NOTICE.
We are this week sending out a large number of accounts to our subscribers which we hope will be promptly responded to by them. These accounts are nearly all for very small amounts, but as there are several hundred of them, they make up quite a large amount which we need at the present time to carry on the business.

Editorial Notes.

It is asserted that the United States government is favorably considering reciprocity with Canada.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the British Colonial Secretary, was the other day, installed as Lord Rector of Glasgow University.

Late New York despatches announce that there was a panic in the New York Stock exchange the other day over the prospects of a war with Spain.

Another week has passed, and although a large body of men still keep up the search in every direction, not one of the searching parties have, as yet, come upon any traces of Mr. Anslow.

Late American despatches announce that the grand jury have found true bills for murder and felonious wounding against Sheriff Martin and his deputies who shot down the striking coal miners at Latimer, Penn., a few weeks ago.

The result of the recent elections in Maryland give the Republicans control of both branches of the legislature in that State. In consequence of this victory a Republican will succeed Arthur P. Gorman (Democrat) in the United States senate.

At the general elections throughout Great Britain a few years ago, the Liberal party were signally defeated. Since then there have been twenty-one by-elections which have resulted in thirteen Conservatives and eight Liberals being replaced by thirteen Liberals and eight Conservatives. In a recent speech Sir W. V. Harcourt announced that these Liberal victories form the turning point in the fortunes of the Liberal party.

The relations of the French and British local authorities in the wilds of western Africa are being strained in consequence of the aggressive policy pursued by the French. Although no actual rupture has taken place as yet, a conflict may occur at any time. It is high time that the civilized nations of the world came to an agreement and adopted a peaceful and more reasonable mode of settling national differences than by going to war and destroying each other's property and shedding each other's blood. This was the mode adopted by the monarchs of the "Divine right" school that lived in the dark ages to settle their national quarrels. But as we are now living in an enlightened age, surely the advanced statesmen of this age should make some improvement upon the mercenary and bloody system of the past.

The United States is one of the greatest food producing countries in the world and the principal foreign business of its people is the sale of these food products. If we turn to England we find that she has an immense population and owing to her farming population, not being able to supply the country's demand for bread stuffs, it has to be imported from Canada and the United States. One of the questions now being mooted in the United States and Britain is how would the United States and Britain want to war with another European power and that nation were to declare her food supply from the United States contraband of war? It is firmly believed in both countries that if such a thing was to take place, the United States would not submit to have her profitable trade destroyed for the benefit of any European power. From the present appearance of affairs in Europe it is not unlikely that before long the United States will have to solve that problem.

The city of Chatham has a large and expensive brick elephant on its hands which its late council erected in spite of the protests of citizens without having the funds to pay for it. To heat it, supply it with light, water and the other necessities it will require, the World says, will cost the municipality $2,000 a year. In addition to this it will cost $7,500 to finish it as it is far from being complete.

The city of Chatham has called a meeting of the ratepayers of the city to be held on Thursday next at which they will be asked to vote for the making of another loan of about $10,000 to complete the building, build sewers and water tanks, and repair the streets and side walks. The ratepayers can do nothing else but vote the money and afterwards pay that all kinds of blessings may descend upon the heads of men who not only misrepresents them but squandered the city's funds and laid the foundation for a municipal debt that will rapidly grow and add many dollars yearly to every man's tax bill.

If the Ratepayers of Chatham refuse to give the present Council the power to issue new bonds to pay the debt that the late Council had no authority to contract, it will be a nice legal question for the courts to decide who are the responsible persons to pay them. According to the Chatham incorporation act, the Council has no power to issue bonds unless the Ratepayers at a public meeting empower them to do so. Consequently they have no power to contract debts that will necessitate a new issue of bonds to liquidate them.

The Minister of Public Works.

Mr. Tarte, the Minister of public works in the present cabinet of the Dominion is not only a shrewd, sharp and able politician but is gifted with the faculty of knowledge and in what way to desert a political party and gain power, place and position by joining that of his opponent. During the many years that the Conservative Government of Sir John A. Macdonald held the reins of power in Canada and its members were denounced by the present Liberal party as being "steeped to the lips in political corruption." Mr. Tarte was one of Sir John's prominent supporters. In addition to this he was charged by this same Liberal party with taking a prominent part in the scandalous and profitable jobs among industrial supporters of the Conservative party. A couple of years before the death of Sir John A. Macdonald he and Mr. Tarte had a disagreement which resulted in the rank and file of the Conservative party reading him out of their ranks. Mr. Tarte then went over to the Liberals, and from that time to the death of the Conservative party was one of the loudest voices of the Liberals in denouncing the vile jobs perpetrated by the Conservative party during the time they were in office. No sooner had the Liberals attained power than Mr. Tarte, the Liberal leader, offered him a seat in his cabinet and he accepted the responsible position he now holds in the Government.

For a short time all went on smoothly, but no sooner had he got firmly seated in his official desk than he commenced the practice of the same tactics that he was so adept at while serving in the ranks of the Conservative party. In a very short time the Huntington Gleason, Montreal Witness as well as a number of the other leading Liberal papers throughout Ontario and Quebec commenced to protest against his "maius methods" he was introducing into the Liberal party for the purpose of enriching the few at the expense of the many.

Week after week for months the Witness has been assailing Mr. Tarte's conduct, sacrificing the business interests of the port of Montreal to satisfy the voracious appetites of corrupt friends as well as his own political interests. The Hamilton Spectator in commenting on one of the late articles in the Witness, says: "That is plain enough. It is a direct charge that Tarte takes advantage of his position as de facto premier of Canada to so divert the expenditure of four or five million dollars of the people's money as to make it virtually a bribe fund to be used for election purposes."

The high handed course taken by Mr. Tarte in direct opposition to the business interests of the city of Montreal as well as the wishes of prominent leaders of the Liberal party has caused considerable dissatisfaction in the Liberal ranks both in Ontario and Quebec.

From the present appearance of things he is pursuing the same course towards Sir Wilfrid Laurier as he did towards the late Sir John A. Macdonald. What course the Liberal Premier will take towards this aggressive and dictatorial member of his Government remains to be seen.

There are three views to be taken of politics. First, as to principle; second, as to power; third, from that of the private business standpoint. The first two are legitimate and proper. The third is not only cowardly but dishonest and is never tolerated in the inception or during the progress of any government worthy of the name. When, however, it makes its appearance among the leaders of a party and they exert all the power and influence their position gives them to harvest the labor and produce the fruits of the efforts of the party, it proves most conclusively that the party is corrupt. It is because Mr. Tarte, the Minister of Public Works, is a scheme of this kind on his hands that the Montreal Witness, which is one of the most influential Liberal journals in the Dominion has been denouncing him for months. It charges him with sacrificing the mercantile and business interests of the Hochelaga land owners who are his personal and partisan friends and expect to reap a golden harvest by the carrying out of his harbor deal. This scheme, if carried out would compel the removal of the harbor of Montreal from the central part of the city to the east end of Hochelaga, and would the Witness says involve an unnecessary charge upon every barrel of grain, upon every package of butter or cheese, upon every animal shipped from the port and also upon the goods imported, for the simple reason that the cost of transportation and transportation would be increased.

This scheme as well as the Drummond county railway deal is a sample of Mr. Tarte's administration. He asserts that he is in the interest of the public, but the only members of the public whose interests will be benefited are the hungry bellies of friends of Mr. Tarte.

The sudden departure of Henry George for that unknown country from whence no traveller returns has revealed the powerful hold he had over the hearts and sympathies of the masses of the American people. They believed him to be honest and upright, and in consequence had an unwavering faith in his rectitude of purpose. Many of his most powerful supporters in New York have freely and were not prepared to accept his free trade and single tax theories, advanced his cause because they believed that in such matters as the executive management of a great city he could be trusted to administer the duties of his office for the public good. During late life he devoted his heart, soul and mind to the devising of means to better the condition of the masses, and although he pointed out the injustice of the social organization, he preached rather than urged its overthrow. In the works he wrote the addresses he delivered to the people he cheered them by giving a bright and beautiful picture of a republic in the future where misery and want would be unknown. This republic, he confidently believed the people could establish for themselves by their own efforts. If they would only give their hearts and souls to the work. It was established, he predicted that plenty would be the lot of all, and every father could look upon his child's face without the haunting fear that his innocent offspring had come into the world to be ground beneath the remorseless wheels of industrial despotism. If his ideas were nothing but the visions of a dreamer, they were bright and beautiful visions. It is true that exceptions might be taken to the means he has suggested to bring about this desirable condition, but no man can deny but that the world would be an infinitely happier place to live in for the poor and downtrodden if the hopes and dreams of Henry George could be brought to realization.

Up to the time he was forty years of age he was hardly known outside of California, but when "Progress and Poverty" made its appearance in 1879, the obscure California journalist became a prominent national character. Social problems and other works soon followed, and his marvelous magnetism with which he has advocated his views upon social and other questions, he not only gained the hearts of the people but the respect of those who did not believe his theories. What would have been the result of the election if he had lived, it is impossible to imagine. It was Henry George, the man, who was the candidate, but Henry George was dead before the election, and his theories were not put to the test. The work which he has done lives after him and the effect of his life will be felt in the continuance of the impulse he gave to thought upon the great social question. He was a living power, a power which will live, move and have its being in the hearts of the people long after his body has crumbled to dust.

The following is a brief biographical sketch of the career of Robert A. Van Wyck, who has just been elected to the important position of Mayor of Greater New York.

Robert A. Van Wyck is the Chief Justice of the City Court. He was born in New York in 1850 and comes from a well-known New York family, of Dutch descent. He graduated at Columbia Law School in 1872 and was admitted to the bar in 1873. He has since that time been in the law, and has been a member of the New York State Bar Association since its formation in 1880, and helped to form the County Democracy. Later he returned to the law, and was a member of the New York State Bar Association. He was defeated for the City Court Bench in 1881 and was elected in 1889. In 1895 he was chosen Chief Justice by his fellow Justices and in the same year was re-elected for a second term of six years. On June 28, 1896 he was arrested at a French Ball at the Metropolitan Opera House, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, but was discharged next morning by Justice White. During this campaign he has maintained strict silence, letting his managers do the work and holding that the dignity of his position as Chief Justice precluded active participation in the campaign.

He lent his name and Tammany did the rest.

Provincial Appointments.
The local government has appointed the Hon. Robert Marshall, Secretary of the Provincial Hospital, vacant by the recent death of R. W. Crookshank.

Dr. J. Boyle Travers has been appointed to the position of Superintendent of the same institution made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Steeves.

John E. Ratigan, as Vendor of Liquors under the Canada Temperance Act, for the Parish of Nelson, in the county of Northumberland.

Escaped from the Reformatory.
Three lads named Polky, Jackson and Davis escaped from the reformatory, St. John, on Saturday evening.

Mr. E. S. Vye, conductor of the Indian town branch train is laid up with a severely sprained ankle.

Mr. Walter Drummond left last Friday morning for the U. S.

Mr. Alex. Robinson, of Chatham, was in town on Monday.

Mr. E. J. Delisle, of Halifax, is in town here for the past year leave at his express for New York. He will spend several days in Boston on his way.

Mr. W. J. Andow arrived here last Tuesday night's express from Windsor, N. S.

Mr. John Williamson left Tuesday morning for the C. E. R. for Fredericton to visit his sister there. He will also visit St. John before he returns home.

Messrs. Richards & Gunter are loading and shipping to points on the C. E. R. by way, a fine quality of dry fish cod oil and cod liver oil, with a big sea anchor, and a car of about nine cords each day; this work finds a very ready sale, and David Richards, their agent at Fredericton, has been very busy in Fredericton market this season.

The traps are still hovering around the neighborhood. W. D. Richards and wife while driving to Dauntown last Sunday, were accosted by five of these fellows, one catching the horse by the bridle while the others blocked around the carriage and demanded money. W. D. took matters very cool and getting out of the wagon and asking a promise of returning in an hour to get at his money, then the fellows of their guard and catching up a large club, which he held over the head of the horse, and the horse was driven to the door of the house, where he was secured.

Electors.

Bathurst, Nov. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Conter have just returned from a tour of New Brunswick, taking in Fredericton, St. John and other towns of interest. Herbert drove a spanking pair of blacks hitched to a covered phaeton, doing 20 miles an hour.

Times are very quiet around town now as the men are all off to the lumber woods, the mill having shut down for the season's saving, and the crews of about fifty, are engaged in cutting up a few days' work for the winter's saving. The mill will start up again about Christmas, and will probably cut about ten thousand cords during the winter. The men are all well and the mill will have a good season and continue here for many years to come.

We were glad to see our friend Chas. May, who has been away a few days with a large crew of men for the lumber woods. He is operating on Big Dam for Geo. J. Vaughan, and expects to get out, the coming winter, about ten thousand cords of lumber.

Mr. Wm. Richards is apparently doing very little in the woods here this winter.

Mr. W. D. Richards told our correspondent today that their crew would not exceed seven or eight hundred men.

Messrs. Richards & Gunter are loading and shipping to points on the C. E. R. by way, a fine quality of dry fish cod oil and cod liver oil, with a big sea anchor, and a car of about nine cords each day; this work finds a very ready sale, and David Richards, their agent at Fredericton, has been very busy in Fredericton market this season.

North End Notes.

Quite a pleasant evening was spent at the residence of John McElroy, Esq., North End, when quite a number of the young ladies and gentlemen gave their names to the list of the Misses and Messrs. who were going to the States, a pleasant sail. After refreshments were served the evening was spent in different amusements until the midnight hour, when all fell to sleep. The young ladies were escorted to the train by quite a number of their friends who could not fall to see that but Miss McElroy and her friends were the only ones who were escorted to the train.

As the train left the station some of the young men forgot to leave, so as one of old friends failed to say there were about 100 of them, but all were general favorites in the neighborhood in which they formerly resided.

Miscellaneous.

Andrews—Too bad about Billings, wasn't it?

Devis—What's happened to him?

Andrews—He's looney.

Devis—You don't tell me! What's the cause of it?

Andrews—He came home after 12 o'clock the other night, and his wife left him in without an unkind word. The shock was too much for him.

C. C. RICHARDS & CO.

DEAR SIRS.—A few days ago I was taken with a severe pain in contraction of the cords of my leg, and had to be taken home in a rig. I could not sleep for the pain, and was unable to put my foot to the floor. A friend told me of your MINARD'S LINIMENT, and one hour from the first application I was able to walk, and the pain entirely disappeared.

You can use my name as freely as you like, as I consider it the best remedy I have ever used.

Ingersoll, Ont. CHRISTOPHER GERRY.

'The word coloring of your essay was exquisite.'

'Thank you.'

'It matched so perfectly the green ribbon at your throat.'

'Oh, thank you very much.'

Thus conversed the two sweet girl graduates, and revealed again the safety of woman in giving the esoteric significance of things.

Catarrh of Ten Years' Standing Cured by Dr. Chase.

I suffered from Catarrh for ten years and was treated by some of the best physicians in Canada. I was recommended by Mr. C. Thompson, druggist, Uxbridge, to try Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, and can state positively I cured my Catarrh and Catarrhal Sore Throat.

Yours respectfully,

J. D. PHILLIPS, J. P. ANNA E. ROWE.

Witless. Eden, Ont.

Witly—Do animals go to heaven, parson?

Parson Goodman—No, William, probably not; or at least we have no reason to think so.

Witly—Then the milk and honey in heaven must be canned goods, I suppose?

A Fair Trial.

'I was troubled with a very bad headache last night, or at least we give you Lax-Liver Pills a fair trial. One box of them cured me and I have not had a headache since. They are a long way ahead of any other remedy I ever tried.'

MISS JANET MUNROE, Westbourne, Man.

Burke—I heard you are on a stroll, Casey?

Casey—I am. I struck for shorter hours.

Burke—An' did you get him?

Casey—I did. Sure, I'm not war-rakin' at all now!

'Yes; I guess that's so,' said Jimmieboy. 'Isn't it queer how we both managed to get into the same family?'

Fairly Staggered.

Mr. Samuel Humphries, retired carriage manufacturer, Stratford, Ont., says: 'For a long time I have had kidney troubles and pain in the back. I could not straighten up and often had to sit down until the pain and weakness went away. I have taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and must say they are a great kidney medicine, because they have entirely removed all pain from my back, curing the urinary difficulties and everything, my general health is a remarkable degree.'

'World, sir,' said the newswoman on the Hoboken ferry boat.

'Got it,' replied the stalwart bridegroom, turning ecstatically to the shy young thing by his side, who was all the world to him.

MINARD'S LINIMENT cures

Garget in cows.

Brown—Is young Flyingwedge practicing law?

Jones—I think not. He was admitted to the bar, but I think he's practicing economy.

A Banker's Experience.

'I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Luasod and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat,' writes Manager Thomas Dawson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Avenue, Toronto. 'It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor.'

A Retrospect—First Tramp—'Wuz you ever married?' Second Tramp—'Well, I just wish I had all the alimony I owe.'

MINARD'S LINIMENT cures Distemper.

'And what the devil do I have after waster's trunk?'

'To put your clothes in, of course.'

'And go naked? Be me sowl, no! a bitivil!'

Severe Asthma Relieved.

DEAR SIRS.—We have used Norway Pine Syrup in our home a great deal, and I have a little boy who has had asthma for five or six years (he is only 10 now), and during the severe attacks he would get great relief from using the syrup. For an ordinary cold it is ahead of any cough medicine I ever took.

No other oil and no other medicine has ever been discovered which can take the place of Cod-liver Oil in all conditions of wasting. New remedies come, live their little day and die, but Cod-liver Oil remains the rock on which all hope for recovery must rest. When it is scientifically prepared, as in Scott's Emulsion, it checks the progress of the disease, the congestion and inflammation subsides and the process of healing begins. Bitters almost feel the thousands of heavy hoofs beating on the dry prairie. The shouting cow-boys, the bellowing steers, the dust—it was a frightful menace. Uncertain which way to turn, and deeming it impossible to escape from the wide sweep on which the cattle were coming they simply stood still and waited. And as they waited they saw one rider leave the group of half dozen herders whose ponies had carried them near the leaders of the herd.

'Paul is deserting us!' passed through Aunt Serena's mind, and her heart sank as she spoke the words more to herself than to the children.

It seemed so. Reining his pony aside he was riding like mad toward the ranch house, which was but a little out of the herd's course. Theo saw it, as he stood helpless beside his lamed pony, and wondered. The other herders saw it and yelled frantically to him to return. But Paul heeded them not. Like a flash into his mind had come the words of an old cattleman who had given him advice in the art of managing a herd.

'Yeh kin do more with a bunch of cattle by their likes and dislikes,' had been a part of his philosophy; 'and I s'pect they're a good bit like humans in that.'

Already Paul was near the ranch house, and the anxious watchers saw him stop his horse with a severity which nearly brought the faithful creature to his knees, dismount, dash in through the open door, reappear with something in his arms, lead to the saddle and race pell-mell, fast as the pony's feet would carry him, toward the head of the herd again.

The cattle were running no faster than at the start, but neither had the cowboys' efforts been able to check them. Moreover the angry eyes of the leaders appeared to have been fascinated by the yellow parrish which shone brightly in the sunlight, and were taking their way, followed by the whole frantic mass, directly toward it. In the air was an odor of bruised horns and in the track of the herd was more than one struggling beast which had fallen in the race and been trampled to death by its companions.

But Paul was well in advance of even the foremost, and a gap of many rods intervened between even himself and the school party.

'Git! Prince—Git!' he was saying as he leaned low on his pony's neck and pressed the spurs harder and harder on the streaming flanks.

Then suddenly the watchers saw Paul turn sharply and ride directly in front of the on coming herd, scarce a dozen yards away.

But they saw nothing more. As he rode, a fine, white stream poured from his saddle bow, and a four-like trail was left behind him, showing clearly on the brown grass and barren spots of earth.

'What crazy thing'—began the chief herder, who had been far in the rear, but was now riding near the front.
