WEDDED AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"Lucie, don't you think it is almost time for it to be over now?"

"Dear Lady Glynn, it is not late yet," Lucie Grey answered sorrowfully.

"Don't call me that, Lucie," Shirley said, rather irritably.

"Forgive me," the vicar's daughter returned gently, looking with very sympathizing eyes at the slender prostrate figure upon the couch in the little shabby low-ceiled sitting room adjoining Shirley's bedroom at the "Pack of Cards," and thinking how terribly she was changed with in the last forty-eight hours.

As she lay back against the dark red cushions of the couch, Shirley Glynn looked more like a dead woman than a living, breathing one; her face was as colorless as the white wrapper that she wore, there were deep dark circles round the heavy lusterless eyes, and her little hands lay helplessly beside her.

"Lucie, could you help me to the window?" she said presently. "I feel so stifled here."

"It would be better for you to lie quiet, dear," answered Lucie gently, dreading lest she should see the crowd which had assembled round the inn, waiting eagerly for the conclusion of the coroner's inquest which was being held at that moment. "Let me fan you, Shirley."

"Is it not strange?"—Lady Glynn looked up into Shirley's wistful eyes—"that all my strength should have left me so suddenly? Lucie, I wonder if I am dying?"

"Dying? Of course not!" said Lucie cheerily, in spite of her trembling lips. "Such a terrible shock as you have had was enough to make you feel weak. Let me lift you a little, dear, while I arrange your cushions." "Poor Hugh—oh, poor Hugh!" Shirley moaned feebly. "Lucie, I make me so glad and happy now to think that we are friends. We were not always friends," she went on, in her faint broken tones. "I had been hard and cold and unforgiving for years; but the night before—only the night before—we forgave each other. Do you know, Lucie, that at first I did not think it could be Hugh lying there!" she went on, after a pause, her eyes dilating with horror as she pictured the body of her husband as it had lain prone and motionless in the centre of the group. "The hand, although it wore his ring, did not seem like his hand; but it was all so confused in my brain you know, and I could not see clearly, and they would not let me look upon his face."

"It was altered beyond all recognition," Lucie said gently. "Dear try to rest."

"It must have been a terrible fall! Poor Hugh! He was so handsome! Jack, my brother, thought him so handsome. Oh, I am so glad," she added pitifully, "that I had forgiven him, Lucie!" She lifted her little hands, and covered her face with a cry of horror. "Only a few weeks before I had wished I could kill him! It was Guy who told me how wicked I had been. He made me forgive Hugh. Lucie, did I fancy it—I fancy so many strange things now my head is so weak—or has Guy come?"

"Major Stuart is here, dear," Miss

Grey shrank a little as she spoke. She was dreading always lest Shirley should ask some question she could not answer.

"Why did he come?" "It was necessary that he should be present."

"I wonder why? He was not with him when he fell, or he would have come back. Oh, Lucie, I wonder if he was killed at once," she added, struggling up among the pillows with wild eyes and panting breath, "or if he lay there dying all through that storm?"

Then she fell back again, with the horror deepening on her face. Lucie knelt down and took the trembling slender form and hushed it gently in her arms.

"He died at once and painlessly," Shirley, she said through her tears which fell thickly on the soft hair which lay upon her breast. "Try not to think of it, darling."

"How can I help thinking of it?" Shirley answered wearily. "All night long it haunts me—all night—and it prevents me from sleeping, and I feel sometimes as if I must shriek out with terror. Do you think—"

She lifted her head suddenly and looked at the tearful face. "You are crying, Lucie; I felt a tear upon my hand! I will not distress you again. Oh, I wish I could cry, Lucie!" "My poor darling!"

"Guy called me that," she said tremulously, "long ago—so long ago! That scene haunts me too, Lucie, in the night. You do not know of that and I will not speak of it now, because he is dead—poor Hugh, poor Hugh! Oh, my heart!"

"What is it, dear? Are you in pain?" Lucie Grey asked gently, as she saw the quick movement of the tall little hands.

"Yes—my heart—such a weary pain, Lucie! Now, do not look so troubled, dear; it will be better soon it is not much; but I have always been a coward at bearing pain."

Her head fell back wearily upon the cushions and she closed her eyes leaving her hand in Lucie's as she melted beside her, while Miss Grey, looking at the wan, death-like face framed in falling hair, thought that any more grief must kill her. And yet how could they spare her this grief, which might, which would, Lucie feared, come within the hour?

They had been careful to let none of the rumors which had been rife in the little town reach her; even Lady Eastwell had been carefully kept away—for it was she, who, in her violent hysterical passion of grief had cried out that the dead man had been murdered, and that Guy Stuart had murdered him, and there were hundreds who shared her belief; and little as Lucie Grey knew of Shirley's story, she felt instinctively that such a report would be to her more bitter than death itself. She remembered the look which had come into Shirley's eyes when he had joined them so unexpectedly among the rocks; she remembered how the lovely face had brightened and flushed and lost all its weariness; and, as she thought of Guy's noble face, she felt that the accusation was as false as it was monstrous.

And yet the proofs were dreadfully against him. They had set out together on the morning of Sir Hugh's last day on earth, and beside the body had been found, stained and discolored with blood, the silver-headed bamboo cane, the weapon which it was quite evident had given the blow on the head which had been the immediate cause of death. True the face had lost all semblance of humanity when the body was found, but the huge bowlder of rock under which it had been partly concealed had evidently tilted over and fallen upon it, crushing the handsome face which had looked back so smilingly at Shirley a few short hours before, while, as if to let justice have every chance in its favor, the back of the head remained untouched, although the fair hair was matted and stained with blood. What a terrible, end to the brilliant career!

"What are you thinking of, Lucie?" asked Shirley, lifting the heavy lids languidly. "How sorrowful you look dear! I seem to bring sorrow and pain to all who love me."

"I would suffer infinitely more pain to possess your friendship, Shirley," Miss Grey said, in her soft sincere voice; and the faintest little writhing of a smile flitted over the white lips.

"Thank you, dear. Oh, Lucie, what should I have done without you? Even Ruby could not have been a truer friend than you. Dear Ruby, she must not know," she added earnestly. "All her happiness at the birth of her little daughter would be destroyed. Lucie, how slowly the time goes! I wonder why they are so long?"

She moved restlessly on the cushions, and with a weary impatient gesture pushed back her hair from her forehead.

"Poor darling, it is wearisome for you lying there!" Lucie said, putting her cool hand upon the throbbing temples.

"What makes them so long Lucie?" The sweet eyes so sad and pleading, made Lucie's lip quiver; she felt sure that it was doubt as to the verdict they should return which had detained the jury.

"I cannot say, dear," she whispered tremulously; and there was a long silence.

"Lucie, how weary you must be and how selfish I am!" said Shirley, then. "Ring for some tea, dear; you have been here so many hours."

Lucie rang, not for tea only, but for a chance of speaking to some one who could tell her something of what was going on in the large dining room below. When the servant answered the bell, Shirley had relaxed into her old apathy, and lay back with closed eyes, so that Lucie had an opportunity of speaking a few words to the girl and having her suspicions confirmed.

"Oh, how will she bear it?" Lucie said to herself, great tears filling her eyes at the thought. "Oh, if the mother had only been well enough to come to her! I am afraid it will kill her."

"Lucie"—the shrill agonized tones started her, the wild haggard eyes were wide and horror-stricken—"don't let me go to sleep. I was dreaming, I suppose—oh, such a horrid dream!"

She clung with both hands to Lucie, who bent over her anxiously, and, so clinging, raised herself and stood upon her feet, trembling in every limb, with a cold dew starting in her forehead.

"Don't let me lie there—don't let me sleep, Lucie. I will sit up. Give me some air; I am choking! I cannot breathe!"

Girls! Don't Wash Hair With Soap

Soap dries your scalp, causing dandruff, then hair falls out—Try this next time.

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust and dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

Mother The Child is Costive, Bilious

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Lucie hastily pushed open the window, letting the air play upon the white pinched face which lay upon her shoulder so heavily, while it required all her strength to prevent the nerveless limbs from slipping to the ground.

Below, groups of people were collected, talking eagerly among themselves; and one or two glanced up at the window but saw nothing to attract attention.

"What a murmur of voices!" Shirley's faint voice said. "Is there a crowd? My eyes are so dim I cannot see. There are people there, are there not?"

"Yes, dear. Are you better? Let me close the window."

"Why are the people there? Why are they waiting? Why don't they go? Lucie, help me—I cannot stand."

She was not insensible or unconscious, but the same terrible weakness was creeping over her again, and, but for the opportune assistance of the servant who at that moment brought in tea, she must have fallen to the ground. With the girl's help she was placed in an armchair, and Lucie made her drink a little wine. "It is absurd to be weak," she murmured, when they were alone again. "I am worse even than Mrs. Beadesert was on the night of the storm"—with a faint smile—"and I felt so impatient with her. But she fainted, you know, and lost all consciousness. Ah, if I only could! Lucie, I think death must be like this. Don't cry, dear," she added, as Lucie fairly broke down. "I promised I would—Ah, there is some one!"

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

9804. — A SIMPLE BUT STYLISH GOWN.

Ladies' Costume. Gray woolen poplin with trimming of green satin and fancy buttons. Is here portrayed. The skirt is finished with a girde of the satin. The bloused waist is closed at the side and may be worn without the chemisette. The close fitting sleeve has a neat cuff. The new plaid or checked suit would lend themselves nicely for this style, which is also desirable for velvet, corduroy, sponges, prunella, serge or broad cloth. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 36 inch material for a 35 inch size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to an address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

9810. — A BECOMING YOUTHFUL DESIGN.

Costume for Misses and Small Women, with or without Chemisette.

This model was used for a simple party frock of blue crepe de chine. Brocaded silk in Persian tones forms the girde, while shadow lace and net trills add a neat touch to neck and sleeve finish. The design is suitable for serge, albatross or cashmere. It will also lend itself equally well to velvet, chamois or satin. The drop shoulder and yoke effect are good style features. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 17 and 18 years. It requires 5 yards of 44 inch material for a 16 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Agent CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE CO., Port Hope, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—
When acknowledging receipt of the Company's cheque for my matured Endowment Policy No. 24937, I desire to avail myself of the opportunity to express my satisfaction with the outcome of my investment.

The policy was payable to me at age 60, with ten premiums of $48.00 each. The return under it is as follows:

Sum assured	$1,000.00
Dividends added	446.94
Total amount payable	$1,446.94
Deduct total premiums paid	480.00
	$ 966.94

That I should have insurance protection free for all these years and now have over twice the amount of my premiums returned to me in cash is a most satisfactory outcome and I heartily congratulate you on it.

Yours very truly,

Rights We Haven't a Right To.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"A man doesn't have a right to all his rights."—Phillips Brooks.

Everybody believes he is entitled to certain rights; that there are certain things which, if he wants to do, no one shall say him nay. I know a brilliant young lawyer, who is more than ordinary chances of success, who indulges himself in drink. When anyone remonstrates he says, "This is my own affair, I'm not hurting anyone but myself."

Another man, relishing the thrill that comes from handling a speeding automobile, when taken to task answers, "As long as I do not speed through city streets, or endanger the lives of others, I do not see how anyone can object. I am risking my own neck, nobody else's, it is my own affair."

Again, I know a young girl who chooses to wear pumps and thin stockings all winter. To all her mother's appeals she answers, "Now, mother, if I want to wear pumps I don't see why I shouldn't. If I get a cold I am the one to suffer."

All three of these examples come under the head of personal liberty—that precious thing for which men have struggled ever since the world was young.

The only trouble with claiming a right, is that we do not stand alone by ourselves. Human society is co-operative, everything bears some relation to something else. We are all cogs in this mighty universe. And we must do our part to keep from slipping.

The young man who indulges in drink is no hermit, living away from the world, standing or falling by his own efforts. He has certain human relationships, on which his indulgence has some bearing. Furthermore, it is not his duty to use the fullest talents he possesses for the sake of all, rather than himself. Surely humanity's right is greater than his.

The man who speeds his automobile risks his neck and courts death, risks not only his own life, but the happiness of his wife and children. He threatens the business structure of which he is a part and in which certain duties and responsibilities devolve on him. A temporary embarrassment perhaps, but an infringement on the rights of others, nevertheless.

The young girl who exercises, as her idea of personal liberty, the right to wear foolish pumps and thin stockings in mid-winter, pits her vanity against the knowledge of a thousand doctors, and risks a sickness that, if it comes, will surely throw a well-ordered household into confusion, and puts upon others a burden that must be felt.

Once a man had a right to refuse to educate his children, and to live in the midst of unsanitary conditions. The state has usurped these rights. It tells a man that he must educate his children. The state realizes that otherwise the man and his children become a menace to others—an infringement upon the rights of others. As Phillips Brooks says, "A man doesn't have a right to all his rights."

Marie Celestie, Ship of Mystery.

Some Facts Concerning The Early History of This Famous Ship.

I have always been interested in the opinions concerning the history of the Marie Celeste, because I served my first apprenticeship at sea aboard that vessel. She was, however, the British brig Amazon at that time. Furthermore, considering the general interest manifested in the recently published but very doubtful solution of the mystery of the desertion of this ship, it occurred to me it would be of further interest to state a few facts about the origin of this vessel as I have never seen a published account of them. I know all the facts of her early existence, because I helped build the Amazon, was launched on board and served continuously on board her for two years, in foreign trade all the time.

The Amazon (Marie Celeste) was launched at Spencers Island, N. S. In July, 1860, being two years in the process of building. My father, Joshua Lewis, who built her, was a large owner. She was the first vessel built here, where so many large ships have since been built and started on their cruise around the world.

After lying at anchor a few days she proceeded to the Five Islands under command of Capt. Robert McLellan, when she was loaded with timber and deals for London. We sailed down the Bay of Fundy, but the captain being sick, we put into Quaco, N.B. Here a doctor came on board and advised our return to Spencers Island. The captain was landed, and in a couple of days died here. In a few days more we secured another captain, John N. Parker (called Capt. "Jack" Parker), of Walton, N.S., who took charge, and with some changes in the crew started on our voyage again, but put into Eastport, Me., for some reason I cannot recall, and on the way out of port ran into some fish weirs in the Narrows and then lay for some days before we finally proceeded on our course across the Atlantic. We got to London all right this time, discharging the cargo and loaded another for Lisbon, Portugal. On the way down the Channel we ran into an English brig in the Straits of Dover and sunk her quick, the crew climbing on board with us and all being saved. We put into Dover and landed our shipwrecks, repaired some damage and resumed our voyage. This seemed to have been the climax of our mishaps for, from this on, all went smoothly. After two years voyaging between various ports in the Mediterranean, the British Isles and the West Indies, we arrived in Halifax. Here there was a complete change in the crew. I among others left, and the mate, William Thompson, became captain and sailed her for about three years, when she again returned to Halifax. Captain Thompson then left the Amazon and a Captain Murphy took charge. He took her to Glace Bay, N.S., to load coal. Anchoring in the harbor a heavy gale came on and drove her ashore at the spot where an American company was digging out a dock. They brought the wreck and dug her up, partially repaired her and took her to the United States, and after further repairs, according to requirements, she was placed under the American flag with the name Marie Celeste. This name is familiar to all readers of newspapers, and I will not attempt to give any further history.

There is a mystery, however, surrounding the disappearance of the crew which will, not likely, ever be revealed. There have been theories advanced, some of which sound reasonable, but the last publication concerning the baby quarter-deck is something I cannot swallow. There is another interest concerning the Amazon or the Marie Celeste, which I have not seen referred to. What finally became of this fated ship?

Varicose Veins and Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause—Relief and Cure Effectuated by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids. That medical science has been able to compound, so much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not loath in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This account is for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 137 Main street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and find it the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment. 50 cents a box all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto."

Schumann-Heink's Adaptability.

Yes, the great ones have all the trouble the little ones have. And they show their genuine greatness by the way they meet and solve the difficulties that arise.

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink has won the music-loving world with her great singing, and has won all the rest of humanity—made music lovers of them—with her great heart and her plan, unassuming humanity.

Among all the really great operatic stars, she perhaps is most gifted in that wonderful quality that we know as "adaptability." She will win the hearts of any audience—that is the first step she takes in preparing for a successful appearance.

At Charles City, Iowa, one summer afternoon this great singer was to sing. The Chautauque was held in a large tent. The surroundings of a Chautauque tent are such as to peeve a great many singers who mistake temper for temperament in themselves. But Madame knew she must have their love if she was to win them and sustain her prestige as a great singer.

Hardly had she started to sing before a baby near the front row of seats let out a raucous whoop that would have disconcerted a person of less poise, broad human sympathy and good sense. Snapping her finger at the child she said:

"You hush or I'll spank you!" At this the audience laughed heartily. Looking archly at them, and no doubt thinking of her own well-mothered brood, she said: "Oh maybe you don't think I can do it! I know how!"

That audience was "for her," followed by the Schumann touch had made the occasion a brilliant success—Strickland Gillian in Woman's World for February.

Sensational Escape

Winnipeg, Jan. 10.—John Krafchenko, one of the most notorious and desperate characters of Western Canada, escaped from the Central police station cells at 2.30 this morning, after being committed yesterday to stand trial on the charge of murdering H.M. Arnold bank manager at Plumoulee. Krafchenko was taken to what is known as "the old kitchen" on the second floor at the police station.

Two men were placed on guard, but in some way Krafchenko had secured an automatic revolver at the heads of the guards, he backed to the window. Krafchenko had also been provided with a rope by friends and he swung out of the window and dropped to a lane some 12 or 14 feet below. Beyond these few facts the police are absolutely in the dark.

Krafchenko's friends who provided him with the revolver and rope also had an automobile waiting nearby, and good time was made in getting as far away as possible in a few minutes. The escaping man was first seen on the outside by James Tomlinson who quickly spread the alarm, but in the few minutes which had elapsed he had completely disappeared.

Asked regarding the two men in the room with Krafchenko Deputy Chief Newton declined to give their names, but said that they were both members of the city police force. The chief, however, added that he expected an arrest would be made shortly on a charge of helping and abetting the prisoners to escape.

If you want the best Cleaning and Pressing Service in the City, bring your clothes to LEO F. GOODLAND, 34 Gower Street, 2 doors east Cochran Street. Clothes called for and delivered at the shortest possible notice. Personal attention to all work.

and prospective owners, what a full line of parts right here in the city means to you—prompt service and every satisfaction. It is useless to ignore the fact that you don't require parts. It is all the same if the car costs eight hundred or eight thousand the parts must be renewed sooner or later. The piece of machinery has not been made yet that won't wear. Unfortunately we are such a great distance from the factory and to get parts it takes considerable time, not to mention them having quite a rest at St. John, N.B. for a month or so; and then when you do get them at last, nine times out of ten they are not as ordered. Personally I have known cars to be tied up all the summer from the above cause.

I have a full line of parts always in stock and invite inspection. In fact I carry the only complete line of parts and accessories in the city. I shall be leaving for the "Ford" Factory about the fourth of February and any orders placed before I leave will be attended to personally.

Running the Dredge.

The dredge Priestman is proving a costly venture for the country. Even on account of marine insurance nearly $6,000 was paid out during the year 1913 on account of premiums, some $5,200 going to the Newfoundland Produce Company, of which the Hon. John Crosbie is managing director, which is agent of some Marine Insurance Company. All told, the running of the dredge Priestman during the year 1913 cost the country $25,983.95. This runs to nearly $500 a week, and of course a large portion was spent in supplies, which were obtained, as the names mentioned in the different items show, from leading supporters of the Government. We notice too several amounts paid to Priestman Brothers. We presume these are for machinery supplied for alterations to make the dredge more suitable for the work she was bought for by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

A Fortnight on the Address.

One of the most noticeable facts of the present session of parliament is the general activity of both sections of the Opposition. The House has been almost a fortnight at work and the Governor's Speech is not yet disposed of. Every man on the Opposition side has spoken, either on the Address in Reply or on the amendment proposed by Mr. Kent and seconded by Mr. Lloyd, some of them having spoken on both. It is many years since the Address took up such a time in discussion and recalls to the minds of the older members the days before 1898, when the Address in Reply was a lengthy document referring to each section of the Governor's Speech and was discussed in Committee, where each member could speak as often as his good sense impelled and may be more often. Although under the present system a member can only speak once on the motion and once on any amendment, as these resolutions are now taken up in the House and not in Committee, they have afforded to new members an opportunity of speaking on the general policy and record of the Government and given them a chance to find their feet and grow accustomed to the atmosphere of a debate in the House.

A DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

"The Child is Father to The Man."

The debate at the M.C.C.I. on Thursday night was very illuminating in many respects and it was fortunate that they had secured the services of one of the Superintendents of Education to uphold the case of the present system. It developed that while the Colonial Secretary and his deputy were nominally Heads of the Education Department (and the present Colonial Secretary would be the first to declare himself as being no more than the nominal head), the work of the Department altogether fell to the Superintendents of Education, and the fact that in some cases were not able to visit much more than fifty per cent. of the schools under their care, surely points at once to the need of a Departmental Office of Education in which the clerical work would be lifted from the shoulders of the Superintendents. As one speaker pointed out, it does not follow that because the Colonial Secretary's office devotes only three hours a week to the work of Education, that there is therefore no more work to be done. It means, on the contrary, that there is so much to do, that there is nothing done. The Colonial Secretary is not an active Head of Education. He has no initiative, no originality, in seeking to improve the system. He is not supposed to have any, and surely this is another reason why we should have a Department of Education with a Head that will oversee the work and bring to its assistance any methods that will improve it. A great objection to such a Department was the denominational difficulty, that bug-bear of Newfoundland, but a suitable man were found surely that would not be an insuperable difficulty. And indeed, to cope with the importance with which Education must be viewed, I do not hesitate to suggest that a qualified man from England or elsewhere is perhaps necessary, and ten or even twenty thousand dollars would be cheap if we could remove the shame of illiteracy from so large a section of the Island and which itself is the greatest demand for a Department of Education, and a man at the head of it who believes that in the educating of the children lies the true wealth of any country. We can cut off over three hundred thousand dollars from the revenue, we can pay another two hundred thousand dollars interest on loans to build railways, but yet we hesitate over the cost of Free Education, we are content to let the children grow up without schooling, we are content that school teachers should have no special training for their positions, and we let our system of Education meander along as best it can with limited means and ancient method as if it were some risky scheme in which we are afraid to venture, disregarding altogether that to a great extent we are "creatures of education," and that there is absolutely no subject of greater importance, especially to a country such as ours, where thirty years of progressive methods in the outside world, have brought so little advance.

Why do so many pupils leave school with eagerness? Why do they leave school wanting to do anything rather than continue study? What use has school been if the average boy leaves with no larger vision than a clerkship on Water St?

It is just because instead of cultivating the mind of the child and bringing its own riches and originality into play, our system prepares a cement called "exam" and plastered it effectually all over the brain, and by main force turns the head into something like an adding machine, having but one advantage over it, that of being able to talk.

Apart from this there must be at least 50 thousand children not at school that should be and it would be interesting to know exactly how many there were in this position.

Let us have a public discussion of the whole matter in The Evening Telegram.

Yours truly,
T. N. M.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Jan. 27. Aviator Giph was killed, and another man, named Meriam, a passenger, was badly hurt, when the machine fell 30 feet in Salisbury Plains. The victim was a noted instructor in aviation, and had taught more than 100 pilots without meeting with an accident.

QUEBEC, Jan. 27. Using coal-oil to start a fire in a stove, Wilfred Robit, aged 12, of Notre Dame de Rosalie, Montmorency County, caused an explosion which set fire to his clothes. In the panic which ensued, and in the efforts to save him, the flames were communicated to nine others, five of whom are dead.

LONDON, Jan. 27. Capt. Brooke, in a speech at a reunion of the Gordon Highlanders at Aberdeen, said: "I am a staunch Unionist, and will never give way to anybody who attempts the disintegration of the Empire." This is regarded as a refusal to act against Ulster, if ordered to enforce the Home Rule Bill.

BOSTON, Jan. 27. The Boston fishing schooner, Olive F. Hutchins, sank in the harbor today, two minutes after she had been run down by the steamer George A. Hibbard, owned by the City of Boston. Capt. Hutchins and five of the crew jumped to the steamer's deck. The other 11 men on board, who were in the cabin when the crash came, launched boats from which they were later rescued by the Hibbard.

TOKYO, Jan. 27. An appropriation of $150,000,000 for naval increases was demanded by the Japanese Government today at a secret meeting of the Imperial diet. The naval ministry proposed that Japan build twelve great dreadnoughts. After a prolonged debate the diet set the naval appropriation to $50,000,000, agreeing to the additional appropriations when the financial condition of Japan was more propitious.

LONDON, Jan. 27. The coal strike continues, but is not having the same effect in all sections. Some parts are not affected as non-union men are working under police protection. The coal-porters union has withdrawn the ban from the hospitals so far as the delivery of coal is concerned, but stipulates that the privilege shall not be abused. The poor people who buy in the smallest quantities are the worst sufferers by the strike. A large extension of the labor struggle in London occurred last night, when the executive committee of the London Building Industries Federation decided yesterday to call out members working on jobs, from which 37,000 carpenters, joiners, bricklayers, masons and laborers were discharged yesterday. It is impossible to say how many will be affected, but the Federation controls 18 unions with 100,000 members. If the men obey, London's building trade will be in danger of paralysis. Work has already ceased on a dozen big buildings, involvan expenditure of $50,000,000. These include London's new county hall and several government buildings. There is no sign of a settlement of the coal carriers' strike. Employees of several big street transport companies threaten to support the coal men. Trouble is also brewing in the shipping world on an 8 hour a day and higher wages basis. Tom Mann, in a speech at Dublin tonight, predicted a general strike in England, in March, involving engineers, boiler makers and shipwrights.

The House of Assembly Passes Resolutions of Condolence and Ad-

When the House of Assembly met yesterday afternoon, the Prime Minister rose to move suites of Resolutions in connection with the deaths of the Hon. J. S. Pitts, C.M.G., and to the Late Judge Prowse, C.M.G.

The Prime Minister.—Two of our citizens prominent in the State of the country and particularly in the public life of the country have passed away in personages of Honourable James S. Pitts, C.M.G., and D. W. Prowse, Esq., C.M.G. Mr. Pitts' death was not altogether unexpected as for some time past he had been ailing and it was only a question of a few days for the end.

He was a man who supported the policy of a party whose work commended itself to him. He was a member of the Legislative Council from 1884 with a short interval until his death. He was engaged nearly all his life in commercial work and in that line amassed a large fortune, largely due to his great industry and attention to detail as well as to the intelligence and good judgment that he brought to bear in relation to the considerations that filled his career.

Identified with this Resolution also is the late Judge Prowse. He was born as far back as 1834, accordingly he entered upon his eightieth year. He was a man of wonderful enterprise in all the various works, from time to time, he took up. He was a wonderful man from the standpoint of touching nearly everything. There is not a branch of the public life of the Colony that he was not at some time identified with. He was a lawyer, admitted to the bar in 1859, and served in this Legislature, representing the District of Burgeo from 1861 to 1869. If you take time to turn up the records of this House you will find instructive and interesting speeches made by the Judge and published in the newspapers of that period upon the Fisheries, Agriculture and general development of the country. In 1869 he went to the Bench as Magistrate and in 1898 was pensioned owing to infirmities resulting from old age. Since that time he has occupied the position of Secretary of the Fisheries Board. He will not be known so much as a public man or a Judge in the life of the country as he will be known hereafter as the historian of Newfoundland. In 1895 he put out the first edition of his history from the records of the country, giving data and date for everything in the work. He went back to the early days of the discovery of the country and by having access to the records of the Colonial Office, also to the important records in many of the libraries in England and the United States, he compiled a most interesting and instructive history of Newfoundland.

other men had written histories of Newfoundland mere essays. The late Judge had regard for ancient documents, from 1479 when this island was discovered up until our own times, he gave date and date, chapter and verse for everything in that volume. It is a mine where you can go to dig up matter any time you like. Structurally the book is not what it might have been. The London Times, the greatest of the English history. Not alone has he done much to make Newfoundland known abroad by his Guide Book but also by his continual correspondence with magazines and his articles for the press generally, he has done much to put Newfoundland in her place before the world. Whilst he was engaged in his professional work as Judge he compiled a very interesting work called "Prowse's Manual," a compendium of our local laws, a small part of the law for Justices of the Peace and of the Criminal Law in England, which has proved of great value, not alone to the courts here but to the Magistrates and Justices all over the country. He was a prominent factor in the carrying out of the Bail Act in 1887 and 1888. By his own personal knowledge and experience he saw the great possibilities of the herring fishery in Fortune Bay and that probably gave him an interest ever since in the great value of our fisheries and from the standpoint of a v i n g them developed. He exhibited wonderful industry, as up to the time of his death he had the activity and industry of a young man. For five or six years, nearly every time he came to town I had a chance of seeing him. His principal characteristic was his love and affection for his family. He doted on his wife and children; they were constantly in his mind and I am sure that every one of us will sympathize in the sorrow and bereavement of his wife and children. I shall ask to propose the following

RESOLUTIONS:

Resolved, that this House desires to express its deep regret at the death of Honourable James S. Pitts, C. M. G., who for so many years was a member of the Legislative Council of the Colony and for some time a member of the Government of the Colony, and that out of respect to his memory this House do now adjourn:

Resolved, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to his bereaved widow and family.

Resolved, that this House desires to express its deep regret at the death of D. W. Prowse, Esq., K. C., C.M.G., who for many years was a member of this branch of the Legislature, and that out of respect to his memory this House do now adjourn:

Resolved, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to his bereaved widow and family. Mr. Kent, K. C.—I desire to join with the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister in the Resolutions which contain expressions of regret at the death of Honourable Mr. Pitts and the late Judge Prowse. As he said the death of Mr. Pitts has not come with the same shock of suddenness with which that of Judge Prowse came. For some time past we all know that Mr. Pitts has been an invalid. He has not been as active for the last few months in the various vocations in which he took part, whereas Judge Prowse was enjoying good health up to recently and citizens of St. John's thought he was around about his usual work as industrious as ever in the matters that have occupied his attention for some years back. I think, Mr. Speaker, that both Mr. Pitts and Judge Prowse are a decided loss to the community. Mr. Pitts was one of those men that in everything he undertook to do was sure to be thorough. He was a man of sound judgment, of ripe experience and great industry; he was also a man of great integrity and sterling worth. He was prominent for a number of years in public life, in the commercial life and in the industrial life of the country. In each of these branches he had a prominent part. His public life he was for years a member of the Upper House; also a member of the Executive Council. I sat with Mr. Pitts in the Executive Council a short time and had some opportunity of judging of his fine qualities. He was a man of ripe judgment and a very sound sense and these characteristics he displayed in the Executive Council of the Colony. In commercial life he was a prominent figure. He did much for the promotion of industry in the country and the money which he earned by his labours he invested in local industrial concerns whereby our people, particularly our St. John's people, benefited. The success of many of our industries here in St. John's is largely due to the interest taken in them by Mr. Pitts. He also took a prominent place in matters in connection with the church of which he was a member. His philanthropic connection with the various institutions of that church is known to every one. Educational institutions, social and moral reform institutions also received the active support of Mr. Pitts. Therefore, I say Mr. Speaker, that Mr. Pitts is in all things that he undertook to do a loss to our people.

Judge Prowse who has been moved from amongst us, is perhaps a unique figure, not only in the pages written in history, but he was one of those men who had some characteristics of a person whose name and works will be remembered more by those who come after him than by those with whom he lived. I believe Judge Prowse will be appreciated by generations yet unborn. His history stands unique as a monument of facts. His history is a dry statement of the facts of history. Judge Prowse in his day occupied a prominent position in this House for 8 years, away back before most of the present members of this House were born. One of the most interesting things of recent years was to meet Judge Prowse and hear him recount some of the anecdotes of conditions that prevailed in this Legislature during the time he was in active political life. Judge Prowse, with all his peculiarities, was a man liked by every person with whom he came in contact. I reiterate that the passing of these two men will be a decided loss. They performed their work as men and as citizens here in this world faithfully and well. They have now passed to another world to get rewarded for the life they led and I feel sure that when both are called upon that they will be able to render a good account of the stewardship of what was entrusted them.

Home, Sweet Home.

Oh, Home! It is a sacred place—or was, in olden days, before the people learned to chase to moving picture plays; to tango dances and such things, on skating on a floor; and now the youthful, laughing rings within the Home no more. You will recall, old men and dames, the home of long ago, and you'll recall the fireside games the children used to know. The neighbors' kids would come along with your own kids to play, and merry as a bridal song the evening passed away. An evening spent away from home in olden days was rare; the children hadn't learned to roam for pleasure everywhere. But now your house is but a shell where children sleep and eat; it serves that purpose very well—their home is on the street. There home is where the lights are bright, where rag-time music flows; their noon's the middle of the night, their friends are—Lord, who knows? The windows of your home are dark, and silence broods o'er all; you call it Home—God save the mark! 'Tis but a sty or stall!

A Wonderful Discovery.

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just hink! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting, that is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 61 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send the advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Is Matrimony a Failure?

That depends upon just who you are and how you look at it. If you are a happy bachelor with a good home and some one to sew on buttons, why of course to such Matrimony is a Failure. If you're a married man with an extravagant wife or a "nagging" one—or one who complains that because her dress maker's or milliner's bills total two or three thousand a year and your income is just about one thousand above that—or if your income is three thousand and you allow your wife five hundred to clothe herself and run the house, why to you Matrimony is a Failure. If you are a bright, pretty, happy bachelor with everything you want except one thing—and that one thing a man, Matrimony is a Failure. If you are a widow and have succeeded in part by carrying off another prize in the grand lottery, why of course you know Matrimony isn't a Failure. However, no matter who you are, old or young, married or single, I suggest you see the W. S. Harkins Players in "Is Matrimony a Failure," at the Casino to-night. It is to laugh.

Wedding Bells At Redlands

On the 21st inst., Mr. Richard Colford led to the altar Miss Katie Hennessey. The bride was attired in blue satin, with hat to match and was assisted by Miss Winifred Colford, sister of the groom, who was becomingly attired in a costume of white. The duties of best man was pleasingly performed by Mr. Martin Hanrahan. After the ceremony which was performed by the esteemed Pastor, Father Lynch, the wedding party repaired to the old homestead where a tempting repast was served; songs followed and one of the number was supplied by Mr. Richard Colford, bearing 84 years of age. The happy affair did not terminate until the wee sma' hours and all present pronounced the wedding an enjoyable one. N.Y. papers please copy.—Com.

Presentation.

A deputation from Lodge Dudley, S. O. E., B. S., waited on Mr. T. J. Pope, at his residence on Mundy Pond Road, on Monday night, and presented him with a beautiful Past President's Jewel.

The presentation was made on behalf of the Lodge by District Deputy G. B. Lloyd, who referred in eulogistic terms to the good work done by Brother Pope, and voiced the sentiments of the whole Lodge in wishing him a speedy recovery from his illness which laid him up for the past six months. The recipient was very much moved by their kind appreciation of his work, and in a fitting manner thanked the Lodge, through the deputation present, most heartily. An interesting toast list followed, and after doing justice to the good things provided by the host and hostess, the National Anthem brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

"Can you," I said to my Druggist, "suggest anything for irritable skin in children. Mine are very prone to skin irritation in winter. A new woolen garment, a slight chafe, exposure to cold winds, and they are in trouble at once. Is there anything to relieve it?"

He handed me a cake of soap, saying: "You will find in this what you need. This is Zylex Soap, and is really first rate for the purpose. Try it."

I did so, with most satisfactory results too. Zylex Soap (as well as the Ointment which I always keep at hand) has proven its value to me. Zylex Soap is 25c. a cake; the Ointment 50c. a box. At all druggists. —Jan 28, 1911

Lecture on Japan

The lecture given by Mr. W. H. Jones, at the King George Fifth Institute last night, in aid of the Women's Missionary Society funds, was largely attended. The chair was occupied by Rev. Dr. Curtis, who introduced the speaker whose subject was "Japan: the Land of the Rising Sun." For over an hour Mr. Jones entertained his audience, taking them in imagination through all the principal cities of Japan, and vividly describing the habits and occupations of the Japanese people. The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides, and being in two parts, the interval was filled in by a recitation by Mrs. R. A. Squires and a solo by Mr. C. Hatcher, both of which were received with much applause. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Jones and those who assisted in the evening's programme, after which the Doxology was sung, and the Benediction imparted by Rev. Dr. Curtis. Mr. A. Mews was the accompanist during the evening.

Here and There.

Although the Adventure reported the non-arrival of the S. S. Beatrice at North Sydney up to the time she left, which was Saturday last, no anxiety need be felt for the safety of the Beatrice. She only left here on last Wednesday afternoon and in any case would not have reached Sydney before the sailing of the Adventure from that port.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The Vernon Co. gave a free concert in St. Paul's Hall last night, which was very enjoyable.

The Pleace U was also open last night and all who attended were very well pleased.

The open air skating rink was well patronized last night. The ice was in excellent condition, and the lovers of the pastime were no doubt well satisfied.

Miss Minnie Hyde returned from Carbonear last week where she spent a very pleasant time with friends. While at Carbonear Miss Hyde was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Capt. John Carroll.

The employees of the Harber Grace Boot & Shoe Factory have been off for the past few days while the management is arranging for the big spring rush. It is thought that all will go on in Thursday next, and then as a matter of fact boots will begin to come out.

Mr. K. Alcock, of the Archibald Bros. Factory, fell on the ice near the top of Victoria Street yesterday afternoon, and inflicted a nasty cut just below the knee. He was forced to visit Dr. Strapp's Pharmacy and have the wound dressed.

Word was received in town this morning of the death at Bell Island of Mr. John Davis, son of the late Mr. Charles Davis, of this town, and brother of Mr. George Davis, of this town, and Mr. Samuel Davis of Banerman Street, St. John's.—COR.

The King's Life Guests.

Residents of Royal Palaces Give a Lot of Trouble.—Refusal of Lady Scott to Take a Royal Residence Recalls Previous Episodes Connected With the Guests of Britain.—Hampton Court Contains Twenty Families of Distinction and Inducement.

It is announced that Lady Scott, widow of the hero of the South pole, had declined the offer of a royal residence, as a mark of the disapproval of the way in which the fund raised in honor of the ill-fated British expedition had been handled. It is only in the past year or so that the great majority of us have heard of a royal residence as distinct from the residence of the reigning monarch, and probably few people knew what it is.

Royal residences first broke into print in recent times, when it was announced that the private solicitors of King George were about to apply to the courts with a view of having sundry occupants of royal residences removed. Later on we heard that an appeal to learned counsel had resulted in advice not to sue, because the royal complainants would have lost.

The case in point was that of a noblewoman who had been placed in a royal residence by the late King Edward, which means that she had been given apartments rent free. After the King's death it was suggested that she should vacate in order that some other recipient of the royal benevolence might move in, King George having friends of his own that he wished to provide for. It appears, however, that the occupant of a royal residence is the one for life, and that the widow of this class of tenant can also stay as long as she lives, unless specific provision has been made to the contrary.

No doubt ever since the Norman Conquest the Kings of England have been providing certain of their friends with free lodging for the remainder of their days in recognition of some service rendered. Up to the time of responsible government it was the fashion of royalty to present its favorites with a few thousand acres of land and a grant from the public treasury, but after these prerogatives had been abolished, especially after the coming of the Hanoverians, certain royal residences were reserved, and the reigning monarch was permitted to install in them his needy friends and relatives.

Strictly speaking, to-day Parliament might assent to its right to say that the tenants should not be the particular friends of the reigning sovereign, but that the royal residence should be reserved for those whom Parliament might designate. As a matter of fact, the offer of a royal residence to Lady Scott is a recognition of the fact that the royal residences are not exclusively intended for the personal favorites of the King.

Hampton Court which is one of the show places of London, and whence the home of royalty, is a palace inhabited chiefly by indigent persons of rank of distinction that the King has a right to nominate as free tenants. Some twenty families occupy the premises. Their accommodation range from 5 to 12 rooms, and if the King were to rent the apartments, he would receive some $20,000 or $30,000 a year, and the money would go into his private purse. Incidentally it might be remarked that the nation pays $75,000 a year for the maintenance of Hampton Court. The present tenants are, for the most part, widows and daughters of army and navy officers or men who held minor offices in the Royal household.

Before being eligible as tenants it is necessary that the applicant make an affidavit to the effect that his or her income is not more than $1,000 a year. In the other royal residences no such rule applies, and at the present time many apartments are occupied by persons well able to pay for their accommodation.

A case in point is that of the Countess Pebrora Gleichen, a cousin of the King, who was granted apartments by King Edward, or rather her father was given the privilege of living rent free by Queen Victoria, and King Edward confirmed the daughter in the premises at St. James' Palace.

It was this countess who was requested by the agents of King Geo. V. to pay rent, but she declined upon the score of poverty. It is notorious that the countess, who is a sculptor of note, and is also in receipt of a pension, is earning some $20,000 or $25,000 a year, and can well afford to pay good rent. Nevertheless, the countess has refused to move or pay rent, and has left it to the King to decide upon any further steps.

The gift residences around Windsor are also said to be a source of considerable annoyance to King Geo. V. who finds them occupied by persons who have no particular claim upon him or upon the nation. The tenants have the advantage of the owners in this respect, that King George is very loath to appear in a court of law.

There are nine of these residences at Windsor, and of the tenants six had no special arrangement with King Edward, who installed them, as to their vacation upon demand. It is held that unless there was a legal agreement to this effect the tenants can continue to occupy during their lifetime, and most of them will no doubt insist upon their legal right in the matter.

Sir Dighton Probyn, King Edward's Keeper of the Privy Purse, has not only a fine suit at Windsor, but has some exclusive rights in a park. He seems to have regarded the park as his own to such an extent that he has spent several thousands of dollars in beautifying it. He says he will move when he is reimbursed for his improvements, but as his expenditure does not improve the premises, except for his own occupancy, his terms have been refused. Probably Sir Dighton will be buried from Windsor.

Ireland's Lord Chief Justice

Stories of "Peter the Packer."

So far from resenting the description of "Peter the Packer," bestowed upon him by the Nationalists, on account of the manner in which he resolutely set aside jurors notoriously in sympathy with defendants in cases which came before him, when Mr. Balfour was Irish Secretary and the Coercion Act was in force, Lord O'Brien, who has just tendered his resignation as Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, has, on more than one occasion, remarked that the title was quite justified.

"I certainly eliminated from the jury-box," he has said, "those who were prejudiced. I did so without apology, and would do it again if in the same position I ought to have been called 'The Great Unpacker.'"

It has been truly said that Lord O'Brien has had some bitter political opponents, but not a single enemy. He is a typical Irishman—genial, kind-hearted, and witty, with a brogue of exceptional strength. He was Queen Victoria's guest on several occasions during Her Majesty's last visit to Ireland, and he greeted the Queen on one occasion by describing how, when travelling abroad before his elevation, he inscribed himself in the books of the Swiss hotels as Her Britannic Majesty's First Sergeant-at-Law. Although the title was strictly correct, its pompous nature threw the officials of Switzerland into consternation, and they had much to do to decide whether diplomatic courtesies were not due to this high and mighty personage.

A story which Lord O'Brien is rather fond of telling against himself relates to an occasion when he hired a hackney-car at Sligo for a driver after a weary day in court. He mounted the car beside the driver, and the "Jarvey," believing the Attorney-General, as Lord O'Brien then was, to be inside the vehicle, remarked, "That's a hard man inside."

"Yes," said Lord O'Brien, "I believe he is a man with an indifferent reputation."

At the end of the drive the Attorney-General handed the "jarvey" a gold coin, and the surprised and delighted man, looking first at the coin and then at the Attorney-General, whom he then recognized, said:

"Well, after all, the devil isn't as black as he's painted."

Body in Trunk Dumped Into New York Gutter

Push Cart to Haul the Gruesome Load—The Victim Was Still Warm When Police Investigated.

New York, Jan 20.—A trunk containing the still warm body of a man who had been bound hand and foot and murdered, was dumped out of a push cart in the heart of the east side to-day and left in the gutter.

"Look out for this trunk and we will pay you when we come back," said one of the two men who wheeled the cart to Samuel Trable, an eight-year-old boy, of Pitt street. The boy watched it for half an hour, then told a policeman. The murdered man was about forty years old, poorly dressed. The lower part of his face was muffled in a red bandana handkerchief by which the police believed he had been smothered. The body had been doubled up and packed in the trunk with a covering of old straw.

The push cart men had left plenty of finger print evidence on the trunk and equipped with this a large force of detectives set out to find them.

Head and Nostrils Stuffed from Cold

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends colds and Grippe in few hours—Tastes nice—Acts gently.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken. It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

Famous Streets.

THE STRAND.
By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash."
"The Strand" is the name borne for a brief distance by London's most famous and important street.

However, the casual tourist will not recognize this street by its name if he met it anywhere else. London streets change their names more frequently than America actresses, and the Strand travels under a dozen aliases. It begins as Cannon Street, and after dodging St. Paul's cathedral becomes Ludgate Hill. A few blocks west it becomes confused at Ludgate circus and changes its name to Fleet Street. Without warning it then becomes the Strand and sweeps majestically along for half a mile or more, greatly congested by motor buses and churches, both of which occupy the middle of the street on the slightest provocation—though the churches are less dangerous than the motor buses, as they have refused to budge for hundreds of years.

Presently the Strand reaches Trafalgar square, at which point it explodes into almost a dozen great streets, the pieces of which have never been satisfactorily collected by any one but a native of the city. There is a suspicion that Piccadilly is really the Strand in disguise and that after travelling as Piccadilly it changes as Kensington road, but this is disputed.

Anyway the Strand is an extremely busy street under any and all of its names. It is an eighteen-hour-a-day riot of busses, taxicabs and trucks, being one of the stow streets by which the Londoners can get to West London and vice versa. It is so crowded that it is gradually being changed to take care of the great growth of business, and the fronts of Fleet Street have been peeled off by eminent beauty specialists.

The Strand under its various names contains most of the newspaper offices of London, most of the lawyers and all of the law, the most exciting theatres and hotels of the city and places where umbrellas can be bought for fifty cents. It varies in age from 800 years to yesterday. A hundred kings have passed along its winding way and seven hundred years ago the traffic police held up knights in armor instead of taxicabs while pedestrians passed over. The most impressive buildings on the Strand are the Law Courts and the Gaiety theatre, and both the Crusades and Floradora began their existence on this street.

The Strand has no skyscrapers, and isn't as handsome as Fifth Avenue. It looks as if it needed a bath, and its sidewalks are as narrow as those of Podunk by the Creek. But it has one feature which makes all Americans homesick when they look at it. It has an enormous vacant lot covered with sign boards. This lot is worth so much that no one has had the nerve to build on it as yet, but some day an American five and ten cent store will discover it and the Strand will have a building boom.

Nurse's Years of Experience

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective. This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence. Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years, and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmans's, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
