For Her Sake; The Murder in Ferness Wood.

CHAPTER LXI.
In less than two hours every visitor had left Ferness. That a murder, and one so terrible, should take place in the midst of a brilliant fete, cast an appalling gloom over the assembled guests, and they drove away in silent horror. The musicians were dismissed, the lights extinguished. For one long hour there was a continuous roll of carriage-wheels, a low, subdued murmur of conversation, at times there was a stifled cry, and then the silence of death fell over the vast mansion.

Mr. and Lady Cameron saw no one. Sir Lisle and Richard did the honors to the parting guests. Sir Lisle, seeing that Sir Royal looked tired and ill, asked him to remain; but the master of Westwater declined.

"I could not sleep under that roof," he said; adding as he shook hands with Sir Lisle, "It is a horrible affair, a horrible affair; but Diana is free." "She will scarcely care for freedom purchased in such a manner," replied Sir Lisle.

But, in spite of himself, he could not forget those words—"Diana is free!" It was not her fault that her freedom had been accomplished by a barbarous crime.

The two doctors from the neighboring town had come over and had returned. They had little to say. So far as they could judge, Lord Clanronald must have been dead for more than three hours. It was after nine when he was found. As no guest, no servant had missed, and no one had heard a shot fired, the whole affair was shrouded in mystery. The doctors were of opinion that he had been shot by a revolver; that it had been held close to his breast, and that his death had been instantaneous. They could say no more.

When Lady Cameron was informed that there must be an inquest, her face was a study.

With the dawn, quiet and order were in a measure restored. Diana had been taken to her room, and remained there. Lady Cameron was sitting with Evadne, trying to reason with her, and show her how foolish it was to attract attention to herself by her inordinate display of grief, but the girl turned from her mother, and buried her face in the pillows.

"If he had married me, he would not have died that horrible death!" she moaned.

The marquise, who had a great horror of "scenas," had accepted an in-itation from the Duke of Stone, and had returned with him to Stonedale, consoling himself by saying that the fewer people there were in the house the better it was at such a time.

They had placed the body of the unfortunate man in the state bed-chamber. In death his face, robbed of all that was meaf and ignoble, was as chiseled marble. Ronald, Lord Clanronald, lying there dead, was invested with a dignity that was never his in life. They draped the room in black; tall wax tapers were kept burning around him; fresh, fragrant flowers were strewn over him.

Again the birds' singing awoke Diana, again the May sun shone brightly into her room, and for the first few moments she hardly remembered the hideous tragedy of the previous night. All the horrible details, however, came back to her with a shock—all the haunting fears that turned brightest day into darkest night.

It was true she had not loved her husband. She had often prayed that she might die and be freed from him; but she had never desired his death. She repelled the thought that this tragedy, so terrible in itself, brought freedom to her. She was too genuinely shocked to feel that relief had been brought to her by so atrocious an act.

She had not loved him; but she could not bear to see the sun shine and hear the birds sing, remembering that he lay dead—victim of a cruel murder. In that, the first hour of her bereavement, she would honestly have given her life to have that terrible deed undone. And then she thought of Sir Lisle. Could it be possible that he had been guilty of this crime—that he, the noblest, bravest, most honorable of men, had taken the life of another?

Yet she had seen such hot, bitter resentment, such passion in his face, such anger in his eyes. It might be—oh, Heaven, it might be!—it must be that he had returned to remonstrate with him, and—She could not, dared not even to herself, picture the rest. Yet the doctors said there had been no struggle, that he must have been shot dead in his sleep.

No one else had any ground for enmity toward him; no one else had threatened him; no one else in the whole wide world loved her well enough to have risked his life to avenge her. It could be no one else. But, as yet, thank Heaven, no suspicion of Sir Lisle had entered anybody's mind! She would not betray him; but he must go from her presence, and never in this world would she look upon his face again.

As she stood thinking of the tragedy that had happened, there came to her the words, "As a man sows so shall he reap." She had sown pride, obstinacy, willfulness; she was reaping bitterness, tears, death. In that hour of regret, remorse and repentance, Diana realized the sins and follies of her youth. From her pride and defiance had sprung this fearful crime.

While the tears were still wet upon her face, a knock came at the door, and Lady Cameron entered.

"You are crying, Diana," she said. "Well, I am not surprised. I shall never be myself again. What a finish to a brilliant day! Certainly poor Lord Clanronald was in many respects a most unpleasant companion; but his death is too horrible! Diana," she added, looking searchingly into the beautiful colorless face, "have you any idea who did it?"

Though she had expected the question, Diana's heart almost ceased to beat when she heard it. She knew that one moment's hesitation would be fatal.

"Certainly not!" she forced herself to say, with a supreme effort. "It is most mysterious to me," Lady Cameron continued. "I cannot imagine any motive for such a barbarous murder; can you?"

"I cannot," she replied, inwardly praying Heaven to shorten her ordeal.

"Nothing has been stolen from him, and he cannot have killed himself," Lady Cameron went on. "The marvel is who has killed him. The police are sure to find it out. What is the matter, Diana?"—for a low groan of irrepressible anguish broke from the girl's white lips.

"I cannot bear to speak of it!" she cried.

"I shall ask your father to leave the country for a time," resumed Lady Cameron. "Of all things to happen in a house, a murder is the most horrible. Diana, you will like to—see your unfortunate husband? Shall I go with you? Poor child, you look almost dead yourself!"

There was no trace of the brilliant Diana in the pale, sad woman who seemed to have hardly sufficient strength to walk upstairs. Diana never forgot the shock of entering that darkened room—the black draperies, the burning tapers, the silent figure covered with flowers. She could not realize that this was the husband with whom she had lived so unhappily, who had been so coarse and cruel to her, and who, only the previous day, had pushed her from him. Peaceful and calm in his last sleep, he bore no trace of the characteristics which were his in life. Inexpressibly awed, for she had never been face to face with death before, Diana fell on her knees with a passionate outburst of tears.

"Oh, Diana," she said, "if he could speak, if he could open those dumb lips to speak one word to tell us who did this horrible deed!"

And Diana, shuddering, buried her face in her hands. If the dumb lips could open, she believed the name they would utter would be that of the man she loved best in the world.

Then the door opened, and the Marchioness de Vere entered. She heeded neither her own mother nor the dead man's wife. She went up to the calm, motionless figure, and stood mutely gazing upon it.

CHAPTER LXII.
Such a tragedy was not on record in the annals of the country. It was extraordinary that a nobleman of wealth and position should be found dead, shot through the heart, without there being the slightest clue to who had done the deed, or why it had been done. The favorite theory of the detectives was that a burglar had found admittance to the grounds, and in the crowd had escaped notice; that, finding an easy prey in Lord Clanronald, he had attempted to rob him; and that the unfortunate man, awakening, had been shot after which the would-be thief had taken alarm and fled. That was the only theory they could advance, and many implicitly accepted it.

Of all the numerous guests present, not one could be dreamed of as having any feeling of revenge against the deceased. Lord Clanronald was known in that part of the world only as the man who had married Peter Cameron's daughter. Another, and to the detectives most singular thing was, that no weapon could be found. The grounds were searched, the lakes were dragged, but without success. So the wonder grew. Eventually the police adopted one theory after another, each in its turn being abandoned, until it was evident that they were baffled and unable to solve the Ferness Court mystery.

Lady Clanronald did not leave her room from the day of the murder until the inquest. She was in a state of nervous exhaustion, utterly overcome by horror, and prostrate with the dread that racked her heart. She lived in a state of constant dread, and with but one cry on her lips: "Have they found out who did it?" The answer was always "No," and then for a few minutes she was less unhappy.

"Who did it?" The question was never out of her mind; and Peter Cameron, seeing the mental agony she could not conceal, suffered almost as much as his daughter did.

Lady Cameron had begged Sir Lisle to stay for the inquest, and the funeral. She felt quite unequal to any exertion herself.

Convicts' Silent Language

Prison messages were mentioned in a recent case at the Old Bailey, London, England.

Talking is not allowed in prisons here, however, several ways in which convicts communicate with one another without talking.

Most of these silent conversations take place during exercise, especially on mornings after a session, when news of crimes and sentences is soon over the yard.

In a short while every new-comer has been "in" before, tells all the news of his offence and of the length of his sentence. Those who know the code send long messages to one another when they are in the workshops, where they hammer the nails in a way as to produce long and short sounds.

Generally, the first signal a man takes when the crime he has been convicted of. He puts his hand to his mouth and brings his jaws together. He has been passing counterfeit

Convicts' Silent Language.

Prison messages were mentioned in recent case at the Old Bailey, London, England.

Talking is not allowed in prisons. Here are, however, several ways in which convicts communicate with each other without talking.

Most of these silent conversations take place during exercise, especially on mornings after a session, when news of crimes and sentences is soon over the yard.

In a short while every new-comer, he has been "in" before, tells all the news of his offence and of the length of his sentence. Those who know the code send long messages to each other when they are in the workshops, where they hammer in such a way as to produce long and short sounds.

Generally, the first signal a man makes tells the crime he has been convicted of. He puts his hand to his mouth and brings his jaws together. He has been passing counterfeit money. If he has been picking pockets he crosses his wrists in front of his body; if he is "in" for burglary he turns an imaginary key in a lock. If he has only been committed for trial and is awaiting his sentence, he counts off twelve on his fingers, thus meaning "jury."

After a prisoner has told of his crime he signals his sentence. A common slang term for three months imprisonment is a "carpet bag;" the pantomime of lifting a bag is gone through by the sentenced one. "A moon" signifies a month. The prisoner will look up at the moon and extend as many fingers as months of confinement to be endured.

The signs for any number of years are very simple. The news of one year's imprisonment is communicated by pulling the left ear; two years, pulling the right ear twice; five years, touching either ear with all the fingers of one hand extended; ten years, pulling both hands to the sides of the face and drawing them downwards.

"Have you any tobacco?" is asked by popping a finger into the mouth and then touching the side of the nose. One cough means "Listen!" Two coughs mean "Look out!"

Germany Holds Up Treaty.

Refusal to Sign Protocol Ominous -- Government and People Oppose Reparation -- Senatorial Resolution for a Break With Mexico -- Lady Astor Warned by Speaker.

GERMANY SHOWS HER HAND.

PARIS, Dec. 3. Germany has decided not to sign the protocol presented her by the Allies as condition for putting peace into effect, the Peace Conference has been notified. It was learned only to-day that Baron Kurt Von Lersner, head of German delegation here, called on Secretary Dukeska, of the Conference on Monday and told him that Germany had made such a decision.

This attitude is taken as confirmation of the reports of a sharp reaction in Germany within the last fortnight. Trained observers of German developments have expressed to members of the Peace Conference the view that there has been a complete transformation of the situation in Germany brought about in their opinion by the failure of the United States Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty. These observers declare that while a vast majority of Germans before the Senate's adjournment desired the Peace Treaty ratified as soon as possible, they are now supporting the Government's attitude in resisting the demands of the Allies for indemnity for the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow, recompense for which was provided for in the protocol. The question upon which German representatives here, however, appear most sensitive is insisting upon the delivery of German officers accused of commission of crimes in France and Belgium. Thus far, it is stated, no indications have reached Paris of any disposition on the part of the Germans to modify their attitude.

NOTE OF PROTEST BY SUPREME COUNCIL.

PARIS, Dec. 3. The Supreme Council to-day addressed a note to Germany protesting against the increase of Germany's armament contrary to the provisions of the Peace Treaty.

MEXICO SAYS SITUATION "VERY DIFFICULT."

MEXICO, City, Dec. 3. The solution of the difficulties arising out of international affairs with the United States were entrusted to President Carranza without legislative intrusion by the Senate at a secret session held yesterday. Relations with the United States were declared during the session as being "very difficult."

MEXICAN SITUATION GRAVE.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 3. President Wilson was requested in a resolution introduced to-day in the Senate to sever diplomatic relations with Mexico. The resolution was offered by Senator Fall, Republican of New Mexico, who, as chairman of a sub-committee investigating the Mexican situation, declared evidence had been found which would astonish the world. It was also asked that the President withdraw recognition of the Carranza Government. Senator Fall boldly charged that the Mexican Embassy, the consulate Generals in New York and San Francisco, and the consulates along the border, with the knowledge and consent of President Carranza, have been actively engaged in the spreading of Bolshevik propaganda in the United States. Evidence it was said, would be forthcoming to bear out the charge by this resolution which was sent to the foreign relations committee of the Senate for consideration. To-morrow the whole Mexican problem, admittedly grave in view of the refusal of the Carranza administration to release Consular agent Jenkins from the penitentiary at Puebla, will be put before Congress.

BOLSHEVIKI OCCUPY CRIMEA.

LONDON, Dec. 3. The occupation of Crimea by the Bolsheviks is claimed in a Moscow wireless message received here to-day. General Makhno's troops carried out the movement. During the taking of the Crimea, two steamers containing explosives blew up, the despatch asserts.

LADY ASTOR'S DEFENCE.

LONDON, Dec. 3. Lady Astor, first woman member of the House of Commons, had her first experience on being called to order last evening when she innocently transgressed one of the canons of the House. She was returning to her seat after voting on a measure and stopped to chat with another member "within the Bar," where nobody is allowed to stand. The Speaker called order, but Lady Astor, unaware she was addressed, continued talking. Thereupon the Speaker raised his voice and repeated his warning. Lady Astor turned quickly, realised her offence, stepped quickly beyond the Bar, and continued her conversation through.

PROUD OF THEIR SON.

LONDON, Dec. 3. One who was present at the banquet given by the King at Buckingham Palace in honor of the return of the Prince of Wales, says the occasion was the first when the King had heard the Prince make a formal speech. The King himself concluded his remarks by saying, "His mother and I are proud of him."

OSTRACISING A COUNT.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 3. Count Michael Karolyi, former Hungarian Premier, has been debarred from the National Casino on a charge of having committed a treasonable offense.

SPANISH CABINET WILL REMAIN IN OFFICE.

MADRID, Dec. 3. Members of the Cabinet unanimously agreed to-day to remain in office, and Minister of War, Covaro, whose resignation precipitated the crisis, concurred with the colleagues and will retain portfolio.

MASSACHUSETTS CITIES FAVOR LIQUOR LICENSES.

BOSTON, Dec. 3. A marked feature of the municipal elections in twenty Massachusetts cities to-day was the fact that every one of them cast a majority of votes in favor of granting liquor licenses. It was well known to voters that in view of the coming of National Prohibition, balloting was a mere formality. The State legal authorities, however, had ruled that as State option law had not been repealed, the question must appear on the ballots. The vote on the license question was very small.

HAS OTHER IMPORTANT WORK.

PARIS, Dec. 3. Captain Heuteaux, a French aviator, whose work during the war was most spectacular and who was elected to the Chamber of Deputies last month, has resigned from the army.

AND MEAT SO DEAR.

MEXICO, City, Dec. 3. By an overwhelming vote the Mexican chamber to-day passed a bill restoring bull fights throughout the republic and repealing the presidential prohibitive decree of 1915. The Senate which is said to favor the restoration will vote on the measure to-morrow.

THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE.

LONDON, Dec. 3. The break on American exchange to $3.88 while considered serious from a trade viewpoint is due to the same conditions previously prevailing, the huge indebtedness of Great Britain to the United States and the large amount of cotton still to come from that country. No official action has been taken to meet the situation and in market circles the opinion is expressed that the rate will go still lower. To-day's decline unsettled continental exchanges which move against this country.

THE "MAILS" NEW EDITOR.

LONDON, Dec. 3. A paragraph in the London Daily Express says Sir Campbell Stuart has been appointed managing editor of the Daily Mail.

WILL FIGHT A DUEL.

PARIS, Dec. 3. The theatrical world is stirred by the prospect of a duel between Alphonso Frank, manager of the Gynase Theatre, and Ernest Charles, a dramatic critic. Frank objected to an

The Gulf Stream.

MIGHTIEST OF EARTH'S PHENOMENA.

"The Gulf Stream is probably the grandest and most mighty of any terrestrial phenomena. Its waters are a deep indigo blue of great clearness and high temperature. When one is on board a vessel floating upon its waters, one is not as much impressed at the power and grandeur of the wonder of nature as he is when he stands before a towering mountain, an immense iceberg, or a fall of water such as Niagara, but when one remembers that the mighty torrent, speeding on hour by hour and day by day is a volume equal to all the largest rivers in the world combined, carrying its beneficent heat to temper the climate of continents, one begins to realize that of all the forces of the physical world none can equal this one river of the ocean.

"The theories as to the cause of ocean currents have been many. "Franklin's theory, which has many advocates at the present day, was that the winds produce the current by the air moving over the surface of the water, and he illustrated their theory by the following: "It is known that a large piece of water, 10 miles broad, and generally only 3 feet deep, has by a strong wind had its water driven to one side and sustained so as to become

6 feet deep, while the windward side was laid dry. As will be seen later, this is a well-taken example of the Gulf Stream, but it does not quite show the whole of the truth.

"In the tropical regions there is a steady movement of the air from east to west known as the trade winds. South of a certain line situated near the equator these winds flow from a southwesterly direction, while north of the equator they come from a more northeasterly direction. The winds are not always strong, nor are they constant in direction, but they do not vary much, and then only for brief periods.

"Winds blowing over the surface of the water induce a current in the latter, due to friction. At first it is only the merest skim that moves, but gradually the motion is communicated from layer to layer until at last, if the wind is long continued, as in the trade wind region, the movement extends to lower depths, 300 to 400 feet, or perhaps more.

"These trade wind currents meet finally, the partial barrier of the islands forming the eastern part of the Caribbean, and a portion of the flow escapes through the passages between them.

"The Gulf Stream would be little felt on the coast of Europe did it not receive a great addition to its volume of heat when en route. This is by means of a gentle flow from the northeast trade wind current that passes outside the Caribbean Islands and the Bahamas. The surface temperature of this outside current is about the same in its passage along the West Indies Islands as the Gulf Stream in the Straits of Florida, but it is less violent in its movements and there is less intermingling of its upper and lower waters, so that it arrives off Cape Hatteras with a much higher temperature than that of the more turbulent Gulf Stream."

Chinese cabbage salad is made with the cabbage cut up the ordinary way and dressed with peanut oil, seasoned with lemon juice, a dash of garlic and a green pepper.

WHAT DOES THE CAT SAY?

Did you ever hear a cat say: "Meow?" I never did. Not that I haven't had anything to do with cats. On the contrary, cats are a specialty of mine.

But that is just the prelude to an opinion which I have long held—namely, that the most animals do make the noises which the dictionary and common opinion credits them with making.

The cat doesn't say, "Meow." It says as nearly as I can describe it "Eraw."

And what does the dog say? The dog doesn't say "Bow wow." It says (again within the limitations of a man-made alphabet) "woof woof."

What does the sheep say? Some authorities would have it say, "Baa" others "Maa." The real truth is that the sheep doesn't say either—"Aa" with any kind of a consonant sound you choose to imagine for it.

Then take the rooster. Did you really hear one that said "Cock-a-doodle-do?" The rhythm is approximately right but I insist the consonant sounds are not. I say "approximate" because while I have heard some roosters crow in the "cock-a-doodle-do" rhythm, I have heard others crow in a rhythm of their own with a long-drawn-out third. I used to have a rooster of whom my neighbors declared that he said, "The Lord." And if one chose to think it, one could well imagine the rooster was thus appropriating the greeting of another.

Listen with Subjective Ears.

Of course, the secret of our hearing most of these sounds—these I specifically mentioned and others such as the Katydid and the poorwill and the Bobwhite—though I will say that the Bobwhite seem to me to come the nearest to what he is supposed to say (fish, bird or beast), is that we

A Cool Request.
Concerning one of his earliest cases, Sir Edward Clarke, who recently celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday, tells an amusing story. Sir Edward pleaded so eloquently for a prisoner charged with being in illegal possession of some silver forks and spoons that the accused got off with a comparatively light sentence. When his term of imprisonment expired, he walked into Sir Edward's chambers and, to the lawyer's amazement, said, "As you managed to get me off so lightly, I thought you might be able to recover for me the forks and spoons which the police relieved me of when they arrested me."

WINTER NIGHTS.

Winter has unpleasant features, as all honest men admit; when it comes, half frozen creatures are inclined to throw a fit. When big chunks of snow are whizzing on the bosom of the blast, and the blizzard comes ablazing, people sigh and say, "Dod Gast!" But for all the beastly weather there is recompense at night, when we camp around together by the grate fire, glowing bright. Father sits and reads a story, and he chuckles as he rooks; mother's feeling hunkydory, while she darns a pair of socks; and the little sons and daughters play around until they're tired; they have put away the swatters that the summertime required. There are sounds of joyous laughter, there is happiness galore, though the tempest shakes the rafters and comes pounding at the door. Oh, this is an hour enchanting, for our compensation meant, and old winter's widest ranting cannot scare us worth a cent. And he thunders in his madness, and we hear him roaring bass, but our hearts are full of gladness, and we chuckle in his face.

Household Notes.

Gold or silver jewelry can be cleaned in a solution of tablespoon of ammonia to a quart of water. A tablespoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meat is boiled will make it deliciously tender. Sliced pineapples can be sprinkled or spread with grated or cream cheese and filled with salad dressing. It is easier to make a small omelet than a large one—some cooks confine themselves to three eggs at a time. After washing a lamp chimney, polish it with dry salt to make the glass brilliant and prevent it from cracking. Thin bread and butter spread with pimento cheese and served with a green salad makes a delicious luncheon. Do not allow ashes to collect under the kitchen range grate. The ashes will burn out the grate in a short time. If you want an uncommonly rich rice pudding make it with cream and eggs. The rice should be cooked first with milk.

A Prince Gives Up His Title.

Prince Antoine d'Orleans, the Spanish Infanta and grandson of the late King Louis Philippe of France, has written to M. Clemenceau asking to be naturalised as a Frenchman, and offering to relinquish all claims to his title. Prince Antoine left Spain recently for Italy alleging that he had been kept prisoner by order of the Spanish Government. He has sold most of his Italian estates, and wishes to live the life of a country gentleman in France.

Why Our Goods Are Dear.

Since the beginning of the Allied occupation of Germany, 4,000,000 marks' worth (£200,000 nominal) of English cigarettes have been imported into the Hun country. The German papers complain that if this money had been used for buying foods, prices would have been lower. They forget that a couple of months ago a firm sent them 6,000 tons of condensed milk and a few days later its price went up in England 1 1/2 a tin. So British babes had less in order that enemy children might get fatter!

LIFE'S HARDEST TASK.
It is no easy task to be a little fellow's dotting dad; Sometimes the duty seems to me The biggest job man ever had. To cut away a mountain ridge Or sweep a river from its bed Or close a chasm with a bridge On which a man may safely tread. Are works stupendous, but I hold That these the skillful mind can plan; But he must needs be wise to mold A little boy into a man.

There is so much that he must learn—So many things that he must know. At every little bend and turn He must be taught the way to go. We cannot nicely calculate The weight that he is fit to bear Or guess what cruel storms of fate Shall change his gladness to despair. With all that we can know and see, The biggest task man's ever had Since life began, has been to be The father of a little lad.

German Ship "Paul" Makes Halifax Harbor.
 HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 1.—
 The German barque Paul, of Hamburg, had been battered by the Atlantic gales, and had been shorted sail, and had been in harbor yesterday morning.
 The Paul, which is in somewhat sorry shape, having lost three topmasts, a large amount of sails, and suffered other serious damage, was reported a week ago
 as the distress of the Nova Scotian coast. Several steamers having naturally been searched for her, the vessel was by some shipping men
 given up as lost.
 The Paul is the first vessel registered and owned in Germany, manned by Germans and flying the flag of that country to enter this port since 1914. Her arrival yesterday was quite a sensation. The barque, which was granted clearance from
 the Allied Naval Command, had an adventurous voyage, not the least feature of which was that according to her captain, some steamers shunned the Paul on the plague, despite her distress talk.

Blew Great Guns.
 The story of her trip across the Atlantic is a good sea tale of bad weather, featuring heavy gales, high seas
 and a hard fight against the elements, and a few international incidents in her for good measure. The Paul left from Hamburg on Oct. 16, in charge for the Fatherland. The first weeks of the voyage were without particular excitement. Fine weather and fresh fair winds prevailed. Nearly North American coast, the bar-que's troubles began. On the first of November it began to blow great and the Paul's foretopmast went to the board. This was unpleasant but not unexpected for a "square-rigger" on deep sea voyage. The gale continued and the Paul was hope to for several days after which the storm subsided and the ship, minus her foretopmast, resumed the even tenor of her way. All went well for the next two weeks, though the ship had mostly bad winds and light ones at that.

A Regular Howler.
 But then came another gale, a regular howling blow this time. It tore the sails to shreds, whipped out the mainmast and masts, and left the vessel leaving her a helpless hulk.
 The four lower masts were still standing but there were only a few left and the ship's condition was such that she could not carry any more in the gale and was forced to drift before it. The barque few distress signals, asking for a tow, and the steamer bore down on her, only to turn her head away again as soon, as she saw the Paul's nationality discovered.
 On Friday, Nov. 21st, the steamer Britannia, bound from Boston to Halifax, sighted the Paul and, unable to take the barque into tow, offered to take off the ship's crew. But the Germans would not abandon their captain and the captain of the Winnipeg wireless C. H. Harvey, the Department Agent at Halifax,
 the Paul's plight and position.
 The Britannia also sent the wireless by wireless and two more steamers passing in the vicinity about 350 miles southeast of Halifax, searched for the ship without success.
 Only Four Sails Left
 Meanwhile the captain of the Paul has crew hard at work trying to make the Paul navigable when the gale abated. After a total of 21 sails had been torn by the storm, the ship only four left, with these she managed to make slow head way in the direction of Halifax. The Paul used one steamer while making this port but signalled her without success. By dint of clever navigation her skipper brought her safely to the entrance of the harbor.
 Shortly after daybreak yesterday morning the barque was seen approaching the harbor. About eight o'clock she came up to the pilot boat.
 Pilot McLoughtry boarded her.

The "Spanish Prisoner" Swindle.
 Scotland Yard again warns the public against the "Spanish prisoner" swindle. They say that letters are being sent out, supposedly by someone in a Spanish goal. The "prisoner" offers one-third of a large sum of money secreted in a box at a railway station in England, to the person who will pay the sum necessary for his release. If money is sent, nothing more, of course, is heard of the matter.

At the Majestic.

The disagreeable weather did not prevent large numbers of patrons from thronging up at the Majestic Theatre last evening, when the Paramount picture, "Puppy Love," featuring Lila Lee, was screened. This latter can safely be described as the best picture of the serio-comic class shown for several weeks, and there is a laugh in every scene. Charles Murray, the Mack Sennett star, has been loaned the Paramount people specially for this picture, and in it he takes a part that brings out every bit of fun that is in his makeup. Taking the part of Shamus O'Connell, the Irish father of Gloria, who is in love with a young reporter, Murray just delighted everyone, and the observations that it was a pity that he did not appear in other similar pictures was made on many sides. Lila Lee, who appears on the Majestic screen now for the first time, is an excellent little actress who undoubtedly knows her business and has a future in the movie world awaiting her. Harold Goodwell, who so ably takes the part of the cub-reporter who causes the trouble by an illustrated article for the Sunday issue of his paper, is also splendid,
 and in this, his first appearance on the Majestic screen, won many warm admirers for himself. Do not fail to see this excellent show, which is greatly augmented by a Keystone comedy featuring Fatty Arbuckle and Harold Lloyd. On Monday and Tuesday of next week a British special, giving big boxing bouts fought for the cup offered by King George, will be projected, and it will be sure to please every patron. England's most well known boxers are intimately shown.

Forward! March!

Is the cry in our Shirt, Tie and Collar Departments when this trio of excellence marches out under the gaze of hundreds of Xmas buyers, to back up the "KEARNEY FIRST" project.

KEARNEY SAYS:—
 "These are my greatest lines. More judgment in selecting effective patterns, lasting colours, popularized styles, cannot be found in any other collection—cannot be found because cannot be made. Because I had my hand on the pulse of the market;
 because I had men behind me with their goods who would say:
 'Kearney, goods are going higher next month, we can give you 50 doz. at the old price if you buy NOW!' I saw ahead—to my Victory Xmas. Now I give to you an immensely varied Xmas line for your buying needs."

SHIRTS, TIES, COLLARS—Bound together to wear together. Tested recipe for a sunny Xmas morning face for him:
A SHIRT—Striped to his taste, silk, silkcloth or madras.

DONT WANT PETTY COURTS.

LONDON, Dec. 3.
 An Australian cable received today says the Government of Victoria has asked Lord Milner, British Colonial Secretary, to defer the appointment of a successor to Sir L.
 Stanley, Governor, pending next year's conference concerning the relations between the Commonwealth and the Australian States. Lord Milner replies objecting to an indefinite postponement, and emphasizing that the existing constitution should be respected until altered. Earlier in the year, Victoria suggested to the Colonial Secretary that the Australian Lieutenant-Governor might fill the place, in future, hitherto filled by a Governor sent from England. This proposition received support in certain quarters in England, it being asserted that since Australia possessed a Governor-General there had ceased to be any good reason why a variety of petty courts should continue to exist in Australian state capitals.

DENIKINE DEFEATS REDS.

LONDON, Dec. 3.
 Official communication issued by General Denikine, the Anti-Bolshevik Leader in South Russia, received here to-day, reports that the Red troops strongly attacked his fortifications in the Tsartzin region on November 29, but says they were driven back, losing many men made prisoners. Denikine admits abandoning Sumy, in the vicinity of Lvoff, but says he defeated the Reds seriously between Fastoff and Kazatin, taking a number of prisoners.

ROUMANIA GETS TIME EXTEN-SION.

PARIS, Dec. 3.
 The Supreme Council decided today to extend the time allowed Rumania in which to remit a reply to the latest Allied note by six days. This will give Rumania until December 9 to answer the Councils note, which fixed December 3 as the original limit for a response.

Their Health Restored by Tanlac They Can Work Every Day.

"I found Tanlac to be just the medicine I needed for my troubles," said William King, a fisherman, who resides at Carroll Point, Southside, while in Connor's drug store, St.
 John's, Newfoundland, recently. Mr.
 King has been a resident of Newfoundland all his life, and is well and favorably known on the south shores.
 Continuing, he said:
 "I suffered for fifteen years from rheumatism in my shoulders and knees. It was so bad in my shoulders I could barely raise my hand to my head and my knees were so stiff and pained me so I could scarcely walk and always had to use a cane.
 I also had the worst sort of pain in the back of my head, and I had such headaches for days at a time they would nearly drive me wild. I had no appetite to speak of and became very weak and felt tired and worn out, all the time. I would have dizzy spells that were so bad I was afraid sometime I would topple over into the sea from my boat. I could get but little sleep, and would go some times for eight or ten days without sleep. My eyes, and would get up in the morning feeling worse than when I went to bed. I became so badly run down I had to lay off from work a great deal of the time.
 "I had tried lots of different kinds of medicine, but none of them did me any good and I had about lost faith in them all, but, as I had been reading so much about the good Tanlac had been doing others, I decided to give it a trial, and I have improved wonderfully in health. I have no rheumatism whatever, and can work every day now. I have a fine appetite and sleep soundly all night, and get up every morning feeling fine. I have not had the headache or a dizzy spell since I began taking Tanlac and feel better in every way than I have in years.
 "My son, Joseph, also took Tanlac with the best of results. He had to lay off from work a month recently on account of his health, but when he started taking Tanlac he soon improved and is now working again.
 "I think Tanlac is a remarkable medicine and I will always say a good word for it."
 Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M.
 Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, in Harbor Buffet, by Thomas Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son; and in Topsail, by J. K.
 Bursell—adv't.

Sale of Work
 at St. Mary's.

Despite the inclement weather the sale of work and concert held last evening by the St. Mary's Sanctuary Guild, was a big success. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and the stalls were well stocked with many articles suitable for Christmas presents, and were quickly disposed
 off. The sum realized from the tea tables was well up to expectations.
 A very enjoyable concert was held during the night presided over by Rev.
 A. B. Sterling, those taking part being—Mrs. King, Mrs. Small, Mrs.
 Carson, and Misses Tait, M. Ellis,

Flacing The Blame.

In Germany just now, "scapegoating," as an American paper puts it, is a favorite pastime with the military, the press and the people, the object being to find the real person responsible for losing the war: but the scapegoats are notoriously active doggers and past masters in the art of evasion, and each one exercises considerable ingenuity in shouldering off the blame on the other. The question among the Allies, which was considerably discussed, and finally settled by mutual agreement, was "Who won the war?" With the Germans, the real controversy, bitterly carried on, is over the question, "Who lost the war?"

So far no answer satisfactory to the German people, or to the military and naval heads themselves has been forthcoming. No German leader is able to make a reply pleasing to any other German leader. Each one accuses somebody else, and in turn is himself accused. And so the "scapegoating" goes merrily on. Von Tirpitz claims that if his policy of unrestricted warfare had been carried out, victory would have come to the Central Powers. But intrigue robbed him of the confidence of the Kaiser, the submarine campaign was, in consequence, held back and the war was lost. General Ludendorff holds that Von Bethmann Holwegg, former Chancellor, and Admiral Holtzendorff, chief of the naval staff, were to blame, both of them having made faulty calculations in the submarine campaign, which led Ludendorff and Hindenburg to give their approval, the said approval making for national suicide.

Charge and countercharge follow each other in rapid succession and recriminations all round are the orders of the day. According to Ludendorff's contention, the chief of the naval staff, Holtzendorff, was at fault in underestimating the ability of the Allies to cope with the submarine menace: Bethmann Holwegg was also at fault in misjudging the effect of ruthless submarine warfare upon neutral nations, especially the United States, which had not then entered the war. Had these errors not been made, Ludendorff's implication is that another policy would have been followed, the United States would not have come in and added its strength to that of the Allies, and thus victory, or a semblance of success might have been obtained by the Central Powers. Holwegg, in self defence and to clear his official skirts of responsibility for the U-boat campaign, endeavours to make it appear that he was not vested with supreme control, and the direction of the nation's affairs did not rest with him, but actually with Hindenburg and Ludendorff who were able to override him and eventually drove him from the chancellorship. Going around in the circle Von Tirpitz blames court intrigues: Ludendorff blames Von Bethmann Holwegg, who in turn places the responsibility for losing the war on both Ludendorff and Hindenburg. The German people can take their choice. The war was lost but neither German leader knows exactly who lost it.

And meanwhile "Germany is exploiting her weakness, just as in the past she exploited her strength." In these words a writer in the Geneva Journal summarizes a warning against the "dangerous security" being now enjoyed by the Allied world. The same paper asserts that fearing a strangulation of trade in "a war after the war" Germany has established a number of depots along the Swiss border from which she can pour a veritable flood of manufactured commodities into Switzerland. Commenting on this the Montreal Star says that in a similar way German export trade is menacing the industries of Italy, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, and all the countries of Central Europe. She is willing and ready to do the world's producing while we and the other Allied nations are given over to dancing, joy-riding and strikes, but when it comes to buying from us, she pleads poverty, wants us to furnish the credit and plenty of it. According to the testimony of our own and U. S. commercial travellers, returning from Berlin, she proposes to take advantage of her cheap labor, and of our capital, to flood Allied countries with goods. Thus would the Germans capture foreign trade, while the period of labor unrest following the war keeps our factories from their full productiveness, and in losing the war, the Germans gain more than winning would have given them.

The 1914-15 Star.

The medals for those of "Ours" who served in Gallipoli, Egypt, and the Aegean Sea in 1914-15, were issued yesterday at the Militia Department. The decoration is of bronze and is in the shape of a four-pointed star, surmounted by a crown. In the centre is a wreath of laurels with crossed swords. At the base is the letter G., enclosing the Roman numeral V. On the reverse side is stamped the name of the recipient and the legend, R. Newfoundland Regiment. The medal is suspended from a handsome red, white, and blue water wave silk ribbon.

Former Governor Macallum Dead.

The death of Colonel Sir Henry MacCallum, a former Governor of this Dominion, is recorded in the Canadian press. Sir Henry was Governor of Newfoundland from 1898 to 1901, succeeding Sir Herbert Murray, and preceding Sir Cavendish Boyle. In 1901 he was appointed Governor of Natal, which post he held till 1907. He was 67 years old.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers landed at Port aux Basques yesterday from the S. S. Kyle and are on the incoming express:—P. O'Brien, P. Flynn, F. J. Doyle, J. St. John, H. King, J. Bishop, A. Greenland, A. Richards, J. Bathone, C. Cogg, A. Lawlor, G. S. White, C. Dicks, T. Moulton, Mrs. C. Moulton, W. J. Barrett, G. Dawe, C. Hollands, M. Vidowsky, M. Jacobs, A. March, G. Fisher.

These are days when value counts most in clothing. Take nothing for granted about so-called "high prices," but investigate! This store's record for value stands on Kuppenheimer clothing. Kuppenheimer woollens stand on quality; the styles represent the creative styles of masters—the tailoring in a class all its own. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

A Dangerous Practice.

The close shave experienced by the boy on the street-car day before yesterday, as described in yesterday's issue, reminds us that there is a dangerous practice often indulged in by people when the cars are full. This is in climbing onto the back and even front of the moving car. Some day a serious accident, if not a fatality, is going to occur. In most cases the conductor is blameless, being unaware of the presence of such persons. In the case of Tuesday the conductor was half way up the car, collecting fares, and as even standing room was at a premium he could not see the boy on the rear fender. But if a serious accident had occurred, the conductor, who was entirely blameless, would be called the guilty one. The habit should be stopped.

Maternity Home Campaign.

Successful Collection Yesterday--
$5,761.61 Reported at Last Night's Banquet.

The third day of the drive for the Maternity Hospital in spite of rain, snow, frost and blizzard, was a distinct success, and the team workers justly deserved all the praise that the Hon. M. G. Winter and Mr. Dunbar showered upon them at the banquet in the College Hall last night.

The weather man was so unkind yesterday that many went to the banquet in fear and trembling believing that the reports would show very little accomplished. There was an

After a delightful cup of tea and a cornet solo by Mr. Cowan, the Chairman, Hon. Mr. Winter addressed the gathering and announced the following initial gifts:

Mrs. M. G. Winter . . . . . $500.00

L. Cheesman & Co. (Burrin) . . . 100.00
Lewis Dawe (Bay Roberts) . . . 100.00

The following wire from H. Elliott, H. Breston, was read by the chairman, and received with applause: "Message received. The object for universal subscription throughout 'Colony for Hospital referred to, appears to me a wise undertaking on the part of projectors. Hope your efforts will meet with success. Shall endeavor to meet prominent men this harbor soon as possible with view of general co-operation." The chairman also stated that he believed assistance would come from other outports.

Mr. Dunbar then addressed the company and his wit and humour kept everybody in good spirits.

The following, which, it is said was from the pencil of one of the fairest and most successful lady collectors read by Mr. Dunbar, demonstrates the poetic strain:

"Who steals to-night our bag, steals trash! So please to part with your hard-earned cash; Don't turn us down, kind sir, we beg, For weary and worn are our poor old legs." The report of the teams was as follows:

Three Days More.
There are three days to go and the objective is some distance off. The solicitors are just as energetic as ever, and it is felt the public, no less sympathetic. The hundred thousand dollars can be raised if everyone will put their shoulder to the wheel.

At the banquet last night were several representatives of industrial concerns and at the close were addressed by Mr. Dunbar, who explained the methods to be employed. He announced that the superintendents of large number of plants had met, and after a thorough discussion recommended action along the following lines:—
(1) That in each department, or floor, of a plant the list should be placed in the charge of a small committee, consisting of one or two of the most active and popular employees;
(2) That each department or floor should work out its objective according to the standard of giving which is shown on the sheet, and which is being accepted by employees generally throughout the city;
(3) That the committee of each department, or floor, should see that lists are passed from hand to hand and information given, explanations made, and subscriptions secured by members of the committee personally, rather than merely posting the sheet up on a notice board or near a pay-wicket.

(4) That the spirit of competition should be fostered between the departments as to which department shall exceed its quota by the largest margin and the quickest time.

(5) That arrangements should be made with the office manager either stopped off the pay envelopes or to be collected by the members of the committee on pay day, which ever happens to suit the local circumstances best.

(6) That the work of organizing the department committees, distributing the booklets and passing round the lists should commence immediately so that results may be obtained during the latter part of this week and the total subscribed ready to report on Saturday first in time for the "Final Rally" of the workers on Saturday evening.

The Prince's Triumph.

The Prince of Wales's Canadian visit has been successful beyond even the confident anticipations which went with him when he left this country; and to say this is no courtier's compliment, but a deliberate verdict upon evidence, overwhelming in its unanimity, that has come from every part of the Dominion. It has been, too, eminently a personal success. The Prince, in Newfoundland and throughout Canada, has borne himself with that frank unreserve, that ready sympathy, that modesty, and that unforced humour which set the standards by which men's judgment of their fellow-men is framed. It goes without saying that he has not relied upon his birth, his rank, or his prospects; but no mere negative of personal bearing could have given him the welcome from the whole people of the Dominion that has been his. Canada is a keen judge of a man, and by no means prejudiced in favour of an Englishman, even though he be a Prince. Polite to the Prince of Wales, and prodigal of formal welcome, the Canadian people would have been in any case. But the Prince's achievement has been to turn politeness into enthusiasm, to break the ice of formality, and to appeal to the human warmth of feeling in those who have gathered to meet him. It is no easy thing that he has done, and he has done it with a conquering ease that has been triumphant testimony to the force of his personality.

But much more than the prestige of a personal success goes with the Prince of Wales to the United States. His visit to Canada may well be a landmark in Empire history. Canada came to the days of peace with a new pride among the nations, won on the battlefields of Europe. How great a change that is for the Dominion, what its consequences promise to be in their bearing upon the relations of the component States of the Empire, and of the nations of the earth, few in these islands, with their traditional sluggishness of imaginative insight, yet realize. But nothing is more certain than that Canada is destined to achieve in the near future a remarkable growth—in internal prosperity, in population, in wealth, in prestige; that she will not be content to abandon the international position which her Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, held on her behalf at the Peace Congress; and that these changes must involve a root-and-branch revision of her power and influence within the Empire. These effects of Canada's war achievement the Prince of Wales has learnt to appreciate at their full value; so that Canada, which is apt at times to resent the slowness of the British Isles in understanding them, will feel for years to come that she has in him an enthusiastic and a most effectual champion, within the wide limits of his constitutional sphere. He goes to the United States in a different, but still a most influential capacity, as the representative of the British Empire, who returns the visit that President Wilson made to this country. No individual more fitly than the Prince can express in person to the President the sympathy of the British peoples in the illness which has stricken him down, and the warmth of good feeling between the English-speaking peoples may well burst the bonds of State formality in the welcome that he receives.—The Times.

THE PRINCE OF WALES FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Turn back the scroll of time just fifty years, as the Prince of Wales, who has amazingly won the hearts of Canada, and the United States, leaves our Atlantic shores, see what the Prince of Wales, his grandfather, was doing then.

Here is a paragraph from the newspapers of November, 1869:

"The Prince of Wales arrived in Scarborough on Monday evening. The decorations of the town appear to have been in very good taste, and the welcome given to His Royal Highness most enthusiastic. The Prince's reply to the addresses presented to him by the Corporation expressed the gratification he had experienced from his former visits to the manufacturing towns of Yorkshire, and complimented Scarborough on its natural beauties and its salubrity. Yesterday morning, the Prince, in a four-in-hand, driven by Lord Londesborough, passed through the town on his way to shoot on the Seamer estate of his noble host. In the evening His Royal Highness was present at a concert in the Spa Saloon, at which the famous vocalist, Mdlle. Nilsson was the principal singer. On Wednesday evening His Royal Highness, with a very distinguished party, visited Messrs. Henry and Adams's circus, when the house was crowded in every part by a most respectable audience, who gave the Prince a very enthusiastic reception. The performances were of a more than ordinarily interesting character, and were frequently applauded, the Prince being one of the most enthusiastic in his expressions of approbation."

That Reminds Me.

MERRY YARNS OF MERRY MEN.

One funny story invariably recalls another, and the man who can keep the ball rolling may be assured of social popularity and a reputation as a humorist.

Here are a few flippant stories told in a flippant way by Arthur Greening in his book, "The Better Yarn" (Jarrolds). The stories are really the chronicles of the Merrythought Club, and are guaranteed to enliven any gathering.

The minister of a little chapel was one Sunday soundly rebuking his flock for their slack attendance, and for their bad habits when they did attend.

"You are all on the downward path to hell!" he shouted, banging the pulpit with his fist. "Those of you who have come are asleep—all except the village idiot."

Suddenly a shrill and strident voice piped from the back of the chapel: "And I'd have darned well been asleep too if I hadn't been an idiot!"

The farmer had asked for liniment to rub on his cow's bad leg, and the chemist gave him lavender-water in mistake for embrocation. In a great rage the farmer went back to the chemist next day.

"Look here," he yelled, "you gave me scent instead of liniment! I'd put it on the blessed cow before I realized."

"I hope it hasn't done her any harm," said the chemist.

"Harm be blowed!" shouted the farmer. "That 'ere cow won't eat now, nor allow herself to be milked. The only thing she does is to sigh the whole day long and gaze at her reflection in the pond!"

The foreman of a large foundry was short of hands, and one morning, as a last resource, he went to an old vagrant who was having a "doss" at one of the furnaces.

"I say, my good fellow," he said, after he had roused the man, "are you wanting work?"

"What kind of work?" asked the tramp.

"Can you do anything with a shovel?"

"Yes," replied the tramp, rubbing his eyes. "I could try a piece of ham on it."

On one occasion Dr. Clifford arranged to make a gramophone record of a sermonette. It proved too long for the disc, however. The operator explained that the oration should only take two and a half minutes.

The Doctor reduced the sermon accordingly, and it was arranged that when the time was nearly up the operator should hold up his hand.

The signal was given, and Dr. Clifford concluded his oration. As he did so, however he said:—

"I don't think that will be too long." Unfortunately, he spoke before the operator could lift the sound-box from the wax disc on which the Doctor's words were recorded, and part of his remarks were included.

Consequently, when the record was tried it finished thus: "And then, my dear friends, we shall all meet in heaven. I don't think!"

Two brothers were being entertained to dinner by a wealthy acquaintance, and talk drifted away from the commonplace.

"Do you like Omar Khayyam?" said the host, trying to make conversation.

The elder brother plunged into the breach. "Slightly," he said, "but I prefer Chianti."

Nothing more was said on this subject until the brothers were on their way home.

"Jack," said the younger brother, breaking a painful silence, "why can't

Will the Human Race Die Out?

From the recorded facts extending over nearly three centuries, it is found that in 1610 the average height of a man in Europe was 1.75 metres, or, say, five feet six inches. In 1820 it was five feet five inches and a fraction. At the present time it is five feet three inches and three-quarters. It is easy to deduce from these figures a rate of regular and gradual decline in human stature, and to apply this, working backwards and forwards, to the past and the future.

By this calculation it is determined that the stature of the first man attained the surprising average of sixteen feet nine inches. Truly, there were giants on the earth in those days. The race had already deteriorated in the days of Og, and Goliath was quite a degenerate offspring of the giants. Coming down to latter times, we find that, at the beginning of our era, the average height of man was nine feet; and, in the time of Charlemagne, it was eight feet eight inches.

But the most astonishing result of this scientific study comes from the application of the same inexorable law of diminution to the future. The calculation shows that by the year 4000 A.D. the stature of the average man will be reduced to fifteen inches. At that epoch there will be only Lilliputians on the earth.

And the conclusion of the learned statistician is irresistible, that "then the end of the word will certainly be near, for the inhabitants will become so small that they will finally disappear from the terrestrial globe."

The Victor.

A hot-headed Irishman accidentally insulted an equally hot-headed Frenchman, who insisted on fighting a duel. The Irishman suggested that they should each draw a card from a pack, and the one who drew the lowest should go into an adjoining room and blow his brains out.

The Frenchman demurred at first, but finally fell in with the idea, and the two opponents drew out the cards, one of which carried death in its wake.

The Irishman drew the lowest, and retired to a small anteroom to complete the tragedy. Presently a loud report rang out, and the people ran wildly into the anteroom, expecting to see Pat a corpse. Instead, he came along the passage to meet them, and said:

"Begorra, I missed meself!"

His Last Chance.

A well-known collector of curious and relics died some time ago. By his will he directed that a certain case of his specimens were to be given away to friends and acquaintances for the asking. A belated bachelor friend called on the widow, and, after an interesting conversation, asked for a relic.

"I am sorry," she replied, "but I have nothing to give now."

"Oh, come now, that will do," he replied. "Surely you have got something—a mere scrap will do—anything for a relic, you know."

She shook her head doubtfully.

"Unless what?" he cried, eagerly.

"Unless ye tak' meself," she replied.

If In Doubt, Ask a Schoolboy.

The latest examination papers show that the schoolboy is maintaining reputation for humorous ignorance.

Here are a few of his up-to-date "howlers":—

B.Sc. stands for Boy Scout.

A blizzard is the inside of a hen.

The Sublime Porte is a good wine.

Bimonthly means the instalment plan.

Adam's ale is the lump in a man's neck.

Conscription is what is written on a tombstone.

A brute is an imperfect beast; man is a perfect beast.

In India a man out of a cask may not marry a woman out of another cask.

A man who looks on the bright side of things is called an optimist, but a pianist looks on the dark side.

An flex is where you look in the back part of the book when you want to find anything that is printed in the front part of the book.

You leave things that you don't understand to me? Omar Khayyam ain't a wine, you chump; it's a cheese."

A certain solicitor, always ready to lecture his office-boy, whether he deserved it or not, one day overheard a conversation between his youth and the boy in a neighbouring office which cured him of the habit.

"What's your salary?" asked the other boy.

"I get two thousand pounds a year, said the solicitor's lad, calmly.

"Gimmi!" gasped the other. "Then he put in decisively: 'I don't think!'"

"Straight, I do! I get ten blinks a bob a week, and the rest in legal advice!"

Stumbling on a Fortune.

They started again without compass, map, or trail to guide them across the 200 miles of scorching desert for Owen's Lake. In their futile search for water the prospectors wandered along the southern edge of Death Valley. Their mule died, and the next day one of the men died, and the other became raving mad and fled into the desert. Ross quite crazy, wandered on until he fell unconscious.

Indians nursed him back to life, and guiding him to the San Joaquin Valley, pointed out the way to civilization. Within an hour of leaving his guides rocky stream. He had walked half way through the icy waters, when he pressed his hands to his eyes, dreading that his reason was again giving way.

He looked again. "Gold!" he shouted. And it was. Half the sands at his feet were gold. Within two months he had made $200,000, and he arrived back at his home in the States.

CHILD VICTIMS OF THE HUN.
 Out of 13,300 French school children in the invaded areas of France, 2,000 became hospital cases during the war, most of them with tuberculosis. In one school of 170 children, only one was not an invalid. The birth-rate dropped 60 per cent. Infant mortality was doubled. These figures are furnished by the French Academy of Medicine in reply to German complaints of privations caused to enemy children by the blockade.

Prince Made Dinner Democratic Function.

(From the New York Tribune.)
Eight British or near-British societies gave a dinner for the Prince of Wales at the Waldorf last night which sought valiantly to be regal and full of ceremony, but which, despite an almost bewildering array of regal state was changed into a democratic demonstration which was little short of remarkable.

The youthful Prince himself sounded the note of the occasion when, established before at other functions during the day, he refused to sit in an imposing chair which had been placed for him at the guests' table. What is more, he kept a thousand or more diners standing until the chair was removed.

As a reward, after the young visitor had made an appealing speech, the vast gathering of diners and guests
in the boxes rose and sang, lustily,
"For He's A Jolly Good Fellow." Magnificently gowned women occupying the two galleries of the great ballroom, where the dinner was held,
joined in the song, and when the air cleared away there were thunderous cheers for "The Prince! The Prince!"

Prince Clings to Democracy.
Throughout the meal, which was almost frugal in its simplicity, and afterwards, while William Howard Taft, Charles E. Hughes and other men of wide reputation were voicing warm praise of Great Britain's achievements in the war and laying emphasis on the common bond of birth and aspiration between the British Empire and the United States, Prince Edward insisted on preserving the attitude of democracy which has marked his visit to this city from the first.

There were impressive moments, of course, such as when the vast assemblage rose and sang "God Save the King" and the mind of the spectator had difficulty in divesting itself of the influence of the hundreds of military uniforms, with their glittering decorations and the wealth of colorful and imposing hangings, but for the most part the dinner was what the young prince insisted on making it—a feast of good fellowship, with plenty of songs and laughter thrown in.

U. S. and British Flags Line the Walls.
The eight societies which gave the dinner were the Sulgrave Institution, of which William Howard Taft is the President; the English Speaking Union, the British Schools and Universities Club, the Saint Andrew's Society, the Saint David's Society, the Saint George's Society, the Canadian Club and the Canadian Society.

The four sides of the large banquet hall, with the exception of sufficient space for the guests in the boxes to see what was going on, were almost unbroken walls of British and American flags. Back of the dais on which stood the speaker's table had been hung a gigantic "lunette" of combined British and American colors, and in the centre of this were the three sweeping feathers denoting the royal rank of the guest of honor.

Edward, when he marched down the long corridor leading into the hall where the members of the eight societies awaited him, was preceded by a blare of stirring music from the kilted band. This was at 7.30 o'clock.
Instantly a cheer went up from those on the main floor, and applause broke out in the galleries.

Indian Poet Lends Color.
The Prince was preceded by Major Scott and followed by Mr. Taft, Mr.
Hughes and others who were to sit at the speaker's table. Rustom Rustomjee, an Indian poet, wearing a long yellow gown with crimson trimmings at the neck and cuffs, wound up the procession and added a vivid touch of color.

The Prince and the others marched across the dining room to the farther end and then crossed to their seats at the dais. It was then that the Prince discovered the offending chair.

This article of furniture, sumptuously fitted with dark, red plush and framed in black wood, with a crown-like contrivance at the head, had been placed at the center of the table with formality by three waiters, with the faithful Oscar hovering vigilantly nearby, but the Prince smiled courteously but firmly when he saw it.

"Please take that big chair away," he said to the watchful Oscar. "It would make me uncomfortable to sit in it."

Three other waiters hastened to obey and there was laughter and applause from among the diners and spectators as it was being carried away. There was still another short delay until the Prince had rearranged the place cards so that Mr. Taft would have the seat on his right, and then the Prince and everybody else sat down.

Prince Pays Respects to Taft.
Here is the speech made by the Prince after Mr. Taft had addressed the diners:

"Mr. Taft, Ladies and Gentlemen.— In the presence of such distinguished orators I am not going to attempt to make a full-dress speech, but I regard it as a great honor that ex-President Taft should have come to preside here to-night, and I am grateful to him for the far too generous words in which he has proposed my health.

"It is a great pleasure to me to meet the representatives here of societies which are all devoted to the memories and traditions that bind the English-speaking people throughout the world.
Your hospitality is a pleasant episode
in my delightful visit to New York, and I and St. David's, represent the little way in which you have drunk my health.

"As I read the list of societies which were to entertain me here to-night I was strongly reminded of many delightful experiences which have fallen to me in the last six months.

England Very Much Herself.
"The three most ancient societies here—the St. George's, St. Andrew's and St. David's, represent the little old island of Great Britain from which I started on my travels four months ago. I can assure the St. George's Society that England is still very much herself. She is recovering rapidly from the great strain of the war and is continuing to do her best to rival the greatness of Scotland and Wales.

"To the St. Andrew's and St. David's Societies I can make an equally satis-

GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations.
Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.

Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

GENUINE "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, larger "Bayer" packages, can be had ester of Salicylicacid.

factory report I was both in Edinburgh and Cardiff a very short time before I sailed, and was able to assure myself that Scotland and Wales are still going strong. I cannot, I regret to say, make any remarks to the St.
Andrew's men here to-night, in Gaelic
—I cannot even without more preparation quote Bobbie Burns—but to Welshmen here to-night I can say and I do say, 'Cymry am byth' (meaning "Wales Forever.")

Feels "Quite a Westerner."

"The Canadian Club of New York has perhaps heard that since I left Great Britain four months ago I have travelled quite a bit in the great Dominion. They may also have heard that I have become a rancher and a farmer in a small way by buying a ranch in Alberta."

"This makes me feel quite a Westerner, for the young free democratic spirit of the West appeals to me enormously. I had a wonderful time in Canada and the Canadians quite spoiled me by the kindness and hospitality which they showed me throughout my three months' tour across the Dominion and back.

"I had the privilege of addressing three Canadian Clubs in Canada, at Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg, and I shall be glad to tell them in Canada, when I return to Halifax, that the Canadian Club of New York, like all other Canadian Clubs, is in very good shape.

"Coming from Canada to the United States I feel I am well in touch with the great objects of the Sulgrave Institution and the English Speaking Union, which are, I understand, to keep English-speaking people working in harmony throughout the world.

Visit Far Too Short.

"I have long looked forward to coming to the United States and to New York, and I am delighted to be here I feel, indeed, that the spoiling which Canada carried so far is being completed in the great Republic. I am having such a fine time in the United States that I have only one complaint to make—but that is a very serious one.

"It is that my visit is far too short and gives me no chance of seeing all that I should like in New York—to say nothing of many other distinguisht American cities, the famous American Middle West and West. But I console myself with the intention of paying another visit to the United States before very long and I hope that I shall then be able to see much more of this great nation as a whole."

"Atta Boy!" He Says of Canadians.

There was much applause when the Prince added that he hoped to pay the United States another visit at "no very distant date," and much approving laughter when he said the only words he could employ in referring to the achievements of the Canadians in the war were, "Atta boy!"

After the Prince's address, and before, the band in the gallery played numerous "jazz" tunes at the direction of the committee of arrangements.

Mr. Taft in his speech asserted that while there had been differences in the past between the United States and Great Britain, he was grateful to be able to say that ways had been found of smoothing those differences.
"The time will come when the people of the British Empire and of the United States will be found marching side by side in the cause and triumph of world peace," Mr. Taft went on.
"They will be marching shoulder to shoulder as they did in the war, keeping step to the air which they have in common, 'God Save the King, and 'America.' When Great Britain and the United States stand together for righteousness, the world will find it hard to go wrong."

Hughes Pays Tribute to Britons.

Mr. Hughes spoke after the Prince.
He evoked applause by saying the Prince represented a "great liberty loving people with which it will be our good fortune to co-operate in the future to make a sure foundation of peace and international justice."

Similar expressions of friendliness for the Prince and his country were contained in the speeches of John Grier Hibben, president of the Princeton University; Alton B. Parker, formerly Democratic candidate for President, who is the Chancellor of the Sulgrave Institution, and John Huston

Winter Models
are distinctive

There is much to interest the discriminating woman in the newest models of fashionable footwear, for the style-makers have been alert to produce shoes of character and distinctiveness.

Smart looking footwear is recognized as the important finishing touch to the costume of the well-dressed woman. And we could say much for the exceptionally attractive styles that will prevail this fall.

Graceful of line and correctly proportioned, the nine-inch boot will doubtless be the favorite. While it will come in all-leather of the finer sort, while knives, with cloth tops to match, will find increasing favor.

Really, the showing of new models was never more attractive or comprehensive. Your early inspection is invited.
