontario. It gives them the best treatment they can have. It fills their hollow cheeks and rounds out their wasted bodies.

The good people of Ontario are asked to heed this little girl's appeal—to subscribe generously to the Beck Memorial Endowment.

It was one of Sir Adam's last expressed wishes that this wonderful work should go on after his death.

We must be faithful to his trust. We must give—and give generously.

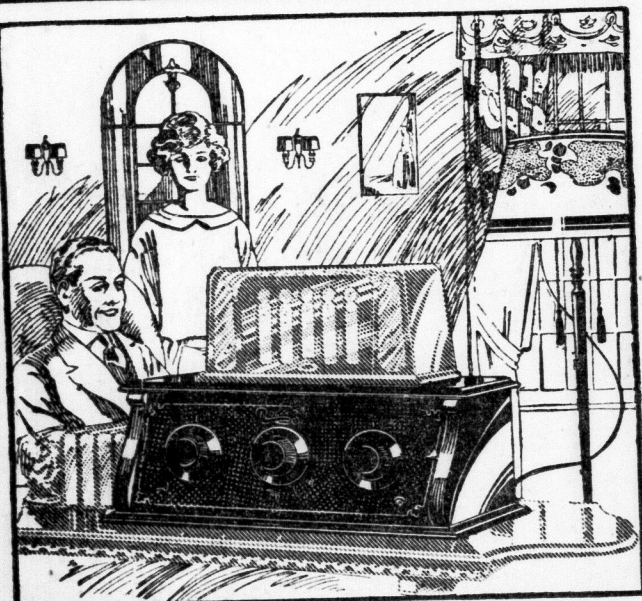

Contributions will be received by any Branch of the Bank of Montreal and forwarded to the Treasurer of the Fund.

BOARD CONFIRMS AFFILIATION PLAN

Co-operation Between Western University and Alma College Approved.

DR. CHOWN PRESIDES

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, Nov. 26.—The annual meeting of the board of management of Alma College was held this afternoon in the institution, presided over by Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, D.D., president of the board, and former superintendent of the Methodist church of Canada. The regular meeting was preceded by an executive meeting presided over by Chairman W. F. Thomas, St. Thomas.

The financial report shows a small surplus, but the expenditures are $5,000 less than for the same period last year. The affiliation with Western University was approved.

The place on the board made vacant by the death of Rev. Geo. A. King, was filled by the election of Rev. Dr. Martin, D.D., the present pastor of First United church, Dr. Graham of Toronto, secretary of education, urged provision for the out-of-school hours of the students.

Mrs. J. D. Curtis gave the report for the Alma Daughters Society, showing $200 contributed during the past year to improvements at the college. At 6 o'clock the Thanksgiving dinner was served. Dr. Chown delivered an inspiring address. Miss Zeigler proposed the toast to the American students and teachers which was responded to by Miss Mabel Adams.

Out-of-town members of the board present were: Dr. S. D. Chown, D.D., Rev. Y. W. Graham, D.D., secretary of the education extension work of the church; Mrs. W. J. Loering, Miss Ida Alderson, and Rev. Hiram Hull, Toronto; Mrs. R. W. Pettie, Hamilton; Rev. T. N. Hazen, D.D., Rev. E. A. Pearson, Rev. J. W. Hibbert, Henry Pocock, R. R. Watson, Wm. Copp, F. W. McAllister and Rev. E. W. Edwards, London, and D. H. Connor, Ashtabur.

It is expected that 27 or 30 witnesses will be called in the Swan-boat case which comes before Chief Justice Meredith on Monday in the supreme court session. Many of the forty witnesses heard at the inquest will not be called, as their evidence was repetition. It is expected that considerable expert testimony will be called by both sides.

Thomas Henry Edwards, aged 64, an employee of the P. M. shops, dropped dead this morning while on his way to work. The deceased was an adherent of First United church, and was a member of W. O. W. Camp No. 1, at Denver, Colorado. Survivors are the widow, one son Leonard, at home, two daughters, Mrs. Verina Saunders, Erie, Pa.; Mrs. Harry Smith, city; a sister in Cranborne, England, where he was born.

RACE FOR MAYOR ATTRACTS KEMP

Former Chief Magistrate of Woodstock Is Again in the Field.

Special to The Advertiser.
Woodstock, Nov. 26.—A contest for the mayoralty is assured by the announcement today of ex-Mayor Clifford Kemp that he would be a candidate. He will be opposed by Ald. James Hill, chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Kemp, who is a lawyer, served the city as mayor for two years during the war years.

Robert Clark, Spencer street, escaped unhurt when his automobile was struck by the Port Dover train and badly damaged.

Donald McLean, one of this city's oldest and best-known men, is dead at his home. Born in Cape Breton, 75 years ago, Mr. McLean came to Woodstock as a boy, and for 35 years was an employee of the Canada Furniture Company, but a short time ago he became associated with Howers, Limited. He is survived by his wife, Emma Zimmerman McLean; two sons, Matthew and Sylvester, and two daughters, Miss Laura and Mrs. J. C. Bassett.

POISONED FRUIT BRINGS MERCHANTS TO COURT

Old London Dealer Sells Apples Containing Arsenic—Came From America.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 26.—A batch of summons will doubtless be issued against various London fruiters for selling apples containing arsenic as a result of finding two fruit dealers yesterday for selling apples from the United States containing arsenic. The apples in question contained arsenic to the extent of one-tenth of a grain per pound. It was stated in police court that the arsenic had gotten into the apples through spraying the trees with an arsenic solution to combat the codling moth.

The department of horticulture announces that arsenic is not used for spraying English apples after the apples have become the size of walnuts, and any such spray is washed away by rains before the fruit matures. Another English authority expresses the opinion that the danger of poisoning from spraying of apples even from other countries does not arise except in case of a drought.

Commenting on the above despatch, a prominent district fruit grower, stated that arsenate of lead was only sprayed on apples in this district just after the blossoms had fallen and two weeks later. Any sprays used after that time were made up of one gallon lime sulphur to fifty gallons of water. This was not arsenate enough, he said, to cause any poison to persons eating the ripened fruit. He had never heard of any person in Ontario being poisoned by apples that had been sprayed.

U. S. Deserters Held By Police

Two Vagrants Admit Offence at Woodstock.

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Woodstock, Nov. 26.—Frank Williams and Charles Gonzales, found loitering in the vicinity of the local C. N. R. station by police late last night, are being held on nominal charges of vagrancy as the result of admissions the men made to the effect that they had deserted from the division of the United States army stationed at Fort Wayne, Detroit.

Both men, on appearing in police court today, were remanded for a week, pending investigations being carried out by the Woodstock police. According to the story told by the self-confessed deserters, they had both served two years and eleven months in the United States army and had only one month more to serve to complete their enlistment terms.

Will Replace Older Boats in Canadian Service, Beatty Announces.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Nov. 26.—The Canadian Pacific Steamships contemplates building three liners to replace older vessels taken off the Canadian service this summer, such as the Marlow, Marburn and Montreal, President E. W. Beatty stated this afternoon.

The three latter ships will be sold and the new boats will likely be similar to the Montrose and Montclair. The matter would be brought before the directors at a later date, when the details would be worked out, Mr. Beatty said.

Home Is Sought For Royal Swan

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 26.—The blue ribbon swans, from the King's gardens, Crystal Palace, London, England, are becoming too numerous for their small enclosure, and Park superintendent Joseph Clark is anxious to dispose of some. At present there are three pairs of birds which could be given a new home. One pair is a year old and the other two pairs are three and four years old. The swans are direct descendants of the royal swans found in Kensington Gardens and on the Thames River.

To Canadian veterans are the outstanding features of a draft constitution for the proposed union of veterans, which will be presented to the conference of war veteran organizations here tomorrow.

The conference spent most of today debating a name for the union, and the session adjourned late this afternoon until tomorrow to permit the constitution committee to conclude its labors.

SEEKING DESIGN FOR NEW ICE CHEST

Ice Dealers See Menace of Electrical Refrigeration, But Are Not Discouraged.

LONDONER ON BOARD

S. Gilles of London was elected a member of the executive of the Ontario Ice Association at the annual convention being held in Toronto.

The ice dealers, among other things, met to consider the menace of the electrical refrigerators. Like philosophers they decided to take conditions as they are, admitting that mechanical refrigeration has come to stay. They decided, therefore, to develop trade among the 55 per cent of Ontario people who do not use ice. To this end a committee will gather information and will consider the question of designing a new ice chest that will be efficient as well as cheap.

P. J. Moody of Hamilton, president, in his annual report said that practices which formerly brought into ridicule the ice dealer being brought into ridicule or even, disrepute had given place to such systematic and efficient service that the ice dealer today on a level with men in any other line of business in the respect in which he was held by his fellow-citizen.

"With an industry representing an investment of nearly five million dollars," said Mr. Moody, "ice dealers have no small part to play in the business of this province."

In an address on "How Best to Reach the Consumer," J. L. Lane of the Norris-Patterson advertising agency, stressed the value of newspaper advertising peculiarly. A consistent educational campaign in the newspapers and otherwise, he said, would be of great value to the ice dealers.

Chancellor Whidden of McMaster University discussed high ideals in business at a banquet in the evening.

ADVERTISING CLUB TO HEAR NOTED SPEAKER

Thomas V. Hendricks, Prominent Cleveland Businessman, Coming Here Tuesday.

Thomas V. Hendricks, Cleveland, Ohio, past president of the Cleveland advertising club and vice-president of the advertising affiliation, comprising the advertising clubs of London, Hamilton, Buffalo, Rochester, Erie and Cleveland, is to address the members of the advertising and sales club and their friends at the Tecumseh house on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Mr. Hendricks is a business man who talks business entertainingly. For over 20 years he was engaged in newspaper work. As a professional platformist in lyceum and chautauque work for four years, he knows audiences. As a teacher of public speaking, in charge of classes for the Cleveland advertising club and the Cleveland chapter of the American Institute of Banking for several years, he knows the technique of public speaking. Having been an editor, publisher, chautauque manager, advertising and sales manager, he possesses a knowledge of the practical as well as the theoretical angle of merchandising.

Mr. Hendricks was identified with the big Liberty Loan and Community Chest drives in Cleveland, having directed the speakers throughout these campaigns. He managed the Cleveland war exposition and also that city's 125th anniversary celebration.

CANADIANS WILL SEND DISPLAY TO BIRMINGHAM

It is now certain that many Canadian manufacturers will send exhibits to the British industries fair, which opens about the end of February, and which will probably be visited by between 40,000 and 50,000 people from all parts of the world, according to F. W. Field, senior British trade commissioner for Canada and Newfoundland. The great fair will be held simultaneously in London and Birmingham, and is now the largest annual trade fair in the world.

The fair originated immediately after the great war, when buyers who had been in the habit of drawing their supplies from Germany and Austria were forced to find alternative sources and sought names of likely British manufacturers, asking them if they could produce these commodities and the fair started so that manufacturers might view these products and thereby the better form an opinion.

After a short time the buyers declared that they found the English products satisfactory, adding that an exhibition has been held each year since 1915, with the exception of this year, when it was decided to suspend operations in view of the Wembley exhibition being held a second year. But the fair will be resumed again next year at London and Birmingham, England.

Much public and political interest is centered about the exhibition, and it is not strange to hear it discussed in clubs, meetings and in homes.

Information with regard to the fair can be secured from the London chamber of commerce.

MORTGAGES QUESTIONED.

In an action that has been set down for trial before Mr. Justice Mowat in the non-jury sittings of the supreme court of Ontario which opens Monday, December 7, the plaintiff is Victor Jackson, trustee of the Purdy Products, Limited, in bankruptcy, against the Western Canada Flour Mills.

A. R. Douglas is solicitor for the plaintiff, with McFarlane & Thompson of Toronto appearing for the defendant company. The action is entered to decide whether two chattel mortgages each from the Purdy Products Limited and Robert Faircliff shall be declared void against the trustee.

MODERN TRAFFIC DEMANDS MODERN BRIDGE, SAYS NEAR

City Engineer Says $75,000 Will Build Suitable Ridout Street Structure in Time For Next Summer's Rush of Traffic.

City Engineer W. P. Near, in discussing the Ridout street bridge blylaw asking the people to vote $75,000 for a new structure, declared that a new bridge was an absolute necessity.

"The present bridge has been condemned for present-day traffic, and doesn't admit of repairs or strengthening," said the engineer. "The only solution is a new bridge, and the only type that should be considered is one with room for street railway tracks down the center which would separate the lines of traffic and promote safety."

Not a Luxury.
"A new bridge is not a luxury, but a necessity," continued the engineer. "We can't hold traffic up forever and make it slow down on the bridge. Modern traffic demands modern bridges."

"The $75,000 will build a substantial bridge of fair appearance, and the existing foundations will be used as far as possible."

Seven Good Reasons.
In a signed statement issued to the public, Mr. Near says:

"The existing Victoria bridge was built 50 years ago, and traffic conditions have been revolutionized in that time."

"The old bridge has been condemned and is neither wide enough nor strong enough to carry present-day traffic."

"The type of construction of the old bridge does not permit of repair or strengthening to meet traffic demands."

"A new combined highway and street railway bridge is required to provide tracks in the middle of the street and separate the lines of traffic in the interests of safety."

"By straightening the railway tracks and pavement, and by providing a sidewalk on each side of a new bridge the entrance to Thames park playground will be rendered as safe as possible."

"The proposed new bridge will consist of girders or low trusses and the unsightly overhead bracing will be eliminated. This also improves the view and promotes safety."

"Now is the time to build a combined bridge and secure a fair share of its cost from the London Street Railway Company."

"The Gibbons medal, presented by the estate of the late Sir George Gibbons, K.C., has been competed for by students of the central collegiate for many years, but this is the first time, in recent years at least, that Principal Miller has not been able to decide the winner upon the results announced by the department of education as to the grade standing secured on the papers written on without knowing the actual marks secured on each individual paper."

Here is Principal Miller's problem, to decide between the following, keeping in mind that grade I means from 75 to 100 marks, grade II 65 to 74 marks, grade III 55 to 64 marks, and credit: 50 to 59 marks; girl, 11 firsts, 1 third; boy, 10 firsts, 2 seconds; girl, 9 firsts, 1 second and 1 credit; girl, 9 firsts, 1 second, 2 thirds and 1 credit; girl, 9 firsts, 1 second and 2 thirds.

When Principal Miller receives the marks made by these students he will be able to name the winner of the Gibbons medal and complete his list of 20 scholastic and medal winners preparatory to the concert and commencement exercises the latter part of next week.

The council will also deal with the matter of gasoline filling stations along the county roads. Many complaints have been coming in saying that these stations are built too close to the roadways.

COLLEGIATE STUDENTS ARE PLANNING ENTERTAINMENT

A program of unusual interest will be offered by the students of London Central collegiate institute at two concerts on the evenings of Dec. 4 and 5.

In addition to musical numbers from their own glee club and orchestra and physical culture exhibits from both boys and girls, there will be given the clever one act play, Mother Saves the Day.

The story concerns itself with an incident fairly common in young married life before adjustment has been completed—a quarrel over mothers-in-law.

By a very smart scheme the mothers themselves save the situation, and through some 40 minutes of snappy dialogue and clever action, the story draws to the usual happy conclusion.

The cast includes: Anne Macgregor and Edward Hammond as the young married couple; Margaret Griffiths and Mary McPherson as the mothers-in-law.

Principal Miller Is Forced To Write Department For Marks of Five Students.

Principal E. A. Miller, M.A., London central collegiate, has been forced to write the department of education for the marks made by five students on the pass matriculation examinations last June to determine the winner of the Allan Gibbons memorial medal at that collegiate.

The Gibbons medal, presented by the estate of the late Sir George Gibbons, K.C., has been competed for by students of the central collegiate for many years, but this is the first time, in recent years at least, that Principal Miller has not been able to decide the winner upon the results announced by the department of education as to the grade standing secured on the papers written on without knowing the actual marks secured on each individual paper.

CAMPAIGN MAY GO INTO SECOND WEEK

Canvassers For Beck Memorial Are Anxious To Attain Objective.

With the mailing yesterday of 17,000 return postcards to every hydro customer in London, the local campaign in behalf of the Beck Memorial endowment fund entered its final stage.

Although it will be a week or ten days before all the reply cards are in, there will be sufficient replies received by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week to enable the committee to estimate the success of this new departure in campaign ideas.

With the permission of the executive committee of the board of education, teachers in all the public schools of the city will speak briefly to the children explaining the idea of the postcards and asking them to carry the message home.

Team workers are still busy following up calls preparatory to tonight's report meeting at Smallman & Ingram's dining-room at 6:15.

Several instances have occurred where prospective subscribers have declined to sign a card on the first call of the canvassers, but have later made substantial subscriptions. This fact has resulted in team workers making a number of second calls, which have been quite successful, and will help to swell the total reported tonight.

The workers are all anxious to continue the canvass until the objective is reached, and may decide at tonight's meeting to continue the effort during part of next week.

Dr. Pratten, medical superintendent of the sanatorium, who was to go to Preston tonight to speak in behalf of the fund, received a message saying that the proposed meeting would not be necessary as that town had more than reached its objective.

Kingsville, Ontario, is the only known place in North America where native swans assemble. For years they were considered by ornithologists to be practically extinct, until they followed the wild geese to Jack Miner's bird sanctuary, where they found a safe resting place. An unusually large group of the beautiful birds is shown above. They were photographed recently a little way off shore on Lake Erie.

SCHOOL PUPILS TO WORK FOR CENTENNIAL PROGRAM

London collegiates and public schools are getting behind the centennial celebration to be held the first week of next August. A committee of six boys waited on Mayor Wenige yesterday to tell him that the collegiate pupils were willing to do whatever they could to make the reunion a success.

The mayor presented the boys with 200 reunion buttons and told them that once the heat of the election campaign was over, he would have more work mapped out for them.

PROSPECTOR CONFESSES MURDER OF HIS RIVAL

Pioneer B. C. Trapper Killed in Fight While Visiting Trap Line.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Williams Lake, B.C., Nov. 26.—Through the telephone here Provincial Police Chief Gallagher on Tuesday listened to a dramatic story of an alleged murder in one of the wildest spots of the Chilcotin district in Central British Columbia. At the other end of the wire Constable Ian McEae reported that Fred Cyr had appeared at police headquarters at Hanceville and confessed he had killed Alex Ducharme, a pioneer British Columbia trapper, as a result of a quarrel over a trap line.

According to the alleged confession Cyr, after shooting Ducharme, had buried the body in a grave near where the tragedy occurred in the forest at Chilko Lake, on November 2.

MANNING DOHERTY QUILTS THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY

Ex-Leader of Ontario Party Resigns From the Legislature To Support Meighen in Federal Politics—Action Comes as Complete Surprise—Leaves Today For West.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 26.—Manning Doherty, M.L.A. for East Kent, in a statement issued this evening, announced that he had resigned from the legislature. Mr. Doherty was minister of agriculture in the Drury Farmer-Labor government, and after its defeat led the union farmers at Queen's Park for one session.

In giving his reasons for retiring, Mr. Doherty stated: "The main purpose of the farmers' party having been accomplished, I feel duty bound to give my support in federal politics to the party whose pronouncements most nearly coincide with my ideas."

This, the statement set forth, was the Conservative party.

Mr. Doherty in his statement outlined the steps connected with his appointment as minister of agriculture in the Ontario Farmer-Labor government. As minister, he devoted much time and effort "placing before our people the national advantages which would come from the putting into force in this country a system of commodity co-operative marketing of farm products."

It was explained that while he made substantial progress, it was comparatively slow because the principles and technique of such co-operation was entirely new to the people of Ontario when he began.

"I gave my support to the Farmer party," the statement added, "because I was in full accord with their determination to force the government of this country to recognize the vast importance to the welfare of Canada of developing in an aggressive, business-like way our agricultural possibilities."

I am without a single regret for the part I have taken in the political activities of the organized farmers of this province. The importance of our agricultural problems is in the minds of our public men of today as never before in the history of Canada.

Party Aim Attained.

"As a party we have accomplished the main purpose of our coming into existence. After much thought and a careful survey of the present situation I have come to the conclusion that the immediate problems of agriculture are economic rather than political. I would not, however, hesitate a moment to again join in a farmers' political movement should our government fail to give a systematic support to the farmers' demand for the economic marketing of their products."

"The present political situation at Ottawa is one of grave concern to every serious-minded citizen. Canada is confronted with tremendous problems which must be grappled with at once or our children's problems will be even more serious than ours. Definite leadership in public affairs must be established and without unnecessary loss of time. The main purpose of the farmers' party having been accomplished, I feel in duty bound to give my support in federal politics to the party whose pronouncements most nearly coincide with my ideas."

Right Hon. Mr. Meighen has stated that if his party comes into power he will set up a tariff board which will, after thorough investigation, make recommendations to the government as to tariff adjustments. I have always been in support of such a policy. He has further stated that if his party comes into power he will immediately give every legislative aid and assistance toward the establishment in Canada of a national co-operative system of marketing our farm products, both at home and abroad. As the main purpose of my entry into public life was to bring about the acceptance of such a system, I feel I am bound to give my support to the political party which has announced its intention of putting it into effect.

Not Fair to Electors.

"It is true that the electors of East Kent elected me as their representative in the legislature, and the matters of policy herein discussed are federal rather than provincial. I feel, however, and technique of such co-operation was entirely new to the people of Ontario when he began.

"I have, therefore, asked the speaker of the legislature to accept my resignation as member for Kent East. In due time it will be accepted. It is my sincere hope that you will approve of the action which I have felt compelled to take."

DUTY TO MOVEMENT.

Special to The Advertiser.
Thamesville, Nov. 26.—The decision of Hon. Manning Doherty to quit politics and to devote all his time to furthering the cause of co-operative marketing among the farmers of the dominion was communicated to the executive of the East Kent United Farmers by the ex-minister himself at a special

Was Biggest Man in Agricultural Movement, Says Montgomery.

Special to The Advertiser.
Chatham, Nov. 26.—The ranks of the Farmers' party in Ontario have been dealt a hard blow by the action of the Hon. Manning Doherty, according to S. A. Montgomery, of Dover township, president of the Kent Farmers' Political Association. "There is no doubt about it, the Hon. Manning Doherty is the biggest man in the Dominion of Canada, as far as agriculture is concerned," declared Mr. Montgomery.

"If he joins the Conservative party, we have no quarrel with him. If he says that his convictions have caused him to take such action, you may be sure such is actually the case," asserted Mr. Montgomery.

Mr. Montgomery had a conference with Mr. Doherty about one month ago, and at that time no mention was made of his present action. Instead, his course in the coming session of the legislature was discussed, and he seemed to be dissatisfied with the Ferguson government.

he contemplated joining the Conservative party," Mr. McKenzie was asked.

Through With Politics.

"He did not," was the answer. "On the contrary, he told us definitely that he was out of politics for good." With a view to investigating co-operative marketing in the west, Mr. Doherty will leave for Winnipeg on Saturday, he told the executive. While there he will make a thorough study of the methods used in marketing, and will apply the knowledge gained to the situation in the province. "The troubles of the farmer were economic, and would not be relieved by political action, he stated."

Canadian Exports Must Be 50 Per Cent Home Products After April 1.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Nov. 26.—New Zealand is doubling the percentage of British labor and material required in imports under British preferential rates.

The present percentage of "British origin" required is twenty-five. The new regulations, which come into force on April 1, next, will be fifty.

The effect of it will be that Canadian goods exported to New Zealand will have to be fifty per cent Canadian labor and materials if they are to get the advantage of the British preference. The increase will particularly affect Canadian branches of American firms which are only assembling or partly manufacturing in Canada.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—The report, luncheon of the Beck memorial fund workers today, crowded out of the Pompeian Room at the King Edward hotel, gathered in the Oak Room. Chairman John O'Connor presided, and in a few characteristic remarks, urged the campaigners on to relax no effort to bring the $150,000 total in sight for Saturday noon.

The largest team report came from W. G. Pierdon with $58.75. The second was Willis MacLachlan's team with $49.15.

The day's total was $11,062.85, making the grand total $62,357.

URGES FOUR-HOUR DAY

George Bernard Shaw Pictures Life in Paradise of Fabian Socialists.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 26.—Picturing life in an idealistic socialist state, George Bernard Shaw wound up the Fabian Society's annual popular lecture course tonight, declaring that the standard day would be four hours work, eight hours sleep, and four hours for drinking, dressing, undressing and a little resting. That would leave eight for leisure.

The first postulate of the socialist, said Shaw, is that everybody must have the same income; for a person to get a penny more or less than his fellows would be a crime.

The Nurses' Home Bylaw:

Victoria Hospital has doubled in size in the last fifteen years, yet no extra housing has been provided during that time.

At present the nurses are living in six different buildings, where it is impossible to secure privacy, sanitation or proper toilet facilities.

Many nurses are accommodated in the Children's Hospital, occupying rooms that should be used for sick and crippled children.

These conditions are unjust to the nurses and tend to impair the efficiency and service of the entire hospital.

That is why a new nurses' residence is so urgently needed—a residence devoid of luxuries and frills, where the nurses may have the decent accommodation they are entitled to.

The cost will only be about 20 cents per thousand of your assessment.

A new nurses' residence will solve one of the most baffling problems that has ever confronted Victoria Hospital—and it will provide employment for the people of London.

The Ridout St. Bridge Bylaw:

If you have driven or walked over the present unsightly structure known as the Ridout Street Bridge you will appreciate how important it is that a new bridge be built.

The present bridge is a menace to motorists and pedestrians. It is unsafe. Cars are not permitted to travel over it at a rate exceeding five miles an hour.

A new bridge will make this much-used thoroughfare one which citizens can be proud of.

It will permit re-establishment of street car service, which has been cut off for many months.

It will give employment to many citizens.

A new bridge MUST be built some time. The longer it is delayed the longer will the life and limb of citizens be endangered and the longer will Londoners be forced to endure great inconvenience and discomfort.

The Victoria and Aged People's Homes Bylaws:

These two institutions have offered refuge to the old and crippled for years. At a surprisingly low cost per patient they are supporting the aged and incurable of the community, ministering to their scant wants—bringing happiness to them in their declining years.

These two splendid institutions are now in need of additional quarters and are asking London to vote $75,000 for extensions.

Londoners will respond wholeheartedly to this appeal of the aged and incurable.

Mayor Tells Electors Definite
Programs Have Won Him
Success in Past 3 Years.

George A. Wenige and John M. Moore, candidates for the mayoralty, were speakers at a well-attended meeting of civic electors held in Chesley avenue school last evening. Aspirants for honors in the aldermanic field were out in force, while candidates for the board of education and the public utilities commission were also present.

J. M. Moore, who is running for mayor in opposition to Mr. Wenige, made his first public appearance in the present campaign, and in a brief speech pledged himself to give all his energies to the task of being chief magistrate of London, which he described as the greatest honor which could be accorded any citizen. He announced himself as being in favor of all the bylaws, which will have his hearty support.

Mr. Moore explained that he had accepted the candidacy for mayor at the request of 1,500 citizens from all parts of the city. The fact that so many London people desired him to run convinced him that he must sacrifice personal inclinations and accede to their request.

17 Years as Engineer.

He stated that he had previously served the city for a period of seventeen years as engineer of the waterworks department and later for three years as controller. "If elected to the office of chief magistrate I will give all my energies to the task and I will take my share of responsibility along with the aldermen for the conduct of the city's business. I leave my record in the past to speak for itself," he said.

Mayor Wenige, who was the first speaker of the evening, thanked the electors present for the large majority given him last year. "It has helped me to put my mind to work this year, otherwise I might have fallen by the wayside," he said.

Reviewing briefly his record during the three years he has been in office, he stressed the point that he had always laid down a program of work, a definite target to shoot at. "I spend an average of from 10 to 12 hours a day at the city hall, and yet I have never seen anywhere in the records, although I have looked, a printed program of work laying down definite objectives to be accomplished."

He enumerated some of the achievements of the past year, including Wellington and High street sewers, Seattle avenue sewer, Florence street sewer, the paving of the approach to King street bridge, paving of Wellington street and Wellington road, completion of the clean-up of the river and the east-end disposal plant. In referring to the latter, he paid a high tribute to the efficiency of City Engineer Near, who had carried out this work on a day labor basis at a cost greatly below the original estimates.

Excellent Investment.

The $10,000 spent by the city in improving Queen's park he regarded as an excellent investment.

Referring to certain changes at the city hall he said that he had found that booze and business didn't mix well there. "Unfortunately we had to disconnect them," he said. "That is, it is unfortunate for some and they're not."

Regarding the coming centenary celebration, he stated that he had written over 6,000 letters personally to many cities and towns wherever ex-Londoners are to be found.

Unemployment relief work for the winter he regarded as very important, and he had made two definite plans, but this connection before he secured a written assurance from both political parties that this year the government will assume one-third of the cost of London's winter work to aid unemployment.

CHURCHES DISPUTE CLAUSE IN WILL

Guelph Woman Left Money To Presbyterian Church in Canada.

OPPOSED UNION

Special To The Advertiser
by Staff Correspondent.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Judgment was reserved today by Mr. Justice Kelly at Osgoode Hall in an unusual will tangled arising out of church union. Mrs. Annie H. Blair of Guelph, widow of a Presbyterian minister, left on estate of $17,800, and her will provided specific bequests of $4,400. The residue of $13,400 was to go to the home and foreign missions society of the Presbyterian church in Canada.

If there was no Presbyterian church in Canada, following union the residue was to be distributed among charitable institutions.

The residue is claimed both by the Presbyterian church and the United church of Canada. R. S. Cassels, K.C., for the Presbyterian church, stated that Mrs. Blair was well known as an opponent to union.

and Ald. F. B. Kilbourne spoke briefly. Other speakers included ex-Ald. Allan Towse, E. V. Cronyn, J. A. Croden, W. J. Kilpatrick, W. J. Scandrett, Tom Timbrell, and J. J. Timbrell, candidates for aldermanic honors.

C. R. Smith was the only utilities commission candidate who spoke at the Chesley school meeting.

Ald. Edwin Smith recounted his six years experience on the board of education and the two years he had spent on the council, and asked the people to support him for re-election only if he had given them satisfaction.

"Is the mayor present?" asked E. P. Cronyn. "I would not want to attack his address while he was not here. I gathered from his speech tonight that some $500,000 had been blown away in the city's business. If you see fit to send me to the city hall I will see that all windows are kept tightly closed, and that this amount of money is properly looked after. In five years the city's assessment has increased 40 per cent, and the mill rate has gone down 20 per cent. There is too big a difference, and I doubt that the city property valuation has been more than doubled in that length of time."

Will Make No Promises.

J. A. Croden claimed to have no policy or plan. "Had I known that the mayor had one already made, I should have got it from him and saved a lot of trouble. I will make no promises other than that I will always do my best for London if you elect me."

"I have been urged for three years to enter the aldermanic race," said W. J. Kilpatrick, "and that is why I am here. I shall, if elected, apply business principles to the running of the city's business."

"I have no strings tied to me," said W. J. Scandrett, "and I represent no class or clique. Some of my predecessors were here in 1826, when London was founded, and I should consider it a great honor to be on the council during the centenary year."

"I claim to have some business ability," said Tom Terry, "and if you feel that I have the necessary ability to fill the position of one of your eight managers I shall appreciate it."

Allan Towse said that he had taken a deep interest in the affairs of the city during the year he had been off the council, and felt qualified to join the ranks of next year's aldermen.

Money To Be Spent.

"I notice in the report given by the mayor that there is a great deal of money to be spent by next year's council," said E. J. Timbrell, "and I should like to have a hand in spending that money to the best advantage of the city of London. As a business man I have always been above reproach."

C. R. Smith, candidate for the public utilities commission, thought that two of the present members of that body had been there so long that perhaps they had come to think they owned it.

"We have had Americans drilling for water in the east end of London while Canadian drillers were lying idle, and not a drop of water from these borings has ever entered the city mains. I entered this contest because I object to water meters. We have a city engineer that costs us at least $10,000 a year, and he has an assistant, yet we had to hire an American to operate a pitometer here to discover gas leaks. Is that good business? The time has come for a change in the personnel of the public utilities commission."

D. D. Bell and Son of Shakespeare Sweep Oxford Section.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—J. W. Springstead & Son of Catston Centre, Ont., are the principal prizewinners in the sheep exhibits at the Ottawa winter fair. Official announcement of the awards to date, made late last night, credit them with winning all but one of the red ribbons in the Southdowns.

A. Shileds & Sons of Canfield, Ont., won five first prizes out of the six classes in the Shropshires.

In Oxford, D. D. Bell & Son of Shakespeare were big winners, securing four awards for the following entries: Ewe under one year, three ewes under one year, flock (two ewes and a ram), pen of four lambs.

Adam Thomson of Stratford, six prizes in the judging competitions for Berkshire swine. In two of the sow classes, Thomson won both first and second prizes.

No new candidates have been announced for the council.

Architect's Plan of Old Block Found By Stratford Historian

Special To The Advertiser
by Staff Correspondent.

Stratford, Nov. 26.—An interesting old relic of the past has been unearthed by R. T. Orr, president of the Historical society, in the form of the original architect's plan of the Oddfellows block. Incidentally it is something that has been searched for quite earnestly, as the Oddfellows had need of it.

An interesting feature of the plan is a notation regarding the building contract, which is witnessed by M. J. Hyde and signed by the following men on behalf of the order: Alex. Scrimgeour, David Scrimgeour, Joseph Johns, Jonathan Abraham, George Hildebrand, Thomas Orr, Samuel Whitaker, C. B. Johns, A. Smith, F. Winkler, Joseph Sharman, James Sharman and A. Williams.

The architects were Smith & Gemmell of Toronto, and the date of the notation is May 4, 1872. So far as is known, all the signatories to the plan have since passed away, though in many cases their descendants are still living here and are active members of the order.

BESCO HEAD WILL GO ON WITNESS STAND

Declares Purpose To Assist in Giving Royal Commission Facts.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Sydney, N. S., Nov. 26.—R. M. Wolvin, president of the British Empire Steel Corporation, announced at the opening of this morning's session of the royal commission investigating the coal industry of Nova Scotia that he had decided to go on the witness stand immediately because of certain personal charges that had been made and in order to give John W. McLeod, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, the fullest opportunity to prepare for his cross-examination.

He expressed his appreciation of the patience of the commission and hoped that neither J. B. McLachlan, former secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, nor John W. McLeod felt he had been vindictive. His purpose throughout the cross-examination of both these witnesses had been to assist the commission in obtaining the fullest possible information.

He congratulated Mr. McLeod on his conduct of the case to date and wished to join him in asking the commission to give due consideration to the human side of the case before them. He did not feel that the British Empire Steel Corporation was on trial. The corporation had no quarrel at present with its employees and hoped to continue the present relationship.

He had no charges to make against anyone. Mr. Wolvin then announced his intention of taking the stand and on being sworn submitted statements showing the extent of the organization and read a paper reviewing the development of the steel and coal industries in Nova Scotia.

Know What Is Best

AT THE THEATRES

LOEW'S THEATRE

Jackie Coogan.

In Old Clothes, Jackie Coogan scores another well-deserved hit. Jackie plays the part of the little Irish waif in the old clothes and with the whimsical characteristics that made him so popular. Max Davidson, as Ginsberg the ragsman, is again the uncouth old Jew, with whom Jackie joins forces in the struggle for existence.

The story is continued from the point left off in the Rag Man, only the money which they then possessed is lost in a copper speculation on Wall Street, and they are again in the junk business. A poor girl is taken in to board, they become attached to her, and it is around her that the romance of the story is woven. She falls in love with a young broker, whose mother heartily disapproves of the match, until she learns that she herself was once poor and was a girlhood sweetheart of Ginsberg. The story ends with Kelly and Ginsberg again rich through the favorable fluctuation of the copper stock.

The outstanding act of vaudeville is the last, Carnival of Arts. Three men and two women furnish an act of no small worth, singing the latest songs and dancing the latest dances. Their Apache dance met with great approval. Black and Dale were very good in a clever balancing act, while Al and Mabel Joy presented an act of talk, songs and dances.

Cleaning Up, a particularly funny comedy, and the usual Loew's Kinograms fill out the bill.

BYLAW NEEDS AID OF SERVICE CLUBS

Lions Appealed to by Dr. Grant For Assistance to Nurses' Home Measure.

Cub President Gillanders presided before 23 members at the weekly meeting of the local Lion club at their weekly luncheon in the Tecumseh house last evening. Merriment held sway as usual during the luncheon and the entertainment. The Lion club quartet was in attendance.

Dr. Alfred Grant of his city was speaker of the evening, and he delivered an address on the "Care of the Sick as a Community Project." Dr. Grant explained the evolution of the care of the sick from the first centuries until the present day. The care of the sick at the present time is one of the greatest responsibilities resting with modern communities.

"There are three elements that tend to the successful operation of hospitals which are the greatest aid in the care of the sick," declared Dr. Grant, "and these are the support rendered by service clubs, such as you are members of, the support of the laymen, and the aid of the medical world combined with the greatest of all, the nursing profession."

"These young ladies, of the finest type available, are required to have their matriculation, that they must go through a three-months period on probation, after which they have a three-year training course of twelve hours a day, seven days a week, often more, before they are graduated as nurses." In his address, Dr. Grant outlined the inadequacies of the present housing plan of the Victoria nurses as an expensive, unsatisfactory system. The residents of the nurses' home built 25 years ago to accommodate 60 have grown to an enormous number, and the inadequate and fruitless schemes to house them are a waste of money. The only sensible way out is the construction of the money-saving nurses' home to be voted on in the coming city election. Dr. Grant asked the Lions as a service club, and as one of the successful elements of a successful hospital to give the nurses' home project a boost.

The Lions, many of whom are interested in the new hotel project, questioned Dr. Grant of the hotel committee as to what progress was being made in the building plans. Dr. Grant stated that a committee had been appointed to make arrangements with a construction company, and that the ground would be broken in a few weeks. During the evening's business it was decided formally that instead of a bridge and church party, a dance would be held for the purpose of raising Christmas funds to go to charity. It was unanimously decided that the weekly luncheons will start in the future at 6:15 p.m., and business be finished by 8 o'clock, in order to leave the evenings free.

The membership committee of the club will put on a special drive for members at the beginning of the new year. Plans will be under way immediately, to make the drive successful.

J. A. STILES LECTURES ON 'AIDS TO SCOUTMASTERSHIP'

"Aids to Scoutmastership" was the title of an interesting lecture delivered last night at the semi-weekly session of the scoutmaster course being held in Cronyn Hall by John A. Stiles, assistant dominion commissioner, former dean of applied science, and a noted engineering authority at the University of New Brunswick.

DISTRICT DEPUTY VISITS LODGE AT LAMBETH

Members of St. Paul's, With Wives and Friends, Turn Out to Welcome W. D. Love.

Seldom has any district deputy grand master been accorded such a reception as was tendered Rt. Wor. Bro. W. D. Love of the London district at his mother lodge last evening. Members of the St. Paul's lodge, with their wives and friends, turned out in large numbers for the occasion and visiting brethren were present from the city and the surrounding district. Following the business in the lodge room, the members adjourned to the banquet hall and with the ladies enjoyed a bountiful fowl supper which had been prepared.

A splendid toast list was introduced by the chairman, Rt. Wor. Bro. W. D. Mann, and were responded to by the following: The King, Rt. Wor. Bro. C. H. Peacock, Grand Lodge of Canada, Rt. Wor. Bros. W. D. Love, J. T. May and J. W. Wallace; The Ladies, Rt. Wor. Bro. W. L. Stewart and Chief Birrell; the visiting brethren, Rt. Wor. Bros. E. Bond and Wor. Bros. T. Sampson; St. Paul's lodge, Rt. Wor. Chas. Crinklaw, Rt. Wor. E. Routledge, Rt. Wor. H. Poole, G. H. Hardy and Rev. Parr.

During the evening the Night Hawk orchestra furnished delightful music. Charles Auld and Mr. Bateman received house for their songs for their songs and readings. The National Anthem brought a most enjoyable and memorable evening to a close.

DRAINAGE COMPANY SUE.

A writ has been issued in county court by Ivey, Elliott & Gillanders for Aaron Hill of the town of Essex against the Ontario Farmers' Drainage Company, claiming the sum of $255. This amount is for a quantity of tile which plaintiff claims to have supplied defendant company at its orders and which, the plaintiff claims were delivered.

HURON STUDENTS TRIUMPH OVER ARTS SOPHOMORES

Huron college theological students last night triumphed over arts sophomores in the second debate of a series which is being put on by the literary society, in preparation for the coming of the imperial debaters, who will visit the university of Western Ontario some time in February.

The theologians upheld the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that western civilization is becoming a degenerating influence to mankind." Huron college was represented by Jack Blackwell, James Talmay, B.A., and J. T. Fish, while arts '25 pinned their hopes on Jack Wells, Fred Barnum and William McCulley.

Does That Cough Stick On Your Lungs?

ETIMARS HEAR PROF. LANDON SPEAK ON COLORED RACE

Professor Fred Landon delivered an address to the Etimars last night at their weekly meeting in Cronyn Hall. Professor Landon spoke on the colored races in America, and stated that they were brought to this country as labor in the newly founded colonies. He said that the colored race was labor at that time being imported to the land being available in such large quantities, and slaves then filled the necessity for labor. From the time after the civil war, when the negro colony, aided by old grafters and carpet-baggers, the feeling of enmity against the negro has grown and held, and blazes up occasionally in terrible outrages. The idea that the negro was a slave here is entirely wrong, declared Professor Landon. The negro was purely a farm laborer in the early days, and is emancipated now. Dave Finlayson, president of the Etimars, was in the chair for the evening.

DR. ALF. GRANT ADDRESSES LIONS ON CARE OF SICK

"Care of the sick as a community project" was the subject of an interesting address given by Dr. A. J. Grant at the weekly meeting of the Lions club, held in the Tecumseh house last evening. The speaker outlined in detail the care of the sick from the early centuries until the present day, and the successful gathering over which president J. C. Gillanders presided. Dr. Grant was greatly impressed with the line which was presented.

Dr. Grant, a member of the new hospital committee, outlined the progress which is being made with the construction plans, and announced that the first ground would be broken within a few weeks. Arrangements were made for the raising of Christmas funds to be used to charitable ends. The first of the year will witness the commencement of a big membership drive, which will be sponsored by the special membership committee. It was also decided at the meeting that the weekly luncheons would hereafter commence at 6:15 and that all business should be concluded not later than 8 o'clock.

A sister, Kate Telfer, and a niece, Alice Telfer, both of Paris, Ontario, inherit $300 cash each.

A daughter, Jean Lyle Elliott, Toronto, is to receive $3,000, and his widow, Gertrude Elliott, Toronto, inherits the residue.

WARM WOOLEN GLOVES IN GAUNTLET STYLE 89c PAIR

Excellent quality in lovat, brown, gray, beaver and blue heather. Good gloves for school girls of 12 years and older as well as for the ladies.

36-INCH PYJAMA CLOTH 35c YARD

About twenty different patterns, specially selected for this season of gift-making. Pyjamas and nightgowns make most acceptable Christmas gifts, particularly if good quality is combined with very attractive patterns. We show you Bluebird patterns and dainty stripes for ladies' wear, and the more conventional stripes for boys' and men's wear. Two weaves in this line, one is Vincennes, soft and cozy, the other the famous Spero weave for sturdy wear. Exceptional value.

CIRCULAR COTTON, 49c
