CHAPTER XVIII.

He had seen the happy light in her paasy eyes, he had seen the lovely color mount to her soft cheeks, and skeleton fingers seemed to clutch at his heart. He thought that Hastings had written his farewell to Gladys, he thought that after she had read this letter she might intercede for her lover, and he slunk out of sight, the misery of a gnawing pain eating into his very soul.

But the sound of her happy voice reached him now and again, and he wondered what Hastings had written, but he never dreamed that the young baronet was at that moment walking from the railway station to the abbey. He saw Gladys cross the lawn, a flower-basket in her hands, a huge sunbonnet over her rippling, golden tresses. He heard her sweet voice—a ring of joy in it—as she called back to Lady Marcia—she caught a glimpse of her smiling face, and he thought: "How like her beautiful mother! Oh, fate, how cruel thou art!"

So Gladys, like a stately human being, in her gleaming, white dress, passed across the shining lawn, between the flower beds, vivid with life and richness of color, and was lost to view among the trees beyond.

My lord strode quickly from his study in search of Lady Marcia. His mind was filled with forebodings that made him miserable. He found his sister in the green morning-room—one of the most beautiful apartments among the many splendid rooms of Swinford Abbey. The furniture was upholstered in various shades of green velvet. The soft, rich carpet, woven of a dozen delicate colors, was a wondrous example of aesthetic art. It was a mysterious combination of hues, and green predominated. Even the walls were tinted with the palest of green, and penciled with gold. Everything that the room contained was in keeping—was rhythmical. It was a beautiful example of modern art, and on this gloriously sunny morning it looked cool and refreshing beyond description. The earl strode almost to his sister's side before she knew that he was near her, the soft carpet having deadened the sound of his feet.

She looked up at him, and saw that he had something on his mind. He had scarcely spoken to her since his interview with the steward, and he had not told her one word more about Collins. Perhaps he was going to speak of him now.

"You are not looking well, Edward," she remarked. "I think that you are foolish to worry over Collins' peccadilloes. You have not told me whom else he has accused—for, of course, that was what he did not like to say before me."

"We have made an error concerning Collins," my lord said, constrainedly. "a grievous error, and, as the lawyers are responsible for it, I have requested them to send me a statement of their claims against me."

"Edward!" "It is correct, my dear. Collins has proved to me that they have some private spite against him." He became a little confused. "And I shall change my advisers forthwith. I have nothing more to say on the subject; there is something of far greater importance on my mind at present."

Lady Marcia regarded the earl in surprise. His very nature seemed to have changed.

"Hitherto I believe that we have had no secrets from each other, Edward," she observed. "Tell me what is on your mind. I may be able to help you."

Lord Howard's eyes were fixed upon the belt of firs and pines, beyond which Lady Gladys had disappeared. "It is about Gladys," he said.

"About Gladys?" Lady Marcia stared at him in astonishment.

"About Gladys," he repeated. "Where has she gone?"

"She has not left this room more than ten minutes."

"Yes; I saw her." He was silent for a little while, then continued: "I had a letter from Sir Charles Hastings a few days since. He wants to marry my daughter, Marcia. I want you to understand that this is impossible. I will not countenance such a thing. I ought to have spoken to you before—, for, having no mother, Gladys will naturally confide her most sacred secrets to you."

"I think you have interfered too late, Edward," said Lady Marcia. "I scarcely think that you have any right to interfere at all, when I am satisfied. It is perfectly ridiculous on your part. Sir Charles loves Gladys, and Gladys returns his affection with all the strength of her fond nature. I do not think that she will listen to either you or me now. You must not forget that she is a Howard! This appears to me to be ridiculous. You have spent your life abroad—away from your child—away from your house. You return, and within a few days desire—"

"Marcia!" interrupted the earl, "I am her father! What do women know of these things? You have been kind to my child; I owe you a debt that I can never repay; but for Heaven's sake, I beg of you not to fill her head with any romantic nonsense. She can never marry this Hastings."

"What have you against the young man?" Lady Marcia's face had grown as white as death. She felt that the evil spell upon the White Lady's Bower was beginning to work.

"Why should you ask me these questions—why torture me in this way?" her brother hoarsely demanded. "Does not the crime of murder rest upon his father's memory?" He shuddered, but went on, bitterly: "I will not submit to it, Marcia. I have promised Gladys to Lord Cecil Stanhope—he has loved her since childhood—and she liked him well enough, until her head was turned by the handsome face and romantic speeches of this Hastings. I have learned this much, and I do not like people with mysteries."

"You have learned that much," Lady Marcia repeated, her lips curling. "I suppose your informant was Lord Cecil? Edward, I tell you, once for all, that what you propose will never happen; Gladys detests Lord Cecil. Gladys has given her heart to Sir Charles Hastings."

For a minute he appeared to be frenzied. His eyes blazed, and he uttered wild threats. He accused Lady Marcia of being his ruin, and forbade her to interfere in his affairs again, on pain of his lasting displeasure.

"I have my jointure," she reminded him, "and can leave the abbey as soon as you please."

Then he dropped upon his knees, and buried his face in her lap; he sobbed like a child.

"Oh, Marcia—my sister—you do not understand—and I cannot tell you yet; I dare not tell you. Unless Gladys accepts Lord Stanhope, I am ruined—I am disgraced, irrevocably. Some day I will explain, if I ever have sufficient courage. You must not oppose me now; you must see as I see. You must soften the blow when it falls upon my unhappy child. I wrote to Hastings that he must give up all pretension to my daughter's hand. I appealed to him as a gentleman—I commanded him by my right as Gladys' father! He has not answered this letter, but he has written to Gladys. I hoped that he would renounce her—I hoped that it would soon be all over. Tell me what he wrote to her—tell me where she is now!"

Lady Marcia listened, and feared that her brother was losing his senses. Nothing but madness could make him speak and act like this.

"Forgive me, dear," she said, soothingly. "You are not yourself to-day; you know not what you say. Rest assured that all will come right, and if Gladys is to marry Lord Cecil—"

"Where is she now?" he demanded. "Marcia, you have not answered my questions—you have not told me what Hastings has written to her."

"There is nothing to hide. Sir Charles is on his way to see you, and Gladys has gone to meet him."

He started up as though he would rush out of the room, then he said:

"Why did you let her go? But he will be here soon, and I will deal with him. He is a dishonorable coward to come in this way—after my letter. Oh, Heaven! why did I ever come home again! Why did I not die in India! Those who have all that makes life worth living are taken away, while I, to whom death and oblivion would be a delicious release, am here to suffer!"

He bowed his head upon his hands and groaned, while Lady Marcia bent over him, her heart trampling with wonderment and fear.

A CHIC AND CHARMING DESIGN.

3801-3793—Here is a very popular variation of the jumper dress—and a pretty design to wear with it. As portrayed, wool jersey embroidered in moss was used. The guimpes is of pongee with self frills and hemstitching for trimming. In duvetyon or crepe a trimming of grosgrain ribbon would be pleasing.

The guimpe 3801 is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Dress 3793 is cut in 8 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. The width at the foot is about 2 yards.

This style is good for slender as well as for mature figures. The dress front is cut with fullness beneath the yoke extension of the back. To make up this style for a 38 inch size, requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for the guimpe, and 3 1/2 yards for the Dress, of 40 inch material.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A PLEASING DINNER DRESS.

3798-3799—Softness and simplicity stamps this model as youthful and becoming. Crepe de chine trimmed with a picot edge and tiny roses and leaves of chiffon would make it very attractive. The roses could be in a color contrasting to that of the gown. With long sleeves one could have this in satin, tulle or velvet, with trimming of embroidery or jet.

The Waist Pattern 3796 is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt 3798 in 6 Sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, and 34 inches waist measure. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 2 yards. To make the dress for a medium size as illustrated in the large view will require 7 1/2 yards of 27 inch material.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A DAINTY FROCK.

4025. One of the season's pretty models is here portrayed. Convenient pockets are placed under the tab extensions of the waist, which has long lines and girde extensions which close over the back. White linen with frills and bows of organdy would be pleasing. Pongee is a natural shade with plippings of green crepe would be attractive.

The Pattern is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 4 1/2 yards of 40 inch material. The width at the foot is about 2 1/2 yards. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

A NEAT AND SERVICEABLE APRON.

4030. Percale with facings of linen is here depicted. Black sateen with cretonne would be attractive, as would also crepe with trimming of a contrasting color or with rack for a finish.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 36-40; Large, 40-44; Extra Large, 44-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

A BECOMING DRESS FOR WORK OR PORCH WEAR.

3348. Neatness and utility are expressed in this model. The closing is at the centre front, the lines are good, and comfortable, and the style has pleasing features. One could have this in checked gingham, with vest, collar, belt and cuffs of white repp or pique. Other wash fabrics are equally desirable. For warmth, flannel and gabardine are recommended.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A GOOD APRON.

Pattern 3324 made the comfortable model. It is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 32-34; Medium, 36-38; Large, 40-42; Extra Large, 44-46 inches bust measure.

Figured percale in white and black is here illustrated. One could have gingham, seersucker, lawn, alpaca, drill, or sateen. A Medium size will require 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A material very popular in Paris and which is promised a vogue over here is the sateen cloth.

One's monogram or initial may be elaborately embroidered on the left side of one's blouse.

Manufacturers' Opinion.
DECLARE PROHIBITION HELPS BUSINESS.

(From The American Issue.)

The Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore, Md., recently asked about 500 manufacturers and other business men and university officials their views on the value of Prohibition. The replies received have been published by the Manufacturers' Record in an eighty-four page pamphlet entitled, "The Prohibition Question Viewed From the Economic and Moral Standpoint." Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, under date of May 17, 1922, has issued a summary of the replies from the manufacturers and big business men.

Mr. Edmonds says that of the replies received 98.5 per cent favor Prohibition in one form or another and not a single advocate of the saloon is found in the list. About 85 per cent are overwhelmingly in favor of the present laws and their rigid enforcement, while a few though favoring Prohibition in general either prefer some modification of the laws because they think present laws can not be enforced, or else they want the use of wine and beer. Excerpts from some of the letters of manufacturers follow.

Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation writes:

"Results have fully justified the Prohibition legislation and he adds, 'I endorse the admirable expressions of President Harding on this question.'"

President Harding's expression as noted is as follows:

"In every community men and women have had an opportunity now to know what Prohibition means. They know that debts are more promptly paid, that men take home the wages that once were wasted in saloons; that families are better clothed and fed, and more money finds its way into the savings banks. The liquor traffic was destructive of much that was most precious in American life. In the face of so much evidence on that point who conscientious man would want to let his own selfish desires influence him to vote to bring it back? In another generation I believe that liquor will have disappeared not merely from our politics, but from our memories."

Mr. J. E. Edgerton, President of the Lebanon Woolen Mills, Lebanon, Tenn., who is also President of the National Association of Manufacturers, writes:

"I am thoroughly convinced of the diabolical character of the whisky traffic as evidenced by the disregard for law and decency which has characterized its struggles for life. In the smaller cities and towns and in the country districts thousands of homes have been built which would not have been built, and millions of women and children have been provided with food and clothes who would have suffered for these necessities if there were no Eighteenth Amendment. To me it is unthinkable that a good American should contemplate or wish for the repeal or modification of any of the laws intended to curb this cursed business."

Evolution.

HOW PRIMATES ACQUIRED MANHOOD.

(By Ransome Sutton.) Hebrew writers have told us that on the banks of the Euphrates lay a miraculous garden wherein home sapiens sprang god-like out of the ground; that the first human pair, having been created perfect and in the image of their Maker, multiplied and spread until the flood came and drowned all but one family; that after the waters subsided, from three brothers three races arose; that thereafter the father of the three cursed one of them for not concealing his drunkenness, and that, because of the curse, all the Hamites turned black and became the servants of the other races.

Dr. Hillis, of Plymouth Church, in his great sermon on "Twentieth Century Man and Evolution," said: "If a man reads the story of Adam and Eve in Eden and how they lost their paradise, and reads it with his affections and conscience, it is a beautiful parable, full of meaning, full of inspiration; but if he takes it for pure historic fact, the fower is turned to thorns, while Adam and Eve and their children become Locoos and his sons caught in the deadly coils of a serpent, slowly crushing out the very lifeblood. Plainly, the men of the Middle Ages oversteered the story of Adam's fall!" Nor does Dr. Hillis in the Bible think that racial difference grew out of Noah's curse.

More modern historians have held that somewhere in Asia, the orthodox land of human origins—in Bactria, or on the slopes of the Caucasus Mountains, or among the Siwalik Hills, or elsewhere, but always in Asia—the white and yellow races arose. The black race has always been assumed to have originated in Africa.

Only a few recent writers continue to contend that, because blonds are found in northwest Europe, the white race de luxe, the Nordic, was evolved on Scandinavian shores, separate and apart from the black and yellow races—as if it were possible for protoplasm to have formed in a germless fford and to have risen, under Baltic conditions through fishes, amphibians, reptiles and mammals into a special kind of man!

"This contention would be very pleasing to Teutonic vanity," as Theodore Roosevelt remarked. "If it were true," that it cannot be half proved by the presence of half-breeds and mulattoes. For, if the races had evolved in segregated regions, they would have developed specific differences and could not inter-breed. That the races are merely varieties of one species, and not true species, is demonstrated every time a hybrid child is born. Being of one breed, the races are differentiated from the same parental stock which once occupied a common habitat.

How did the first men acquire manhood? At what stage in their development should we cease calling primates anthropoids and begin calling them men? Language cannot be a satisfactory test; for many, if not all, mammals communicate with one another through cries or calls, which all the members of the species understand. The clucks of a hen are words to her chicks. Crows have five words. A dog has seven distinct barks, whines, howls, yelps, growls, etc. B. L. Garner, who caged himself for 120 days in an African jungle, claimed to have learned chimpanzee. If languages were the test, birds and beasts would be men.

Nor does mankind depend upon the use of tools, for apes can be taught to use simple tools. It is the invention of the tools that distinguishes man. Man alone invents.

AS IS
"People just are." A man who has been studying human nature intensively for the sake of his business for the past five years, besides studying it all his life in the casual subconscious way in which we all study it, says that is the biggest lesson he has yet learned. People just are. "Ought" and "is." You may say that any given person ought to be this or that or the other, but it doesn't change the situation one iota. And the best way to adjust yourself to people and to life is to make up your mind that people just are as they are because their inherited tendencies, racial and individual, plus their environment, plus the strength of will that is the individual's, have made them what they are.

Then you will react to them as they are and not as they ought to be. Then you will understand them and sympathize with them instead of feeling resentment and antagonism. And understanding and sympathy are much pleasanter and healthier to feel than resentment and antagonism. To say nothing of the good results they bring you when you use them in your contacts with people.

He Will Die.
Here's the sort of thing I mean. I know a youngster who is not at all straightforward or dependable. If he is caught in a tight place he will lie to get out of it. But I also know that he was brought up by a stepmother who was loud voiced, irritable and fault-finding. When she caught him in any fault or mistake she made such a to-do that he was driven into trying to cover up any fault or mistake by a lie.

True, a stronger character would not have done that. But he was an over-sensitive child, nervous and fearful by nature, and he simply did not have the strength of character to withstand her.

Poor Thing!
I know a woman who is painfully jealous. Even when she has little or no reason for jealousy, she is haunted and plagued by it. Jealousy is a foolish emotion. It invites the trouble it fears. This woman ought not to let herself feel it. But there are certain things in her past life which explain the tendency, and that's all there is to it. Of course she fights it. She would be a fool if she didn't. But the fact that she feels it just is and you can't get around it by saying she ought not to.

The more you know about people the less you feel like blaming them

Pleasure builds no lasting fame. Youth, remember as you go, Luxuries are sweet to claim. But they vanish with a blow. Rest a little, as you must. Or a medal to bestow. Youth, beware the easy place. Shun the charm of leisure's lure, Meet life's hardships face to face. For the glories which endure. Soft of hand and dull of brain. He Deceiveth the People.

All the promises made by Premier Squires during his whirlwind campaign of 1919, were made but with one purpose and that with intent to deceive the electorate and delude them into voting for him and his party. This having been accomplished and return to power assured, greater political deceptions were practiced, which have been continued for a period of nearly three years. And the longer the present administration is maintained in office, the longer will their course of deception and delusion be pursued. The people can now visualise for themselves all the disastrous consequences resultant from the day of the assumption of the Squires Government to power. Squires is the Prime Minister. He was elected as the one most fitting to fill that office by popular vote. He then, by virtue of that office, is primarily responsible to the people for all the failures, all the impositions of fish regulations, all the increases made in the tariff, and further for all the poverty and destitution, which, at the moment is rife in this mis-governed country. In a particular sense it is idle to attempt any endeavour to saddle the blame upon others. The political deception of the Prime Minister is of himself and the result is to himself. He cannot hope to shift the burden to the shoulders of his colleagues, though they too may be equally responsible. But the Prime Minister is the Prime Minister. For him to permit his authority to be usurped is an admission of incapability, and such a course by any one member of his executive should not be tolerated for one moment. Neither would it have been, had the Premier been the strong man of his own boastings. Yet he was content to have authority taken out of his hands without protest or without insisting on the prerogatives of his position. Therefore he deceived the people, and by his own inaction proved that he was not the giant that he claimed to be. All the blame then for the present destitute state of numbers of the people of this country can be laid at the political threshold of Sir Richard Anderson Squires, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, Colonial Secretary, Member of the House of Assembly for St. John's West and King's Counsel, who is now enjoying the benefits of another trip abroad at the expense of an almost impoverished country, revelling in the luxuries of trans-atlantic travel on huge and palatial liners, enjoying the service of expensive hotels, with menials obsequiously handling his hat, coat and cane and bowing him to a specially arranged table in the restaurant or grill room as may tickle his fancy, while the people of the district which gave him birth are suffering the pangs of starvation and are barely keeping body and soul together on a weekly dole of flour, molasses and tea given out on an order of the Relieving Officer, in one section of the district, that official being a very near relation of the Prime Minister himself. Paying for suites de luxe on ocean liners and metropolitan hotels at the rate of one hundred dollars a day by the Prime Minister of a Colony whose Public Charity Offices are under instructions to issue orders in favor of friendly political dealers for the three items already named and in the most meagre quantities, should not commend itself to a people nearly rendered desperate by prevailing conditions of life and living, and the wonder is that the Prime Minister and the other members of his executive, who are enjoying jaunts abroad at the public expense, while hunger invades the homes of those whom he ultimately hopes to again cajole and spell-bind, do not consider the absurdity of their positions, and be content to remain at home and make an effort to ameliorate the condition of the people whom they swore to serve, instead of chasing chimeras like the Labrador Boundary and Humber Proposition. Truly the words of the Psalmist may be applied to Premier Squires and his mercenary following: "They break in pieces thy people, and afflict thine heritage; they slay the widow and the stranger and murder the fatherless. How long O Lord, how long shall the wicked triumph?" The answer is in the possession of the people, and they alone.

At Rest.

MRS. IVOR B. MORGAN.
On Sunday afternoon, 8th inst. there was tenderly laid to rest in the C. of E. Cemetery all that was mortal of the late Mrs. Ivor B. Morgan (nee Bertha B. Godden). The passing of the deceased young lady from this to the unknown world was particularly sad, for until recently she enjoyed excellent health. Her immediate friends only realized the seriousness of her illness, and consequently the news of her death came as a great surprise and shock to her many acquaintances in St. John's. Her death bed was consoled by the ministrations of the Rev. J. Brinton and Canon Jeeves and the family physician, Dr. T. M. Mitchell, who was untiring in his efforts and was at her bedside early and late. Her complications were of such a nature, however, that medical attendance was of no avail and on Friday night at 9.15 she fell to sleep. She bore her pain and suffering without murmur, trusting always on her Redeemer. For some time previous to her departure she had been in a comatose state, but on the day previous to death she suddenly, rallied, became conscious, and sang that beautiful hymn, "Lead Kindly Light" with clear voice and feeling assisted by her loving sister Emmie. A daughter of our well-known citizen William Godden, she leaves beside her husband and two dear little ones, her parents, four brothers, Thomas, Clarence, Harry of this city and Walter in Boston, and one sister Emmie also at home who was ever at her bedside, as well as a very large circle of friends to mourn their loss. Mrs. Morgan was ever of a buoyant disposition and always ready with sympathetic heart to hold out a helping hand to those in need. Her funeral was largely attended, the beautiful casket being covered with the choicest of flowers, while the services at the chapel and grave by Canon Jeeves, was most impressive. "She is not dead but asleep."

C. L. B. Cadets.

The C.L.B. Cadets had their last regular weekly parade before Camp last night. There was a fair attendance of all ranks. The Battalion went for a route march, headed by the Bugle Band and were dismissed upon returning to the Armoury. Over 80 names are now down on the camp list and many more will be added before the next week. There will also be representatives of most of the Outpost detachments at camp. Those lads going to camp will parade with their kit bags at the Armoury on Tuesday night next. On Thursday morning the Battalion will parade to Topsail, headed by Lieut.-Col. Goodridge. Several officers will also march out with the camp detachment.

BY ONLOOKER.
CONTINUATION OF 1897 MATCHES.
29th League Match, Played August 18th, 1897—St. Andrew's vs. C.E.I.
Result: Saints 3 Goals; C.E.I. 2.
This match which had been looked forward to with considerable interest by ardent supporters of both teams was played off last evening before a large and enthusiastic gathering of spectators, amongst whom was the usual proportion of the fair sex. It ended with the result as given above, in a win for the Blues by 3 goals to 2. On lining up, the Institute, having won the toss, and deciding to play down grade with ground and wind in their favor. It was observed that some alterations were necessary in the personnel of both teams, and the following are the players who took part in this memorable contest: St. Andrew's—Goal, Scapellin; Backs, Herb Rodgers and A. McKinley; half backs, S. Rodger, R. Fowles and H. Jardine; forwards, J. MacFarlane, A. Munn, P. Mars, W. Mogro, and G. Walker. Church Institute—Goal, A. Arnott; backs, F. Pilot and A. Hayward; half backs, B. Downton, W. Pearce and Tom Godden; forwards, E. Reid, R. Goodridge, E. Hutchings, F. Hill and W. Reid. It will thus be seen that the Saints were minus their famous full back (Young) player A. McKinley as "sub" and the Institute played Pearce instead of Dunfield as originally intended. The ball was set a-rolling at 6.25 and the Institute at once began to press the hitherto invincible Blues. Play ranged from end to end, the C.E.I. undoubtedly having the best of the exchanges for some twenty minutes, when, from some pretty passes on the part of Walker, Munn and Mars, the latter player getting possession and with a lovely shot beating Arnott—for the Blues. This called forth cheers from Saints supporters, and beyond question it was the "goal" of the match.

On the ball being centred and kicked off the C. E. I. boys played up with determination, and some five minutes only had elapsed when, from a corner secured and beautifully placed by Tom Godden, Scapellin was beaten for the second time this season and the game stood 1-1 each. No further scoring occurred in this half and the teams crossed over with this result. On resuming, it was thought that the Saints, with the ground in their favour, would rush matters, but as the wind had died away, there was little, if any, advantage in that quarter and the Churchmen gave them all they could do in holding their own. The game was now pretty fast, and for some 15 minutes it was anybody's match, when, at this point, a nice bit of combined play amongst the Saints' forwards brought the ball well down and Monroe, getting clear of "Pilot", in grand fashion beat Arnott, and the Blues were one up. Right from the kick off in the centre the Blue brigade carried the ball down again and within 2 minutes the same player (Monroe) had notched up No. 3 for his side—Saints 3, C. E. I. 1.

It now looked any odds on the invincible Blues, but the Institute boys surprised everybody by their grand play, having all the best of it right to the close, getting the ball in close proximity to St. Andrew's Goal, and just being unfortunate in not scoring more than once. On one occasion there was a very narrow escape, and we believe it is still a matter of dispute, and when the C. E. I. claimed a goal and were only given a corner by the referee, play continued fast, being hotly contested till the call of time and just a few minutes from which the C. E. I. managed to secure their second goal after a scrimmage along the goal line, and it was almost too dark to distinguish who gave the final kick. The whistle sounded at last with the ball in mid-field. Referee—Mr. F. Maynard. Linesmen—Messrs. F. Donnelly (C.C.C.) and Watson (C.E.I.)

Court Rules Centuries Old.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 11.—Sherman L. Whipple, Boston attorney, who was selected by the Maryland Bar Association to deliver the address at their annual meeting to-day, gave an exhaustive treatise on "The Legal Privilege of Concealing the Truth."
The underlying thought of Mr. Whipple's theme was that courts and attorneys are now working under rules and procedure which were organized several centuries ago, that they obstruct the ascertaining of the truth; that the judgments of the courts to be righteous, must have the truth disclosed; otherwise they must find their judgments either in ignorance of the truth or on error.
He further argued that these old rules which are utilized to conceal the truth, and that to conceal it, are largely the reason for the popular complaint with regard to the court and the laws. "They mystify the layman, they do not appeal to his common sense, they make trials long, bickering, argumentative disputes about things that the ordinary layman of good sense thinks are of no consequence whatever," Mr. Whipple declared.

RULES BEING MODIFIED.
He contended that what the people want and properly demand is that they do away with all this subtle application of rules and have a procedure that appeals to business men, that appeals to common sense, that is open and frank and prompt, so that the judge is not employed all the time in discussing technicalities—especially a procedure which is adapted to bring out the truth on the principal that in the trial of a case there is nothing more important than that the truth should be disclosed.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Frank J. Dooley wishes to thank Doctors Kneegan, Frasse and Wilson, Sister Olsen; Nurses Tulk, Taffe, Scott, Peasley, Pike and Shambles, the nursing staff in general and Miss Codrington, also all kind friends who visited him while at the Institution.

BASEBALL.

It is the players who make any game, and if their heart is not in it it is madness to expect spectators to get enthused. Last night's game was called for 7.15, but when the Red Lion clan was lined up they were like the famous painting "The Thin Red Line" for there were gaps in the ranks everywhere and volunteers had to be culled from the grandstand. Against such a motley collection everyone present felt that Andy Clouston and his gang would gobble up the remnants of the champions, but to the surprise of everybody the scrap crew got through with a score of 9 to 7 after a desultory exhibition.

"Just Say a Black Man Did It," Says Rescuer.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Threading the traffic during Fifth avenue's most crowded hour a woman lost her head and stepped in the path of swiftly moving automobiles. Crowds looked on in horror or turned away from what appeared to be an inevitable fatality, but one man dashed through the vehicles, seized the woman by the arm and dragged her back to safety. Dazed, she failed to thank her rescuer.
A traffic policeman was more alert. He stopped the man after he had taken a dozen steps, and asked his name. The stranger, who was a negro, turned.
"Are you going to arrest me?" he asked.
"No," said the officer. "That was a brave act. And I want to report it."
"Just say a black man did it," he said and turned away.
He was Dr. Robert R. Moton, successor of Booker T. Washington as head of the Tuskegee Institute, major in the American army during the war and one of the foremost figures of his race in America.

Daring Chemist.

Among the most wonderful and dangerous of all explosives is iodide of nitrogen. For many years chemists tried to determine its precise composition, and in doing so sometimes fairly took their lives in their hands, for the substance explodes on the slightest provocation. A mere draught of air passing over it will cause an explosion. The least shock or friction is equally disastrous.
But Dr. Sanby of Budapest was not deterred from trying to ascertain what the iodide of nitrogen contains, although he had some of his apparatus pulverized in the winking of an eye. He succeeded, however, in his attempt, and established the fact that the extraordinary explosive, which is produced in the form of a fine powder, contains hydrogen as well as iodide and nitrogen. This fact had been suspected, but never proved.
To the general reader it might seem hardly worth while to risk one's life in order to find out a thing like that; but to the man of science, devoting all his energies to investigations that the busy world never dreams of noticing, the discovery of such a fact is as thrilling as the finding of a gold nugget would be to a half-starved man.

Criticizes Tax

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In a recent editorial, you state "It will also be well to remember that, when this bill for taxing newspapers was before the House of Assembly, the Minister of Posts, Hon. W. W. Hallyard made the statement that the chief use for newspapers in the outports was for 'kissing areas.'" I beg to differ with this gentleman and will cite instances to prove the falsity of his statement, although it might possibly apply to Trinity and Fogo, the districts which I have no doubt, regret ever having elected him to represent them. I have been sending your paper to a brother of mine for quite a number of years and he has told me time and again that so soon as the people of his settlement arrive home from the Labrador, they visit his home to read and hear read the newspaper, and would then debate the general topics of the day. My brother said it was surprising to find what an interest the people took in the contents of the paper, and the knowledge gleaned by them from reading it. They would keep this practice up until the time came for them to go to the fishery once more. Another friend of mine who has constantly sent your paper out to Trinity, has received word from the person who used to get the paper that the idiotic transaction of the Government in placing a tax on newspapers has prevented him from obtaining any information concerning doings in the outside world, and the absence of his paper seems to deprive him of a necessity of life. I have no doubt but that hundreds of others are in a similar position. The Government has been guilty of an idiotic act in taxing papers, in most cases, the only means of our people to obtain information. Why, many a child has been taught to read with newspapers. The taxation of newspapers is, to my mind, one of the smallest and meanest acts that could possibly be placed on the Statute Book of the Colony. We are always hearing the people talking of raising and sending money to educate the heathen, and yet our Government is doing all in its power to prevent the people of Nfld. from obtaining that grand privilege, education. If the late Rev. Dr. Harvey (rest and bless him) were alive to-day he would most assuredly have greater need to say "Where are we and whither tending" when he discovered what the Government had done. Thanking you for space, I remain,
Yours sincerely,
A READER.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL PAY HER DEBT.

LONDON, July 11. The Evening News to-day says arrangements for the repayment of the British war debt to the United States in a lump sum in the near future are in an advanced state. The paper declares repayment will be made by means of a loan raised jointly in Great Britain and in the United States.

NO SERIOUS FIGHTING.

DUBLIN, July 11. Nowhere do the irregulars appear to be disposed to make a serious stand against the national troops, and the latest news of the guerrilla warfare in the country districts indicate continued success for the Free State forces. The number of prisoners who have fallen into the Free State hands increases daily. Apparently the tactics of the irregulars is being devoted chiefly to hindering communications by destroying bridges and blocking roads and commandeering supplies. News from many parts still is scanty pending general restoration of railway communication, but generally Cork is considered the only place where there is likely to be serious trouble.

GERMAN PAYMENT ARRANGED.

PARIS, July 11. Germany will pay thirty-two million of the fifty million gold marks due the Allies next Saturday, the Reparations Commission decided this evening. Germany has been relieved of the balance of this payment through deliveries of dyes to the textile alliance and through deliveries of coal to Luxemburg.

The Derby Course.

WHAT THE HORSES HAD TO FACE.
To walk the full length of the Epsom racecourse with keenly observant eyes and without prejudice is more illuminating, in a sense, than riding in a race on it if one wishes thoroughly to study its many peculiarities. There is no other course quite like it, and, as a small jockey said, "A good job, too." When the runners dash away from the Derby starting point on their eventful mile and a half journey, they have first to face a pretty stiff ascent of about half a mile, and this alone—all "against the collar"—is a severe test. If a horse cannot take up and keep his right position here he might as well be in his stable; it would be cheaper for his owner; though oats are dear.

Arriving at the mile post, a welcome beacon, the runners reach their first bit of level ground, which is a great relief to some of them; and so, for about two furlongs, they rush along at their best speed. The "going" is good, but there is no time for a "blow." There is already a little "sopping and sighing."

Then, turning left-handed, they come to the renowned Tottenham Corner, that "dip and twist" which must be negotiated at top speed so as to secure the slightest chance of victory. "Horses here," said the small jockey, "are turning a long time, and they are doing it downhill, and if they do it wrong they may have to hop home—dot-and-carry-one, or even two."

The fact should be noted, however, that few accidents occur at Tottenham Corner, and that it is not easy (there or elsewhere) to get thoroughbred horses into a tangle. They have "always a leg to spare," as the saying is, and the way in which they work that useful possession when dealing with the awkward points of this course is a proof that, if there were no racing, many backers of horses would scarcely know what to admire.

Safely round the Corner, and now more or less straightened out, the runners enter the straight direct for the winning post, about half a mile distant; and this part of the course slopes slightly from the top rails to the lower.

Horses are then galloping, as has been described, "chiefly on one leg"; but that flight of fancy need not be seriously debated outside the stable. "Finally, approaching the winning post and opposite the stands, there is another slight dip, and thence a short ascent to the finish, so that all varieties of "going" are experienced by the competitors for this great classic race. Speed and stamina are the qualities which do the trick. A "handy" horse has an advantage, because he turns well, comes down the hill like a flash, and may stay on to the bitter end.

Yet, alas! some proud sportsman are jealous at the expense of the Derby course. Thus, after his candidate for classic honours had just been defeated, a sporting owner cheerfully said to his jockey: "You stayed too long in the dip, my lad—in the last dip." "Oh, yes, sir," replied the small jockey, playing up, "but I did not stay alone. Your horse is a grand stayer—in one place."

FELL INTO DOCK!—Two boys named Burnstet and Andrews, while playing at the dock basin last evening fell into the water. Their cries for help attracted men to the spot and the boys were soon fished out and taken to their homes. They quickly recovered from their unpleasant experience.

Everybody Should Know Free Fights in Parliament

FROM HEATED DEBATE TO SPIRITED COMBAT.
In a recent "battle" in the Hungarian House of Deputies, a member attempted to shoot the President of the Chamber, and actually drew a revolver in the course of the struggle which followed.
This is by no means the only occasion on which a fight has taken place in a Parliament elected to preserve the peace, although our own House of Commons has not figured in any such political "scrap" for over a century.
In France, the land of political fights, Deputies have often engaged in spirited combat in the midst of a heated debate, and more than once members have been seriously injured.
The most amazing Parliamentary "battle" ever waged was fought in the Chinese Parliament, which met for the first time five years ago.
A Shower of Inkpots.
Considerable difficulty had been experienced in getting a Parliament together, and some of the members who represented lawless districts complained openly of having to listen to speeches from men whom they would have hanged had they caught them in their own cities.
At the first meeting it was thought that all these difficulties had been composed, but scarcely had the Speaker declared the debate open when one of the members, presenting a certain remark, picked up a heavy lead inkpot and hurled it at the head of the offender.
The effect was electrical. Before the Speaker could call for order, dozens of heavy inkpots were being hurled in all directions. Members of the Cabinet fled and left the battle to the Government troops stationed outside the building. More than twenty members were wounded.
Similar scenes were witnessed at the last meeting of the Russian Provisional Government at Moscow, when Lenin, knowing that he could not hope for a majority by ordinary means, sought to stampede the "moderates" into voting for him by ordering all "Red" members to attend fully armed.
Cannibals in Conference.
The result can be imagined. Before the sitting was half over a pitched battle was in progress, and it ended in the rout of the unarmed moderates. Then the victorious minority asserted their faith in inferior numbers by solemnly passing the measures which their opponents had rejected.
The palm for Parliamentary battles probably belongs to a small island near Tahiti. A trader induced the local natives, who are cannibals, to abandon their wars in favour of more civilized procedure, and to encourage them he built at his own expense a fine House of Commons made of plaited palm leaves and furnished with soap boxes as seats.
Alas! for his faith in Parliaments. When he turned up for the first day's assembly it was to find that the "Government" had attacked the Opposition party from a neighbouring island by kidnapping all their warriors, allowing only the aged and infirm to continue the journey to the Parliament which was to settle their respective futures!—Tit-Bits.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR GARTERS IN COWS.

Harbor Grace Notes.

An accident occurred on Tuesday evening last, when the schr. Shephard, Capt. Geo. Himmelman, was being towed. While going on dock at 7:30 p.m., when the cradle was way up, through some unknown cause, the vessel fell over on the port side and came back on an even keel. The vessel was aground on the cradle. Tuesday evening the tug John Green, arrived in port with a steam tug, and got to work at the schr. Shephard. The vessel was again aground and towed to St. John's the following morning to be docked. This accident to the large cradle of dock is to be regretted, but we trust the amount of damage is not great, and that the cradle will not be long out of commission.

Over J. Squires came over on the tug Green on Thursday and has been busy on the dock, examining the amount of damage sustained, as yet it is not known to what extent.

Capt. Abram Kean was in town last week representing Messrs. Dale & Co., in connection with the schr. Shephard, and left town again on Saturday.

On Friday evening, a concert was held at the Star Movie. The British band was in attendance and songs were rendered by Mrs. M. T. Jones, W. L. Ross, Miss E. Joy, Miss D. Grey and W. H. Kennedy. Mr. J. A. Grey and the audience was a pronounced success. The feature for the evening was entitled "The Man from Swining Street."

The Committee of the Munn Memorial Hospital called a meeting of the ladies in town, in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, which was very well attended. The speeches were made by Mrs. W. H. Parmiter, Mrs. W. S. Madigan, and W. S. Madigan. The need for support and financial assistance was pointed out, and it was decided that a Committee of the ladies present be formed. The gentlemen then re-elected Mrs. (Rev.) W. R. J. Higgett as President, Miss Kathleen Parmiter, Treasurer, and Miss Gladys Parmiter, Secretary. The following Executive Committee was formed:—Mrs. W. H. Parmiter, Mrs. W. S. Madigan, Mrs. E. Simmons, Mrs. L. Parmiter, Mrs. C. D. Garland, Mrs. L. Whitman, and Miss Foley. It was decided at the meeting that during the week in August a Sports Day would be held in Shannon Park, when the men would look out for the sports and the ladies for the refreshments. We are hoping that the enthusiasm which has been aroused will not wane, and interest on all sides will be manifested in this Sports Day which will be a big day for Harbor Grace, and a large amount of money raised to further the Hospital movement.

Rev. H. A. Goodwin, formerly pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church at St. John's, N. B., but recently appointed Field Secretary of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church on Sunday morning and delivered a very forcible sermon; the service was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. While in town, the Reverend gentleman was the guest of his cousin, Dr. W. S. Gold.

Mr. William Hamlyn, representing Messrs. Job. Stores, Ltd., St. John's, was in town on Saturday in the interests of his firm.

Dr. Randall's yacht "Madeline" arrived in port on the 7th inst for dockage.

S.S. Sagona arrived in port on Thursday evening on her way to Labrador and left again about 12.45.

Rev. W. R. J. Higgett, who was attending Synod at St. John's, returned to town again on Wednesday. He is accompanied by Mrs. Higgett.

Rev. W. H. Browning, who was attending the Methodist Conference at Grand Bank, arrived in town again on Saturday.

Mr. W. G. Archibald, representing Messrs. H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, U.S.A., was in town last week in the interests of his firm.

Mr. Jack Ross of the Western United Cable Co., Heart's Content, is spending his holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ross.

Schr. Pindar arrived in port this morning about 2 o'clock. Messrs. I. E. Torsey and Henley, Parmiter with a crew left port in the spring in this schooner to prosecute the lobster fishery on the West Coast, but did not meet with the success they had hoped, their friends are sorry to learn.

In my notes, which appeared in Friday's paper, 7th inst., a printer's error occurred. The funeral of the late Mr. William Godden should read the late Mr. William "Gordon," and not the former name, as stated on the above date.

Among the passengers by S.S. Sagona for Labrador, were:—Mrs. R. S. Mann, Miss Muriel Mann, Mrs. Chris. Pike and little daughter, Florence; J. T. McRae and Fred Mann.

Miss May Chafe took passage by the S.S. Rosalind on Saturday for Halifax on her way to Bridgetown, where she will visit her uncle, Mr. Abram Gardiner.

Sir John Crosbie AND THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have read that masterpiece on the European markets from the able pen of Sir John Crosbie in the Daily News under date June 23rd. First I must welcome him back to his native land and with the greatest gem to us all recovered health, and second congratulate him on his able letter to his countrymen in all walks of life, as to our fisheries, principally the codfishery, the average catch for fifteen years and the conditions as to exchange in Spain, Portugal and Italy which is enlightening to the general public, and which Sir John learned from the rough road of experience. As our fisheries represent about ninety per cent. of our total resources, I personally strongly endorse his views when he states that the fisheries in the past, present and future will take first place and the railroad and other industries are of minor importance. Supply and demand govern the market and over supply generally means lower prices, and the shipper when it is shipped on commission will be the loser.

Quality takes first place as to our codfish, or any other food, and the consumer in Spain, Portugal or Italy must be given a square deal as to quality. When the shipper here sells merchantable, let it be merchantable, and not a mixture of market. The miller gives us Windsor Patent flour guaranteed, and while it keeps up to standard it sells itself. In my letter to the press on our fisheries in March last, I strongly pointed out to all that in many cases, we were handling our fish as an article of food to the consumer and that we must all combine, fisherman, planter, merchant and government, in curing our various kinds of fish with quality first, and get all the latest modernized ideas as to same. It is a Government's duty to encourage and assist with all means in its power the fisheries of Newfoundland, as all other matters are of minor importance, and then we Newfoundlanders will not worry about our competitors, Norwegian, etc., as our codfish, herring, salmon and caplin in their raw state are superior to any other in the world.

As I am only slowly recovering the health that I lost in endeavoring to uplift our country, as to its fisheries, I hope my methods will succeed. Hoping that Sir John's letter will have the effect that it deserves, and thanking you for your valuable columns.

Yours sincerely,
M. E. CONDON.

Dramatic Triumph at the Nickel

BEAUTIFUL OLIVE TELL IN "WINGS OF PRIDE."

She was proud, haughty, and the adopted daughter of a New York society woman. Olive Muir knew nothing of her real parents, nor did she bother much about anyone, who did not come into her own sphere of life. And then one day the crash came. She was compelled to acknowledge the drunken tool of a political boss as her father.

"Wings of Pride," which appears at this theatre shortly with Olive Tell as the star.

This is a brief synopsis of a tensely dramatic story written by Louis Kennedy Mable. It has many rare dramatic moments, sensational scenes and thrills.

It shows the brutal political boss making advances to the beautiful daughter of a man he holds in his power and the determined efforts of a rising young District Attorney to offset the "bad man's" efforts.

It also brings to mind the sufferings of many human beings in this world who, because they believe in right are compelled by some unknown power to endure terrible tortures of mind, until they are brought face to face with happiness.

Miss Tell's supporting cast includes John O'Brien, who gives an excellent performance in the leading role, that of a young District Attorney fighting the political boss, and his gang; Edwards Davies, who enacts the role of the political boss; Denton Vane, Ray's Dean, Margaret Seddon and Ida Pardee.
