CHAPTER XXIV.

Stephen rang the bell before he left the room, and hardly had the door closed after him than Sidney tore open the letter which lay uppermost on her lap, and glanced at it with eager eyes. It ran thus:

"Dr. Anderson will call at East-Porter to-morrow evening at nine o'clock to see Miss Greville. As his stay at Ashford will be very limited, he hopes not to be disappointed of the interview."

For a moment Sidney stared at the note, puzzled and perplexed; then like lightning its meaning flashed upon her, and she began to tremble exceedingly, forgetting the other note in her startled terror.

"Did you ring, ma'am?" Sidney turned round with a start; a servant was waiting at the door; but as her excuse for her husband for remaining down stairs had been once spoken on the spur of the moment, she did not remember that Stephen had rung.

"No," she said, hurriedly, "I did not ring. Stay!" she added, hastily, as he was about to leave the room. "A gentleman—Dr. Anderson—will call here this evening to see Miss Greville. Let him be shown at once into my boudoir, as his time is very limited."

"Yes, ma'am."

Sidney dropped the note announcing Dr. Anderson's arrival into the fire, and as she went up stairs, opened the other letter that she had received that evening. It was shorter even than the one she had just destroyed.

"Madam,—Will you kindly meet me at the Excelsion Hotel, Ashford, on Thursday, the 30th inst., at eleven o'clock, a.m.?"

Your obedient servant,
STEPHEN G. HOPGOOD.

Her maid was waiting in her dressing-room, anxious to perform the toilet operations, and with a heavy heart Sidney submitted. Miss Greville was awake, the maid said, as she brushed Sidney's pretty chestnut hair, very nervous and faint still, but quieter than she had been, and Sidney wondered if she dared trust Bessie with her part this evening, half-decided that she would do so, and then shuddered at the thought that through any carelessness on the part of the old woman Dr. Anderson's identity might be discovered.

Stephen was just ready to leave his dressing-room, looking very handsome and distinguished in the white Louis-XIII. Mousquetaire dress, that he wore, when a timid knock sounded at his door, and he opened it, to see his wife standing there clad in the glittering robes of her fancy dress, looking very beautiful but white as her pure, spotless draperies.

"Stephen," she said, suddenly, speaking as if she were repeating some lesson she had learned, "will you be very disappointed if I do not go with you this evening?"

"If you do not go with me this evening?" he echoed, the expression of eager admiration changing to one of cold displeasure. "What are you ill?"

"No; but Christie seems so ill that I think it is unkind to leave her."

"Do you mean that she is ill enough to be in danger?" he asked, more gently. "Is she worse? Shall I send a carriage for your father?"

"No—oh, no—she is not worse! But—"

Stephen, if you would not mind very much, I should like to stay."

She spoke very earnestly, but she did not raise her eyes to his as she stood before him, he looking down at her gravely.

"Have you considered my father's and my mother's disappointment?" he asked. "Have you remembered that it is really the first entertainment they have given since our return; and that they would feel your absence a great slight? You say that Miss Greville is not worse," he went on; "therefore I must refuse your request, Sidney, unless you have some other special reason," he added with some significance, "for disregarding my wishes and theirs."

"No, oh, no!" she returned, eagerly, terrified at his meaning tone. "No, no; Christie is so lonely and unhappy; and—"

"I cannot have my wife's eyes red to-night," he said, gently, putting his right arm round her as she stood—his left arm was still in a sling. "I want people to see what a beautiful ice-cream she makes, so white and pure and sweet, although I am afraid—with a little laugh—"I don't want them to know what an ice-cream she is to her husband. You must go, Sidney."

"I cannot," she murmured. "I am not well, I cannot go."

He looked at her keenly for a minute, then drew her into his dressing-room, and dismissing his valet, who was still there, said, gravely:

"Sidney, I do not often cross your wishes; but unless you desire seriously to displeas me, unless you desire to show how little regard you have for my wishes, you will go with me."

"You make too much of it," she answered, trying to speak carelessly. "I am not well, Stephen, and I am sure I should disgrace you to-night by a fit of hysterics or by fainting away! Don't urge me to go. Lady Eva will forgive me, if you tell her that Christie is—"

"I will spare you any further excuses," he said, in a tone so cold and stern that she shivered. "Since you became my wife you have shown me clearly enough how irksome the position is to you, and your conduct this evening is only what I might have expected. You need add no further falsehoods to those you have already told me to-night. They cost you nothing but to hear you utter them is as bitter as death to me!"

CHAPTER XXV.

The carriage had driven away over the snow-covered avenue, and Sidney came back slowly from the window whence she had watched it go and threw herself face downward upon her bed, regardless of the costly white draperies which she was crushing, the diamonds gleaming so brightly on her white throat and slender arms.

Stephen was gone. He had left her with a look on his face which she had never seen there before, a look of cold contempt; and, though she stood waiting in the gallery until he came out of his dressing-room again, and had watched him go down stairs in his Louis XIII dress, looking so handsome and grave and proud, he had not spoken to her again. He had passed her by without a word, although her dress had brushed him as he went, and the last words he had uttered to her were those which said that her falsehoods were as bitter as death to him.

When she had heard the carriage coming round from the stables, she had thrown open the window of her room and leaned out into the cold night-air, regardless of the falling snow which drifted in upon her bare shoulders and arms. There was no moon; but the light from the hall fell upon the waiting vehicle and enabled her to see her husband and Lloyd Miller—the latter in a curious Italian dress which made him look as one in an old picture—get into the carriage and drive away.

The window was so exactly above them that she could have spoken to them without difficulty; but they did not look up; and, having watched them drive away, she went and threw herself upon her bed, leaving the window open, regardless of the drifting snow and keen wind which it admitted into the room.

"It is all over now," she moaned, pressing her burning brow into the cold linen. "He will never love me now—never—never!"

It seemed to the wretched girl, as she lay there, that the last glimmer of hope that some day she would win back her husband's love faded away completely. Never would they be anything but strangers—never, however long they lived together. He would always mistrust her, he would always look upon her as he had looked that evening, with cold contempt.

Fate was against her, she thought wearily. Another night the disguise Frank had adopted would have enabled him to be admitted to his sister without exciting much comment or much interest. The household knew that Miss Greville was ill, and therefore a doctor's visit would have seemed quite natural to them—any other night but that one. And yet he was to come that evening.

She raised herself from the pillow after a time, shivering with cold and damp, and, closing the window hastily, threw off her beautiful dress and crouched before the fire to warm herself. Presently Bessie came in, full of sympathy for Sidney's disappointment—for Sidney had sent down word that Miss Greville seemed too ill to be left—and dressed her young mistress in her black velvet dress, and sympathized with her when she said, hating herself, poor Sidney, for the deception—that she was sorry, Miss Christine was so ill, and that she was anxious—which was true enough—to see the new doctor, who might be able to do her some good.

"Oh, Sidney, have you come at last?" was Christine's reproachful greeting when Sidney went to the boudoir and found her sitting up on her couch, with a fever spot on either cheek and a feverish light in the blue eyes which were usually so dim and faded. "I have been so lonely and frightened. Why did you not come sooner?"

Are Modern Men "Soft"?

IF THEY ARE, IT'S THE WOMEN'S FAULT.

(By LORD HEADLEY)

Recently, Mr. Mitchell Hedges, the explorer, criticized the modern young man on the score of "flabbiness," both physical and mental. Here Lord Headley, an authority on boxing and other sports, deals with the question in spirited fashion.

A good deal of nonsense is being talked about the alleged physical and

Wants Other Women To Know About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mount Forest, Ont. — "Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt weak and miserable, and had pains all through me. I was living in Alisa Craig at the time, and one day a friend came in and told me her experience of using the Vegetable Compound and advised me to take a bottle which I finally did. I began to get stronger and those pains left me. I am glad I found out about this medicine as I think there is none equal to it for women who have troubles of this kind. I cannot praise the Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. Whenever I know of a woman suffering I am glad to tell her of it." Mrs. Wm. RUSSELL, R.R. No. 1, Mount Forest, Ontario.

Women throughout the Dominion are finding health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No harmful drugs are used in its preparation—just roots and herbs—and it can be taken in safety even by nursing mothers. For sale by all druggists.

HALIFAX, Oct. 21.—Raymond Gushue, St. John's, Nfld., was admitted to the Nova Scotia Bar this morning. Gushue was prominent in all branches of college activity and the leader of the Labour Socialist party in the mock parliament. He leaves for St. John's, Nfld., Saturday, and will practice his profession there.

CAPTAIN OF C.P.R. LINER KILLED

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Captain A. H. Clew, Commander of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, was shot and killed aboard his ship at Antwerp last night, a message to the company reported to-day. One of the ship's officers is alleged to be the slayer. Two other officers were wounded. The cause of the shooting is unknown.

SLAYER OF C.P.R. CAPTAIN A PRISONER

ANTWERP, Oct. 21.—The C.P.R. Steamer Melita left Southampton to-night bearing the body of Captain Clew, her Commander, who was shot and killed in bed this morning, and also carrying a prisoner first officer Thomas Beyer, charged with shooting two crew officers, wounded by the same bullet. These latter were left in prison in a critical condition. Toward noon he had told the Antwerp police that he did it because Captain Clew and the others were conspiring to ruin his career.

GREECE SENDS AN ULTIMATUM TO BULGARIA

ATHENS, Oct. 21.—The Greek Government has sent an ultimatum with a forty-eight hour limit to Bulgaria in connection with the frontier fighting near Demir-bazar, demanding an indemnity of two million French francs, an official expression of regret and punishment of the responsible Bulgarian officers.

GREEK ULTIMATUM REPORT DENIED

PHOTOS OF THE PRINCE IN GOLF ATTIRE CRITICISED

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A comment is appearing in newspapers with regard to press photographs of the Prince of Wales in golf attire.

Indigestion

When chronic, is best relieved by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In most cases, indigestion results from torpid liver and sluggish bowel action. Tablets for the stomach and aids to digestion fail in this chronic form of indigestion. You must get the filtering and excretory organs right before you can expect permanent relief and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Chronic indigestion is a very common condition. On this account many suffer for years not realizing that relief is at hand in the form of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Headaches, biliousness, spells of constipation and diarrhoea are among the accompanying ailments. What a relief it would be to be free of this condition which makes one feel so miserable and it is so easy by using this well-known regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Christian Holtum Wins New Laurels

This talented artist continues to add new laurels to his already established reputation. In his singing at the popular Star. His singing of "Because" last night was faultlessly rendered, and his "When I was Twenty One," brought forth rounds of applause. In those numbers Mr. Holtum disclosed a voice of unusual richness and resonance of very wide range. His interpretation was also very effective. The Management wishes to state that Mr. Holtum will sing each night at the close of the first performance, and all who can are asked to be in their seats at the appointed hour.

Panama Business Normal After Strike

BALBOA, C.Z., Oct. 15.—Business in Panama returned to normal to-day with cessation of strikes. The American troops summoned by President Child when the Government was unable to halt demonstrations of anti-ent payers may be withdrawn before the week-end. Only 50 American soldiers patrolled the streets, although two other battalions were quartered in barracks. The Government thus far refuses to yield to the demand of the League of Rent-payers for the release of its members arrested after recent riots.

Harry Carey at The Nickel To-Night

Supported by Marguerite Clayton in "Tiger Thompson."

Horace Greeley advised Easterners to go West for thrills and excitement, fame and fortune. The last West is gone, but there is the Western movie with all the glamour the pioneers experienced in their efforts to overcome raw nature and rough characters.

See "Tiger Thompson," at the Nickel Theatre to-night and you will find yourself carried back to those colorful days. The "Tiger" stakes his claim, strikes gold and loses the fortune and his faith in mankind when wily "claim jumpers" oust him. He decides that the cards of life are stacked against his "going square." But after meeting with thrilling adventures in an effort to locate a cache of loot hidden by train robbers, Carey meets up with two blue eyes that come nearer conquering him than any two blue barrels he ever faced.

Of course you remember Marguerite Clayton who starred in pictures a few years ago. Marguerite is the beauty he is out to win. Don't miss Harry in the "Tiger" role and Marguerite as the beautiful ranch owner.

"The Unrewarded Woman" is coming. Watch for the announcement. Keep your eye out for "The Minister," starring the one and only Lon Chaney. Particulars later.

On Making Good

Years ago it was said, "There is none that doeth good; no, not one." Since that day the same thing holds true in estimating human character. Not that there is no goodness in the world, for there is quite a lot when one begins to look round. But there is none of us free from mistake.

Perhaps, seeing that things are as they are, that is not a bad thing, for it suggests that we come from a common stock and in the end of things we are all pretty much alike.

There are several sorts of failure amongst us, but the worst is not to try to do better. To fail is never a sin, for it does show that we have made a try; and the man who will keep on trying will ultimately gain his goal. Everything that is good is on the side of the trier. Mistakes can readily be forgiven if a man has endeavored to do his best.

The "also-rans" in life are those who have done splendidly in making effort and have not really been beaten, but have just missed the mark by a chance.

Never believe that only those who get there first have really won. There is sometimes more valour in running than in winning. The laurel may be on another's brow, but there is sometimes splendour in losing.

The Bible speaks of one who was told by God, "It was good that I was in thine heart."

Quite a number of us start life with little chance. Our rhombus is cramped, outlook limited, opportunities few, and temptations all along the way to slack our effort. Things appear to limit us, and our education does not get much beyond the three "r's." It is so easy to set out and say, "Oh, well, I've no chance; fortune doesn't favour me. I will live straight and be content, for life is not long at the most."

That is a suicidal policy and leads to sorrow multiplied.

Another says: "I have done my best, but things were against me and I have never been able to get beyond where I am. I take a step forward and seem to slip back a couple. I do not feel disposed to move on again at my time of life."

Both these outlooks are those of the unheroic. A strong man never argues like that. He rather says: "It's better to fall than not to climb; it's better to fail than not to try."

Why, just call to mind the innumerable people who have started life worse than ourselves and made good! If you complain of poverty, take a trip to the workhouse. It will be a splendid cure. You will feel so wealthy as you leave!

Do you complain about your health? Then go to the nearest hospital. You will come away feeling healthier than for weeks; and the very best way of overcoming the spirit which lets the hands hang down and won't try is to refresh the memory with instances such as those of Robert Burns, Lord Leverhulme, and many other famous men. They went through because they made good.

To no one is life absolutely favourable. Faults are everywhere and errors are always taking place. The perfect man has not yet been born. It is folly, therefore, to expect that we are to get through without effort. It would be unwise were it possible, for the very struggle to win will make us better winners, and if we are not successful—well, we have our ambition still.

There are always some people who "would if they could"; our talk is for those who "would if they would."

The power to do better is within us, and there is nothing we cannot have as our own if we just determine to live for it; and the worthier the life the more honourable will be our achievement.

Little, if anything, is gained in these days by resting on our oars. There is danger of drifting then. If we miss edy, are recalled in the elaborate volume on Abbeys, which the Great Western Railway Company has published as a companion to that on Castles. It is the work of Dr. James, the Provost of Eton, and there are about 180 illustrations. The monks and nuns of the earlier period are spoken of as being of immense size. This is how the author dispels some common illusions:—

Your mental picture of the monk should not be that of the fat man holding his stomach and bursting with laughter at a good story, or brandishing his goblet in the conventional attitude of the stage carouser. Nor need you fly to the other extreme and figure them all as pallid ascetics, passing their lives on their knees. There were monks of both sorts, no doubt, but the bulk of them were steady, prosaic men, perhaps more like fellows of colleges in the 18th century than anything else. Whatever the venal commissioners of Henry VIII. may have said, the monasteries were not hotbeds of crime and luxury. Many were somnolent, many were insolvent, few were evil. You need not trouble yourselves to say when you see the refectory of the cellar, "Ha, ha! those old monks knew what was what!" Nor need you be shocked when you are shown the openings of a subterranean passage and told that it leads to a nursery five miles off. You may rest assured that it is really the main drain of the establishment.

N.Y. Burglar Shoots Officer and Flees

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Oct. 15.—Frank White, 41, patrolman, was shot and wounded, probably fatally, by a burglar he had surprised in the rear of a tailor shop in the Vanderveer Park section.

The assailant escaped by climbing over fences to an adjacent street. Fifty detectives were ordered to search for him.

Fascinating Story of a Minister's Exploration Work in Palestine

THE REV. J. GARROW DUNCAN, OF KIRKMICHAEL, DISCOVERS THE OLDEST PIECE OF JEWISH MASONRY YET FOUND IN THE HOLY LAND.

"I am sure you would like to hear all that I have been doing these two years. Let me say first how grateful I am to you, the members of this congregation, who backed me up so strongly and gave me this great opportunity.

"Let me say also that I never worked so hard in my life. We started every morning at 5.30. Dr. MacAllister took the early shift at first, but from January, 1924, I took it myself. 5.30 to 8 a.m. superintending the work. Breakfast, 8-9 a.m. From 9 a.m. we were both together till sunset—5-6 p.m. And when he left I had to bear the brunt of it myself.

"Work stopped for the winter on November 23, and in the winter months I was able to overtake arrears and write up a full account of my discoveries, doing all the photography and the drawings myself.

"Some ladies—among them Lady Clayton and other ladies of distinguished position in Jerusalem society—volunteered to help me, and made some most beautiful drawings of painted pottery. All these photographs and drawings will, I hope, be published some day. If the Palestine Exploration Fund have not the money to publish them, I shall try to get them published otherwise.

"In April last work was resumed, and more discoveries made; but as the funds available were getting exhausted, we decided to close down for the meantime, hoping that before long more money may come in and allow the work to go on. On July 3 I completed the filling-in of our excavations, burying some of the finest discoveries I made—greatly to my sorrow. I felt as a mariner feels when he sees his beloved ship taking its final plunge.

"Bit by bit the walls of the ancient stronghold of the Jebusites were re-constructed to their grave, till the field was left exactly as I got it. We employed sometimes as many as 135 men and boys, but after Dr. MacAllister left I never exceeded 90 men and boys, and I assure you I found that more than enough. The pottery and other objects poured in at the rate of 1,000 pieces a day sometimes.

"Then I had to have washed, thereafter to examine and select and finally to record and mark. I was thus able to take up any object found, and by looking at the marks on it tell exactly what spot and what depth it was found at. I could do so yet at any time—each piece bears its own history in my handwriting.

Most Important Discovery.
 "Of our discoveries the most important is the great Eastern wall of the stronghold of the Jebusites that was taken by David, as recorded in the passage I read (II. Sam. v. 6-10.)

"Of this wall we found a fragment before Dr. MacAllister left, but had no certain knowledge as to what it was. After he left I found the Great Tower built by David and repaired by Solomon, and the two stair bastions, one on each side of it. This tower with its bastions I will show you on the screen some evening.

"It has been made a national monument by the Department of Antiquities. They were busy putting it in a state of repair when I left. It is now one of the great sights of Jerusalem. I had as many as 300 and 500 people there to see it some days; and my work was often hindered badly by my having to go and lecture to the crowd, explaining it as it looked.

"It is an honour which I certainly never looked for that my very first discovery when I took over the work has been made a national monument. It is an honour which every excavator covets.

"Our work has not produced showy or sensational results, but the results are of great scientific and archaeological value. The Hebrew inscriptions I found add greatly to our examples and knowledge of early Hebrew writing.

"The wall uncovered is the very wall that David had to break through to take the stronghold from the Jebusites. It is the same wall that the people stood on and listened to the Rab-shakeh sent to Jerusalem by Sennacherib in 701 B.C. to urge Hezekiah and the Israelites to surrender and accept Sennacherib as their Lord.

"The incident is recorded in II. Kings, xviii., 13—and the poet Byron has commemorated it in his famous poem beginning—'The Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold.'

The Original Zion.

"It is now possible, therefore, for the visitor to Jerusalem to see a large section, about 150 yards of the wall of the original Zion, the City of David, and to realize as he looks on it all the events of David's life, and Solomon's and Hezekiah's, as he could never have realized them from the words of the Bible.

"As time wears on, I think the value of our discoveries on Ophel will be widely appreciated. I have had the luck to uncover the oldest piece of Jewish masonry yet known in or around Jerusalem, but some of my smaller finds are of even greater interest to the scholars and students of the Old Testament."

Majestic Patrons Pleased With To-Night's Feature

"BLOW YOUR OWN HORN," A COMEDY DRAMA SCORES.

The trials of the expedition in re-creating the position of the tower which he had been staying at home in "Your Own Horn" at the Majestic Theatre.

The great war taught those who served in it the lesson of self-reliance, but it also impressed upon the boys at the front the fact that one man and his interests amount to very little when compared with great world problems. Appreciation of this fact tended to make most of them reticent in the matter of extolling their own good qualities upon their return, and while the acquired reserve was in itself admirable, it proved to be a drawback when it came to earning a good living.

Warner Baxter, as Jack Dunbar, the doughboy in "Blow Your Own Horn," had to unlearn this particular lesson that had come to him through his part in the great world crisis. It took him some time to "blow his own horn" without shame, but when he found that such a policy was necessary to success in business, he drowned out all the horn-tooters within a radius of many miles.

"Blow Your Own Horn" is a wholesome, rollicking comedy-drama which proves an instructive theme. It is both amusing and convincing.

Last night the Majestic patrons were pleased beyond measure with the feature which will be shown again tonight. Note: Keep posted on Monday's big super special.

R-33 Afloat Again

SUCCESSFUL NINETEEN HOURS CRUISE—EXPERIMENTS WITH TINY AEROPLANE.

Fitted with a new "nose" replacing that which was damaged when she broke away from her mooring-mast and embarked upon her amazing adventure over the North Sea last April, the R-33 took the air from Pulham Aerodrome, Norfolk, during the week. A long flight was decided upon to gauge the "form" of the monster airship in her reconditioned shape. On board was a crew of 24—including those who took part in the historic April flight—with various officers and specialists. Major G. H. Scott, hero of the R-34 flight to America and back, was in supreme command, and he had with him Flight-Lieut. H. C. Irwin, the regular skipper of the R-33; Squadron-Leader R. S. Booth, who was in charge during the April adventure; Captain E. L. Johnson, navigator; Lieut.-Col. B. C. Richmond, designer of R. 101 and the new metal nose of R. 33, and his technical staff for carrying out the experiments for which the flight was undertaken. When the airship left Pulham the weather was so calm that at 2,000 feet the wind was only six miles an hour, while at 5,000 feet it was only ten miles an hour. The flight lasted 19 hours, in the course of which the R. 33 cruised over the sea near Lowestoft, and in the Clacton-Margate area, and passed over London. She reached her base safely at noon the next day. Towards the end she developed trouble in the gear box of the aft engine car; but was never in any difficulty. The duration of the flight was not shortened by this minor engine trouble, nor were the tests she was scheduled to execute restricted, the other engines functioning satisfactorily throughout the cruise. In the wireless log of the trip no reference is made to the engine failure. Countless thousands of Londoners on their way to work were thrilled with pride by the spectacle of the great ship sailing through the mists over the city at 9 o'clock in the morning. The hum of the engines was heard before the R. 33 herself could be seen, for a haze mixed with sunshine turned the sky to a grey-blue—a background into which the colour and contours of the airship merged so hauntingly that she was almost indistinguishable. She was comparatively low, and her lettering could be clearly discerned. At Pulham the task of returning her to her hangar was accomplished without any difficulty.

performed on the flight. In future flights it is to be made of a device to release and re-hook an aeroplane in the air. The tiny aeroplane, a single-seater monoplane capable of flying 60 miles an hour, has lain in the shed for some weeks beside the great sides of R. 33. It has a strong clip operated from above the pilot's seat. When it is to be picked up by the airship in the air it will wait until its plane is the same as that of the airship, and then manoeuvre itself directly underneath the clipping bar. There are many possibilities if these experiments are as successful as similar ones have been in the United States. In war, one or more of these attached aeroplanes could be released from the airship to attack enemy machines and thus help to protect the airship. On the trade routes they could be released above minor towns just as an express train "slips" separate coaches to avoid too many stops.

Wolworth Co. Throw $49,999,999 Away

DIRECTORS OF FIVE AND TEN CENT STORES WRITE OFF GOOD WILL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—The directors of the F. W. Woolworth Company, operating five and ten cent stores throughout the country, have just completed dumping $49,999,999 into the waste-paper basket. The millions, of course, were not actual—they came from the company's balance sheet.

The "dumping" was done through writing off the books of the company that amount of the "good will" account.

The plan started in 1922 when $20,000,000 was written off. Ten million more was written off each year for the next two years and recently $9,999,999 was similarly disposed of.

So now the good will of the great chain of stores which has converted nickels and dimes into fortunes—including the leases and contracts of the concern; is carried on the books at only $1.

The original $50,000,000 valuation placed on good will was made when F. W. Woolworth, founder of the chain, incorporated the present company.

The Spirit of Unrest

The signatories to the Locarno security pact have set an example to the world by sinking their differences in the interest of peace. It may be said that they were a long time in coming to an agreement, but the problems were many and serious, and it could scarcely be expected that the feelings of suspicion which existed could be dissipated in a moment.

Convinced that prosperity and content could not return to Europe until an era of peace was assured, the powers have by common consent become partners in an undertaking which gives greater promise of effecting that object than anything attempted since the cessation of hostilities.

The whole world has been in a state of turmoil for years, and undoubtedly the main cause of this unhappy state of affairs has been the harshness resulting from the war, but there is also a malignant spirit of unrest abroad which cannot definitely be traced to that source. It shows itself in many ways, and even in Newfoundland, one of the first countries to revive after the period of distress, and which today is making most favourable progress, it is at work, and its most active agents are political malcontents.

The community as a whole today desires and needs nothing more urgently than a period of peace and quiet. It has been sick, very sick, and although its progress, owing to its wonderful recuperative power, has been remarkable, it has not yet completely passed the convalescent stage. Turmoil and excitement such as this element of unrest would provoke but for the good sense of the public, could have no other effect than to delay recovery, and might even result in a serious setback.

The actual motives of those who are insidiously striving to bring about a crisis are an open book to nine out of every ten citizens, and it is for the great majority, to whom love of country is a real and personal matter, to make their influence felt. Look at France. She is striving to restore her credit and to re-establish her industrial life, but this spirit of disorder is attempting to clog the wheels. Look at Germany. To-day we are told in the despatch that this element of unrest is desirous of having the security pact repudiated. Were these enemies of peace to have their way, the return to prosperity and progress would be postponed indefinitely.

Official Greetings to Capt. of Caribou

A message of greeting as follows was sent to Capt. Stevenson of the S. Caribou yesterday—

October 21, 1925.
"Captain Stevenson,
S.S. Caribou.

Nearing the termination of the maiden voyage of the Caribou which through bolterous weather must have thoroughly tested her seagoing qualities, Government sends greetings and welcome to yourself, ship, passengers, officers and crew.

Prime Minister Returns From Interparliamentary Union at Washington

The Prime Minister, Hon. W. S. Monroe, interviewed by the Telegram this morning, with reference to the Interparliamentary conference at Washington and Ottawa from which he has just returned, stated that the conference was one of the most notable in modern history.

It was attended by delegations from forty-one countries and for the first time in its annals the Central and South American republics were represented, some fourteen of these countries sending delegations. Nearly every European country was represented and a region as remote as the Philippine Islands had its delegation there.

The total attendance was nearly four hundred, which three-fourths would be delegates, the others being ladies or junior members of the family of the delegates.

There were some lady delegates present from Germany, Sweden, etc., and one of the German women delegates made quite a vigorous speech at one sitting.

There were daily sittings at Washington for a week; and two subjects were referred to in a special session held at Ottawa. These relating to the treatment of minorities in countries whose boundaries were altered by the peace conference and to the suppression of the traffic in noxious drugs. The questions discussed at Washington had to do with peace problems in the main.

In fact it might be said that the conference was an unofficial peace conference, as its underlying purpose was to promote measures designed to ensure the world against war in the future. In these matters Newfoundland is as keenly interested as any other country and the results from the conference will be as helpful to her as to any other. The pronouncement of the conference has the additional advantage that they express the views of parliamentarians rather than governments.

In the official conference for peace that have been so frequent since the end of the war the views expressed by the delegates from each country are those of the government, thereof, for the time being; but in this case every man voiced his own opinions and it was not unusual to find men on the same delegation expressing absolutely opposite opinions; finally a vote was taken when occasion demanded and the result represented the decision of a majority of parliamentary representatives from this world gathering.

The representative character of those attending gave an added value to its deliberation. Every country sent some of its most outstanding men thus Britain sent Sir Robert Horne former Chancellor of the Exchequer, France sent Senator Fernand Merlin former Cabinet Minister, Germany sent Dr. Joseph Wirth, former Chancellor, and other countries were represented by men of equal standing therein. Each country also sent men who were specialists in international law and the various topics to be discussed. Thus it followed that the subjects in the agenda were handled by men of outstanding qualifications, and that the various topics were presented in such a fashion that the fullest knowledge of them was gained by the delegates.

The social sides of the conference

Laid to Rest

ARTHUR W. HISCOCK.
All that was mortal of the late Arthur Hiscock was laid to rest in the Anglican Cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral was very large, and amongst those making up the cortege were the members of the Regatta Committee. The Masonic fraternity was also well represented. The service at the Mortuary Chapel was conducted by Rev. Canon Bolt and Rev. J. B. Elliott.

On Our Bookshelf

"BEHOLD THE HEBRIDES."

Many Newfoundlanders of Scottish birth or descent will be keenly interested in the publication of a book entitled "Behold the Hebrides," recently issued by the well publishing firm of W. & B. Chambers, Edinburgh & London.

The writer is Alexander Alpin MacGregor, whose ancestor many generations ago took refuge in the island of Lewis. The writer deals in the most fascinating manner with traditions of the island and the events which took place there in earlier times, and also with the occupations followed by the Hebridesans to-day. His pen pictures of the scenery are most vivid and the book is illustrated with numerous photographs.

The volume opens with the following verses in which the author eloquently expresses his affection and enthusiasm for the home of his street.

There's an old drove road through bracken-glen,
And it lies like a fairy wand;
It's the leather track of the west-bound men,
On their way to the Gaelic land.

There's a bridle-path o'er a purple moor,
And it leads me down to the sea;
And I must be taking it, for I'm sure,
It's the way that is calling me.

There's a restless boat in a western bay,
And I know that it waits for me,
There's a wind that will carry it far away
To the isle where I long to be.

And a cart track winds round the stony shore
To a peat-reeked croft by the sea;
And it's Mary that's waiting at her door
To kiss and to welcome me.

There are roads and roads that lead to Paradise,
But they don't lead down to the sea;
And they take me not to my island home,
So they're not the roads for me.

Tendered a Farewell Party

Last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Spencer Street, a farewell party was tendered Misses Madeline Smith and Hannah Tucker, by their friends in the city and from St. Philip's, on the eve of their leaving for Boston. Quite a pleasant evening was spent and the young people parted in the wee small hours, wishing them every success in the land of their adoption.

Congregational "At Home"

RECORDS 150 YEARS OF AGE ON VIEW.

The 150th anniversary celebrations of the Congregational Church were continued last evening, when a very enjoyable "At Home" was held in the Church Hall, which was prettily decorated with greenery and autumn tints. The guests were received by the pastor, Rev. D. L. Nichol, Mrs. Nichol and Mr. J. Calver and cordially welcomed. After a pleasant hour was spent in social intercourse a short programme was rendered, musical selections being contributed by Mrs. Alex. Mews, Mrs. Cyril Cahill, Mr. H. B. Wardell and Mr. Alex. Mews, and a reading by Mrs. L. C. Mews. Refreshments were then served. An interesting feature of the "At Home" was a display of old records of the church which had been carefully preserved all through the years. These included the original minute and record book, in which was written the church rules; a concordance written by the Rev. John Jones, the first pastor of the church; his last will and testament, and a deed recording the transfer of land. These records are in surprisingly good condition, particularly the minute book, and make the most interesting reading. Other exhibits of interest included photographs of former pastors of the church.

Obituary

NO. 3492 LANCE CORPORAL THOMAS MURPHY.

Early this-morning another gap in the ranks of the men who came back from the great conflict was caused, when death visited the home of Constable Thomas and Mrs. Murphy, Long's Hill, and relieved of his sufferings his son, Lance Corporal Thomas Murphy, whose regimental number was 3492. The deceased left here with others of his comrades and after spending a period in the training stations proceeded to France, where he participated in four engagements including Cambria. It was in the last great drive that he received a wound the effects of which he never recovered from. He spent several months in hospital in England, eventually being sent home arriving on the Corcoran in June 1919. For some time after coming home he was in fairly good health, but gradually the ill effects of his experiences began to tell on him and he was stricken with an illness which necessitated treatment at Waterford Hall. Everything that medical skill could do was of no avail. He spent thirteen months in the Sanatorium and returned home in April last. For some time after he rallied and hope was held out, but then suffered another relapse and gradually became worse it became evident that the angel of death hovered near. With perfect resignation he prepared for the inevitable and when the call came this morning he was fully prepared.

Thomas Murphy was a young man of sterling character, whose word was his bond, and whom many were proud to claim as their friend. He was naturally of a quiet and retiring nature, but his friends and companions loved to seek his opinions on all matters, and he was held in highest respect by all who knew him.

As a pupil of the High School at King's Cove and also at St. Patrick's Hall he displayed an aptitude for learning that always brought him to the top of his class.

Left to mourn are father and mother, two sisters, one at home and Miss Kathleen now in Boston, but who left here only a short time ago after being on a visit to her parents. To these the sympathy of many friends will be extended in their bereavement.

Suddenly at midnight, Margaret J. Whitten, aged 58 years, beloved wife of George Charles Whitten and daughter of Mr. Austin and the late Susan Sheppard. To mourn their sad loss are two sons and one daughter. Funeral to-morrow at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, Southside. Friends and relations please accept this the only intimation.

Passed peacefully away this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. R. C. Cleary, 13 Bulley Street, fortified by the rites of the Holy Catholic Church; Thomas Baker in his 77th year. Left to mourn are two daughters, Mrs. Jas. Quigley and Mrs. R. C. Cleary; four sons, Harry in Somerville, Mass.; Francis in Montreal and William and Edward of this city. Funeral on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. Friends and acquaintances please accept this the only intimation.

At 2.15 this morning, Thomas J., only son of Const. L. and Mrs. Murphy, aged 28 years. (Great War Veteran.) Leaving to mourn father, mother and two sisters. Funeral on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence, 85 Long's Hill—May the Sacred Heart of Jesus have mercy on him.

Suddenly this morning, Peter Neville, aged 77 years, leaving 4 sons and one daughter, also sister to mourn their sad loss. Funeral on Saturday at 2.15 p.m. from his late residence, Spruce Mount Farm, Blackmarsh Rd., Boston and Idaho papers please copy. At Belgrave, O.B.E. on the 15th inst., there passed peacefully away, after a long and painful illness, Elizabeth, widow of the late Robert Linthome, in her sixtieth year, leaving 3 sons and 5 daughters to mourn their sad loss. Sleep on beloved, sleep and take thy rest. Lay down thy head upon thy Saviour's breast. We love thee well, but Jesus loves thee best. Good-night, good-night, good-night.

MILNARD'S LINIMENT FOR SPRAINS

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 21st.—Up this morning and find how my bacon is burned beyond all reason and no more in the house, so my breakfast is spoiled. So calling for our cookie maysie, she mightily impertinent and says how if I did rise earlier, I could have a well cooked meal. This do annoy me so that I did give the wrench notice, but my wife makes loud complaint and says how she will be put to the greatest trouble to find her another cookie. So, needs must I swallow my pride, and give the wench an increase in her wages that she may be persuaded to remain with us. Anon abroad but do find little news anywhere, save that the weather being fine, there is much fish being handled on the water front. Indeed, 'tis the first fine day we have had in weeks, albeit mighty cold.

Do hear little talk of the City Elections, and do seem that there is at present little interest although 'tis that there will be more so when the divers candidates are announced.

This night again to the Fair, where a great crowd that I find mighty difficult to get in and my wife being with me, do berate me heartily that I should have brought her. However, she did not talk long, being that some fellow did by accident knock the breath from her in his hurry to push through, and I mighty thankful to him for it.

Eighteen Year Old Star From Sydney Mines is Hero of Thrilling Race

Cape Bretoner Pulls Away From Ronald O'Toole in Final Hundred Yards of Herald and Mail Modified Marathon—Thousands of Spectators See Greatest Long Distance Race Ever Held in Halifax—Newfoundland Runners Win Club Championship—Nip and Tuck Event All Through—Time is Fifty-Three, Forty-Eight and Three-Fifths — Jimmy Hawboldt Third and Jack Bell Fourth.

By J. E. AHEARN.

Showing the speed of a Cameron, the endurance of a Homer and a heart characteristic of the athletes from his home country, John C. Miles, 18 year old Sydney Mines runner won the annual Herald and Mail ten mile Marathon championship here Saturday. It took all the cunning of a champion and the fastest time ever made in a Herald 10 mile race, to beat Ronald O'Toole, plucky little Newfoundland runner, who was a scant 40 yards behind the great Cape Bretoner. Easily the most colorful long distance race ever held in Halifax, the event brought out 23 starters of the 36 entered. A heavy downpour which started hours before the race, failed to keep the spectators away, and thousands saw the runners dash through the muddy roads and alleys streets in quest of the undisputed championship. Newfoundland's life long ambition was realized, when the club title passed to the Old Colony team of four which made an almost unbeatable score of 25.

MANY FEATURES.

Saturday's race was great in many respects. There were conspicuous features and notable features that were known to but few. Veteran officials connected with the race since its inception back in 1907 and runners who took part in the first race, openly declared that the 1925 run was the best yet. The time, the fastest ever made in a ten mile race or a near ten mile race in Halifax, was one of the remarkable features in the great run. Another was the perfect condition of the competitors. Drs. M. A. MacAulay and F. R. Little, after examining the runners failed to turn down a single man. These medical experts, stated that it was the most perfect field they have examined for the annual runs. Of the 36 who entered, 23 appeared, and 23 finished, a most remarkable record.

WANTED POSTPONEMENT.

With the showers heavy and prospects unfavorable to a clearing, it was suggested a half hour before the start that the race be postponed until later in the afternoon. The runners on hand, declared that they weren't afraid of the rain and would be ready at the scheduled hour. When Mayor J. B. Kenny, the starter, called the men to the line, there was a great cheer from the spectators who lined the start. Miles, O'Toole, Bell and McLellan were favored in the betting shortly before the field was sent away. At the gun there was a spirited dash up Barrington Street. The field stayed together to the first half mile. Rounding into Richmond O'Toole jumped ahead and appeared to be watching Jimmy Hawboldt, the Westville star, and Johnny Miles. Bell, McLellan, Young, Corkum and Stone were trailing. Going through Africville, O'Toole had a lead of 20 yards over Miles.

Sight seeing motorists crowded in on the field going through Africville, and some of the runners were forced to slacken their speed to escape injury. Miles picked up a few yards going under the bridge at Fairview, three miles from the start. O'Toole was running in a pretty gait and appeared fresh as he climbed the steep short hill. Miles, too, went up fast and gave chase to the Newfoundlanders. Back of the field, in order, Jack Bell, Jimmy Hawboldt, Stone, Young, McLellan, Jimmy Martin and Roland Sherwood, were running strong. Hawboldt jumped ahead of Bell as the field reached Dutch Village. At this point O'Toole was barely five yards in front of Miles, who was running strong. The crowds at Armadale gave the runners a great ovation as they started for the Arm Hill—the downfall of many champions in previous races. The manner in which O'Toole had Miles, on even terms, climbed the hill, brought applause from the hundreds by the roadside. A terrific clip brought the leaders into Oxford Street. Here, Hawboldt was 100 yards ahead of Bell, McLellan, second last year, moved up to fifth place and gave chase to Bell.

GREAT CHEERING.

Realizing that the winner would be decided only on the last few hundred yards, the excited crowds, yelling words of encouragement to their favorite, followed the leaders into South Street, where the final hill was to be encountered. Miles and O'Toole went up the steep hill like race horses, watching each other for the final sprint. At the corner of South and Barrington Streets Miles crossed to the centre of the street, while O'Toole stayed on the sidewalk.

The brains of John C. Miles worked quickly. He opened up a terrific sprint and gained 15 yards, while O'Toole was running in his same gait. Miles increased his advantage while the thousands cheered madly. O'Toole made a blucky effort to overhaul the wonder from Cape Breton, but Miles was in front to stay and sprinted into the tape to receive the greatest ovation given a marathon winner in Halifax. Spattered with mud and smiling, came Ronald O'Toole. This race ended in the closest finish since 1920 when Alf Rodgers beat Jimmy Martin by a few yards. Hundreds grasped the hand of Miles, while his father and mother fondly embraced him. Shortly after O'Toole, came Jimmy Hawboldt, who received an ovation second to none. Hawboldt appeared to be the favorite with the crowd and was wildly acclaimed. Racing home fresh and happy, was Jack Bell, the veteran Newfoundland runner, who second four years ago. Silas McLellan, second last year, romped home in fifth place, showing little or no distress despite his lack of training. Halifax's first representative to finish was Donald Young, Wanderers'. Young ran a fine race and was with the leaders for many miles. He was fresh at the finish and covered the course in fast time. Gower Stone, gave Newfoundland supporters a few happy moments when he appeared in seventh place, necessitating only another in for the club championship.

JIMMY MARTIN IN. Ronald Sherwood, Amherst's champlon, was eighth, barely two seconds ahead of Jimmy Martin. Gray haired and smiling came Martin, hero of the great runs since 1907. He was in excellent condition and the crowd cheered him for several minutes, calling for a speech. Angus MacDonald, champion of Antigonish, followed Martin. MacDonald, who was out of the game several weeks with a broken arm, ran a plucky race and beat out a long list. Young Harry Gough, Trenton's best runner, was eleventh. When Jake Ralph ran across the line in twelfth place, the Newfoundland runners at the finish, sent up a joyous cry, for it meant the club championship. Danny MacDonald, Baddeck, missed a prize by a scant margin, finishing behind Ralph after a great race over the entire course.

WILBERT MOSHER STRONG.

Wilbert Mosher, another veteran of Martin's class, was well up, having entered with only a few days' training. David Slovens, the lone Indian runner in the race, was twenty-third, being ahead of several good runners. One hour and ten minutes after the start, all of the runners had been accounted for, a rarity in the annual races. Second to Newfoundland for the team prize was the Wanderers' Club. Jimmy Martin won the Veteran's Prize, and Danny MacDonald or Jack MacDonald will be awarded the Novice prize. The runners finished as follows:

FATHER AND MOTHER OF JOHN MILES WATCH FAITHFULLY OVER THEIR SON. William L. Young, Strirling, is elected around the United States in quest of ring championships by his father and mother, but the Strirling family has nothing on the Miles' family, of Sydney Mines, N.S. The "ma-ally with their famous young son, Father Miles, an expert in handling athletes, watches over his son's diet and training like a hungry wolf over raw meat. Mr. Miles tells young John what to eat and when to eat, and Mrs. Miles, when home, prepares specialties for the young champion. The training of young Miles is regulated like a high priced time piece and the results are highly displayed. None were more interested in the race here Saturday than the father and mother of the victorious runner who went over the course with their son.

JIMMY MARTIN PRAISES RUN.

"The best race I have ever run in and the managers should be congratulated for the manner in which they handled the race," stated Jimmy Martin, when replying to an ovation at the presentation of the prizes by Alderman L. A. Gastouguay, after Saturday's race. The veteran urged the younger runners to continue in the game with lots of good training.

RETURNING ATHLETES GET A GREAT RECEPTION.

Big Demonstration Arranged For Tomorrow Night. Parade Through Town Headed By Mount Cashel Band. The Newfoundland Track Team, consisting of Ronald O'Toole, Jack Bell, Gower Stone and Jake Ralph, arrived from Halifax by R.M.S. Rosalind at 8 o'clock this morning, accompanied by their manager and trainer, Mr. Eric Robertson. Although the steamer arrived earlier than expected, a large number of citizens, including Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, and the Halifax Marathon Sweepstake Committee were present at the pier, and extended a hearty welcome to the heroes all on their wonderful victory in the Halifax Herald and Evening Mail Modified Marathon Race, which took place at Halifax on Saturday last. As soon as the steamer was safely moored, a mighty cheer went up for the athletes by the large numbers congregated on the wharf, and as soon as the gangway was placed in position, the crowd keyed up with excitement, went on board and greeted each athlete with a hearty handshake. The runners have returned home in excellent health, and feel nothing the worse after the long grind. They regretted the conditions under which the race was contested, but they are nevertheless feeling happy and contented with the showing made. Manager Robertson speaks well of the kind hospitality shown by all Halifaxians, particularly by Mr. Frank Rice, the members of the Imperoyal and St. Mary's Club. The team entered the fray in the pink of condition, he said, and despite the wretched condition of the road, and the heavy downpour of rain, which lasted throughout, they all worked marvellously. The race was a most gruelling one from start to finish, and only for the obstruction to O'Toole in its final stages, the outcome might possibly have been different. O'Toole was running side by side with Miles along South Street, and upon turning into Barrington Street on the home stretch, O'Toole made a sharp turn of the corner and gained about 10 yards on his opponent. At this point a street car turned into the same street. Miles ran around the rear of the car and speeded with it a short distance on the right side of the road. In the meantime O'Toole continued on thinking that Miles was running from the rear, and just as he was about to pass one of the cross streets leading into Barrington, a motor car crossed his running lane, causing him to slow up. If he had continued any further there is a possibility that he might have been caught between the motor car and street car. The motor then backed up and allowed O'Toole to pass and upon continuing his running gait he saw Miles fully fifty yards ahead and "pa" of Young Miles are continuing. O'Toole made a gallant effort to overcome his opponent's lead from then on until the finish, but the attempt proved in vain.

As far as we can understand there was no plan to direct the traffic, and as for the street car traffic, the Management Committee had made arrangements for all cars to stop at a certain period, but the runners arrived on the scene minutes earlier than expected. O'Toole, the real sport that he is, offers no regrets. He speaks well of Miles' ability as a runner, and states that he is a second MacAulay. O'Toole stated, had MacAulay been in the race, the chances are that he would have been defeated.

After the victorious team landed on Terra Nova soil again, an enthusiastic crowd gathered round them, each one being the first to offer congratulations. The runners were then placed in a Victoria, the horse detached and hauled through the city streets, amid an admiring crowd, to the Star Hall, where they were officially welcomed and congratulated. By Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan, and the Halifax Marathon Sweepstake Committee. The various prizes won by our athletes at Halifax were presented, following which the athletes were motored to their homes.

To-morrow night the runners will be present at the Star Hall when a most fitting reception will be tendered them. The Halifax Herald Shield, which has been won by the Nfld. Team, is something worth striving for. The shield is not won outright and has to be returned each year and contested for. The present trophy was put up for competition in 1923, having been won that year by the Crescents. The Halifax Wanderers won it in 1924, followed by the Nfld. A.A.A. for 1925. Each member of the team brought back a silver cup. They are very neat in design and will be prized by the athletes.

In Memoriam

MRS. (Capt.) AUCKINLECK.

(Mother in Israel and a woman beloved.)

(I.C.M.)

Forty-two years of widowhood is a long span, and one which fortunately was to very few to experience, but it was the lot of the late Mrs. Auckinleck, who, at the ripe age of 85, passed away last week.

The deceased lady was a member of one of our oldest families, and some years ago she married Captain Auckinleck, and the young couple made their home near the old residential spot, so long occupied by the Auckinleck family, on Pennywell Road, where for all those years she resided in the same locality. Life with her young couple went well, and their children crowned the home.

and the good captain, with others of his class, made his regular voyages to and from the port of St. John's.

But while life's voyage for the fair bride was long, for the brave captain it proved brief, and tragedy cut short his career, as it has so often done among "those who go down to the sea in ships and do business upon the great waters," and the accident was so unexpected, and happened so near home, and upon such a beautiful summer day, and but a few hours after leaving port, that the sorrow of the loved ones, as well as of the community, was greatly intensified.

The story is as follows. It was an ideal summer day, the date being the 19th of June, 1873, and a moderate breeze blew from the westward. The good ship "Memento" hauled off from Duder's wharf at 10 a.m. and under her topsail ran down the harbour, and then setting her head sails, she shot out the Narrows like a thing of life. Her crew consisted of six all told, under the command of Capt. Auckinleck, with his brother-in-law, Capt. Frederick Adams, as mate. The port of destination was Renewa, where the first cargo of new shore fish was ready. The distance to Renewa was covered with good speed, and towards evening the ship drew in for the harbour, evidently under full sail.

What then happened has ever been a mystery, and like all the mysteries of the sea, the secret is still undid. Whether the ship mistayed or whether the steering gear gave out, or whether the lookout failed, is not known; but the next morning the town was shocked to learn from a boat which had come from Renewa, that the "Memento" had struck Renewa rock, and with all hands, was a total loss. The shock to the firm of Edwin Duder was great; but to the community it was greater; and to the little home on the back of the city, where dwelt the mother and her children, the scene indescribable.

Only the morning before they had watched the little ship sail away, and the run being so short, and the time so fair, there was no thought of shipwreck; but the inevitable had happened, and the ship was no more, and sorrow came to many hearts. And so the years have rolled by, and the feet of foreign-going ships which were the pride of their owners, and the glory of their captains, have departed, many of them meeting the same fate as the "Memento." And through all the years the good woman in whose memory we write proved herself a devoted mother, and in time she became the centre of affection for her children's children, and in health and goodwill she trained them up, and when the ship gradually approached she was ready for the change, and her departure closed the long-broken link of fifty-two years.

Not many of the present day remember the loss of the "Memento," but as the old ballad says:

"There are still the few remaining,
To remind us of the past."

To these few, the passing of Mrs. Auckinleck stirred some touching memories; hence they paid her their last tribute, and stood at the graveside, as the man of God pronounced over her the words of hope and promise of everlasting life.

Confirmation at St. Patrick's Church

CARBONAR.

On the morning of Saturday, 17th inst., the children preparing for Confirmation assembled in the church and had their confessions heard by the priest in attendance. In the afternoon some 92 assembled for examination in Christian Doctrine to qualify for the reception of the Sacrament on the ensuing day.

On Sunday, 18th inst., the Feast of St. Luke, Evangelist, second Mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop March, assisted at the Altar by Rt. Rev. Mgr. McCarthy and Rev. Father Cullen. Following Mass, the Bishop, fully vested for the occasion, proceeded to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to the girls and boys—92 in number.

Previous to the bestowal of this great Sacrament of the Living Bishop in choice and beautiful language, very simply and lucidly explained to the aspirants, the necessity, conditions and advantages of Confirmation. The enlightening discourse could not but have impressed indelibly, even the most youthful of his hearers. It was an instruction that should be vivid in the memories of all for many a day, who were privileged to hear it, and should serve to awaken in the minds of those already confirmed as well as those about to be confirmed the dignity of the Sacrament instituted by our Lord, for the perfection of the Christian life. After His Lordship had fully explained the nature and effects of Confirmation he descended to the altar-rail, where, attended by Rev. Mgr. McCarthy and Father Cullen, he performed the ceremony, with all the beauty and ritual of the Catholic Church. When all had been confirmed His Lordship again addressed the newly-confirmed and congregation as well. He told the children how they were now soldiers of Jesus Christ, and as such, should be ready to die in His holy cause, that the death just received would be their strength and refuge against the assaults of the devil, the world and the flesh, and that if they were not true soldiers of Christ in the battles of life, it would be because they had not made proper use of the graces received. He further remarked that their conduct henceforward should show that they realized the spiritual benefits bestowed upon them by being better children all round, fervent and constant at their prayers and church devotions, better at their daily tasks, better scholars and loving and respectful to those in charge over them. Having thus, the Holy Ghost would abide within them, and would enable them to preserve unblemished the spiritual character imprinted on their souls to-day, so that on the great judgment day it may appear not to their shame, but to their glory.

Next addressing the parents of the children, he fervently exhorted them upon their duties and responsibilities as such. He said God has given them these precious charges. They are yours, to be reared in a Christian way for Heaven, and terrible will be the accounting on the Last Day if the child's guardian angel shall point an accusing finger and say that the soul of this boy or girl has been deprived of the happiness of its God because of the neglect of its father and mother. Therefore, Catholic parents, see to it that you do not shift the responsibility of the Christian upbringing of your children to the school, to the teachers. It is yours to teach them their prayers, their catechism, in co-operation with the school. No one can take the place of father and mother in the child's life. God has so ordained. Work in unity with the teacher, so that this co-operation may result favourably for the spiritual and temporal welfare of the child. Your duty is to see that they are not roaming the streets at night, to know the Company with whom they associate, and to exercise a careful watch over them at all times. Instill in their youthful minds respect and obedience for their teachers and grown upon the conduct of those who would set otherwise. Thus by counsel, precept and good example, you will rear children who in this life will be your joy and happiness, and in the next witnesses before the Great White Throne of the care exercised in their Christian training.

Writers at Full Speed

Famous novelists vary very much in their output during the course of a year, and what one writer would consider to be a reasonable day's work would be looked upon as evidence of a regular slack time by another.

Sir James Barrie considers that an average of five to six hundred words a day is a good day's work, whilst H. G. Wells has often written 10,000 words in a day.

It may be imagined that speed is destructive of good quality work, but a sufficiently powerful retort is made to this in the fact that Robert Louis Stevenson wrote his famous work, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in the short space of seven days.

W. W. Jacobs, famed for his humorous short stories, has confessed that he sat at his desk, pen in hand, for one whole morning without writing a word.

A story is told of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who in the course of conversation heard of a rather remarkable adventure. On the next day, at breakfast, the novelist read out a complete "Sherlock Holmes" adventure, with the incident of previous evening's conversation as its plot. He had sat up the greater part of the night writing it.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHY SHE WAS DISAPPOINTED.

A friend of mine who is a great enthusiast was a very much thrilled last fall over the acquisition of a new friend at her summer home. She was a perfectly wonderful woman, she told me, so brilliant and so sweet and unspoiled. She had only met her at the end of the season and she could hardly wait until the next summer to see more of her. A good deal, I should judge. But when this fall came and she got back home, she talked a good deal less about her. And when I asked if she didn't find her as clever and interesting as ever she said:

Her Terrible Discovery.

"Oh yes, in a way, she really is an unusually bright woman, but, my dear, though I don't like to say it, as I came to know her better I found she wasn't at all the woman I expected her to be. I found she was really essentially selfish."
 She brought this last statement out with an air of pained discovery, something she would never in the world have suspected.
 But why not?
 Are there any of us that aren't essentially selfish?
 Would the human race have survived if that instinct to look after ourselves first were not implanted deep in every human being?
 Of course her friend is essentially selfish at bottom. The question is what is on top of that selfishness, how deep is it buried, how much is it controlled and inhibited?

Great Expectations Dangerous.
 I suppose my friend's present feeling is a reaction against her last summer's enthusiasm. Next summer may find her readjusted to her friend and really enjoying her without such great expectations. She's built that way. A great many of us are. We thrill over the discovery of a new affinity (that word has been woefully abused but does express as no other) the sudden, precious discovery of a kindred mind) we drape him with impossible virtues and are resentful when closer acquaintance pulls the drapery aside and we find he is essentially selfish.

 Of course he is. We all are. Even when the life of some other is dearer to us than our own, that means that we believe we should not be happy without him or her and we want our happiness.

It is the instinct of new friends to show their best side to each other if there is a pull of affinity between them; they kindly to each other, they compliment each other, they are interested in each other's affairs. They come the time when the newness wears off and their strong human interest in themselves comes to the surface. And then with sharp disappointment each makes the discovery (for it shouldn't be surprised if my friend's friend said the same of her) that the other is essentially selfish.

The Road to Contentment.
 Cynical? Pessimistic? On the contrary you will be saved from bitterness and disillusion if you do not ask the impossible, but are ready to accept all the richness of friendship (or love) that is possible between two in whom essential and unescapable selfishness is modified by tact, courtesy, congeniality and affection.

Potential Death in Box of Rocks

MUSEUM EXPERTS GASP AND ACT QUICKLY AT STARTLING FIND.

At least three organizations in Montreal have reason to-day to believe that the poet Grey knew what he was talking about when he wrote "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise." Unpacking a wooden box of rock specimens, the gift of some long-forgotten mineralogist of the Natural History Society, museum experts at the Pathological Institute of McGill saw something which made their scientific hair stand on end. To the casual eye there was nothing to get excited about—just a quart and a half bottle of nitric acid and a ditto bottle of glacial acetic acid lying lovingly together among the rocks. But the men of science paled, gasped for breath, then gave a shout. In the quickest possible time, those two bottles were as far apart as space allowed. They were placed in separate cabinets, and the locks were turned on them.

Nitric acid and glacial acetic acid, it seems are just about as comfortable intimates as gunpowder and a lighted match, or a naked flame in a gas tank. Yet the deadly pair had been bedfellows for years. Glass that jolting of the rocks would have smashed, a common place cork and a glass stopper that might have sprung a leak, but luckily didn't; these were all that stood between fire, explosion and accident or sudden death.

For years that box, with potential death inside, had stood in the cellar of the house on Mountain Street where the Natural History Society regularly held its meetings. On the floor above, the Plymouth Brethren held and still hold their services. Ignorance and bliss, too, was the portion of the men who moved the box from Mountain Street to the Pathological Institute at the top of University Street. Just a slip of the foot, or a jolt or a crash and the next call would have been for the ambulance. But the slip was never made. Only when the box was unpacked did they realize that that must have been their lucky day.

Rocks, nitric and glacial acetic! Certainly there was some triangle, the experts mused, as they went on with their task of sorting the contents of the Natural History Society's Museum, now the property of McGill.—Montreal Star.

THE JESTER.

He was big and full of vigor, and he laughed when people said, "Death will some day pull the trigger of his gun, and you'll be dead; Death, he gathers in the giant, as he gathers the infirm; though you're strong and self-reliant, you can't whip a deadly germ."

You are making no provision for your wife and children too; when you've gone to fields Elysian, what, we ask you, will they do? You're a man of great endurance, you are healthy, you are strong, but you carry no insurance, which is foolish, which is wrong. For old Death, he swats the healthy, they're the sort of game he likes, and his footsteps are so stealthy you don't hear him till he strikes." He was always joking, joshing, when insurance was the theme; and his widow takes in washing, and his hungry children scream. While he lived their lot was easy, they had hats of proper size, in his careless way and breezy he provided priceless pies. In the latter there was plenty, there were always from men, and he'd often hand her twenty when she only asked for ten. In his business he was clever, by competitors admitted; but he thought he'd live forever, and insurance made him tired. But a large and loaded lorry climbed his person on a day, and his widow, sad and sorry, washes duds for meager pay. Linen things and things of cotton she is hanging on the line, for her welfare was forgotten when her man was feeling fine.

"Mother, what would you do if that big vase in the parlour should get broken?" said Tommy.
 "I should whip whoever did it," said Mrs. Rash, gazing severely at her little son.
 "Well, then you'd better begin to get up your muscle," said Tommy, "cos father's broke it!"

Oil From Coal

RESULTS FROM IMPORTANT EXPERIMENTS—BRITISH PROCESS THAT IS AHEAD OF GERMAN.

Of far-reaching importance, from an industrial point of view, are the investigations which have just been concluded by Col. P. J. Eberton, in an adventurous journey by motor across Europe into the black blocks of the Balkan States and Central Europe. The trip combined pleasure with research, and Col. Eberton made a special study of the question of extracting oil from brown coal in Bohemia, and of the system of distillation adopted by the German scientists. His observations show that the latter, in association with commercial men, have drawn up plans for piping gas and producing electricity direct from the mines. They are dividing Germany into sections for this purpose, and intend that distillation shall play the leading part in this evolution. Colonel Eberton is well known as commander of the 51st (London) Anti-Aircraft Brigade, and was responsible for organizing the air raids over the metropolis. In an interview with a "News of the World" representative, the other day, he dwelt upon the vital importance to this country of the development of the oil and coal industry. "During my tour through Bohemia and Germany," he observed, "I was given exceptional opportunities for studying this matter, and was in touch with the leading chemists and professors. So far as Germany is concerned, they consider that the capital employed and working costs of their present system of distillation are too high, and although they are actually producing over a million tons of oil a day by a process of carbonisation, they now aim at placing themselves entirely independent of foreign oil by a system of distillation. For that purpose they have examined every known process in Europe and America. It is interesting to know that developments have taken place in England within the last three weeks, in which

Germany have apparently assisted. These experiments in a system which has been evolved in England. The tests showed that the final residue contained oils of greater value than could be produced under any low temperature conditions. Incidentally it was shown that coke could be produced at comparatively insignificant cost. It struck me that the Germans are convinced that distillation is bound up with the economic reconstruction of Europe. They are far-seeing people, and there is no doubt that with that object in view they are endeavouring to acquire torbaidie and annex coal areas throughout Europe, since these coals are rich in oils. The crux of the question as I envisaged from the opportunities afforded me is that coal will no longer have to cope with coal, but can now enter markets, such as oil, power gas and domestic gas, and by powdering the residual fuel produce a material which can be as easily handled as oil and at less than half the cost for the same efficiency. But it does not end there, for the residual fuel can be briquetted and, being smokeless, can compete in the anthracite and domestic coal market. The energy displayed in Germany, and the mines that are being adapted for the distillation schemes, suggest that dormant mines in this country might be set up again. The discovery seems to have limitless possibilities, as the opening up of new areas and restarting of mines at present closed down would enable us to extract oil with a view to being independent of the foreign oil market. The eminent German specialist in oil extraction, to whom I had introductions, expressed it as his considered opinion that, for the purpose of distilling brown coal, the system evolved in this country was the best. The admission is flattering to us, but it is not the first time that we have gone one better, for when the Germans used gas for the first time in the war, we followed some months later with a superior article in that weapon of destruction. In Vienna I had long conversation with the eminent chemist and oil expert, Professor Stracke, who stated that coal was being produced in increased quantities in Austria, but that it was of too low grade for extraction of oil. Professor Stracke was keenly interested in the experiments now being carried out privately in this country, and it was gratifying to hear that British attempts to solve the problem of distillation may be crowned with success."

Rest Pauses

for Housewives

Dr. Whitford Cullis was the guest and speaker of the York Women's Luncheon Club.

Rest pauses, Dr. Cullis said (towards the Yorkshire Post), had been introduced into many big works with great success, and as a result the output was increased, and the fatigue of the worker considerably reduced. She urged that if these rest pauses and consistent methods of working were introduced by the housewife into the running of her home, she would get through her tasks more smoothly and would benefit even as the factory worker has benefited.

What the Russians Purchased

Mr. E. F. Wise gives an interesting account in Foreign Affairs of the recent Russian Purchasing Commission which visited this country. He says: "As the financial papers recorded, Centroscopus—the Co-operative Wholesale Society of Russia—was able through its relations with the Co-operative Wholesale Society of England and with leading firms in Manchester to place orders running into hundreds of thousands of pounds on satisfactory short-term credit conditions. Moreover, orders on similar terms, and in some cases even better terms, were placed with the textile industries of Germany, France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Holland, and America.

"The other problem, that of providing textile machinery, is more difficult. Capital equipment of this sort in any ordinary commercial undertaking can only be paid off over a period of years, unless, of course, there happens to be either an accumulation of capital, or a loan or other fresh capital available. In Russia no such accumulation was available.

"In this respect the present position of the Russian textile industry differs not at all from its pre-revolution position, or indeed from similar industries in other countries. It is necessary, in order to finance such purchases, that payments should be spread over two to three years. "After considerable negotiations, orders for over £1,000,000 sterling have been placed on the basis of about 30 per cent. cash before actual shipment of the machinery—construction taking some months—the balance being spread over two and a-half years, though details differ in particular cases. These terms can be regarded as satisfactory, both from the Russian and the British point of view. The unsatisfactory part is that it has not been possible to place more than about a quarter to one-third of the orders that were intended, since many firms, though quite willing to undertake business on these terms with considerable responsibility themselves, could not in fact provide the necessary finance."

Striking Miners Given Support by Labor Convention

John L. Lewis Says Operators Extorting Millions From Public.—Davies Attacked.—Condemned for Agitation to Abolish Free Speech in Senate.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 15.—(A.P.)—Support of the American Federation of Labor was accorded the $58,000 striking miners in the anthracite field yesterday, after President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers had addressed the delegates and stirred them to enthusiasm by his recital of conditions in the industry.

Mr. Lewis said the miners would not falter or depart from the policy laid down and he warned the public it was due for a "rude awakening" if it believed there was an ample supply of coal at hand. "Hundreds of thousands of homes will be without fuel, and will be unable to secure fuel," he said, "until it can be produced at the mines and distributed."

Mr. Lewis also charged that the operators were extorting millions of dollars from the public by selling inferior grades of coal. The convention adopted more than fifty resolutions of varied character yesterday. Among the outstanding resolutions adopted was one restating labor's traditional opposition to "injunction abuses," but going a step further by Advocating legislative enactment to limit the power of equity courts. Vice-President Chas. G. Dawes came in for condemnation for conducting an agitation for the purpose of abolishing free speech in the United States Senate, the only forum where closure does not exist and where members can prevent the passage of reactionary legislation.

"The people should be awakened to the fact," said the resolution adopted "that the agitation for closure does not come from the people, but emanates in the secret chambers of the predatory interests. It is a vicious idea, a vicious purpose to which the Vice-President has loaned himself. And we recommend that every means be taken to expose this un-American proposal.

The convention voted to refer to the Executive Council a proposal favoring disarmament and calling for an international conference in Washington in the spring of 1926.

Another resolution said: "Against the Communist boring from within we recommend that drastic action which the surgeons takes against a malignant growth—removal of all affected tissues. To temporize is to endanger the health of the whole organization." In his address to the delegates on the anthracite strike, President Lewis made charges against the operators never before made during the controversy.

Mix With Domestic

He said in part: "The anthracite operators are exporting from the public a sum which ranges between sixteen million and twenty million dollars annually to which they have no decent claim. When they appeal to the public for support they come into court with unclean hands. In April of this year they put through a resoling of the coal with the retailers which gives the operators a chance to work off their steam sizes on the public by mixing them with the domestic sizes and charging the old prices. The retailers feared that if they protested they would be cut off and given no more coal to sell. The public is now paying for the old names at the old prices and getting much smaller stuff to burn. They not only lowered the sizes outright, but introduced the round mesh in place of the square mesh in the breaker screens. This move alone means a reduction of one-fifth in the size of practically every grade of coal. The mesh for chestnut and pea sizes had been changed so that between one-fourth and 30 per cent. of all pea coal sold is now sold as chestnut. The difference in price between the two sizes is $3.15 per ton and stands to pay the operators $4,525,550 for their shrewdness."

PREMIER'S IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT—VISIT TO GLASGOW SLUMS.

A parenthetical remark by Mr. Baldwin in his speech in acknowledgment of the granting of the freedom of Glasgow, a week ago, disclosed the fact of a three-hours' visit to the slums. Whereas in Dundee a request to show the slums was granted in the form of an engagement sandwiched into the official programme, in the case of Glasgow Mr. Baldwin, for reasons of his own, made it clear that he would like to see the slums. He accordingly made an unofficial pretence to the effect that he was to appear as the central figure.

The plans were arranged with every care to avoid publicity, and they were successfully carried through. He devoted fully three hours to inspecting slum properties in both Glasgow and Anderson (the latter part of the constituency of Kelvin, represented by Captain Elliott, the Member, who acts as Parliamentary Secretary to the Scottish Board of Health), not a whisper was heard of his visit until he himself dropped a hint in his speeches.

It was Mr. Baldwin's own desire to see the darker spots of the city in his everyday guise. Accompanied by Dr. A. K. Chalmers, until recently Medical Officer of Health for the city, who acted as his guide, Mr. Baldwin visited some of the worst slum dwellings in Glasgow. He entered and inspected a number of the houses, chatting with the people living in them, and so far as could be observed completed his tour without being recognized.

A Great Welcome.

At none of the numerous functions which the Prime Minister attended during the day did the cordial welcome with which the citizens greeted him everywhere find more complete expression than at the Freedom ceremony in St. Andrew's Hall, at which Mr. Baldwin was admitted to the select and distinguished company of honorary burghesses of the city. For almost half an hour before noon, the hall at which the ceremony began, practically every seat in the spacious interior of the hall was occupied, and the proceedings were conducted amid every evidence of spontaneous enthusiasm. The large audience was representative of all sections of the city's life, and it was with very apparent pleasure that they took advantage of the opportunity to give expression to the feelings of personal goodwill to the Prime Minister with which all were obviously animated and their delight that the civic authorities had seen fit to offer him the highest honour in the gift of the community.

In the interval between the Freedom ceremony and the other engagements the Premier, who was accompanied by Mrs. Baldwin, was entertained at a civic luncheon in the City Chambers. Replying to the toast of "Glasgow's Youngest Burgess," he remarked that there was nothing that strengthened one's hand, or sent one on one's way rejoicing, more than the cordialship which they gave in the great work of the government of the country.

Scots Housing Proposal.

Opportunity was taken by the Prime Minister to make an important announcement affecting the Scottish housing. Mr. Baldwin said that whereas in England they were overtaking housing arrears, in Scotland they were still accumulating. He understood it would be years before the building trade in Scotland was able to provide even for normal annual demands. Meanwhile they had an accumulated deficit at 150,000 houses. People were living and dying in hovels, and the Government could not stand by and accept this position without doing all in their power to remedy it. The only method suggested for dealing with the situation in a satisfactory manner was to use the immense capabilities of the engineering industry until the building trades were again in a position to cope with it.

The ordinary Government subsidy under Mr. Wheatley's Act was estimated to be worth in capital value about £150 per house. In order to get manufacturers going on mass production the Government had decided to supplement this subsidy for the first 4000 houses of alternative types in Scotland by a premium of £40, making a total subsidy in each case equivalent to £200. The Prime Minister appealed to Scottish local authorities to give the offer most careful and sympathetic consideration and to make immediate application to the Board of Health to participate in it to the fullest possible extent.

At the opening of the Knightswood scheme the Prime Minister said he wanted to attack housing to-day as we attacked shells in the war.

Mrs. Baldwin Touched.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin afterwards look part in the opening of the new Municipal Child Welfare Centre at St. Peter Street, Bridgeton.

Walking in the narrow thoroughfare with the blank railway wall facing the houses and the new building where thousands of people in working-class attire, many women clad in shawls and holding babies. The enthusiasm of

A Land of Oil

Many centuries ago Palestine was called "a land flowing with milk and honey," and to-day Texas may be called a land flowing with oil.

In 1886, when an enterprising pioneer dug the first Texan well with a pick and shovel at Oil Springs, few people dreamed that the petroleum resources of Texas were later to be counted among the greatest in the world.

There are now a hundred producing areas in the State, from which half a million gallons of crude oil are produced daily from depths varying from 60ft. to more than a mile. Official figures show that to-day Texas is furnishing more than a seventh part of the world's production of petroleum. A certain Captain Lucas accidentally bored through oil near Beaumont, and when he removed the drill an oil geyser rose to a height of a hundred feet. In a short time this "rusher" was delivering 3,000 barrels an hour.

Sapping the Buffalo

Many people recall "Buffalo Bill." He got his name from his prowess as a hunter of the American bison. He, and others, almost exterminated this magnificent beast, which, within the memory of many now living, roamed the prairies of the United States and Canada in vast herds.

To-day the only buffaloes left in the United States are preserved in Yellowstone Park; but in Canada, where there is more room, the buffalo is likely to become a national asset and a source of revenue.

It is estimated that there are in Canada 10,000 head of buffalo, and their preservation is due to the late Lord Strathcona, who, nearly fifty years ago, collected a small herd for his estate near Winnipeg. They flourished and increased, and were bought by the Government to stock the national park at Banff, in the Rockies.

When the herd had increased to about 700 it was removed to 150 square miles of territory in Alberta. Here the herd thrived, and now it is about 8,000 strong. The Dominion has established another herd in Alberta, at Elk Island Park.

New Apparatus for Measuring Depth of Water

A new apparatus for ascertaining the depth of water at sea has been developed by the British Admiralty Research Laboratory. According to advice received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, this apparatus, originally developed for the use of the Royal Navy, will be put at the service of merchant ships and will provide an additional safeguard to such ships, because with this method of sounding the ship usually is able to take a more or less correct record of the depth of water and to proceed along a river or approach the coast without slackening speed.

The new method of depth sounding is known as "echo sounding," and depends upon the principle that sound travels in water at a known speed and is reflected from the sea bed in the same way that a sound wave is reflected from hills and cliffs. The essential features are: (1) the apparatus to produce a sound wave under water, known as the transmitter; (2) a sensitive receiver of the echo reflected from the sea bed known as the hydrophone; (3) the recording gear for measuring the interval of time between the sound impulse and the sound echo.

To take a concrete example, the average velocity over a depth of 30 fathoms of sound in sea water of 35 per cent. salinity and at a temperature of 15 degrees cent. is 4935 ft. per second. Let us suppose the angular displacement of the brushes relative to the insulating segment in the telephone circuit when an echo is heard is 18 degrees. The time taken by the segment to rotate through 18 degrees is 18/360 by 1/2 second, or 1-60th second, since the segment goes round three times per second. In this time the sound will have travelled 82 1/2 ft., and the depth of water is, therefore, a little under seven fathoms. In practice no amplification is required, this depth being read directly on a dial. While taking soundings on this principle is not absolutely new, it is claimed that the British Admiralty is the first to project a simple system suitable for use on merchant ships as well as ships of the Navy. The cost of the apparatus is about £30.

particular father had given his sons a 'sound' education, and though he might have given them money over and above that he clearly felt that his duty as their parent was best discharged by requiring them to struggle, and no doubt, he himself had struggled.

"He belonged to a wise, if not particularly popular, type of father. Struggle is the salt of success.

"There is, however, much to excuse the father who provides for his son when he dies. There is, for instance, his pride. The least sentimental of men enjoys the thought that when he is gone his sons may refer to him as 'a good sort.'

"And if this quality of 'good sortness' is expressed in a honest, perhaps we ought not to expect anything else in an age so many of whose values are expressed in terms of money. That it is always good for the son is doubtful. 'Fendings' for yourself develops an independence which the son misses who merely takes over his father's banking account."

Dr. R. T. Stick has resumed practice from to-day, Oct. 20th, 195 Water Street, opp. City Club.—oct20.5.

Charge of Fraud Involves $63,648

Arrested on a charge of defrauding his creditors of the sum of $63,648, J. W. H. Bellisle appeared in court this morning before Judge Cusson and was remanded for preliminary inquiry to next Thursday, bail being set at $5,000.

Mr. Bellisle was president of the J. W. Bellisle Co., of Montreal, which failed last February.

The charges contain seven counts under sections 417, 418 and 69 of the Criminal Code. It is alleged he removed, concealed or disposed of his assets; that he did not keep proper books of account; that he made fraudulent entries and that he abetted other persons in the commission of the foregoing offenses.—Montreal Star, Oct. 15.

Father and Son

"How many fathers are there who will follow the example of the man who in his will published recently," says the Daily Graphic, "bequeathed nothing to his sons because, as he wrote, the family tradition was that sons should fend for themselves and have every incentive to make their way in life?"

"Probably not too many. This par-

"Mother, mother," shouted her bunny boy, as he hopped up the little path through the bramble bushes to the kitchen door of the tiny white bungalow.

"Here comes our little rabbit boy," sang the pretty canary bird. "He wants to tell to Lady Love All he just has heard."

Goodness me, Little Readers. How did this little bunny know that Professor Jim Crow had been reading from his Wisdom Book to the bunny boy?

"What do you want?" asked pretty Lady Love, from her flower garden, where the asters and goldenrod were smiling under the rays of Mr. Merry Sun up in the Blue Sky Country.

"Professor Jim Crow has just told me some wonderful things," panted her little rabbit son, his eyes shining with excitement.

"Tell me, bunny boy," begged the loving lady rabbit, sitting down on the steps and drawing her little bunny close to her.

"All about trees," answered the little rabbit. "I never knew that the trees in the autumn draw back the green pulp from their leaves and store it away in the twigs to feed the birds in the springtime."

"I'm glad you remembered it so well," answered her pretty mother, smoothing the wrinkled brow of her bunny boy. "What else did he say?"

"Oh, yes, now I remember. The bud puts forth leaves or flowers. Pretty soon the twigs are covered with leaves. Isn't that wonderful?"

Just then who should come by but Professor Jim Crow himself. Strange how sometimes the person about whom we are talking suddenly puts in an appearance. One reason, Little Readers, we should be careful never to say disagreeable things about others. That's only one reason. Another is, why shouldn't we say nice things or none at all. Yes sir. Kind hearts always say nice things, or keep still. You remember the little tattling girl in 'Mother Goose' whose tongue was slit because she told on other children.

"Hello, bunny boy," cawed the old professor bird, settling himself on the clothes line. "Found something more about trees when I reached home. So over here I came to give you another lesson."

"Sit down between us," invited Lady Love. "We can look over your shoulder at the pictures." So down fluttered the wise old crow, and squeaking between the two little bunnies, he opened his Wisdom Book. Then placing his spectacles upon his beak, he turned to page 999 and began to read aloud.

"When the leaves of the sugar maple give back their pulp a yellow liquid fills the empty pulp cells, which colors the leaf from red and yellow. It is the mineral iron, brought up by the sap from the soil water, that turns the leaf a bright red."

"See that scarlet yonder," said Lady Love. "Its leaves are a more brilliant red. It has fewer yellow leaves than the sugar maple."

"Ha, ha," added Professor Jim Crow, your mother knows a thing or two, and maybe three or four. She bakes delicious angel cakes and sweeps the kitchen floor." Goodness me, Little Readers! There goes that solemn old 'crow spouting' poetry! Isn't it wonderful? Maybe he'll write a pretty verse for 'Uncle Dave's' next story.

Giants for Guards

ONLY SIX-FOOT MEN NOW ACCEPTED AS RECRUITS.

According to a new Army Order, which recently came into force, only recruits who are at least 5ft. in height can be accepted for the Guards regiments. This exacting rule has already led to a marked falling-off in the number of acceptable recruits. At Great Scotland Yard, the London recruiting headquarters, for example, only one recruit has been sent to barracks since the new order operated. "It is astonishing how few men there are who actually stand 5ft. in their socks," declared a recruiting officer. "Plenty of men think they are 5ft. tall, but they are nearly an inch or two inches less." Under the order which has been superseded iron could be taken for the Irish Guards, at 5ft. 8in. and upwards; for the Grenadier, Coldstream, and Scots Guards at 5ft. 9in., and for the Welsh Guards at 5ft. 10in. In the last case Welshmen had a concession—they could get in at 5ft. 9in. Infantry recruits need be only 5ft. 8in., and for artillery men only 5ft. 7in. will do. A call for 6ft. men only for all the Guards regiments is thought to be a record. The reason for the change is because the battalions are over strength.

SUZANNE POWERS, was seen this past season in "Tarnish," "The Potters," and "The Bluebird."

She writes: "Women who have adopted the new severely plain mode in hair-dressing find in Stacom's a delightful and effective aid. Very few women can achieve this desirable effect without it." (7)

Mission Circle
Sale and Tea

The Gower Street Church Mission Circle Sale and Tea which opened yesterday afternoon was a greater success financially than last year's event. The sale was formally opened at 4.30 by Mrs. (Dr.) Macpherson, who referred to the object for which it was being held and complimented the members of the circle on their efforts. The stalls were very prettily arranged and well stocked with vegetables, pickles, cakes, candies, preserves and fancy work for which the ladies in charge found ready purchasers so that the supplies rapidly diminished. At 6 p.m. meat teas were served to a very large number, many who had found it impossible to attend earlier being present.

A most enjoyable concert was also held at the close of which all the goods remaining unsold were auctioned. Those who took part in the concert were:—Miss J. Taylor, Mrs. C. Garland, Miss R. Curtis, Mrs. D. Johnston and Mr. F. Wylie, Mrs. S. Clift, Mrs. B. Leslie, Miss E. Tait at the piano acted as accompanist.

Medical Movies

In the back garden of an old house in Bermoundsey is a film studio which possesses novel aspects. Here are produced, under the guidance of Dr. R. King Brown, Medical Officer of Health for Bermoundsey, propaganda pictures dealing in matters of public health and well-being. Subjects of the films include child welfare and the prevention of contamination of food by flies. Dr. Connan, who is in charge of the propaganda work of the department, acts as producer, camera man, and writer of the "sub titles," while all the actors are clerks, doctors and nurses on the staff of the department.

On a large wooden platform at the bottom of the garden the various scenes are "shot," and whenever filming is in progress a large crowd of Bermoundsey's children may be seen gathered outside the wall, hoping for jobs as scene-shifters or "supers." This "film advice" is given in a straightforward way, and is not wrapped up in stories with imaginary characters. Dr. Connan says that he finds people pay more attention to the advice given if it is done this way. After all, it is so easy to make baby's bath-time into a humorous episode if one is not very careful.

The only part of the work not done by the Health Department staff is the developing and finishing of the films. This is a highly technical matter, and is better left in the hands of experts.

Science Has Become Practical

"Science and faith, as Pasteur saw and taught, are the expressions of different and distinct attitudes of the human spirit," comments the Evening Standard. "It is no inconsiderable gain that this point of view has been generally adopted, because, by abandoning her claims to explain the ordering of the universe, science has set herself free for more useful, if less abstruse, activities."

AT THE FAIR

The Industrial Fair at the Prince's and Curling Rinks attracted some hundreds of visitors yesterday afternoon and night. The music by the C.C. Band, Prince's Orchestra, and the Lees as well as the vaudeville and dancing as on previous days were attractions which helped largely in making the affair enjoyable. The various competitions are proving an excellent drawing card, judging by the crowds which gather around the booths where they are held. At Baird's Booth yesterday the prize was won by Miss Sutton of William Street with ticket 716. The painstaking manner in which the attendants at the different stalls demonstrate their wares is one of the most pleasing features of the exhibit, and the result is bound to show in increased sales.

A. M. PENMAN CO.

A. M. Penman & Co. have a large booth in which is displayed a high grade Chestertield Suite, locally manufactured, and several tables of dainty design and finish. On one side of the booth are to be found musical instruments made by the well known Heitzman Piano Company, Toronto, Canada. Included in the exhibit is a unique collection of Italian novelties, consisting of leather pocket books, pens and trinkets. Situated on one end of the booth is a player piano where an assistant is engaged to play any piece of music desired. The locally manufactured upholstery in particular has evoked very favourable comment.

A. E. HURMAN & CO., LTD.

Here is displayed the firm's well known agencies, viz., Bibby's Best, Fremolive, a special made shortening, Perfect Baking Powder, Borden's Evaporated and Betty Condensed Milk. There is also a varied assortment of popular tobaccos, done up in neat packages, such as Edgeworth, Richmond's Best, Jimbo, both cut and plug. One of the chief lines carried in this booth is Plymouth Rope, of various sizes. The rope is rolled and displayed in Pyramid form, and alongside is shown a sample of the Manila fibre of which it is manufactured. It is known as "The Rope You Can Trust." Another striking feature of the exhibit is the Dorey Brand Oil Clothes and Fisherman's Rubber Suits manufactured in Canada. Here is also shown a line of Rubber Boots, Gaiters and Overshoes for both men and women, including the well known Black Diamond.

This firm also carries a fine line of Oceanic Sail Duck manufactured in America. The whole display is not only pleasing to the eye, but is convincing of quality.

RIVERSIDE WOOLEN MILLS, LTD.

The Riverside Woollen Mills have a booth arranged on a most elaborate scale. On one side of the Riverside Blankets are prominently displayed, namely the Baby Blankets, the Lumberman's Blanket, and the Scarlet Blanket also used in all the local hospitals. On the other side is shown Yarn, Wools, etc., Overcoatings, Home Spun, Scotch, etc. The products shown were awarded a certificate and medal at the Woolley Exhibition last year. A number of Riverside Blankets will be given free each day of the Fair to the person who forecasts the attendance daily at the Fair. The local products at the Booth, and particularly the blankets, have to be seen to be appreciated. Adjacent to this booth is a stall fitted out with office furniture supplied by the Royal Stores, Ltd. It includes all office requisites, desks, book cases, office stools, etc. Mr. W. M. MacKay, the organizer, conducts all his business in connection with the Fair from this corner.

STANDARD MFG. COMPANY.

The display of the Standard Manufacturing Co. is one of the best in the Exhibition. In the centre of the booth is a model dwelling house, painted with Matchless Paint, and in the background are two topmast schooners, the hulls of which are painted with Ocean Brand Marine. Hence can be seen the various products of the company such as Matchless Paint, Ocean Brand Marine Paint, Lustra Floor Paint, besides the very fine brand of oil clothing which is in great demand by the fishermen. In this exhibit the linoleum on the floor is painted with their own local product named Lustra, which gives a very fine effect. On one side of the floor there is a portion of the linoleum left unpainted for purposes of comparison. Every day during the continuance of the Fair, a number of buttons will be distributed to children at this Booth. Amongst each lot of buttons is a duplicate, and to the one who finds it, a prize will be awarded at the company's office. The motto of this well known firm is: "We make the crowd boast we have no equals and few superiors in Matchless Paints."

Dole Before Migration

Striking instances of the demoralizing effect of the dole upon the young and able-bodied people of the country is to be found in the experiences of the Australian migration officials, who have completed this week-end tour of the southwest portions of England in search of suitable men and women as emigrants to the Dominion.

"They visited Portsmouth, Southampton, Weymouth, Dorchester, Plymouth and Truro. At Southampton they found no fewer than 6,000 people receiving the dole, and the majority of these were eligible and suitable candidates for emigrants to Australia. Despite an intensive propaganda campaign and innumerable interviews, only seven offered themselves as prospective emigrants.

"At another town there were between 40 and 50 young women queuing up at a Labour Exchange, and the Australian migration official, after a casual glance along the line, made a bold offer to take the lot for domestic service in Australia. Not one applied for further information on the matter. Out of thousands of unemployed, addressed by the migration authorities in the towns visited, 150 sought interviews, and 50 were provisionally accepted."

London Scientist Martyr to Work

OVERCOME IN SEARCH FOR POISON GAS TO KILL INSECTS.

London, Oct. 15.—Professor H. Maxwell Lefroy, of the Imperial College of Science, is dead, a martyr to his search for poison gas, which would rid houses of insects.

Prof. Lefroy was found in his laboratory, Saturday, unconscious from the effects of a preparation composed of lewisite gas and other ingredients known only to him. He was rushed to a hospital, but there is no known antidote for lewisite, a gas which was perfected during the final weeks of the war and which would have been loosed over the Western Front if the struggle had continued a few days longer. It is odorless and colorless.

The dead man's associates describe him as the greatest authority in the world in his particular line. He is believed to have been on the eve of an important discovery when he was stricken. If so, he takes his secret to the grave, for he did not recover consciousness at the hospital.

A gas which would kill insects, but which would not harm human beings, was the professor's goal.

Obituary

PETER NEVILLE.

There passed away suddenly this morning, an old and respected resident of St. John's West, in the person of Peter Neville of the Blackmarsh Road. The deceased, although advanced in years, was able to be about and yesterday as usual superintended the work about his farm, and on returning last night seemed in his usual good health, but very early this morning passed suddenly away. He was admired for his many many qualities of mind and heart, a good neighbor and a true friend in time of trouble or affliction. His wife predeceased him about two years ago. Left to mourn are 4 sons, 1 daughter and 1 sister. Mrs. Henry Morey; John J. of West End stand, Denis at home, Patrick J. of Elevated R. R. Co., Boston, and Joseph, Chief of Police of Mace, Idaho, U.S.A. and Mrs. N. J. Murphy. The funeral will take place at 2.15 p.m. Saturday from his late residence, "Spring Mount" Farm, Blackmarsh Road via Hamilton Avenue. The Telegram extends sympathy to the bereaved.

Oporto Market

A paragraph of a letter to the Secretary of the Newfoundland Board of Trade, from Messrs. Lind & Couto, Oporto, under date of Sept. 28th, points to the fact that a very bad business policy is being pursued by our exporters. The extract is as follows:—

The demand for British fish was last week slightly less than for the week preceding. The bulk of the sales was again of inferior qualities which are fairly rapidly going into consumption. Prices are not as steady as they should be and holders of Newfoundland fish do not seem to realize that presently they will have the market practically to themselves. It is too much to hope that the present situation will longer be maintained and as shippers cannot be making even small profits at the prices now being realized it seems to us almost deplorable that there exists an apparent desire to sell at any price.

The Beautiful Woman

takes the greatest care to protect and nourish her skin and not to give the fatal wrinkles a chance to form. After cleansing her face she rubs in with an upward and outward motion a generous amount of Three Flowers skin and Tissue Cream. The pure oils it contains are quickly absorbed by the tissues. The lady whose skin is inclined to be dry finds in this splendid cosmetic the means to replace the natural oil her skin lacks, while the woman whose skin is inclined to be too oily finds that a thorough cleansing with Three Flowers Skin and Tissue Cream opens the overladen pores and helps them throw off the excessive oils. Thus does this beautiful cream benefit every woman's skin.—oct22,h,m,t

Communists in Jail Following Raids on "Reds"

BRITISH GOVERNMENT HARD ON HEELS OF MUTINY ADVOCATES — NATION AROUSED.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(A.P.)—The British Government is hard on the heels of the communists, whose alleged activities in broadcasting pamphlets inciting soldiers and sailors to mutiny, had fed the flames of popular anger against them.

Raids were made last night on communist headquarters and at least one other communist centre in London. Although they were sensational in their suddenness, it had been suspected by both the public and the communists themselves that they were in preparation. When the net had been drawn tight, it was found that a considerable number of the followers of the red banner, were in the toils, some of them of considerable prominence. All of them are charged with conspiring to incite "sedition and mutiny."

Home Secretary Hicks, in replying to the outcry of anti-communists during recent speeches, made no secret of the fact that the Government was taking a serious view of the situation and was prepared for a progressive action if it found a "strong case against the reds." The difficulty in dealing with the extremists, Mr. Hicks said in a speech at Liverpool was that they were British subjects and, as such, entitled to the Government's protection as long as they did not pass the very narrow line which separated what was constitutional and what was unconstitutional.

It is known that the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General for some time have been investigating Communist activities and it was presumed that they now have decided that the Reds have passed over the "narrow line" to the wrong side. Whether the incitements to mutiny actually were due to the Communist party or to individual Communists acting independently, is yet to be proved.

Acted Quickly

It has been charged unofficially, against the communists, that they have been preparing a campaign of violence with a view to terrorizing the public and undermining confidence, and also that they were arranging to bring alien criminals from various parts of Europe, to aid in carrying out their plans.

Last night's raids seemed to have been decided on quickly. Warrants were obtained in private, from the Bow Street Magistrate, and the Scotland Yard men acted so swiftly and secretly that hours passed before the news leaked out. It is asserted in some quarters, that in addition to headquarters and the other Communist center raided in London, several private houses in London and some in the provinces, also were invaded by the police.

The police chose an auspicious moment to swoop down on headquarters for most of the leaders were there. Particularly notable was the arrest of Albert Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party, who has been one of the most active workers in the Communist movement since its beginning here. He has been secretary and national organizer of the party since 1920, and for some time one of the honorary presidents of the Communist International.

John Campbell, editor of the Workers' Weekly, who also was taken into custody, is credited with being the brainiest man in the party. He has been in the public eye before when he was tried in 1924 on a charge of inciting to mutiny. Campbell escaped conviction, and it was said, this was because the Labor Government of Premier MacDonald refrained from submitting evidence it had against him.

Harry Pollitt, another under-estimated, is an energetic public speaker and often has been in the news. He belongs to the Red International of the labor unions.

E. Cant, a party organizer; W. Rust, secretary of the Young Communists League, and P. H. Winfrim, a member of the staff of the Workers' Weekly, are among others who are said to be in jail.

The six Communist leaders, taken in the raid on the party headquarters, were arraigned in the Bow Street police court to-day and charged with conspiring to incite sedition and mutiny. They were remanded until October 23, on bail of £200 each. The court room was packed, the spectators including the wives of four of the accused men. Sir Archibald Rodkin, Dictator of Public Prosecutions, was at the counsel's bench, while Sir Travers Humphreys briefly outlined the case for the prosecution.

Thomas Bell, a Communist, has been taken into custody at Glasgow and William Gallacher, at Paisley. Both are being sent to London.

PUNTA ALEGRE SUGAR
Earned About $3 a Share on Last Crop—Has No Bank Loans.

Notwithstanding the fact that the raw sugar market has persistently sagged to the lowest price since 1922 of 2 1/2 cents for Cubas, sugar stocks as a group have held steady. Punta Alegre, for example, sold Tuesday at 35-36 as against 33 immediately after the passing of the dividend in the latter part of July.

A price of 2 1/2 cents for Cuban raw sugar delivered at New York certainly does not spell affluence for the company producing the sugar. As a matter of fact, sugar is to-day selling well below the average cost of production in Cuba. There is a difference of opinion as to just what this average production cost is, but it is probably not far from 2 1/2 cents a pound. No essential commodity can sell indefinitely at a price below the average cost of production; nevertheless on top of this last crop exceeding 5,000,000 tons Cuba is facing another large out-turn in 1926. Thus it is not possible as yet to discern any relief from the depressing effect of large sugar supplies.

While Punta Alegre in order to conserve cash resources felt it desirable to pass the $1.25 quarterly dividend two months ago the company is notwithstanding in excellent financial shape. It owes nothing to the banks as against $1,500,000 of acceptances on May 31, 1925, and is not likely to be a borrower until the next grinding season begins. In the usual course of business the company assumes contingent liability for borrowings of its colonies, but it has no notes payable of its own. Of the past crop, totalling 1,825,000 bags, Punta Alegre has sold all but about 175,000 bags. For the fiscal 12 months ending Sept. 30, the company should show in the vicinity of $3 a share earned for the 281,500 shares of stock, which will be only a little less than dividends paid during the period aggregating $3.75 a share.

Punta Alegre expects another large crop next year. While the all important factor of price is naturally not to the liking of any sugar producer, this company has accomplished notable things in cost reduction and should be able to go along making ends meet even with sugar at the present low price.

Punta Alegre Sugar is to-day selling in the market at the equivalent of about $9 a bag of production. In Cuba it is commonly assumed that around $30 a bag is a fair valuation for the stock of a producing company. Put another way, tangible values behind 381,500 shares of Punta Alegre stock, after marketing all intangibles down to $1, are equivalent to about $61 a share as compared with the present market of about $35.

The Talking Truth

Women, from time immemorial, have been the target for many jokes dealing with their talkativeness, and, although there are those who would deny it, yet it is a fact, proven by tests, that women do talk much more than men. Count it not, however, as a fault or a vice. As a matter of scientific truth it is a perfectly natural proceeding.

A woman's brain is smaller than that possessed by the average male, but it is of much better quality. It works quicker in every way, and that portion of it which translates thought into speech is very highly developed. This Eve was intended by Nature to be the greater talker. And that's why she is.

Further, observation and experience prove that Eve has another wonderful natural gift—that of instinct. It guides her, and rarely wrongly, to conclusions and judgments that the average man only reaches after quite a lengthy period of mental reasoning. So while he is pondering laboriously, and saying nothing, Eve, having reached the goal, states her opinion forthwith. That's talking.

Another view put forward to account for women's greater talkativeness is that the sex, as a whole, is interested in little things, and the latter always claim a larger amount of chatter. That may be so—or not. Probably not. Talking is a gift, and women merely use it.

New Vessels for Oil and Petrol Distribution

"The vast amount of British labour employed directly and indirectly by a first-class petroleum distributing company is almost unknown to the general public. Apart from the comprehensive organisation engaged on the actual distribution work, the coastal and river craft needed, the tankage to be erected, and the fleets of road and rail tank wagons to be built, renewed and kept in repair, give employment to large numbers," says the Oil News, which gives particulars of five new vessels on order for early delivery for the proprietors of Pratt's motor spirit.

"It is not widely realised that such a large concern is ever extending its present establishment and creating new facilities. In a competitive trade the dealer and the consumer demand more and more facilities by way of quickness and convenience of delivery; and the shipbuilding and steel constructing industries of this country are among the British trades which benefit considerably by these requirements."
