Consumption, which has increased tremendously, and the production of tea being curtailed, has resulted in the highest prices for tea in years. The recent reduction of four-pence per pound on tea tax in England has further stimulated consumption, which means that even higher prices may soon be expected.

given way to the steam method, and when the cream of the gold had been taken, capital bought out the miners' interests and hydro-electric power was used with a fleet of dredges operating on the river valleys and nozzles to suck the gold from the high banks. Business was decreasing and the output of gold was now about $1,000,000 yearly, but silver mining was coming to the fore and rich silver mines had been opened.

Three well-equipped mining companies were in operation, and it was not unusual to have a ton of the ore yield 3,000 ounces of silver. Transportation facilities had been improved and, but these would be overcome.

What should be of practical interest to easterners in hearing of the Yukon, Captain Black said, was that 300,000 tons of Canadian made goods, valued at $20,000,000, had been imported and the money to pay for them had been taken from the Yukon.

Heary thanks were extended to Captain Black and the meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

BARGAIN BASEMENT OPENS TOMORROW AT OAK HALL

This Idea Recognized as the Greatest Factor in Bringing Lower Prices.

Many have been the inquiries as to when Oak Hall intend to open their new Bargain Basement Department, and Oak Hall's announcement that the department will be opening day will be welcome news.

The Bargain Basement idea solves the greatest problem that merchants have been struggling with for some time now, and that is the cost of distribution.

For some years now the cost of production has been steadily increasing, but the cost of distribution has increased even more rapidly. Of course the retail merchant has not control over production, and some other costs of distribution, but he has considerable control over his costs of selling, and his great problem has been to bring these costs down, to give the buying public quality goods at lower prices.

The Bargain Basement method of merchandising has been the greatest factor in bringing the selling costs down. It has been adopted by the leading stores in the large cities, such as Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, and others, and the wonderful success achieved by these stores has undoubtedly the economic position of the Bargain Basement in the retail field.

It is realized that the great Filene Store of Boston is best recognized through the medium of its Bargain Basement Department, the success of this idea is easily understood. And now St. John is to enjoy this same economic opportunity. Its first Bargain Basement will be opened tomorrow by Scovill Brothers, Limited, and the department will bring to the public will be a revelation.

QUEST OF DOLLAR WRONG OBJECTIVE

Cult of Arts by Business Men is Urged by Ex-Senator Walsh.

(Montreal Gazette.) "You are business men chasing the dollar; and when you began to make that the objective of your work you lost your sense of direction. Dollars, gentlemen, is only a means to an end; it is not the end. What books have you read? What tribute have you paid to those men who have given you the joys of life, those exquisite works of art, those immortal masterpieces of human genius?" asked Mr. John J. Walsh, formerly state senator for Massachusetts, in a speech before the Montreal club at their luncheon held in the Queen's hotel.

The speaker, whose subject was entitled "Investing Spare Time," made an eloquent plea for culture among business men. "How do you measure your patriotism?" asked he. "What have you done for your country? You have a home market surely, and while the burly-burly days of the Yukon and the beauty that God has given us, and manufacturing and silver mining were good, and new discoveries undoubtedly were made, the silver camp had doubled its population in three years.

Heary thanks were extended to Captain Black and the meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

A happy thought prompted the unusual announcement which states that to each of the first twenty-five June brides purchasing Enterprise Ranges will be given, absolutely free, a twelve-piece set of Glistening Aluminum Cooking Utensils, including tea kettle and covered serving kettle, valued at $6.00, by Emerson & Fisher, Limited.

On Cedar Chests and Such Gifts...

Right away the bride should have the treasure chest for her trousseau as shown in our centre window. Pronounced proof against moths by government test, its appearance is strengthened by studded copper plate fastenings and lock. In cedar, 42 inches long, $24.30.

Study our window for distinctive ideas. See the hand carving throughout that solid mahogany sewing table that does double duty for serving guest seats. Came panelling below, two trim drawers to hold handiwork, all carved about the handles, $40.00.

See the telephone desk in walnut that serves as a secretary—the gate leg table finished in walnut with the drop oval top—see a full dozen thoughtful new pieces of furniture, the gift long loved.

SURGERY 3,000 YEARS AGO.

Papyrus Translator Finds Record of Delicate Operations.

Chicago, May 31—Surgical operations of the most delicate nature have been performed for at least 3,000 years, according to an Egyptian papyrus which Dr. J. H. Breasted of the University of Chicago has been translating for more than a year. He expects to take two more years to complete the translation. Dr. Breasted presented his translation before the Chicago Medical Society.

According to Dr. Breasted, the papyrus he noticed a copy of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" reposing on some law books, while the office possessed many works of the great masters. If business men, he said, took more interest in art, literature, and music, they would become more manly and a little less stingy and would experience less satisfaction of their position in life. It was no good spending their lives selling and buying when they might be getting the riches of life. Business men should be less enthusiastic in gambling with stocks and shares, for it undermined their character. They were to bring the better things in life into touch with their world was not only to be counted in giving socks of good quality, or meats of delicious taste, but in teaching and acquiring the edicts of culture.

CANADIANS IN LONDON.

The secretary of the Board of Trade has received a communication from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in London, saying that a deputation from the Association had waited on the Canadian High Commissioner and invite him to become the honorary president of the association. Mr. Larin expressed his pleasure and promised that the matter should have his most serious consideration. F. G. Wade, Agent-general for British Columbia, who returned home last week, was present and in the course of his remarks pointed out the fact that the work of the Chamber of Commerce supplemented the work of the Canadian Trade Commissioners to a tremendous degree, and was an organization that Canada would find it hard to do without at the present time.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES

Reciprocity Discussed by the Hon. W. S. Fielding in Budget

This Country Has Made the First Move and Now it is Up to Our Neighbors, Says the Finance Minister.

The text of Hon. W. S. Fielding's remarks in the budget on the situation in regard to the United States follows: "For many years we regarded the United States as pursuing an unfriendly policy toward Canada in tariff. I do not think it was ever deliberately intended to penalize Canada; but we were the nearest neighbor, and the tariff policy of the United States unquestionably did seriously affect us, and produced a good deal of hostile feeling in Canada. For years we had reason to complain—and we did complain. There came, however, a happier moment when a change occurred.

"There came a moment when the American government sent representatives to Ottawa to ask us to reopen negotiations and see whether we could not come to a friendly arrangement. The result of that negotiation—first held at Ottawa and afterward at Washington—was the making of a comprehensive agreement. It was not a treaty, but a comprehensive agreement, which was entered into in 1910-11, at the time when the United States would admit that we are dependent on them; each country can live and prosper and flourish more if they have friendly relations and intercourse, as good nations should.

"It Was Our Move." "A distinguished American who himself was closely identified with the reciprocity movement in 1911, said some months ago that if the reciprocity movement was ever to be revived it must come from Canada.

"The United States, having made a friendly offer which was rejected, could not be expected to come to Canada again. That was a fair criticism. It was our move, we have made the move, and we have initiated, in the way that I have described, to the American Government and the British Empire, the subject of reciprocal trade negotiations with every desire to make a friendly arrangement. Whether anything will come of that or not remains to be seen.

"For the present our American friends, and the tariff policy of the United States, and our Western country in some branches of industry—notably the cattle business—has suffered severely in consequence.

Effect of Fordney Bill. "Now there is another tariff bill at Washington—a bill that has passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate—which proposes to enlarge on the Fordney Emergency Bill. It includes, I think, all the duties of that bill, and, in some instances, they are increased. It proposes to establish a schedule of duties which is very high indeed. We have no right to complain of our American friends for doing that; but if they assume that position they cannot expect us in Canada to be as willing as we otherwise would be to deal liberally with them. If our American brothers try to persuade themselves that you can sell all the time and never buy, we can only regret that they are failing to understand an economic truth, but since they do not seem to understand it, we regret our own attitude toward them.

"I have had the privilege of being at Washington discussing this question. I had the opportunity to say to the President of the United States and to the leading Congressmen of the United States, and still less, that the United States would admit that we are dependent on them; each country can live and prosper and flourish more if they have friendly relations and intercourse, as good nations should.

"The floodtide of good-will in trade matters from our American neighbors came to us in 1910-11, but, unhappily, the Canadian people did not accept the agreement. I do not want to dwell upon that further than to have the effect clearly understood that, though in former years we had reason to complain of unfriendly action, at the moment we had every reason to recognize the fairness of the American government. A happy combination of circumstances arose, then, which has not risen since—which perhaps may not come again. A Republican Administration—an Administration representing the party of high tariff—was in power at Washington, and yet that Republican Administration had come to us with a willingness to give us what we thought was a fair deal.

"The Democratic party was traditionally a low tariff party; so, with the Republican Administration supporting the agreement, the Democratic party naturally gave it its good-will. The agreement was confirmed by the American Congress. It was not confirmed by Canada, much, as I think, to the regret of many people today who at that time did not view it with favor.

Tide of Events Flowed On. "Now many things have happened since that time. The Democratic party, coming into power, established trade arrangements which, for some years, gave us certain of the benefits which reciprocity would have given us. The Democratic tariff gave us a chance still to do business. Unfortunately, however—no, I should not say that; we do not want to meddle in the politics of our neighbors—the people of the United States in their wisdom turned out the Democratic party, and the Republican party was restored to power.

"Since it was restored to power it has introduced what is called the Fordney Emergency Bill, which deals largely with agricultural products. The bill unquestionably worked great harm to the Dominion of Canada, and especially to our Western provinces. There is no doubt in the world—we may as well frankly acknowledge it—that the trade relations that had grown up between

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

The county of St. John can have nothing to gain by electing an opponent of the provincial government. Leader of the opposition was heard at Glen Falls last evening. He set forth no policy whatever. His party has none, just as he has no seat in the house. He charges the Foster government with extravagance, but this, from a gentleman associated with former Valley Railway affairs, is not impressive. The Foster government has expended a great deal of money, no doubt, but there is something to show for it in roads and bridges, education, public health, forest protection, improved agriculture and other services—and the public accounts are there to speak for themselves when the opponents of the government or any elector asks for information. Mr. Palmer appears to be under the impression that the Musquash development was not undertaken to provide light and power, but to benefit some private individuals. Surely that is cheap talk from the leader of a party, and especially the party that fleeced the lumbermen and provided the Valley Railway scandal.

Quite different from the carping criticisms of opposition speakers were the clear-cut speeches of Dr. Curran and Mr. Bentley at Midway last evening. They reviewed the record of achievement by the Foster government and effectively disposed of the charges of extravagance, setting forth clearly the reasons why the county should elect a supporter of the administration. By way of contrast Mr. Bentley asked what the opposition has to offer, and one searches the speeches of Leader Palmer, Dr. Barton and others in vain for an answer. "They have had four leaders in four years," said Dr. Bentley—"have you ever seen their platform?"

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

In an address delivered in St. John quite a number of years ago Sir George Foster (he was not Sir George in those days) declared the time had come when Canada should move out to the front and display her wares to the world. It was an apt and striking observation. In the years that have intervened Canada has moved out, and the world has taken note of her wares. During the forward movement Sir George kept up with the process, and when Canada became a member of the League of Nations he was there to rejoice in the new status of his native land. The reception tendered him last evening at Pythian Hall was a tribute to himself as well as an evidence of local interest in his subject, and, if the large audience applauded the imperial and world-statesman, many hearers were also gratified to sit at students at the feet of their old personal friend, Prof. George E. Foster. He spoke as a teacher to a class, with his new faculty of presenting facts and making deductions so clearly that all could comprehend; and through it all, as Chief Justice McKenna observed, there was not a single reference to any part he had himself taken at the Peace Conference or in the Assembly of the League of Nations. The graceful introduction by Sir Douglas Hasen was a fitting prelude to the great speech delivered, and the remarks of Chief Justice McKenna and Premier Foster in moving a vote of thanks at the close of Sir George's address was but an expression of the feeling of an audience deeply impressed, and desirous of forwarding the movement to establish here a branch of the League.

So much has been written about the alleged failure of the League of Nations that it was worth while to have clearly enumerated not only the difficulties in its way but the very tangible and far-reaching results it has already achieved. It was impossible to listen to Sir George Foster without becoming convinced that while the United States is still out of the co-operative efforts of fifty-one other nations have accomplished a very great deal; and Sir George is confident that the United States will yet join. He pointed out that our neighbor is really co-operating, as in the Washington conference on naval disarmament, and having approved of the Palestine mandatories, and being represented in the International Court of Justice; while in his opinion nine tenths of her people also approve of the League of Nations. But without American aid the League has had a profound influence in European affairs, and is going on to greater things. The most deeply impressive portion of Sir George's speech was that which dealt with the reasons why people of every nation should support the League with all their power. His here summary of the terrible effects of

FEAST OF WEEKS

Jewish Festival to be Celebrated on June 2.

(Tract Commission Notice) The Feast of Weeks, known in Hebrew as Shabuoth, will be celebrated this year on Friday, June 2, in all Jewish congregations of this country. This festival is one of those which orthodox synagogues observe on two successive days.

The particular interest occasioned by this feast rests in the modern use made of it by reform congregations. On this occasion the children of the religious school who have attained a practical knowledge of Biblical history and Jewish religious beliefs and doctrines, as well as a reading knowledge of Hebrew, are graduated as confirmed.

The ceremony is a modern adaptation by the synagogue. In this rite the children testify to the love and justice wherewith God has created the world of men and nations. It is a ceremony of consecration wherein the boy and girl, having reached the age of reason, pledge themselves to continue the covenant made between God and Israel at Sinai, when God gave the Decalogue unto Israel and consecrated him a priest-people to serve at the altar of humanity.

A renewal of this dedication is now involved in the confirmation service which marks on the one hand a culmination of religious instruction received in the religious school, and on the other hand a voluntary recognition of duties and responsibilities as a member of the household of Israel to labor in behalf of those ideals of righteousness and justice which are the basis of humanity.

The modern interpretation of Shabuoth follows the process of Jewish history which has invested this one of the three pilgrim feasts of ancient Palestine with a new content, yet with a meaning that is as old as the continuation of the original conception and purpose of the feast.

In the remote antiquity the Feast of Weeks was one of several agricultural festivals, Shabuoth being observed in modern times on the day of giving of wheat and grain. (Deut. 16:10). These were given as free-will offerings unto God at the Temple in Jerusalem, and the people of Palestine in vast numbers gathered to rejoice before the Lord.

Later an historical event of early Hebrew history was associated with this spring harvest, and that was the momentous occasion of giving of the Decalogue to the Children of Israel who represented the first fruits of the ripening consciousness of God.

The covenant that then obtained between God and Israel resulted in a consecration of the people to the service of God. By means of this revelation the Jewish people have been elected to become the messengers of those ethical and moral duties and obligations which are the foundation of modern civilization. Under the inspiration of this doctrine they zealously strive to stay the floods of sin and corruption that threaten the peace of the world. This consecration is viewed as the "mission of the Jew." It invests him with a purpose and gives him a task to perform.

Income Tax on Tips. London, May 31.—The assessment of tips as income for income tax purposes is to be carried out with increased vigor, reports The Daily Mail.

A large number of railway guards have received a demand from the Inspector of Taxes for Euston "A" District to furnish particulars, "as accurately as possible," of the amount received by them in tips for the half-year ended October 5, 1921.

"We have a very shrewd idea," said an income tax official to a Daily Mail reporter, "of the amount such people receive each year in tips. Every man or woman who receives tips, whether such tips form only part or the whole income, must make a true return for assessment."

BEE CAUSES AUTO WRECK

Camden, N. J., May 31.—A bee buzzed into an automobile and cost the owner thereof $3,500. A jury fixed the amount. Edward Steward, the driver, became confused when the insect approached him, and the bee crashed into a telephone pole. Nevin Heusted, Jr., was severely hurt and his father suffered minor injuries. The former got $3,000 and the latter $500.

Steward maintained that the entrance of the bee into the conveyance, which he piloted between Camden and Merchantville, was attributable to Providence and an occurrence over which he had no control. The jury held that he should have exercised more self-possession. The accident took place last Sunday.

THE CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS

Great Convention in St. Andrews in Week of June 18—Four Days of Business and Pleasure.

This year members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association propose doing something rather unique in the way of convention holding. Usually annual meetings of trade organizations gravitate to the larger cities where business centres. This time, however, the manufacturers intend to get as far away as possible from chimney smoke, factory whistles and street cars. They are going to invade and occupy for a week the beautiful shores of the most famous summer resort—St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, New Brunswick. Here, they have chartered the big Algonquin Hotel and in these attractive surroundings they will be able to mix business and pleasure in agreeable proportions during the week of June 18.

This year's annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will be spread over four days, instead of the customary three days. This arrangement is in recognition of the desire of the members to spend as much time as possible in the enjoyment of the outdoor attraction of St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, the convention headquarters. Business sessions will accordingly be limited to the mornings, while afternoons will be given over to the various forms of amusement and pleasure which the seaside resort, such as golf, tennis, bowling, boating, deep-sea fishing, bathing and motoring. In this way, delegates to the convention will be able to enjoy a short holiday in attractive surroundings, while at the same time devoting attention to the problems confronting the organization. Coming at a time of the year when days are longest, the week of June 18 offers opportunities for the enjoyment of the out-of-door programme will be excellent.

The recent visit of members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to the British West Indies which did so much to develop interest in these markets for Canadian products, will provide the subject-matter for an illustrated lecture by several of those who toured the islands in February and March, including the President, Mr. W. S. Fisher, of St. John.

An illustrated lecture, which is being provided for one of the evenings of the convention, will deal with the scenic attractions, resources and industries of the maritime provinces. It will under arms, and with a gun, be calculated to give the visitors from other provinces a good idea of the section of Canada in which the meeting is being held.

Former Mrs. W. E. Smith Says He Labeled Her when He Got License to Wed Again.

New York, May 31.—A decision by the Supreme Court Justice McAvoy in the case of William Edgar Smith, the only son of Mrs. Roxie M. B. Smith, who died in 1910, has been handed down. Mrs. Smith's will left to her husband, William V. R. Smith, a partner in the Quebec Brothers, a large estate, valued at $100,000. Mrs. Smith, a partner in the Quebec Brothers, a large estate, valued at $100,000. Mrs. Smith, a partner in the Quebec Brothers, a large estate, valued at $100,000.

Mrs. Smith alleges that on June 18 last Smith filed an application for a marriage license in the office of the city clerk, in which he stated it was his first marriage, but that he had never been divorced. Mrs. Smith charges that this meant that her former husband stated under oath that he had never been married to her, and that it damaged her reputation in the eyes of all her friends.

Smith demurred to the complaint, asserting that no cause of action was made out, but Justice McAvoy denied Smith's application to dismiss the complaint, and in his opinion said:

"The publication itself does not contain a reference to the plaintiff, but the extrinsic facts necessary to indicate its application to the plaintiff are urged with sufficient appositeness to point her out as intended. The complaint does not rest on the statutory privilege of saying that the words were written of and concerning the plaintiff? She makes it clear that if libellous in their meaning they must refer to her. I do not think it is a far-fetched innuendo to ascribe to the words which in effect were published, 'This is my first marriage,' the meaning that such relations as plaintiff sustained with defendant were meretricious, in view of the extrinsic fact that they had lived as man and wife for many years in this and other communities."

Under the decision Smith must now file an answer to the suit, which will be tried on its merits. The first Mrs. Smith was Louise Curtis of Portland, Maine. When she was married to Smith she gave her age as thirty, and he said he was forty-two, which would make him fifty-seven years old. When he married his present wife, Mrs. Smith, she was twenty-one, and he was thirty-two.

Nicholas Smith, on June 18 last, he said he was sixty-one years of age. One of the grounds of the consideration alleged by Mrs. Nugent for her uncle's agreement that she should have half of his mother's estate was her promise to tell his mother of his mar-

OAK HALL ANNOUNCES Opening Tomorrow ST. JOHN'S FIRST AND ONLY Bargain Basement

To help keep prices low we must insist on the following:

No Approval.
No Refunds.
No Charge Accounts.

Help us to give lower prices by not asking for these three.

When Oak Hall erected their new building a few years ago, the Bargain Basement method of merchandising was just in its infancy, but the idea even then appealed so strongly to the Oak Hall management that in the design of their new building provision was made to inaugurate a Bargain Basement Department at some future date—and now the time has come.

What is the idea behind a Bargain Basement? It is to sell quality merchandise at a low price. And this price is kept low. First, because operating expenses are much less than prevail in ordinary stores; by eliminating appropriation costs, charge accounts, expensive fittings, big rentals and other overhead expenses, a big saving is made for our customers. Again by sending buyers direct to the largest manufacturing centres, cutting out all middlemen and buying from the makers in large quantities for cash, enormous savings are made on the purchase price, making another big direct saving for our customers. Thus we buy for less, we figure a smaller gross profit. You reap in a big saving on each individual purchase. We anticipate a small profit on a large turnover.

And now for the merchandise itself. We wish to emphatically state that this is not made up of sale articles from the upstairs departments. It is clean, new, fresh stock bought in the open market, and marked at a very small margin of profit. It is bought low, it is sold low and every article is in reality an actual bargain.

Contractors have been busily engaged widening the stairway, whitening walls and ceiling, installing a new lighting system, in every way making the Bargain Basement Department as bright, as cheerful and as airy as anyone could wish.

To help keep prices low we must insist on the following:

No Approval.
No Refunds.
No Charge Accounts.

Help us to give lower prices by not asking for these three.

USE ALL STRENGTH TO IMPOSE PEACE

Premier's New Statistics to Show Empire's Right to Voice

Hit at His Critics—Apostles of Peace Demonstrated Joy at Every Prediction of Failure at Genoa.

(Special Cable to the N. Y. Times and Montreal Gazette.) London, May 28.—Lloyd George, at a luncheon at the Hotel Cecil today, given in his honor as a welcome back from the Genoa conference by a large gathering of members of both houses of parliament, quoted new statistics of the British Empire's man power effort in the war as establishing the Empire's right to a voice in deciding what sort of peace should prevail in the world.

Yacoub Long, former first lord of the admiralty, was in the chair, and others present were the lord chancellor, Lord Balfour, Lord Derby and most of the cabinet members.

Replying to a toast, the premier referred to a similar luncheon given to

Increases the action of the intestines

Hundreds of men and women have already found freedom from laxatives by eating Fleischmann's yeast.

Doctors are now agreed that proper elimination of waste matter should be brought about by food. One doctor comes right out and states plainly that the indigestible use of cathartics is one of the causes of constipation.

Physicians all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's yeast because it is a fresh food, rich in those elements which keep the intestines healthy. In one series of tested cases, normal functions were restored in from 3 days to 5 weeks.

Try it out for yourself. Begin today by adding just a cake of Fleischmann's Yeast to your everyday diet. Keep it up and see how normally and regularly your intestines act. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar six-fold package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer.

Lord, then Mr. Balfour, on his return from Washington, and said:—

"His task was a complete one. I do not profess that the work at Genoa has been completed. It has begun, and having begun, it is going through to the end. There is an old Welsh saying that two parts of a task is its beginning."

The Premier hit at some of the critics of the conference by declaring that nothing had surprised him more than the joy which some of the apostles of peace had demonstrated at every prediction of failure. "Then he quoted statistics of the British Empire's effort in the war as justification of its claims to be heard concerning the terms of peace. "Listen to these figures," he said. "How many men did the British Empire mobilize for war? Horse, foot, artillery, on land and sea, 9,800,000 men. Have we no right to say something as to what peace should be established in the world?

"Between five and six millions of these men went to France, a very interesting figure. I confess this was a surprise to me, and I thought it was pretty well equaled with these figures. Do you know what the dominions did? The dominions sent 1,600,000 men to the struggle. Had they no right to a voice in declaring what manner of peace should be established in the world? What did India do? India sent 1,678,000 men. Had India no right to send their representatives in the face of thirty-three nations, great and small, to say India binds herself to a compact of non-aggression? That is all right, that is our moral obligation.

"Ah, there is another. Our casualties in that war were 2,200,000. That is what impels us. That is why we went to Genoa and why my friends and myself feel we are doing right in speaking on behalf of all those millions who fought and of the millions who fell and were crippled, to say there must be peace in the world.

"Britain, who put her might into the fighting and into the struggle, will henceforth put forth all her great might to establish peace in the world and good will amongst men."

Mr. Lloyd George concluded with thanks for the loyal help he had received from men of different political views and a plea for its continuance.

"Great Britain is not out of danger," he cried, "the world is not out of danger, humanity is not out of danger, there are perils abroad. There are perils nearer our coasts. There are perils inside this island. And as we stood together in the last several years, let us show the same spirit of combination and co-operation until the last peril is finished and the British can face the world and help the world right to the end."

DEATH IS CLAIMING BRAINS OF RUSSIA

Relief Worker Tells of Famine Deaths Among Educated Classes.

London, May 30.—(By Mail)—The Soviet government is really trying to further education in Russia, but because of the lack of supplies, and above all the lack of food, "the brains of Russia are dying at present," says E. T. Colton, of Montreal, N. J., who has just returned from Moscow, where he was the Young Men's Christian Association representative on the staff of the American Relief Administration. Mr. Colton's work was confined to investigating conditions among professors and students, with a view to affording them a B. A. relief. This was subsequently given.

"There are more bona fide students in Russia now than there were before the war," Mr. Colton said. "There are many more women students than men, even in the mining schools. They are short of all supplies, from textbooks to laboratory instruments. Moreover, the professors, most of whom were on the verge of starvation, had no energy left to do research or creative work. Consequently Russian education is not what it was before the war."

It was Mr. Colton who drew up the feeding programme for them, 7,000 to 10,000 Russian students, which the A. R. A. initiated in Moscow, Petrograd and Kazan. It is confined to the two higher classes of university students, a great number of whom are mature men and women, because they abandoned their studies in 1914 to go into the war work in some form.

"We chose these," Mr. Colton explained, "because they will get nearest into the productive life of Russia. We couldn't possibly feed all with our resources."

One curious thing about the Russian

LIFE SECLUSION FOR BAD ONES

Lord Russell's Address on "Crime and Character"

Probation for Novices—Confirmed Evil Doers Should be Permanently Caged, but Under Humane Conditions.

London, May 9.—(By Mail)—An address on "Crime and Character" was delivered yesterday by Lord Russell at a conversation of the Ethological Society at 90 Buckingham Palace road, S.W., Mr. John A. Compton presiding.

If we accept the view, remarked Lord Russell, that all true crime is ego-economic and an offence against civilized communal life, which the community is entitled to punish, could we go further and make true classification of criminals founded on their subsidiary motives? After considerable reflection he was inclined to doubt whether we could, and to come to the conclusion that the only scientific way was to look at each criminal individually. It was obvious that we could make some rough and ready classifications; but then came the question, so baffling to the penologist—What was society to do with such criminals when they had been caught and convicted? The question was very difficult to answer, and he could only tentatively suggest for discussion an extension in two directions of our existing practice.

First of all, with regard to the first offenders, where it might be hoped that the first offence would be the last—such as the bank clerk who had robbed his employer, and perhaps even the man who had been guilty of manslaughter in a moment of drunken rage in a public house—an extension of the system of binding over and of probation in a real hope of reform, without the prison taint, would, he thought, be sufficient. The prisoner would walk warily for the rest of his days, while the community would succeed in adding one to the number of honest men, instead of one to the prison population.

Secondly, in the case of those who might be called society's devils, for whom the community was itself responsible owing to the anti-social conditions of their environment and upbringing, or of those who, through deliberate choice, continued a life of crime, he advocated permanent and life-long seclusion, but in conditions of comparative comfort like those of an asylum. The community was entitled, he thought, to say that it would not ever and over again, after varying terms of seclusion, let loose dangerous criminals to prey upon society, and give it the trouble and expense of their deportations and of their recapture, but would cage them permanently so long as they could do no harm. In so thought, he treated with the same consideration and the same humanity as we extended to wild animals in captivity. He believed if his plan were adopted we should relieve our prisons at once of something like two-thirds of their population, while greatly simplifying the task of the police and saving the community from unnecessary loss and expense. All Potential Criminals.

So far as crime was related to character, he did not share the view of Lombroso that there was a definite criminal type or a definite criminal character. He thought we were all of us potential criminals and that the question of whether we became actual criminals depended largely upon three things—early habits and training, environment, and a right view of life. The latter was sometimes conspicuously deficient under the term religion, and so long as no supernatural dogma was involved he had no objection to the word. In spite of its own passionate description to the contrary, he did not think a comprehension of and a belief in the Athanasian Creed was essential to an ethically correct life. He could see no reason why the incidence of crime should not be analogous to that of syphilis. If, owing to bad environment, the bacillus had obtained access to the patient, the question of its future growth would depend upon whether it found suitable soil owing to bad habits, or an unfriendly reception from a healthy subject; and so far as its ultimate triumph or subjection was concerned, the moral will and the religious instincts might be likened to the phagocytes and anti-toxins which the healthy human body called out to rout the invader. Although he denied the criminal character, he fully believed in the effect of character upon crime, so much so that with the rare exception of those moral explosions which resulted in crimes of passion, he thought that if one knew the character of the accused truly, one could with certainty, in nine cases out of ten, predicate his guilt or innocence. Everything came back, therefore, to the ever-welcoming importance of the true education and proper training of the young, a matter in which we were still lamentably indifferent and strangely haphazard.

BUSIER ON THE NORTH SHORE.

H. E. Kane, port agent of the C. G. M. M. returned to the city last evening from Chatham, where he has been for several weeks engaged in superintending the loading of steamers. Mr. Kane said this morning that large quantities of lumber were moving on the Miramichi and that present prospects augured well for a busy season. Practically no lumber was moved during the last two years, in this section, and so now there were large quantities ready to be shipped. Although a number of steamers have been already loaded there, the work was not started until last week. He said that this work gave employment to a very large number of men and was a source of great benefit to that part of the country. Mr. Kane said that the Canadian Trapper and Canadian Challenger had already sailed from Chatham; the Canadian Volunteer was loading at Nelson; the Canadian Scuttler was due at Nelson next week to load; the Dart was due at Chatham today and the Ravencliff was also loading lumber. In addition to the lumber business, Mr. Kane said that there was considerable movement of pulp, as well. At the present time the Seneca was loading at Chatham and other boats were expected.

Ruth Gets His Second Home Run - A Sixteen Inning Contest - Giants Make 43 Hits.

New York, May 31.—Babe Ruth's second home run of the season, a sixteen-inning slugger in which St. Louis vanquished Detroit, 2 to 1, and a batting orgy by the New York and Philadelphia National League teams, surpassing even the most hectic of the year's clotting exploits, were in the high lights of sixteen Memorial Day games in the major leagues yesterday.

Outside of the St. Louis Cardinals, who fell twice before Chicago, all of the chief contenders divided their holiday programme, thus preventing any marked upsets in the races.

Washington and Chicago in the American and Brooklyn and Chicago in the National were the only teams to profit by double victories.

The Giants pounded out forty-three hits for twenty-four runs, but were able only to split with the Phillies, slaughtering the offerings of five pitchers in the second game to win, 16 to 7, after dropping the morning contest, 6 to 8, when the Quakers came from behind to tie the score on Parham's home run in the ninth and was in the tenth.

Two home runs each by Emil Meusel of the Giants and those of the Phillies in the afternoon and sixteen doubles in the two games were among the slugging spoils.

Hotly twirled the Yankees to victory in the morning game, but the Athletics made it an even break by winning the afternoon game, despite homers by Ruth and Ward.

CHILDREN NICELY PRESENT FANTASY

A large audience thoroughly enjoyed the children's fantasy play on the boys and girls of the Carmichael Presbyterian church Sunday school in the school room last evening under the leadership of Miss Emma Heffer and Miss Stella Earle. The stage was artistically trimmed for the occasion and the effects were obtained by means of the numbers by the use of flowers and tree branches. At the close of the programme Miss Earle and Miss Heffer gave a surprise presentation of bunches of roses by the children in token of their appreciation of the ladies' work in connection with the fantasy. PRESENTATION TO JOHN RUSK ON RETIREMENT

Recalls Old Railway Days Here—To Ireland to See Mother After 54 Years.

Just before quitting work on Tuesday evening the employees of the freight and clerical departments of the C. N. R. called on General Foreman John W. Rusk at his office to tender their regrets on his severing his connection with the railway and to wish him a long and bright future.

Terminal Agent L. B. Ross, on behalf of the employees, presented to him a solid leather valise, a smother's set and a Terminal Agent's badge. Mr. Rusk was entirely taken by surprise but made a suitable reply.

Mr. Rusk entered the service of the C. N. R. in 1872, as a baggage porter at Shelburne. At that time the railway did not run through to Halifax or north of Moncton and the travel to P. E. Island was via Shelburne. There was a local train running between Moncton and Amherst and the road was built from there to Truro. Mr. Rusk remained at Shelburne in the summer and in the winter for three years, after which he was transferred to St. John as freight checker. At that time the total freight shed accommodation consisted of a small shed about 100 feet long, situated on the trestle near Lombard street and the ground where the station and freight shed now stand was a mill pond, the water of which at low tide was used to drive the old Henny four mill, just in front of where the C. P. R. office at Mill street now stands.

When the common law mill pond was partly filled with debris from the burnt buildings and the balance with sawdust from the mill, Mr. Rusk was transferred to St. John as freight checker. Lesson No. 14. THE ALTERNATING CURRENT TRANSFORMER. The articles on Electromagnetic Induction explained that a pulsating current in a coil, induced an electromotive force in another coil placed in close proximity. If the coils of Lesson No. 12 are wound upon a core of soft iron or annealed steel, we have what is known as a closed core transformer (T) shown in diagram below.

Transformers are mutual induction coils used for the purpose of raising or lowering the voltage of a pulsating or alternating current circuit. The coil or winding (P) receives current from an alternating source, such as the alternating current generator (G), and is known as the primary winding. The winding (S) in which an alternating electromotive force is induced is known as the secondary winding. The core of soft iron offers an easy path to the magnetic lines of force generated by the magnetic field of the primary as shown in dotted lines. If the primary winding (P) connected to the generator consists of a comparatively few turns of fine wire, the electromotive force induced in the secondary winding will be greatly increased and connected in this manner it is known as a "step-up" transformer. If the primary winding (P) is connected to the generator, then the voltage, induced in the winding with few turns, will be greatly lowered. For the purpose of the Radio transmitter the transformer is used to greatly increase the impressed voltage of the alternating current generator.

The action of this portion of the circuit is as follows: Alternating current from the generator (G) flows through the primary winding (P) and causes magnetic lines of force to flow through the iron core. In accordance with the laws of the impressed current, the lines of force pass back and forth across the secondary winding (S) and induce an electromotive force in the secondary winding. If the secondary circuit is closed, a current will flow in the secondary winding. Connected in this manner it is known as a transformer. The lessons to follow will explain other important features of the alternating current transformer.

BOSCAWEN GROWS TIRED OF THE CATTLE QUESTION

London, May 31.—(Canadian Press)—In an address delivered yesterday before the Constitutional Club, the British minister of agriculture, Sir A. Griffith-Boscawen, endeavored to make clear his position in regard to the embargo against Canadian cattle. He declared he was held up as an obstinate person who refused to listen to reason, but he was not going to be dictated to by any newspaper whatever on this subject.

Continuing, he said: "As a matter of fact I inherited this question and it has not been a pleasant heritage. I can never get away from Canadian cattle and I only hope that when I go to another world there will be no Canadian cattle there."

One of the first duties of a British minister of agriculture, he said, was to protect this great industry.

Mr. Barbour thought that the transportation of maritime enterprise was perhaps too much emphasized while other opportunities were left in sight. The winter port business of St. John had been regarded as a "prize baby" for the last thirty years, but possibly the value of the mere passing of goods through maritime ports was over estimated.

L. W. Simms of St. John urged that production be stressed in the maritimes rather than transportation. He thought that a study should be made of those articles of manufacture whose transportation charges were at a minimum. A careful survey should be made to locate available markets. He cited the case of a firm which had successfully placed its article in the Egyptian market by means of parcel post, and accordingly at minimum cost. If the Dominion government should establish a research institute, the maritimes would need to study out their problems for presentation to it. They would get out of the institute according to their put in it.

G. F. Pearson of Halifax set out the need of "taking stock" of the industrial resources of the maritimes and learning to what extent raw material and semi-raw materials could be further worked up by the maritimes. He said that the maritimes should get together for the development of these resources.

F. J. G. Coombe of Halifax urged a survey with a view of utilizing by-products and told of the manner in which hitherto wasted apples in the Annapolis Valley were being turned to profit.

F. H. Bell, city solicitor of Halifax, spoke relative to civic tax exemption. He said that out of $60,000,000 worth of property in Halifax $30,000,000 was exempt. He argued against exemption in the case of government property, and against exemption sometimes offered to industrial enterprises to encourage them to locate in towns or cities which were not profited by the same advantages as others, such as paving, lighting, schools, etc.

The matter of the appointment of a deputy minister of fisheries, to be located in the maritime provinces, was touched on by Mr. Pearson. He also said that the methods of curing fish dried in an automatic machine, which had been patented by the Dominion government, should be used.

Mr. Pearson hoped that out of the present conference there might result a joint committee of the Dominion and Halifax boards of trade which could meet from time to time to discuss their own and maritime problems.

ST. JOHN MEN EXPRESS VIEWS

Business Matters Before the Board of Trade Conference in Halifax Today.

Halifax, N. S., May 31.—(Canadian Press)—"I can see no interest in the maritime provinces which approaches from the standpoint of a world opportunity the north Atlantic fisheries as they affect the maritime provinces," said G. E. Barbour, vice-president of the St. John Board of Trade, to the conference of representatives of the Halifax and St. John boards of trade this morning.

Mr. Barbour thought that the transportation of maritime enterprise was perhaps too much emphasized while other opportunities were left in sight. The winter port business of St. John had been regarded as a "prize baby" for the last thirty years, but possibly the value of the mere passing of goods through maritime ports was over estimated.

Threaten Increase in Fire Insurance Rates

Underwriters Notify Council That Action Will Follow Change in Fire District Regulations

TO BE DISCUSSED AT NEXT MEETING

Contract For Cast Iron Pipes Awarded to Local Tenderer — Marsh Road Paving to be Completed — $1,000 Voted For Band Concerts.

The local board of fire underwriters notified the common council at their weekly session yesterday afternoon that insurance rates for fire district No. 2 will be increased as a result of the council's action at the meeting last Tuesday of amending the building law to read 35 feet as the height for buildings in district No. 2, and not 25 feet as formerly. Commissioner Thornton, who introduced the amendment, which was given three readings and became law, explained to the council yesterday that he had not intended deceiving the council when he announced at the last meeting that he had been given to understand that the fire insurance men would raise no objections to the amendment. Since then, however, he said they had come to him and he had requested them to present their views in writing. After discussion, it was decided to notify the underwriters' representatives to present themselves at Thursday's meeting of the council and state their objections.

Contracts were let for work in connection with the water and sewerage department. The bids of Francis Hankin & Co., Montreal, and the local firm of T. McAvity & Sons, Ltd., for cast iron piping were found to be comparatively close. The Montreal concern underbid McAvity's by $293 in a contract of about $22,000 worth of pipe and fittings of the same quality.

Commissioner Wigmore's motion that the local firm be given the contract precipitated considerable discussion. When the motion was put, Commissioners Thornton and Wigmore voted yes; Commissioner Frink opposed, and Commissioner Bullock abstained from voting.

A sum of $1,000 was voted to provide for band concerts during the summer months.

The report of the committee of the whole was adopted, with the exception of the section dealing with the application of Thomas Dean, Jr., to install a gasoline pump in Post street. As the title to land in question was in doubt, the matter was laid on the table until a further report by Commissioner Frink could be presented.

The other recommendations of the report, adopted were—That William Reker's offer for pasture land be accepted; that elevators and steel stairways be increased to $16,711.51; that estimates be increased to $10,000; that the tender deposit of Joseph Likely & Sons, Ltd., be returned; that a lot be sold to W. A. Webb; that the Maritime Construction Co. be granted a lease of lot No. 43 in Collins street, Lancaster; that a renewal lease issue to J. H. Gale; and that Mr. Gale be sold a lot in Park Place, Lancaster, for $400; that the commissioner of harbors and ferries be authorized to make such rates as charges for the swimming scoops as he thinks fit; that the commissioner of public works be authorized to purchase 20,000 granite blocks from the Granite Pavement and Construction Co.; that the order-in-council of April 23 regarding granite be amended; and that the conditions complained of regarding the Lynch property in Cannon street be remedied.

Insurance Men Object. Commissioner Thornton read a communication from the local fire underwriters' board in which they informed the council that insurance rates for fire district No. 2 would be increased owing to the raise of the regulation building height from 25 to 35 feet. Speaking on the letter, the commissioner explained that he had acted in good faith when he said at the last meeting several of the insurance men had intimated they would not object.

He had no desire to rescind the amendment merely on this account but suggested that representatives of the board be invited to the next meeting to present concrete objections. A motion to this effect carried.

An application from Ellen Beard for a position with the proposed Dominion labor bureau for the city and a letter from the Red Cross branch recommending Mrs. Beard's appointment were received and will be taken up along with other matters in this connection later.

Five constables applied for reappointment and two applications were received from Percy Moore and J. Braun respectively. So soon as these men file the necessary bond they will be sworn in by the common clerk.

A communication from the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage Home was received, requesting assistance in their proposed new work. It will be considered by the committee of the whole.

Judgment was based on the hope that the McAvity's would secure for St. John a new industry.

Commissioner Thornton. The safety department commissioner was inclined to agree with Commissioner Frink. He believed in doing everything possible to assist local industries, yet the principle here was un sound.

Commissioner Bullock suggested it be reviewed in private by the members. The mayor was of the opinion that the people should know what the solicitor thought of the award. After discussion, it was finally decided to take the matter up in private session.

Contracts Let. Commissioner Wigmore presented his report regarding letting of contracts for proposed work in his department. He said that, though the French Hankin firm, of Montreal, had underbid T. McAvity & Sons, Ltd., on a $22,000 contract for piping and fittings by about $293, he moved that the bid of the latter concern be accepted. "The McAvity's are heavy taxpayers of this community and they employ considerable labor here. This money should remain here," he said.

Commissioner Frink objected. He appreciated the fact that local firms should be encouraged. "But the principle here is wrong," he insisted. "Once before a similar case had arisen where the Thorne firm was concerned. The sum was $92. He had voted against it then and he would do so in this case."

Mayor McLellan. At this juncture the mayor said he thought Commissioner Wigmore had not gone far enough in his explanation. This was a case, he explained, where the Hankin firm were soon going to lose their Canadian agency for the English firm of Stavy, which had manufactured the piping that both firms, now tendering, would supply. The quality of the piping would be the same from both. "Hankin," he charged, "is quoting a price less than cost, through pique." If this were a bad precedent to establish, he, for one, was ready to take the responsibility of giving a local firm the benefit of $290, rather than see a firm that was going out of business awarded a contract which they had obtained by knowingly underbidding. In this matter, he said, his Commissioner Frink reiterated his intention of voting against the motion. "I voted against Mr. Thorne," he said. In reply to the mayor, he said that was about ten years ago.

The mayor again summed up the circumstances of the case. He added he had no desire to see this money go outside the city with so much unemployment here.

The motion finally was put and carried. Commissioners Thornton and Wigmore voting for it; Commissioner Frink, Bullock abstaining. A tax bond issue covering the $22,000 had carried at a previous meeting, a unanimous vote was not necessary to award the contract.

Other contracts were authorized with the Currie Construction Company and the St. John Iron Works. Commissioner Wigmore said he had received a bid from R. D. Wood, but it had arrived too late. He said he would return the check enclosed and notify Mr. Wood.

Marsh Road Paving. Regarding the completion of the Marsh road paving by the Currie Construction Company, Commissioner Frink submitted a report on this matter and recommended that he be granted authority to extend the former contract with this company to finish the work. A motion to this effect carried.

Band Concerts. Commissioner Frink brought up the matter of band concerts for the summer months. He moved that the sum of $1,000 be set aside for this purpose. The motion carried and details were left with the mayor to arrange.

Other Matters. Commissioner Thornton requested authority to close North and South Market streets on June 3. This was granted. Commissioner Thornton suggested that it was time the various civil departments compiled their coal estimates. A motion to this effect carried.

The matter of a petition to place a street light at the corner of Forest and Autumn streets will be taken up in committee.

HAGUE PEACE PALACE

(Toronto Globe)

Peace traditions at The Hague will doubtless cause mixed feelings among the delegates of the nations who gather there in mid-June to further consider the health of Europe. The name of The Hague is inseparably associated with the peace conferences which took place there in 1899 and in 1907, the high idealism of which failed to prevent a world war which followed a few years later. There is a bit of irony in the fact that the first conference was called in 1899 on the initiative of Czar Nicholas, of Russia, while the conference of 1922 at The Hague is principally rendered necessary as an adjournment from Geneva because of the unreasonable requests of the present representatives of Russia.

An ambitious attempt to secure world peace was made at both preceding Hague conferences, and only a year before the outbreak of the big war the great Peace Palace was completed at The Hague to house international conferences and to symbolize a greater desire by the nations to live in unity. Toward the cost of this palace Andrew Carnegie donated $1,500,000. At the first conference twenty-six states representatives of forty-four states came together. The first meeting favored a Permanent Court of Arbitration, and this organization afterward actually settled several comparatively minor disputes between nations. Declarations were also made to mitigate modern warfare by prohibiting bombing from the air, the use of asphyxiating gas and the use of bullets which flatten in the human body. The 1907 conference declared against the having of automatic submarine contact mines. Ratification of these various declarations by some only of the states represented prevented observance of the high principle adopted.

As world sentiment has undergone many severe scorplings since the previous Hague Conference, perhaps the new meeting may approach its subject with an open mind and a desire to get results in any case they have a beautiful city street light at the corner of Forest and Autumn streets will be taken up in committee.

WEDDED 52 YEARS, SHE SUES FOR A SEPARATION
New York, May 31.—Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel has denied an application by Mrs. Elka Friedman, 73, of 966 Whitlock avenue, The Bronx, for alimony and counsel fees in her suit for a separation from Israel Friedman, whom she married in Galicia in 1870. Mrs. Friedman alleges her husband, whose chief business at present is matchmaking, has "nagged, abused, insulted and mistreated" him and made his life "purgatory." They have six children.

Buy Your Tires on a Business Basis

WHICH COST LESS—tires that give thousands of miles of motoring pleasure—or—tires that finally "blow themselves" after a few hundred miles of irritation and trouble?

WHICH COST LESS—sturdy, dependable, easy-riding tires that take you where you want to go, whether the road be smooth or rough, hard or soft, wet or dry, hot or icy—or—tires that have to be cemented and patched, nursed and doctored, and become bandaged cripples after their first few hundred miles?

Buy your tires on a business basis. Don't count first cost only. DOMINION TIRES give the lowest mileage cost—insure fewer tire troubles—and prices to-day average one-third less than pre-war prices.

DOMINION TIRES are better than ever, and are recognized by motorists as the standard by which to judge tire values and tire service.

Liberal Campaign Opens Vigorously in Saint John County

Hearty Reception For the Government Candidate at Enthusiastic Meeting at Midwood

MR. BENTLEY AND DR. CURREN SPEAK

Local Issues and Government Policies Are Discussed in Illuminating Manner—Records of Present and Previous Governments Compared—Hearty Applause Shows Approval of Audience.

The opening gun in the campaign in St. John county was fired last night, when a roasting meeting was held in the Community hall at Midwood.

Before the meeting adjourned a committee, consisting of F. E. Goodwin, H. J. Martin and J. E. Dalzell, was appointed to represent the district at the St. John headquarters, which will meet today.

The two speakers, in ringing addresses, discussed the record of the Foster administration, as compared with the record of the late government and declared their stand upon the political questions of the day, both provincial and local.

Dr. Curren paid particular attention to local questions and the regard in which he is held by his constituents was amply shown by the repeated applause which greeted him.

would have received from this source in normal times.

It was charged that the present government had increased the revenue and increased the taxes, and that they were spending it all. But, declared Dr. Curren, the revenue was spent in a legitimate way and not one dollar of additional taxation was levied on the masses; only the large estates were increased. He said that it could not be denied that the Foster government was spending more money than any other government had spent, but he asked, should we stop building roads, for instance. Everybody knew that the roads showed the results of the money which had been spent upon them.

A Comparison. He then compared the expenditures of the Foster government with the previous administration. Each government was adding about $1,200,000 to the debt each year. But, he said, the late government had spent more than $7,000,000, on the Valley Railway, an institution which was costing the province $250,000 each year to pay its deficit.

Instead of earning to help pay back the money which it had cost and which had increased the debt of the province, the Valley Railway was increasing the debt each year. Compare the Valley Railway, he said, with the hydro-electric development at Musquash. It had cost two millions and when the current was turned on the consumer would begin to pay back this money. It was not a liability, but a great asset, the development of the nearest water to the largest market. (Applause.)

Dr. Curren then referred to the provincial road building policy. He admitted that the debt of the province was being raised by the road programme, but asserted that provision was being made to pay off this debt through increased revenue. The speaker said that the most important thing was that of all the moneys handled by the Foster government, not a single dollar ever had been unaccounted for.

Dr. Curren next said that he wished to show that the fact that money was scarce was not the fault of the Foster government. The Foster administration had increased the revenue of the province, but in the last two years, the chief source of revenue, that from Crown lands, had decreased considerably, on account of a slump in the lumbering industry. In 1920 the revenue was $1,250,000 from stumpage alone; in 1921 it was about $1,000,000 and it was estimated that in 1922 it would only amount to $600,000. But, he said, if it were not for the Foster government, the province would not derive even that amount.

The former administration had agreed to keep the stumpage rate at $1.50 for ten years, in return for party funds which certain operators had contributed. Since Premier Foster came into power he had increased the rate on spruce to $8. He had secured the money for the country and he had dared to oppose the large lumber operators. Even now the province would receive more than the late administration ment was a clean one, and that it had done well in the face of difficulties. He said that it was easy to criticize, but if no constructive element were behind that criticism, then it was empty. And that was where the critics of the Foster government found themselves, he said. It was up to the electors to decide whether the Foster government or those engaged in empty criticism should have their support. He believed that when they thought things over they would find it their duty to support the present government.

The speaker then referred to the roads programme. Everybody knew, he said, that the roads had been improved and that splendid work was being done. This had a tremendous influence on the citizenship of the country. New Brunswick, he said, had the reputation across the border of having good roads. This meant more tourists each year and thus a better understanding was brought about with the United States. One of the great duties of Canada was to interpret a better understanding between the United States and England.

What had the government done for public health, Mr. Bentley asked. The Health Act had been much criticized but great work had been done, he said. Because of the extra expense, there had been much bitter comment. But he said, even the critics had to admit that they approved of the spirit of the act. Think what it meant, he said, to have your child crippled for life, when a clinic might be able to save him. Smallpox epidemics, once a thing of terror, were now almost unknown. "The greatest thing in the world is the children," declared Mr. Bentley, "so isn't it worth while to have medical inspection in the schools? Would you say that money spent for the safeguarding of children's health was money wasted?" asked Mr. Bentley.

Mr. Bentley then turned to the educational policy of the government. He remarked that teachers' salaries had been increased, and he asked if it was not better to make teaching a profession rather than a stepping-stone to something else.

Referring to agricultural interests, Mr. Bentley asserted that the government had done everything possible for the farmer in encouraging improved methods of farming, etc.

In conclusion, Mr. Bentley asked again for the support of the electors. He said that when he sat in the house with the opposition that he never forgot that he represented the county of St. John and not simply those who voted for him. If he were privileged to again sit there, he would take the same stand. He said that he believed that when the votes were counted on June 10, that it would be found that the electors had given their whole-hearted support to Premier Foster and he would see that his sacrifices on their behalf have not gone unrewarded.

"What has the opposition to offer? They have had four leaders in four years. Have you ever seen their platform," he asked. "Give me a chance of two years,"

Try Doing Next Week's Washing with Rinso

Find out for yourself why hundreds of thousands of women say that they could not face another wash day without it. The two easy steps below will save you hours of back breaking rubbing.

First: For each tub of clothes dissolve a half a package of Rinso into a little cool water until it is like thick cream, then stir in two quarts of boiling water. If the water is hard, or the clothes extra dirty, use more Rinso.

Then, pour into tub—of cool or lukewarm water. Mix well. Keep adding the solution until you get a rich, lasting, soapy suds, even after the clothes have been put in. Do not pour the Rinso direct from the package into the tub.

Soak the clothes for one hour, two hours, overnight, or as long as convenient. Then rinse to remove the loosened dirt, until the water runs clear. Hang them out to dry.

There's no rubbing—no boiling. Rinso is not a washing powder, but a scientific combination of pure cleansing materials that loosen and dissolve the dirt from even the heaviest pieces. It soaks clothes clean in a few hours without injury to a single fabric.

IF YOU USE A WASHING MACHINE Follow the regular directions given here. Soak the clothes. Then, before operating the machine, add fresh Rinso solution using the same amount of Rinso as you used for soaking. No other product is needed when Rinso is used.

THE EVENING TIMES AND STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1922

AUDIENCE STIRRED BY ELOQUENT PLEA FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Sir George E. Foster Tells of Origin, Development and Achievements of the League and Emphasizes Need for the Support of Public Opinion That War May Be Banished—Branch of League of Nations Society to Be Formed Here.

That a world wide public opinion in support of the settlement of international disputes by right reason and judicial methods rather than by the bloody arbitrament of war would go a long way towards ushering in the perpetual peace era and that Canadians had their proportionate share of responsibility in the creation of that world opinion were the laudations made by Sir George E. Foster, in the course of an address on the League of Nations before a public audience that comfortably filled the Pythian Castle, last evening.

The gifted orator, as a son of New Brunswick and as a Canadian statesman of world renown, was accorded a warm welcome. Near the close of his address when he was depicting the savage horrors that might be expected to arise out of another war, should it occur, and while he was pleading with his audience to help in the crystallization of that opinion that would ensure the successful attainment of the League's ideal, Sir George rose to a pitch of fervor and eloquence that deeply stirred his audience.

Sir Douglas Hazen, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, in introducing the speaker, said that it was a pleasure to welcome Sir George, whose position in the life of the Dominion and of the Empire New Brunswick was proud. He explained that it was the intention to form a local branch of the League of Nations Society to develop public interest in the aims and objects of the league and to help insure their realization.

The Object of the Meeting.
"I want to say," Sir George remarked in opening, "that the main object of this evening's meeting, so far as I am concerned, is instruction rather than entertainment." As a former teacher, he said, he was going to adopt the didactic style and answer the following three questions:

1. What is the League of Nations?
2. How does it work?
3. What has it done?

He invited his audience to accompany him in imagination to Paris at a pleasant time when he was in a state of pleasant turmoil due to the arrival of the delegates from thirty-two nations of the world to hammer out the League of Nations peace that was to put an end to the recent great war.

It was well known to the delegates that the people of the world had been yearning for peace, had been asking themselves whether some bloodless method of settling international disputes could not be devised so that the world might be forever free from the horrors of the bomb, the gas, the machine gun and all the other agencies of destruction which had ultimately in the most horrible and brutal way that ever afflicted the world.

Knowing this, the peace conference as its first act had appointed a commission of which President Wilson was the chairman to investigate the possibility of an arbitration of league of nations to the end that right, reason and arbitration might supersede war and bloodshed.

The committee, appointed in January, 1918, consisted of five members in the shape of the covenant of the League of Nations which on April 29 was unanimously accepted by the thirty-two national delegations in the conference.

"Just that one thing," declared Sir George, "shows a wonderful progress in the thought of men and nations. It was the biggest thing in the shape of an idea that was ever put down in black and white and subscribed to by thirty-two nations."

A copy of this covenant could be secured for two cents, he said, and he urged his audience to buy and to study the document.

By the terms of the covenant the thirty-two nations pledged themselves to have recourse to war in case of a dispute until they first had tried and exhausted all the methods of peace, such as diplomacy, arbitration, reference to the council of the league or to the permanent court of international justice.

The original membership of the league had grown from the original thirty-two nations to fifty-one, he said. Germany, Russia, Turkey, Mexico, and the United States were the only big nations not members.

Referring to the membership of the United States from the league Sir George said that unfortunately the league issue had become entangled in domestic party politics in the United States.

Nine-Tenths of U. S. Sympathetic.
"But keep this fact in view," he urged. "If the United States is not a member of the League nine-tenths of its people are heart and soul behind it. They can co-operate and they are co-operating with the league." He instance in support of this the reduction of naval armaments brought about on the initiative of the American Republic and the recently given assent of the United States to the British mandator over Palestine.

In answering the question, "How does the League work?" Sir George said that it worked through two organs: the council and the assembly.

The executive agency in the league was the secretariat, which consisted of about 250 experts of all kinds with offices in Geneva, whose business he described as delicate and arduous demanding a high quality of men. The members of the secretariat, drawn from all the major nations of the league, all working together for the common cause of pacification were a miniature league of nations in themselves who could and did exert a magic influence in cementing the bonds of friendship and amity between the nations of the world.

The league council had held eighteen meetings since its inception, dealing with complex questions of world-wide import. The league assembly, which had held two sessions, was composed of thirty-four member nations.

Each nation had one vote; the voting power of the smallest and weakest was equal to that of the largest and most powerful; the assembly itself was a perfect democracy of nations, he said.

"An outcrop of experience was a mighty moral and international power," he said. "The assembly itself was a perfect democracy of nations, he said. He explained that it was the intention to form a local branch of the League of Nations Society to develop public interest in the aims and objects of the league and to help insure their realization."

He then described the delicate and difficult nature of the problem of administration of the Saar region which had been given France for fifteen years as indemnity for her damaged coal mines. The administrative commission of five appointed by the league and which by the way included Mr. Waugh, of Winnipeg, was giving avowed satisfaction to both parties.

Again, after the entente had come near being disrupted when the powers were unable to agree upon the boundary line of Upper Silesia, the problem was handed over to the league council. In six weeks an agreement was reached and Poland had signed a treaty based on the recommendations of the league commission.

He spoke also of the work done by the various commissions of the league such as those dealing with typhus, and with the work of the League of Nations Commission for the Eastern Mediterranean and the Near East.

He then described the delicate and difficult nature of the problem of administration of the Saar region which had been given France for fifteen years as indemnity for her damaged coal mines.

DO YOUR BOWELS MOVE REGULARLY, OR DO THEY BECOME CONSTIPATED?

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and there is no other trouble which does so much to make the body so weak, because material accumulates may not be felt, at once, from irregular action of the bowels. When this does not regular action the retention of the decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gas, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into the veins, internal bleeding or prostrating illness, heartburn, jaundice, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, and restoring constipation and all its allied troubles.

Mr. Samuel Ruckler, Tatumagouche, N. S., writes: "For over a year I suffered with constipation. I took several different kinds of medicine, but could only get temporary relief. It was told to me by Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I prepared two vials of them, but after I had taken one I found that I was relieved of my trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend Laxa-Liver Pills for any kind of constipation."

Jimmy Hartz, also of Los Angeles, finished second, four laps behind Murphy. Hartz won $10,000; Eddie Hearn was third.

Murphy was nearly two miles in the lead at the 160 mark, with fourth and Duray third. Haibe was fourth and Hearn fifth.

The time was 1:34:37.62, an average of 95.11 miles an hour. A Murphy, up to this time, had not made a stop. He led from the start.

THE CYCLE.
Long Road Race.
Chicago, May 31.—Alphonso Vertenten, thirty-four years of age, riding under a handicap of one hour and ten minutes, won the 100-mile handicap bike road race from Milwaukee to Chicago yesterday. His time was 4:58.00.
While he won the race, Monroe Nolan, starting from the scratch at Milwaukee, set up a new world's record by making the run in 4:38.15. The former record was 5:05 flat.

AQUATIC.
Duluth Regatta.
Duluth, Minn., May 31.—The University of Manitoba oarsmen made a clean sweep in the regatta with the Duluth Boat Club yesterday, winning in the eight-oared, junior doubles and junior four races. Rowing over a strange mile and a quarter course and in a shell new to them, the Canadians won the 4000-ft. race by a half length. The time was 7:31.
Falter Hoover, national amateur sculler champion, given a fifteen second handicap, participated in the junior doubles event. He held his handicap throughout. Hoover's time was 8:29 for the mile and a quarter. He left immediately after the race for Philadelphia, where he will compete on Saturday in the gold challenge cup race.

TROUBLE FOR JAMES MURPHY
James Murphy, formerly well known as a hockey player in Nova Scotia, was arrested in Fredericton yesterday on a charge of theft and lodged at the police station pending appearance before the police magistrate. The information upon which a warrant for his arrest was issued to by his brother, Michael J. Murphy, also a former star hockey player and proprietor of a roadhouse near Fredericton called the Kingswood Inn, which it is alleged the accused took for his own purposes. The accused was recently reported as having died from pneumonia in St. John but turned up later in good health.

DINGHY RACING HERE TO START NEXT TUESDAY

Contest Off R. K. Y. C. Quarters in Evening—Courtney Bay Races Planned for Later.

On June 6 the first race of the season for fourteen-foot dinghies will be held off the quarters of the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club at Millidgeville at seven p. m. Probably never in the history of the R. K. Y. C. has dinghy racing created the enthusiasm as being manifested by the members this season.
A very attractive fleet of these boats will make their appearance at the starting line on next Tuesday evening, when a great battle for supremacy is expected. A number of new boats have been built during the past winter, and with their entry pleasing results are expected by their owners.
It is understood that the various yachting clubs in Nova Scotia are determined to wipe out the defeat of last summer, which they suffered when the Winifrede II. of the R. K. Y. C. carried away all honors.
The results of last year's races at Halifax have caused the various clubs there to have a new type of boat designed. It is believed it is to be designed along the lines of the faster type of Halifax boat and the R. K. Y. C. victor, Winifrede II., but eliminating their defects and drawbacks. The new boat is being designed by W. Rowe of the Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron. It will be designed of the victor's Buemose. Just what advantage will be gained in the new type of boat is being watched with the keenest interest both at St. John and at Halifax.
It is the intention of the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club to hold three races outside of Courtney Bay, on June 19, 20 and 21, at 6:30 p. m., so as to familiarize the crews with the long roll of sea and the more steady winds as encountered at Halifax, but not experienced at Millidgeville.

FOILS ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP STORE

Watchman Seizes a Sizzling Bomb and Hurts It Into Street.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—When two men placed a bomb in the doorway of a small tobacco shop at 12181 Joseph Campau avenue, Joseph Casper, night watchman, and a former service man, seized it and hurled it into the street, where it exploded a few feet above a street car. Casper then engaged in a pistol duel with the two men and their two companions in an auto. No one was hurt, although windows in neighboring stores were broken and several windows were blown out in the street car, which was carrying ten passengers. The building, owned and occupied by Lena Myers, was damaged slightly. Casper, who was hired by Mrs. Myers following an alleged attempt on the part of enemies to dynamite the building on April 12, was in the building, when he saw two men crouching outside. He saw them place the bomb on the steps leading to the front door. He rushed rapidly. He opened the door, grabbed the bomb and hurled it into the street. A moment later it exploded with a roar that awakened the neighborhood. Casper drew his revolver and fired two shots at the fleeing men who he said placed the bomb, and who fired six shots at him as they entered their car.
On April 12 seven sticks of dynamite were found at the front door. On September 26, 1919, the front end of the store was blown in by a bomb.

MAY USE WIRELESS FIRE ALARMS

Instruments Being Installed in the New York Engine Houses.

New York, May 31.—Fire alarms by wireless may be reported soon. Thomas J. Brennan, commissioner, has given his sanction to the installation of radio receiving sets in the engine houses at the expense of the firemen. His idea is that the men would like the apparatus for the reception of broadcast programmes, but it is believed that the department soon will receive its first fire alarm by radio.
Many of the fire engine houses are equipped now and have since the radio became popular, said a news bulletin from the fire department, "but for some time the presence of the receiving outfit in engine houses has been a matter of divided opinion as to the propriety of such equipment on city-owned property, without official approval. Commissioner Brennan's order now clears up that situation.
If the men decide that they wish to install a set at their own expense they must send a sketch of the proposed installation to Chief Kenyon, who will refer it to Val Fendich, chief of the bureau of fire alarm telegraph, and the department of water supply, gas and electricity, which has jurisdiction over all electrical appliances in public buildings. No broadcasting or sending sets will be permitted.

the hands of the members points out that "the Union Jack is made to protect what the Stars and Stripes refused longer to tolerate or harbor." It emphasizes the fact that when race-track betting has been made illegal in certain states it has been taken up in parts of Canada in close proximity to its original centre as convenient—thus "Division out of New York, the race-track betting houses have taken refuge in Fort Erie and Hamilton, and out of Michigan, in Windsor; out of the Pacific States they came over to Victoria and Vancouver." It describes this condition as making strange bed-fellows—"Canada's elite and America's scum."
On the question of betting as a necessary condition to the breeding of thoroughbred horses, it is explained in the pamphlet that "the thoroughbred horse industry flourishes in the United States because of the high excitement and neglect of work caused by the yearly races at Canada. In conclusion, it quotes certain and a half of gambling in high carnival." It continues: "We should surely not hesitate to make a choice between manhood and horseflesh," and suggests that if financial aid is imperative to thoroughbred horse breeding, it should be by subsidy and not on the "rotten foundation of betting houses, which are criminal in fact and must be made criminal in law."

The bad effect of track gambling on business is brought out by quotations of resolutions passed by the C. M. A. of British Columbia, the Board of Trade of Quebec, the retail merchants of British Columbia and the merchants of Windsor, all calling for the abolition of the evil.
The pamphlet in part gives information that the gambling evil seriously disrupts the civil service of Ottawa by the high excitement and neglect of work caused by the yearly races at Canada. In conclusion, it quotes certain

Another Sacrifice of Fire Sale Stock

We are forced to vacate our present quarters at 247 Union Street by Friday night, and we're going to give our customers and friends the benefit of that move. The less stock we have to move out the easier it will be for us and so we offer everything we have on hand at even bigger reductions to clear. Some of this stock has not yet been placed on sale and YOU are going to get the benefit of brand new goods at fire-sale prices,---that is if you are on hand early tomorrow morning. Store opens as usual promptly at 9 A. M.
