Stella Mordant;

The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XVII.

As he went he gave a shrill call with which the Indians are familiar; but no answer came, and after some hours of tramping, he was on the point of returning, when he heard the baying of wolves. The weird sound came fitfully through the snow-laden air, and he paused and leant on his gun and listened. The skin of the Vancouver wolf is valuable, and though he was not very keen about it—there was nothing about which he was keen now—he turned and went back towards the sound.

As he approached, the baying was broken by the snarling which indicated that the pack was quarrelling over some prey, and moving more cautiously through the undergrowth, he came in sight of them. They were gathered round some object, fighting and snarling over it; and Rath, creeping nearer on his hands and knees with the gun ready, saw with amazement that it was a horse. He knelt on one knee, and raising his rifle, was about to mark the largest of the wolves, when he saw some of the pack leave the horse, and with the peculiar, skulking move of the animal, make for another spot, as if they were going to attack some other object.

Rath lowered his gun without firing, and crept nearer, and with a thrill of amazement and excitement, saw a man crouching behind a fallen tree, over which he was pointing a rifle. The wolves were seeking for him, crowding and pushing on one another, and snarling like curs, their reeking jaws apart, their long fangs glittering white. As they were close upon his natural barricade, the man fired, and the nearest wolf dropped; the others fell back for a moment, then recovering from their fright, sprang upon the fallen tree. Rath saw the man rise painfully to his feet, clutch his rifle, and swing it round; but in another instant he would have been overwhelmed and dragged down by the number of his assailants; but Rath's rifle was at his shoulder in a twinkling; he brought down the wolf that was nearest the man's throat, and, with a cry, sprang forward and rushed into their midst, striking at them with the butt-end of his gun. They scattered like sheep, and joined by their fellows worrying the dead horse, slunk off through the wood like spectres. The man they had been attacking sank on to the fallen tree, and with trembling hand wiped the sweat from his face. He

My Corns Were Ended This Way

Countless women have told other women about Blue-jay plasters. Now a million corns a month are ended in this scientific way.

Women who know Blue-jay do not suffer corns. When one appears, they put a Blue-jay plaster on it. That ends the pain. In 48 hours the corn is gone forever, with no soreness left.

If you can't believe it, ask your friends. Half of them have probably ended corns with Blue-jay. If you still doubt it, ask us for samples. Try them on corns of your own.

Don't coddle corns. Don't pare and keep them. Don't use old-time treatments. A famous chemist has made corns utterly unnecessary. That sort of torture is a thing of the past.

A Remedy For All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug," says Dr. C. P. Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all disease is pain, and this is what the patient most often complains to suffer, i. e., something to relieve his pain. If we can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Anst-Kamille Tablets. Many and varied are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions, and have never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headaches of malarial origin, where quinine was being taken. They appear to prevent the bad after-effects of the quinine. Anst-Kamille Tablets are also excellent for the headaches of a neuralgic origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. Two Anst-Kamille Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient is able to go about as usual. These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia and all pains."

was white with exhaustion, his arm was bleeding through a rent in his sleeve torn by the fangs of one of the wolves; but he nodded to Rath with the smile which a brave man always finds possible even at his last moment.

"You turned up just in time, sir," he said, trying to speak calmly, but panting in spite of his effort. "Another moment, and those devils would have made a supper of me. It was a near thing."

Rath leant on his gun, and, with his wonted gravity and calmness, regarded in silence the man he had rescued.

"Are you hurt?" he asked at last.

"No; I don't think so. One of the beasts touched my arm; but it's a mere scratch. I'm afraid they've done for my horse, though!" and he looked towards the dead animal and sighed.

"He was young and tall, and something in his face and voice pre-possessed Rath in his favour.

"Better the horse than you," he said, in his unconsciously philosophical fashion.

The stranger smiled, though rather sadly.

"That's true enough," he responded, "though the horse was a good one, and I'm grieved to lose him. But it might have been worse, as you say. You have saved my life, sir."

"I'm glad," responded Rath in his curt way. "How did you come here? Where are you going?"

The stranger straightened himself, as a man does when so interrogated. "I am from Victoria," he said; "as to where I was going—well, I'm not certain. The fact is, I lost my way—If I had a way; about which I am not sure. The fact is, I left Victoria in search of—well, adventure; and, by George! I've found it!" He laughed rather ruefully as he regarded his dead horse. "Are you a trapper?"

"Yes," replied Rath after a pause.

"You live near here?"

"Yes. You had better come with me," he added after a moment; for, incredible as it may seem, he was not overjoyed at the presence of this stranger. You see, the island was sacred to him and the memory of Stella, and he did not welcome the threatened intrusion.

"I shall be very glad," said the young fellow. "Is it far—your house, I mean—for I'll admit that I'm pretty nearly done. I haven't tasted food since yesterday, and this bout with those beasts has played the Harry with me."

"It is not far," said Rath, gravely. "I am sorry that I have nothing for you to eat; but there will be plenty for you presently."

"That's all right," said the stranger as they stepped out side by side, but slowly; for he was evidently near dead beat. "The sight of a fire and a square meal will be very grateful."

"Let me carry your gun," said Rath, and he took it from him.

"Is there a settlement near?" asked the stranger.

"A settlement? No," replied Rath. "No? Then where are we going?" asked his companion, with reasonable surprise.

"To my hut," answered Rath, quietly.

"Oh—ah, yes, to your people," said the other.

"I have no people," said Rath. "I am alone—live alone."

The young man regarded him with amazement.

"Alone! In this waste?"

"Yes; quite alone," said Rath.

"Good Lord! It's like a second Robinson Crusoe," murmured the stranger.

Rath made no response to this comment, and they walked on in silence until they reached the hut.

"Go in," said Rath, with natural courtesy. "I will get some supper ready. I have a goat killed, and will cook some of it."

The stranger leant against the end of the logs which supported the verandah.

"Thanks, very much," he said. "I wish I could express my gratitude. But I'm too astonished to express anything. Do you mean to say that you live here—alone?"

"Yes," replied Rath, quietly. "Why not?"

"Oh, Lord! I don't know. But—but—how on earth do you manage it? Alone, quite alone?"

"Quite alone," replied Rath, as he turned the joint of goat on the grid-iron.

The stranger stared, but said no more. Rath served up the meat cooked to a nicety; and as the young man ate it, he said:

"We really ought to introduce ourselves. May I ask your name?"

"My name is Rath Rayne," said Rath.

"And mine is Edward Bryan," said the stranger.

CHAPTER XVIII.

While they ate their supper the two young men, of course, regarded each other with interest and curiosity; masked on Edward's side by the courtesy of culture; open and candid, yet gravely dignified, on Rath's.

Rath liked the look of the man he had saved from the wolves—liked his frank and pleasant face, his ready smile, and the open and direct expression of his blue eyes. And Edward was singularly prepossessed in favor of this strange being, this modern Robinson Crusoe, who though attired in the garb of a lumberman and trapper, had the bearing, the manner, and, above all, the voice of a gentleman.

That he should be living alone in this wild and, so to speak, unexplored place, seemed too romantic to be true. Edward had read of such cases, but had always relegated them to the region of fiction. He looked round the hut with frank and inoffensive curiosity.

"You have very comfortable diggings, Rayne," he said at last. "And—pardon me—there is a settled, substantial look about them, as if you had been here for some time."

"As long as I can remember," said Rath. "Why do you call me Rayne? My name is Rath."

Edward tried not to stare.

"Rath; certainly," he said at once. "And mine is Edward, you'll remember. And you have been here since—how long? But not alone, surely? Of course that's impossible."

"No; my father lived with me. He died some months ago."

"And there has been no one else—only you two?" said Bryan. "Forgive me; but I can't help feeling curious. You'll admit that your situation is an extraordinary one."

"Is it?" said Rath. Then, after a pause, he said, reluctantly: "There was some one else—two persons; but one is dead, and the other—his voice grew low and hoarse—'has gone.'"

As he spoke he was glad he had put away the precious relics which Stella had left behind. They were hidden in a box beneath her bed, as if too sacred for even his own everyday gaze.

"And left you here alone! That was rather heartless, wasn't it? But perhaps you preferred to remain," added Edward, as Rath's face flashed, and he frowned heavily; for, all unwittingly, he had laid his hand upon Rath's still aching wound.

Rath nodded.

"Let me give you some more meat," he said, evading the question with the coolness and readiness of a man of the world, as Bryan noticed.

"Thank you. I was half famished. One more question, and my impertinent curiosity shall drop up. Are you too fond of your solitary state to accept a companion, or will you permit me to stay with you for a time? Of course, I don't propose a partnership," he went on, quickly. "I have not the capital to enable me to do so; but I will be glad to work for my bed and board, as we say in old England."

Rath was silent for a moment, as he considered the proposal, then he said, gravely:

"You shall stay if you wish."

"Thanks," rejoined Edward, with frank satisfaction. "I'm very glad. May I smoke?" He took out his pipe and pouch, and handed the latter to Rath, who declined it; then, as he leant back and puffed with intense enjoyment at his blackened briar.

Edward went on: "I ought to tell you something about myself. I'm the second son of Sir Gilbert Bryan; we live at a place called Shorn Court, near Ratton—but I don't suppose you ever heard of it."

"No," said Rath.

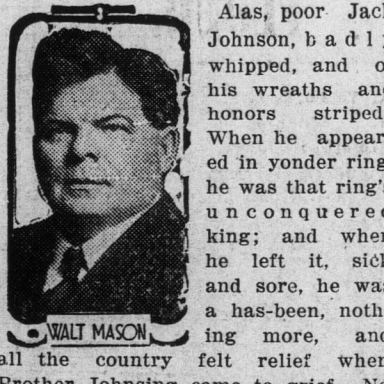

He was sitting with his head resting in his hand, his eyes fixed with grave attention on the speaker.

Sold at all drug stores.

JACK JOHNSON.

Alas, poor Jack Johnson, a bad dily whipped, and of his wreaths and honors stripped! When he appeared in yonder ring, he was that ring's unconquerable king; and when he left it, sick and sore, he was a has-been, nothing more, and all the country felt relief when Brother Johnson came to grief. No words encouraging he heard; no breasts with sympathy were stirred, but all were glad to see him slump before Jess Willard's cultured thump, and 'en the men of his own race exulted in his loss of place. 'Twas not because his skin was brown that men rejoiced when he came down. But Johnson, since he gained his fame seemed destitute of sense of shame, and laughed with foul, unholy glee, at all the claims of decency. An out-cast from his native land, and by most other countries banned, he'll skulk, since from the height he's barred, along the edges of the world, a blot on every decent scene, a leper with the sign, "Unclean." A man all morals can't defy, and with that sort of thing get by; and when he falls, as fall he must, rejoicing follows long disgust.

AND SPLINTED IT HIMSELF. Characteristic of the pluck of our foundation fishermen, the subject of our story speaks for itself.

Capt. J. W. Daley, aged 35 years, belonging to St. John's Bay, was engaged codding on schooner on George's Bank. One day morning last a heavy sea set too heavy to allow the dories to their trawls. Suddenly the vessel which was holding the strain of large anchor, snapped off, one of it striking Capt. Daley and throwing him violently against the side of vessel. He then fell on the deck.

He lay for a few moments before he was assisted to the cabin, being unable to go alone, his left leg broken at the thigh. Capt. Daley immediately realized the nature of his injuries, having heard the bones of the injured member into improper splints himself. The vessel was brought into Bay of Islands by Capt. Daley was landed and joined the first incoming express train, reaching city last night. On arrival he was taken to the ambulance and conveyed to the General Hospital for treatment.

Local Fishery.

Ice Wrought Have to Gear. A number of boats were at the entrance to the harbour again yesterday. Mr. F. Wilcox of the Bay was high-liner with sixty fish. The fishermen visited the grounds yesterday morning they observed some small fish or 'tom cods' deep the surface, suppose killed by acid from the submerged ice.

This season's ice conditions, were unprecedented, is a great hindrance and impediment to the fishery previously mentioned in the frame, considerable damage was brought to traps that were left in the all winter.

P.H. JENSEN BELIEVES HEROIC CHUM WAS KILLED.

Carbonar, May 12th. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have received communications from my brother-in-law, and when he wrote it was to sympathize with me. I have nothing since I wired him a wire in reference to the message received by the Rev. C. Jeffery. By the Canadian papers it appears that 2300 men, missing, and as far as is not officially reported killed may be that he is among the missing. This seems strange and conflicting from the subjoined letter brother received from Private Jensen. I am making a copy so that Jack's friends may know.

2nd Southern General Hospital, New Southhead Infirm., East Bryon April 28th.

To G. Hollands, Esq., East Sheen, London.

Dear Sir,—On my way to the front, I had a postal written by the death of your nephew, and a greatest friend, Hollands. I have six straps, bullet wounds, my back; my arms are nearly less, but I am trying to write this letter. You will, I know, be my writing, and I have been chums for years, we like brothers; my mother thought much of him almost as myself. We have been together throughout campaign, slept side by side, same, fought same. A night or fore the battle in which he died were lying side by side—his name, "Phil," take this address, uncle in London, so as to contact with his people. I feel I am not coming out of this fight, I laughed at him and said, don't such start. While the fight was progress, he was here, helping the wounded and doing in every way. He was struck shell on the head, and died in it. Thank God! He did not suffer. He died as a Britisher likes to "Playing the Game." May God fort his parents to bear this blow, but ones loved should be a will write you later.

Respectfully yours,
(Sgd.) P. J. JENSEN

Banking Skipper Broke His Leg AND SPLINTED IT HIMSELF.

Characteristic of the pluck of Newfoundland fishermen, the subjoined incident speaks for itself. Capt. J. W. Daley, aged 35 years and belonging to Salmonier, St. Mary's Bay, was engaged codfishing in his schooner on George's Bank. On Tuesday morning last a heavy sea raged, too heavy to allow the dories to get to their trawls. Suddenly the cable, which was holding the strain of the large net, snapped off, one end of it striking Capt. Daley and throwing him violently against the side of the vessel. He then fell on the deck where he lay for a few moments before being assisted to the cabin, as he was unable to go alone, his left leg being broken at the thigh. Capt. Daley immediately realized the nature of his injuries, having heard the boom snap. Though suffering great pain he put the injured member into improvised splints himself. The vessel was brought into Bay of Islands where Capt. Daley was landed and joined the first incoming express train, reaching the city last night. On arrival he was put into the ambulance and conveyed to the General Hospital for treatment.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY. The bath ready for a baby, when baby is ready for the bath should be of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the Instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—independently of the state of the kitchen fire. The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance. Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost! Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after-labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather! A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no flues to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" en-gross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force. But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem. Latter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary trouble. In the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes. The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12.11

Our Volunteers.

The movements of the Volunteers yesterday were swimming parade in the forenoon and a route march, under the command of Lieut. Nunn, and rifle practice at the Southside Range in the afternoon. Of the 177 men now on drill only 10 are not equipped, the remainder being carried out more expeditiously this time than with previous contingents. Eighty men are needed to complete the company before leaving for England.

Obituary.

On Thursday, 13th inst. R. J. O'Brien, of Witley Bay, died after a long illness, borne with Christian patience and resignation. His death was hastened, no doubt, by sorrow for the loss of his son, P. Amusements.

"WHEN THE MAPLE LEAVES WERE FALLING." See the Crescent's advertisement for particulars of the great feature programme they show to-day. Mr. Delmonico sings a new novelty song: "When the Maple Leaves were Falling," he will also give a vocal cornet imitation of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." Go to the Crescent to-day and hear Mr. Delmonico in these two excellent numbers, and see a good picture show. The usual extra pictures at the big Saturday matinee.

GREAT WAR FILMS AT THE NICKEL.

The Nickel has an interesting programme arranged for patrons this evening. Included in the pictures is a series of war films right from the firing line. The Belgian defenders will be seen in action; the ruins of the city of Rheims will be shown; also the famous Cathedral of Rheims which was damaged by the enemy's shells. These films were lately placed on the market. There will also be a Vitagraph drama, a Biograph melodrama and a Keystone comedy. The big weekly matinee for children takes place to-morrow afternoon. Extra pictures will be given which will delight the little ones. Grand music and good singing, too. Don't miss today's show as it is of the greatest interest.

ROSELEY'S GREAT CONTEST TO-NIGHT.

A big house last night at both the Rosley Theatres and a great show at both places. To-night's contest will be a fine one as there are so many competitors. To-night the reserve seat tickets will be sold at the side door to avoid the crush. Be in time for good seats; doors will be open at seven sharp. The vaudeville by the great Ballard Brown and Madge Locke is very delightful and the pictures are splendid.

THE BRITISH THEATRE DRAWS LARGE HOUSES.

The British Theatre continues to draw large houses, and all who have attended speak in the highest terms of the pictures. The seats are comfortable, too. The management is sparing no pains to afford pleasure and comfort to all. To-day there is an exceptionally good picture. The famous actor Francis X. Bushman is featured in a great two-part drama entitled "The Elder Brother." "The Boy from the Poor House" is another beautiful film telling the story of a boy's uphill climb in life. "Dawn" is an attractive story of the West. "Tangled Tangles" is a Vitagraph comedy in which John Bunny is seen doing it. Everybody's doing it. Don't forget the extra pictures shown.

"CLASSMATES" AND "HARDING'S HERITAGE."

Packed houses greeted the appearance of these two beautiful photographs at the Casino Theatre last night. They remain for the balance of the week, being succeeded on Monday by the great 5 reel subject of Great British interest, "The Boer War." A truly exceptional picture. The two plays which are now being shown are works of art. "Harding's Heritage" is a production of the great Patie Freres, the wonderful French film-makers, who accomplished such fine work in the development of the moving picture industry. It is a powerful story and the characters are all splendidly played by only first class French performers. "Classmates," as the name implies, being written around five chums whose thrilling and hair-raising adventures from the moment of their entering the American Military Academy at West Point until culminating upon their return from terrible experiences in the South African desert and jungle. Great interest and excitement are at their highest pitch of enthusiasm throughout.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

Last night there was a crowded house at each performance at this popular theatre. The two little Sisters Squires were loudly applauded when they sang: "I'm on my way to Dublin Bay." Don't forget the big contest to-night at Rosley's East End Theatre. A long list of names have been handed in and a good night's entertainment is assured; be early to secure seats. There will be an entire change of pictures at "Ours" to-night which will please all patrons. Only the best to be seen at the cosy, select little house in the West End.

C. H. E. Exams.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—In the Daily News of Tuesday, April 28th, was an editorial headed: "History and Geography" for which I presume the Editor of that paper, Hon. J. A. Robinson, is responsible. It deals principally with the importance of having these subjects taught practically and writes better results in our schools. To confirm his remarks the writer quotes an extract from the School Report of Mr. Blackall, Superintendent of Church of England Schools, which will certainly open the eyes of most teachers in that gentleman's jurisdiction. But, sir, it is on the closing sentences of that editorial I ask space in your paper to comment. The following are the words: "But why blame the teachers' their is but one duty to get results and the easiest way to get results is to adopt the methods of our forefathers in raising capons. Do away with the cramming system and teachers and scholars alike will find a real joy and interest in this world of ours, and the part which Britons have played right down the ages. Familiarity with world history is of vast more value than C. H. E. certificates and a hundred per cent in hygiene or memory gymnastics." Now, sir, it is quite clear that the writer of these words is utterly opposed to the Examinations held under the Council of Higher Education and uses the examinations of his paper to give the public to understand that such are his sentiments. Perhaps he is justified in wielding his sledge of criticism on the C. H. E. But, sir, is he fully aware of the injury his remarks are capable of doing to those teachers who are preparing candidates for the examinations of the coming June? I beg to ask the Hon. John Alexander Robinson if he could see his own steps to excoriate his influence on matters educational, than throwing dust in the eyes of some four or five hundred teachers, and two or three thousand children who are working hard to bring the year's school work to a successful close. What were the steps taken by Mr. Robinson in the acting Mayor of St. John's, when he and his co-workers felt they could give the taxpayers of the city better returns than those offered by the Municipal Council they presented their views to the public and asked for a temporary removal of office to not them into execution, which they were granted. If Mr. Robinson, wise and far-seeing as the qualities of his paper speaks his own mind, can outline a system of Education more advantageous than our present one, why in the name of common sense doesn't he make a leader of himself and possibly he will get twenty-six followers, then present his views to the public; or, as this House is in session, to the Legislature. Then he will be taking a man's part, or since he poses as an authority on Education, he will have an opportunity to exercise his "practical ideas." Now, Mr. Robinson, either put up or shut up and do not, sir, be agitating a criticism that is showered, vehemently showered on the heads of the poor teachers. He also says in his remarks that a teacher's chief business is to get results. I beg to ask him: Where is the man who is not looking for results? Choose him from what walk of life you may. Why does the esteemed Editor take the trouble to walk from his home to the Daily News Office every evening? Is it not that he may obtain the results which evidently he is aiming for, viz., a good circulation for his paper. Sir, such a remark is not what we would expect from such a liberal and broad-minded man.

The Products Contract.

A favourable feature of the situation in regard to the deliberations on the Newfoundland Products Contract, has been the disposition so far displayed by the parties to the agreement, of taking into consideration objections which have been raised to many of its clauses. In a number of cases, the suggestions have already borne fruit, and some new resolutions have been tabled making modifications suggested. There are, however, a number of suggestions which are in our opinion worthy of consideration in the interest of the country.

One provision that other loggers claim in the agreement is number 20. "Notwithstanding the grant of the water powers herein, all persons shall have the right to the temporary use of the said waters for the purpose of passing to and fro in small boats, and for the purpose of floating logs and lumber belonging to such persons to their mills, provided that such use shall not seriously interfere with or prejudice the business or operations of the Company."

This clause virtually gives the grantees exclusive control of their waters, for the proviso is so broad and general that the grantees will be able to sustain objections to the ordinary use of the waters by rivermen generally. In the leases of water rights in Canada the position is reversed, and the lessees are not permitted to interfere seriously with other loggers in the use of the streams and they are called upon to make provisions that other loggers may use the streams effectively. Moreover, in the Act of 1904, relating to the Reid grants in regard to water-power, the first clause provided: "It shall be lawful for all persons whomsoever to float saw logs and other timber rafts and draw over all streams and lakes within the Colony, when necessary for the descent of such logs or other timber." It will be noted that there is no proviso in this clause; that the use shall be TEMPORARY, or that "it shall not interfere seriously or prejudice the business or operations of the Reid Mtd. Co."

Western Fishery.

Up to the end of last week the total catch of cod for the season, between Channel and Port aux Basques, was 2,594 quintals, while for the week alone 59 quintals of cod and 2,500 lbs. of halibut were landed. Two schra. came back from the Banks with 600 quintals, and 5 from the local grounds with 150 qts. Weather conditions have been bad lately, though there is a plentiful supply of bait.

The Army's Cheeriest Officer.

General Whom Kitchener says will Always get a Front Place.

The most cheerful officer in the British Army is said to be Lieut. General Sir Henry Rawlinson, who has charge of the Fourth Army Corps in France, and who headed the recent operations that resulted in the taking of the French town of Neuve Chapelle.

He did a lot of good work in the Boer War, and when he left Ladysmith, some one jokingly reported that the troops began to die because they found their lives so dull.

Lord Kitchener has a high opinion of his abilities. For instance, when Sir Henry commanded a mobile column which moved about a good deal faster than was appreciated by the Boers, the present Secretary for War declared "his characteristics will always ensure him a front place in whatever he sets his mind to."

Sir Henry Rawlinson has not had the best of good luck in the present campaign. On one or two occasions he has been opposed by superior forces, and has been unable to prevent the Germans from getting large reinforcements. At critical moments he has also had to hold a much larger front than the size of his troops justified, but he has always faced the stubborn situation with characteristic good humor and good temper, and is as popular as ever.

An Active and Varied Career.

He is a son of a baronet who was a famous translator of the Cuneiform inscriptions of Persia and Babylonia, and he has already had an eventful and varied military career. Commencing with the 60th King's Royal Rifle Corps in 1842, he became aide-de-camp to Earl Roberts when Commander-in-Chief in India, and later he served with distinction with the mounted infantry throughout the Burmese War of 1886-7.

In 1892 he exchanged into the Coldstream Guards and six years later became attached to the staff of Lord Kitchener during the campaign in the Sudan. He has been mentioned no fewer than six times in dispatches and has been awarded the King's and Queen's medals with eight clasps.

His favourite amusements are hunting, polo, cricket, rackets and drawing, but he has also published an officers' note-book that is very popular in the service. For some years he acted as commandant of the Staff College, and has also commanded the 2nd Brigade at Aldershot.

He is only fifty years of age and a lot ought to be heard about his progress and skill before the great war in France is concluded. He is a born leader of men, and when a great move is in contemplation he goes about freely, and inspires his subordinates not only with his own cheery optimism, but also his enthusiasm.

This is an action for $1500 for damages for breach of promise of marriage. F. A. Mews for Plaintiff; L. E. Emerson for Defendant. The following are sworn as a special jury:—John Henley, John Rolis, Francis Millier, James Crotty, Joseph Farrell, Frederick Rowe, George Bradley, Sidney Bursell, Joseph McDonald. F. A. Mews states the Plaintiff's case to the jury.

Bethana Campbell is sworn; examined by Mews; letters and post-cards put in as evidence. The cross-examination finished at 1 p.m., when the court took recess till 2.30 p.m.

BANK NOTE TRAGEDY.

In the days when to steal or forge a banknote in England was a crime punishable by death the histories of many notes were tragic in the extreme. The circumstances of one memorable case are peculiarly sad. A young man called Howland was accused by his uncle, a merchant in the city, of stealing a 250 note from the writing tablet in his study. Although it was not proved that the note had ever been in his possession or that it had ever been cashed, the circumstances were considered suspicious enough to justify conviction, and the young man, who was popular and of irreproachable character, was sentenced to death. Some years after his execution the note for which his life was sacrificed was found in a recess in the library chimney, where it is supposed a draft had carried it.—London Tit-Bits.

Measures Against Minority—Keeping Men From War Work.

(Daily Mail, April 24.)

The minority of mercenary employers in this district have not yet taken the plain hint that Mr. Asquith gave them in his speech last Tuesday, when he said that the Government would resort to compulsion if necessary.

The North-East Coast Armaments Committee at a full meeting to-day received a statement of the available labour already offered by employers. The total is by no means satisfactory, and the secretary was instructed by unanimous vote to take further steps to induce employers who have not already done so voluntarily to contribute at once the workmen required in the various skilled trades necessary to the production of war munitions.

This means a very energetic canvass of employers in Northumberland and Durham carried out by the organisers by means of the post, telegraph, telephone and personal visit. The organisers will be guided by the employers' returns as to the number of men they employ. If necessary these returns can be checked rapidly by the very complete records that are kept by the local trade union officials.

The organisers are very able men, and no doubt will do much by persuasion. I hear of one instance lately where an employer rang up to say he was very, very sorry, but he really could not lend any men. Eventually a persuasive organiser induced him to supply four skilled men.

Still, a drastic example will probably be needed in the end to bring the more mercenary employers to a sense of what must be done. The Government have always the power, they should remember, to seize a particular factory or works, and it might be better for the employer to give men rather than that should happen.

Some employers—for the credit of England I am glad to say they are very, very few—are even ready apparently to induce men to leave Government work for civil work, for two members of the Engineers' Society were specially co-opted by the Committee to-day to prevent piracy of this description.

The Committee also resolved to refer the question of the payment of subsistence and travelling allowances for workmen moved for some distance to new employment on the armament work to the Government Departments concerned—the Admiralty and War Office—and to press for an immediate decision. The Committee is quite convinced that these payments must in fairness be made, but the question is, who shall bear the cost—the Government or the employers?

Messages Received Previous to 9 a.m.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, May 14.

The Governor, Newfoundland, has received the following message from the Governor of the Dardanelles: "The battleship Goliath was torpedoed and lost over five hundred men were lost. Two Turkish gunboats and a Turkish transport have been sunk. Submarine E-14.

General French reports that a German attack east of Ypres on the Main Road, has been repulsed, and change elsewhere.

The French Government reports fighting north of Arras continues with extreme violence. German forces in attacking Neuville and St. Yves were particularly heavy. Progress east of Arras is continued, and the last German communication from this place is being threatened.

This afternoon's report announces brilliant successes. A violent counter-attack on Notre Dame de Lorette was repulsed with extremely heavy losses. Carancy was carried by assault. Hundreds of German bayonets and over 1,000 prisoners were taken. There has been appreciable progress north of Neuville. The total number of prisoners captured this Sunday is 4,000.

In the Trans-Dniester region the Russians took the offensive and drove over forty miles, inflicting heavy loss on the enemy. On the 10th inst., alone, over 5,000 prisoners were taken with 6 guns and machine guns.

General Botha's forces have advanced Windhoek. HARCOURT.

BRITISH BATTLESHIP GOLIATH SUNK BY TORPEDO.

LONDON, May 14.

The British battleship Goliath has been torpedoed in the Dardanelles. It is feared that 500 lives were lost. The announcement of the loss of Goliath was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Mr. Churchill. While no definite information has apparently been received as to the number of lives lost, Mr. Churchill said he feared it would reach 500.

BRITISH SUBMARINE DESTROYES TRAPERS DARDANELLES.

LONDON, May 14.

Mr. Churchill announced in Commons that the British submarine E-14 had penetrated through the Dardanelles and into the Sea of Marmora, sinking two Turkish gunboats and a Turkish transport. Goliath was one of the older battleships of pre-Dreadnought type built in 1898, complement of 750 men. Twenty officers and 150 men of Goliath's crew were saved.

ALIEN ENEMIES WILL BE DEPORTED.

LONDON, May 14.

Premier Asquith announced in Commons to-day that all male aliens over military age will be interned. He also said that children in suitable cases would be interned, though some might be segregated all adult male enemies of their own safety and for the safety of the country. Announcing the policy of the Government, the Premier said: "At this moment 21,000 are men, are at large in the country. The Government should, for their own safety and that of the country, be segregated and interned. If over military age should be repatriated. The Government recognizes there may be calling for exceptional treatment. Women and children form cases which justice and humanity require that they be interned. An official body of character will be set up to claim for exemption, and a military and naval authorities provided necessary accommodations for those who have not secured exemption will be interned. Reading Advertisements.

By RUTH CAMERON.

What tremendously interesting things advertisements are!

I know of people who lay aside a magazine or a newspaper as finished when they have read the stories or the news. They treat the pages of advertising as if they were blank pages. What a spendthrift of interest and amusement they are!

There was a time when I used to be as extravagant, and then one evening I had to spend four hours in a railway station with one newspaper and one half read magazine as my sole literature. I read them both literally from cover to cover, and learned a lesson in intensive cultivation in reading which will stay with me the rest of my life.

Advertisements are chock-full of both interest and instruction if you get the right angle on them.

Classified "Ads" Are Short Stories in Embryo.

Take, for instance, the classified advertisements. To anyone with a particle of imagination they are a never failing source of interest. The lost and found column "always" delights me. Even the houses and rooms to rent and the business advertisements, though the dullest of the lot to one not personally interested, have many high lights of human interest.

Can't you feel the probable story behind the advertisement for two rooms for a man and baby girl "in a

Two Million Rifles Said to Have Reached Liverpool.

New York, May 5.—According to news received from Liverpool by the White Star liner Megantic, 2,000,000 rifles and 200,000,000 rounds of ammunition has arrived from Japan for the use of Kitchener's "army," and were being distributed as rapidly as possible to the various training camps.

In addition to the 3,000,000 troops raised in England, a native army of 1,500,000 men, it was said, are being trained in India, for service in the war if needed.

Several of the captured German merchant ships are now being used to carry British troops across the Channel to Havre, Dieppe and Boulogne. Names of the vessels have been effaced and numbers marked on their sides similar to the other transports, it was said.

The former Stolzni has become the C-4, the Scharzfeld the C-5, and the Wildemfels C-11. Six more captured German ships are at Tilbury Docks.

Kitchener's New Army

Commander-in-Chief at Malta is in Chief Command.

London, May 6.—The official Gazette to-day announces the appointment of General Sir Henry Rundle, governor and commander-in-chief of Malta, to the chief command of one of Great Britain's six new armies. Two of the armies already at the front are under General Sir Douglas Haig and General Sir Smith Dorian, while another is in the operations against the Dardanelles under General Sir Ian Hamilton. Of these armies not yet in action Lieut. General Sir Archibald Hunter commands the 1st "Kitchener" army, and Generals Rundle and Bruce Hamilton the remaining two.

General Sir Arthur Paget has been appointed commander of the Salisbury training centre.

TEETOTAL MINERS.

Led by Mr. Leonard Llewellyn, general manager of the Cambrian Combine Collieries, a movement has been started among South Wales mine officials and men to follow the King's example in the matter of alcoholic drink.

It has been taken up at Messrs. John Lancaster's Colliery, Collieries, the Rose Heyworth Colliery, and two other Monmouthshire mines. At the Rose Heyworth practically the entire staff and over 400 miners have taken the pledge, and over 1,900 have enlisted in the new movement in Monmouthshire.

Ice in the Bays.

A large quantity of ice is still in evidence in Bonavista and Conception Bays. The coastal steamers, in consequence, are experiencing much difficulty going north. After leaving here on Tuesday morning the S. S. Prospero had to steam through 10 miles of ice before reaching her first port of call—Bay de Verde. When she left there for the next port she had to retreat twice.

At the House.

THURSDAY, May 13th. A petition was presented by Mr. Abbott from Middle Brook, Gambo, on the subject of a road. The Colonial Secretary tabled certain information asked for by the Opposition.

The Municipal Affairs Bill passed the third reading and was ordered to be sent to the Upper House. The Speaker then announced, that Mr. W. R. Howley, K. C., on behalf of certain petitioners would be heard before the Bar of the House on matters relating to the interests of his clients, which interests were said to be affected by the Resolutions dealing with the Newfoundland Products Corporation.

Mr. Howley upon being introduced to the Bar of the House expressed his appreciation of the courtesy that had been extended to him, and mentioned that the occasion was a memorable one since it was the first time in the history of the Colony that a petitioner had been so privileged. He then stated that he came to the Bar of the House on behalf of clients who represented large corporations, and who claimed that the Agreement before the House granted certain concessions to the Newfoundland Products Corporation which would interfere with the rights of his clients and diminish the value of their interests within the colony.

That he was privileged to be so heard was to him an arguery of hope that the claims of his clients would be treated with fair and impartial consideration by the House. He felt that in making his presentation it was unnecessary to state that he or his clients were not actuated by any political motives whatsoever. He had come there to state the case plainly, and ask for a careful consideration of the facts he proposed to lay before the House. His clients did not object to the measure in itself, as they would be glad to see the Colony advance industrially, but they did object to certain concessions granted to the Products Company at their expense. Continuing, he asked that the House, would, after hearing him state the position of his clients, introduce proper measures that would safeguard their interests.

He first explained the position of the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Co., a company incorporated in Montreal, in 1909. The company was in possession of two large areas, the first of 387 square miles at Kenebec River, and the other of 2,900 square miles, situated at Sawich Bay. These two areas the sum of $560,000 had been paid in cash. At present his clients possess no water powers within the limits of the Agreement of 1912. The rights to acquire the very waters which in course of time might become necessary to his clients in the development of their industries. He then referred to clause 20 of the Agreement which was the most objectionable to him, and that the rights of individuals are subject to the new company instead of the company's rights being subject to existing rights. He would respectfully suggest that this clause be taken out, not in the sense of dictating to the House, but because of the fact that it destroys all hope of protection of rights now existing. He also considered that the right of expropriation are altogether too broad, and that the method of compensation arising from expropriation was a most unsatisfactory system. He then stated the case of the American Nid. Pulp and Lumber Co. which was incorporated in Michigan in 1909. This company possessed some 400 square miles in the Humber River and Deer Lake region for which $300,000 had been paid. In dealing with this case he referred to the House to the Deer Lake Pulp and Paper Act of 1912. He continued by explaining the position of the International Timber Co. and the St. George's Lumber Co. These companies were not so seriously affected as the other two with which he had dealt. The former company possessed about 270 square miles of timber for which $130,000 had been paid. In summarizing the case Mr. Howley laid particular stress on the objections with regard to the exclusive use of water power rights and trans-

New Moon—13th.
Days Past—133 To Come—231
BATTLE OF LEWES, 1264. During the reign of Henry III. occurred the struggle between the King and the barons. In this battle the barons under Simon de Montfort gained a great victory over the King. One of the results of this battle was the decision that a Council should be called to help the King in the Government of the country. This led to the First Parliament, 1265.

HENRY GRATTAN died 1820, aged 74. An Irish orator and statesman who did memorable work for the cause of his country and was presented with £50,000 by the Irish people for his services to the Irish cause.

Cruelty is commonplace; and hatred, like the eagle, that carries up its prey to dash it down to more certain death, seems to elevate the object it is about to destroy. —Grattan.

portation of logs, expropriation, and method of assessment in compensation for same. In conclusion he again thanked the House for the courtesy that had been extended to his clients in permitting him to explain their case, and asked that the objections presented would receive their most careful consideration.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on Supply, when the Supplemental Estimates were presented.

Mr. Kent in referring to the Supplementals was of the opinion that detailed statements should accompany the votes, showing why and for what exact purpose they were needed, and not that he questioned the necessity of the Supplemental supply.

Mr. CHIT and Mr. Coaker also spoke along similar lines and suggested that the extra votes state exactly their needs. The Committee then arose until this afternoon.

The House then went into Committee on the Newfoundland Products Contract.

Mr. CHIT asked if the Premier meant to reply to the objections pointed out by Mr. Howley, Counsel for the Petitioners. Mr. Howley had referred particularly to the tying up of water power rights and the extension of other privileges, but he would like to hear what the Government had to say in reply before he would be prepared to vote on the matter. He had no desire to prolong a session so well advanced already, but would ask the Premier to bring before the House the conveyances by which these water powers were given to the Company.

The Premier stated that he had no information other than the copy of the grant which he would table.

Mr. LLOYD asked if it was the intention of the Government to approach the Company to secure the expunging of Clause 20 giving the Company virtually an exclusive right of fishing logs in the Humber drainage and on the Hamilton River.

In reply, the Premier said negotiations were proceeding on this matter.

Mr. LLOYD also asked that where Companies had water-powers necessary to develop their property, provision should be made for the supply of an equal horsepower to them, if the Products Company diminished the horsepower value of such falls to their owners. A monetary compensation to the owners being not the same value to the country as the development of the properties adversely affected would have.

The Premier said this was a new aspect of the case and he would give it attention.

After some discussion on a minimum wage to be paid by the Company, and after a suggestion by Mr. Kent that the first Resolution concerning the contract should be taken first, and some words from Mr. Downey, the Committee rose until to-day.

The Industrial Reserve

WELL-TO-DO WORKERS IN THE RANKS.

The Industrial Reserve formed to assist in meeting the heavy demand for workers in the munitions industries has, after nearly a fortnight's trial, proved its usefulness. The reserve was first suggested by Mr. J. Chartres in a letter in The Times on March 25. His proposal was that men should be enrolled to do work which otherwise would be neglected for lack of labour and to fill temporarily the places of men on active service.

The recruits have been of two classes—semi-skilled and unskilled. The semi-skilled men are those who have some knowledge of machinery, men who have been through the workshops in their early days, or who have taken up model engineering as a hobby, or have a natural aptitude for mechanical work. The unskilled workers whose rate of wage is smaller than that of the semi-skilled men, are as a rule, higher in daily through the week for 6d. an hour, and goes from his home to his work in his own motor car. Another pays more for his bedroom and breakfast than he receives during the week for his labour. Still another holds a good position abroad, but, having secured leave for the duration of the war, although too old for military service, has returned to England to do what he can.

The members of the Industrial Reserve are largely men able to devote all their time to the work, but this is not an absolute necessity. Arrangements are being made to supply men to keep machines engaged upon production for the government at work on Saturdays and Sundays, thus enabling the ordinary staff to put in a fair amount of overtime during the week and to get two days' rest at the week-end. This may be extended to providing a number of men who can spare a day or two in the week for places where their services are urgently needed.

As far as possible members of the Industrial Reserve are to be employed in the district in which they reside. Employers have shown the greatest willingness to avail themselves of the reserve, and the demand for their services is growing. There has been no disposition on the part of trade unions to object to this form of employment, for it is recognized that it will not compete with the ordinary worker after the war.

The headquarters of the Industrial Reserve are at 227, Strand.

WHEN WERE ARMoured TRAINS FIRST USED?

Armoured trains and motor cars are proving invaluable in this war, for they can both make flying attacks and unless actually hit by a shell can rapidly retire without much damage from infantry attack. The invention of the armoured train originated over sixty years ago, when a suggestion for their use was placed before the Duke of Wellington. The first practical use of one was in 1861 during the American Civil War. The cars were then covered with loop-holed sheet iron.

During the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian War, the Germans made great use of armoured trains. These armoured trains were, indeed, regular small fortresses on wheels. Each train carried four guns and a train crew of 500 soldiers.

In the war against Arabi Pasha Lord Fisher "armoured" trains with sand bags piled round the engines and trucks, and did valuable service with them.

Nowadays, no army is complete without such trains, which are heavily protected against modern rifle fire.

The Catch.

Representative Barthold said at a banquet in Milwaukee:

"Those people remind me of the old man. Yes, they remind me very much of the old man."

"He had a soft, daff, look, the old man I'm speaking of, and he sat on a park bench in the sun, with rod and line, as if he were fishing; but the line, with a worm on the hook, dangled over a bed of bright primroses."

"Daff!" said a passer-by to himself. "Daff! Bughouse! Nice-looking old fellow, too. It's a pity!"

"Then, with a gentle smile, the passer-by approached the old man and said: "What are you doing, uncle?" "Fishing, sir," answered the old man, solemnly.

"Fishing, eh? Well, uncle, come and have a drink." "The old man shouldered his rod and followed the kindly stranger to the corner saloon. There he regaled himself with a large glass of dark beer and a good five-cent cigar. His host, contemplating him in a friendly, protecting way, as he sipped and smoked, said: "So you were fishing, uncle? And how many have you caught this morning?"

"The old man blew a smoke cloud toward the ceiling. Then, after a pause, he said: "You are the seventh, sir." (From the Philadelphia Bulletin.)

ASQUITH DEPLORES VINDICTIVENESS.

LONDON, To-day. In response to the question of Premier Asquith to define the military period as between the ages of 17 and 55, the general trend of the debate was favorable to the proposal of the Government. Ronald McNeil expressed the hope that Germans in high places who heretofore have partaken of British hospitality would have the decency to keep themselves in the background and follow the excellent example of Prince Louis of Battenburg. Answering the points raised during the debate, Premier Asquith said the case of naturalized aliens would be met under the Government scheme by the provision that where there was suspicion against a man, a judicial body would have the same power of interference as in the case of an un-naturalized alien. What was going on over the country, the Premier said, was not the methods of sane and sober people. People had great provocation, he said, but he deplored the outbursts of vindictiveness which he told his hearers were a dishonor to the name of this country. Commoner Thorne, interposing, said some newspapers incited people. Asquith replied, more shame to those papers.

BOTHA WILL MAKE REPHISALS.

CAPE TOWN, To-day. General Louis Botha issued a proclamation at Windhoek which says that as the commander of the German forces violated the Hague Convention by poisoning wells, General Botha reserved the right to exact such reprisals as he may deem fitting.

GERMAN PROPERTY DESTROYED IN JOHANNESBURG.

JOHANNESBURG, To-day. There have been a series of violent anti-German demonstrations at Johannesburg, which culminated yesterday in wrecking a number of German and Austrian establishments. The police intervened and quelled the disturbance, but they were virtually powerless. Altogether over 50 buildings have been wholly or partly wrecked and their contents either burned or reduced to matchwood. The establishments cleaned out include 10 large warehouses, 10 saloons, three hotels and over twenty shops. The mob destroyed the German Diederikz and Cillib and pillaged the office of the General Mining Corporation. This concern has an international board of directors, including some Germans. The crowd burned all the books, records and papers of the company. The offices of Sir George Albuse, near the Stock Exchange, were raided and a bonfire was British troops, according to Field Marshal French, have withstood all German onslaughts. While at times they have been compelled to give some ground, their counter attacks have brought them back to the position from which they started. However, this has been a costly business for the German artillery bombardment has been very severe. Counter attacks are always followed by heavy losses to the attacking force. The Germans were not in a position of having to meet a counter-offensive as they have now. To the North of Arras, in Westre and other points along the western front, of these the most important is that in which the French are carrying on their operations at points where their first line joins the British and in which they continue to meet with unvarying success. They report that the Imperial German Government will disavow the acts which the Government of the United States complains that they will make reparation so far as reparation is possible, for injuries which are without measure, that they will take immediate steps to prevent a recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare, for which the Imperial German Government in the past so wisely and so firmly contended. In conclusion the statement says that the Imperial German Government will not expect the Government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens, and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment.

11.15 A.M.

CONTENTS OF AMERICAN NOTE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The United States Government yesterday cabled Ambassador Gerard for presentation to the German Government, the note calling attention to the grave situation which resulted from the violation of American rights on the high seas, culminating in the sinking of the Lusitania with the loss of more than 100 American lives. The communication expresses the confident expectation of the United States that the Imperial German Government will disavow the acts which the Government of the United States complains that they will make reparation so far as reparation is possible, for injuries which are without measure, that they will take immediate steps to prevent a recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare, for which the Imperial German Government in the past so wisely and so firmly contended. In conclusion the statement says that the Imperial German Government will not expect the Government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens, and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment.

ITALIAN CABINET RESIGNATIONS.

LONDON, To-day. The Council of Ministers, says Reuter's Rome correspondent, considering it did not take place today, the resignation of the Italian cabinet, regarding the international policy, which the gravity of the situation demands that he should resign to the King. An official note to this effect was issued tonight. The King has reserved his decision as to whether the resignation will be accepted.

NOTING AGAINST GERMANS SIDING.

LONDON, To-day. The statement of President Asquith in the Commons, that all alien enemies in this country of military age, would be interned and that this applied to those naturalized, against whom there was any suspicion, and that others would be repatriated, has satisfied those persons who were acting for some drastic action. As a result the riots in London and provincial towns have largely subsided. Such rioting as did take place today, and to-night was carried on by mobs of boys, girls and women, who were out for fun, bent on looting German shops, while being incited by laughing or encouraging their youthful imitators. The police, strongly reinforced by special constables, were better able to handle the situation today. Naturalized Germans, Austrians and Turks were busy to-day signing declarations, repeating their oaths of allegiance to Britain. One memorial from men of this class in the City of London, has been sent direct to King George. Other memorials have been handed to the Mayors of various cities. In all the memorials the men reaffirm their oath of allegiance and

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food that will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Eastern woman writes: "I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested."

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change my diet."

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"FIGHTING FOR OUR LIVES."

LONDON, To-day. In supporting the bill to give the Government power to control the sale of liquor in districts in which munition of war are manufactured, which was before the House of Lords on the second reading, Viscount Haldane said: "We are fighting for our lives." He added the opinion had been expressed that until the return of normal conditions the volunteer system would be difficult to depart from, yet we find we have to reconsider the situation in the light of the tremendous necessities, where with the nation is confronted. We are not face to face with that problem yet. At present the hands of the War Office are full with men they possess. Lord Lansdowne said: "The House heard with great satisfaction that the Government is prepared to reconsider the whole matter in regard to recruiting in view of the tremendous necessities which confront us. Many members of the House had thought for a long time that the Government announcement of the kind should be made. They hoped it might be taken as an indication that this very grave problem was engaging the attention of the Government."

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT OF BRITISH LINES.

LONDON, To-day. The following official communication issued this evening: "Fighting on East Ypres still continues, the Germans to-day have again subjected our line on the North Menin Road to a violent artillery bombardment in which places were destroyed and some temporary readjustment in the lines was made. The line, however, has not been completely re-established. On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report."

1.30 P.M.

NO COMMENT ON AMERICAN NOTE.

LONDON, To-day. Hardly any of the London morning papers have as yet commented on this morning's communication, but the unofficial forecast of the note should be received with reserve, but says if it is correct, the President Wilson is adhering firmly to the spirit of his original declaration with reference to strict accountability. Beyond the point, the Chronicle, could well be asked that a guarantee for cessation of the illegal and barbarous submarine policy, and all that on the degree of firmness with which the request is made. For that we must await official publication.

FRENCH COMMENT.

PARIS, To-day. The unofficial version of Wilson's note to Germany is highly praised by this morning's papers. The Figaro says the Figaro, that the "Era of Banals" protests is over and Germany must give formal guarantees that she will not permit her policy beyond the pale of civilization. We can in any case be sure the United States will exact full and entire satisfaction.

U.S. PRESS COMMENT.

NEW YORK, To-day. Intense interest in the note to Germany was shown here to-day by thousands of persons who gathered before dawn outside the offices of the morning newspapers, waiting for editorialists containing the text of the communication. Speaking of the note as follows: "What he had to do Mr. Wilson has done with utmost simplicity, charity and completeness." Speaking for the whole nation, he has set forth the American case against the German Government in language that cannot be mistaken. He has done more than this! He has drawn the indictment against the German nation which will stand for all ages to come, if the Kaiser's Government fails to meet the demands of President Wilson promptly and completely. In his comment in the New York Herald says: "Naturally the mind turns to the consequences of the position of Washington, as it is generally understood that it will do nothing to invite war. If Germany takes offence at the President's note, it may declare war upon the United States if it wishes. On the other hand, if the German reply does not fulfill the ideas of right, as clearly expressed by President Wilson, then another bridge is to be crossed, because it would have been reached, if another American ship is torpedoed, the only thing to be done will be to start the Atlantic fleet towards the war zone."

TWO BROTHERS FALL.

LONDON, To-day. The death at the front of Lord de Freyne, and of his brother, the Hon. George Philip French, is announced. Lord de Freyne came into the public eye in 1905, when as Hon. Arthur Reginald French, he resigned his position in the British army and went to the United States and enlisted as a private in the army there.

THE PEACE PARTY.

ROME, To-day. The political parties, whose policies are in favor of Italy remaining neutral, have announced their intention of organizing a demonstration to counteract the actions of those who favor intervention in the war. The police of Rome, fearing conflicts between the various parties, are taking extraordinary measures to cope with the situation. Troops now occupy all the important

LONDON, To-day. The Cunard Line announces that the only sailing date they have cancelled is that of the steamer Mauretania. This was cancelled, it is added, for the reason that there was not sufficient demand for passenger accommodation to warrant running her.

GRAVE EVENTS EXPECTED.

PARIS, To-day. A despatch from Rome late last night says: "At the close of the meeting of Ministers, Premier Salandra conferred with the King and that grave events are expected in the near future."

2 P.M.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK IN NORTH SEA.

BLVTH, Eng., To-day. A German submarine is reported to have been sunk in the North Sea. The captain of the steamer Collocrine on reaching port to-day stated that his vessel apparently had destroyed a submarine by running it down off the Northumberland coast. No submarine was seen but the captain said his ship had struck a submerged object and a large quantity of oil had subsequently appeared on the surface. The conclusion was drawn that a submarine had been run down.

FRENCH VICTORY.

OFFICIAL, Midnight. The Belgian army was again attacked last night on the right bank of the Yser but it repulsed the enemy who withdrew, leaving a hundred killed on the battlefield. North of Arras we secured new and important results. The fall of Carency gave us a large quantity of material which we have not yet entirely estimated. We note so far: Cannons 77; howitzers, 105; mortars, 21; a dozen of machine-guns, 3,000 rifles and a large quantity of shells and cartridges. In the woods of Hill 125 we found corpses of three German companies wiped out by our artillery.

The enemy bombarded Carency in the afternoon without any result. With Carency in our possession we advanced northward and seized Ablan, St. Nazaire, which we hold completely with exception of the farm houses on the eastern outskirts in which the struggle is still raging. We captured several hundred prisoners. The enemy in falling back set fire to half of the village. At Neuville St. Vaast, we captured more houses in the northern part of the village. The number of cannons of heavy calibre taken is 17. In Argonne, at Bagatelle, we repulsed two German attacks, one during night, the second during the day, the latter exceedingly fierce. The success reported this morning at Le Freire Wood gave us possession of the last German organization which resisted still in this Wood. The entire position is now in our hands.

REIDS' BOATS.

The Argyle left Balm Harbor at 4 p.m. yesterday, inward. The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.55 a.m. to-day. The Glencoe arrived at Port aux Basques at 3.40 yesterday and was sail again at noon to-day. The Sagona left Parson's Pond at 2.30 p.m. yesterday going north. The Kyle left Port aux Basques at 12.50 a.m. to-day.

The Colours of the Nfld. Regiment.

The following extract from the "Daily Telegraph," April 15th, was received yesterday by M. J. Hawker from his cousin, Miss Evelyn Hawker, of Bournemouth, England, and may prove interesting. She has taken a great interest in our Newfoundland boys, and her family rejoices in the fact that they have twenty-seven cousins fighting for King and Country.

NEWFOUNDLAND REGIMENT'S COLOUR.

"At the rooms of the Decorative Needlework Society, 17, Sloane-street, is just now on view the exceedingly striking colour that has been prepared by the members for the Newfoundland Regiment, patriotically raised in the oldest of the Colonies to assist in the defence of the Empire. The gift was offered to and accepted by the regiment on the part of the Newfoundland Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, of which Lady Davidson, wife of the Governor, Sir Walter Davidson, is president, and Mrs. Edgar Bowring, vice-president. It is anticipated that Lady MacGregor, wife of the late Governor of the Colony, will make the formal presentation in Edinburgh on the arrival of the last contingent of the regiment, though the date is not yet fixed.

To the Rev. E. E. Doring, whose name as an heraldic artist stands high, is due the striking and effective design of the Colour. The field is white, and upon it is the Cross of St. George in rich red, in the centre, on a white medallion, is the device of Britannia, to whom Mercury is presenting a kneeling lad with his net and fish, while the Colony's motto, "Hæc Tibi Dona Fero," is below. Surmounting all is the Imperial Crown in brilliant colouring, and a half wreath of the rose, shamrock and thistle meets this. The English Colours and the Tricolour are indicated in the bow that ties the emblem. All the embroidery is of the finest character, and the whole work has been most artistically carried out.

There is also on view the banner that Sir Robert Finlay, G.C.M.G., will shortly place in St. Paul's Cathedral, for the special service of the Order on St. George's Day. The society has been notably successful in its execution of these banners, and this one fully maintains the high level it has established in this difficult branch of needlework."

St. Francis Xavier's.

The Commencement Exercises of the University of St. Francis Xavier's College, Antigonish, N. S., took place on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 11th and 12th. The address to the graduates was delivered by His Rev. Bishop MacDonald, Victoria, British Columbia. His Rev. Bishop Morrison preached the Baccalaureate sermon. Bishop MacDonald is an old student and alumnus of the University where he occupied the position of Professor for nineteen years.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Does your children drink enough water? It should be known that water is the second great necessity for human existence, the first being air. It is estimated that man can live without air from two to ten minutes; without water for three to five days; without food ten to twenty days. Just how much water each should consume is hard to determine, but a healthy individual requires from three to six pints of water daily.

Teach the children to drink water instead of visiting the soda fountain each time they feel thirsty. Any pure water is healthy. The idea that the only place to obtain benefit from drinking water is to visit some famous "spa" is preposterous.

Good results may be secured from sipping water; in fact, I have found many cases where drinking rapidly caused a sick feeling. It may also be found that where one has not been accustomed to drinking water early in the morning that hot water will agree better than cold.

SCLATER'S,

Water Street, Foot of Queen's Street, would call attention to the fact that, having decided on making some changes in the working of the business, which will necessitate some alterations in the premises, they intend marking down all the Dry Goods at present in stock, and which have been carried over winter, to the lowest popular prices.

This Sale will be on for one month only from date, and will consist of Costumes, Coats, Men's and Boys' Clothing, Hats, Caps, Ties, Gloves, &c., &c., along with the usual stock of Dry Goods carried.

All new goods coming now will be marked down to the lowest possible prices, taking into account the advanced cost in foreign markets.

This being a CASH SALE, no approbation will be allowed, except to those who have accounts with the Firm.
