(By the Author of "A Bachelor Husband.")

CHAPTER IV.

"I think you're just wonderful," Esther said. She picked up a lid from one of the little pots and looked at the mauve and white label.

"June Mason's natural beautifier."

She looked at the glowing face opposite to her.

"Do you use it for your own skin?" she asked shyly.

Miss Mason chuckled; she pushed the tray to one side along the floor.

"I don't mind telling you that I've never used cream to my skin at all," she said. "But people think I do, and so there you are! Have some more tea."

She refilled Esther's cup and lit another cigarette. "So that's what I am," she said. "And now go on, and tell me about yourself. You said you were at Eldred's."

"Yes, I was there for two years. I rather liked it! I love pretty things, and I was in the workshop. They paid me quite well, too, though it was hard work, and then—well, then I left—" her voice changed subtly.

"Why?"

The query was only interested, and not at all impertinent.

Esther flushed.

"Well—well—I thought I was going to be married. He—well, he asked me to leave to marry him, and so I did."

"But you're not married?"

"No—" Esther was looking away into the fire. "No, I'm not married," she said in a stifled voice. "He—my fiancé—had to go away on business—abroad, and I don't know when I shall see him again."

Her voice sounded sad and dispirited.

"You poor little thing!" said June Mason. She leaned over and laid her hand on Esther's "Never mind! The time will soon pass, and then he'll come back and you'll live happily ever after—"

Esther smiled.

"I know. I keep on telling myself to foolish to worry. I felt quite happy this morning. I had a letter from him, and somehow when I read it things didn't seem half so bad; but—"

"And you'll have another to-morrow, I expect." Miss Mason insisted. "And another the next day, and one every day while he's away. There! That's better," she added cheerily as Esther laughed.

BABY COLEMAN.

"Altogether brighter and happier"

161, Cambridge Road, Seven Kings, Essex.

Dear Sirs,

My baby seemed to be quite healthy at birth, but being unable to feed him I tried different foods at various times. At first he appeared to be making progress, but after a few months it became evident he was wasting, and I was advised to try Virol. He soon began to pull round, and in a short time made considerable weight. This satisfactory progress has continued, thanks to Virol, which has built up his strength, making him a splendidly sturdy little fellow. In view of the gratifying results obtained, I do not hesitate to recommend Virol whenever the question arises of the best alternative food for baby.—Yours truly,

G. C. COLEMAN.

"I don't like to see you look as sad. I'm going to cheer you up. I shan't allow you to be miserable. And anyway," she added, with a sudden softening, "you've got some one who loves you, and that's worth everything else in the world."

"Yes," said Esther. Her eyes shone and she thought of the letter which was even then lying against her heart. Somehow she had never realized how much he really cared for her till to-day.

"And what are you going to do till he comes home?" Miss Mason asked interestedly. "If you had something to do you'd find the time pass ever so much quicker."

"It's a question of having to do something rather than how to pass the time," Esther said. "I haven't any money except what I can make. My aunt left me a little when she died, but it was only a very little, and I spent most of it at first while I was looking for work. So I'm going back to Eldred's—if they will have me, and I think they will."

Miss Mason said "Humph!"

"I think you're too good for a petticoat shop," she said bluntly. "You're wanted there! Nobody sees you, and you're so pretty—"

"Oh, what nonsense!" Esther exclaimed. She laughed in sheer amusement. To her it seemed absurd for this girl to call her pretty; she considered June Mason such a personality—so attractive!

She really did make a picturesque figure as she sat there with her mauve cushions all around her. Her yellow blotches and dark hair and wonderful rose-leaf skin reminded one of some brilliant portrait painted by a master-hand.

Her world had been surprised could she have known the thought in June's mind at that moment.

"She's just sweet! I don't know when I've seen a face I admire more. Micky would adore her! She's just the sort of woman he always raves about. I must ask him to tea to meet her one day."

"There are heaps of other berths going besides Eldred's, you know," she said earnestly. "However, you must do as you like, of course." She threw away another unfinished cigarette.

"Do you think we are going to be friends?" she asked.

"I am sure we are," Esther said. She really did think so; she had never met any one in the least like June Mason before. She began to feel glad that she had come to this house. It was much more expensive than the Brixton Road, certainly, but it was well worth it, even if only because she had met this quaint little woman.

It was nearly seven o'clock when she thought of going back to her own room, and then it was only the chinking of a clock on the shelf that roused her.

"Nearly seven!" She started up in dismay. "I had no idea it was so late. I am sorry for having stayed so long."

"There's nothing to be sorry for," June declared. "You may go shares with this room if you like. I'm out so much, it isn't used half the time. Think it over, will you?"

Esther flushed nervously.

"It's awfully kind of you; I should love to, but I couldn't afford it. I'm really paying more money now than I ought to. I want to save, too—"

Miss Mason laughed.

"For the wedding! Lucky girl! I hope you'll ask me to come and see you married—and I hope he's very nice," she added.

"He is," said Esther eagerly. "And he's very handsome," she added shyly.

But Miss Mason was not impressed.

"I don't care a fig if a man is handsome or not," she said bluntly. "If he's just manly and straightforward and kind, that's all I expect him to be. Now look here—we have dinner at half-past seven in this establishment. It's only supper really, but we all put on our best blouses—if we've got any—and call it dinner. I'll call for you on the way down and we'll go in together. I'll tell Mrs. Elders you are going to share my table, if you like; it's decidedly dull sitting alone."

"I'm going to like her—I'm going to like her awfully," she told herself. She hurried to be ready in time, but the rather unmelodious dinner-bell had clanged through the house twice before June came to the door.

"You've unpacked, then?" she said. She looked round the small room approvingly. "I can see you're one of the tidy ones," she said. "I'm not; I wish I were. However, we can't all be the same. Are you ready?"

She took Esther's arm and they went downstairs together.

"Every one knows you're coming," June said as they neared the dining-room. "Every one always knows everything that goes on here. Don't take any notice if they stare a lot; they must stare at something, poor darlings. I'll tell you who they all are and all about them."

The dining-room was a long, narrow sort of room that looked as if it once had been two rooms recently thrown into one; the floor was covered with slippery green linoleum, and there was a long table running almost the length of the room, with a few smaller ones on either side.

A grey-haired woman with pimple glasses stood at the head of the long table; Esther recognised her as the proprietress, Mrs. Elders.

She said good-evening to Esther and stared frigidly at June, as if she did not like to see the two girls together.

He did not approve of the little face cream lady, though she was careful never to say so, as June was one of her best paying propositions.

Esther was glad when they reached their own table; glad, too, that she was more or less out of the way of curious glances.

The dinner was plain, but infinitely superior to the fare she had had to put up with in the Brixton Road.

"Do you have all your meals here?" she asked June presently.

"No—only breakfast and supper—and not always supper. I go out with friends, sometimes. Every one hasn't given me up just because my family have. But the food is quite good here. They're rather too fond of rice and stewed apples; but it might be worse. Turn round presently and look at the man behind you with the grey hair. Isn't he handsome? We call him the colonel, though I don't believe he's a colonel at all. He's a dear, but he always complains about everything. I know he gives notice regularly on Saturday morning and takes it back again on Saturday night. Mrs. Elders would think he wasn't well if he missed giving her notice."

She laughed, and turning in her chair spoke to a young man who was sitting alone at one of the smaller tables behind her.

"Is your cousin better?" she asked. "I'm going to give you some special stuff to-night for it. No, it isn't at all nasty." She turned back to Esther.

"May I introduce Mr. Harley—he's the most interesting person in the whole house. He writes stories and things. Mr. Harley, this is Miss Shepstone—a great friend of mine."

Harley bowed. He was a pale, delicate-looking young man with fine dark eyes.

"You never told me that you knew Miss Shepstone," he said to June.

"I didn't know her till this afternoon," she answered promptly; "but I make friends quickly, as you know."

"You'll like Harley," she told Esther presently in an undertone. "He's very clever, but so delicate, poor boy! He ought to live in the country instead of in London. He's the sort of person I should love to help if I were rich."

"It must be wonderful to be rich," Esther said. There was a little flush in her cheeks; she was really enjoying herself. "It's the dream of my life to have enough money to be able to do anything I like," she added earnestly. "Just for a month! If I could be really rich just for one month I wouldn't mind going back to being poor again."

Miss Mason said "Rubbish!" briskly. "Money can't buy happiness, my dear, and don't you forget it. My people think it can, and lots of other people think the same. It only shows what fools they are. It was the money my people couldn't get over when I declined to marry Micky Mellowes."

"She made a little wry face. "I remember my mother coming into my room one night in her dressing-gown—poor soul!—when she heard I'd told Micky there was nothing doing, and saying tragically, 'June, you must be mad—stark, staring mad! Why, the man's as rich as Croesus!'"

"Rich!" Esther was conscious of an odd little sinking at her heart. "I'm Mr. Mellowes rich, then?" she asked constrainedly.

RETURNING SPRING.

It won't be long before we'll hear the robins calling loud and clear, and hear the blackbirds on the fence with all their feathered consequence, Chattering and sputtering over things. And getting mad and locking wings. And hills and feet, the way men act. At times about some simple fact. Disputing one another there. As though the Lord on high will care which one of them was fed the best. Or which one had the finest nest.

It won't be long before we'll see the green returning to the tree. An' over all our lives anew. Will stretch a kindly sky of blue; The tulips will come springing up. To catch the sunbeams in a cup. And everyone of them will say, "We were not dead, but just away. For we are headed seaward, too. Fresh messengers from heavenly skies. To carry beauty down below. To everyone of you to know."

It won't be long before the streams will wake from all their winter dreams. And start to laugh and race again. Down hillsides and the level plain. Making their journey to the sea. Most human-like it seems to me; For we are headed seaward, too. Each morning here we wake anew. To toss and race and move along. Towards that great unnumbered throng. Which went before, and at the end. Our lives with greater lives to bend.

It won't be long before the Spring Shout will strengthen faith that's faltering.

The Foundation of Good Cookery

Add a Spoonful of BOVRIL—

It makes the whole dish more nourishing

In making all your soups, pies, stews and gravies, add a spoonful of Bovril. It is the really economical way of cooking. Bovril not only adds to the dish the concentrated nourishment contained in itself; it also greatly increases the nourishment given by all the other ingredients.

Independent scientific investigation has proved that Bovril has not only a high direct nutritive value, but that it possesses unique powers of making other foods yield up their nutriment.

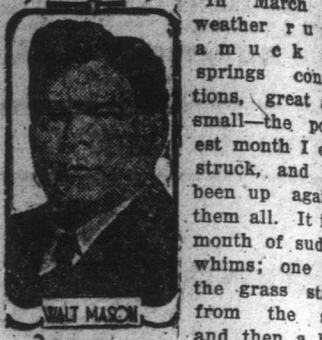

Bovril greatly improves the flavour and savouriness of every dish. It adds the concentrated goodness of prime beef—the vital elements which give beef its special place as a food. You are sure of being nourished if you take Bovril.

The body-building powers of Bovril have been proved to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken.

MARCH.

In March the weather runs a muck and springs conceptions, great and small—the poorest month I ever struck, and I've been up against them all. It is a month of sudden whims; one day the grass starts from the soil, and then a blizzard comes and trims the whiskers from a stone gargoye. What he should wear no man can know, for he may shiver as he perpires; there's sure to be three feet of snow if he puts on his spring attire. If he puts on his heavy furs, convinced they are the safest bet, a summer zephyr round him whirs, and he's reduced to grease and sweat. March seems to keep us all in view, as we go doddering along, and then, no matter what we do, she shows us what we did was wrong. I've seen all kinds of months go by, I've seen their characters unfold; and some were wet and some were dry, and some were hot, and others cold. And they were what we would expect, they were consistent in their ways, and as their conduct was correct, and drew from me a song of praise. But March is summer, winter, fall, and spring-time, badly mixed and bent; her lightning changes bore us all, and fill our hearts with discontent.

Short Shrift for Negro.

Tampa, Fla., March 15.—William Bowles, a negro, was lynched by a mob near Eagle Lake, in Folk County, late yesterday, after two deputy sheriffs had arrested him on a charge of making improper remarks to a young white woman. As the officers were taking the negro to the county jail at Barlow they were held up by a mob of armed men, overpowered, and the negro taken from them. He was hanged to a tree near the roadside.

WILL SUPPRESS POLISH MOVEMENT.

OPPELN, March 21. Entente forces in Upper Silesia will suppress any effort on the part of the Polish army to override the decision in yesterday's plebiscite, General Leronne, head of the Inter-Allied Commission, told the Associated Press to-day.

COALITION GOVT. FOR RUSSIA.

COPENHAGEN, March 21. Negotiations looking toward the formation of a Coalition Government in Russia have been opened by talks with leaders of the Menshevik and Social Revolutionaries, says a Beltske Tidende despatch.

REPARATIONS COMMITTEE CRITICISED.

ROME, March 21. Acts of the London Reparations Conference were severely criticised in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday. Many Deputies declared the policy of Entente was not a policy of peace but of provocation.

CHAMBERLAIN HEADS UNIONIST PARTY.

LONDON, March 21. Appeals are being made to many nations by General Wrangel, head of the South Russian Government, to come to the aid of the anti-Bolshevik. "Bolshevism is dying and this is an ill-chosen moment to disband our troops," he said to-day.

AN ILL-FATED VOYAGE.

BOSTON, March 21. The British steamer "Paleric" beset by fire, machinery breakdowns, and other causes of damage and delay, will not complete the voyage begun four months ago from Calcutta to this port with a million dollar cargo. It was said to-day that the steamer, which is now at the Azores fighting another fire in her hold, probably would abandon what is left of the cargo to the underwriters and proceed to England for repairs, resumption of the voyage being considered impracticable.

TWO MORE BODIES RECOVERED.

CHICAGO, March 21. Two more bodies to-day were taken from the debris of the Armour Grain Company elevator, which was wrecked by an explosion Saturday night, making the number of known dead four. Two more bodies were believed still to be in the wreckage.

CANADIAN VETERANS SEEKING FURTHER INCREASES.

OTTAWA, March 21. Immediate need of increases in pensions was urged before a Parliamentary Committee on soldiers' civil rehabilitation to-day by G. G. MacNeil, Secretary of the Dominion Command Great War Veterans. The present pension was not, he said, filling the gap between disability earning capacity and normal earning capacity of pensioners.

WRANGLER WISHES TO CARRY ON.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 21. Appeals are being made to many nations by General Wrangel, head of the South Russian Government, to come to the aid of the anti-Bolshevik. "Bolshevism is dying and this is an ill-chosen moment to disband our troops," he said to-day.

FORDNEY BILL TO BE RE-INTRODUCED.

WASHINGTON, March 21. The Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill, precisely as vetoed by former President Wilson, will be rushed through Congress as the first important legislation of the extra session. According to the request of President Harding for the passage of a measure designed to help farmers asking for protection against foreign competition, Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee turned about to-day and voted to revive the Fordney Bill, after agreeing almost unanimously a week ago not to consider any emergency legislation ahead of permanent tariff and revenue revision.

THEIR USEFULNESS OVER.

LONDON, March 21. The House of Commons passed the second reading to-day of a bill for the winding up of the Ministries of Shipping and Munitions.

BANK LOOTED.

DETROIT, Mich., March 21. Five armed bandits this afternoon held up a east side branch of the Commonwealth Federal Savings Bank and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash. Bank officials say the loss probably would not exceed five thousand dollars.

ENTITLED TO REFUND.

LONDON, March 21. The subject of an agreement with the West India and Panama Telegraph Co., in which Canada is interested, was brought up in the House of Commons to-night. It was stated that under the original agreement the British and Canadian governments were entitled to refund of subsidies if profits exceeded a certain sum.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE UNLIMITED.

MONTREAL, March 21. The "British Empire, Unlimited," was the designation given to the "greatest business in the world," which formed the topic of an address delivered at the Canadian Club here to-day by Captain Evan J. Edwards, Senior Trade Commissioner for Canada and Newfoundland. Capt. Edwards said he had exchanged business in a private enterprise, in which he was formerly engaged, which employed six or seven thousand hands and had a turn over of between twenty-five and thirty million dollars yearly, for that of the British Empire which was worth millions and billions and engaged the services of three million hands, while the extent of the territory it covered was about one-sixth of the world.

NOT THIS SESSION.

LONDON, March 21. In the House of Lords to-day Earl Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs and leader in the House, replying to an enquiry as to the progress of the House of Lords reform proposal, said that the Government would bring in a bill at the earliest possible moment, but this could not be done until next session of the House. The Lords passed the Criminal Law Act Amendment Bill and the third reading of the German Reparations Bill.

An Investment Better than Ponzi's

Even if Ponzi's get-rich-quick scheme had proved a wonderful success, it would not have been such a blessing to humanity as is Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture, the one sure remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, chronic asthma and other throat and chest troubles. Ponzi's scheme only meant wealth. Buckley's means health and perhaps life. If you have a cold or hacking cough, beware the saying: "Cold—cough—soothe." Don't run risks. Get a bottle of Buckley's Mixture—and get it to-day. One dose will bring relief. It has helped thousands, and it can do the same for you. Buckley's Mixture is not a soothing syrup. It is a scientific preparation, twenty times more effective than other cough mixtures. Ask your druggist for it, and look for the name on the carton. Take no substitute. Price 75c a bottle.

Sold in St. John's by any of the following druggists: T. McMURDO & CO., Ltd., M. O'CONNOR, AVALON DRUG CO., E. J. SAMSON, PETER O'MARA, KAVANAGH'S Drug Store. Also for sale by EXPLOITS VALLEY ROYAL STORES, Ltd., Millertown; D. G. FRASER, Bay Roberts; H.

(Conducted by "The Bookman.")

The Prince of Wales' Book—(Hodder & Stoughton, 7/6, retail Dicks & Co.). This book is typical of those excellent gift-books published during the War—I refer to "Princess Mary's Gift Book," "Queen Alexandra's Gift Book," etc. This book, however, has a Royal publisher—the Prince of Wales, to wit. The book is a complete photographic record of his tours on board "H.M.S. Renown." The Canadian tour and the Australian tour being each separately treated in this most excellent book. The only criticism which the book can receive is the fact that there are only two photos of Newfoundland. The prints from the sale go towards St. Dunstan's Hospital for the Blind. The work done at this hospital during the war can never be overestimated and to-day it still continues the training of our blinded soldiers and fits them for civilian life. The engraving, printing, paper and binding of the book is the last word in the publisher's art and it ought to be in every home. To conclude I could not do better than quote the Prince himself: "I hope that all who can will buy this book of photographs and will thus help me to secure the largest possible assistance for our soldiers and sailors who were blinded in the war."

"EDWARD P."

Blindie by Herbert Jenkins (Jenkins 2/6)—To review such a book as "Blindie" is past the powers of the average critic. There are not sufficient words in our vocabulary to appreciate on paper "the immortal mirth-provoking Blindie." The book is strongly reminiscent of Dickens' Sam Weller, and Blindie is surely what T. P. O'Connor calls the "greatest Cockney since Pickwick Papers." Blindie was originally published by the author-publisher, Herbert Jenkins, in a 7/6 edition and so popular did the book become that a popular edition at 2/6 was published. The person who expends 75c. on a copy of Blindie will find himself richly rewarded. No praise is too high for the book.

We recently were given a copy of "Green Mansions" by W. H. Hudson (Bonl & Liveright). This book is the masterpiece of the author. His powers as a delineator of life, sentiment and nature are best displayed in this volume. A wonderful tribute has been paid the author by John Galsworthy in the Preface. The setting of the tale is in South America among the luxuriant forests of that country, far from the civilized world. The language of romance which runs through the book is just enough to hold and not too much to obscure the natural descriptions. One can readily see that the author is a naturalist as well as an artistic and poetic novelist. The book is a selection from the "Modern Library," a series of artistically bound volumes at a price (95c.) low enough to suit the most impetuous.

The Story on the Willow Pattern Plate.

When the beautiful Chinese were first came to Europe it came through Egypt and the Red Sea. Afterward the Dutch bought a great deal and copied many of the Chinese patterns. Also they bought and carried away in their great ships many loads of the clay for baking into vessels. In England many people love the Chinese blue, which is like the color of the sky where it is darkest, right over your head. So, very many years ago, a man named Turner made a plate with a Chinese pattern on it, and people liked it so much that for seventy years hardly any other pattern was made. It was called the "Willow Pattern" and it is to be found in almost every cottage in England, Scotland and Ireland. It is a pretty pattern and the story is a very interesting one. The picture story which is told on the plate is a Chinese one, and the little drawings are Chinese too, but the whole was never put on a plate till the English potter Turner did so in 1780.

Look at the picture of a "Willow Pattern" plate or, better yet, ask your mother, if she has a real plate, to show to you. On the right there is a beautiful Chinese house, with pillars, set among orange trees. You can see the oranges hanging like great balls, and there are great pines and palms over

The Government Responsible.

When Mr. Coaker addressed the Licensed Fish Exporters in the Seamen's Institute in the month of September last, he spoke, in part, as follows:

"When the Government (Squires-Coaker) came into power in November, 1919, they passed rules and regulations dealing with the export of fish. Two bye-elections have since taken place and these fishery rules have been the sole issue. On each occasion the policy of the Government was sustained. We therefore consider them as part of our policy, and there must be no looking back. If, after giving them a fair trial, it can be shown that they are injurious or not beneficial we shall say that we have tried and failed, and will forego any further attempt to control the price of fish. Our policy has been laid down and from it there will be no departure. Well, the policy has been tried and all the rules and regulations have been repealed by the Government, and the logical conclusion therefore is, that in the opinion of the Government they have been repealed because they have failed. No bye-election has reversed the verdict given by St. John's West and Bay de Verde, according to Mr. Coaker. No mandate has been given by the electors to the Government to abandon their avowed and considered policy of control, wherefore the conclusion cannot be escaped that failure—stark, complete, overwhelming and undeniable failure—has attended upon the policy of control by the Government whose policy it was.

And now comes the Advocate, the organ of Coaker, the prophet of Control (with a capital C) which exists on Government patronage, the same Advocate, which never tires of hypocritically posing as the mouthpiece and champion of the fishermen, and declares that repeal of the Rules and Regulations will be attended by the most disastrous consequences to the Colony at large and to the fishermen in particular, and that for all this the Fish Exporters will be to blame, because they have asked for this repeal. But—and let fishermen note carefully—if the Exporters asked, it was the Government which concurred in their request; if the merchants said "repeal," it was the Government which did repeal, and the whole responsibility for all the ill that happens to the Colony in consequence, is on the Government. What is our present shuffling Government for if not to lay down and enforce the fishery policy of control. What right has it to set up a policy to-day and pull it down to-morrow, because some other body of men wish it? What sense of dignity can the Government have or what respect can be paid to it, if its subsidised organs seek to shift responsibility from its shoulders to those of any class in the Colony? If a policy be good for the fishermen why abandon it at the request of merchants?

But of course the Advocate seeks to dig a hole through which Coaker can crawl when he comes home. No self-respecting man who proclaims a policy in the dictatorial way assumed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries could remain in a Government which had abandoned that policy. No man with an atom of consistency or any sense of shame who has raged as Mr. Coaker has done since going abroad, could consent to sit with colleagues who had so decisively turned him down, as the present Ministry has turned down Mr. Coaker and Mr. Coaker's policy. His pet scheme has been overthrown; his pet policy occupies a place in the Executive waste basket. He comes home defeated and disgraced by his colleagues in the Cabinet, and the Advocate is preparing the way for him to swallow the noxious dose, and hold on to his seat in the Government. The Advocate abuses the merchants for repealing the Rules and Regulations, to hide the fact that the colleagues of Coaker themselves have done the repealing. The Government's policy was Control—that of the Exporters—No Control. And not a single member of the Government has the courage or independence to resign his seat, and the paid scribes defend them all in their shame, as strongly as when they possessed, at least, the merit of standing by their colors.

Saved His Belongings.

A message received from Mr. Fred Ellis yesterday, stated that he had arrived at St. Pierre Sunday afternoon, and that he had saved all his personal belongings. The message did not give particulars as to exactly where the Stadium had been lost, except to say that she was a total wreck at Miquelon, and fully insured. The tug Stadium was a splendid ship, having passenger accommodation, electric light fitted, automatic jowling machines and heavy winch. She was 8 years old and registered 118 tons gross. The smaller tug Hero which Mr. Ellis is also getting down is not expected to leave Halifax until some time in April.

Getting After Stolen Cash.

The police have recovered quite a quantity of the cloth stolen some few days ago from the Furness Withy premises. Some of the parties who purchased lengths of the goods have voluntarily handed it in. The names of most of those with the stolen property in their possession have been given to the police, who will likely make some arrests, if the parties do not quickly make returns. Over $500 worth of cloth was recovered yesterday.

Police Court.

A young man named Skeans was summoned for assault on Constable Warren, while the latter was on duty. The evidence of Constable Evans showed that three members of the force were at the Parade Rink on Friday last and whilst Warren was putting on his skates, Evans kicked him in the face, the outcome of an exchange of words. Evans then took up a bar of iron and struck Warren on the shoulders. The latter grabbed the iron bar, whereupon the accused shouted for a knife with which to rip the policeman up. The accused admitted hitting the policeman with a bar of iron and cutting his face, but denied that he threatened to murder the policeman with a knife. His Worship commented strongly on the conduct of the accused and fined him $30 or two months imprisonment. Mr. G. J. Fox appeared for the prosecution.

Coal Operations.

Operations at the South Branch coal mine are being continued, some 30 men being engaged at the work of getting the coal mined during last fall and the winter, to the railway track. Some 30 tons per day are being transferred by motor trucks. It is authoritatively stated that the quantity of coal at South Branch is limited. This means that after an expenditure of some $350,000 the country will have nothing to show but a deep hole. On the other hand the same authority states that at St. George's the known quantity of coal there runs into millions of tons. Why the Government did not develop this latter property is somewhat puzzling. It may be stated here that the authority quoted had no connection or interest in the St. George's Coal Fields.

Personal.

Commissioner Mullaly is now acting Chief Magistrate in the absence of Mayor Gosling from the city.
Mrs. W. Comerford, wife of W. F. Comerford, manager of Garneau Ltd., who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the General Hospital last week, is improving rapidly.
Capt. John Lewis, M.H.A. for Harbor Main yesterday, who came in to the city by a special train, returns home this afternoon. Capt. Lewis looks fine after the strenuous election campaign, in which he put up so successful a fight.

Sugar Stocks.

The stock of 25 cent sugar in the hands of the Food Control Board is given as 5,400 barrels according to their latest statement to the trade. For the fortnight ending March 18th the sales were 975 barrels. Efforts have been made to induce the Board to reduce the selling price of sugar to candy and syrup manufacturers. At present the factories here have to remain idle. Imported candy of good quality is being sold in the stores cheaper than the price at which the Food Control Board sells sugar.

AGREE TO CONSOLIDATION.

MONTREAL, Mar. 21. Directors of the Dominion Steel Corporation and Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. met here to-day to discuss the proposed amalgamation of the two companies with Halifax shipyards, in the British Empire Steel Corporation. After meetings of both Boards it was announced that they had approved of contracts covering consolidation, and that special meetings of both the Steel Corporation and the Scotia company shareholders would be called for the 27th inst., to pass upon recommendations of the directors in this respect.

GERMANY REJOICES.

BERLIN, March 21. Dr. Walter Simons, Foreign Minister, to-day announced that returns from the plebiscite held yesterday in Upper Silesia showed a complete German victory. Government buildings already have been flagged in honor of the event, the colors of the German Republic and of Prussia being hoisted. President Ebert was expressedly wired the German representatives in Upper Silesia an expression of his joy over the result, adding, "Even if according to reports our success is one or two directions has been prejudiced by resort to unjust and violent methods, it remains an indisputable fact that an overwhelming majority of Upper Silesian people has decided in favor of Germany."

FRANCE DISAPPOINTED.

PARIS, March 21. In French official circles keen disappointment was expressed over the report received this afternoon from Upper Silesia, saying that Germany will retain the district as a result of Sunday's plebiscite, but officials do not yet admit the area is lost to Poland. They pointed out that reports of plebiscite were unofficial, and came mostly from Berlin. It was said that in the event of a majority of the vote being German, the territory probably would be divided, leaving to Poland those places which voted Polish. Stress was placed by French officials on the agricultural vote, which it hoped will prove to be largely Polish, but it was conceded the towns had voted German.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN AGREEMENT.

LONDON, March 21. The despatch of the British Trade delegations to Russia this spring may be expected as the first tangible result of the recently concluded Anglo-Russian trade agreement, according to official circles. Upon the investigations and reports of these agents will be based attempts to rebuild Anglo-Russian commerce, starting in a small way and increasing as the volume of goods from Russia becomes increasingly available. No eventuality, not even a ruling by British courts that creditors have the right to seize Bolshevik gold, brought into Britain, will make the agreement inoperative, say officials, who have dominated the six months' negotiations with Leonid Krassin.

BOYCOTTING ULSTER.

BELFAST, March 21. Tightening of the Ulster boycott until the British war of aggression on the Irish people ceases, was considered at a meeting of available members of the Dal Eireann to-day. From time to time it was decided the Sinn Fein "Ministry" through a department of trade will issue decrees naming prohibited articles. Fair notice will be given before their enforcement.

GREETED WITH CHEERS.

LONDON, March 21. J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, newly elected Leader of the House of Commons, and Leader of the Unionist Party in the House, was received with loud cheer-

Police Court.

A young man named Skeans was summoned for assault on Constable Warren, while the latter was on duty. The evidence of Constable Evans showed that three members of the force were at the Parade Rink on Friday last and whilst Warren was putting on his skates, Evans kicked him in the face, the outcome of an exchange of words. Evans then took up a bar of iron and struck Warren on the shoulders. The latter grabbed the iron bar, whereupon the accused shouted for a knife with which to rip the policeman up. The accused admitted hitting the policeman with a bar of iron and cutting his face, but denied that he threatened to murder the policeman with a knife. His Worship commented strongly on the conduct of the accused and fined him $30 or two months imprisonment. Mr. G. J. Fox appeared for the prosecution.

Coal Operations.

Operations at the South Branch coal mine are being continued, some 30 men being engaged at the work of getting the coal mined during last fall and the winter, to the railway track. Some 30 tons per day are being transferred by motor trucks. It is authoritatively stated that the quantity of coal at South Branch is limited. This means that after an expenditure of some $350,000 the country will have nothing to show but a deep hole. On the other hand the same authority states that at St. George's the known quantity of coal there runs into millions of tons. Why the Government did not develop this latter property is somewhat puzzling. It may be stated here that the authority quoted had no connection or interest in the St. George's Coal Fields.

Personal.

Commissioner Mullaly is now acting Chief Magistrate in the absence of Mayor Gosling from the city.
Mrs. W. Comerford, wife of W. F. Comerford, manager of Garneau Ltd., who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the General Hospital last week, is improving rapidly.
Capt. John Lewis, M.H.A. for Harbor Main yesterday, who came in to the city by a special train, returns home this afternoon. Capt. Lewis looks fine after the strenuous election campaign, in which he put up so successful a fight.

Sugar Stocks.

The stock of 25 cent sugar in the hands of the Food Control Board is given as 5,400 barrels according to their latest statement to the trade. For the fortnight ending March 18th the sales were 975 barrels. Efforts have been made to induce the Board to reduce the selling price of sugar to candy and syrup manufacturers. At present the factories here have to remain idle. Imported candy of good quality is being sold in the stores cheaper than the price at which the Food Control Board sells sugar.

AGREE TO CONSOLIDATION.

MONTREAL, Mar. 21. Directors of the Dominion Steel Corporation and Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. met here to-day to discuss the proposed amalgamation of the two companies with Halifax shipyards, in the British Empire Steel Corporation. After meetings of both Boards it was announced that they had approved of contracts covering consolidation, and that special meetings of both the Steel Corporation and the Scotia company shareholders would be called for the 27th inst., to pass upon recommendations of the directors in this respect.

GERMANY REJOICES.

BERLIN, March 21. Dr. Walter Simons, Foreign Minister, to-day announced that returns from the plebiscite held yesterday in Upper Silesia showed a complete German victory. Government buildings already have been flagged in honor of the event, the colors of the German Republic and of Prussia being hoisted. President Ebert was expressedly wired the German representatives in Upper Silesia an expression of his joy over the result, adding, "Even if according to reports our success is one or two directions has been prejudiced by resort to unjust and violent methods, it remains an indisputable fact that an overwhelming majority of Upper Silesian people has decided in favor of Germany."

FRANCE DISAPPOINTED.

PARIS, March 21. In French official circles keen disappointment was expressed over the report received this afternoon from Upper Silesia, saying that Germany will retain the district as a result of Sunday's plebiscite, but officials do not yet admit the area is lost to Poland. They pointed out that reports of plebiscite were unofficial, and came mostly from Berlin. It was said that in the event of a majority of the vote being German, the territory probably would be divided, leaving to Poland those places which voted Polish. Stress was placed by French officials on the agricultural vote, which it hoped will prove to be largely Polish, but it was conceded the towns had voted German.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN AGREEMENT.

LONDON, March 21. The despatch of the British Trade delegations to Russia this spring may be expected as the first tangible result of the recently concluded Anglo-Russian trade agreement, according to official circles. Upon the investigations and reports of these agents will be based attempts to rebuild Anglo-Russian commerce, starting in a small way and increasing as the volume of goods from Russia becomes increasingly available. No eventuality, not even a ruling by British courts that creditors have the right to seize Bolshevik gold, brought into Britain, will make the agreement inoperative, say officials, who have dominated the six months' negotiations with Leonid Krassin.

Ward. Patriotic Association.

WAR MEMORIAL DISCUSSED.
 A meeting of the Patriotic Association took place in the Board of Trade Rooms last night, when matters in connection with the proposed Memorial were again discussed. His Excellency the Governor presided and addressed the members of the Association, a deputation of the G.W.V.A. was also present. The Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, which with some amendments, were received and adopted.
 His Excellency the Governor outlined the objects for which the meeting had been called and explained that it was due to a requisition from the G.W.V.A., who were hoping that something definite would be done in the matter, and he called upon Sir W. F. Lloyd, convenor of the deputation, which was appointed at the last meeting to interview the Government in relation to the National Memorial. Sir William gave a short outline of the Committee's work, and explained why the committee had not met at an earlier date. He also explained why a representative of the G.W.V.A. had not taken part in the committee's deliberations, owing to an oversight on his part. He then read the following report in connection with the deputation's visit to the Premier: "The Committee asked the Premier, if in his opinion, the Government would take over the cost of the proposed memorial building, the same being estimated from $250,000 to $300,000. The Premier's reply was that in his opinion the Government would not be justified in authorizing the expenditure of such a sum. He suggested as an alternative that provided the Patriotic Association would give satisfactory guarantees for $100,000, the Government would increase its present vote of $100,000 to $150,000, the full sum to be expended on the building first." Sir William thought that owing to the present conditions in financial circles, it would be impossible to get any body of men to underwrite $100,000, and he felt that even that amount would not suffice for the Normal School and the Monument together, as the latter would cost $50,000, which would mean that the public would be called upon to subscribe $50,000.
 The chairman then read the resolutions passed at the last general meeting of the G.W.V.A., urging that there should be no further delay, in the erection of a Memorial to "the men who died," and that the Memorial should take the form of a large-scale replica of the Caribou, to be placed on the highest point of Signal Hill, and that a replica of the Bomber be placed in a suitable part of the city.
 His Excellency felt that we have not been slow in the matter of our National Memorial, as except for small local memorials, no substantial Memorial has been erected as yet in any part of the British Empire.
 Sir William Lloyd thought that as the proposed Memorial School was for the time being out of the running, that the question of erecting the Monument should be taken up and the Memorial be left in the hands of the Government to be erected later.
 Sir P. T. McGrath thought it regrettable that the Memorial School should have been hitched on to the Monument from the start. We should have been content with a Monument that would have told its own story. He regretted that this matter had not been started when first it was proposed, as we were in a much better position then than at present. He, however, hoped that it was not too late for the Monument. He felt that the Association should leave this matter for the public's decision, as in his opinion it was not advisable for such a small body should decide on such an important question. He therefore proposed the following resolution: "Resolved, that this meeting of the Patriotic Association, having been informed that the time is not opportune for carrying on the scheme for a National Memorial, as laid before the meeting of November 9th 1920, commends that His Excellency the Governor be requested to call a public meeting of citizens of St. John's, to take up the question of erecting a War Memorial and of raising the necessary funds for that purpose." Sir Patrick thought that this meeting of citizens would be able to appoint a new committee to go into this matter and he felt that despite the financial conditions at present existing that $50,000 could be raised to erect the Monument. He then quoted extensively from newspaper cuttings to show that in Canada and the United States very little has been done regarding the erection of War Memorials, and whilst it was a matter of regret that we are so backward in this respect, we were in good company. He felt however, that we ought not to delay to such longer in this important duty to those who fought and fell.
 Mr. J. G. Higgins, B.A., President of the G.W.V.A., explained the position of that Association in connection with the matter. They were in accord with the proposed Normal School provided the Government would take over the expenditure, and when they passed the resolutions it was in the hope that something definite would be done and it was with this object in view that the Executive forwarded same to the Patriotic Association.

 Dr. J. A. Robinson was in entire accord with the principle of the resolution proposed by Sir P. T. McGrath, and he had much pleasure in seconding it. He complimented the G.W.V.A. on the interest displayed by them in this matter. Dr. Robinson then reviewed the Memorial project since its inception, two years ago, until now, when we are no further advanced than when first started. We can afford to let the Memorial Hall or Normal School wait, he said, but we cannot afford to let time pass and have no Monument erected to those who so gallantly died in defence of the Empire. He was hoping that the G.W.V.A. explained the position of that Association in connection with the matter. They were in accord with the proposed Normal School provided the Government would take over the expenditure, and when they passed the resolutions it was in the hope that something definite would be done and it was with this object in view that the Executive forwarded visit to the Old Country, and of his trip to the battlefields, where in every village and town from the Cenotaph at Whitehall, London, to the small shrine in the Flemish village, something had been done to keep fresh the memories of those who had fallen. In conclusion Dr. Robinson gave his full support to any suggestion that the G.W.V.A. may offer, and he was in accord with the proposal of Sir P. T. McGrath.

 Mr. J. G. Higgins again explained that the G.W.V.A. were in full accord with whatever suggestions were offered. Action was wanted in this matter, and they were satisfied to take whatever was decided upon in the way of erecting a suitable Monument. On behalf of the Veterans he thanked Dr. J. A. Robinson for the series of articles now running in the News, which is the first real attempt to give the history of the "Trail of the Caribou."
 Mr. W. S. Monroe supported the idea of erecting a local Monument, but thought that the time was not opportune in which to raise sufficient funds, as with conditions at present existing, he doubted if over $50,000 would be subscribed, and he thought it advisable to wait a little longer.

 Mr. R. G. Rendell also supported the resolutions of Sir P. T. McGrath and he believed that the necessary funds could be secured. We are spending large sums each week in amusements and he believed that citizens would respond to the call for funds and that a suitable monument could be erected.
 Dr. V. P. Burke, and Capt. H. A. Anderson also spoke regarding the memorial, after which the resolution of Sir P. T. McGrath was put to the meeting and carried. The matter of disbanding the Patriotic Association was then put before the meeting by His Excellency and was discussed by several of the members present. On motion of Dr. Robinson, seconded by R. G. INSPECTOR GENERAL HUTCHINGS REPLIES TO MAYOR GOSLING.

(COPY)
W. G. Gosling, Esq., Mayor.

Dear Sir,—Your communication of the 15th instant, came to hand on the morning of the 18th, and I have carefully perused its contents. You need not have apologized for the severe tone of your letter. Nothing different was expected by me. It is a long time since you replied to any one daring to express an opinion contrary to yours, in any other way. The most evident, and the most lamentable feature of your communication, is your want of knowledge of surrounding circumstances, and your readiness to accept the opinions of several of your officials who were not at scene of the fire until nearly an hour after the alarm came in; and your readiness to publish, without taking the trouble to confirm, the incorrect reports and rumours set on foot by some of the same individuals. Why didn't your Engineer or yourself confer with either Superintendent Dunn or myself and procure a correct statement of facts before rushing the Engineer's report into the public press. If you thought I would permit the Engineer to "slam" the firemen and not stop in to defend them, you were much mistaken. You sought the publicity so don't attempt to throw the onus upon me as an excuse for your "star" production.

The reports on the Palace fire referred to the shortage of water. Mr. Ryan's report attempts to throw the blame for conditions on the firemen's handling of the fire. The question is: Was the water supply sufficient to cope with the fire on the top flat of the building. It is not a question of did the firemen do this and the other thing? What the firemen did or did not do can be dismissed with a statement which cannot be contradicted; no matter how they acted or what appliances they used, sufficient water was not there, nor could it be got there within the first 20 minutes after the alarm; at the end of which time the two streams had to be taken to the flat below. I was present when this was done. The fire was coming down through the ceiling of the third flat at the front of the building. It was there that Mr. Dunn went to the Central Hall and phoned Mr. Ryan in the hope that the water supply could be increased, and the two streams referred to with the Campus and Cathedral yard streams added would successfully prevent the fire destroying the third flat and getting into the library; with the addition of the fifth stream the latter was accomplished, but by a very close shave.

You are incorrect as to the pressure at the different hydrants. The Garrison Hill, Campus and Cathedral Yard are practically alike. But why should it be necessary for the firemen to stop a moment to consider whether or not one hydrant could give a few pounds of pressure more than another? The presence of a hydrant is an invitation to "couple on," and should be a guarantee that a stream from it is capable of reaching any fire in its immediate neighbourhood. You are also misleading as to the distances of hydrants, the measurements given by you are from the hydrants to the nearest outside points of the Palace. Why didn't you give the measurement of the length of hose required to go in the building up to the seat of the fire on the top flat? The fire at that point could be fought no other way and the length of hose required was six lengths of 50 feet or 300 feet from each of the hydrants. They would all take the same with odds in favour of the Garrison Hill connection, because it was a straight run into the Palace front door and up through the main hallways. The same might be said of the Barrack's Yard stream, excepting it took 100 feet additional hose. Either one of these streams could be brought to the point of the fire's origin in half the time it would take to bring a stream from either the Campus or the Cathedral Yard hydrant, both the latter would have to be brought by ladder or hoisted up by ropes to the top of the annex, a height of 25 feet or more before they could even be brought into the building. The stream from the Cathedral Yard hydrant was laid for 3rd story fighting. It never was played on the top flat; it could barely reach the rear eave. It was played in on the third story through the East windows and did good work. The flow of this nozzle was better than the others due to the fact that it took less hose to reach the point it was playing from, and it had less elevation. All Mr. Ryan's talk, Mr. Nairn's lengths of hose twists here and twists there, are only so much carping criticism from men inexperienced in fire talk and your own about extra fighting. I defy either of you to find a fire in any part of the world, being fought without similar hose conditions existing.

One of your criticisms by insinuations, may prove a "boomerang." You published a report of the firemen shoveling out an old wooden hydrant in the Palace Yard, that is untrue. They didn't have to, nor did they want to. The hydrant referred to was exposed, with not six inches of snow around it. But the firemen with the assistance of some of the Christian Brothers did have to shovel out the Campus hydrant, which should have been done by the City Council employees. When you suggest the possibility of using the Chemical and the Steam Engine, you further demonstrate your incompetency to express an opinion on the subject of this fire. The firemen didn't require to leave the Fire Hall to see the fire was beyond the Chemical fighting stage; and the Steam Engine couldn't produce sufficient pressure for fully 20 minutes to throw an effective stream at the top flat. In the Palace fire, as in all fires the first 15 minutes are the ones that count. The fire had been burning sometime before discovered, and within 20 minutes was down to the flat below, where a stream from the Steam Engine would be of less service than the two streams put on. When you speak of putting a stream of water from the Campus hydrant over the College, you withhold the fact, that the test you refer to was at a time when the hydrant was under a summer pressure of over 85 lbs., not a frosty winter night pressure of 50 lbs. An 85 lb. hydrant pressure through one length of hose (50 feet) with a seven-eighths nozzle, will give a stream of over 70 feet while a 50 lb. pressure would give only about 45 feet. Neither of the streams used at the Palace, operated outside the building could more than reach the eave.

In Mr. Ryan's report he stated the friction loss on 300 feet of hose, is 22 lbs. In your letter you state "The loss per 100 feet on single line of hose is 8.3 lbs." In other words the loss on 300 feet is 24.9 lbs. I did not dispute Mr. Ryan's calculations, but I estimated the elevation pressure loss at 23 1/2 lbs. on 53 feet 6-inches elevation which I added to Mr. Ryan's 22 lbs., leaving a remaining pressure at the nozzle of 4 1/2 lbs. From the following telegraph message you will observe that my elevation loss 23 1/2 was practically confirmed, while both yourself and Mr. Ryan are entirely at sea in your friction less estimates. Evidently your authorities do not refer to rubber-lined hose. These messages passed between Mr. Fred Shepperd, B.Sc., M.E. and myself. Mr. Shepperd is the Technical Editor of a standard magazine "Fire and Water Engineering, New York."

Please write quickly answer to following. What would be the running pressure at nozzle of stream taken from a hydrant of fifty pounds pressure. No pump used. Length of hose three hundred feet brought inside and up to fourth flat of building. Nozzle at elevation of fifty three feet, six above hydrant level. Size of nozzle seven-eighths hose two and a half inch rubber lined. Please give also loss of pressure by friction and loss by elevation separately.

(Sgd.) INSPECTOR GENERAL.

March 15th, 1921.
Inspector General Constabulary.
Assuming hose to be new, nozzle pressure equals eighteen point six pounds. Loss of pressure due to elevation (back pressure) equals twenty three pounds. Loss of pressure due to frictions equals eight point four pounds.

(Sgd.) FRED SHEPPERD.

March 15th, 1921.
Mr. Fred Shepperd,
Technical Editor, Fire & Water Engineering.
Thanks for reply. Please inform me what would be the difference in loss if hose between three and six years old, also what would be the losses if nozzle one inch instead of seven-eighths. Would extremely frosty weather further increase friction loss. What length of streams would eight-teen point six give with seven-eighths and one inch nozzles.

(Sgd.) INSPECTOR GENERAL.

March 16th, 1921.
Inspector General Constabulary,
Personal.

Hose 2 to 6 years old may have friction 15 to 30 per cent. greater than new hose. If one inch nozzle used friction loss equals 10 point 8 pounds. Cold weather not likely to increase friction loss appreciably. Effective reach with one inch nozzle at 18 point 6 pounds about 19 feet with seven eighth inch nozzle twenty feet.

(Sgd.) FRED SHEPPERD.

With pressure at the hydrant at 50 lbs. add a loss of 23 pounds for 53 1/2 feet elevation, and 8.4 pound loss for friction, the stream from a seven-eighth nozzle would reach 20 feet; but there is a further friction loss of at least 1.6 lbs. 20 per cent. for hose between 3 and 6 years old, and an additional elevation loss of 2 lbs. due to omitted elevation of 4 feet from the floor to the point of the nozzle, which leaves according to Mr. Shepperd, a stream that would reach about 18 ft. barely power enough to reach across an ordinary room. You say the loss on Siamese lines is 2.3 lbs. per 100 feet, and that by doubling the first hose line to a Siamese connection, the friction would be cut down and we could have attained necessary nozzle pressure on the top flat. Mr. Shepperd says the friction loss so saved is 3.2 pounds on the whole line, or about 2 1/2 feet longer stream. Wouldn't two streams 15 feet long be infinitely better than one 21 ft., 6 inch long, and give almost twice as much water.

March 16th, 1921.
Fred Shepperd, Esq., B.Sc.,
Technical Editor, Fire & Water Engineering.

Referring again to my message of March 12th. If two streams taken from same hydrant of fifty pounds pressure run side by side for two hundred and fifty feet then Siamese connection made to fifty feet single line reaching to elevation mentioned in former message, would pressure and flow be more than single line. If any difference what would be the elevation loss and friction loss of this lay out.

(Sgd.) INSPECTOR GENERAL.

March 19th, 1921.
Inspector General Constabulary.

Loss of nozzle pressure due to elevation of nozzle remains constant for any particular elevation irrespective of number of lines feeding it or diameter of hose. Gain nozzle pressure through using two two hundred and fifty foot lines into one 50 foot line all two and one half inch hose is "Three times as good" for seven-eighths inch nozzle, or nozzle pressure is twenty one point eight pounds. For one inch tip gain is four point five pounds or nozzle pressure equal twenty point seven pounds.

(Sgd.) FRED SHEPPERD.

In reply to my question "If the main referred to could not carry two streams without serious reduction in pressure, why has the Council placed 6 hydrants within a radius of 400 feet all taken from it," you reply, "The hydrants in the Campus and Cathedral Yard were put there to protect that very important and valuable group of buildings." I know that, and rightly so, in fact there should be more hydrants there. But why answer my question in this way? What contemptible suggestion are you trying to make. What "red herring" are you trying to draw across the track? Why beg the question? Tell the public straight. If as Mr. Ryan says, a second stream cannot be taken from the same 6 inch main without one materially affecting the other, why have 6 or 4 or even 2 hydrants within 100 or 200 feet of one another? You have asked the Minister of Justice, for the appointment of a Commission, to enquire into the manner in which this fire was handled by the firemen. Why enquire into the actions of the firemen only? Why not enquire into the insufficiency of the water supply? Why not enquire into the refusal of the Engineer to accede to our request? which was contrary to the section of the Fire Department Act, which makes it incumbent upon him to obey our orders or be subject to fine. If you will ask for an enquiry on all three points, then I will join

Don't you think, Mr. Mayor, it is time you climbed down off your high horse? That you considered what is required is combined effort to give public protection? Every one, except yourself and some of your associates and officials, is satisfied that the Firemen did the best possible under the existing conditions. You and your Engineer in particular are not, because you hate like everything to have to realize your water supply is not what you thought it was, and can't accomplish what you claim.

Now that this has been demonstrated beyond doubt, I want to make a suggestion. Let your Water Department and the Fire Department get together; procure the advice of the Government Engineer, Mr. Hall; and avail of the valuable experience of Mr. Frank Bradshaw, and devise a remedy for the situation; and further, consider such questions as the removal of hydrants from inadequate mains, the proper supervision of the hydrants, a proper system of notification by the Water Department to the Fire Department of hydrant additions and removals, the opening up of streets dangerous to fire apparatus, and many other kindred subjects. Such a Conference Mr. Mayor, will do more to protect the citizens property and reduce insurance, than miles of any argument you can use to persuade Insurance Companies, that present conditions are adequate protection, and justify reduction. Get away from this newspaper discussion, and think my suggestion over.

Yours very truly,

Inspector General Constabulary.

True to name—it's tasteless. That's one reason why people stick to Brick's. Before Brick's Tasteless Extract of Cod Liver was perfected, people took cod liver oil under strong protest. Lemon juice, coffee, vinegar, wine—all were powerless to eliminate that nauseating oily taste. But now even the children do not know they are taking cod liver oil when they are given a dose of BRICK'S TASTELESS EXTRACT OF COD LIVER.

Right now, with the streets piled high with snow and deep slush under foot, people need Brick's Extract of Cod Liver to build up the system and strengthen the natural powers of resistance against attacks of Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Influenza, Pneumonia, etc.

Tell your friends and customers that if they want to know the luxury of real, robust health this spring, they should take Brick's Extract of Cod Liver regularly. Brick's Tasteless Extract of Cod Liver is sold by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, Theatre Hill, Water St. & Duckworth St. JAS. WISEMAN, Top Carter's Hill. Price $1.00 bot.; postage 20c. extra.

IN THE SUPREME COURT.

The King vs. Nolan for Murder.

CONSTABLE DEVINE'S EVIDENCE.

After recess yesterday the cross examination of Constable Devine was continued by Higgins, B.A. Witness said "I called on what was practically the third occasion to tell Nolan to keep his daughter off the road as she was practically naked. Someone said that Mary had stolen something out of a garden. I called at Nolan's to look for stolen property." Warren, K.C. here objected to attacks on the character of a witness. The question was allowed. Witness continued, "I was the complainant in a case against Nolan before Magistrate O'Toole." In reply to questions from the bench witness said, "The nearest Doctor to Nolan's house is Dr. Jones and his house is about a mile away. He was in Avondale in January last.

MARY NOLAN'S EVIDENCE.

Warren, K.C. next called Mary Nolan. Her examination occupied over an hour and a half. Her statement is here reproduced in part. "I am 18 years old. The accused is my father. My mother has been dead for six years. I had a sister called Belle. She was nine years old when she died. I was home last July and August, and I remember my father saying that Belle stole $10."

Threw Cold Water on Her.

"He beat her with a rope and then he hung her up to the backhouse twice. She had her clothes on the first time and none the second time. He hung her up by the waist with a rope which he put around a nail in a beam and by means of which he hoisted her up. He then put a washing tub under her and threw water down over her. He beat her after that. I remember Belle breaking a cup in the winter. It was before Christmas Day. I was home then. She broke the cup and when father came out of the woods Greg showed it to him. Father drove her to the backhouse and then out of doors. She ran away to Mrs. Prendergast's. He then went looking for her. She wasn't found and he gave her up. At 9 p.m. Prendergast came over with her. Belle then had on a pair of boots given her by Mrs. Prendergast. She wore the same dress and pinafore that she had on when she was driven out. Father took the boots off her and threw them in the fire."

Refined Cruelty.

"He then took a bucket of water and threw it over her. Then he and Greg took her to the brook. She came back from the brook. Her clothes were wet and she had a rope around her. Father beat her then with the rope she had on her. Then I took her upstairs. Father brought up a bucket of water from the brook and threw it over her. I put her to bed but father threw her out of bed. At the time she had nothing on her. She took the wet dress off at daylight on the following morning. The dress was on her wet all the night. When father took Belle to the brook the weather was frosty and it was also cold the next morning.

"Beat Her And Put Her Out."

"I remember father accusing Belle of stealing 50 cents. It was the day she was frostbitten. Father went in the woods that day. Belle did not wear anything on her feet about the house. The morning father accused her of taking 50 cents, he blamed me first and then he accused Belle. Belle said no, not to blame her. He said whoever took it, it would have to be put back by the time he came home. He went to the woods and came back at 4 p.m. He came in and ate his dinner. He said the money would have to be put back by the time he came in from washing the horse's hoof. I gave him water and he went out to wash the horse's hoof. He soon after sang out to Belle and got no answer. He sang out to me and I went in and Belle wasn't there. He sent Greg to the garden and he came back and said she was not there. Then he asked Joe Mason did he see Belle. Joe said he saw Belle going along by Mrs. Prendergast's. Then Greg, Joe and father went after her. I stopped at the door. I later went to the brook. They were a long time gone. I was in the house when they came back, that is, Belle, father and Gregory. Belle wasn't able to walk but she wasn't crying. Father put her in against the fire and he told her to get the money. She said she wasn't able. She had nothing on her feet when she came back and she had no underclothing on. Father beat her badly with a rope. Afterwards Belle sat on a chair for a few minutes. She had been beaten so badly that she wasn't able to stand up. I gave her her tea. After tea he beat her again after taking her clothes off, this time with a stripping, a piece of branch stripped off the boughs. He let her alone after that. Later he drove her out of doors without any clothes on. She was out only five minutes. When he let her in father said that he had told Mike Mason that she had stolen $5 from him. I put her dress on her after she came in. I know the Mollie's. They were over one Thursday night in the winter and saw Belle. Father said he had given Belle an odious beating that night. It was a stormy night and snowing. I brought her up to bed. We all sleep in the same bed. Our room is over the kitchen. Belle had the same clothes on. The dress was wet. Father wet it by throwing water over it. She had the wet dress on when I brought her up but I put a dry shirt of Greg's on her. Father drove her out of bed and taking off the shirt, put on the wet dress. Father beat her again with the stripping. She had no clothes on when he beat her. She went to bed and he drove her out again and she wasn't in bed all the night. He drove her away from the chimney, out onto the floor to a dark room with no windows in it. I was there. He told her to get out there. She couldn't stand at the time. Father told her to stand up or he'd get out and kill her. She said she wasn't able. She was there till daylight. Father was in bed. At daylight father told her to go down and sweep out the house. She went down but she wasn't able to work. She sat down on the floor. He called her upstairs and put her to bed. I went up to her and brought her down. It was a mild night. There was no fire in the house. Her dress was frozen. It was on her. Her feet were only red in the morning. Father came back early in the afternoon. There were blisters on her feet then. Father looked at her feet, washed them and put on potato poultices. He then sent for Mrs. Prendergast. I was there when Mrs. Prendergast came over. It was two days after that he sent for Mrs. Prendergast. Mrs. Prendergast said after looking at the feet that there should be a bread poultice on it. She said she would put it on. She got the poultice from her own house. The feet were then black with the bottoms of them. She did this every morning at 10 o'clock. She came twice a day. I saw the feet. Belle never walked after she was frostbitten. She slept in a bed made of boards in the kitchen. Greg and I used to bring her up and put her to bed in the night. She died on another bed against the front window. The soles of her feet got black and fell off and one big toe also fell off. Mrs. Prendergast was putting poultices to the feet for a week. On Saturday Belle asked Mrs. Prendergast not to dress her feet any more. She was going to die, she said. She got worse that day. On Sunday father was there while she was dying. Several people came in that day. Father was there then. Belle died at 7.30 a.m. Monday. Several people were there when she died. I know Dr. Jones. He lives in Avondale. There was no doctor in the house from the time Belle's feet were frostbitten until the time she died nor was there any priest there either. She was buried at 1 p.m. Tuesday."

Higgins, B.A., cross examined and elicited the following information:—

"Nolan was driving. Belle ahead when I saw them. She only fell once when I saw her."

GREGORY NOLAN'S EVIDENCE.

Gregory Nolan was next called. He said in part, "I am 11 years old. I am now at Mount Cashel. I had a sister Belle. She is dead now. I remember the last day Belle was out of doors. Father missed 50 cents and asked Belle if she had it. She said yes. He told her to get it before he came in or he'd kill her. He called her when he came back and she was gone." Later, after his father had gone after Belle witness said he saw him kick her over the scrape. In reply to further questioning he said, "Belle had no boots and stockings on when she got home. Belle said that she had hidden the money in father's Sunday boot. After she said she lost it on the road. I went upstairs when father was beating Belle because I was afraid. When I came down again Belle was getting away from the table. Belle was outside for about 20 minutes." The remainder of witness' evidence was practically a confirmation of Mary Nolan's statement.

At 6 p.m. adjournment was taken until 10 a.m. to-day.

MORNING SESSION.

Mary and I brought Belle up and down stairs when she was sick, as she wasn't able to walk, and father wouldn't bring her. When he came out of the woods father told Belle he would kill her if the money wasn't put back. Belle said she did not have the money in the morning, but later she said she took it. I heard Mrs. Prendergast and Mrs. Mason speak to father concerning a doctor. Father said he could do as much himself. I didn't know Belle was going to die until she told me herself on Saturday. Father sent me to tell Mrs. Prendergast she was bad. Mother Mason came in and asked father why he didn't get the priest. He said she was too young and didn't have anything to tell the priest. Neither a priest nor a doctor was at the house from the time Belle got sick until she died. After father had been arrested he told me that if any policeman came around I must not tell on him. I remember father accusing Belle of stealing $10.00 but I don't think she took it as she couldn't unlock his grip. Father beat her and threw water over her.

It was a cold day and there was some snow on the ground. When I got to Nolan's Belle and her father had gone into the house. I went to the wake after Belle had died."

"Nolan was driving. Belle ahead when I saw them. She only fell once when I saw her."

Lit the Fire With Clothes.

Mary used to burn up clothes belonging to me and father. She had nothing else to light the fire with. Later, witness said, "We did not talk anything about this case until after father was arrested. I never talked about it with my sister. After Belle got sick father made a bed near the stove for her and helped Mrs. Prendergast at her feet. Belle told father she took a $10.00 bill. When father went away she used to have money. She never had any ten dollar bills though, only five cents at a time. Warren, K.C., re-examined. In reply to his questions, witness said: Belle would say she took the money when father would argue with her."

Broke Ice in Brook.

He usually threw the water in her face. Witness then corroborated a great deal of Mary Nolan's evidence. In connection with the brook incident. In reply to Counsel he said: There was a thin coating of ice on the brook. Father broke it and threw some buckets of water over Belle. In reply to further questioning witness said: Father beat Belle with a stripping in the back luff. He once tied her hands behind her and left her in the kitchen. That was last summer. In reply to the questions of Higgins, B.A., cross-examining, witness said: I was never hungry but Belle used to say she was hungry. We all got the same to eat.

Soles of Feet Dropped Off.

Mrs. Prendergast was the next witness to be called for the Crown and when examined by Warren, K.C., she said she was a neighbour of the prisoners. She was sent for on the Tuesday after twelve day to attend to Belle. She had a conversation with Nolan with regard to Belle's feet. She offered to do her best for the child. The top of Belle's big toe came off in one of the bandages. Witness saw a sore on Belle's skin but did not know what caused it. When she couldn't go to dress the foot Nolan used to send for her. Witness said that the soles of the child's feet dropped off although she did not seem to suffer much pain.

Belle had no boots and she didn't have much clothes. Father beat Mary a couple of times. I was afraid of him, although he didn't beat me much. He threw me out of the house once last winter. He beat Belle twice last summer. He couldn't beat her often as she used to run away.

On Saturday Belle was dying and when witness came over she asked her not to dress her feet and also asked witness to take her in her arms. On Sunday when witness went over Belle said she was dying. Witness said she spoke about a doctor to Nolan. He said "he would do as well himself as the doctor." In connection with the time Belle ran to her house witness said "The child came in and warmed herself."

Broke a Cup And Ran Away.

"She wouldn't tell no one why she ran away. She had no boots on so I got her a pair. I also put a shawl around her and took her home. She told me she broke a cup. I never saw the boots again. The child seemed delicate and thin to me."

Higgins, B.A., cross examined. Witness said that Nolan's house was messed up as he had no woman to look after him. Nolan could get no good out of Mary. Witness thought Nolan to be a very good man and a very good neighbour. He had a good reputation at Avondale. When Nolan was away he used to send money to the neighbours for the children. Belle was a kind of a half-wild child, said witness. She also said she often saw Belle well dressed. Nolan was as kind as any father could be when witness was there.

"I Like My Father."

When Belle was dying Mike Murray asked her if she liked her father. She replied "Yes, I like my father." Witness said the children were untruthful and saucy. Warren, K.C., cross examined. If Belle did anything in the house she'd run away for fear her father would beat her, said witness. Mary Nolan had often lied to her, she said.

Counsel—"Do you think Mary Nolan's mind is alright?"

Witness—"I shouldn't think it is." Higgins, B.A., re-cross examined. Mr. Justice Johnson—"When did you first speak to Nolan about a doctor?" Witness—"After three or four poultices, that is, about four days before Belle died."

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. S. Tait was next called. Examined by Warren, K.C., he said he was a medical practitioner practising in St. John's. He went to Avondale on Jan. 25th to examine the body of Belle Nolan. The examination of the body was conducted in the Avondale Court House, where it was placed after it had been examined. The corpse was frozen. Witness made no intestinal examination. He examined the feet which were in a sloughing condition and the flesh was hanging off. One big toe was just hanging and the top of the other was off. A purifying sore about 2 inches long was on one shin. There were no other marks on the body. The general appearance of the body was that of a poorly nourished child, all skin and bone. A second examination was held in the morgue at St. John's. Dr. Fallon assisting. The internal organs were found in normal condition. Witness said Belle died from exhaustion due to toxemia due to the condition of the feet, exposure and neglect. The effect of Nolan's treatment would cause a shock to the body and would lessen the resistance. The effect of the poultices was exactly contrary to what should have been done. If a doctor had been called in early and the feet had received proper treatment the girl would have had a good chance for life, said witness.

No Marks of Violence.

Higgins, B.A., cross examined. Many questions of a technical nature were asked and answered. Witness said that in some cases it is necessary to know the history of the case to determine the cause of death.

Counsel—"Did you find any marks of violence on the body?"

Witness—"None at all."

In reply to further questioning witness said he came to the decision concerning the cause of death only through his examination of the body.

Marks of beating that did not break the skin would not be found in an examination conducted after several weeks.

Re-examined by Warren, K.C., witness said he knew nothing of the case when he conducted examination. Witness described signs of death by meningitis.

To Mr. Justice Johnson—neglect I spoke of was that of putting in a doctor." The child's life may have been saved if a doctor had been called.

Adjournment was taken at 12.30 till 2.30 p.m.

Would Lie Awake For Hours Unable To Sleep—Pats, Sleeps And Feels Just Fine Since Taking Tanlac.

My answer was that I didn't know about God, but if I were keeping score I should not reckon only on kind of sin and ignore all kinds of goodness but one. Furthermore I am strongly inclined to think that the Deity would feel the same.

Wouldn't This Be Fair?

Like my "Letter-Friend," and like every woman, I hate infidelity. But I also hate the way people exaggerate its relationship to the rest of life. If there were any way of measuring sins I think it would be by the amount of unhappiness caused by them, and I am not sure that infidelity would weigh any more heavily in such scales than through-going selfishness, day in and day out irritability, and several others of that nature.

At this point I stopped to ask myself what I would mind worst in my family. And this was, my honest answer. I might live with a man who had been unfaithful under provocation, but who had turned from it and who really cared most for me and needed me. I would not live with a man who was cross and irritable all the time (unless his irritability was on account of ill-health).

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Two things came suddenly together in my mind the other day.

One was something I had read in a book.

The heroine of the book is a wife who is as good wife as far as faithfulness goes but not in any other way. She is cold-hearted, a self-satisfied, sure of her own superiority.

Her hero is her husband who, after a sedulous provocation, falls to the ground as far as faithfulness is concerned, but is good in every other way—he is loyal, he is kind, he is kind, he is a good father.

Someone says to the heroine at a time when she is about to cast her husband from her after discovering his unfaithfulness:

A Striking Thought.

"Look at it this way. He has kept his marriage vows except one. He has broken all yours except one." That is quite a striking thought, isn't it?

The other thing that met this in my mind was a passage from a letter from a "Letter-Friend":

"I know a man whose wife died of consumption. Unbeknown to her he had an affinity. But he made his wife happy. He would ask the forist to personally select and send flowers for her. He hired a housekeeper, babbled and petted her, smoothed her poor relations and submitted to her scolding. She never left her bed. He was false."

He Married the Other Woman.

After her death he married the other woman, but while I hate infidelity I can see him in my mind now with his box of long stemmed roses for his sick wife. I think God looks on such sinners; there is something so much good in them. What do you think?"

Old Comrades M. G. B.

A meeting of the ex-members and supporters of the Methodist Guards Brigade was held last evening in the Centenary Hall, for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of forming an Old Comrades Association. Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather the hall was filled to its utmost. Mr. Alex. Rooney was elected as Chairman of the meeting. The motion was then put to the gathering and after a lengthy discussion it was proposed and seconded by acclamation that an Old Comrades Association would be formed. The election of officers for the year then took place and resulted as follows:—

President—H. J. Russell.
Vice President—L. White.
Secretary—A. Goobie.
Treasurer—H. James.
Constitution and Bye Laws Committee—C. Peet, C. Quirk, E. Snelgrove, H. Wyatt, H. Maddick.
Finance Committee—C. Scott, J. Pike, A. Goobie, H. Bartlett, Wm. Taylor, B. Taylor.

From the beginning the old spirit of enthusiasm reigned supreme, and all are determined that this Association shall uphold the traditions of the Old Methodist Guards Brigade, and that the Blue and White will be well represented in the Sporting Arena the coming season.

The meeting closed with the playing of the National Anthem by the Band.

Feldians Defeat St. Bon's.

IN CHARITY HOCKEY GAME.

The Feldians defeated the ex-pupils of St. Bon's, comprising the pick of old St. Bon's boys, in an excellent game of hockey last night by a score of 6 goals to 4. The ice was rather soft towards the end of the game but on the whole play was quite good and very fast at times. The Feldians undoubtedly had the best of the game, particularly in the third period. Rendell got in some excellent work during the game, having some very good tries at goal. Tall also played a good game and the Feldian forward line got in some very good work. For the losers Cahill did very well, as did also Tobin and Canning. Four goals were scored in the first period, each side obtaining two. Cahill and Murphy did the needful for St. Bon's whilst Winter and Pavn scored for the Feldians.

Spencer Club.

The energetic and business-like ladies of the Spencer Club—an organization brought into existence on the 27th February, 1919, comprised principally of ex-pupils of Bishop Spencer College—have been hiding their light under a bushel, so to speak, ever since its inception. The Club was started in order to assist in raising funds to provide some necessary furnishings for the new College building—formerly the old British Hall. Members only pay one dollar a year subscription. The Club meets fortnightly in the Bishop Spencer College for work, and a social hour combined. The Spencer Club ladies have held several sales of work, dances, etc., and to date have raised over seventeen hundred dollars. They have completely furnished the Principal's room, formerly occupied by Mrs. Stirling Fraser, and now by the new popular and capable Miss Richards who is maintaining the high educational standard of this famous College for girls. Tables, door mats, oak umbrella stands were purchased. The Club also paid for the installation of electric light in the class rooms and basement and they also completely furnished the Staff room or Rest room for the lady teachers assisting. In addition the Spencer Club has donated one hundred dollars towards purchasing supplies and fittings for the Science Room of Bishop Feild College, and purchased an Oil Cooker and crockeryware for use in the Spencer College Building. These ladies, under the presidency of Mrs. Stirling Fraser, are now energetically working to purchase a good supply of chairs for the Assembly Hall and have some eight hundred dollars in the bank towards the cost. This just shows what the energy and ability of former Spencer girls can do with their kind friends banded in "Unity" with a common objective of helping their old "Alma Mater". We congratulate Mrs. Stirling Fraser, President of the Club and her loyal Club members who have accomplished so much in so short a time and we wish them continued success in the noble cause of helping to educate the youth. Any ex-pupils of Spencer College who would like to join and assist will be heartily welcomed by the President.—Q.

A Wonder Palace in the Wilds.

REMARKABLE STORY OF THE WHITE KING OF THE NEGRO.

Few explorers have penetrated into the wild, untroubled reas on the earth's surface and returned with a stranger story than Lieutenant Earl Church and Dr. Hamilton Rice. They have recently mapped out some 2,000 miles of the Amazon and the Negro rivers.

For seven months they threaded their way through the vast jungle—which extends for thousands of miles on either side of the Amazon—an impenetrable waste of tree and creepers, overhung with garlands of moss, vivid in parts with myriads of butterflies, heavy with the dank odour of rotting vegetation, mingled with the perfume of orchids, and everywhere silent as the grave. The slightest sound made by man becomes as the boom of a big gun.

The two explorers travelled through this mysterious region in the only possible way—by launch or canoe. High above them on each side rose the fringes of the jungle, walling them in as effectually as if the river had been walled with insurmountable cliffs.

Death lurked expectantly for them at innumerable places. Winged insects were a constant source of danger, and when they landed on the bank at night they had to take special precautions against ants, which are an inch in length, travel in armies of millions, and eat not only boots and clothing, but flesh from human bones! Bats also were a sore plague to the explorers, who to keep them off had to burn a light all night. Given the least opportunity, these pests will actually bite off a man's nose, toes, or fingers!

In such surroundings as these the explorers made a remarkable discovery—the palace of a millionaire. Though situated 700 miles from the last outpost of civilization, this lordly pleasure-house is packed with treasures from the art shops of Europe and choice examples of modern workmanship. Mingled with spoil from the Old World—pictures and statuary from Italy, cabinets from Nuremberg, armor from Spain, French and Flemish tapestries, furniture from the old castles of Europe—are innumerable modern objects, including a grand piano from Paris!

The occupier of this magnificent palace in the wilds—Senhor Fontes, a Portuguese—is known in the region as the King of the Negro, and rules in paternal fashion about fifty Indians and half-breeds, though he could exercise over them the power of life and death. He is an autocrat, against whose decision there is no appeal.

His wife is an Indian, and is a remarkably clever craftswoman. Liking a Norfolk jacket worn by one of the explorers, she deftly measured it with her arms, and in a few days she made a similar jacket for one of her sons, whom it fitted to perfection.

One of them had clung desperately all the way to his violin, but had been so depressed by the savagery and ruthlessness of the jungle that he had not once taken it from his case. Now, however, he drew it forth, and night after night played classical compositions, to the accompaniment, within, of the clever daughter of the wilds, and, without, of the jungle beasts, which gathered round the mansion and walled at the unaccustomed sounds.

STEWART'S
Home Made Bread,
 THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.
 Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.
 The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

Sturdy Simplicity
 Dunham Traps are made with extreme care and accuracy. The result is sturdy simplicity. Nothing could be more simple than the two-piece Dunham Trap; and judging from service records of those in use since 1903, Dunham sturdiness is exceptional.
 The Dunham Radiator Trap maintains a radiator at its maximum heating efficiency by permitting the passage of all air and water from the radiator and holding all steam within the radiator until it gives up its heat.
DUNHAM SPECIALTIES—Packless Radiator Valves, Radiator Traps, Drip Traps, Blast Traps, Air Line Valves, Vacuum Pump Governors, Reducing Pressure Valves, Oil Separators, Suction Strainers, Air Valves, Return Traps, Check Dampers, Damper Regulators.
