

R, Ltd.

ADIES RESSES

apted for Evening rtune time. Prices optable purchasers.

50 Pieces

Tisau French Organde, most taste- and elegant designs and colors, a gauzy texture, suitable for even- dresses and parties.

50 Cents Yard

20 Pieces

Jawn silk finish set designs and ts and stripes, Black and White, k and White, Blue and White; y one different patterns.

25 Cents Yard

SHOES

l. Per pair...$3.75

Knee Gum Boots.....$2.25 and Youth's Knee Gum Boots...$3.25

Youth's Misses' and Child's Rubbers.....75c, 60c, 55c, 45c.

to meet the demands of our

NEW PRISM GLOBES, adjust-

CO., Ltd.

ERCHANTS. VICTORIA, B. C. and Vernon plea, per box$1.25 to $1.50

WEST COAST STREAMS ARE RAGING TORRENTS

Captain C. Gardiner Johnson and Guide Have Trouble on Hunting Trip

NANAIMO, B. C., Nov. 16.—(Special)—Arrivals from Alberni to-day report rain storms of unprecedented severity all along the west coast of the island. Rain has fallen in torrents for the past week and all the rivers and streams are in flood.

DIRECTORS REASSURE THEIR STOCKHOLDERS

Proclaim That Position of the Standard Oil Company is Unassailable

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The directors of the Standard Oil Company issued another circular to-day to the stockholders of the company, saying that the company's position is unassailable from a legal and a moral standpoint. The circular follows:

"Regarding the suit this day commenced in the court of New York, we wish to state that the directors of the Standard Oil Company (of New Jersey) from holding any stock of other companies, your directors are convinced that the company's position is unassailable, both from a legal and a moral standpoint. We are confident that in the proceedings which will follow, the company will successfully maintain its position upon the merits and vindicate itself before the public and the law.

WANTS TO PROTECT THE POOR AND WEAK

Official Imperial Gazette of Germany Publishes Decree on State Insurance

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The Official Imperial Gazette this afternoon publishes a decree on the anniversary of the message of Emperor William on state insurance, pointing out the great ideas contained in the message, which not only had unrivaled success in His Majesty's own country, but was spreading beyond the frontier of Germany.

FOR - TWO YEARS

MAYOR'S LICENCE DEAN IS UP AGAINST A SING

Aldermen Reject His Proposals in Toto, and Suggested By-Law is Referred to Legislative Committee for Consideration.

A petition was presented to the city council at last evening's meeting, signed by J. B. McCallum and 250 others, requesting that a referendum vote be taken at the next election for the purpose of abolishing the liquor license law.

ALASKAN LINER JEANIE SINKS THE STEAMER DIX

Under Clear Sky and on Smooth Sea the Two Vessels Come Together—Blame is placed on Man at Wheel of the Dix.

Seattle, Nov. 19.—Forty-two lives were lost in a disaster last night off Alki Point, when the little steamer Dix was run down by the Alaskan liner Jeannie. Thirty-seven of the passengers on the Dix were rescued.

ANARCHISTS THREATEN TO KILL POPE IN PALACE

Object to All Institutions Supported by Religious or Military Forces

Rome, Nov. 19.—The Pope has received personal letters containing threats that he will be assassinated in the Apostolic palace as a protest against the presence of military forces.

HYMAN TO RESIGN

London, Ont., Nov. 19.—It is stated in Liberal circles that Hon. Mr. Hyman will resign his seat here and seek re-election, as a result of bribery charges.

SENATOR VIDAL DEAD

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 19.—Senator Vidal died yesterday afternoon after an illness of a few weeks. He was born in 1819. This leaves five vacancies in the senate.

ALASKAN LINER JEANIE SINKS THE STEAMER DIX

Under Clear Sky and on Smooth Sea the Two Vessels Come Together—Blame is placed on Man at Wheel of the Dix.

Seattle, Nov. 19.—Forty-two lives were lost in a disaster last night off Alki Point, when the little steamer Dix was run down by the Alaskan liner Jeannie. Thirty-seven of the passengers on the Dix were rescued.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Premier Clemenceau has instructed the prefects of the departments to immediately, under the law providing for the separation of church and state, complete inventories of the inhabitants, and the work having been discontinued after 65,000 inventories had been made in the spring, owing to the resistance and destruction of the registers.

PREMIER OF FRANCE INSTRUCTS PREFECTS

Work of Separating Church from State to be Immediately Resumed

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Premier Clemenceau has instructed the prefects of the departments to immediately, under the law providing for the separation of church and state, complete inventories of the inhabitants, and the work having been discontinued after 65,000 inventories had been made in the spring, owing to the resistance and destruction of the registers.

SENTENCED TO HANG

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—Chief Justice Howell sentenced Hyak, guilty of manslaughter, to 15 years in the penitentiary, and Mareri, guilty of murder, to hang, Jan. 10.

AUSTRALIAN ASHORE

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 19.—The Eastern Australian Steamship company's steamer Australian is ashore off Vashon Head. She probably will be abandoned. Her passengers and crew have been landed.

WINONA AFLOAT AGAIN

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 19.—The steamer Winona, which went aground in Lake Huron on Saturday, has been floated again, will reach Collingwood this afternoon to go into dry dock. The loss will be confined to the cement in the forward compartment.

BAVARIAN FLOATED

Montreal, Nov. 19.—The Allan line steamer Bavaria, which went aground in the rocks below Quebec in October 1905, was successfully floated this evening by wreckers engaged by the underwriters to whom the vessel had been consigned. She will be taken to Quebec for temporary repairs.

INDUSTRIES CAUSE MONTREAL TO GROW

Million Dollar Cotton Mill and Large Wheel Works Are Planned

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Montreal will likely in the near future have two large new industries added to its industrial activity. A number of capitalists are negotiating with the Lachine town council to erect, upon which to erect a million dollar cotton mill which will employ seven hundred hands. The company will be outside the Dominion Textile.

WOUNDED MAN DIES

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Horace W. Griggs, buyer for the whitewear department of the John Mureby Co., Ltd., who was shot by a highwayman last Tuesday evening, died at the General Hospital today as a result of his wounds. The police so far have been unable to find any trace of Griggs' assailant.

MINES WILL RESUME ON A LARGER SCALE

Prospects for Rossland Are Now Brighter Than Before Strike Began

ROSSLAND, B. C., Nov. 17.—The fact that the larger portion of the coal miners of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company have resumed work has considerably relieved the situation here which was becoming with which to smelt the ore after it was mined and shipped.

PREMIER OF FRANCE INSTRUCTS PREFECTS

Work of Separating Church from State to be Immediately Resumed

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Premier Clemenceau has instructed the prefects of the departments to immediately, under the law providing for the separation of church and state, complete inventories of the inhabitants, and the work having been discontinued after 65,000 inventories had been made in the spring, owing to the resistance and destruction of the registers.

SENTENCED TO HANG

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—Chief Justice Howell sentenced Hyak, guilty of manslaughter, to 15 years in the penitentiary, and Mareri, guilty of murder, to hang, Jan. 10.

AUSTRALIAN ASHORE

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 19.—The Eastern Australian Steamship company's steamer Australian is ashore off Vashon Head. She probably will be abandoned. Her passengers and crew have been landed.

WINONA AFLOAT AGAIN

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 19.—The steamer Winona, which went aground in Lake Huron on Saturday, has been floated again, will reach Collingwood this afternoon to go into dry dock. The loss will be confined to the cement in the forward compartment.

BAVARIAN FLOATED

Montreal, Nov. 19.—The Allan line steamer Bavaria, which went aground in the rocks below Quebec in October 1905, was successfully floated this evening by wreckers engaged by the underwriters to whom the vessel had been consigned. She will be taken to Quebec for temporary repairs.

INDUSTRIES CAUSE MONTREAL TO GROW

Million Dollar Cotton Mill and Large Wheel Works Are Planned

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Montreal will likely in the near future have two large new industries added to its industrial activity. A number of capitalists are negotiating with the Lachine town council to erect, upon which to erect a million dollar cotton mill which will employ seven hundred hands. The company will be outside the Dominion Textile.

WOUNDED MAN DIES

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Horace W. Griggs, buyer for the whitewear department of the John Mureby Co., Ltd., who was shot by a highwayman last Tuesday evening, died at the General Hospital today as a result of his wounds. The police so far have been unable to find any trace of Griggs' assailant.

THE NICEST PRICES... FAMILY GROCER... NET SHIRTS... FRUITS... & Co. 111 GOVERNMENT ST. R. 1975

Society News and Gossip of the Drawing Room

Highwood, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, was the scene of a charming dance on Friday night, Miss Gillespie, made her debut...

Mrs. E. M. McCannan (nee) Nassau will hold her post nuptial reception on Thursday and Friday of the coming week, 22nd and 23rd, at her residence, Bedford street...

The annual dance of the Victoria College Rugby club will be held Wednesday, November 21, at Victoria Hall under the auspices of Mrs. Simpson...

She wore the customary veil and orange blossoms, and had a pretty bouquet of roses and ferns. She was accompanied by Miss Maud James, who acted the part of bridesmaid...

First to Journey Over the New Trail. Capt. Wallace Langley Arrives from Fairbanks and Valdez Route. TELLS OF THE NEW FIND...

FIGHT IS ON FOR POSSESSION OF DREDGE. A Test of Strength Between Cities of Victoria and New Westminster. The third meeting of the Alexandra Literary Club, which was held at the club rooms on Tuesday evening...

BIG CASE GOES BACK TO COURT. Full Court in Star vs White Orders Work Done as Requested by Plaintiffs. At Vancouver on Thursday morning before the full court, Justice King presiding...

WORKS SEVEN YEARS AND MAKES FORTUNE. Tom Livingston Finds Gold and Wife During Sojourn in Dawson City. KENSINGTON IN PORT. Quebec, Nov. 16.—Dominion liner Kensington arrived in port this morning...

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Includes flour, foodstuffs, and produce prices.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Includes various types of flour and other goods.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Includes various types of flour and other goods.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Price. Includes various types of flour and other goods.

GUGGENHEIMS WEST HEAVILY IN ATLIN

at Mining Operators Are Increasing Their Holdings in Northern Camp

The Atlin district is booming. It has had a more prosperous season than the past nor confronted with a better outlook. All those who have spent the summer there are anxious to spend the winter in milder climes. The total of the district this year is estimated at $410,000, a sum considered in excess of that of the previous year.

FINDS EASY RAILWAY ROUTE TO ALBERNI

C. P. R. Surveyor Back From an Important Exploratory Tour Through the Interior of Vancouver Island.

COMMISSIONED by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to make a careful topographical survey of that immense belt of land lying between Nanaimo and Alberni, W. T. Jones spent most of the spring, summer and autumn of the present year tracing the different waterways in the interior, noting the direction in which they flow, and investigating the character of the country generally.

It is considered probable that Capt. Freeman will make but one trip on the Celestial Empire before he does away with her. The trawl she is now operating in the waters of the Pacific coast is a profitable business in these waters.

It would be difficult to give in detail the route followed by the C. P. R. explorer from the time he left Nanaimo in order that a general idea of the extensive development of the mining industry of Vancouver Island.

RESUE SEAMEN FROM A TYPHOON

Chief Officer and Seamen of Aki Maru Prove Themselves Brave Men

Umbrina, last of Behring Sea Fleet to Return Brings Topline Catch—Egeria is Home

When the trawlers were purchased in England and brought out to this coast, it was thought by many people that they would revolutionize the fishing industry here because the fish could be taken by trawls more cheaply than by dories.

It was almost dark when the lifeboat left the steamer's side, and night fell upon the sea.

TO TEACH AMERICANS LESSONS IN BARBARE

Belligerent Editorial of Tokio Newspaper Regarding Japan-American Trouble

The Japanese officers of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Aki Maru, which arrived yesterday, were warmly welcomed by the news as to the situation which regarded the protests made by Japan to the United States because of the anti-Japanese movement in San Francisco.

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES.

INDIAN MISSION WORK.

Next Year It Is to Be Transferred to Foreign Department

After next conference the men on the Indian mission will cease to be members of the British Columbia conference, on account of this work being transferred by the legislation of general conference.

A. C. MCCALLUM JOINS AMERICAN TRUST CO.

Will Manage Realty Department and Business Will Be Extended to Winnipeg

A Campbell McCallum, who is well and favorably known in Victoria, has joined the British American Trust Company and will assume the management of the company's land and real estate department.

SEES GREAT INCREASE IN THE CROP AREA

A. W. Speers Estimates Addition For 1907 at 25 Per Cent

C. W. Speers general colonization agent has just returned to the city after a tour through the West having gone over the Canadian Northern to Lloydminster, Battleford, Humboldt, Regina and Long Lake.

NOTES FROM NICOLA.

C. P. R. Branch Line Reaches Town—Ballasting Well Under Way.

Nicola, Nov. 8.—The C. P. R. branch has reached the village of Nicola. The work of ballasting is well under way and soon the line will be ready for passenger traffic.

LEPER STATION IS TO BE MUCH IMPROVED

Health Department of Federal Government Preparing Plans for Buildings

The improvement of the conditions of the lepers, whose lives must be spent apart from their fellow men, in the hospital at Tracadie, N. B., is a project which the Dominion government are reported to be grappling with.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Have you catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, coughing, raising of mucus, difficulty in sneezing, hawking, discharge from the nose, tickling and dropping at the back of the throat, especially at night, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of healing medication which give relief in a few days and its continued use will completely drive all catarrhal germs from the system.

UNPLEASANT DEBATE ON BUCKNILL REPORT

Both Houses of British Parliament Discuss Chinese in South Africa

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Both houses of parliament tonight debated the unpleasant subject arising from the recent unauthorized publication of the contents of the Bucknill report, which gives the results of an inquiry into the conditions of Chinese labor in South Africa.

HAIBUT TRAWLING EXPERIMENT FAILS

Fish Evade Nets When They Will Readily Take Herring Bait

The trawling for halibut on the coast has received more than a fair test and it has failed. Such is the opinion of the masters of vessels which have for several months been engaged in trawling for halibut banks south of Vancouver.

SHIPPING DELAYED.

Scarcity of Lighters Causes Heavy Loss at Hongkong.

Advices received by the steamer Aki Maru Thursday stated that lighters are scarce and owners of the few that escaped the typhoon of September are charging exorbitant prices for the hire of their vessels.

UMBRINA REACHES PORT.

Last of Behring Sea Fleet Home—Skins Will Be Shipped Today.

The steamer Umbrina, Capt. Blakstad, last of the Behring sea fleet to return, sailed into the inner harbor Thursday afternoon and moored at the Hudson's Bay wharf to land her 883 sealskins and the fifty tons of seal blubber.

LOOKS FOR LARGE IMMIGRATION

Initial Difficulties that confronted the department in penetrating new districts are pretty well overcome.

The initial difficulties that confronted the department in penetrating new districts are pretty well overcome, and the outlook for immigration next year.

LOOKS FOR LARGE IMMIGRATION

Initial Difficulties that confronted the department in penetrating new districts are pretty well overcome.

The initial difficulties that confronted the department in penetrating new districts are pretty well overcome, and the outlook for immigration next year.

HOLD UP MEN ARE COUGARD

Regina Ranchers Identify Themselves as Men Who Undid Barber's Nerves

Some of the workers will be greatly missed—such as Rev. Thomas Crosby, of Millbrook, and Mr. J. D. Macdonald, of Hazelton; Rev. John C. Spencer, M. D., of Bella Coola; Rev. G. Edgar, of Kitzequia; Rev. L. Large, M. D., of Bella Coola; Rev. G. Edgar, of Kitzequia; Rev. L. Large, M. D., of Bella Coola.

REPORT AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS

Tell Story of Lost Beering and Guiding Star in the Darkness

The two "hold-up" men who undid the nerves of A. F. Barber of Vancouver on Sunday night have been located. Through the medium of the Colonist they discovered themselves at breakfast in a restaurant Tuesday morning, and later in the day reported the facts to the police.

WATER A VITAL ISSUE

Water is a vital issue in the district is prospering as never before.

Water is a vital issue in the district is prospering as never before. The water rights that are being held by the water companies are being sold at a high price.

FOR SCHMITZ INDICTED.

Francisco, Nov. 15.—The grand jury returned five indictments against Mayor E. Schmitz and Abraham charges of extortion.

OBERS SENTENCED.

Arthur, Ont., Nov. 15.—A seven years in the Kingston penitentiary was imposed on two brothers, Hanssen, convicted of highway robbery. They are Danes.

IT IMPROVE OATMEAL.

Nov. 15.—(Special)—The lab of the inland Revenue department has found 164 out of 155 oatmeal samples recently examined to contain traces of ergot.

NANAIMO WEDDING.

Lindsay Horne and Miss Ethel Cawthorne.

Home of the bride's parents, Mr. Geo. Cawthorne and Mrs. F. A. Cawthorne, at the Rev. Silas White uniting Lindsay Horne and Miss Ethel Cawthorne and Miss Ethel Cawthorne and Lindsay Horne, son of the late A. G. Horne, the Nanaimo Herald of Thursday was attended by her sister, Mrs. Cawthorne, and Mr. Fred Brown, who were in the groom.

By Gordon Holmes.

THE LESTER AFFAIR

Author of 'A Mysterious Disappearance'

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

"You will have judged from the evidence, gentlemen," he said, "that this is either a very simple or a very mysterious case. The most extraordinary feature is undoubtedly Lord Arncliffe's assertion that he was being poisoned. No doubt you will give that point full consideration. It is his mental condition that is normal when he made that statement, then it is clear that he has been the victim of foul play, but, on the other hand, his mind was disturbed by the illness, we should be justified in assuming that he knew he was being poisoned for the very good reason that the poison was administered. In this connection I should like to remind you that two of the highest authorities are unable to say what form of arsenic was used, so it is evident medicine man has no ordinary person. Here again, one cannot but recall Lord Arncliffe's intimate knowledge of poisons. However, I do not think it necessary for me to justify us in assuming the deceased to have been insane, and without that assumption we cannot entertain the idea of suicide."

"If we consider the possibility that murder has been committed, the question of motive naturally suggests itself. The members of the household seem to have been devoted to the deceased, and they have every reason to be Mrs. Warren, Simpson, Mr. Harry Warren, Miss Holt."

CHAPTER VIII.

The Nephew from America

The coroner's announcement naturally centered attention on the witness from New York. One or two people among the occupants of the crowded court knew that Edith had fainted where she sat. Those two were the detective and Lester. They watched the girl from widely different motives. Each, in his own way was conscious of a natural distrust. Lester's first instinct—whether he admitted it or not—was to discover whether he did not seek to discover—to rush to her assistance. But he realized that Edith's overwrought condition was not the thing more than the mere ordeal she had undergone. And the suspicion came to him with a chilling shock that people were even now prone to regard this bright and charming young woman not only as Lord Arncliffe's mistress but as his murderer.

So he sat there, watching in an agony of apprehension for the drooped head to rise again from its resting-place on Mr. Angier's ample shoulder. Only in the last resort would he draw the attention of the eager crowd, and only go with sufficient to this fresh evidence of agitation on her part. In a moment, nature asserted itself, for Edith was normally as healthy a girl as ever breathed. The heavy eyelids slowly opened, and she looked on the new witness with something of amazed inquiry. Then the color came back to the blanched cheeks with a rush, and a look of deep breath of relief, scarcely conscious of her momentary lapse, but much awake to the astounding incidents which were taking place.

For a strange reason she had the quality of the dead administered on such occasions. He would tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth—"So help me, God!"

The witness glanced with some disfavor at the Book, its solid cover reeking of contact with the lips of many lips, which the coroner's officer handed to him. Then, raising his hand aloft after a Scottish fashion.

"Go ahead, Judge," he said. The coroner started a frowning glance at the lean-faced, alert young man who addressed him thus curtly, but seeing nothing of studied distrust in the color indifference which met his scrutiny, checked the impending rebuke.

"What is your name?" "William Lincoln Bradshaw."

"I understand you are able to give certain material evidence regarding Lord Arncliffe's death?" "Anything about Lord Arncliffe's death, beyond what I have read in the newspapers," rejoined Bradshaw. "Indeed, I am on the lookout for some information in that direction myself."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

"Pook! consensually my dear! Act as generously as you like, but do not talk in that way. After all, you have plenty and to spare, even if there are other Richmond's show field, and I should be the last to advise you otherwise. But there is no need for you to be Quixotic. The terms of the will are so emphatically clear that I am not inclined to be glibbing to doubt whether, in any event, Lord Arncliffe would have allowed an illegitimate nephew to affect your position."

It seemed that an exaggerated importance had been attached to the evidence of this new witness.

"You were naturally surprised, Mr. Bradshaw, in not receiving a reply to your letters to Lord Arncliffe?" resumed the court.

"Not so much at the time, because I thought it might possibly be abroad, but I am much surprised now that I learn he must have received my letters. I have only recently discovered the relationship, but he wrote so affectionately up to the date of my father's death, that it seems incredible he should have utterly ignored my communications."

"That will do, in the present, Mr. Bradshaw," said Samuel Barnes. "An asthmatic old man hobbled forward."

"You act as forty years come Christmas."

"Never mind that. Do you remember having delivered any letters at the Hall recently?" letters bearing American stamps?

"Yes, sir, there was two of 'em. One a few days ago, and the second one back. I noticed them because we don't often have letters from America. Forty years come Christmas."

"Christman?" "Yes, sir," answered Edith at once. The shock which caused her faintness had apparently passed away, but she was pale, and her voice had not, essentially, went through all Lord Arncliffe's letters unless they were marked 'private' but I am positive that I saw none from this gentleman—none at all, mean, bearing an American postmark."

"This closed the evidence, and the coroner resumed his interrupted summing-up."

"It can hardly be said, gentlemen, that the statement of Mr. Bradshaw throws any light on the mystery of Lord Arncliffe's death, but it does indicate the presence of some unknown person pursuing an underhand course. Considering all the circumstances, it is not surprising that the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

colin Bradshaw quietly examining an old coin of Rajputana, exquisitely inscribed with golden line-drawings of the life of Buddha.

"I think, sir," stammered the lawyer, very red of face and striving to cover his confusion with an assumption of great indignation, "a private conversation such as this might have been respected by you. I don't know what the custom is in your country."

"Just the same as anywhere else," said Bradshaw, in the same unemotional voice. "You left me in here ten minutes ago, and asked me to excuse you and amuse myself with some of these old coins, and I don't hardly suppose you would bring the lady here for a private conversation."

"Mr. Angier almost struck his forehead in despair. In all the worry of the moment he had completely forgotten the circumstance, and now he found himself not only in the wrong, but what was worse, looking somewhat ridiculous.

"Don't say a word," said Bradshaw, cutting in generally and with a laughing fit when the witness from New York was announced. For it was to New York his brother had gone when Lord Arncliffe was in the hospital, and the firm whose confidence in him was weakened, and make a fresh start. And for one unreasoning moment she imagined she was no longer in the gold of his clear reputation at the expense of his own."

"She now slipped out on to the balcony, and the two men talking together. Her thoughts wandered again to her rosy future she had mapped out for her bright, careless brother. He was to be a steady under a good tutor, and then, perhaps, enter the army. And present-ly she would meet some nice girl, and Edith would be left with a small little place, and look after them until her reckless boy had learned to know the value of money, so that he would be trusted with a great deal of income of his own. And today it seemed that people were trying to drag that most miserable subject into the light, and ruin the boy's diplomatic attempts to learn something of the young man's credentials. "The amazing thing is that you should not have discovered your nephew until the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

"Pook! consensually my dear! Act as generously as you like, but do not talk in that way. After all, you have plenty and to spare, even if there are other Richmond's show field, and I should be the last to advise you otherwise. But there is no need for you to be Quixotic. The terms of the will are so emphatically clear that I am not inclined to be glibbing to doubt whether, in any event, Lord Arncliffe would have allowed an illegitimate nephew to affect your position."

young Holt from the consequences of his folly, even without Edith's intervention, but he had no sympathy with one who transgressed the first rule of a business career. He was so angry that Edith, for the time being, supposed her benefactor to be hopelessly offended with her.

"You can have the three hundred pounds you ask for, but, that it will be the last money you can hope to receive from me. I had, of course, intended to make some provision for you after my death, but I should do you no kindness in giving you an income that would only be drained from you by your scamp of a brother."

"Edith had not regretted her sacrifice. She felt that her brother, who was really a good-hearted lad, would yet show himself a worthy member of society. Whatever happened, his lapse from rectitude would remain secret. This, then, was the cause of her agitation when she had been questioned so searchingly respecting the check for three hundred pounds. It had been a rather startling fit when the witness from New York was announced. For it was to New York his brother had gone when Lord Arncliffe was in the hospital, and the firm whose confidence in him was weakened, and make a fresh start. And for one unreasoning moment she imagined she was no longer in the gold of his clear reputation at the expense of his own."

"She now slipped out on to the balcony, and the two men talking together. Her thoughts wandered again to her rosy future she had mapped out for her bright, careless brother. He was to be a steady under a good tutor, and then, perhaps, enter the army. And present-ly she would meet some nice girl, and Edith would be left with a small little place, and look after them until her reckless boy had learned to know the value of money, so that he would be trusted with a great deal of income of his own. And today it seemed that people were trying to drag that most miserable subject into the light, and ruin the boy's diplomatic attempts to learn something of the young man's credentials. "The amazing thing is that you should not have discovered your nephew until the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

"Pook! consensually my dear! Act as generously as you like, but do not talk in that way. After all, you have plenty and to spare, even if there are other Richmond's show field, and I should be the last to advise you otherwise. But there is no need for you to be Quixotic. The terms of the will are so emphatically clear that I am not inclined to be glibbing to doubt whether, in any event, Lord Arncliffe would have allowed an illegitimate nephew to affect your position."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

the first suggestion of evening's hush. foley, even without Edith's intervention, but he had no sympathy with one who transgressed the first rule of a business career. He was so angry that Edith, for the time being, supposed her benefactor to be hopelessly offended with her.

"You can have the three hundred pounds you ask for, but, that it will be the last money you can hope to receive from me. I had, of course, intended to make some provision for you after my death, but I should do you no kindness in giving you an income that would only be drained from you by your scamp of a brother."

"Edith had not regretted her sacrifice. She felt that her brother, who was really a good-hearted lad, would yet show himself a worthy member of society. Whatever happened, his lapse from rectitude would remain secret. This, then, was the cause of her agitation when she had been questioned so searchingly respecting the check for three hundred pounds. It had been a rather startling fit when the witness from New York was announced. For it was to New York his brother had gone when Lord Arncliffe was in the hospital, and the firm whose confidence in him was weakened, and make a fresh start. And for one unreasoning moment she imagined she was no longer in the gold of his clear reputation at the expense of his own."

"She now slipped out on to the balcony, and the two men talking together. Her thoughts wandered again to her rosy future she had mapped out for her bright, careless brother. He was to be a steady under a good tutor, and then, perhaps, enter the army. And present-ly she would meet some nice girl, and Edith would be left with a small little place, and look after them until her reckless boy had learned to know the value of money, so that he would be trusted with a great deal of income of his own. And today it seemed that people were trying to drag that most miserable subject into the light, and ruin the boy's diplomatic attempts to learn something of the young man's credentials. "The amazing thing is that you should not have discovered your nephew until the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

"Pook! consensually my dear! Act as generously as you like, but do not talk in that way. After all, you have plenty and to spare, even if there are other Richmond's show field, and I should be the last to advise you otherwise. But there is no need for you to be Quixotic. The terms of the will are so emphatically clear that I am not inclined to be glibbing to doubt whether, in any event, Lord Arncliffe would have allowed an illegitimate nephew to affect your position."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

He was so angry that Edith, for the time being, supposed her benefactor to be hopelessly offended with her.

"You can have the three hundred pounds you ask for, but, that it will be the last money you can hope to receive from me. I had, of course, intended to make some provision for you after my death, but I should do you no kindness in giving you an income that would only be drained from you by your scamp of a brother."

"Edith had not regretted her sacrifice. She felt that her brother, who was really a good-hearted lad, would yet show himself a worthy member of society. Whatever happened, his lapse from rectitude would remain secret. This, then, was the cause of her agitation when she had been questioned so searchingly respecting the check for three hundred pounds. It had been a rather startling fit when the witness from New York was announced. For it was to New York his brother had gone when Lord Arncliffe was in the hospital, and the firm whose confidence in him was weakened, and make a fresh start. And for one unreasoning moment she imagined she was no longer in the gold of his clear reputation at the expense of his own."

"She now slipped out on to the balcony, and the two men talking together. Her thoughts wandered again to her rosy future she had mapped out for her bright, careless brother. He was to be a steady under a good tutor, and then, perhaps, enter the army. And present-ly she would meet some nice girl, and Edith would be left with a small little place, and look after them until her reckless boy had learned to know the value of money, so that he would be trusted with a great deal of income of his own. And today it seemed that people were trying to drag that most miserable subject into the light, and ruin the boy's diplomatic attempts to learn something of the young man's credentials. "The amazing thing is that you should not have discovered your nephew until the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

"Pook! consensually my dear! Act as generously as you like, but do not talk in that way. After all, you have plenty and to spare, even if there are other Richmond's show field, and I should be the last to advise you otherwise. But there is no need for you to be Quixotic. The terms of the will are so emphatically clear that I am not inclined to be glibbing to doubt whether, in any event, Lord Arncliffe would have allowed an illegitimate nephew to affect your position."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes, yes!" said the coroner, impatiently. "But the object of this inquiry is to elicit information, not to impart it. You bear the same family name as the late Lord Arncliffe. Am I to understand that you are a relative?" "Yes, sir, Lord Arncliffe was my uncle."

"Angier sprang up promptly. Hobson had prepared him for this staggering statement, but he felt that a legal veto must be registered. He forthwith insisted that the witness should be sworn. "I shall give him everything," persisted Edith with Spartan determination. "I must be allowed to testify. I have been fighting for four thousand a year she had built castles in the air. Not having the least notion what so much money meant she knew that she had a delightful little scheme with a title of her income. At this moment the relinquishment of her innocent plans brought with it something of a wrench."

He was so angry that Edith, for the time being, supposed her benefactor to be hopelessly offended with her.

"You can have the three hundred pounds you ask for, but, that it will be the last money you can hope to receive from me. I had, of course, intended to make some provision for you after my death, but I should do you no kindness in giving you an income that would only be drained from you by your scamp of a brother."

"Edith had not regretted her sacrifice. She felt that her brother, who was really a good-hearted lad, would yet show himself a worthy member of society. Whatever happened, his lapse from rectitude would remain secret. This, then, was the cause of her agitation when she had been questioned so searchingly respecting the check for three hundred pounds. It had been a rather startling fit when the witness from New York was announced. For it was to New York his brother had gone when Lord Arncliffe was in the hospital, and the firm whose confidence in him was weakened, and make a fresh start. And for one unreasoning moment she imagined she was no longer in the gold of his clear reputation at the expense of his own."

"She now slipped out on to the balcony, and the two men talking together. Her thoughts wandered again to her rosy future she had mapped out for her bright, careless brother. He was to be a steady under a good tutor, and then, perhaps, enter the army. And present-ly she would meet some nice girl, and Edith would be left with a small little place, and look after them until her reckless boy had learned to know the value of money, so that he would be trusted with a great deal of income of his own. And today it seemed that people were trying to drag that most miserable subject into the light, and ruin the boy's diplomatic attempts to learn something of the young man's credentials. "The amazing thing is that you should not have discovered your nephew until the deliberate suppression of certain of Lord Arncliffe's letters, for, had Lord Arncliffe by any chance received them he would have been communicated with such news to his solicitors, and probably to the young lady he had chosen as his heiress."

"His last wish," in conclusion, "I may say these facts have been lost sight of in the police investigations which must, of course, follow and, if I may indicate the lines of your verdict, it should be that the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, is the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"That's all very well, Mr. coroner," objected the foreman; "but it seems to me that if we find the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, we shall not be very far off the mark."

"The coroner raised his hand in deprecation of such strong language.

"The witness was assessed in a case of this sort, any one who shows to be guilty of such an act would naturally be regarded with suspicion. But, letters, pass books, and other papers, which are extremely difficult to fix responsibility for. For instance, Miss Holt tells us she had charge of Lord Arncliffe's correspondence, and it is quite possible that she may have been the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice."

"However, as I have told you, gentlemen, that the letters were kept by the person who kept the letters from the late Lord Arncliffe, and whom I should like to see brought to justice, and you may retire to consider your verdict, in confidence that everything possible will be done to find the perpetrator of this crime, and that justice will be done, sooner or later, although the obstinacy of the foreman was responsible for an unreasonable delay. The witness returned to the witness box, and the coroner, after a moment's reflection, turned to the young man who had been heard of with Lord Arncliffe, whatever his regard for Edith, could not have failed to notice his brother's son in the light of an heir."

"Edith, too, had realized the same thing at once, and had lost no time in communicating the news to Lester. "If this gentleman is Lord Arncliffe's nephew," she said, "of course he is entitled to all the property."

"Yes

The Clever Little Ant

By Henri Restelle in the Canadian Graphic

If the insect world could put forth a claim of having evolved creatures which are to it in point of superiority what men are to the world of vertebrate animals, or those animals with spinal columns such as fish, birds and mammals, it would undoubtedly support its claim by pointing to those inconspicuous little creatures, the ants. No person would ever suspect that those puny little insects in any way rivaled us human beings, but a study of their habits and achievement soon shows us that they do. There is not much resemblance it is true, between a man and an ant, but there is a resemblance, a very strong resemblance, between the ant and the human being. In fact, the ant is a species of small red ants which frequently have to fight ants much larger than themselves, and they do so with such success that they almost always win. Four or five of these little red fellows attack one of the enemy simultaneously, harrasing him on all sides, thus, working him out of his wits, while one of their number jumps on his back and saws off his head. But the slave-making ants adopt different tactics. They endeavor to put their opponents to flight rather than to kill them. If successful, they enter the nests of the vanquished, carry off the eggs, and construct their own nests, and the young that are hatched out as slaves. The most famous of the slave-making ants are found in Switzerland, and are known by the general name of Formica Reticulata. The Formica Reticulata depend on their slaves for everything, even for their nourishment. They do not do all the fighting, but not all of the basing in the sunshine. So dependent are the master ants on their slaves that they would all die of starvation if the slaves were deprived of them. To provide this a French naturalist put a number of these lordly ants in a box by themselves, and showed them some artificial food in a place convenient for them, but no, they were incapable of even feeding themselves. A number of them died of starvation, and the rest were only saved by a slave being put in among them. This faithful little creature set to work and fed her helpless master.

This slave-making instincts in some ants is very remarkable, but no less remarkable are their agricultural practices. These ants should keep their cows in a place, but such is the case. These cows are gentle little insects, called aphides, which secrete a sweet honey which the ants feed on. The ants attend these little creatures, milk them of their honey and guard them jealously from enemies. They also show great care in the winter the ants store the eggs of the aphides in the nests, keep them through the cold weather, hatch them out in the spring, and feed the young aphides into the daisy fields for pasture. But ants harbor in their nests other creatures, but for what purpose is not clear. They have, however, been known to keep beetles as beasts of burdens and other little creatures as pets. These things seem truly incredible, but are nevertheless still in the hands of ants which have learned the art of agriculture. A species of ant in Texas is said to cultivate a rare kind of grass for the purpose of getting its seed, of which it is very fond.

Not the least interesting fact about ants is that they have an interesting way of communicating their wants to one another. They apparently have a language of signs. Watch any colony of ants at work and you may verify this for yourself. The ants are busy, they are laboring hard to drag a dead cricket to its nest. He moves it gradually, but is soon hampered by an obstruction. He ceases to move, he looks about, he touches the job himself. Now watch him. Off he goes and finds a comrade, maybe two or three. He tells them the dilemma he is in, and they all go to the aid of him, and leads them back to his dead cricket. They all work together, but if the obstruction is too great to get the cricket over bodily, they dissect it and carry it to the nest piecemeal. Many very interesting experiments have been performed, testing the intelligence of ants, but the only one performed by Benjamin Franklin will suffice to illustrate their power of communication. Franklin one day hung a pot of syrup by a string to the ceiling, and put a single ant upon it. He waited until the ant had fed itself, then found its way up the cord, along the ceiling and down the string to the meadow to its nest. Soon after it returned, leading all its comrades in an orderly march straight through the house to the pot of syrup suspended from the ceiling.

There remains one thing more to be told about these "civilized" insects and that is that ants believe and act upon the proverb that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Like men and women, and boys and girls, they like to have a good time occasionally. They have been observed going through fantastic gymnastics on the top of their nests and recreating themselves on the ground in sham battles. We are not told that ants have discovered or made use of any of the mechanical forces in nature, or that they write letters, or publish newspapers, but they have learnt enough of their wonderful life to depend on admiration for them. It is not that they know as much as we do, but they do know how to work industriously, to live peacefully among themselves, to live with their neighbors, and how to sacrifice themselves for the common good.

Remarkable thing in natural history. They have learned the wisdom of cooperation. Instead of advancing to battle singly, they march out in serried columns, officers on either flank by experience soldiers. When the battle begins, they dance round pretty lively, bite at their foes, and try to avoid being bitten themselves. Some of the ants are a species of small red ants which frequently have to fight ants much larger than themselves, and they do so with such success that they almost always win. Four or five of these little red fellows attack one of the enemy simultaneously, harrasing him on all sides, thus, working him out of his wits, while one of their number jumps on his back and saws off his head. But the slave-making ants adopt different tactics. They endeavor to put their opponents to flight rather than to kill them. If successful, they enter the nests of the vanquished, carry off the eggs, and construct their own nests, and the young that are hatched out as slaves. The most famous of the slave-making ants are found in Switzerland, and are known by the general name of Formica Reticulata. The Formica Reticulata depend on their slaves for everything, even for their nourishment. They do not do all the fighting, but not all of the basing in the sunshine. So dependent are the master ants on their slaves that they would all die of starvation if the slaves were deprived of them. To provide this a French naturalist put a number of these lordly ants in a box by themselves, and showed them some artificial food in a place convenient for them, but no, they were incapable of even feeding themselves. A number of them died of starvation, and the rest were only saved by a slave being put in among them. This faithful little creature set to work and fed her helpless master.

big money like that of the tools and other things I could buy to work out inventions; but I knew Wall Street to be a pretty bad place, and had a general suspicion that a man was not to get his best out of his money there. So I tried to keep my hopes down; but the thought of 5,000 dollars (1,000 pounds) kept rising in my mind.

Well, one day I was sent for by the president of the Gold and Stock Telegraph company to talk about a settlement for my improvements. He was General Marshall Leferts, colonel of the 7th regiment. When he asked me how much I wanted I was afraid to speak. I feared that if I mentioned 5,000 dollars I might get nothing.

That was one of the most painful and exciting moments of my life. My how I beat my brains to know what to say. Finally I said: "Suppose you make me an offer." By that time I was scared. I was more than scared, I was paralyzed. "How would you like to have 5,000 dollars?" asked General Leferts. "It was all I could do to keep my face straight and my knees from giving away. I was afraid he would hear my heart beat."

With a great effort I said that I guessed that would be all right. He gave me a check for 5,000 dollars, ready in a few days, and I could come back and sign it. In the meantime I scarcely slept. I couldn't believe it. When I signed the contract was ready, and I signed it in a hurry. I don't know even now what was in it. A cheque for 40,000 dollars was handed me, and I went back to my bank as fast as my feet would carry me.

Scientific Miscellany

The largest animal of any living species is the giant finback whale, which attains a length of over eighty feet. This enormous creature inhabits the Atlantic ocean with the temperate zone.

The French people eat more salt with their food than the English do, and their superior vivacity is associated with the practice. The dietic importance of salt is admitted by the medical profession.

The will-o'-the-wisp, which may be seen dancing about on the surface of pools during hazy autumn nights, is a scientific fact, and is associated with decaying animal matter, the latter, in many instances, being found to be the body of some waterfowl which has been hurled into the pool.

Mound-birds, found in Australia, are noted for their immense nests, which are the largest made by any bird. Some of the mounds they construct are quite one hundred and fifty feet in circumference, and the birds will bury their eggs two feet deep in the centre, where they are hatched by the heat of the sun.

Continual changes of shape are stated to occur in the human body. From measurements at Gottingen during thirteen years, Doctor O. L. Forb finds that the size of the human body varies considerably, and that the variation takes place in a period closely corresponding to that of the sun spots.

A person who gets bewildered in a large wood need never get lost. Most trees have moss on their trunks, and it grows thick and toward the south. A traveler who has any idea of the direction of his objective can easily find it by taking notice of the position of the trees.

According to M. Guillaume Capus, the author of a book entitled "Les Améens de la Médicine en Asie Centrale," the population of the town of Khokand in Turkestan consists for the most part of slaves and their descendants. The traveler entering the town is at once struck by the fact that nearly every person he meets is the bearer of a more or less advanced stage of locomotor ataxia.

M. Henri Boudu, of Bordeaux, has invented an aerial torpedo, which he says will revolutionize modern methods of warfare. It is designed to be neither lighter nor heavier than the air, and its ballast is replaced by shells and grenades for war purposes. As the cargo is discharged on the ground, the torpedo rises and is diminished by a piece of intricate mechanism, the secret of which M. Boudu refuses to divulge, except to the French government.

Blazing the western fashion of marking a tree by removal of patches of bark from a tree, would be useless in Africa, inasmuch as the mark would be speedily covered by rapid growth and consumption of the native parasites. Along the track pursued by the Derivishes on their way to the battle of Gallabat, Abba, fought in 1888, the knotted and deformed trees, grown from the saplings twisted by advanced parties both to mark the way for those who came after, and as a means of escape if it should become necessary.

Germany is expected to propose an international convention for the prohibition of Anarchists at the Anti-Anarchist conference in Madrid. Much larger lobsters are caught on the coast of the English Channel. The record is a 23-pound lobster, caught in September, 1885, by Mr. J. D. Barnes.

The danger of the situation today lies in the position that the Congo state reforms face under present conditions. This supposition is due to the non-comprehension of the nature of the Congo Independent state. What is the Congo state? In its sense, the word can be regarded as a state. Imaginable, however fertile, must refuse the attribute of "state" to a vast territory in tropical Africa, of which the "citizens" have been deprived of everything they possess, and of freedom over their very bodies by an absentee landlord who reigns over them by 2,000 alien draves from every country in Europe, assisted by 30,000 regular and irregular troops for a tropical dependency? This is understood, some civilized power must be responsible for the Congo state. The revenues drawn from the slave labor of its "citizens" are not handled by any civil or military authority, but are expended for the benefit of the "citizen." They are not even accounted for. The produce of the Congo soil on the revenues are raised is claimed as the property of the absentee landlord, or his absentee tenant farmers, claimed even as it lies unharvested, and the land is enough paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

The signal-box at the Crewe, Eng., station is the largest in the world, and contains 400 electric pneumatic levers. The record for the longest diamond on the paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

Barcelona alone takes nearly 800,000 tons of British coal yearly. Three dollars was the yearly wage of a boy in Queen Elizabeth's time. In Bombay cotton mill milliners receive 32 cents for a 12-hour working day.

Germany now has 54 mountain-seeing clubs, with a total membership of over 142,000. Of the 46,216 employees in the postal and telegraph service of London, 1,557 are women.

Alligators will soon be extinct, 280,000 alligator hides are yearly worked up in leather. The record price given for a Strad, the violin is $10,000. The date of the instrument is 1718.

The actors of the Comedie Francaise receive a pension of $1,800 a year, after twenty years' service. It is calculated that 40,000 birds die annually to supply plumage for decorative purposes of women.

The signal-box at the Crewe, Eng., station is the largest in the world, and contains 400 electric pneumatic levers. The record for the longest diamond on the paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

Scientific Miscellany

The French people eat more salt with their food than the English do, and their superior vivacity is associated with the practice. The dietic importance of salt is admitted by the medical profession.

The will-o'-the-wisp, which may be seen dancing about on the surface of pools during hazy autumn nights, is a scientific fact, and is associated with decaying animal matter, the latter, in many instances, being found to be the body of some waterfowl which has been hurled into the pool.

Mound-birds, found in Australia, are noted for their immense nests, which are the largest made by any bird. Some of the mounds they construct are quite one hundred and fifty feet in circumference, and the birds will bury their eggs two feet deep in the centre, where they are hatched by the heat of the sun.

Continual changes of shape are stated to occur in the human body. From measurements at Gottingen during thirteen years, Doctor O. L. Forb finds that the size of the human body varies considerably, and that the variation takes place in a period closely corresponding to that of the sun spots.

A person who gets bewildered in a large wood need never get lost. Most trees have moss on their trunks, and it grows thick and toward the south. A traveler who has any idea of the direction of his objective can easily find it by taking notice of the position of the trees.

According to M. Guillaume Capus, the author of a book entitled "Les Améens de la Médicine en Asie Centrale," the population of the town of Khokand in Turkestan consists for the most part of slaves and their descendants. The traveler entering the town is at once struck by the fact that nearly every person he meets is the bearer of a more or less advanced stage of locomotor ataxia.

M. Henri Boudu, of Bordeaux, has invented an aerial torpedo, which he says will revolutionize modern methods of warfare. It is designed to be neither lighter nor heavier than the air, and its ballast is replaced by shells and grenades for war purposes. As the cargo is discharged on the ground, the torpedo rises and is diminished by a piece of intricate mechanism, the secret of which M. Boudu refuses to divulge, except to the French government.

Blazing the western fashion of marking a tree by removal of patches of bark from a tree, would be useless in Africa, inasmuch as the mark would be speedily covered by rapid growth and consumption of the native parasites. Along the track pursued by the Derivishes on their way to the battle of Gallabat, Abba, fought in 1888, the knotted and deformed trees, grown from the saplings twisted by advanced parties both to mark the way for those who came after, and as a means of escape if it should become necessary.

Germany is expected to propose an international convention for the prohibition of Anarchists at the Anti-Anarchist conference in Madrid. Much larger lobsters are caught on the coast of the English Channel. The record is a 23-pound lobster, caught in September, 1885, by Mr. J. D. Barnes.

The danger of the situation today lies in the position that the Congo state reforms face under present conditions. This supposition is due to the non-comprehension of the nature of the Congo Independent state. What is the Congo state? In its sense, the word can be regarded as a state. Imaginable, however fertile, must refuse the attribute of "state" to a vast territory in tropical Africa, of which the "citizens" have been deprived of everything they possess, and of freedom over their very bodies by an absentee landlord who reigns over them by 2,000 alien draves from every country in Europe, assisted by 30,000 regular and irregular troops for a tropical dependency? This is understood, some civilized power must be responsible for the Congo state. The revenues drawn from the slave labor of its "citizens" are not handled by any civil or military authority, but are expended for the benefit of the "citizen." They are not even accounted for. The produce of the Congo soil on the revenues are raised is claimed as the property of the absentee landlord, or his absentee tenant farmers, claimed even as it lies unharvested, and the land is enough paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

The signal-box at the Crewe, Eng., station is the largest in the world, and contains 400 electric pneumatic levers. The record for the longest diamond on the paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

Barcelona alone takes nearly 800,000 tons of British coal yearly. Three dollars was the yearly wage of a boy in Queen Elizabeth's time. In Bombay cotton mill milliners receive 32 cents for a 12-hour working day.

Germany now has 54 mountain-seeing clubs, with a total membership of over 142,000. Of the 46,216 employees in the postal and telegraph service of London, 1,557 are women.

Alligators will soon be extinct, 280,000 alligator hides are yearly worked up in leather. The record price given for a Strad, the violin is $10,000. The date of the instrument is 1718.

The actors of the Comedie Francaise receive a pension of $1,800 a year, after twenty years' service. It is calculated that 40,000 birds die annually to supply plumage for decorative purposes of women.

The signal-box at the Crewe, Eng., station is the largest in the world, and contains 400 electric pneumatic levers. The record for the longest diamond on the paupers in Great Britain to form, four abreast, a procession over 100 miles in length.

Barcelona alone takes nearly 800,000 tons of British coal yearly. Three dollars was the yearly wage of a boy in Queen Elizabeth's time. In Bombay cotton mill milliners receive 32 cents for a 12-hour working day.

Fit-Reform

FOUNDERS IN CANADA OF Hand Tailored Garments, Completely Finished.

The Double Breasted Overcoat

It's more than warm and comfortable. It's stylish. Fit-Reform tailormen know how to combine all three of these essentials.

Made in the hand-somest Scotch and Irish Tweeds you ever saw.

Write for Samples and Self Measurement Blanks

Allen & Co., - Fit-Reform Wardrobe, Victoria, B. C.

A CLOSE INSPECTION OF HARNESS

exhibited in our fine stock will reveal the reason for its superiority over all others. Its splendid workmanship, perfect finish, durability and mounting shows the ease with which it is made, and that the quality of the leather used is of the highest grade. For beauty and style it is without a peer.

B. C. Saddlery Co., VICTORIA, B. C.

Hazelton and Bulkley Valley

Prospectors and intending settlers can be fully equipped at R. S. Sargent's General Store at Hazelton. All prospectors' groceries packed in cotton sacks. Small pack train in connection with business.

R. S. Sargent, - Hazelton, B. C. Fourteen years in Business at Hazelton

Dr. J. Collis Browne's CHLORO-WYNE

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE Each Bottle of this well-known Remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Toothache, Diarrhoea, Spasms, etc.

Dr. J. Collis Browne Sole Manufacturers, J. T. DAVENPORT, London Wholesale Agents, Lyman Bros. & Co. Ltd., Toronto.

WOMAN JUMPS FROM FIFTH STOREY WINDOW

Leaves Her Hat, Purse and Seventy Cents and Mystery Behind Her get the money? The man murmured an assent. The stranger went to the next room and closed the door tightly behind her. Not a sound was heard by Odette. When he had waited five minutes he became worried. He did not want to enter the room, so he called on Mrs. Heniz, who lives across the hall. Mrs. Heniz found the room empty and a purse containing only 70 cents. Mrs. Heniz screamed and the janitor ran down the stairs. The man who had jumped from the fifth story and had been killed.

Thos. Edison's Boyhood

Stories of the Great Inventor

Mr. Thomas Edison has been telling an American interviewer the story of his early life. During the war between the North and the South he was a newsboy working on trains from Detroit.

He persuaded the telegraph operator at Detroit to wire the main facts of the battle of Pittsburg Landing along the line, so that the steam-masters could post them on the bulletin board. The idea being that the public would be eager for fuller details and would fight for the papers. Mr. Edison's average daily sale of the "Pittsburg Free Press" was forty copies. That day he provided himself with 1,000. He says: "It was a great day for me. At the first station the crowd was so big that I thought it was an excursion crowd. But, no; when the people caught sight of me they began to yell for papers. Just double the price on the spot, and charged ten cents (50) instead of five cents (2 1/2-24) a copy.

When I got to the last station I jumped the price up to 25 cents (14, 9-24) a copy, and sold all I had left. I made 75 dols. (15 pounds) or 100 dols. (20 pounds) in that one trip, and I tell you I felt mighty good.

That called my attention to what a telegraph operator could do, I thought to myself that telegraphing was simply great, and I made up my mind to become an operator as soon as possible.

become an operator as soon as possible. First Invention. Invention was in his blood, but all his inventions were not successes.

The who he invented was a machine which would count the votes in congress in a very few moments. It was a good machine, too, but when it took it to Washington they said to me: "Young man, that's the last thing you want here. Filibustering and the delay in counting the vote are the only means we have of defeating bad legislation."

HOPE FOR RUSSIAN JEW Premier Stolypin Is About to Announce Some Reforms.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—The Stolypin's organ, the Russia, published a long article apparently intended to prepare the way for the formation of a majority of a cabinet. Under the terms of the constitution, the cabinet will have to choose, him and Nathaniel Jameson, who will next highest candidate in the legislature will be strongly favored.

GOVERNMENT HOLD C. P. R. OVERSEAS MAIL Causes Serious Inconvenience Satisfy Whim of Half People ADVANTAGE TAKEN OF TECHNICAL ESSENCE OF UNDERSTANDING ALLIANCE AND CANADIAN RECEIVES NO CONSIDERATION

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—About the winter arrangements under an agreement with the Allan line as subcontractors quite understood by the parties agreement that during the months the Empress of Britain Liverpool and St. John, rec'd delivering the mails at the late Were it not for this understand Canadian Pacific would not have itated in the contract, because years ago it was kept in the route they must serve ports re the Canadian Pacific Railway However, the local influence a was apparently a pending of the government, under a technical the original agreement between erment and the Allan; to rule the delay and to keep the line Halifax to receive the mails being out to sea and must stop fax on the return trip to de mals before proceeding to the Canadian Pacific was quite v surrender its share in the mail rather than subject its pass the delay and to keep the line route for passengers serio judged by this roundabout ser this could not be done unless they could secure the consent of erment. They failed to do therefore, the Canadian Pacific to observe the terms of its g with the Allan line, was con accept the situation. As a con during the present winter se Empresses will stop in Halifax to receive the mails.

This of course will delay t to that extent frustrate the the Canadian Pacific, establish vious equal to that between and Liverpool. Save for this Halifax on their outward an which were the signed by themselves to St. John, the w of the Canadian Pacific, passenger freight being shipped and land while the Allan line, was con carrying the imperial mails for China, will also make St. John terminal. While beyond d the advantages is a struggle of general interests of the rest of minion, the only advantage ac Halifax is the sentimental pr which made a port of call, and ceiving the local European mail hours earlier than if they were to St. John.

UP TO LEGISLATURE Concord, N. H., Nov. 16.—The vote for governor today, show Charles M. Floyd, Republican, to have a majority of a vast cast. Under the terms of the legislature will have to choose, him and Nathaniel Jameson, who will next highest candidate in the legislature will be strongly favored.

TOO ABSURD FOR RUM Mayor Schmitz' Confederate Re Take Indictment Serious

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Tues, with Mayor Schmitz indicted yesterday on charges of felonious intent to the home of Judge Morasky, who had been surrendered himself. The rep ites of a surety company acco him, and there signed a few which amount on the five counts 000. An order of release from was then made by the judge. John D. Rockefeller was indic today, and I am indicted today matter is too absurd to be v statement from the court to mediate trial on the charges on I have been indicted by the jury.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—The Stolypin's organ, the Russia, published a long article apparently intended to prepare the way for the formation of a majority of a cabinet. Under the terms of the constitution, the cabinet will have to choose, him and Nathaniel Jameson, who will next highest candidate in the legislature will be strongly favored.

FROM CANADA... BREASTED... COAT... SADDLERY CO. VICTORIA, B. C.

GOVERNMENT UP... C. P. R. OVERSEAS

Causes Serious Inconvenience to Satisfy Whim of Halifax People

ADVANTAGE TAKEN OF TECHNICALITY... MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—The facts about the winter arrangements for the transport of the Atlantic mails are briefly these: The government entered into a contract with the Allan line for the carriage of the mail.

LA PATRIE FLIES WELL... Nantes, France, Nov. 16.—M. Le Baudy's new dirigible balloon La Patrie, constructed for the aerostatic division of the French navy, was successful in its trial today.

KING EDWARD HONORS THE KING OF NORWAY... Ceremonial of Order of Garter Most Brilliant of Present Reign

LONDON, Nov. 13.—King Edward tonight invested King Haakon of Norway with the Order of the Garter at a special charter held in the throne room of Windsor castle.

EXPLOSION IN WINNIPEG... Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—By the explosion of a gasoline tank in a laundry here this afternoon two employees named Lena Brackman and John Pond were seriously injured.

UP TO LEGISLATURE... Concord, N. H., Nov. 16.—The official vote for governor at the recent election, announced today, shows that Charles M. Floyd, Republican, lacks 176 votes to win.

HOPE FOR RUSSIAN JEWS... Premier Stolypin Is About to Announce Some Reforms.

RICH STRIKE IS MADE ON RICHARD III MINE... Large Body of Ore Is Found at the Three Hundred Foot Level

PRICE OF SHARES RISES RAPIDLY... Operations Will Be Increased and Shipments of Ore Will Be Much Larger

ENGLISH MAILS ARRIVE... Halifax, N. S., Nov. 16.—R. M. S. Virginian with English mails entered the harbor at 3 p. m.

SAYS CANADIAN TRADE IS A RECORD BREAKER... Bradstreets Report Shows Lively Business All Over the Dominion

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Canadian trade was apparently never better at this season.

HEAVY SNOWSTORM... Balston, N. Y., Nov. 16.—The heaviest early November snow storm in many years began here yesterday, and continued through the night.

PEASANTS SUFFER HUNGER... St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—The crop report received here from 17 provinces and the first struck in the United States.

SCHOONER IN DISTRESS... Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 16.—The little schooner live oak, reported to be about 10 miles north of here, reports a three-masted schooner anchored seven miles off shore.

ISLAND DEVELOPMENT... Exploring Party Sent by Provincial Government Report Progress.

NOT A CASE OF MURDER... Davidson, Sask., Nov. 16.—Henry McGregor, formerly of Elgin county, Ont., supposed to have been murdered, died of natural causes.

BATTLE WITH HIGHWAYMEN... San Francisco, Nov. 16.—In a battle with two highwaymen who attempted to hold up a saloon last night, George O'Connell, a former policeman, and one of his associates were killed.

HEARST'S EXPENSES... Albany, N. Y., Nov. 16.—William Randolph Hearst, Independent League and Democratic candidate for governor, today certified to the secretary of state his expenses.

RAILROADS MUST GET SQUARE DEAL... President McDoll, of the Monon Gives Pacific Northwest Advice

Portland, Ore., Nov. 15.—That the Pacific Northwest states should force their own development by making as few laws as possible to hinder railroads is the belief of W. H. McDoll, president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, who spent Sunday in Portland.

Winnipeg Watching Victoria... On his way across Canada Mr. Alice heard much to please him as a Victorian.

REVELATIONS ALARM OTTAWA GOVERNMENT... Reported That Commission Will Be Appointed to Investigate Recent Elections

PEARY SAILS FOR SYDNEY... Chateau Bay, Labrador, Nov. 16.—The Arctic steamer Roosevelt, with the Peary expedition on board, sailed today for Sydney.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—young Jersey bull between one and two years of age, price and age to be considered.

NEGROES SPILL BLOOD... New Orleans, La., Nov. 16.—News arrived here last night of the killing of a white man and a negro and the wounding of two other men yesterday at Bogalusa, La.

RAILROADS MUST GET SQUARE DEAL... President McDoll, of the Monon Gives Pacific Northwest Advice

Winnipeg Watching Victoria... On his way across Canada Mr. Alice heard much to please him as a Victorian.

REVELATIONS ALARM OTTAWA GOVERNMENT... Reported That Commission Will Be Appointed to Investigate Recent Elections

PEARY SAILS FOR SYDNEY... Chateau Bay, Labrador, Nov. 16.—The Arctic steamer Roosevelt, with the Peary expedition on board, sailed today for Sydney.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—young Jersey bull between one and two years of age, price and age to be considered.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—fresh cow and calf; good milk, approx. 145 Superior Street, R. 25.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—Pullets, 150 or less; any good laying breed. George Barnard, Millstream.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... SHROPSHIRE RAMS—A limited number of good Shropshire rams, some of them well grown ram lambs. G. H. Hatfield, Dunoon.

SAVS WORLD'S EYES ARE IN CANADA... Thos. Alice, of Turner, Beeton & Co., Back From Old Country Tour

IGNORANT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA... Astonishing Lack of Information in England Respecting Conditions in This Province

IGNORANT REGARDING B. C... Canada was looming largely in the public eye in England, and immigration to Canada was popular, thousands looking forward to homes in the Dominion.

Winnipeg Watching Victoria... On his way across Canada Mr. Alice heard much to please him as a Victorian.

REVELATIONS ALARM OTTAWA GOVERNMENT... Reported That Commission Will Be Appointed to Investigate Recent Elections

PEARY SAILS FOR SYDNEY... Chateau Bay, Labrador, Nov. 16.—The Arctic steamer Roosevelt, with the Peary expedition on board, sailed today for Sydney.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—young Jersey bull between one and two years of age, price and age to be considered.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—fresh cow and calf; good milk, approx. 145 Superior Street, R. 25.

POULTRY AND LIVESTOCK... WANTED—Pullets, 150 or less; any good laying breed. George Barnard, Millstream.

STOVES and HEATERS... As the Winter Season is coming on rapidly a heater will soon be necessary.

Albion Stove Works LIMITED. Victoria, B. C. Catalogue Sent for the Asking

Albion Stove Works LIMITED. Victoria, B. C. Catalogue Sent for the Asking

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, sixty days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to cut and carry away timber from the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, sixty days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to purchase the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, sixty days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for a special license to cut and carry away timber from the following described lands:

TIMBER LICENSES... Notice is hereby given that, 30 days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for a special license to cut and carry away timber from the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, 30 days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to purchase the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, 30 days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to purchase the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, 30 days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to purchase the following described lands:

NOTICE... NOTICE is hereby given that, 30 days after date I intend to apply to the Hon. Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for permission to purchase the following described lands:

