Canadian Troops Participate--Big British Advance on the Ancre River

CANADIAN TROOPS SHARE IN BRITISH VICTORY ON ANCRE

Advance Made on Both Sides of River in a Blinding Snowstorm--Many Prisoners Taken, and New Line Established

With the British Armies in France, Saturday, Nov. 18--via London, Nov. 19--British and Canadian troops won a battle in a snowstorm this morning.

The attacks from the south were made before daybreak, while a stiff wind sent flurries of snow into the faces of the British soldiers as they pushed down the slope towards the marshes along the Ancre.

They advanced nearly a quarter of a mile on a three-mile front to German positions south of villages of Grandcourt, Petit Miramont and Pys, and occupied the trench without great resistance.

Parties of British bombers advanced to the next German line, which is the last on the south side of the Ancre, raided the positions and returned to the trench previously captured.

reinforcements, while the only available road is under bombardment. A captured German order announcing to the garrison in the Ancre trenches, the impossibility of delivering the mails, adds:

"Owing to the British fire we cannot even bring up the barest necessities." The Germans are working hard in improving the original second line in front of Pusieux and Miramont, apparently anticipating further British attacks.

On the north side of the Ancre the advance was made from the eastern end of Beaumont. Capturing Holland wood, the patrols pushed forward to the Pusieux trench, a part of the original German second line, and at the end of which, at the river bank, the British now hold.

To-day's successes gives the British command of ruined villages, fortified farms and other strong points in the Ancre Valley. In the opinion of a staff officer, the German positions south of the Ancre are virtually untenable, as they are unable to bring up supplies and the River Cerna to Lake Presha, according to announcement made by the French War Office this afternoon.

This success reached its culmination yesterday with the entrance of French cavalry into Monastir, at half-past eight in the morning. During this same day French troops moved out to the north of Monastir and captured Hill No. 821 and other villages in this vicinity. They also took 620 prisoners and a considerable quantity of war material.

The Serbians, according to these advices, are delaying entering Monastir because of the fire and explosions which have virtually destroyed the city from which the population has fled.

Monastir, Evacuated by Teutons, Falls to Entente

French and Serb Forces Take City Which Exactly Four Years Ago, the Latter Captured From the Turks--Disaster to Bulgarians Now Impending

London, Nov. 19--Monastir has fallen! Outflanked by the Serbs, who drove forward dauntlessly along the ridges of the east, the Bulgars and Germans evacuated the city, the stronghold of Serbian Macedonia. The allies entered at 8 o'clock this morning.

Thus the first fruits of their long and bitter campaign have fallen to King Peter's troops. They have regained one of their most important cities, and as a symbol of the first great step in reclaiming their lost land have proclaimed it their capital.

The Bulgar-Teuton forces, swept back by the brilliant assault, are retreating in disorder to Prilep. The Serbians took a large number of prisoners and huge stores. They are pushing after the enemy and already have consolidated their positions on the Monastir Plain.

NEMESIS ARRIVES.

There is a vast amount of inspiration in this Serbian feat. A year ago King Peter's army was in flight before the invading forces of Mackensen, outnumbering them in men and outrunning them in guns. Battered and rent by the relentless crunching of the German machine they were driven from their last foothold in their own land.

The dauntless advance of King Peter's troops over the crests that buttress the Monastir Plain will take its place in military annals. Ridge after ridge fell before the Serbian charge and the Bulgar positions in the lowland had been turned.

Then the big guns of the allies were moved forward up the plain as the Teutons, caught under the enfilading fire of the Serbs on the east, were forced to fall back.

When the Entente artillery opened fire the Bulgarians had no alternative. They evacuated the city. Sarraïl now has accomplished the most important stroke of the entire Macedonian campaign. It comes at an opportune moment, for it is bound to have an immense effect on the Roumanian situation.

GERMANS MUST SOON AID BULGARS.

Though the Bulgarians are strong enough to continue their stiff resistance in Serbia, where the odds are greatly in favor of the defending forces, they can no longer weaken their southern army to aid Falkenhayn and Mackensen. On the other hand, they may soon find themselves in such a perilous position that the German commanders may be forced to draw from their own forces to save their ally from disaster.

From a military standpoint the recapture of Monastir is extremely important. It has already compelled the Bulgars to retire some distance to the north and east. In a few days they will probably take up positions extending from the Shar Mountains southward of Prilep, along the western edge of the Vardar Valley.

The key to this line would be the Babuna Pass, north of Prilep. If the Serbs were able to sweep the enemy from that part of the Vardar Valley south of the eastern entrance of Babuna, they would then have the advantage of the Saloniki-Belgrade Railroad and could smash to their greatest victories.

Present Plans. The Serbs' whole effort for the present probably will aim at the flanking of the enemy out of the Vardar Valley. A frontal attack would be not only costly but probably unsuccessful. During the next few days, and possibly weeks, the Serbs will drive on the Babuna Pass, down the Cerna Valley and northwest toward Ochrida and along the foothills of the Shar range.

By its recapture the Serbs have wrested from the Bulgars their greatest prize of the European war, to get which the Bulgars risked not only the hazards of the present struggle, but those of the second Balkan war before it. With its return to their hands the Serbs have also achieved what must be regarded as the first step in the reclamation of their whole country from the enemy.

The most important pages in the history of the rise and fall of Turkish, Serbian and Bulgarian power in the Balkans. More closely than any other country of these war-scarred lands it has been linked with the fortunes and disasters of the three countries.

Under three flags it has served as a war capital and has never lost its value as a position of vast strategic importance.

By its recapture the Serbs have wrested from the Bulgars their greatest prize of the European war, to get which the Bulgars risked not only the hazards of the present struggle, but those of the second Balkan war before it.

The most important pages in the history of Monastir have been written under November successfully. It Continued on Page four

WAR STIRS ASPIRATION OF INDIA FOR DEVELOPMENT

Practical Importance of That Country to British Empire in Course of the Present War Awakes Spirit of Progress

Copyright 1916 by The Associated Press. Simla, India, Oct. 18--(From a staff correspondent of the Associate Press.)--India's new viceroy, Lord Chelmsford, to-day told a correspondent of the Associated Press during a formal interview that the war, by giving this country an opportunity to show its practical importance to the empire, had stirred Indian aspirations for development, politically and economically, and declared that it would be his endeavour to secure a practically response to this new desire for progress.

His Excellency spoke most warmly of the loyalty of India, of the alacrity and fine spirit with which Princes and people had identified themselves with the cause of the empire, and of his own great interest in India's problems.

The viceroy spoke of the surprise with which he had read various articles in American papers, purporting to depict conditions in India to-day and representing the country as laboring under an oppressive rule and shaken by revolutionary and seditious activities.

"The British Government," continued Lord Chelmsford, "has not designed formally to repudiate such calumnies--perhaps this has been a mistake--but for my part the reply which I give you is this simple one:

"Go wherever you please throughout the length and breadth of India. Study our work and study our difficulties. No sentry will bar the way and no secret agent will shadow you. Talk to whom you please; see what you please; do what you please and then write what you please. In India we have nothing to conceal. Will you tell your countrymen that?"

The correspondent called attention to the changing political conditions in India and to the fact that certain Indian politicians were advocating that still more of the affairs of government be turned over to them.

"No doubt at the present moment, political problems are attracting the greatest attention both in and out of India," replied the viceroy, "but none the less it is a mistake to suppose that these are new problems, which have recently come up, or even different problems from those on which we have worked in the past. The political development of India has always commanded our anxious attention and has always been progressive."

"British statesmen have always conceived in a generous spirit their responsibilities to India and the Indians. Perhaps the rate of definite political progress has been slow, but constitutional development can hardly be other than slow, and I have little doubt that, whatever the future of the Indian policy may be, the Indian historians of its later growth will ascribe no blame to the power which has, with due deliberation, guided their country through the early and difficult ways of political development."

"But the war, affording India an opportunity of displaying in the most dramatic fashion its practical importance to the empire, has accelerated the pace. It has stirred Indian aspirations, and the new partnership on the battlefield has quickened sympathy of the whole empire with those aspirations."

CORP. THOMAS TEASDALE KILLED

Young Man of 84th Battalion Drafted to 73rd Highlanders.

A recently issued casualty list gave the name of Lance-corporal Thomas Teasdale, of the 73rd Highlanders as killed in action. Although his parents, his next of kin, are resident in England, he is a Brantford man having enlisted in the 84th battalion in the summer of 1915.

Formally employed as an engineer in the Y.M.C.A., he was unmarried, 20 years of age and resided at 46 Grand street. On the arrival of the 84th battalion in England, he was drafted to the 73rd Highlanders, although in the official casualty list he was listed as being attached to the Mounted Rifles. His regimental number served however to identify him.

Is Missing. Lieut. H. J. Stewart, of Toronto, previously reported wounded and now reported missing, secured his commission as an officer in the Dufferin Rifles. He has many friends here who will sincerely hope that he may yet turn up all right.

City to Contribute to the British Seamen's Relief

County Will Also Be Asked For a Grant—Stirring Appeal Delivered in City on Saturday Evening.

"You remember the message of King George to Admiral Jellicoe at the very outset of the war, in which His Majesty expressed the hope that the Royal Navy would once again prove itself the sure shield of Britain and her Empire. Not only have they kept the shores of England free from invasion, but they have bottled up the enemy's fleet in the seclusion of the Kiel Canal—have maintained the freedom of the seas for all the nations and have made possible the transportation of troops, munitions and merchandise from all parts of the earth. The desperate battle fought in the South Pacific, the South Atlantic, the Dogger Bank and off Iceland; the irresistible pressure placed upon the enemy's commerce the world over; the wonderful defence against the submarine terror, are all exploits of the British Navy in which we have gloried, but we have taken them as a matter of course. Nothing more was expected, for we have been taught to look upon the officers and men of the British Navy as the bravest and most efficient of men—our sure shield against all foreign aggression."

The speaker was Mr. M. P. Fennell Jr., of Montreal, secretary of the Board of Harbor Commissioners of that city. The occasion, his address delivered in the Auditorium of the Y.M.C.A., on Saturday evening, when the speaker made a most eloquent appeal for funds for the British Seamen's Association, to such good effect that the assurance of a grant of $5,000 from the city council was received, together with the prospect of a similar sum from the county council, and probably grants from a number of the large exporting manufacturers of the city, in addition to the amount done during the war by the British Navy, and of the urgent need existing for funds to aid its wounded and disabled. In asking for the sum of $10,000 from the city of Brantford, he did not consider that he was making an exorbitant demand, in view of the fact that the war was now in its third year of duration, which would mean a contribution of only slightly over $3,000 per year. Canada owed much to the British Navy.

"With the exception of a few raids on the English coast," declared the speaker, "and the killing of civilians, women and children, only once has the German navy ventured to test the supremacy of our own."

Aside from the work of the silent Navy, few Canadians, if at all, realized what demands would be made in war times, upon the mercantile marine and upon the quiet fisher-folk who came and went upon their lawful occasions to and from every little haven in the British Isles—and fewer still could have visualized, before the war the deeds that these men have since performed. They have kept their ships open to the world, though every man might bide the death that floats by night and day, in order that the commerce of the Empire might not stay its course, and that the Empire's troops might press upon their way.

Saved By Ships

While we Canadians have given unstinted praise to the work performed by these men, it is not a fact that we have failed in our appreciation of what that work has meant to us? Have we realized at all clearly, that if the fighting of our brave sailors had been less efficient, in all probability the "Hun" would now be the master of the world and our women and children would be subjected to the worst horrors of warfare, such as were inflicted upon the poor Belgians, whose only offence was that they refused to sell their honor. Had it not been for the effective work performed by the Grand Fleet, just two years ago, troops from Germany would certainly have landed in France and Belgium, and before realized, the foes would have become properly embedded in the greatest strategic positions. England was not prepared to fight on Flanders' fields. It is no neglect to be unprepared in things which no one can foresee, but the navy was prepared and its preparedness has protected civilization for the whole world. So when in haughtiness the Hun flung into the world's circle its gauntlet of defiance and showed its fiendish purpose by strangling Belgium, the British sailors closed Germany's ocean gates at Kiel and on the Baltic, and there was set as a to make a grant of $10,000 to the cause from the city's funds. Mayor Bowley and Ald. Dowling considered that the sum named should be borne more evenly between the city and county, as the farmers were not often called on to contribute to such institutions. As chairman of the finance committee, Ald. Dowling has endeavored to have the city contribute to this subject, and was able to give practically an assurance that the council would consent to a grant of $5,000, while the county council would probably contribute a like sum. A committee was accordingly appointed to wait upon the county council on Tuesday morning, when the appeal will be made by Mr. Fennell, who will remain in the city for that purpose.

The suggestion was forwarded that a number of the leading manufacturers of the city, who have a large export trade, which would be non-existent save for the protection of the navy, should be willing to contribute to such a worthy cause. A committee was appointed to interview the leading manufacturers of the city in this regard. Messrs. W. F. Cookshutt, W. G. Raymond, C. Cook, and Messadmes Livingston and Sutherland were appointed a committee to wait upon the City and County Councils, and Messrs. W. F. Cookshutt, E. L. Gould, H. H. Powell, G. Hately, Mrs. S. Alford Jones, and Miss Carlyle a committee to wait upon the manufacturers.

Complaints Of Non-Delivery

Under ordinary circumstances the distribution of a Daily Newspaper is a big task, even with an organization trained for the purpose. When great numbers of new subscribers come all together, the difficulties become greater. The rush during the Great Prize Contest now on is an illustration.

At this time it will probably be impossible to avoid all mishaps and mistakes, although every precaution will be taken by the publishers to ensure the delivery of each number of the paper.

The publishers are determined not only to remedy any such mishaps and mistakes, and to reduce them to the lowest degree, but to spare no trouble or expense to prevent them in future.

With this end in view the publishers request subscribers to communicate every complaint regarding late or non-deliveries by letter, card or Phone 139.

British Columbia's Sailing Schooners

Fast Nearing Completion

It is well known that tonnage has been very scarce and it is no longer their first cost from one year's freight. In the past two years there has been no limit to the rates charged. In some cases they are ten times higher than those which obtained at the outbreak of the war. Of course such circumstances stimulate ship-building very materially. But Canadian plants are at some disadvantage in that materials are very hard to get, and the planters could not turn out shipbuilding parts as engaged upon the making of munitions. Government persuasion and the impetus from the planters, however, there are and hence such normal requirements as those of the peaceful mariner have been somewhat neglected. Despite difficulties, however, there are many vessels being present under construction. In British Columbia it is understood that there are at least twenty-five vessels still in course of construction, and of these three are of steel. The wooden constructions are intended more particularly for lumber export purposes and the steel vessels for general tonnage. Of the wooden vessels the Canada West Coast Navigation Company has contracted for eight, and all of these have already been chartered. The first, it is expected, will be ready in January next, and the others will be forwarded one each month will be delivered by the yards. Of the steel vessels under construction one is for the Japan trade and the other two for general freight purposes. When the wooden vessels, which have a lumber capacity of 1,500,000 feet each, commence their sailing it will result in important developments in the lumber industry at the coast. The exporters in British Columbia have been seeking some real advantages, one of the chief being that for every export shipment the chartering had to be done in San Francisco at a rate higher than from points in the United States.

Discussing the situation from the lumberman's standpoint The Western Lumberman says: "In the near future the lumber exporters of this Province will have at their command eight or nine auxiliary power wooden schooners of good carrying capacity—the nucleus of a merchant fleet which is expected to number at least twenty-five vessels within the next twelve or fifteen months. No longer will our lumber trade be entirely at the mercy of foreign charterers, and British Columbia forest products shipped in British Columbia bottoms, may in time earn the reputation that has heretofore been denied them through being marketed as American lumber. These desirable things have been made possible through the passage of the British Columbia shipping bill, under the terms of which the builders are advanced fifty per cent of the cost of construction, to be paid back with interest in five years, while each vessel operated in accordance with the act will earn an annual net profit of not less than to exceed the sum of five dollars per ton, if same be necessary to bring the annual earnings of the ships up to fifteen per cent. The British Columbia fleet had long been recognized and very frequently advocated, but it was early in 1914 before the Government took an initiative to carry out the plan. At that time the lumber manufacturers of the Province were experiencing difficulty in keeping their plants running, and financial stringency had developed and the prairie demand for lumber had fallen off badly. Then came the war, with its blighting effect on the export trade of the Province, not because the products of the Canadian west were not in demand, but because there were no 'bottoms' available to handle it. The news was at a premium. Anything in the shape of a ship was placed under charter at large figures. In America nothing is so scarce as the lucky individuals who the boats were making everything there was to make, and the business of British Columbia was becoming stagnant."

Enlistment Creeps Up. Enlistments for the first half of October totaled 3,190. This is an increase of 124 over the preceding fortnight. Enlistment continues at the rate of about 6,000 per month, but it is hoped that with the advent of winter the release of a considerable number of men now engaged in agricultural or other outside work will again stimulate enlistment. Total enlistments since the outbreak of war are now placed at 348,845. To gauge the present effective fighting force there must of course be deducted from this figure probably at least twenty per cent, for wastage from the front, desertions and rejections for physical unfitness.

By military districts the recruiting figures for the period from October 1st to 15th are as follows: No. 1 (London), 314; No. 2 (Toronto), 447; No. 3 (Kingston), 358; No. 4 (Montreal), 672; No. 5 (Quebec), 130; No. 6 (Maritime Provinces), 328; No. 10 (Manitoba and Saskatchewan), 425; No. 11 (British Columbia), 286; No. 13 (Alberta), 286.

Bleach for White Wool. When you begin looking over the supply of winter clothing don't get discouraged if the white wools have become yellow. A weak solution of hydrogen peroxide with borax added is a good bleaching agent for wool.

To make a solution as follows: Add one part hydrogen peroxide to ten parts of water and use a tablespoonful of borax to each gallon of water.

NO LIQUOR IN BAKERIES.

Ready-made Cakes Must Not Contain Any Liquor in Ontario. Mince pies, plum puddings, etc., in Ontario will be made without brandy or other liquor this Christmas, unless those holiday eatables are made in the home. According to the Ontario License Board the Ontario Temperance Act does not make any provision for the baker using liquor in his business, and a baker who called upon the board recently for light upon the point was sent away with sound, if unwelcome, advice.

The Ontario License Act allows the keeping of liquor for manufacturing purposes, but the clause setting out the different articles into which it may be placed does not include confectionery of any kind.

There is no outlet for the baker by keeping the liquor in his own home and bringing it to the shop, since carrying it from one place to another is an offence, while having it in a building used as a bake shop and partly as a residence is also an offence unless the residence where it is kept is entirely shut off from the shop.

The discussion of the scope of the law in making it an offence for a citizen to have liquor in his possession except upon his own residential premises apparently indicates a way out for the man with the flask. According to the view expressed at the License Department, the Act makes it legal for a person to "carry liquor from one place where it may be legally kept to another place where it may be legally kept." For a person to carry liquor from his home to the home of a neighbor or friend, both being places where liquor may be legally kept, is stated to be within the law.

While one or two convictions have indicated that having liquor on a person is to be construed as a violation of the law, it is said that the Act in its bearing upon this point will be used more to keep a check upon the operations of bootleggers than to harry the man who likes to have a "nip" about.

CHAMPION HEN DEAD.

Sho Came Within Four Eggs of World's Laying Record. Within four eggs of the world's yearling-record for all breeds of hens, a Barred Rock hen bred and raised by the Poultry Staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has given up the ghost. The hen, which had been laying 4888 at a phenomenal rate for a year, had broken the record for Barred Rocks with an egg a day more to complete the test year had laid 310 eggs. According to officials of the Department of Agriculture this is the largest number laid by one hen in one year in Canada, and as far as they have been able to ascertain is the largest number ever laid by a representative of the Barred Rock breed in the world. The world's record for any breed is 314, and since the O. A. C. champion before her death was laying an egg a day as regularly as clockwork, that record would have been broken, too, had she lived out the year.

The loss of the hen is regretted because of the lost opportunity to establish a new record by an Ontario bird, it is not otherwise serious since the O. A. C. has a larger number of hens than any other breed in the world. For years the Poultry Department at the O. A. C. has been making a specialty of Barred Rocks and a utility breed good both for egg laying and for the table. This work has given splendid results, and this year the O. A. C. has a larger number than ever of hens giving a yearly average of 200 eggs or over and among them the daughters of the champion were the highest producers.

Three years ago the record for Canada was 282 eggs and for the Province as a whole the average backyard hen contributes only 80 eggs a year.

The Department is encouraging the raising of special Barred Rocks by farmers and poultry raisers. This fall eight thousand settings of eggs of this breed were distributed to children through the rural school fairs.

THE COURIER

Monday, November 20th, 1916.

THE SITUATION

One of the most important of recent war events is the capture of Monastir. French forces had the privilege of first entering the city, but that fact was rendered possible by the splendid success of the Serbians on Friday among the mountains to the east of the place. Berlin officially admits that Bulgar-German forces withdrew on Saturday night. They have taken up positions north of Monastir, but King Peter's troops are still pressing forward and their new objective is said to be Priler and the Babuna pass. If they attain these they will be able to cut off the enemy supplies into Macedonia. The Bulgarians are evidently now in great need of further assistance from the Germans, but it is very doubtful if the Fatherland can spare the men needed. Meanwhile the position of affairs in this sphere of the fighting is very reassuring to the Allied cause, and the retaking of Monastir will undoubtedly exercise a big effect throughout the Balkans. In addition to the strategic advantage gained.

The news regarding Roumania is not so encouraging. Berlin claims that despite tenacious resistance, the German, Austro-Hungarian troops have forced their way through the narrow passes on the Transylvania front and have attained the Wallachian plain, and have reached a railway at a point which threatens to flank the Roumanian army south of the Vulcan pass. The British critics regard this as very serious, if true. On Saturday the British, including Canadians, marched forward, both north and south of the Ancre, on the Somme front. The movement took place in a snowstorm, and several strong points were taken. They also reached the outskirts of Grandcourt.

BRITISH NAVY APPEAL

The appeal presented in this city on Saturday night by Mr. Fennell, of the British Seaman's Relief Association, is one which should reach the hearts of everyone. The aim is to secure $500,000 in Canada and $425,000 of this amount has already been secured.

Without any doubt, Brantford should do its share.

What the Empire owes to the magnificent preparedness of John Bull's fleet, no words can adequately describe. Canada in particular, is under special indebtedness to that arm of the service, for had the German fleet not been bottled up, no one can doubt what would have happened not alone to our commerce, but also to our shores.

Most decidedly there should be an adequate response from this community to the present appeal. The first ever made here upon behalf of Britain's sailors.

SOME LAURIERISMS

The Liberals who gathered in conference at Ottawa last week, showed by that very fact that the devising of ways and means to get at the sweets of office, still means more to them than anything else, even in this war time period.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his speech to them, made the boast that all his life it had been his one aim to draw the two races in Canada together.

The hon. gentleman either has a very short memory, or else he thinks that his followers are ready to gulp down anything. As a matter of fact, his whole career has been the very reverse of what he so unctuously claimed.

At the time of the first uprising in the North West, fomented by Reil, he made a speech in the Dominion House in which he refused to regard that individual as a rebel, and when many years later Reil repeated his offence, Laurier actually stated that had he been on the banks of the Saskatchewan he also would have shouldered his musket against the soldiers who had been sent there to put down the trouble. These are simply two illustrations of how, in his earlier days as well as in middle life, he has always backed anything French Canadian as against the rest of the Dominion. That he is of a like opinion and purpose even in his old age, was demonstrated at Ottawa only last session, when he tried to sympathetically bring before the House the impudent attempt of the Quebec agitators to interfere with Ontario's school question and to force Bilingualism on this Province. Drawing the races together, forsooth! As a matter of fact, Sir Wilfrid has played the French-Canadianism first, last and all the time to such an extent that he has to-day only a baker's dozen of followers from all of Ontario.

With reference to the forcing of a war time election, which the Opposition can do if it so desires, Laurier set aside his previous refusal to attempt to open the door of office with that "bloody key". Instead he smirked a good deal over the assertion at the gathering that he would soon again be Premier and further said (Globe report):

"Some few days ago an important member of the Cabinet, who, it is said, will be Minister of Militia, came direct from his colleagues to Toronto, and declared that the Canadian Parliament would again be asked for another extension of its term. Mr. Meighen also made the same statement in Montreal. Both of these gentlemen said that the responsibility would be placed upon the Liberals, and especially on the leader of the Liberal party. Let me say at once that I am not afraid of responsibility."

Of course not. The man chargeable with that white elephant, the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, with the wrecking of his party over reciprocity, with the attempt to bring the Ontario School question into the Dominion area and with many other kindred things evidently takes responsibility very lightly.

The particular point in this instance is that this self same Laurier, when he thought of the country, vehemently protested against such a course during hostilities. That was because and his advisers did not consider the party ready for the fray. Now, with Manitoba, and British Columbia going Grit, they seem to consider they are in better shape for a tussle and are consequently quite willing to swallow their former protestations hokus bolus. All of which is pre-eminently Grit and also pre-eminently Laurieresque.

As to an appeal, if it should be precipitated, the administration has nothing whatever to fear. The Government as a whole, has met tremendous added responsibilities in a most efficient and capable way, and without any doubt the electorate would at the polls manifest their appreciation of that fact.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The fall of Monastir will cause quite a stir in the Balkans.

The Canadians, along with British troops, in the latest success on the Somme, did the trick in a snowstorm. Must have given them an added zest in fighting for the home land.

Miss Ruth Law, a United States woman aviator, has just made a record by travelling from Chicago to Hornell, a distance of 660 miles, without a stop. As to that flightiness has always been characteristic of the sex.

Kingston women are talking of giving up ice cream as a means of reducing the price of milk. Easy enough in this winter period, but what about the good old summer time?

It is rumored that the increased cost of clothing may lead some of the fair sex next spring to emerge with skirts circling around their necks.

MAYOR BOWLBY

Sends Letter Regarding the Blocking of Queen St.

In reply to a communication from the Trades and Labor Council, Mayor Bowlby has addressed the following letter:

Brantford, Nov. 18, 1916. H. J. Symons, Esq., Secretary the Trades and Labor Council, 115 Cayuga St., City:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of yours of the 16th inst., whereby your honorable body complained to me of the practice of vehicles blocking the Queen Street, between Dalhousie and Colborne, at a Mayors recognize the necessity of this street being kept free for vehicular traffic. This is a very narrow street, some 20 feet wide and in the centre of the business section of the city, and therefore the greater necessity for not having the traffic in such a street impeded. As Mayor, I have instructed the Chief of Police to station a man there to-day to see that such street is not blocked or vehicular traffic impeded thereon, with further instructions to him to continue to watch and see that this street is open.

I thank your Council for calling my attention to this important matter, and I have the honor to be, Yours very truly, J. W. BOWLBY, Mayor.

Tigers Beat 215th Batt.

The soccer team of the 215th battalion which played the 205th Tiger's battalion in Hamilton on Saturday, lost out by the narrow margin of one goal to none. The match was played on the grounds of the Hamilton Amateur Association, which were in a very sloppy condition, and prevented fast play. Shortly after the game had commenced, Corp. Black sustained an injury to his foot and was forced to retire, following a penalty which had just been awarded to him. As a result of the penalty the Tigers were enabled to score the only tally of the afternoon. Sergt. Prior of the 227th battalion, also quartered in Hamilton, discharged the duties of referee in a satisfactory and efficient manner.

MONASTIR EVACUATED

Continued from page one was in November, 1912, that a Serbian army first entered the city on the heels of David Pacha's vanquished Turks and raised the Serbian colors over the city. It was in November, 1915 that the Bulgar-Teuton army completed its victorious march through Serbia by the investment of Monastir and the utter route of King Peter's forces. And again it is in November that the re-organized Serbs have proved their ability to re-take their fatherland by sweeping into the southern capital.

Berlin Tries to Explain Berlin, Nov. 20.—(Wireless to Sayville)—The Macedonian town of Monastir was evacuated during the night by the German and Bulgarian troops, who retired to prepared positions farther north. They thus withdrew from highly unfavorable positions in the plains, where they were exposed to artillery fire from the heights to the south and southeast of the town.

Monastir is located at the bottom of a bowl surrounded on all sides by dominating heights. It was, therefore, tactically extremely unfavorable as soon as the enemy forces gained a footing on the rim of the bowl already had been done to the south, less than five miles from the town, and only a slightly greater distance to the southwest.

Since the opening of the campaign in the Roumanian theatre, which is regarded here at present as the decisive theater of the whole war front, correct decision, strategically and tactically not to call upon the defenders for heavy sacrifices and efforts to hold the town itself.

Serbs Get Credit London, Nov. 20.—The Serbians are given the lion's share of honor by the morning papers in discussing the fall of Monastir. The capture of Hill 1212 by the Serbians and their rapid advance to Hill 1378, threatening the Bulgarians' only avenue of retreat along the Prilep road, is considered the main factor in forcing the hasty evacuation of the city.

Military opinion insists that the allies must now advance toward Prilep, using Monastir as a base, and from there to Negotin, on the Vardar. From the latter town they claim that the Bulgarian position east of the Cerna could be outflanked and the frontier passes opened to the allies' forces which are now engaged northwest of Saloniki. The fall of Monastir is considered as clearly showing the superiority of the allies over the German-Bulgar forces in view of the formidable defences, which had been created around the city.

At the parsonage of the First Baptist church this morning, the pastor, Rev. Ilewellyn Brown united in marriage George Jacobson, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Cecelia Hay of Brantford. The couple will leave in a few days for their home in Minneapolis.

A very pretty, though quiet, wedding took place Saturday evening at the parsonage of the Sydney street Methodist church, when Annie Adelaide, daughter of John and Mrs. McLeod, 1 Darling street, and William Russell Gowman, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Smythe. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss D. J. McLeod, and the groom by Mr. J. W. McLeod. The bride was prettily attired in a travelling suit of brown broadcloth. The happy couple left on their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points east.

American Ship Ashore on Sands

By Courier Special Wire. Berlin, Nov. 20.—(By wireless to the Associated Press.)—The American Steamer Siberia, according to wireless reports received here is stranded on the East Goodwin Sands near Dover, and is asking for help. The officers of Siberia say it is impossible to launch boats owing to the heavy seas.

The vessel reported in the foregoing despatch from Goodwin Sands is undoubtedly the Steamer Siberia, of 3,347 tons gross. The Siberia was formerly owned by the Atlantic Fruit Company, but in the spring of this year, according to advices received in New York, was sold to the White Star Line, Liverpool, Glasgow, and London.

To The Editor

THE NEED OF ECONOMY. The Editor, Courier. Sir—It is an amusing idiosyncrasy of the dominant class in human society that when current conditions suggest the need of economy it is the working population alone which is urged to exercise it. The quotation from the monthly commercial circular of the Canadian Bank of Commerce illustrates this characteristic attitude of mind. I am surprised City Treasurer Bunnell attaches importance to it. To me the quotation provides evidence that while a banker, wellthought out, and a capitalist, he may be a tyro in economic science. There is obviously urgent need for a comprehensive, wellthought out, and a competitive and capitalistic finance, he may be a tyro in economic science. There is obviously urgent need for a comprehensive, wellthought out, and a competitive and capitalistic finance, he may be a tyro in economic science. There is obviously urgent need for a comprehensive, wellthought out, and a competitive and capitalistic finance, he may be a tyro in economic science.

Has the working class a sufficiently large margin of savings to be of any substantial national value? It must be remembered that this class is the one which produces all the material wealth of the country. Any "saving" which impairs industrial efficiency is economic waste. The working man must therefore, in his food, rent, and also opportunities for rational mental exhilaration. If these necessities are not met, the available margin is very small. In support of this contention I will quote information supplied by the last federal census. In 1910 I find 47,123 working people produced wealth, at manufacturers' prices, of the value of $7,247,583,609. All they received for it in wages was $1,728,701, or not one-sixth of the total. The cost of materials it is estimated that this amount represented greater part of this amount represented production, and not classified under the heading of manufacture. Canadian labour is represented in every department of production, even of raw materials, except in respect of the portlands of employment. In Canada not one cent of the individual incomes of the well-to-do has been appropriated for national purposes. The necessity not having arisen, people of this class have not reduced their luxurious expenditure one iota. In illustration of this fact I might point out that, for the current year, in Ontario alone fifteen thousand new automobile licenses, equal to one-half of the total of all previous years during the lifetime of a car, have been issued. This probably represents the equivalent of the annual purchasing power of thirty thousand working men or, including their families, one hundred and fifty thousand people.

While I suggest the available margin of economy held by the working class is negligible compared with that of the much smaller class enjoying unearned revenues, I do not, of course, assert the working man need not be thrifty. I strongly recommend it. Every dollar of purchasing power he conserves now will be a dollar badly needed during the readjustment period after the war. In addition, such conservation is of assistance at the present time in stemming the rise of prices, and maintaining the purchasing power of the dollar. People of high purchasing power can greatly assist in adjusting demand to the diminished supply if they will eliminate waste and unnecessary purchases. Before the war the late Dr. C. C. James, the well-known agricultural authority, declared more food was wasted in Toronto than would feed a German city of the same size, and no doubt the same remark will relatively apply to all our urban communities. In times like these the possession of purchasing power confers no ethical right unnecessarily to use it, for the reason that it injures one's neighbors; the consequent advance in prices reducing the ability of people of limited and fixed means to satisfy their reasonable requirements. Some authorities say this war will last two or three years longer. Can-

DEMAND CHANGE IN ADMIRALTY

Discontent Grows in England Over Recent German Raid on Channel.

By Courier Lensed Wire.
 London, Nov. 20.—There has been growing criticism of the admiralty lately owing to the recent channel raid and increase of submarine operations. The Post, Mail and Star commented pointedly on this subject last week and The Daily Telegraph this morning in a long editorial says that the Admiralty is strangely unaffected by changes due to the war. It adds that the nation's faith in Admiral Jellicoe's fleet is undiminished, but that the hostilities have brought unforeseen developments, notably in submarines, mines and aeronautics, all of which departments are operated by Germans in the prime of life. "It is not surprising," says the paper, "if the officers forming the Admiralty board, reared in a very different school, should be somewhat impervious to new ideas in these days of naval revolution. It is perhaps inevitable that the nation should wonder whether the admiralty would not gain were fresh blood introduced into its deliberations. "Above all things, the nation needs a board of admiralty open to new methods. Would it not be well if seamen fresh from the sea, experienced in the phase of warfare now being pursued by the enemy, were given a more commanding voice in our naval affairs?"

INDEPENDENCE OF LITHUANIA NOW

Is To Be Declared By Kaiser, His Second Son Becoming Ruler.

By Courier Lensed Wire.
 Paris, Nov. 20.—Germany is about to follow up her declaration of Polish independence with a similar announcement regarding Lithuania, according to despatches from Switzerland to the morning newspapers. The despatches say that the new state will probably receive Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of the Emperor, as its sovereign and will form a state of the German Empire with a similar status to that of Bavaria or Saxony. As in the case of Poland, the despatches add, the first step in the re-creation of the new state will be the formation of a Lithuanian army to fight under Field Marshal von Hindenburg. It is estimated that Lithuania could raise 150,000 men.

The new water main of St. John is to cost $30,000.

Mrs. H. M. Ide, wife of a home-steader, in Minnesota, had to stand by and watch a big black bear carry off the prize pig they were saving for Christmas. The men folks were away when the bear raided the pig-gery.

BIG GAME IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

- (1) A herd of caribou.
- (2) Mountain goat near Banff.
- (3) Fine black bear.

WING to its immense areas of forest among the mountains, British Columbia has remained a stronghold for the wilder forms of big game, which at one time were fairly numerous also in Wyoming and Montana, but which have practically disappeared in the United States, owing to the advance of settlement. The heavy snowfall which makes the ten-thousand-foot-high peaks inaccessible in winter is the natural refuge of the grizzly bear, the mountain sheep and the mountain goat—peaks and heads of which are three of the most prized trophies of the big game hunter, while in the untrodden forests of the Rockies and the Cassiar district the great antlered moose—the last surviving of the prehistoric giants—remains undisturbed except for the range, undisturbed except for the range, and guide come upon him unawares.

The moose of British Columbia are claimed as being the largest in North America. They are especially numerous in the northern interior of the province; they have a particular liking for the banks of the Pelly and Klondike rivers. Excellent hunting can be had in the vicinity of Atlin, and also of Cassiar, north east of Queen's Lake. As the moose is the most valuable animal in the Klondike district for a time, the animal is again becoming numerous there. Hunting the moose is one of the most attractive of sports, and happy is the hunter who succeeds in shooting one of these antlered monarchs of the forest.

Not less fascinating than the moose is the caribou, of which there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground caribou. The caribou stag is the greatest size at Cassiar place won the gold medal at an exhibition in Vienna. Glacier Athabasca (on the Kootenay Central Railway), Revelstoke, and Cranbrook are good points from which to start in search of caribou. Hunting districts in Lillooet can be reached from Ashcroft and Lytton. Columbian or coast deer are found all along the west coast of British Columbia as far east as the Cascade Range and all through the Crow's Nest Pass. British Columbia has an increasing number of mule deer. A deer of this variety also got a gold medal prize at the Vienna exhibition. Those deer are found over the whole of the interior of the province, but there are some spots which are more congenial to them than others; they are most plentiful in the Lillooet district. White tailed deer abound in the Kootenay.

The bighorn or rocky mountain sheep makes its home in the fastnesses of the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountains. A bighorn is counted upon as one of the most valued prizes a hunter can obtain, for it is very difficult to get within shooting range. The bighorn is of a suspicious nature, and can travel as far over the mountain peaks in a few minutes as a hunter can go in two hours. Epicures say that the flesh of a bighorn is the most delicious of the world's game. Its massive horns make a beautiful ornament. The best ground for hunting the bighorn is that portion of the Lillooet district roughly described as being north and south of the bridge at Chilcotin River and east and west of the Fraser River at Chilcoo Lake. The town of Lillooet is reached by stage from Lytton, Clifton or Ashcroft. Michel and Golden are good points from which to reach the Kootenay sheep country. The Cassiar country is easy of access. Amongst the giant peaks of the Rockies stand the home of the Rocky Mountain goat. He is clad in a coat of soft fluffy white, is fast and fearless in his motions, and can travel fleetly over precipices where man could not attempt to climb. As a lighter the goat is wonderfully brave and can use his sharp horns to great advantage for himself and destruction for the dog that faces him. The sportsman visitor to British Columbia will find a delightful and general environment which will appeal favourably to him. Guides can be easily procured.

The Canadian Pacific Railway gives a splendid service to the most convenient starting and outfitting points. The game is protected by excellent laws, and the guides, who are expert packers, are themselves keen sportsmen and familiar with the haunts of the animals they help to hunt. In addition to the game already mentioned the hunter in British Columbia may chance to have a shot at panther, elk, wildcat, antelope or wolf.

NO WAGNER MUSIC WANTED IN ITALY

German Composer Banned From Concert, Following Air Raid on Padua.

By Courier Lensed Wire.
 Rome, Nov. 20.—An attempt to introduce some of Wagner's music into a concert conducted by Toscanini resulted in an uproar last night which brought the performance to a premature conclusion. The orchestra had commenced the funeral march from Gotterdammerung when there were loud shouts of "It is for the victims of Padua." A storm of imputations against Wagner and Germany came from all parts of the great auditorium and the concert had to be abandoned. An Austrian aviator bombed Padua on November 11, and according to news despatches, killed 32 persons and injured about twice that number. All the dead were said to be non-combatants and most of them women and children. Pope Benedict made a strong protest to Vienna as a result of the raid.

After having lived for fifty days without any nourishment, except water and medicine, Anna Jamison, daughter of Levi Jamison, of Spring Grove, Pa., has begun to drink milk and other food. Her recovery is doubtful. Thrown from the seat of his wagon at Ashland, Pa., when his team ran away after passing an auto, George Belding, a farmer, sustained a fractured skull, fractured ribs and internal injuries that will cause his death.

Falling from the platform of the Thompson Square "L" station at Boston, Dennis Lahey, of Maden, grabbed the third rail and hung for five minutes by his hands until rescued by a policeman.

"FOLLOW YOUR NOSE"

White-Locks, the water-elf, summoned his companions to a meeting on the shore of the lily-pond where they all lived.

"It is true," he said, "that we have all quarrelled badly with the water-spiders. It is true that when the water-spiders and the elves started for the Land of the Rainbow in a balloon the spiders wove of silk, things came to such a pitch that the water-spiders overpowered us and put us in chains of spider silk. It's true the balloon tipped and spilled us back in to the lily-pond and we mercifully broke our chains in the fall, but the problem's still with us. How are we going to sail to the Land of the Rainbow?"

Nobody knew. White-locks wagged his head. "The thing to do, I say," he added, "is to patch up the quarrel with the water-spiders, get them to weave another of their under-water nest balloons, and then we'll get in and try not to quarrel. We'll sail instead with our magic to the Land of the Rainbow. Dip-and-Dart has gone up there ahead of us and the cloud letter that dropped from the lightning dart said he was pretty lonesome and couldn't leave."

"Wait!" cried the elves. "Here come the water-spiders now." Sure enough, there they came in a body, darting over the water, and they were sorry, too. They agreed to build another nest balloon of spider-silk down at the bottom of the lily-pond, one huge balloon instead of the usual small nest, one for each spider. And when it was done, once more they all set sail for the Land of the Rainbow.

Well, it was a wonderful balloon, all silk and air, and it was water-tight. Rain or sun the travellers were safe. This time they didn't quarrel. They lost their way instead, got lost on a cloud-bank and didn't know what in earth to do. And while they were all chattering about it along came the very lightning dart that had brought down the cloud-letter from Dip-and-Dart. But a sorry looking lightning dart he was now. He'd struck a tree and all his flash and flicker was gone. He looked like an old zig-zaggy bayonet of metal that needed polishing. He was on his way back to get polished and he was cross as two sticks. "Which way to the Land of the Rainbow?" bellowed White-locks from the spider balloon. "Oh, follow your nose!" cried the lightning dart crossly, and White-locks and all the elves and spiders stared at each other in amazement. It was the strangest direction to anywhere they'd ever heard. But they tried to obey. Ah, me! there was a hub-bub in that balloon in no time, for the spiders didn't have enough nose to bother with and the elves' noses all pointed different ways.

The nose of old White-locks pointed upward and he sailed the balloon that way. Drip-and-drop's nose was twisted a little to the east and he sailed that way. If they hadn't, taken turns they'd have sailed the balloon to pieces. What's more, if the nose of one of the elves hadn't pointed in the right direction. They never would have gotten there!

LADY'S ONE-PIECE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Here is a model in a one-piece frock that just snaps with smartness and one that has utility value also. The frock pictured is of serge; the blouse, or waist, is gathered to a yoke front and back; aside from this, the garment is on the long, loose lines so becoming to all figures and so much the vogue for winter. The front closing is made decorative with loops and buttons, as shown. The waist line has normal placement in this dress, but one may choose a slightly raised waist line. The collar, of course, claims attention, for isn't it of the latest cut and attractive enough to make the cuffs on rather full sleeves of the same material. The patch pocket at either side corresponds and so does the belt, which brings the fullness into graceful folds. Many such dresses show for trimming on collar and cuffs, and all wool poplin, trimmed with brown beaver cloth would be a good choice. When satin or like weaves makes the dress for afternoon, then fur around the bottom is excellent, because it suggests warmth. Serge with satin is serviceable and stylish too, if the combination idea is liked. By using the pattern to make this, you can have a dress of style and quality at a bargain price. The dress pattern, No. 5,081, cuts in sizes 36-42. To make in size 36 requires 5 1/2 yards 36 inch material, with 1/2 yard contrasting goods; or 6 1/2 yards all one material. To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

FRENCH ENERGY FOR WAR.

No Time to Be Concerned With Mere Industrial Progress.

The important effect on French trade after the war of the new chemical, metallurgical and mechanical industries created in answer to the needs of the army, are emphasized by Albert Thomas, Under-Secretary of War, at a luncheon of the Economic and Financial Association.

"Our war loans of to-day is not only the loan of a victor, but incorporated as it is in all our new creations, it becomes in some ways a great industrial loan which will permit us to prepare fruitful enterprises for the peace of to-morrow," he said.

"We shall have made new and fecund creations, and the national savings, almost entirely locked up hitherto in Government securities, will flow into channels where they will be the most fertile for the industry of to-morrow. Attempts are being made to revive old industries, to create new ones, and direct new French forces to the conquest of new markets."

"I wish to give a word of warning. Let us associate our pre-occupations with the war with the future of to-day. We must be sure that no force shall be diverted from the essential task of to-day and from the France of the war."

"We must not allow our industry of to-day to be diverted from the essential task of to-day and from the France of the war."
