Arrived at Whitehorse Yesterday at Noon in an Unconscious Condition—Right Arm and Base of Brain Affected —No One Permitted to See Him—Physicians Are Hopeful of His Recovery.

Whitehorse, July 19:-Governor Ross arrived on the steamer Columbian on Friday at 12:00 o'clock. He was unconscious and suffering from a paralytic stroke of the right arm and the base of the brain. The stroke occurred Thursday afternoon and the sufferer received no medical attendance until he reached Whitehorse, He was immediately taken from the boat to Major Snyder's residence. The doctors think he will entirely recover. Consciousness returned shortly after he was removed from the boat but he has extreme difficulty in articulating. He passed a good night and is resting easy this morning. He is not allowed to talk or receive visitors or

own situated about thirty mile outheast of Mount Parnassus and only a few miles from the gulf of Corinth, the party of us who had been traveling together for several weeks broke up. That is, Major Loftus, an Englishman and an officer on leave of absence, decided to remain there with friends for a few weeks while the rest of us went on to Mar athon and Athens. The major had very pronounced ideas regarding brigandage. The subject had often been under discussion with our party, as we were all foreigners and fair gam and the major had sworn by the beard of his father that if ever captured by brigands he would let them cut him up picemeal before he would pay a cent of ransom or permit any of his friends to. He was a fairly wealthy man, but he objected to paynent on principle. He was so de termined and outspoken in this mat ter that I believe it finally led to his had fallen since July 1. What followed the capture was told afterward by one of the band who left it and was pardoned by the government. There were five in the gang when the attack was made. The major shot one, dead in his tracks, and badly wounded a second before he was overcome. They tied him to the back of a donkey and made no stop until they reached a mountain retreat. Within half an hour of his being freed from the donkey he had done for another of the band by pushing him over a cliff. Kelly's false-bottomed sloop, that he worked with a lever and dumped the Chinamen into the water when necessary, was crude in comparison with this latter device.

The idea was nothing else than dressing up the Chinamen in the dis-guise of nuns, the smugglers themselves adopting the dress of priests. The party thus attired could readily obtain passage on any steamer leaving Victoria or Vancouver for Seattle, without arousing the slightest suspicion as to their real identity. Such a scheme could only have had its origin in the fertile brain of some acreligious scoundrel.

Such a plan has been actually on foot in Chinatown, Victoria, and only failed of fulfillment through the weakening of a confederate who tipped it off. It may have originated with the Chinese themselves, for it is well known that no race is more creative and resourceful than the Mongolian. Yesterday afternoon Customs Inpector Fisher and Immigration Inspector Lavin boarded the westbound Great Northern train at Ballard and rode to this city, keeping guard over a pack of eight contraband Chinamen who were on board. When the train reached Seattle the Chinese octette was marched to the county jail where they are now held pending an investigation. The Chinamen were all provided with certificates which the customs authorities have reason to believe are bogus. The inspectors received a tip from Whatcom by wire ate in the afternoon and lost no time in meeting the incoming train. This makes a total of seventeen contraband Chinamen that have been smuggled into Seattle during the

Perhaps when one makes that con versational blunder which is known as a "break" it is best to say noth-ing whatever about it. Extenuation only renders a bad matter worse. Not long ago a lady was visiting the studio of a portrait painter and trying to make herself as agreeable as possible in return for a welcome and afternoon tea. She enjoyed the pictures, although in each case they seemed to her much idealized, and she went from one to another, civily expressing her approbation.

"Who are you, I'd like to know?" asked Freddy, staring at the queer little man before him.

"I'm King Ping," answered the little man.

"That's not much of a name," said Freddy quite impolitely. "And who is the other fellow? He looks as if he might be you, too."

"Well, he isn't then," snapped the little man.

Cartoons do Harm

Berlin, July 11 .- The government fficials here are taking cognizance of the ill feeling in Great Britain toward Germany caused by the brutal cartoons and pleasantries here on King Edward's illness. The North German Gazette reproduced an arlicle severely censuring the comic papers for their malevolence in the treatment of foreign politics, saying that millions of Germans take their views of foreign affairs from the iljustrated papers in the cases and beer gardens. These form so much more a eature of German life here than elsewhere that millions of citizens get their only impressions of events and persons from the cartoons, hence the normous influence of the comic press of Germany.

The foreign office has been showing unusual sensitiveness over what is printed in England about Germany. Before the British ambassador, Sir eign affairs; Baron von Richthoften. conversing with him at the British embassy about the attitude of the though Freddy couldn't make out man tone. The ambassador read them, touched a button and had a scrap-book brought to him. He then pointed out to Baron von Richthoften two or three articles, clipp from the German press, of the rost outrageous character, against Great Britain and the British royal family. The baron put his own clippings in his pocket and changed the subject.

Isom, president of the der where it was left off last sum- North American Transportation' and mer, the route running down Quartz Trading Company, be installed as local manager of that large concern. Mr. McKee for some years past has been located in St. Paul, Minn., and is ripe in business experience and in the management of mercantile affairs. It was recognition of and knowledge of his business tact and ability that prompted Mr. Isom to engage him to come to Dawson. Mr. McKee is an affable gentleman to meet and when installed as manager of the N. A. T. & T. Co. will add largely to its already long list of friends and patrons. Mr. and Mrs. McKee and daughter are guests at the Regina.
