Nova Scotia the Salt of the Dominion

(Halifax Chronicle.)
I have always had an unbounded admiration for the old lands in the north of Europe from which the greater portion of the population of this Province has come, and which has given its name to the Province. I speak my mind when I say that in my opinion the old Scotland is the salt of the earth, and it is my humble judgment that in Scotland there is more common sense to the acre than in any other portion of the earth. I again I had to speak my mind, I must say that this new Scotland, Nova Scotia, is a chip off the old block. To look at it on the map, it does not cut a large figure, but to look at its history, and the character of its people, especially as it is represented on the floor of the House of Commons, it is undoubtedly the banner Province of Canada. The broad sentiment on which Canadian stationership rests seems to be better understood here than in any other part of Canada. The old causes of discussion, which prevailed in the days of our forefathers, seem to be more deeply buried beneath the soil of Nova Scotia than in any other part of Canada. The new ideal of brotherhood, the new elements of which our population is composed seem to be better appreciated and practiced here than in any other part of Canada. All honor, therefore, to Nova Scotia. It is the salt of this Dominion as old Scotland is the salt of Europe.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Councillor John W. Piggott and Wife Entertain a Host of Friends in Honor of Fiftieth Anniversary of their Marriage.

At "the Orchard" on Tuesday afternoon and evening Jan. 7th, 1908, Councillor and Mrs. John Piggott celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, entertaining a host of friends. The afternoon and evening of the following three days a large number of other guests were also entertained making the occasion one of unexcelled hospitality, and one long to be remembered by their guests.

Mr. Piggott had just attained his mahood, being but twenty-one years of age when he was united in marriage by the late Rev. Geo. Armstrong to Miss Annie Randolph Bishop, daughter of the late Deacon Thomas Bishop of Lawrencetown. Ten children blessed their marriage, five of whom are now living, three sons, Edward S., Louis DeB., of Bridgetown, and Bernard, and two daughters, Mrs. Louis Ricketson and Miss Winnifred.

Mr. Piggott wore the white vest which he wore on the occasion of his marriage, a possession in which he felt justifiable pleasure and pride. The guests were served with a sumptuous repast and after congratulations and social chat,

Military College Pranks Investigated.

OTTAWA, January 15.—In the house of commons to-day, on motion for supply, Colonel Sam Hughes brought up the matter of Royal Military College discipline. The particular matter in question was the case of another student. A member of parliament, knowing the boy was friendly, took up the matter and caused it to be reviewed by the lieutenant. The result was that the judgment of Commandant Taylor was reversed. This member had a son at the college and was warned that trouble would come of it. He, in fact, his own son, cadet Lancaster, was charged with several offences.

THE MILITARY COUNCIL REVERSED THE JUDGMENT. The case was brought before the minister and military council at Ottawa. They reversed the commandant's judgment and the minister sent Sir Frederick Borden said in justice to Commandant Taylor, that he would say that he believed that the officer's motives were good, and that he acted with his best judgment in the case. He had reached the conclusion that the cigarette case was taken with criminal intent. Sir Frederick, on reviewing the evidence so far as he could learn it, for it was not taken down, could find nothing inconsistent with the theory that the incident was a boyish prank. There was nothing to show that the lad intended to keep the articles.

A MILD PENALTY BY THE MINISTER. Sir Frederick had given judgment accordingly, directing that as the act was a breach of the discipline, a mild penalty might be imposed, but that the period of restriction already passed was sufficient for that. It was therefore, ordered that the rest of the punishment be remitted.

FOUR MONTHS PRANK. Then another charge was made. Cadet Lancaster was accused of taking a cigarette case full of cigarettes from the room of a comrade. He had in fact taken the case, passed it around among his comrades asking them to take the rest of Cadet S., the owner of the cigarettes. Cadet Lancaster returned the case a few hours after he took it.

The commandant investigated this matter by the same sweat box method. He found four other cadets guilty of taking things, but concluded they did it for fun and so remitted the penalty, but in the case of Lancaster, the commandant decided the cigarette case was stolen with criminal intent, and punished him for four months.

Mr. Donkin in addition to his duties as Deputy of the Works and Mines Department will have the supervision and general maintenance and repair of the roads and smaller bridges, and the repairs to the larger bridges, and the expenditure of such moneys as are appropriated by the Legislature for such purpose. As Assistant Road Commissioner it will be the duty of Mr. MacKenzie to inspect the roads and smaller bridges of the Province, to direct the Inspectors in the carrying out of their duties and to exercise so far as is possible, personal supervision over the more important works undertaken by the Commissioner. The railways and construction of larger bridges will remain as heretofore under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Engineer. The appointments are good ones, both being practical men, with large experience.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. debating club was well attended at its first meeting last evening and the question of Asiatic Emigration was very fully discussed for upwards of two hours. The discussion narrowed down to the question of admission of Japanese largely, and showed wide reading and mature thought. Messrs. Ervin, W. H. Burns, and Sydney Fay favored the exclusion and made the most of their case while the opposite side was equally as well sustained by Messrs. Armstrong, Otterson, J. H. Hicks, W. A. Hills, T. J. Ferguson, B. Farnsworth and Rev. Mr. MacDonald.

The following officers were elected for this winter:—
Pres., Dr. Jost.
Vice Pres., Rev. A. J. MacDonald.
Secy., W. A. Hills.

Committee of management, Dr. Armstrong, M. A. Otterson, R. J. Messenger, W. H. Burns and the Secy.

Subject for next week—
Resolved that the franchise should be extended to women. W. A. Hills, opener; B. Farnsworth, responder.

THE EMANCIPATION OF THE WOMAN.

A great many good people in America belonging to the old-fashioned school of thought, object to the prominence of woman in the trades, professions, sciences and arts to-day. They fear that she is getting out of her "true sphere," the home, and that the best interests of the race are jeopardized. The first advent of woman into science of medicine was met by violent opposition from this class of people, then a much larger class than it is today.

But how about the condition of woman and the condition of the race, before the "Strike of the Sex" was inaugurated? How about the condition of the sex and the race in Oriental countries, where woman is kept in her "proper sphere," that of the breeder of the species?

Civilization has its glaring defects. The strike of the sex has been marked by unpleasant features; the prominence of woman everywhere and her intrusion into all places and occupations is frequently offensive, and her liberty at times verges on license. But when we deary civilization, with all its vices of money worship, its false standards of life, its superficial religions, its sweatshops, its slaughter houses, its divorce courts and ten thousand other evils, we need to turn the leaves of history back a few hundred years and look on the condition of woman in the middle ages.

For a thousand years the world had no healer save the "Sorceress." If she cured she was called the "Wise Woman." If she failed to cure she was called a "Witch" and killed.

Renny, the Duke of Lorraine, burned 800 of them about 200 years ago. Jules Michelet gave thirty years to writing a history of those ages, and he says:—

"From when does the Sorceress date? FROM THE AGE OF DESTRUCTION. From the profound desolation the world owes the church; the Sorceress is the Church's crime."

The doctrine of original sin made cruel savages of the rulers of those ages. A Roman theologian, Spina, master of the Sacred Palace, formulates the doctrine in precise scientific terms:—"Why does God permit the death of the innocent?"

"He does so justly, for if they die not by reason of the sins they have committed, yet they are guilty of death by reason of original sin. The babe at its mother's breast is already a damned soul!"

With such a religion the only religion of the age, can we wonder at the horrible atrocities which took place and were sanctioned by law, or what can we wonder at the low plane poor woman occupied for so many centuries?

And how can we deary our own century, which has placed women in the chair of the medical faculty and given them the privileges and the rights to know all that men of science know regarding the care and preservation of the human body?

The world's physician woman who was the first physician. While the men hunted and fought, she bore her children and lived much alone, and dreamed dreams, and developed her clairvoyant sight, and learned many things by her intuition and her communion with the nature science blundered along and learned many things by slow experiment hundreds of years.

And when she failed to cure all human ailments with her strangely gained knowledge she was tortured and murdered as a Sorceress. Poor woman, what a fiery path she has trod up to her present proud position in the civilized world.

For it is a proud position, despite all the imperfections of the great systems, imperfections which will only be righted after two or three more hundred years pass by.

The word sorcery in its original meaning is "all thinking on matters of faith."

Ill thinking about in those days (only three hundred years ago, and still more recently in Salem) thinking differently from the majority.

Michelet says in his history:—"In the fourteenth century woman sees opening before her a long and terrible career of punishment and torments. Subsequently to 1399 her medicines are adjusted to be mischievous; her remedies condemned as poisons. The harmless spells whereby the lepers tried to alleviate their sufferings led to the massacre of these unhappy beings. Pope John XXII was flayed alive on suspicion of sorcery."

It is no wonder that, with such a religion prevailing, a worship of Satan was organized and Satanic orgies indulged in by the half-mad people persecuted by the clergy. "Satanism," too, was the church's crime.

"By a monstrous perversion of ideas," says Michelet, "the Middle Ages regarded the flesh (in its representative woman, accused of Eve) as radically impure."

Woman herself came to share the odium and prejudice of the medieval ages, and believed herself unclean. So she lurked in hiding at the hour of childbirth, blushing at the thought of maternity, faint to ask pardon for existing at all and for fulfilling the conditions of life.

A submissive matter to false modesty, she was forever torturing herself, and endeavoring to conceal the adorable signs of womanhood.

T. ANSLEY FOSTER

high cheek bones, and a pair of small, steel gray eyes, which hid a way of looking into one's secret thoughts. She was tall and angular. Her manner suggested the probability of her having been raised on vinegar instead of milk; and it is doubtful if any child ever lay upon her uncomfortable bony knees except for punishment. She believed with Solomon, that "the rod and reproof give wisdom," and with her narrow ideas of what constituted a model child, she had endeavored to fit Louise into her mould with indifferent success.

To be sure, Mrs. Martin had succeeded in brushing Louise's curls into submission, as a glossy mass and tight braids testified, and the child's stiffly starched apron stood out much in the manner of her own, but her change of spirit was unaccompanied, and at times her tightly compressed lips and flashing eyes told Mrs. Martin's angular soul with a feeling bordering on despair.

As Mrs. Martin finished the fire she noted not only the embers' sizzling cheeks, but her lips set in firm handlines. Her own lips immediately parted.

"Louise, don't you know better than to sit there and roast your brains out?"

The child knew an answer was expected. She gave the shortest possible:

"Yes, ma'am."

Without rising the child gave a slight backward jerk to the stool. The action had much the effect of a red flag waved before a bull.

The woman caught her roughly by the shoulder and shook her. "Of all the aggravating children I ever saw, you take the best, Louise Darst."

The child flinched as if expecting a blow.

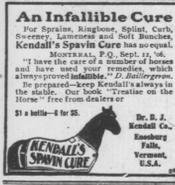

"For my part," Mrs. Martin continued, "I'll be glad to turn you over to your stepmother. If she don't take some of the meanness out of you, I miss my guess. I've tried hard enough, goodness knows, and got no thanks for my pains. Your pa took your part against me, but he won't against her."

She moved toward the door, but turned to give a parting shot.

"Losing you're one thing, and getting a new one is another—as you will soon find out." The door slammed, and Louise was alone.

"Oh, mother, mother, mother," she sobbed; "why did you go away from me? I want you—nobody else understands—why didn't you take me with you?" Her sobs ceased. She lay very still, thinking. Her mother's cheeks had been hot like hers. She had gone to bed and stayed there a long time; then she became very cold, and her father said an angel took her away. She would go to bed and stay there, and an angel came for her. She would leave a window open till she grew cold, and the angel would come in that way. She liked the idea. It seemed a pleasant solution of a very difficult problem. She crept back upon her stool. The storm of fear and anger no longer raged within her. She could hear the singing of the pig now; it sounded like her mother's voice calling her. She looked about the fruit room, taking a silent farewell of its furnishings.

GLACE BAY, January 10.—The report current to the effect that the Dominion Coal Company had notified all their engineers and shop-fitters to leave the P. W. A. if they wished to remain in the company's employment, seems to have arisen through a misapprehension. The engineers and shop-fitters who are in charge of other men are classified as officials and so are shop-fitters since they are deputy over-men. It is against the rules of both the Coal company and P. W. A. for officials to belong to the order. So far as can be learned the only ground for the report mentioned is that the few shop-fitters who had retained their membership in the P. W. A. had this well known rule regarding officials brought to their attention.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. For every motion weak heart is a burden. It is hidden that little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure power—the balance, or heart's nerve—must be made more powerful, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the best for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all heart troubles. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this powerful, specific—was also directed to those weak and ailing hearts. It builds up the heart, strengthens it, gives real, genuine heart health. If you would have strong hearts, store up this medicine, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

CAPTAIN HENRY A. EVERETT
 The death occurred on Sunday afternoon last of Captain Henry A. Everett, after a lingering illness of two or three years' duration, at his residence near Carleton's Corner, Captain Everett was a Digby County man and followed the sea-faring profession until about twenty years ago, when he came to Bridgetown and bought the Marshall farm. Here he brought up a large family of children, a number of whom are still in their teens or younger, while of the two older sons, one, Isaac, manages the farm, and the second, Leon, following his father's business is with his vessel now in southern waters. Capt. Everett married a Mrs. Everett, a widow, formerly Miss Bauchman, daughter of the late John Bauchman of Bridgetown.
 A large circle of friends and acquaintances will mourn the loss of a genial and valued friend, cut off from this life in the prime of his usefulness and will deeply sympathize with the bereaved family.
 The funeral will take place from his late residence at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL.

The municipal council is in annual session at Annapolis this week.

Posters are out announcing the nomination and election of town council to take place on the 28th of January and the 4th of February.

A copy of the Monitor of January 2nd, 1907 is wanted at this office. Any reader who may happen to have a copy will confer a favor by notifying us.

There will be a clam supper in the Hall at Hampton on Tuesday evening, the 21st. If the night proves stormy the next fine night. All are cordially invited to attend. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

Mr. White, the candy manufacturer, of St. John, was the guest of Mr. W. H. Cochran, the first of the week.

Mr. White informs the Monitor that it is improbable that they will remove their factory as there has been some talk of doing, from St. John to Yarmouth, at least at the present time.

An eventful day was last Sunday when three deaths occurred in or near Bridgetown, those of Capt. Henry A. Everett, Miss Mary Brooks and Mrs. Herbert Marshall. The first two were not unexpected, a lingering illness in each case preceding death, but the death of Mrs. Marshall was of sudden and very sad nature.

The first of the Y. M. C. A. entertainments, given Monday evening, was a marked success, the attendance being good and the interest lively. The basket ball team were captained by Fred Kinney and Percy Rossell. The latter team won, the score being 12 to 10. The rooster fight and other contests made plenty of fun. The music by the band was much appreciated. Admission free amounted to $8.55.

The new superintendent of the H. & S. W. Railway, W. D. Barclay, made an inspection of the road last week, arriving at this station on Friday. He was waited upon by Mr. Graves, Capt. Salter and Mr. Irvin, in the interests of the Graves Vinegar Company, who are trying to get a siding to facilitate shipping their goods, but the deputation received little encouragement, economy rather than outlay being apparently the sentiment of the new manager.
